Timbers of Concord House
to Be Used in Structure,
Site Not Divulged.

Concord, N. H., May 29. — Pleasant View, for many years the home of Mrs. Mary G. Eddy, founder and head of the Christian Science Church, is being destroyed in accordance with the terms of Mrs. Eddy's will, Joseph B. Fernald, one of the trustees under the will, said tonight. ~~The principal timbers and parts of the house are to be used in the erection of a memorial to Mrs. Eddy, he said. The remainder will be burned. The site of the proposed memorial Mr. Fernald refused to divulge.~~

Mr. Fernald's statement was made in connection with the action of the police authorities today in preventing further burning of the Pleasant View property. No permit for fires had been obtained, it was said. ~~After explanation by Mr. Fernald, however, permit for regulated fires was granted.~~

MRS EDDY'S HOME TO BECOME A MEMORIAL

Concord, N H, House to Be Razed and Reerected

No Chance for Souvenir Hunters, as Refuse Will Be Burned

Special Dispatch to the Globe

CONCORD, N H, May 29—There is to be no opportunity for the sale of souvenirs of Pleasant View, the home in this city for many years of Mrs Mary Baker G. Eddy, and now being razed by its owners, the trustees of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston.

The staircases which Mrs Eddy climbed so many times in the 15 years of her residence at Pleasant View, the doors which she opened, the floors which she trod, the balcony from which she addressed thousands of "pilgrims," are not to be manufactured into paper cutters, penholders and stamp boxes.

Every vestige of Pleasant View is to be removed from the site it has occupied in Concord.

Josiah E. Fernald, one of the trustees under the will, said tonight that the principal timber and parts of the house are to be used in the erection of a memorial to Mrs Eddy, in accordance with her will. The remainder will be burned. The site of the proposed memorial, Mr Fernald refused to divulge.

These facts became known today in the course of a controversy between the city authorities and the contractors who are tearing down the house. The latter started several bonfires for burning up parts of the building as it was torn down, without taking out the required permit from the Chief of the Fire Department. The latter sent the assistant city marshal out to Pleasant View with instructions to extinguish the fires and to allow no more to be built until further orders.

A wire fence has been erected around the wrecking operations so that no one not employed on the job can have access to the materials taken from the house.

The contractor said that all the lumber from the house that was in good condition was to be shipped out of the city. That which he wished to burn was the refuse. It was learned that all the bricks from the fireplaces, before which Mrs Eddy was accustomed to sit, had been boxed up and shipped out of the city.

A permit for regulated fires at the estate was later granted the contractor.
