[That portion of the records of the meeting of Board of Directors dated June 2, 1913, appearing on page 35 of the directors' records for 1913, which was read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 188.]

Mr. Dane—From the record of the directors for June 8, 1914, page 51, I offer that part of the minutes which I read.

The Master—Is this 1914?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

The Master—I thought you already had in one for 1914.

Mr. Dane—That was a letter of notification, I think, that I put in for that year. (Reading):

"The Annual Meeting of the Christian Science Board of Directors, for electing officers and other business, as provided for by Section 2 of Article XIII of the By-Laws of The Mother Church, at 9:30 a. m. All members present.

"Upon motion of Mr. Stewart, seconded by Mr. Dittmore, the following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year: . . . Manager of Christian Science Publishing Society, David B. Ogden; Editor, Journal, Sentinel, Der Herold; Archibald McLellan; Associate Editor, Journal, Sentinel, and Der Herold, John B. Willis; Associate Editor, Journal, Sentinel, and Der Herold, Mrs. Annie M. Knott; Assistant Editor, Der Herold, Theodore Stanger; Editor, The Monitor, Frederick Dixon."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of directors dated June 8, 1914, appearing on page 51 of directors' records for 1914, which was read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 189.]

Mr. Dane—That year, if Your Honor please, notice was sent, dated June 8, 1914, to the trustees, notifying them of the election of those officers, which has been—

The Master—Which you have read?

Mr. Dane—Yes—there being a change in the personnel of the editors.

Mr. Whipple—Then is it true that no notice had been sent since 1908?

Mr. Dane—Mr. Dittmore says, I understand, that notice was sent each year.

Mr. Thompson—Just a minute.

Mr. Dane—But so far as my minutes go—

The Master—You will have to leave that until he testifies, won't you?

Mr. Dane—So far as my minutes indicate there was no written notice sent to the trustees of the election of editors or business manager between 1908 and 1914.

Mr. Thompson—You are perfectly at liberty to put Mr. Dittmore on the stand, if you like.

Mr. Bates—We don't want him yet.

Mr. Thompson—No, I shouldn't think you would.

Mr. Dane—I offer from the minutes of the directors' records for 1915, page 42, that part of the record which I now read, June 7th, 1915. (Reading):

"The annual meeting of the Christian Science Board of Directors, for electing officers and other business as provided for by Section 2 of Article XIII of the By-Laws of The Mother Church, at 9:30 a. m. Present: Messrs. McLellan, Stewart, Dittmore, Dickey, and Neal.

"Upon motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Stewart, the following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year: . . . Manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, David B. Ogden; Editor, Journal, Sentinel, and Der Herold, Archibald McLellan; Associate Editor, Journal, Sentinel, and Der Herold, John B. Willis; Associate Editor, Journal, Sentinel, and Der Herold, Mrs. Annie M. Knott; Assistant Editor, Der Herold, Theodore Stanger; Editor, The Monitor, Frederick Dixon."

[That portion of the records of meeting of directors dated June 7, 1915, appearing on page 42 of directors' records for 1915, which was read by Mr. Dane is offered in evidence as Exhibit 190.]

Mr. Dane—And from the records of the minutes of the directors for 1916, that part which is on page 79, which I now read:

"June 5, 1916.

"The annual meeting of the Christian Science Board of Directors, for electing officers and other business as provided for by Section 2 of Article XIII of the By-Laws of The Mother Church, at 9:30 a. m. Present: Messrs. McLellan, Stewart, Dittmore, Dickey, and Neal.

"Upon motion of Mr. Stewart, seconded by Mr. Dickey, the following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year:

"Manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, David B. Ogden; editor, Journal, Sentinel, Der Herold, Archibald McLellan; associate editor, Journal, Sentinel, and Der Herold, Mrs. Annie M. Knott; associate editor, Journal, Sentinel, and Der Herold, William D. McCrackan; assistant editor, Der Herold, Theodore Stanger; editor, The Monitor, Frederick Dixon."

[That portion of the record of meeting of directors, dated June 5, 1916, appearing on page 79 of the directors' records for 1916, which was read by Mr. Dane is offered in evidence as Exhibit 191.]

Mr. Whipple—There appears to have been a change that year. Do you find any note of any notice being sent, in your minutes?

Mr. Dane—Not for 1916.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, but there was a change.

Mr. Dane—No written notice.

Mr. Whipple—They apparently didn't follow your rule that year.

Mr. Dane—From the records of the meeting of the Board of Directors for 1917, I offer that part which I read, of a meeting of Monday, June 4, 1917:

"At the annual meeting of the Christian Science Board of Directors for electing officers and other business, as provided for by Section 2 of Article XIII of the By-Laws of The Mother Church, held at 9:30 a. m. on above date in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. McLellan, Stewart, Dittmore, Dickey and Neal.

"On motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Stewart, the following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year:

"Manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, David B. Ogden.

"Editor, Journal, Sentinel, Der Herold, Archibald McLellan.

"Associate Editor, Journal, Sentinel and Der Herold, Mrs. Annie M. Knott.

"Associate Editor, Journal, Sentinel and Der Herold, William D. McCrackan.

"Assistant Editor, Der Herold, Theodore Stanger.

"Editor, The Monitor, Frederick Dixon."

[That portion of the record of meeting of directors, dated June 4, 1917, appearing on page 222 of directors' records, from June 7, 1916, through June 4, 1917, which was read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 192.]

Mr. Whipple—Isn't it a fact that although there was no change that year a notice was sent?

Mr. Dane—Have you the notice?

Mr. Whipple—No; we have a copy of it from your books.

Mr. Dane—Notice was sent of the election of 1917.

Mr. Whipple—I beg your pardon.

Mr. Dane—A notice was sent to the trustees.

Mr. Whipple—Although there was no change in 1917?

Mr. Dane. In 1917.

Mr. Whipple—Then your rule doesn't apply.

Mr. Bates—We haven't said anything about a rule.

Mr. Whipple—Your suggestion as to what had been their habit.

Mr. Dane—I offer now from the minutes of the directors of 1918 that which I now read from the meeting of Monday, June 3, 1918.

[Portion of directors' records, June 3, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 193, and read by Mr. Dane, as follows]:

"Monday, June 3, 1918.

"At the Annual Meeting of the Christian Science Board of Directors for electing officers and other business, as provided for by Section 2 of Article XIII of the By-Laws of The Mother Church, held at 9:30 a. m. on above date in the directors' room at The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Stewart, Dittmore, Dickey, Neal, and Merritt.

"On motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Dickey, the following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year. . . .

"Manager, The Christian Science Publishing Society, John R. Watts.

"Editor, Journal, Sentinel, Der Herold, and Le Hérait, William P. McKenzie.

"Associate Editor, Journal, Sentinel, Der Herold, and Le Hérait, Mrs. Annie M. Knott.

"Associate Editor, Journal, Sentinel, Der Herold, and Le Hérait, William P. McCrackan.

"Editor, The Christian Science Monitor, Frederick Dixon."

Mr. Dane—Have you the notice, Mr. Whipple, of the election of those editors and manager for 1918?

Mr. Whipple—Not the original, or not any original, but I understand you have a copy of the duplicate original, am I right?

Mr. Dane—Mr. Watts was elected, newly elected, as business manager.

Mr. Whipple—Well, that may be, but in point of fact he had been working as business manager since the previous August, 1917, and was receiving his pay, and it was by virtue of selection by the trustees that he had been doing it. The same is true about the editor, Mr. McKenzie.

Mr. Dane—I offer now a letter from the volume, "Mary Baker Eddy, Letters and Miscellany," Volume 9, page 135, document No. 993.

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, Aug. 8, 1908, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 194, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows]:

"384 Beacon Street,
"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"Aug. 8, 1908."

Mr. Whipple—Has this signature been identified?

Mr. Dane—No, it has not.

Mr. Whipple—Will you let us look at it over here, please? (Examining letter.) We have no objection, except the general one, to that.

"384 Beacon Street,
"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"Aug. 8, 1908.

"Board of Directors, of The Mother Church, Boston, Mass.

"Beloved Brethren:—Please vote on the following amendment to Article I, Section 1, of The Mother Church Manual.

"Article I.

"Names. Section 1. The church officers shall consist of a Pastor Emeritus, a Board of Directors, a president, a clerk, a treasurer and two readers.

"MARY B. G. EDDY."

Mr. Thompson—What is the date of that?

Mr. Dane—Aug. 8, 1908.

Mr. Whipple—Will you show that to His Honor?

Mr. Dane—I will show this to Your Honor. In that connection I offer from the Church By-Laws, Volume 2, page 38, a part of the records of a meeting of the directors, held on Sept. 4, 1908, which I read:

[Portion of directors' records, Church By-Laws, Volume 2, page 38, for Sept. 4, 1908, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 195, and read by Mr. Dane, as follows]:

"Friday, Sept. 4, 1908.

"A meeting of the directors held this a. m. the following Church By-law and amendment were adopted on separate motions and by unanimous vote. . . .

"Amendment to Article I, Section 1, page 25, of the seventy-third edition of the Manual.

"Names. Section 1. The Church officers shall consist of the Pastor Emeritus, a Board of Directors, a president, a clerk, a treasurer, and two readers.

"WILLIAM B. JOHNSON, Clerk."

The Master—How was it you didn't put that in before, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—Why, I—

The Master—Overlooked it?

Mr. Dane—I overlooked it, yes, sir. I think it is very important, has an important bearing. I overlooked it.

The Master—It had a natural place in your series, didn't it?

Mr. Dane—It did.

The Master—Before the letter of Aug. 8, 1908?

Mr. Dane—Exactly; and it is an omission on my part.

Mr. Whipple—Is it true that after that directors were elected as officers of the Church each year?

Mr. Dane—I understand that the directors are not elected.

Mr. Whipple—As officers of the Church?

Mr. Dane—I understand they are not elected.

Mr. Whipple—Well, they are there made Church officers.

Mr. Bates—That does not necessitate an election.

Mr. Whipple—By a by-law which the directors themselves voted for, and never had been Church officers before.

Mr. Thompson—I would like to remind you to put in the by-law raising the number of directors from four to five, at your convenience. It is very important.

Mr. Dane—If Your Honor please, I also omitted to put in the record of a meeting of July 6, 1908, which properly came in connection with the letters with relation to disbanding the Executive Members. I now offer it from Church By-Laws, Volume 1, page 62.

Mr. Whipple—Haven't you put that in once?

Mr. Dane—I think not.

Mr. Whipple—I think you have. It may not be the same letter.

[Portion of directors' records, Church By-Laws, Volume 1, page 62, July 6, 1908, offered in evidence as Exhibit 196, and read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Monday, July 6, 1908.

"At a meeting of the directors held this day, the following By-Laws were adopted on separate motions and by unanimous votes. . . .

"No Executive Members.

"Art. V of the Church By-Laws creating Executive Members is hereby repealed. There being no further necessity for their organization, the Executive Members shall be and are hereby disbanded."

Mr. Whipple—Are you sure that has not been put in?

Mr. Dane—I am sure it has not been put in as a resolution of the Board of Directors.

The Master—A letter from Mrs. Eddy was put in under date of July 1, 1908, which, as I understood it, directed that same repeal.

Mr. Bates—This is the response to it.

Mr. Dane—This is the action in response to the letter. I should have put it in in that connection. I should like to call attention at this time to the fact that this meeting of July 6, 1908, while it appears in the regular course in the book, is not signed by William B. Johnson. The designation "Clerk" appears, but evidently through oversight the meeting was not signed.

Mr. Whipple—Let us see that.

Mr. Dane—Yes, sir.

Mr. Whipple—That is interesting.

(Examining book.) That is a meeting of July 8?

Mr. Dane—July 6.

The Master—July 6, 1908.

Mr. Whipple—Can't you tell us or find out whose handwriting this is—whose handwriting the alleged record is made up?

Mr. Dane—I think we perhaps can do that.

Mr. Whipple—And if that person is not deceased perhaps we can get some light on it.

Lucia C. Warren, Sworn

Q. (By Mr. Dane.) Will you state your full name, please, Miss Warren?
A. Lucia C. Warren.

Q. Are you officially connected with The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston? A. I am.

Q. In what capacity? A. Assistant to the corresponding secretary of The Christian Science Board of Directors.

Mr. Thompson—Will you speak a little louder, please? It is very hard to hear.

Q. Will you speak a little louder?
A. Assistant to the corresponding secretary of The Christian Science Board of Directors.

Q. How long have you been employed in the secretary's office of The Christian Science Board of Directors?
A. In the corresponding secretary's office, since June, 1909. In the office of the secretary of the Board of Directors, since April 15, 1907.

Q. I show you a volume, Church By-Laws, Volume 1, and call your attention to the record of a meeting on page 62, under date of Monday, July 6, 1908, and ask you if you know the handwriting? A. I do.

Q. Who wrote it? A. Miss Sarah Rutter.

Q. And who was Miss Sarah Rutter? A. Miss Sarah Rutter was an assistant or stenographer in the clerk's office, and also in the office of the secretary of The Christian Science Board of Directors.

Q. Whether or not the minutes in this book, both preceding and following the record of July 6, 1908, are in her handwriting? A. They are.

Q. Do you know where Miss Rutter is now, Miss Warren? A. She resides at Dover, New Hampshire.

Mr. Dane—That is all; you may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

Q. (By Mr. Whipple) Miss Warren, do you know how Miss Rutter got the information which she incorporated, or attempted to incorporate, into what is written in that book which has just been referred to? A. I do.

Q. How? A. She copied the records which were kept by William B. Johnson.

Q. Well, where are those records?
A. Those records were not retained. After they were copied and verified in the book they were not kept for a period.

Q. That is, she was not at the meetings? A. She was not at the meetings.

Q. And some memoranda that Mr. Johnson had she copied, or did he tell her what to write? A. He, as a general rule, wrote it all out himself in final form and had it approved by the board; then she copied it into the record books, after it had been approved by the directors.

Q. Well, that seems extraordinary, that if he was going to write it out he wouldn't write it out in the book himself; but you say that what he did was to write out the whole record in his own handwriting? A. As a rule.

Q. And have it approved by the board? Is that it? A. I believe so.

Q. Then have her copy it into the books, and then destroy what he himself had written in his own handwriting? A. After a time.

Q. You hadn't told us "after a time." After how much time? A. I said "for a period."

Q. After how much time? A. Well, I couldn't say definitely.

Q. I beg pardon? A. I couldn't say definitely.

Q. Where did he keep those accounts which he wrote out completely in his own handwriting? A. He kept them in a manilla envelope in his safe.

Q. Where are those manilla envelopes in the safe? Let's get right down to this particular time, for instance. What were you at this date, in 1908? A. I was a stenographer in the clerk's office and in the office of the secretary of the Christian Science—

Q. Where were the meetings being held? A. In the directors' room in The Mother Church.

Q. Were you in there when they were being held? A. I was not.

Q. How far were they from your office? A. About the third room—second or third room.

Q. And Miss Rutter was not in there, either? A. She was not.

Q. Then take it, with reference, for instance, to this account of the meeting alleged to have been held on July 6, 1908—what was the first that you saw of that record? A. I have no definite memory of any certain record.

Q. Yes. Tell us what you saw with regard to any records, how soon you saw the completed draft? A. Well, the time might vary.

