HUMAN AUXILIARIES

You do not require arguments any more, neither declarations nor affirmations of truths which are based upon, predicated on, or instigated by some error to be eradicated, nor do you require contradictions of presented errors, for such prayers of implication, or other outmoded prayers of supplication, are but the emanations of the human mind. There are no healing qualities in the human mind.

These human auxiliaries are like the wheels of an aeroplane, useful to take off from the ground into the air, but the moment the earth is left behind those wheels are worthless, and worse than useless, for they retard your speed, are an extra weight, and prevent your ascension as high as might be done without them. Likewise human auxiliaries as aforesaid are useful only to make your "take off" from the earth earthly, and up into the realm of Spirit; but from the moment that this occurs, those auxiliaries are utterly worthless, and like the aeroplane wheels, are but extra weight, retard your speed and prevent your ascent higher into Spirit. They in fact exert a downward pull, and should be dropped immediately and so forever done with, for they have served their purpose.

"Ah", says someone, "but those wheels are necessary when the plane comes to earth." Quite so, and that is why the wheels on an aeroplane are not dropped after the plane has ascended into the air. Note this however, that unlike the plane, when you have once attained your flight into Spirit, there is no return to the earth earthly. It is as utterly impossible to do so, as it would be for the oak tree to return to the acorn, or the butterfly to crawl back into the chrysalis. So the wheels, the arguments, contradictions of error, etc., etc., are never needed again, and should be dropped forever, for they too are but extra weight, retard the speed, and prevent the higher ascension. Having once attained the realm of Spirit, there is nowhere to go but forward and upward, for progress is the law of God. Have done then with the worse than useless wheels of argument, contradictions of errors, etc., and instead step on the gas of revelation, point your wings for an upward flight, look to God, and rise higher in Spirit.

It may be that in your earlier flight into Spirit's realm you will encounter storms, run into great fog banks, be enveloped in darkness, until you feel like Columbus, who, when he started out, didn't know where he was going, when he got there didn't know where he was, and when he got back didn't know where he had been; and so you may think you have lost your way, that you are falling, are about to collide with some error, etc., etc.; but such is not the fact, and even then you require no wheels, nor anything to enable you to land, for you cannot come down; and the way out of your trouble is to step on the gas, point your wings for upward flight, look away from the errors presenting themselves, and look to God, whereupon you will soon find that you have climbed to a higher level and are above the dangers which threatened.

Remember that once having ascended, even but a little way, there is no possible return to a position outgrown. If you will not drop your wheels and have done with them, you will retard your further ascension, and flounder about in sickness, sin, death, and other troubles such as poverty and lacks and limitations; but rest assured of this, you can never return to the earth, earthly. You must go forward and upward, therefore make the most of it and praise and glorify, and give thanks to God, be of good cheer, rejoice and be exceeding glad, as Paul says by singing "psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord," and be filled with mirth, joy and laughter, and so doing you will fly on and fly upward—but of this be sure, there's no way back to earth.