Q. Well, you have told us about a habit that this clerk had of writing out the entire account of the meeting, the entire record, in his own handwriting. Is that correct? A. Sometimes; as a general rule.

Q. As a general rule he did? A. He might not write out every word in full.

Q. Well, now, how do you know he did that? A. Well, he had a system of briefing words—

Q. Well, did you see him? A. I 'did.

Q. You saw him writing it out?

A. I don't say I saw him writing the original records, but I know—

Q. Well, now, tell us what you did see, then. A. You asked me if I had seen him writing these words in brief form, as I understand it?

Q. No. You have told us about a complete record which he gave to Miss Rutter to copy. Did you see him making those complete records? A. I may have. I don't say they were—

Q. Well, pardon me. You may have, and you may not have. Did you? A. I don't know that I could remember definitely having seen him write one complete record.

Q. Did you see him writing on a complete record? A. I don't know that I could say that; as I said before, he had a way of briefing the words.

Q. Pardon me. I am now just trying to get at what you saw him doing. When you saw him writing on these complete records where was he? A. Why, when he signed his books.

Q. Pardon me? A. When he signed his books.

Q. Well, now, I am not talking about the records in the book, which were not in his handwriting. I am talking about those which you say he put away in a manilla envelope. Where did you see him writing on those? A. In his office.

Q. Not in the directors' room? A. Not in the directors' room, no.

Q. Well, now, what was he writing that record from? A. From notes, or from memory, or from letters.

Q. Well, which was it? A. From all.

Q. Notes and memory, and what? A. Correspondence, or data, which may have been considered in the meeting.

Q. What do you mean by "data"? A. Memorandums.

Q. Whose memorandums? A. Anyone's who happened to have a subject to take up.

Q. In the meeting? A. Yes.

Q. Yes. And you saw him writing from his own notes, among other things? A. That would be his basis for writing them.

Q. Therefore in the ordinary course of making up his records he would have his notes which he made at the directors' meeting, wouldn't he? A. I should say so.

Q. And then a completed record of that meeting which he had himself written out from his notes and other data—is that right? A. That was his method of preparing them.

Q. And those were all destroyed? A. I think that they have all been destroyed unless—

Q. I beg pardon? A. I think possibly, unless a few which remained in the office when his term as clerk ended. It is possible that they are still in the—

Q. How often did this destruction take place? A. Why, right along. After the minutes were copied they were—

Q. But you have said that as the minutes were copied they were put into a manilla envelope and put into the safe? A. The first draft.

Q. Yes. Well, now, when were they taken out of the safe for destruction? A. After they were—perhaps he would keep them for a few weeks or perhaps for a few months—I couldn't say definitely about that.

Q. Well, how frequently did this destructive process of taking these notes out of the safe, where they had been put, I take it, for safe keeping and destroying them— A. They were put in the safe for the purpose of keeping them safe until they had been copied into the minute book and signed.

Q. Oh. Then how long was it before they were put into the minute book? A. The time varied.

Q. Months, would it be, before they were put in? A. No, not months. I should say perhaps weeks sometimes.

Q. I beg pardon? A. Perhaps weeks, sometimes.

Q. And then they were put into the safe for safekeeping until they should be copied into the minute book—is that it? A. Yes.

Q. Where were the notes put which he took himself? A. They were usually attached to this draft when it was written out.

Q. Yes. And destroyed when the draft was destroyed? A. Yes.

Q. How soon were the drafts destroyed after they were copied? A. They might have been destroyed right away. I don't know.

Q. They might have been, and they might not have been? A. They might not have been. As I say, there may be a very few memorandums of that kind still in the Church edifice.

Q. In the safe? A. Not in the safe.

Q. Where? A. In a vault.

Q. A vault? A. Yes.

Q. Who has access to the vault? A. The corresponding secretary.

Q. And have those been kept during all this time? A. They may have. I am not positive about that.

Q. Well, when did you last know of their having been kept in there? A. I saw them at one time when we were cleaning our vault, and destroyed—

Q. Do you know what mercy saved those from destruction? A. They may have been destroyed then.

Q. And of course they may not have been. A. They may not have been.

Q. How long since you have looked upon that scene so that you can tell us whether those have been saved from the burning or not? A. It must be two years, I think.

Q. Two years. Then the destruction must have been comparatively recent? A. If they are destroyed.

Q. Well, do you know why they were kept as long as that? A. Because—

Q. Let us see. Mr. Johnson was clerk for the last time in 1909? A. He was.

Q. And you have seen them within two years. Those were kept a long time. A. When Mr. Dittmore was elected clerk there were still a few uncopied records, and those were the ones to which I referred.

Q. A few uncopied records? A. A few of these original drafts that were not copied into these minute books.

Q. When was that? A. When Mr. Dittmore was elected clerk in 1909.

Q. Did Mr. Dittmore keep them in the safe, or in the vault, up to two years ago? A. They never were destroyed after Mr. Dittmore came until, possibly, as I say, two years ago.

Q. That is, after Mr. Dittmore came, this practice of destroying the records in the clerk's handwriting was discontinued? A. This practice of destroying Mr. Johnson's notes was discontinued.

Q. Apparently not, because those were kept, Mr. Johnson's notes that had escaped destruction, until about two years ago. Did you see anyone destroy them then? A. Well, I destroyed some things myself. Whether those were among them or not I do not know.

Q. Do you know what things you destroyed? A. No. We destroyed—

Q. Well, how did Mr. Johnson destroy his notes—fire, water, or tearing them up? A. I think he tore them up.

Q. Tore them up? A. Possibly. Then they were burned.

Q. You think so. What makes you think so? A. Because he did often do that.

Q. He often did what—tore things up? A. Tore things up.

Q. Then you think that having a habit of tearing things up, he may have torn up his records? A. Not his records, no.

The Master—Drafts.

Q. Well, those that were in his own handwriting. A. Not his records.

Q. I mean records of the meetings which were in his own handwriting, and which were merely copied by a clerk into a book. A. Memorandums that were of no further use he destroyed.

Q. I thought you said he wrote out usually the complete account of the meeting, and that a clerk only copied it. A. With this exception, that he had a system, not of shorthand, but of briefing words by their consonants, and he did that right in the directors' meetings' oftentimes.

Q. Yes. Then I understand that he took those notes and came out into his own room and wrote out an account of the meeting? A. Not always.

Q. Well, I understood you to say that it was his habit. A. As a general rule. I didn't intend to say that he wrote them out completely, but practically.

Q. Practically completely? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, then, when the clerk took them to copy, did the clerk have Mr. Johnson's assistance in supplementing them? A. Yes.

Q. Though he had to sit by her when she copied them? A. Not always. We learned many of these designations. Q. But these designations, I understood, were in his original notes which he took in the room? A. Sometimes, sometimes not.

Q. But when he sat in his own room and made up the record he didn't use those? A. He did, yes.

Q. Oh, he used that system also? A. Sometimes he used that, yes.

Mr. Whipple—If you have any of those notes preserved, I would like to ask counsel to produce them, the real records, the ones that Mr. Johnson made himself in his own handwriting. Have you any?

Mr. Dane—I do not know that there are any such records.

Mr. Whipple—Will you look for them?

Mr. Dane—I will have a search made for them.

Mr. Whipple—If you will have a search made for them we should like to get them. Perhaps Mr. Jarvis would know.

Cross-Examination, by Mr. Thompson

Q. (By Mr. Thompson) — Miss Warren, I want to ask you one or two questions about Mr. Dittimore's methods of keeping the records when he was clerk. You were his assistant, were you not? A. Well, for part of the time.

Q. For a good part of the time, weren't you? A. Since September, 1914, I was his assistant.

Q. And you knew his method of keeping the records, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. The directors' records? A. Yes.

Q. He came to you with notes in his own handwriting of what occurred, did he not, as one step? A. He had notes taken in the board meetings.

Q. If you don't understand the question, please tell me so, and I will repeat it; otherwise, if you will be good enough to answer the exact question put, I shall be obliged to you. He used to come to you with or show you pieces of paper with his own writing on them, didn't he? A. Occasionally.

Q. Yes. And he had written down notes of what he had observed in the meeting, had he not—what had taken place? A. Somewhat.

Q. Yes. And then you would take those notes and make up a report of that meeting, would you? A. No.

Q. What did you do? A. Mr. Dittimore dictated his—

Q. He dictated to you? A. Yes.

Q. And then you wrote it out on the typewriter, on the typewriting machine? A. Yes.

Q. And showed it to him? A. Yes.

Q. And if he found any errors in it he would ask you to correct them, would he? A. I imagine so. I don't recall.

Q. And then those reports thus written up from his notes and dictated by him were taken into the next meeting of the board and approved by the board, were they not? A. Generally at the next meeting.

Q. Do you know of a single instance, madam, when any report of a meeting made by Mr. Dittimore was not subsequently approved by the Board of Directors in open meeting? If so, please let us have that meeting; if not, please say so. A. I don't know that I can answer that question.

Q. Is your hesitation due to the fact that you honestly believe that there was ever a single meeting taken by Mr. Dittimore as clerk which was not afterward submitted, the report of it, to the full board, for approval,—publicly submitted to the board? Yes or no. Yes or no, please. A. No. That is, my hesitation is not due to that.

Q. You know of no such case, do you, where he failed to submit his report to the full board for approval or disapproval? A. I know of one record. I know of indications of a meeting concerning which there is no record.

Q. Yes. One meeting there was no record of. Let us have the date of that meeting as near as you can place it. A. I can't place it now.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Dittimore was present at that meeting? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know. Then you don't mean to intimate by giving us that statement that Mr. Dittimore had attended in his capacity as clerk or secretary a meeting and had taken no notes of that meeting, did you? A. I didn't make any intimation.

Q. You didn't mean to intimate that. Aside from that, that seemed to be an exception, but now turns out not to be, it is a fact, isn't it, that you can't think of a single meeting, in all the time that you assisted Mr. Dittimore, when the notes, the report prepared by you and approved by him, was not taken in by him and submitted to the Board of Directors for their approval or disapproval? You can't think of one, can you? A. Not of one in connection with which I had anything to do.

Q. No. That is all I am asking you, madam. Do you know what the practice has been since Mr. Dittimore ceased to be secretary? Do you know? I don't ask what it is, but I ask you—do you know what the practice is? A. I do.

Q. You have had something to do with the making up of reports of meetings since that time, haven't you? A. I have.

Q. You have assisted Mr. Jarvis? A. I have.

Q. It is a fact, isn't it, that there have been reports of meetings that have not been taken in for approval for as much as six months after the meeting occurred? A. I don't think so.

Q. Are you willing to swear that that is not true? A. I don't think so.

I would want to look at the records first.

Q. If such a thing as that were true, do you think you would know it? A. I certainly do.

Q. It is a fact, isn't it, that there have been reports of meetings that have been altered repeatedly, notes of which have been altered repeatedly before they were approved by the directors? That is true, isn't it? A. Not altered repeatedly.

Q. Altered once or twice. That is true, isn't it, madam? Haven't you known of cases where reports of those meetings were altered after they had been entered? A. After they had been entered?

Q. Yes. A. We don't enter them in the book until after they are approved.

Q. Have they all been approved since Mr. Jarvis has been there? A. Certainly.

Q. Every one of them? A. Every one of them.

Q. How long a period has elapsed—what is the longest period you have known? A. The longest period I remember is about a month.

Q. About a month? What is approved—the rough draft or the actual record? A. The draft.

Q. Then the record itself—you don't know of a single instance where the record itself as finally written up has been approved by the board since Mr. Jarvis took hold, do you? A. The draft is approved.

Q. Only the draft is approved. And you don't know what changes have occurred between the draft and the record as finally written up on several occasions, do you? A. I do.

Q. There have been such cases, haven't there—yes or no? There have been, haven't there? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—After approval by the board?

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—And before they are entered in the book?

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Q. Do you know anything about the meetings in 1909—any meetings in 1909? Do you know about some records in 1915 relating to an increase by the directors in their own salaries? A. I do.

Q. And you know for a fact, don't you, madam, that a considerable part of the records of that meeting has never appeared on the books of the directors? That is true, isn't it? A. I don't.

Mr. Thompson—I would like to see those records of that meeting if you have got them with you—in 1915, where they voted on their own salaries. I would like to see those records of that meeting where they adopted the increase in their own salaries. I would like to see the records for July and August, 1915.

[Records are produced and handed to the witness.]

Q. Now will you turn, madam, in this book, to the records of the meetings in July and August, 1915, relating to the increase in salaries by the directors, voting themselves an increase?

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Thompson, I think she may have found it.

Q. Have you found those two records? A. I don't think the directors increased their salary in 1915.

Q. On the subject of doing it—the discussion on that subject.

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment as to this line of inquiry—to any records relating to any change in salaries in 1915. I am not able to see any materiality that it has in the case.

Mr. Thompson—Don't you think it has some materiality on both these cases to show that systematically since Mr. Dittmore ceased to control these records, these records have been altered to suit the purposes of these, the majority of the directors? Don't you think that has any materiality at all? Don't you believe if Christian Scientists know that fact they might—

Mr. Dane—I deny that that is the fact.

Mr. Thompson—Then let me prove it, if you deny it.

Mr. Dane—Until it is shown that it is the fact, the records, in 1915, in relation to salaries of the Board of Directors, I submit, has no bearing on the issues in this case.

Mr. Thompson—Do you think the fact that you deny the truth of a statement I make justifies you in objecting to evidence from a sworn witness to prove the truth of what I am saying? It is a singular rule of testimony, one that I am not surprised that you invoke under these circumstances, but it is novel to me.

The Master—This is cross-examination, of course. Why is it not proper cross-examination?

Mr. Dane—I don't believe it is proper cross-examination because I don't believe it is material to any issue. I don't understand that my brother can go beyond anything that is material to the issues raised by his bill in cross-examination—and he is seeking now to develop certain records in 1915, long before the matter of which his client complains in his bill arose.

The Master—You have offered the present witness as a witness on the general method, to some extent, of keeping the records, haven't you?

Mr. Dane—We only offered the witness as to the record relating to the meeting of 1908, to identify the handwriting, because that meeting did not contain the signature of the clerk at that time—Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Thompson—I greatly regret to make any unnecessary disturbance or trouble in this case, but it is a general issue in both these cases, fairly defined by the pleadings and underlying them anyway, the good faith of these clients of yours. Now this bears directly on that topic, and, disagreeable as it may be, so far as I can bring it out the truth is coming out in this case.

Mr. Bates—It is not at all disagreeable.

Mr. Thompson—If it is not disagreeable, then don't object to it.

Mr. Dane—It is not a question of being disagreeable.

The Master—I should certainly not exclude it altogether from the case. My only doubt is whether this is the proper time to go into it. It interrupts the line of evidence that we have been following and brings us up against a controversy that has not been fairly raised yet.

Mr. Thompson—I won't go far, Your Honor. I simply want to identify at this time, when the witness is likely to give me her plain and straight recollection about it, I want to get—

The Master—You may have those records you mentioned identified if the witness can identify them.

Mr. Thompson—That is what I want now.

The Master—Now will you kindly see.

The Witness—You said July and August?

Q. July and August, 1915—any discussions on the topic of raising their salaries? A. I see none whatever.

Q. Or September, either. Now it ought not to take very long to find those records.

Mr. Bates—You have gone through two months now. Here is the third one.

Mr. Thompson—I don't think your witness, if left alone, will occupy much time in finding it. I don't think it will take very long to go through these records. It is a very important matter.

Mr. Bates—You ought to have some knowledge of it. Mr. Dittmore was clerk.

Mr. Thompson—I have some knowledge about it.

Mr. Bates—I mean some correct knowledge.

The Master—Mr. Thompson, I thought they had been submitted for your examination.

Mr. Thompson—No, sir; I haven't seen them.

Mr. Bates—You have had the opportunity to.

Mr. Thompson—I haven't seen them.

The Master—I thought they had been submitted to your examination.

Mr. Thompson—I haven't seen these records at all, sir.

The Master—I will ask the witness to run through July, August, and September and see whether she can identify any records relating to the matters referred to by Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—There can only be two or three meetings in all those months, I should suppose—three or four.

The Witness—I see none in September.

Q. Do you see any in July or August? A. No.

Q. None in any of those three months? A. No.

Q. Do you find in any of the meetings that you have looked over, in July, August, and September, a reference in the records, or a record of a letter or letters of protest by Mr. Dittmore—yes or no? A. None whatever.

Q. Do you find, in any of those records you have looked over, a reference to or a copy of a letter by General Street—yes or no? A. None whatever.

Mr. Thompson—That is all, madam.

Mr. Bates—You refer to the one you have been publishing in the New York Herald?

Mr. Thompson—No.

Mr. Whipple—Now, can't we have that book marked and identified?

Mr. Thompson—I would like to have that book marked, yes.

Mr. Whipple—Because if such things as are alleged ought to be there are not there we ought to have the book clearly identified in some way.

Mr. Thompson—Yes, I would like to have that book marked so that it can't be—so that we will know it when we see it again.

Mr. Whipple—May we have the date of the first meeting and the date of the last meeting. Just have the book marked itself, giving the dates of the first and last meetings and the number of pages in the book.

Mr. Dane—Perhaps I can read it into the record.

Mr. Whipple—Very good—if you will.

Mr. Dane—The book referred to by the witness is a book of minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors for 1915, beginning with Jan. 6, 1915, and ending with Dec. 29, 1915, the records being kept by J. V. Dittmore.

Mr. Whipple—How many pages are there? Are the pages numbered consecutively?

Mr. Dane—The book contains 136 pages.

Mr. Whipple—I notice you speak of it as a book. It seems to be a collection of records simply bound together temporarily—loose-leaf records.

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Bates—No, they are not loose-leaf.

Mr. Whipple—Aren't they loose-leaf?

Mr. Bates—They don't seem to be. At any rate, the pages are numbered consecutively.

Mr. Whipple—I am not using the term "loose-leaf" in the sense of whether the cord that binds them together is drawn up tightly or not. It is merely whether by loosening the cord pages may be taken out.

Mr. Dane—The pages in the book are numbered consecutively from 1 to 136.

Mr. Whipple—But it is kept on the loose-leaf system, not bound together the way your other records have been.

Mr. Dane—I suppose you would call it a loose-leaf system. It may be marked for identification. [The volume referred to, being a volume of minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors for 1915, beginning with Jan. 6, 1915, and ending with Dec. 29, 1915, containing 136 pages, is marked 197 for identification.]

Re-Direct Examination

Q. (By Mr. Dane) Miss Warren, Mr. Thompson has asked you something with regard to changes that have been made in the drafts of meetings before they were entered as the final record, and you started to say something in explanation of that. What did you wish to say? What changes have you personal knowledge of? A. Simply minor changes, of a misspelled name, a typographical error or something of that nature.

Mr. Thompson—I ask that that answer be stricken out. It is not for her to say what are minor changes. We will find that out when we see Mr. Dittmore's original records corresponding to these dates, which he has fortunately kept.

Mr. Dane—I insist that the answer was responsive and not an expression of opinion.

Mr. Thompson—I ask that it be struck out.

The Master—I hardly think it is necessary to strike it out.

Q. Do you know, Miss Warren, what the practice was of having a draft approved by the board before it became the final record of the meeting? A. Since Mr. Jarvis has been there?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. What was the practice? A. It is dictated and taken in to the directors for approval. When it is approved it is stamped "Read," and with the stamp "C. S. Board of Directors." It is then copied into a minute book exactly as it is, except for some typographical errors such as I have mentioned, a misspelled name or something of that nature.

Q. And during the whole time Mr. Jarvis has been there—

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me. Will the stenographer read that answer?

[The answer is read by the stenographer.]

Q. Now, Miss Warren, during the whole time Mr. Jarvis has been clerk do you know of a single instance where a change has been made between the draft and the final record, except those of a nature which you have stated?

Mr. Thompson—Pardon me. Ask her if she knows first. It is obvious she was not attending the meetings. She is simply giving you what she believes rather than what she knows.

Mr. Dane—I asked if she knew of a single instance.

Q. Do you, Miss Warren? A. Perhaps I should enlarge a little on what I stated.

Mr. Thompson—I cannot hear.

The Witness—Perhaps I should enlarge a little upon the words "typographical error."

Q. I would be very glad to have you. A. Occasionally a record is slightly misstated.

Mr. Streeter—Slightly what? A. Slightly misstated in its original draft. The wording might be altered slightly, but not to alter the record. It is all in the nature of making it absolutely correct.

Mr. Thompson—I ask that that be stricken out. It is not testimony, it is not evidence.

Mr. Dane—It is an explanation of an answer which she thought did not fairly express her knowledge.

Mr. Thompson—It is an explanation from a witness who wants to help you if she honestly can, and who is giving you her opinion and not her knowledge. That is what the explanation is.

The Master—I think we will let it stand for the present, at any rate.

Mr. Dane—That is all.

The Master—Anything further?

The Witness—May I state a correction?

Q. Do you wish to make a correction? A. That during the month of September last year I was present in the board meetings and wrote their minutes.

Q. You wrote them yourself? A. I wrote them myself.

Q. That was during a time when Mr. Dittmore was absent? A. Mr. Jarvis was absent.

Q. Mr. Jarvis was absent, pardon me. A. And I was appointed corresponding secretary pro tem.

Q. And did you keep the minutes during that month in exactly the same way that Mr. Jarvis had? A. In exactly the same way.

Q. And you made a rough draft? A. Yes.

Q. That was submitted to the board for their approval? A. Yes.

Q. And then it became the final record in the book? A. Yes.

Re-Cross-Examination

Q. (By Mr. Thompson.) Did you ever, Madam, during that month of September, see a record, as entered in the book, read, and a vote passed on that record? Yes or No. A. I would have to look at them to see.

Q. Can't you recall that fact? A. I cannot.

Q. I am not talking about rough draft now. Can you, as you sit there, remember a single instance when you were present in that room and witnessed a vote passed approving such a record now in that book? Yes or No. A. I cannot say.

Q. You cannot say? A. No.

Q. Are you aware of the fact that Judge Smith's opinion has been asked—was asked by the board—as to the validity of their practice with reference to their records? A. I am.

Q. Are you aware of the fact that Judge Smith made an opinion protesting against their methods?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment?

Mr. Thompson—You don't want her opinion now.

Mr. Dane—It is not the proper way to get the contents of an opinion.

Mr. Thompson—Oh, no; that is true.

Mr. Dane—Into the record.

Mr. Thompson—That is right.

Mr. Dane—You know how to prove it, if you can.

Mr. Thompson—I will call for that opinion of Judge Smith. You have got it. The opinion was given to your board.

Mr. Bates—You have no right to call for it.

Mr. Thompson—I want the opinion of Judge Smith now, given to your board. I call for it.

The Master—I do not see why we should put that in now.

Mr. Thompson—I have proved its existence, sir, by this witness.

The Master—Very true.

Mr. Thompson—They decline to produce it.

The Witness—I did not say a written opinion, sir.

Q. Did you ever know of any written opinion? A. No.

Q. Then there wasn't any occasion for Governor Bates' reluctance to produce it, was there?

Mr. Dane—There has been no reluctance to produce anything.

Mr. Thompson—I think we will drop the matter here. It is pretty evident we sha'n't get much further.

Mr. Dane—I want to ask you just one question, Miss Warren.

Redirect Examination

Q. (By Mr. Dane.) Miss Warren, during the time that you have been employed in the secretary's office, and within your own knowledge of the practice and method of keeping those records, has there been any change in the practice or method of keeping the records? A. The records are better kept than they have ever been before.

Mr. Thompson—I ask that that be struck out.

The Master—That I think you may strike out.

Mr. Dane—That may go out.

Q. Has there been any change made in the method or in the practice of keeping the records during the time that you have been there? A. I should say not, unless, as I have explained about Mr. Johnson's method and Mr. Dittmore's method.

Mr. Streeter—Explained about what?

The Witness—Mr. Johnson's method and Mr. Dittmore's method.

The Master—She has been all over that—the way he kept them and the way Mr. Dittmore kept them.

Mr. Dane—No further questions.

Re-Cross-Examination

Q. (By Mr. Thompson.) The only approval you ever saw was the ap-approval of these rough notes, wasn't it? Yes or No.

The Master—What do you mean by "saw"?

Q. The only approval that you had personal knowledge of by the directors of records was the approval of rough notes which later on became records to be entered in the books?

Mr. Dane—There is no testimony there were rough notes to be later copied; the testimony is it was a draft.

Mr. Thompson—Will you let me put my question?

Q. That is the truth, isn't it? There were notes taken, those notes were approved, and when you speak of approval that is what you mean, isn't it? A. No, not notes.

Q. What do you mean? What was it that you saw approved? A. The first draft of records.

Mr. Thompson—The first draft of records; that is what I thought.

Mr. Dane—That is all.

Re-Cross-Examination

Q. (By Mr. Whipple.) Just a moment, Miss Warren, if you will indulge me just a moment. You have referred to being there present in the board room last September? A. Yes.

Q. Was it Sept. 11th? A. I think so.

Q. Now, will you let me take the record of Sept. 11th, because we can get some light on that subsequent opinion. How did you take the record of Sept. 11th—stenographically? A. I did take stenographic notes.

Q. You took stenographic notes? A. But fragmentary.

Q. Well, better fragments than anyone else took there, weren't they? A. I shouldn't say so. Mr. Jarvis—

Q. Who else took any fragmentary notes? A. You mean in that certain meeting?

Q. Yes, that particular meeting. A. Possibly Mr. Merritt, I don't know.

Q. Well, do you know that he did? Did you see him? A. I couldn't say about that certain meeting.

Q. You write shorthand? A. I do.

Q. Does Mr. Merritt? A. No, I think not, so far as I know.

Q. Now, then, you were present and took stenographically what was said at that September meeting, were you—the meeting of Sept. 11? A. I am not sure that I was present through the entire meeting. I was not present always.

Q. Now, how much were you present during the meeting? A. I was out and in, as I was called.

Q. I beg pardon? A. I was out and in as I was called.

Q. How much were you out and how much were you in? A. I can't remember.

Q. Well, did you take notes while you were in there? A. I did.

Q. What did you do while you were out? A. Waited to be called.

Q. Waited to be called again. You didn't see anyone taking any notes, did you? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Except yourself, when you were in? A. I couldn't say that.

Q. Well, now, what did you do with the notes that you took when you were in? A. I used them as a basis for writing up the draft of minutes to be approved by the board the next day, or the next meeting.

Q. Used them as a basis. A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you transcribe your notes? A. My notes were fragmentary, as I said.

Q. Well, didn't you transcribe the fragments? A. They were embodied in the final draft.

Q. Where is your note book? A. I presume I have it still.

Q. Will you kindly produce it? A. Yes, sir, if I can.

Q. And will you produce what you transcribed out of the fragments? A. I will also say that in the board meeting—

Q. Well, pardon me. Will you do that? A. I beg pardon?

Q. Will you produce the fragments that you transcribed? A. I would like to correct a misapprehension, please.

Q. All right; if we misapprehend anything let us have it corrected. A. Yes; the notes which I took in the board meetings were on loose leaves, and were not kept.

Q. Oh, loose leaves? A. Loose leaf note books.

Q. And they have not been kept? A. I did not keep them.

Q. Have you got the fragments that you transcribed? A. No, I have not.

Q. What has become of those pages? A. I haven't them.

Q. What has become of them? A. You mean the draft?

Q. I mean whatever you put down on the typewriter from those. A. We have those.

Q. You have those? A. We have those.

Q. Where? A. In the church edifice.

Q. Now, will you bring them down from the church edifice to the court room? A. Yes.

Q. Can you? A. I can.

Q. Are they in your possession? A. In Mr. Jarvis' possession.

Q. In Mr. Jarvis' possession. If you will kindly bring them, because, you see, there seems to have been some doubt about what happened Sept. 11. Was that called to your attention? A. Sept. 11, yes.

Q. That some months later, I think in November, Judge Smith was called on to give an opinion as to what should go into the records? A. Yes.

Q. You know about that? A. I do.

Q. Had you then destroyed your loose leaf minutes? A. No.

Q. You destroyed them since then? A. Not the draft. We don't destroy the draft.

Q. No, I am talking about— A. The stenographic notes are—

Q.—the stenographic symbols that you took. A.—destroyed immediately after typewriting those.

Q. They had already been destroyed, but your transcription had not been destroyed, and has not now? A. No.

Q. Now, we have one or two different accounts of that, so perhaps if you will bring in and make your contribution of your fragments— A. I think we have it here now.

Q. I beg pardon? A. I think we have that certain meeting here now.

Q. I am not talking about a certain meeting; I am talking about your fragments. A. The meeting—during September—

Q. The Sept. 11 meeting; you know the one I mean, don't you? because there has been some— A. Well, I said my stenographic notes I did not keep.

Q. But you said you transcribed your notes? A. Yes.

Q. And that those things were generally kept? A. Yes.

Q. Where are they? A. That one of Sept. 11 is here in court.

Q. That is, the actual notes that you took; I mean the actual transcription of your notes? A. The transcription, yes.

Q. That is here in court? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Is that the one that has been marked?

Mr. Bates—That is the one we showed you.

Mr. Whipple—That one has been delivered to us?

Mr. Bates—That is the one you have in your possession.

Q. Those are what you wrote out from the notes you took? A. Yes.

Re-Cross-Examination

Q. (By Mr. Thompson.) Now, let me put one more question to you. Were you present Sept. 12? A. I think so.

Q. Do you recollect that on Sept. 12, the next day, Mr. Dickey began to dictate the minutes of yesterday's meeting, the meeting of Sept. 11? A. I don't recollect.

Q. Are you willing to swear that didn't happen? A. No, I couldn't say.

Q. Do you recollect Mr. Dittmore said he wanted the records complete and protested? Yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. And do you recollect that the minutes were then laid over without approval? Yes or no. On your oath, that is true, isn't it? A. I would have to look at the record.

Q. Isn't that a fact, Madam, that there was a protest, and the records were made over without approval? Yes or no? A. The minutes of what date, please?

Q. On Sept. 12. A. I don't remember Sept. 12.

Q. Are you willing to say that did not happen? A. I can't answer that.

Q. Didn't you see Mr. Dickey tear up the minutes that he had on Sept. 12? A. I did not.

Q. Will you say he didn't do it? A. I say I did not see him do it.

Q. You wouldn't want to testify positively he didn't, would you? A. How could I?

Mr. Thompson—No, you couldn't.

Mr. Bates—Shall we adjourn?

The Master—Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Streeter—Before the court adjourns, I want to ask a question of my brothers for information.

The Master—I think we can excuse the witness for the present?

Mr. Streeter—I think it will help us out all around.

The Master—You want to do what?

Mr. Streeter—I want to ask here for a bit of information about this exhibit, Exhibit 119-L. That appears to be the Church By-Laws, Volume I. That is right, isn't it, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—Now, there appears to be in this book an adoption in 1906, Oct. 15, 1906, of the fifty-seventh edition of the Manual, as here printed?

Mr. Dane—That is right.

Mr. Streeter—That is right, isn't it? Then later, the printed pages are inserted here?

Mr. Dane—Yes, that is correct.

Mr. Streeter—Then on page 37 begins a record of such By-Laws as were subsequently adopted by the Board of Directors, commencing Oct. 19; is that correct?

Mr. Dane—That is correct.

Mr. Streeter—Now that record proceeds to page 67, showing the adoption of the amendments to the fifty-seventh edition. Now, I want to ask you, as counsel, whether there were any amendments adopted by the directors subsequent to July 16, 1908, before Mrs. Eddy passed on, as far as you know?

Mr. Dane—You mean between July 16, 1908 and the date of her passing on?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Mr. Dane—I have no personal knowledge that any were adopted between those dates. I would not want to say there were not. I don't know.

Mr. Streeter—Can you ascertain and let the Court know?

Mr. Dane—I will.

Mr. Streeter—The reason for that is that this book appears to be an authoritative record of all the amendments that were made to the By-Laws, so that if Your Honor takes this book you will find here the printed pages of the fifty-seventh edition, and what appears to be all the subsequent amendments, and it is the first time that I have seen in the case anything which would enable us to be certain about the amendments to the By-Laws. Now, if I am wrong about that, Mr. Dane, you will tell me?

Mr. Dane—I will endeavor to get the information.

Mr. Streeter—Will you let us know in the morning?

Mr. Dane—I will.

Mr. Streeter—Thank you.

[Adjourned to 10 a. m., Thursday, July 10, 1919.]

July 10, 1919

TWELFTH DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room, Boston, Massachusetts, July 10, 1919.

[After a conference at the bench it is agreed by the master, at the suggestion of Mr. Streeter, and with the consent of all other counsel, that when the hearing adjourns at 4 o'clock p. m. on Thursday, July 10, it will be resumed at 10 o'clock a. m., Monday, July 14, 1919.]

[Mr. Adam H. Dickey takes the witness stand.]

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, I would like to cross-examine Mr. Jarvis now.

Mr. Bates—I don't think you have a right to now.

Mr. Streeter—Your Honor, Mr. Jarvis has gone on here and testified regarding the records, and we desire to cross-examine Mr. Jarvis upon the records, and I do not think you can change witnesses.

Mr. Bates—We expect, Your Honor, to put Mr. Jarvis on at the right time. You will have that opportunity.

Mr. Streeter—No, no.

Mr. Bates—Mr. Jarvis has merely gone on the stand to identify a record. The identification was not sufficient to satisfy Mr. Whipple, and we called Mr. Johnson to do it. Mr. Jarvis has not testified yet.

Mr. Streeter—Now, if Your Honor please, Mr. Jarvis went on and testified about those records, and of course we have the right to cross-examine him with reference to the records, and cross-examine him now before any other witness is put on.

The Master—I didn't understand that Mr. Jarvis' direct testimony was completed.

Mr. Bates—Well, I said we only suspended him.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I object to that. If you are through with Mr. Jarvis for the present I want to cross-examine him.

Mr. Bates—It has not even begun, you recall, General. We started to put in certain records. Mr. Whipple objected on the ground that Mr. Jarvis had not been the keeper of the records and could not identify the handwriting. We then called Mr. Johnson and suspended as to Mr. Jarvis. Mr. Jarvis therefore has not yet been on the stand in reality, or testified, but he will later.

Mr. Streeter—Now, if you please, I do not understand that is correct. I think I can find it here—I think so (referring to record). On Monday afternoon Mr. Jarvis was sworn and he began to testify, saying that he was the corresponding secretary, stating how long he had held the office, that he was clerk of the Christian Science Board, and then follows an examination with reference to the custody of the books of the Church and the record books of the Board of Directors, and the record books of the First Members, and so on.

The Master—What does it say when he gets through testifying, according to the record?

Mr. Streeter—I will tell you, Your Honor. The question is:

"And have you, since you became clerk, had the custody of the records of the First Members? A. I have." Then Mr. Dane showed him a book, and then there was objection by Mr. Whipple. And then after that trouble was conciliated, Mr. Dane says, "I can ask one or two questions of the witness." And then he proceeds to ask him when he became clerk, and whether Mr. Johnson was living, and so on. And he was on the stand when we adjourned Monday night. Then Tuesday morning Mr. Dane says: "In view of the objections that were made yesterday to the records, we have sent for William L. Johnson," and he was sworn and testified as to the records. In other words, he came in by agreement during Mr. Jarvis' examination.

The Master—Then you agree with me that Mr. Jarvis' examination was only suspended, not completed?

Mr. Streeter—Oh, yes.

The Master—If that is true, the time for cross-examining him has not come.

Mr. Streeter—Well, but, Your Honor, it was only suspended, as we understood, for the purpose of identifying and proving the handwriting in the books. It was not generally suspended. I did not agree that the examination of Mr. Jarvis might be suspended except for that purpose.

The Master—The purpose seemed to be pretty obvious. I heard no objection at the time.

Mr. Streeter—No, we did not make any objection, because we assumed that Mr. Jarvis, being on the stand, was suspended for the purpose of enabling the Governor, or Mr. Dane, to identify books and handwriting.

The Master—Well, then, there seems to be no dispute that Mr. Jarvis' direct examination is only suspended and not completed.

Mr. Streeter—I think that is right. But why should—

The Master—If it is not completed then am I not right in saying that the time for cross-examination has not come?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, Your Honor. But should not Mr. Jarvis' direct examination be continued, it being suspended only for a specific purpose? I will take Your Honor's judgment, of course.

The Master—That would seem to be quite regular if there is no objection on the part of Governor Bates.

Mr. Bates—We had not planned to put Mr. Jarvis on this morning, Your Honor. I will say that whenever the time comes that Mr. Streeter is putting in his case, if he wants Mr. Jarvis he shall have him. We expect to examine him further, but it fits into the orderly presentation of our case at this time to put on another witness. If Mr. Jarvis had been able to identify the records satisfactorily to Mr. Whipple, we should have asked the Court to allow us to suspend with him at that time, because his direct testimony, except so far as the identification is concerned, is something that we do not care to put in until it comes along in its proper place. In view of the fact that we are trying to try two cases here together and that General Streeter has not as yet opened his case, I think we should have the right to put in those parts which we think apply particularly to the Eustace case and put it in in the order which seems to us will be the clearest and take the least time.

The Master—You had begun Mr. Jarvis' examination and gone some way with it and then suspended with him.

Mr. Bates—Pardon me, Your Honor. Just for identification of records—that was all.

The Master—Well, whatever the purpose was. Mr. Johnson's examination was then taken up and has now been completed—direct and cross-examinations both. Now, you propose to continue not with Mr. Jarvis but with another witness, and to that Mr. Dittemore's counsel object. How are you prejudiced, General Streeter?

Mr. Streeter—What?

The Master—How are you prejudiced if they do not now proceed to finish Mr. Jarvis' examination? What real difference does it make?

Mr. Streeter—To be entirely frank with the Court, in the Eustace case, the first case, Mr. Dittemore is a defendant, and he has made an answer in the case that is being tried, and he has answered with reference to all the allegations in the Eustace bill, and if he is a defendant in that bill, as he is upon the record, he has the right to cross-examine—

The Master—Nobody denies him that right; he is going to have that right and exercise it at some time. The only question is, when?

Mr. Streeter—Your Honor asked how we are prejudiced. We are prejudiced in this respect: We want to show in the cross-examination of Mr. Jarvis a large number of records—

The Master—How is it important what you want to show? You are going to have the right to cross-examine Mr. Jarvis.

Mr. Streeter—But Your Honor anticipated. We want to show that before Mr. Dickey testifies, for the purpose of enabling us to examine Mr. Dickey very much more satisfactorily. They started to put those records in.

The Master—Very well. Now, that being the reason given why Mr. Dittemore's counsel prefers to insist upon the strictly regular order, how are you prejudiced if you complete Mr. Jarvis' examination now?

Mr. Bates—I have the impression, Your Honor, that the testimony of the witness whom we have called will be very helpful to Your Honor when those records are read. But I recognize that it is a matter entirely within Your Honor's discretion. It is a case where we are putting in our case and trying to meet the combination of counsel, one of whom has refused to open his case, but who nevertheless wants to put in evidence and cross-examine our witnesses in regard to it. I think that we should be entitled to as much leeway as comes within the discretion of the Court in the matter of the presentation of testimony.

The Master—If it does not make a serious difference to you, would it not be better to go on with Mr. Jarvis now, and then we cut off one ground of objection.

Mr. Bates—We do not care to go on with Mr. Jarvis at present. If Your Honor thinks he should be open to cross-examination at this time, why, we will put him on the stand and Mr. Streeter can cross-examine him.

The Master—I do not think he should be open to cross-examination until his direct examination is completed. Why should it not now be completed?

Mr. Bates—Because we shall put in evidence in regard to certain matters by Mr. Dickey which we shall ask him about afterwards. We think it will make the matter clearer to Your Honor and save time and save explanations which Mr. Jarvis perhaps cannot give.

The Master—That would be an advantage to you, General Streeter, as well as to Governor Bates.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I recognize Your Honor's power to perceive better than I can, but as I view it I want to get out some of these records before Mr. Dickey testifies. There are a large number of records about which Mr. Dickey has got to testify. Mr. Jarvis was put on the stand with that book. Now, I want to get at that book before he testifies—to be entirely frank with you—so that I can examine Mr. Dickey in reference to those records. It looks to me as our right.

Mr. Bates—I submit that the records have been open to General Streeter and to Mr. Thompson. They have had every opportunity to examine them; they know all there is in them; their client was a member of the board when they were made, and made a large portion of them. It is not necessary, therefore, to put on Mr. Jarvis to get the information General Streeter speaks of. If he wants to examine Mr. Dickey in regard to any of those records the records are here, and he can examine Mr. Dickey as to them.

Mr. Streeter—I will take Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Whipple—I have felt, if Your Honor please, that it would be a very distinct advantage to have the records, so far as we want to use them, all before the Court and all in evidence before we cross-examine Mr. Dickey. That is also true with regard to another class of evidence which has been put in, and that is the letters from Mrs. Eddy. We have not had the volumes to examine those letters, and we had hoped to do that before it became necessary to cross-examine any other witness. I feel I ought to say this in behalf of our client, not because I think that our cross-examination of any of the parties is likely to be very extensive, because we have the feeling that our case has been proved by our own testimony, and we don't think we shall find it very necessary to elicit very much from the defendants' side by way of cross-examination or otherwise. But on the other hand, the letters of Mrs. Eddy are a distinct and important feature in the case, and the trustees desire to have the fullest opportunity to examine those volumes, and such cross-examination as we shall conduct will be largely affected by those letters, and to some degree by the other records, the directors' records and the by-law records, and the various records which have been referred to, but which have not been put in. It is the more orderly procedure not to have witnesses suspended and to have the examination hung up. We consented to the suspension of the examination of the secretary because apparently he did not meet the expectations of counsel who put him on with reference to the particular purposes which they wanted at the moment, but I see no good reason why we should not now finish up his testimony, and the plaintiff should enjoy the advantage which comes from that order of testimony which the defendants themselves had selected.

Mr. Streeter—I do not know that I can say anything more. Your Honor, except that it seems rather unnatural for a witness to be put on, with records, and produce and identify records, and then be suspended without giving the opposing parties the opportunity of examining him with reference to the records which he has been called upon to identify in court. I submit it to Your Honor's good judgment, as a matter of discretion.

The Master—It seems to me that the course you propose to adopt, namely, that of taking up now another witness in Mr. Jarvis' place, is so far irregular that I ought not to sanction it against the objection of everybody else—all other parties, I mean, in the case. I cannot imagine myself that it can make very much difference to either side. We do not intend by any order of procedure, I suppose, to prevent the reception of any evidence that either party has a right to offer at any time; but I think, in view of the objections raised, it will be better for us to follow the regular course, and finish with Mr. Jarvis so far as we can. That would be without prejudice to your right to recall him hereafter if it should become necessary.

Mr. Bates—Very well. Mr. Dickey, won't you step down? Mr. Jarvis, will you take the stand?

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, may I offer a suggestion with regard to the witness? We assented that the witnesses should occupy a position in the chair there merely for convenience in showing them particular signatures, but it seems to me that it would be more regular if the witness would sit in the witness' chair provided for the purpose, and if it is not convenient to have it here, in its usual place, it might be moved over there.

The Master—Can't we go on this morning and let him sit where he is, and then during the intermission we will have the witness' chair moved over?

Mr. Whipple—Well, perhaps. (To Mr. Bates.) Do you want the witness' stand moved over?

Mr. Bates—Yes; I think that that would be helpful to us. As you see, we have a great many documents and books here that we have to refer to.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

Mr. Bates—But I think it would be well, as His Honor suggests, to have it done this noon or at the recess.

Mr. Whipple—Very well; only I think it is better that they should occupy the witness' box, generally speaking.

Charles E. Jarvis, Resumed

Q. (By Mr. Dane.) Mr. Jarvis, you have stated when you became corresponding secretary to The Christian Science Board of Directors. It was some time ago. Will you kindly tell us again? A. June 1, 1916.

Q. And when did you become clerk of the Church? A. Nov. 3, 1917. I stated the other day that it was Nov. 1, but I find upon reference to the records that it was Nov. 3 that I assumed those duties.

Q. Since those dates you have acted in those capacities until the present time, have you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you a record book entitled "Minutes of the Regular and Special Meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors," June 7, 1916, through June 4, 1917.

Mr. Streeter—I didn't get the first part of the question, Mr. Dane.

Mr. Dane—A description of the book.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, yes.

Mr. Thompson—June 7, 1916, to June 4, 1917.

Q. I ask you if you will identify that book. A. It is as stated on the cover, a record of the Minutes of the Regular and the Special Meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors during the dates stated.

Q. And will you state, please, the date of the first meeting recorded in that book? A. June 7, 1916.

Q. And the date of the last meeting? A. Monday, June 4, 1917.

Mr. Dane—I ask to have this marked for identification.

[Record of Minutes of Regular and Special Meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors from June 7, 1916, through June 4, 1917, is marked Exhibit 198, for identification.]

Q. I show you now a minute book entitled "Minutes of the Regular and Special Meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, June 6, 1917, through June 3, 1918," and ask you if you will identify this book? A. This is a similar record to the book previously offered and identified as Exhibit 198.

Q. It is a record of what, Mr. Jarvis? A. Record of the Regular and Special Meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors from June 6, 1917, through June 3, 1918, both dates inclusive.

Q. And does the record show that the first meeting recorded there was June 6, 1917? A. It does.

Q. And what is the date of the last meeting recorded in the book? A. Monday, June 3, 1918.

Mr. Dane—Has this been marked for identification?

Mr. Bates—No, it has not been marked.

Mr. Dane—I will ask to have this book marked for identification.

[Record of the regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors from June 6, 1917, through June 3, 1918, is marked Exhibit 199, for identification.]

Q. Now, I show you a volume entitled "Minutes of the Regular and Special Meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, June 4, 1918, through June 2, 1919," and ask if you can identify that volume? A. I can. This is a record of the regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, beginning with the meeting of Tuesday, June 4, 1918, and the last record in the book is that of the special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors, held on Friday, May 23, 1919. May I offer a word of explanation?

Q. Yes. A. The minutes of the meetings between the last entry in this book and that of June 2, 1919, have not yet been written up for permanent record, although they have been submitted to the directors and approved.

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me, Mr. Dane. You say they are approved? You have them here?

The Witness—I have not.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Dane, will you have those produced right away, so that some inquiries can be made?

Mr. Dane—I will endeavor to do that.

Mr. Bates—Those are records since your suit?

Mr. Dane—They are since the date of the bill.

Q. Mr. Jarvis, are these books now in your custody, as an officer of the Church? A. They are.

Q. I wish you will state, Mr. Jarvis, what is the practice followed in making the records that appear in these books? A. The minutes are written up from memoranda handed to me by the recording secretary of the Board of Directors, and from shorthand notes taken by myself, when I am present at the board meetings. They are dictated by me to a stenographer, and read at a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, and after the directors indicate such changes or corrections as are customary to be indicated in deliberative bodies, they are approved and written up permanently, and signed by the chairman and secretary of the board, and bound into these covers.

Q. Mr. Jarvis, you have spoken of receiving memoranda from the recording secretary, which is used, together with your own stenographic notes of proceedings, in making the records. I understand that you are not present at all these proceedings in the board room? A. I am not.

Q. And that is by virtue of some by-law or rule regulating this practice? A. As an employee of the Board of Directors, I am in the room in the capacity of a stenographer only; not as an officer of the board.

Q. When, Mr. Jarvis, are the minutes that are originally taken of the proceedings approved by the board? A. As a general rule, at the next succeeding meeting, but often the reading of the minutes are postponed on account of pressure of what seems to be more important business.

Q. Is the record made from the minutes which you receive from the recording secretary, and from your own stenographic report of proceedings made by you, or under your supervision? A. It is.

Q. And those are the minutes that appear in the volumes which you have identified? A. They are.

Q. Are there times in the board meetings when you are not personally present at the proceedings? A. There are, many such times.

Q. And on those occasions, the minutes are kept by the recording secretary of the board?

Mr. Whipple—Well, of course he is not there, and he could hardly testify about it.

Q. Do you receive from the recording secretary of the board minutes of the proceedings that have occurred while you have not been present? A. I do.

Q. The recording secretary is a member of the Board of Directors? A. He is.

Q. Is there any rule or practice, Mr. Jarvis, with relation to the character of proceedings at which you are not personally present in the board room? That is, what is the nature of the proceedings being carried forward by the board at which you would not be present?

Mr. Whipple—Well, if you will pardon me, if he is not there, how can he tell, except by hearsay?

Mr. Dane—If there is a rule or a practice in that regard, that he knows of, I think he ought to be able to tell.

Mr. Whipple—He may state whether he is sent out or not, or what excuse is given when he is sent out.

Q. What is the practice in that regard, Mr. Jarvis? A. On occasions, I am asked to retire, and, assuming that the directors wish to consider some confidential matter, I immediately respond. On other occasions, there may be discussions ensuing which do not seem to indicate immediate action, and I leave the room of my own volition to attend to pressing duties in my private office, and return to the room on call, or when I have completed these duties, and if any action is taken during my absence a memorandum thereof is handed to me by the secretary.

Q. The recording secretary? A. Yes. I have used the term "recording secretary" more by way of explanation, but the Manual does not provide for an office known as a recording secretary, and the minutes are signed by the chairman and secretary of the board.

Mr. Dane—You may cross-examine—the last volume identified by the witness should be marked for identification.

[The volume which has previously been identified by the witness entitled, "Minutes of Regular and Special Meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors," June 4, 1918, through June 2, 1919, is marked Exhibit 200 for identification.]

Mr. Whipple—Have you the volumes of the letters of Mrs. Eddy that were used yesterday, so they may be made accessible to us?

Mr. Bates—I beg pardon?

Mr. Whipple—Have you the volumes of Mrs. Eddy's letters that were used yesterday and examined, so that they may be made accessible to us?

Mr. Dane—The volumes are all here.

Mr. Bates—The volumes are all here. You understand those are regarded as of priceless value by The Christian Science Church, and therefore we do not wish them to go out of the custody of the Church. You shall have every opportunity to examine them.

Mr. Whipple—I do not think the trustees concede anything to the directors in their reverence for anything that comes from Mrs. Eddy. I merely desire to look them over for the purposes of cross-examination.

Mr. Bates—You mean now?

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

Mr. Bates—Oh, take them.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I would rather they would be handed to me, I am afraid I cannot select them.

[The volumes are produced and handed to counsel for the trustees.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Here is another unbound volume that has not yet been offered, I think (proffering a volume to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—At present I would like to keep out those from which you have offered nothing. I would like to see them later, perhaps.

Mr. Krauthoff—We want to make the disclosure.

Mr. Whipple—I thank you for your disclosure, and we will make use of them when we can; and I am glad to see that you are making full disclosure; it is one of the best symptoms that I have noticed.

The Master—Now, can we go on with the cross-examination of this witness, or not?

Mr. Whipple—We were just conferring. I shall be very glad if the counsel for Mr. Dittmore will go forward first in the examination, if that is entirely agreeable.

Mr. Thompson—We are perfectly agreeable to that.

Mr. Streeter—There are certain questions that I want to ask Mr. Jarvis.

The Master—I do not hear any objection.

Cross-Examination

Q. (By Mr. Streeter.) Mr. Jarvis, what are the duties of corresponding secretary? A. To dictate or write letters for and on behalf of the Board of Directors, and such other duties as the directors may to him from time to time indicate.

Q. Is there any general regulation of the board covering your duties as corresponding secretary? A. Nothing in the form of written rules that I know of.

Q. Anything in writing? A. Not that I recall.

Q. Under your organization there you have a chairman of the Board of Directors and a secretary, do you not? A. We do.

Q. And is that secretary called in common parlance the recording secretary? A. I believe he would be so called.

Q. So that the recording secretary under the general method would be responsible for the accuracy of the records, would he not? A. He would.

Q. But by the practice, you, as corresponding secretary, have kept these records in the way that you have told Judge Dodge? A. I have.

Q. And during the critical year from June, 1918, to June, 1919, was Mr. Merritt, a member of the board, the official secretary of the board? A. He was.

Q. You have described the way in which the records are made up and are put into the book and verified. Have you stated that fully? A. I believe so.

Q. You, as corresponding secretary charged by practice with the making up of the records, are in the room where the proceedings are carried on the greater part of the time, perhaps, or not the majority of the time? A. I should say possibly the greater part of the time. I should say it was more than half the time.

Q. And you are a shorthand writer? A. I am.

Q. And you take notes? A. Yes.

Q. Of what goes on? A. On occasion, but not of all of the conversation.

Q. Well, but you take notes of the subjects of conversation? A. Not always.

Q. Why not? I mean the subjects dealt with by the board. Why not? A. Because there does not seem to be an occasion for it.

Q. Mr. Secretary, if you are there to make the records of the proceedings of the board, why should you not record at least the subjects which are considered by the board, if you don't record the conversation? A. Because such a procedure has never been indicated to me.

Q. Well, then, these records, if you are correct in that statement, do not reflect accurately the proceedings of the board in those meetings? A. They record actions by the Board of Directors, but not all conversations relative thereto, or to other subjects.

Q. Do the records record all the action taken by the board? I ask you to reflect on that for a moment, and see that your answer is made upon reflection. A. By "action" I mean indicated disposition of a letter of inquiry, or a vote made, seconded and passed in the usual order.

Q. Do all the votes which have been passed by that board since you became secretary appear on the records that you have produced? A. I cannot answer.

Q. Why not? A. (After a pause.) I should say that they have been recorded.

Q. That does not answer the question. The question is whether all the votes which have been passed by that board, officially, since you became secretary now appear on the records? A. I should say yes, unless they were deleted by unanimous consent, which I understand to be a privilege of deliberative bodies.

Q. Your hearing is not impaired, is it? You have good hearing? A. I have.

Q. You didn't hear me ask you about your opinion regarding deliberative bodies, did you? A. No, sir.

Mr. Streeter—Well, then, please confine your answer to the question. Will the stenographer be good enough to read that answer?

[The answer is read as follows: "I should say Yes, unless they were deleted by unanimous consent, which I understand to be a privilege of deliberative bodies."]

Q. So that you now say the votes, the official votes, which have been passed by that board since you became secretary all appear on the records now, except such as have been deleted—is that correct? A. (After a pause.) I should say yes, if I may be permitted to offer a word of explanation.

Mr. Streeter—I would like to have you answer the question directly. The stenographer will read it, and you please note it.

[The question is read as follows: "So that you now say that the votes, the official votes, which have been passed by that board since you became secretary all appear on the records now, except such as have been deleted—is that correct?"]

The Witness—It is.

Q. How frequently since June, 1916, when you became secretary, have official votes passed by the board been subsequently deleted from the records? A. I could not say, but it would be very rarely, if ever.

Q. Do you mean to intimate, Mr. Jarvis, that that never has been done? A. I am trying to tell you the whole truth, without reservation.

Q. Well, try again, and tell me the whole truth, without reservation, whether official votes passed by the board have never been deleted from the book, and whether all official votes are now on the book? A. I will say that all of the votes now appear on the book, to the best of my recollection.

Q. It is possible that we can refresh your recollection on that point. Do those records accurately and truthfully represent the actions and doings of The Christian Science Board of Directors? A. To the best of my knowledge and belief, yes.

Q. Will you turn to the last volume of records, under date of May 21 last, at page 381? A. (Producing the book.) Yes, sir.

Q. Read the record showing the official action of the board in revising—

Mr. Dane—Just a moment, please. Pardon me. If you are going to read the substance of the record which you are asking the witness for, I pray Your Honor's judgment as to the materiality of the question. The record called for is a record made of a proceeding subsequent to the filing of the bill of complaint, and can have no materiality and no bearing upon the matters set out in their bill of complaint.

Mr. Streeter—I am not ignorant of the fact that the record called for is subsequent to the bill of complaint, but the bill of complaint charges grossly bad faith and improper records. I am not aware of any principle which will prevent our showing the continuance of that bad faith, and the keeping of improper records, beyond the date when we actually filed our bill.

The Master—In order to show a continuance, such a continuance, you will have to show a beginning before the date of the filing of your bill.

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor thinks that is the preferable way I will do that. And will you make a note of that, Mr. Thompson, and I will come back to that.

Q. Will you turn to your records of the meeting of Feb. 10, 1919?

[The records are produced.]

A. I have them.

Q. Read what you have there with reference to the meeting with the trustees on that date. A. (Reading):

"The directors had an interview with the three trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society lasting two hours.

"At 2 p. m. the meeting adjourned."

Q. Now, turn to your records of Feb. 17, and see if you have entered there a protest by Mr. Dittmore against such a meager, casual record of an important meeting with the trustees.

Mr. Dane—Just a moment. I object to the characterization of the record by counsel.

Mr. Bates—We should characterize it as a perfectly proper record.

Mr. Dane—The record does not purport to be a stenographic report of everything that is said.

The Master—Why can't we omit that?

Mr. Streeter—Well, if they are fussy about it the stenographer may strike out those two words. I said "meager and casual," didn't I? I will strike it out. I want to be awfully nice to my friends over here and have almost everything their way.

The Witness—The only reference I find in the minutes of that day to Mr. Dittmore, aside from the record that he was present at the meeting, is this entry:

"A letter was read from Mr. J. V. Dittmore, dated Boston, Feb. 17, reiterating his position in the situation now existing between the directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society."

Q. Is that all? A. That is all.

Q. Now, you do not find there a record of a protest against the minutes of the meeting on Feb. 10, do you? A. I do not.

Q. Now, your memory is not impaired, is it? You have a good memory? A. I should say not. I have a good memory.

Q. Do you remember that when that record of Feb. 10 was read, Mr. Dittmore made a vigorous protest against one line of record covering a meeting of the trustees extending over two hours? A. Mr. Dittmore made vigorous protests on various occasions, but I—

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me.

The Witness— but I don't recall that particularly.

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me. I didn't ask you that question, and I fear that your hearing is impaired. I ask you about that day.

The Witness—I do not recall such a protest on that date.

Q. Do you remember on that day that after Mr. Dittmore made a protest the Chair, Mr. Dickey, agreed that the minutes of such meetings should be made fuller and more complete? A. I do not.

Q. Now, turn to your records of Oct. 7, 1918. A. I have them.

Q. Have you anything recorded with reference to Judge Clifford P. Smith's talk in the board with reference to the record, with reference to your method of keeping the record? A. On Oct. 7?

Q. Yes. A. I do not find recorded any reference to such a remark or advice.

Q. Let me see your record of Oct. 7. A. (The witness hands record book to Mr. Streeter.)

The Master—That is something we have not had read so far, I suppose.

Mr. Streeter—No. He says there isn't anything in here about it. (The record book is returned to the witness.)

Q. You don't find anything there about the advice and opinion of Judge Smith regarding the dangerous method of keeping your records? A. No, sir.

Q. Where are the original minutes from which that record of Oct. 7 was made up? A. I think they are at the office.

Q. Were those original minutes made by you or by—were they made by you? A. I believe they were.

Q. Could you get those minutes, original minutes, here, without much inconvenience, and soon? Could you send for them? A. Yes, gladly.

Mr. Streeter—Would you be good enough to do it?

Mr. Dane—We will endeavor to get them here.

Mr. Streeter—Now, will you at the same time bring the minutes of the records from May 23 down to date?

Mr. Dane—May 23 of what year?

Mr. Streeter—This year.

Mr. Dane—Those are all subsequent to the date of the bill.

Mr. Streeter—I understand that, but will you bring them and have them for the Court to pass upon whether we shall use them?

Mr. Dane—We will.

Mr. Streeter—Will you do it?

Mr. Dane—We will.

Q. Will you also, Mr. Jarvis, give directions that your messenger shall bring the original minutes which you made, or Merritt made for these other records, since June, 1918? A. Yes, I will.

Mr. Streeter—And will you give that direction now?

Mr. Bates—Well, I object.

Mr. Dane—It is understood. We have arranged to have those as soon as it is possible to do it.

Mr. Bates—I am afraid your hearing is bad, General.

Q. Where are the original minutes of these meetings preserved—in an envelope marked with the date of the meeting? A. No. I put them away in my desk until they accumulate to an extent where they are crowding, and then I remove them to the vault.

Q. Is the date marked on them?

A. This is a transcript of them, so that it does appear on each of them.

Q. Now, refreshing your memory, did Judge Smith on Oct. 7 last come before the board and with reference to your keeping the records say—

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Q. (Con.)—Quote—

Mr. Dane—Just a moment.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I don't know what your metropolitan rule is down here, but where I have been practicing law—I beg Your Honor's pardon—Your Honor will rule on it—but I say where I have been practicing law we are allowed to ask questions and then they are ruled upon.

Mr. Dane—I rose to make an objection to the question General Streeter was putting. I thought he was proceeding to state what he understood to be some advice which Judge Smith gave to the board with reference to the records, and I raise the question that that is not material.

Mr. Streeter—Well, you got it exactly right. I am asking if he knows or remembers specific advice Judge Smith gave to the board, and if he doesn't remember it, I will prove it in another way, but I want to ask him that question.

Mr. Dane—And I object.

The Master—There is no objection now.

Mr. Dane—We object, Your Honor, now, yes. I can't see any materiality in the question.

The Master—This being cross-examination, the question is not precisely as to materiality. It is whether it is proper cross-examination. I suppose the question is asked to test the witness' recollection?

Mr. Dane—I don't understand that it is limited to that purpose, and then, if Your Honor please, there is another element here. I think it has appeared that in a great many matters Judge Smith was the counsel for the board. I don't think it is proper, even in cross-examination, to make an endeavor to elicit anything that Judge Smith might have said to the board in his capacity as counsel.

Mr. Streeter—It does not seem to me there is any occasion to reply to that, in the issues involved here. I think I understand that I have the right, on the question of good faith, to test the advice which every lawyer gave to them—the reasons on which they acted.

The Master—We have got no further, I think, in your question than the inquiry whether he recollected advice given.

Mr. Streeter—I was going to ask him, to test him—

The Master—Have you asked what the advice given was?

Mr. Streeter—No, he says he doesn't remember Judge Smith's being there. I believe that is right, isn't it?

The Witness—Your question, as I recall it, General Streeter, was, did I find any record in the minutes on that date of Judge Smith giving advice to the directors or commenting in any way upon their methods of keeping records.

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master—Now, pause one moment. The question was asked and answered. The question now asked is, independently of the record do you remember Judge Smith being there. Now, you may go on from there.

Mr. Dane—Will Your Honor note my exception?

The Master—I haven't admitted it yet. I want to hear what it is.

Q. Do you remember that in a conference of Judge Smith with the board on Oct. 7, he said in terms, "The way you now do, the board never reads its final records"?

The Master—Pause before you answer. Now, is that objected to?

Mr. Dane—I object to that.

The Master—You have nothing to add as to the grounds of your objection? I see no reason why I should exclude it. I think it may be put.

Mr. Dane—And Your Honor will save our exception?

The Master—Oh, so far as necessary an exception is always open.

A. I do not recall such advice from General Streeter.

Q. Do you remember that he then pointed out in express terms that you ought to change your plan of making these records? A. I do not. I do not believe I was present in the room when such advice was given, if it was given.

Q. Did you hear Judge Smith tell the board that their present method was "unsatisfactory" and "dangerous," using those two words? A. I do not recall it.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Dickey after this advice of Judge Smith's agreed to change the method, or that the method should be changed? A. I do not.

Q. Now, right in connection with this very thing, and for the purpose of refreshing your recollection, let me see your records of the next day, Oct. 8.

[The records are shown to Mr. Streeter, and are returned to the witness.]

Q. Do you find anything in that record with reference to Judge Smith's advice about changing the method of keeping the records?

The Master—What date was that?

Mr. Streeter—Oct. 8, the next day, the meeting of the next day. This is 1918, Judge, of course. A. No, I do not.

Q. Now, do you remember that the matter of keeping the records and the advice of Judge Smith that the present method was "unsatisfactory and dangerous" was brought up on Oct. 8, and the board decided not to change the method of keeping the records?

Mr. Dane—If Your Honor please, just a moment. I think the question assumes something that has not yet appeared in evidence—that that advice had been given.

The Master—Well, I think it does in form. Hadn't you better change it?

Mr. Streeter—Well, let's see. I want to do everything just as near right as possible. If you will read that question I will change it so that brother Dane will be entirely satisfied, I think.

[The last question is read.]

Mr. Streeter—I will try to bow to your suggestion.

Q. Do you remember that at this meeting of Oct. 8 any advice of Judge Smith's that the present method, the then method, of keeping the records, was unsatisfactory and dangerous, was further considered by the board? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember whether action was taken by the board that they would not change their method, notwithstanding any advice Judge Smith had given? A. I do not.

Q. Was there any discussion in the board at all at that time about the method of keeping the records? A. Not that I recall.

Q. Has there been any discussion at any time about the method of keeping the records and that it ought or ought not to be changed? A. I do not recall such a discussion.

Q. You do not remember that any question has ever been raised in the board, since you became secretary in 1916, about the method of keeping your records? Do you remember? A. No.

Q. If Judge Smith did state—a matter which you do not now remember—but under the present method the board never read the final records, was that true?

Mr. Dane—I object, if Your Honor please—a hypothetical question. The hypothesis has not been established.

Mr. Streeter—Of course, Your Honor will assume that I should not be asking these questions unless I expected to show that Judge Smith did give exactly the advice that I am quoting.

Mr. Dane—You haven't got very far yet with this witness toward showing it.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, I don't expect to get very far with this witness, my good friend.

The Master—I think you had better leave out any supposition as to what Judge Smith said, in view of the fact that the witness testified that he does not recall his saying anything.

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Q. Now, on Oct. 7, at that time, were the final records as they were put into the book, after they were put into the book, ever approved by the board? A. No, not after they were put into the book.

Q. In other words, the approval of the records of this great organization was made only of the drafts of the records before somebody copied them in that book? Is that correct? A. That is true.

Q. Will you turn to your record of July 25, 1918? A. I have it.

Q. Let me see it. (Examining record.) Do you find in that record of July 25, 1918, any protest of Mr. Dittmore against holding the minutes, the board minutes, in the form of rough notes, for weeks and sometimes for months, before they are written up in permanent form and put into the minute book?

The Master—What date have you there?

Mr. Streeter—July 25, Your Honor.

The Master—1918?

Mr. Streeter—1918.

A. I do not find such a protest recorded.

Q. Search your memory, and see if on or about that time you recollect that Mr. Dittmore made a vigorous protest against holding minutes of the board meetings in the form of rough notes for weeks and sometimes for months before they were written up in permanent form and put into the minute book? A. I do not recall such a protest.

Q. Do you recall any discussion on that or any suggestion on that point by Mr. Dittmore? A. No, I couldn't say that I do.

Q. Do you mean to say, Mr. Jarvis, that you have no recollection of ever hearing Mr. Dittmore protest against the method of keeping the records? Is that what you mean to say? A. I would have to have a distinct recollection of such an incident in order to so testify—

Q. No. A. And I do not recall specifically such a protest.

Q. No. A. Although I wouldn't want to say it had not been made.

Q. Well, now, you cannot recall specifically, but have you any mental impression of Mr. Dittmore making a vigorous protest such as I have suggested?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment as to mental impressions. The witness is giving his best recollection.

The Master—Can the witness do more than to state according to his best recollection?

Mr. Streeter—Well, I don't know that he can, but from the way he put it I understood him to have in mind that there had been something of that sort said but he could not tell specifically what it was. Now I am asking generally, if he has any recollection or impression that Mr. Dittmore made protests against that method of keeping the records.

Mr. Dane—If Your Honor please, as I remember the witness' testimony, it was that he had no decided recollection as to that but wouldn't say that it had not been done. I think that is as far as he could go.

Mr. Streeter—I didn't get that.

Q. You say you wouldn't say that Mr. Dittmore had not done that? A. I did say so.

Q. Oh, well, I beg your pardon. I have some infirmity of hearing myself, that I am sorry for; I understand that I cannot help it. Let me see your records of July 7, 1918. A. There is no meeting on that day, General Streeter; that would be on Sunday.

Mr. Streeter—I will waive that question.

Mr. Thompson—July 8, it may have been.

Q. Turn, if you please, to your records of June 20, 1918. A. I have them.

Q. Let me see it, please. (Examining record.) Do you find anything in that record to the effect that Mr. Neal moved that the minutes of May 21 be deleted? A. I do not.

Q. Please turn to your records of May 21. A. That would be the preceding book. What is the date, please?

Q. May 21. A. All right. Do you wish to see them?

Q. Yes. (Examining record.) Do you find anything in the records of May 21 with reference to the appointment of Mr. Neal and Mr. Dickey as a committee to prepare a letter to be sent to Mrs. Longyear with reference to stopping the erection by her of a historical building in connection with Mrs. Eddy's life? A. I do not.

Q. Was that subject taken up, and were Mr. Neal and Mr. Dickey appointed a committee at that time with reference to Mrs. Longyear's proposed great contribution to a memorial to Mrs. Eddy? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Is your memory such that you can say they were not appointed a committee with reference to Mrs. Longyear's proposed benefaction? A. May I be pardoned, General, if I remind you that I am not present at all of the sessions, and therefore I cannot state what may have occurred in the board room while I was not there?

Q. Well, I didn't ask you to state what occurred when you were not there, I asked you if you remembered any discussion while you were there, on that point. A. No.

Q. Do you remember any discussion in the board at various meetings with reference to the proposed gift of Mrs. Longyear to the Church as a memorial to Mrs. Eddy? Was that subject ever discussed in the meetings of the board? A. In a general way, I do recall it having been discussed.

Q. Do you remember that letters were prepared to be sent to Mrs. Longyear, rejecting the proposed contribution? A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember that action was taken adopting the form of the letter to be sent?

Mr. Dane—Just a moment. I raise the question whether this is pertinent to the present case. It seems to me far afield of any issue that we are trying here, going into the matter of a proposed memorial.

The Master—In view of the witness' testimony, I cannot see that it is improper cross-examination.

Mr. Streeter—Will the stenographer read the question?

[The question is read by the stenographer.]

A. I do not recall such an action.

Q. Do you recall that after the letter was prepared Mr. Dittmore protested against sending such a letter to Mrs. Longyear, and that it was not sent? You remember that? A. I do not.

Mr. Dane—Just a moment. I think the witness testified that he remembered no action with reference to the preparation of a letter.

The Master—He just answered this question; he does not remember.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Neal, after it was decided not to send the letter, moved that the records about that should be deleted?

Mr. Dane—Just a moment.

Q. Do you remember such a thing as that?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment as to whether that question does not carry an assumption of fact.

The Master—I think he is entitled to get to the bottom of the witness' recollection.

Mr. Streeter—You are trying to copy after brother Whipple over here. Why can't you sit still a minute?

A. I don't remember it.

Q. Have you a positive recollection that Mr. Neal did not move to delete the records with reference to a letter to Mrs. Longyear and that a vote was not taken on that? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember either way, is that right? A. That is correct.

Q. You cannot say that he did or that he did not? Is that correct? A. No; I don't remember it one way or the other. I don't remember such an incident.

Q. I wish you would turn to your records of June 1. Have you got it? A. I have.

Q. Will you be good enough to let me look at that (examining record)? Were the annual reports of the clerk and treasurer of The Mother Church read to the board at that time? A. I couldn't say. There is no reference thereto in the minutes.

Q. Now, doesn't it appear in the records that the report of the clerk to The Mother Church was read? A. It does. I beg your pardon. The annual report of the clerk to The Mother Church was read and approved.

Q. Now, let me take that, please. (The book of records is passed by the witness to Mr. Streeter.) It does not say anything about the report of the treasurer here. A. It does not.

Q. When was the annual meeting of the Church that year? A. Monday, June 3, 1918.

Q. Was the report of the treasurer of The Mother Church read to the meeting, the annual meeting of the members? A. Yes.

Q. Was that report of the treasurer laid before the Board of Directors before it was read to the Church members at the annual meeting? A. I do not recall, but reference to the records at the office might disclose that fact.

Q. Let me see if I can refresh your recollection. Who was treasurer at that time—Dickey or Ripley? Who was it? Or Knapp? A. I believe it was Mr. Knapp.

Q. Now, do you remember whether the report of the treasurer of The Mother Church as submitted to the board contained any information with reference to the finances of the Church, the income and expenditures, which would give the Church members any information with reference to the finances of their organization? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Dittmore protested at the meeting of June 1 against a report of the treasurer which was going to be read to The Mother Church? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember whether the board at that meeting cut out of the treasurer's report to the members of the Church all the pertinent figures that would enable them to understand anything about the finances. A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember that either one of the directors claimed they should be cut out because they did not want the Church members to know the magnitude of the finances of the organization? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear anything of that sort? A. No.

Q. Who has the custody of the treasurer's reports that are read to the Church? A. The directors.

Mr. Streeter—Governor Bates, will you be good enough to furnish us the copies of the treasurer's reports to the members of The Mother Church at the annual meetings from 1911 to 1919?

Mr. Bates—Delighted, sir!

Mr. Streeter—Thank you. You see, brother Whipple, how nicely the Governor and I get along!

Q. Now, is it your recollection that the report, the treasurer's report to The Mother Church, gave the members of the Church the slightest information regarding the money which this Board of Directors was handling—receiving and paying out? A. I do not recall any of the details of the treasurer's report.

Q. Do you remember that it did give any information on that point? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember any discussion whether the members of the Church should have the information or not? A. No, sir.

Mr. Streeter—Would it be convenient, Governor Bates—you were so awfully nice about it—would it be convenient for you to have those reports this afternoon?

Mr. Bates—I do not know, but we will try to have them for you this afternoon.

Mr. Streeter—It will probably be easy for you to do so. The treasurer's report would probably be in a paper, and if you can find it I would like it.

Mr. Bates—If we could send them a wireless we would, but your requests come about every three minutes, and we cannot keep messengers going all the time. We will try to have them. If you will get your requests all together, and give us a list of what you want, then we will try to have them for you, and you will not have to wait at all.

Would this be a convenient time to take a recess, Your Honor?

Mr. Streeter—Any time will be convenient to me. I want to do just what Governor Bates wants me to do, because he is so nice to me.

The Master—Then we will suspend here for a few minutes.

[Recess of 10 minutes]

Q. Have you now your original notes? Have they come? A. For the entire period?

Q. Yes. A. I don't think they have.

Mr. Streeter—You can inquire.

The Witness—For what period, General Streeter?

Q. Have you your original notes, from which the records were prepared of the meetings of Oct. 7 and 8, 1918?

Mr. Dane—I understand that they have been asked for, but they have not yet come.

Mr. Streeter—I think they are here. You are better off than you thought.

[The records are produced.]

Q. Now, if you will turn to your original notes for Oct. 7, 1918? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you any reference in there to Judge Smith's advice, or being before the board at all? A. Yes.

Q. Will you let me see it? A. (handing the record book to Mr. Streeter) In the fourth paragraph. I haven't read it all through carefully.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, my dear man, I didn't ask for the notes that you revised and read to the board. I asked you for your original notes.

The Witness—Oh, I don't keep the memoranda and scraps of paper on which I note items in the room.

Q. You destroy those? A. Yes.

Q. Now, there isn't anything in here, so far as I can see, with reference to Judge Smith's advising about the method of keeping the books? A. No.

The Master—I understood he referred you to a certain paragraph in the paper he handed you.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, but if you look at the paragraph you will see that it is not what you thought it was.

The Witness—As I recall your question the latter part of it was—"Was there anything in the minutes to show that Judge Smith was present?" And that covers that question.

Mr. Streeter—I will put another question.

Q. Have you got anything in your minutes to show that Judge Smith was present and strongly advised a change of method of keeping your records? A. Not on that date.

Q. Have you memoranda that he did on any date? A. I couldn't say. I have no recollection.

Q. Judge Smith was present? A. It is so recorded.

Q. On Oct. 7? A. It is.

Q. And if he did make any suggestions about the unsatisfactory and dangerous method of keeping your records you have not recorded it? A. No.

Q. Now, is that memorandum an exact copy of what you put into your book? A. It is.

Q. Well, then, it is not the original minutes at all, is it? A. It is as I submitted them to the directors and they approved them.

Q. Mr. Jarvis, didn't you understand that what I was calling for was the original notes which you made in the board at the time the transactions were occurring? A. I did not.

Q. Turn, if you please, to the records of the meeting of Aug. 15, 1918. A. I have them.

Mr. Streeter—Will you let me see them?

[The records are shown to Mr. Streeter.]

Q. Were you present at that meeting? A. I could not say.

Q. Do you remember that when the minutes were read Mr. Dittmore inquired and protested against making no mention of Mr. Merritt's proposed letter to Mrs. Longyear, which was read to the board and filed with the secretary yesterday? Have you any recollection of that? A. I have no recollection of it, no, General Streeter.

Q. Do you remember being asked at that meeting to go and get the copy of the proposed letter to Mrs. Longyear? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember going and getting it, the original? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember handing it to Mr. Merritt, who put it in his pocket—this letter to Mrs. Longyear—proposed letter? A. I have a faint recollection of getting something for Mr. Merritt on some occasion. I couldn't positively identify it as the one to which you refer.

Q. Can't you brush up that memory of yours and see if you can't tell us more definitely about it? A. I am afraid I cannot, General Streeter.

Q. Let me refresh your recollection further. Do you remember that after you handed the letter, the original, to Mr. Merritt, who put it in his pocket, Mr. Dickey denied Mr. Dittmore's right to see the letter? A. I don't remember it now.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Dickey as chairman ever denied Mr. Dittmore the right to see records of the board? A. No.

Q. So all these details are entirely gone out of your mind, if they ever happened—these details that I have read here? A. Yes.

Q. From the records of Aug. 13, 1918, I read into this record the following:

"The question of replying to Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear's letter to the board dated July 20, 1918, concerning the historical work she has been doing" was discussed. On motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted to ask Judge Clifford P. Smith to prepare and submit a letter in reply to Mrs. Longyear's letter of above date, and that he be given all the information in the hands of the board on the subject before doing so.

"Mr. Merritt presented to the board and read a draft of a letter which he proposed for the board to send to Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear in answer to her communication of July 20, 1918. This letter was handed to the secretary, who was later instructed to include it with other items to be sent to Judge Smith for his information in connection with Mrs. Longyear's relations to the historical work of The Mother Church."

This is from the records of Aug. 13, Mr. Jarvis. Have you any recollection of the things which that record refers to? A. I could not say that I have. I should say the record spoke for itself.

Q. You should say what? A. I should say the record spoke for itself.

Q. Well, everybody will agree on that. The question is whether this refreshes your recollection at all? A. No, I couldn't say that it does.

Mr. Streeter—Then from the records of the meeting of Aug. 15, 1918:

"The minutes of the regular meeting of Aug. 13 were read."

And I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that there is no record of any protest against that, against the records. Following:

"At the request of Mr. Merritt the corresponding secretary—"

Q. That was you? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Streeter (continuing reading)—
"—returned to him his proposed outline of a letter to Mrs. Longyear read by him to the board on Aug. 13, whereupon Mr. Dittmore protested, and on Aug. 19 presented his protest in writing as follows:

"I wish to file a protest against the unprecedented, irregular, and illegal action of the chairman of this board in permitting an important document, a draft of a letter presented and read to the board at its regular meeting of Aug. 13 by Mr. Merritt and filed with the secretary of the board, to be removed from the custody of the board without any copy of it being kept, thereby preventing a most important piece of evidence, on one of the most vital matters connected with the Cause of Christian Science and a matter which the board then had and now has under consideration, from being available in the consideration of the said matter.
(Signed) "JOHN V. DITTEMORE.

"Boston, Aug. 14, 1918."

Q. Does that refresh your recollection in the slightest degree? A. It does.

Q. You now remember it? A. I remember the incident as described, yes.

Q. You do remember now that Mr.

Dittmore filed a very vigorous protest at that time, do you not? A. Yes. That's—

Q. Do you now remember that there was a great deal of controversy in the board with reference to a proposed contribution of a magnificent memorial to Mrs. Eddy by Mrs. Longyear? A. Yes.

Q. And that Mr. Dittmore took the view that the board, as the head of the Christian Science Church, should accept Mrs. Longyear's contribution of a memorial to Mrs. Eddy? Is that correct or not? A. Well—

Q. Answer the question directly, please. Is it or is it not correct that Dittmore took that view and urged it? A. Mr. Dittmore urged the acceptance of a gift by Mrs. Longyear of a historical building in the nature of a memorial, I believe.

Q. And was that opposed by Mr. Dickey and Mr. Neal and Mr. Merritt? A. It was.

Q. That answers the question. You remember now something of the circumstances, do you not? A. I do.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Neal said that it was a memorial to the Longyear family to be heralded broadcast? A. I do not.

Q. Is your recollection such that you can say he did not make that statement? A. I do not recall having heard him make it.

Q. Are you so sure of your recollection that you can say Mr. Neal did not make that statement? A. I would not say that he did not make it.

Q. Will you turn to the records of April 24, 1918? A. I have them.

Q. And, keeping that place, turn to the records of April 18, 1918? A. I have them.

Q. Do you find anything in the records of April 18 with reference to the board approving a plan for changing the Boston Monitor delivery from the Publishing Society to the management of a Mr. Whitney? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you able to state that a vote to that effect was not passed, officially passed by the board, on April 18? A. I am not.

Q. Will you now turn to the record of April 24, 1918? Do you find it? A. I have them.

Q. Do you find any reference in that record to the vote of April 18, transferring The Monitor delivery in Boston to a Mr. Whitney? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you present at both of those meetings? A. I could not say.

Q. Have you any recollection of the subject matter of transferring The Monitor delivery to a Mr. Whitney? A. In Boston?

Q. Yes. A. I have no recollection of such a proposition.

Q. Not at all? A. This is the first time I have ever heard of it.

Q. Now, Squire Jarvis, do you recollect whether, on April 24, the board asked you personally to delete the records of April 18 on this subject—the subject of Monitor delivery to a Mr. Whitney? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you say that the board, on April 24, did not ask you to delete and take out of the record of April 18— A. I couldn't say without referring to my records as presented to the board.

Q. Well, but your records as you presented them to the board—the only records that you have that you presented to the board—are exactly a copy of this book record, aren't they? A. Those copied in the book are the minutes as they were corrected by the directors after being prepared by me.

Q. Now, Mr. Jarvis, just brush up your memory just as much as you can. Do you say that the board did not tell you to take an official vote out of the record, and that you did it? A. On this date?

Q. On any date, if you please. A. I could not say.

Q. Sir? A. I could not say.

Q. You could not say. A. If the directors asked me to do it I would obey.

Q. If the directors asked you to delete an official vote you did it, did you? A. I did, if such a request was made.

Q. Do you deny that such requests were made and that you did delete official votes from that record? A. I have no recollection of a specific instance of that kind.

Q. And you do not recollect this instance? A. I do not.

Q. And you never heard of a transfer of The Monitor delivery to Mr. Whitney? A. I do not recall ever having heard it before, General Streeter.

Q. Are you sure— A. I am quite sure.

Q. No, you didn't get it. A. Pardon me.

Q. Are you sure that your memory isn't getting impaired? Are you sure about that?

Mr. Bates—Is this a memory test, Your Honor?

Mr. Streeter—Why, yes, certainly it is, on cross-examination.

Q. Are you really sure that your memory is not impaired? A. I do not wish to admit it.

Q. Well, I am hoping for your ultimate recovery. A. Thank you.

Q. Now turn to your record of July 8, 1918. A. I have it.

Q. Make it July 9, if you please. A. All right.

Q. Will you let me see the record? (Examining record.) In looking at this I find that on page 35 there are four of your records that are marked "Canceled." A. Yes.

Q. Do you find that so? A. Yes.

Q. And records on page 36 are marked "All canceled"? A. Yes.

Q. By whose authority did you cancel or delete the records on pages 35 and 36? A. Those are duplicate records, and they appear in their proper order in the book. This page was inadvertently picked up by the stenographer and she started on the wrong page.

Q. Now, let me see the record of July 8. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Look at the record of July 8, and see if you find a resolution or motion by Mr. Neal to pay from the War Relief Fund $27,000 for 10,000 khaki copies of "Science and Health" to give free to the soldiers? Do you find any such record as that? A. I do not.

Q. Are you able to state that Mr. Neal, on July 8, did not move, and that it was officially voted, to take $27,000 from the War Relief Fund and dispose of it as I have indicated? A. I am not.

Q. Are you able to state that Mr. Dittemore did not file a very energetic protest against such action? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you able to state that after that action was taken, and before the next meeting, you were not instructed to delete that record, and not have it appear on the record? A. Not from my recollection; no, sir.

Q. I am reminded that the vote to which I am referring as having been passed was to take $27,000 from the war relief fund to pay for 10,000 copies of Science and Health, in khaki binding. Does that refresh your recollection any? A. No, sir.

Q. And was that going to make an appropriation of $2.70 for each one of the copies of Science and Health, if such a vote had been passed? A. Ten thousand times $2.70 would be $27,000.

Q. Now, search all the crannies of your recollection, and see if you do not remember that Dittemore protested against such a use of money? A. I do not recall any specific protest; Mr. Dittemore made many of them.

Q. Do you recall any general protests of Dittemore against such a use of $27,000 of the war relief fund? A. General?

Q. General protest. A. Mr. Dittemore protested on many occasions.

The Master—Oh, well, stick to this one, please.

The Witness—Thank you; I beg your pardon. I do not.

Q. Can you remember whether this was one of the occasions when the directors told you to delete the records, the official records, and you did it? A. No, sir.

Q. You cannot say that this was one of them? A. I could not, no.

Mr. Bates—He has not said that there were any, General.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, he has.

Mr. Bates—I beg your pardon.

Mr. Streeter—I beg your pardon. You will have a chance to find that in the record.

The Master—We had better let the record speak for itself on that.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, the record will speak on that.

Q. I don't think I asked you with reference to the meeting of Aug. 15, whether Dittemore wanted a copy of a letter to Mrs. Longyear and they refused it, Mr. Dickey told him he could not have it. I want to ask you about that. Do you remember that Mr. Dittemore, a member of that board, was refused a copy of one of the documents of the board? A. It seems to me that that was the case.

Q. What reason did the chairman of the board give for refusing to a member of the board a copy of one of the official documents of the board, if you remember? A. I don't remember any specific reason.

Q. Did he give any reason, or was it simply an arbitrary fiat, or an autocratic order, with reference to the records and documents of the board?

Mr. Dane—If Your Honor please, I object to the characterization by General Streeter of the letter which has been referred to as an official document. I think he should describe it as it is.

Mr. Streeter—Well, do you think that will do any particular harm? I want to be nice to you—but, really, Judge, I have a lot of trouble in keeping away from the rather fussy character—

The Master—Why not omit characterization so far as possible at the present stage? There will be an opportunity later.

Mr. Streeter—Do you want me, really, Mr. Dane, to put that question over, or will you let this one go if I will try to be good hereafter?

Mr. Dane—I want you to take the ruling of the Court. All I objected to was your characterizing a letter as an official document.

The Master—The only thing that I can see about it that is important is whether the witness remembers whether there was a refusal, with reason or without reason given.

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Q. Well, what do you say? A. I have a faint recollection that a copy was refused but I don't recall the reasons therefor.

Q. Well, who refused it? Who refused to give a member of the board a copy of a letter, or records of the board? Who was chief of that job?

The Master—You asked him before, according to my recollection, if Mr. Dickey refused.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, he did say so; yes, he did.

The Master—He said he thought he remembered that Mr. Dickey did refuse.

Mr. Streeter—Yes; I remember that, that Dickey was the chap who did it.

Q. Now, search your recollection and see if you cannot remember some reason that my friend Dickey gave for refusing another member of the board a letter, which I will not describe as an official document, but a letter that belonged to the board.

The Master—I think he has stated that he could not remember whether Mr. Dickey's refusal was accompanied by a reason or not.

Mr. Streeter—I didn't know but what—you see, Judge, he brightens up sometimes—I didn't know but on reflection I might get something from him.

The Master—Have you anything to add, Mr. Jarvis?

The Witness—No, Your Honor.

Q. Is it true, Mr. Jarvis, that Dickey at other times refused Mr. Dittemore copies of the official records of the board? A. I do not recall.

Q. Well, why did you have to wait so long to conclude that you didn't recall? Can you give an answer? A. Because I wanted to give a truthful answer.

Q. Oh, yes, I sympathize with you. Are you quite sure that you have no recollection that at no time Mr. Dickey refused a co-member of the board, Mr. Dittemore, copies of the official records? A. I was—I do not recall Mr. Dickey having refused Mr. Dittemore copies of official records. I would like to add a word by way of explanation.

The Master—Go on.

The Witness—Mr. Dickey as chairman was only one member of the board. A request from a member of the board, if denied by the chairman, would be subject to an appeal. If the chair was sustained, the request was not granted.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Jarvis, I will put that in another way. Have you any recollection of other occasions when Mr. Dickey refused Mr. Dittemore copies of the official records of the board, and an appeal was taken, and Mr. Dickey was sustained in his refusal? A. There might have been one or two occasions—

Q. Were there? Not whether there might have been. Were there? A. I do not recall any specifically.

Mr. Streeter—How does the answer read?

[The answer is read as follows: "I do not recall any specifically."]

Q. Do you recall any generally? A. Repeat that question, please.

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me. Before you (the reporter) read it, I want to make a suggestion to the witness, that you (the witness) try to think what tracks you have got on your records here bearing on that question before you answer it. The witness wants the question read, and I think he ought to have it.

[The question is read as follows: "Do you recall any generally?"]

The Witness—It was the preceding question, the one upon which that was based, as to Mr. Dickey's action, that I wanted to hear read.

[The reporter reads as follows: "Well, now, Mr. Jarvis, I will put that in another way. Have you any recollection of other occasions when Mr. Dickey refused Mr. Dittemore copies of the official records of the board, and an appeal was taken, and Mr. Dickey was sustained in his refusal?"]

A. I don't recall any such specific instances; but may I amplify my answer?

Mr. Streeter—I should like to have him answer it.

The Master—Go on. Finish your answer. Give the extent of your recollection.

The Witness—Mr. Dickey was opposed to giving out certain records of the directors, and so expressed himself on various occasions.

Q. You mean he was opposed to letting a member of the board have a copy of the official records of the board—is that what you mean? A. Yes.

Q. And, to make it more specific, Mr. Dickey was opposed to letting Mr. Dittmore, an equal member of the board, have extracts from the official records of the board—is that right? A. (After a pause) I could not say. I feel that Mr. Dickey's position had reference to all the members of the board.

Mr. Streeter—I pray Your Honor for an answer to that question, specifically—Mr. Dickey and Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Dane—I object to the question. I do not suppose that the witness can answer what Mr. Dickey was opposed to, or what he was not opposed to, but only what he heard and observed.

Mr. Streeter—Well, it is suggested that my friend is trying to coach the witness, but I don't care. You may coach him if you want to.

Mr. Dane—He does not need any coaching from me. That has been apparent ever since he has been testifying.

Mr. Streeter—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Bates—The coaching has been done by General Streeter, I think.

The Master—What is the pending question, exactly?

[The question is read as follows: "And, to make it more specific, Mr. Dickey was opposed to letting Mr. Dittmore, an equal member of the board, have extracts from the official records of the board—is that right?"] What do you say to that, Mr. Jarvis—is it right or not?

The Witness (After a pause)—I cannot answer.

Q. Why not? A. I do not know that Mr. Dickey would not have raised the same objection if another member of the board—

Mr. Streeter—That is not the question, Your Honor. It is a question whether he did object to Mr. Dittmore's having it. I pray an answer.

The Master—I think you should state whether, according to your recollection, there were such refusals or not.

The Witness—Yes, there were.

Q. How many? A. I could not say.

Q. What reason, if any, did you ever hear Dickey give for refusing another member of the board a copy of the official votes?—A. (After a pause.) I don't know that I could say.

Q. Why can't you say? A. I don't know as I recall.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Dickey in his refusal to let Mr. Dittmore have a copy, or anything from the official records, gave any reason for such refusal? A. None other than that they were the private records of the Board of Directors and should be kept inviolate as the records of the board.

Q. Did he give that as a reason? A. I could not say definitely that he did.

Q. You said that he gave no other than that they were the private records of the board. Did he give that as a reason? A. It seemed to me that—

Q. I don't care what it seemed to you, with great respect—

The Master—As a matter of recollection, did he give that as a reason?

The Witness—I think he did; yes, Your Honor, he did.

Q. He did. Did he give any other reason for refusing a member of the board copies from the official records, so far as you recollect? A. No.

Q. Did at one time Mr. Dickey say that he had taken legal advice on that question? A. I do not recall Mr. Dickey's making such a statement.

Q. I wish you would turn to your records of Sept. 10. A. What year, please?

Q. The same year. A. 1918?

Q. Yes. A. (Turning to the records) Yes?

Q. Will you let me see it? A. Certainly (passing the volume to Mr. Streeter).

Q. In this connection, does it appear on that date that the directors asked the trustees for a conference on Sept. 11? A. Yes; there is a record of such an invitation.

Q. Now, is there any record of a discussion between Mr. Dickey and the other members of the board, a protest from Mr. Dittmore, and violent accusations by Dickey against Dittmore? Do you find anything of that sort in it? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, this was the day, Sept. 10, 1918, before the critical and vital day of Sept. 11, when the trustees and the directors had a pretty critical time, wasn't it—this was the day before? A. I so understand.

Q. Yes, Now, did Mr. Dickey at that meeting, and in anticipation of the meeting with the trustees take a conciliatory position with reference to making concessions to the trustees? A. I could not say, as I was not present.

Q. Oh, you weren't! Are you sure you were not? A. Yes.

Q. Oh, that is the time that Miss Warren was present? A. I was in California on that date.

Mr. Streeter—Well, then, I am not going to ask you whether you heard it or not.

The Master—Why don't you let all that about Sept. 10 go out of the record?

Q. You were not there Sept. 10? A. No, sir.

Mr. Streeter—It may go out of the record. It should, Your Honor.

The Master—It was all asked under a misapprehension, apparently.

Mr. Streeter—Do you want to adjourn now?

The Master—Any time that is desired.

Mr. Streeter—I am going to take up a new subject, and perhaps this would be a good time to stop.

The Master—We will stop until 2 o'clock.

[Recess until 2 o'clock p. m.]

AFTERNOON SESSION

Q. (By Mr. Streeter.) Departing just for a moment, I want to ask you if you are familiar with the signature of James A. Neal, a member of The Christian Science Board of Directors? A. I am.

Q. I have a paper on which is a signature purporting to be Mr. Neal's. Will you look at it and see whether it is his signature (showing paper to witness)? A. It is.

Mr. Streeter—I would like, if Your Honor please, to have the stenographer mark that paper right under Mr. Neal's signature, for identification—not to put in.

[Paper bearing signature purporting to be that of James A. Neal is marked 201 for identification.]

Q. Now, Mr. Jarvis, did it frequently happen, when you carried in your typewritten report to the directors of the minutes of the previous meeting, that they called for your short minutes that you took at the time of the meeting? A. No, sir. It very rarely happened.

Q. Did it ever? A. I can't say of any single instance where they asked me for memoranda. They may have done so.

Q. Well, haven't they done so within a year at least several times? A. Possibly.

Q. And on those occasions didn't you go out and get your original minutes and bring them in for comparison? A. If such a request was made I certainly responded.

Q. Now, when did you destroy those original minutes? A. As a general rule as soon as I had dictated the minutes of the meeting to which they referred.

Q. When did you destroy the last original minutes of those meetings? A. I do not recall.

Q. Well, was it so long ago you can't remember? A. No; but because they were just simply memoranda on scraps of paper that would have served their purpose as soon as I had dictated the minutes.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, I see. I want to make, if Your Honor please, a correction in reference to a question that I asked this morning, where I referred to a motion to appropriate $27,000 of War Relief Fund, to purchase 10,000 copies of Science and Health. Instead of being Science and Health it was 10,000 copies of the Bible, and I desire to make that correction.

Q. Do you desire to change your answer to the question, I having changed that from Science and Health to the Bible? A. I would have to refer to the records. I do not recall a vote of that kind for Bibles or Science and Health. I know that the question of purchasing 10,000 Bibles was up at some time.

Q. Is your memory also refreshed that it was proposed to appropriate $27,000 for the purchase of 10,000 Bibles? A. I do not recall such a vote.

Q. Is your memory so clear that you will say that that vote was not passed? A. No.

Q. Is your memory also so clear that you would not say that at the next meeting of the board you were personally instructed to delete that record and did so? A. I have no recollection of such instructions.

Q. You say you were in California for a period in the latter part of 1918? A. Yes.

Q. Will you give me the dates so that I won't be troubling you about meetings when you were not there? Dates when you went away and when you returned? A. I think I left about the 6th of September and returned on or about the 6th of October.

Q. So that you were present on Oct. 7 when it appears by the records that Judge Smith was also present? A. I believe so. May I look at the record?

Q. If you please. A. (After referring to records.) Yes, I was present on Oct. 7.

Q. That was the date when I inquired of you whether Judge Smith did not advise that your present method of keeping the records was unsatisfactory and unsafe? A. I believe you did.

Q. Now, won't you turn to your record of Oct. 10? A. I have done so.

Q. Do you find any record there of Mr. Merritt's effort to create a mercantile corporation to be formed outside the Church and take advantage of the markets, or anything with reference to that—or Mr. Neal? Either by Mr. Merritt or Mr. Neal? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you any recollection of such a discussion? A. Yes.

Q. When was it? A. On Oct. 10.

Q. Call my attention to what in the records reminds you of that. Let me see it. A. The record entry, the third paragraph. (Handing volume to Mr. Streeter.)

Mr. Streeter—I read it. This is from the record of Oct. 10:

"A letter was read from Mr. William R. Rathvon, treasurer of The Mother Church, dated Sept. 25, expressing his views as to the incorporation of the Construction and Maintenance Department in order to facilitate the purchase of material for The Mother Church and its allied interests."

Q. What position did Mr. Dittmore take with reference to that matter, if you please? A. I haven't the faintest recollection.

Q. Your memory has not improved since the morning session, has it? A. I cannot say.

Q. Turn to your records of Nov. 5. A. Nov. 5?

Q. Yes. A. I have them.

Q. Let me see the records. A. (Handing volume to Mr. Streeter.)

Q. Did you report to that meeting of Nov. 5 that Mr. Dixon had declined the request of the board to come for a conference with Judge Smith, because he would not talk private matters before Judge Smith? A. I do not recall making any such report.

Q. Well, that was last November. Now, if you did report to that meeting that Dixon would not come to that meeting with Judge Smith, you possibly may have remembered it. Now, see if you do not remember making that report. A. No, I honestly can say that I do not recall making such a report.

Q. Did you make a report like that in substance? A. No, I do not recall it.

Q. Did you ever know from Dixon that he would not attend a meeting with Judge Smith present, at any time? A. I do not remember of any occasion when Mr. Dixon so expressed himself to me.

Q. Did Mr. Dixon come to the meeting of Nov. 5 after it was arranged that Judge Smith should not be present? A. The record shows that the directors had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor.

Q. Do you recollect whether Judge Smith was present? A. I do not.

Q. How far back can you— A. Well—

Q. Pardon me, Mr. Jarvis. A. I find from the record, if I may be pardoned, that the directors had an interview with Judge Smith on that date.

Q. But you do not find that they had an interview with Judge Smith concurrent with an interview with Dixon, do you? A. No, the record does not show that, and I do not recall it.

Q. Let me ask you about the condition of your memory. How far back can you remember anything clearly? A. General Streeter, that is a leading question.

Mr. Streeter—I know it.

Mr. Dane—Does Your Honor think that is helpful?

The Master—It does not strike me there is anything to be gained by that kind of a question.

Mr. Streeter—Your Honor is the judge.

Q. Now, on Nov. 6. Turn to that record. A. Nov. 6—I have the record before me.

Q. Was there any record entered up of the fact of Mr. Dittmore's motion that a different auditor from the one employed by the Publishing Society be employed for the audit of the publishing house—trustees? A. On Nov. 6?

Q. Yes. A. No record appears.

Q. Have you any recollection whether Mr. Dittmore did try to move to have a separate auditor employed? A. For The Mother Church?

Q. A separate auditor employed for The Mother Church to examine the accounts of the Publishing Society trustees? Never heard of it? A. Yes.

Q. That Mr. Dittmore wanted that? A. Yes.

Q. Was it opposed? A. I do not recall whether it was opposed or not.

Q. Did his associates agree to it? A. I do not remember.

Q. Haven't you any impression whether Mr. Dittmore was asking for a separate, independent auditor of the trustees' accounts and the others opposed. Can't you remember about that? A. I remember the question coming up for discussion.

Q. And you remember Dittmore's position? A. I remember Mr. Dittmore proposed that a different firm of auditors be employed than the ones who had hitherto been engaged.

Q. Now, if you can find, between now and Monday—if we adjourn this afternoon—if you can find records that Mr. Dittmore's proposition to have a separate auditor was accepted by Dickey and his associates, will you please do so and report to us Monday morning? A. Gladly.

Q. You say that you know Dittmore wanted a separate auditor? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your memory is all right on that question. Now, if you can find any reference in those records to any such motion I will ask you to do so and report to us. Will you do it? A. Gladly.

Q. Now, turn to your record of Nov. 13. A. I have it before me.

Q. Did you get down on that record anything with reference to a financial statement of the War Relief Fund in The Monitor of that date—of Nov. 13? A. No; there is no reference in the minutes of that date on the subject.

Q. Do you remember whether Mr. Dittmore protested to the board against the false information, or misinformation, that was given out to the Christian Science world with reference to the use of the War Relief Fund?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Q. Did you ever hear it?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment as to the form of the question, assuming something that is not in evidence as to misinformation or false information.

Mr. Streeter—I will say alleged, I will put the word alleged before that, if it will help it.

The Master—I suppose all you want to do is to see what the witness remembers about any such subject being brought up.

Mr. Streeter—Surely.

The Master—Now, what do you remember?

The Witness—It seems to me that I recall an objection on the part of Mr. Dittmore to a statement that appeared in The Monitor.

Q. What was his objection? A. In a general way, to the manner in which the figures were presented.

Q. Did he claim before the board that the figures were falsely presented, so as to give a false understanding to the contributors? Did he or not? A. I don't recall exactly that.

Q. Oh, well, now, are you sure you don't recall? A. I don't recall his exact words.

Q. What was he talking about the figures for? A. I stated, in my former answer, that my impression is that in a general way he objected to the manner in which the figures were presented in The Monitor article.

Q. Have you any recollection as to what objection he made? A. No.

Q. Let me see if I can refresh your recollection. Didn't The Monitor article state that there had been around $1,300,000 collected from Christian Scientists, most of which had been spent in overseas work? Do you remember that statement? A. I believe so.

Q. Well, now, didn't Mr. Dittmore claim, before the board, that that was false, a false statement because only about 30 per cent of the whole amount had been spent in overseas work? A. I do not recall Mr. Dittmore making that specific objection.

Q. Well, if you have any memory on it at all, tell what it is. A. I have already stated it twice, that in a general way I recall his objection to the figures as presented in The Monitor article.

Q. Well, did he claim that the figures gave a false understanding to the Christian Science people who had contributed that million and three hundred thousand dollars? A. I do not remember exactly what he claimed on that date.

Q. Well, he was making a fuss about the statement in The Monitor? A. Yes.

Q. And you cannot remember whether he claimed that they were false or true? A. He objected to the figures, and he may have said that they were false. I do not recall that he did so.

Q. Let us see, what is your salary as corresponding secretary of the Board of Directors? A. $5500 a year.

Q. And that salary depends entirely upon the good will of this Board of Directors, does it not? A. Possibly.

Q. Turn to Nov. 19. A. I have it before me.

Q. Have you got a record there of the trial of — of —? A. I have before me a record of an interview with — of —, with regard to the complaints on file against him.

Q. Mr. Norwood is one of the counsel of The Christian Science Board of Directors, isn't he? A. He is.

Q. Did Mr. Norwood make a written report on that case to the board? A. I think he did.

Q. Where is that report? A. It will be in the files of the Board of Directors.

Q. Did Mr. Norwood report that the evidence did not show actual immorality on the part of —? A. The record does not show such a report—the record of Tuesday, Nov. 19.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Norwood in his written report expressly stated that the evidence did not show actual immorality on the part of the accused?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment as to whether this matter, one of discipline in the Church, should be gone into.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I don't care a hooter about the discipline, that is not what I am after, but if I could get an answer to this question, I next propose to ask him whether by order of the board that part of the report was deleted. If I have laid the foundation for it, with the permission of the Court, I will ask you that question.

The Master—I think I shall have to allow it to be answered.

A. This discipline case was only one of a great many; I do not recall Mr. Norwood's specific advice in this instance.

Q. After Mr. Norwood's report was read did the majority of the board vote to delete that part of the report, of Norwood's report, which recited that the evidence did not show actual immorality? A. Mr. Norwood's name is not mentioned in the minutes of Nov. 19.

Q. I did not ask you that question. You were present. I am asking you whether we have got down to a time when your memory runs back. Can you remember that? A. I do not know that I was present.

Q. Do you know that you were not? A. No.

Q. What is your judgment about it, whether you were or not? A. I believe that I was present during the interview with Mr. —.

Q. Let me remind you of something. You see, that was only a few months ago, Nov. 19th. There was a hearing, and Mr. — was brought in, wasn't he? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember Dickey's telling you to put a high-backed chair between where — sat and your table, so that — could not see the notes that were being taken? Do you remember that? A. No.

Q. Not at all? A. No.

Q. I am awfully sorry. Do you remember whether Mr. Dittmore protested against such a proceeding? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember whether Mr. Dittmore claimed that the decision in the — case had been taken before — had a chance to be heard? A. Yes.

Q. Oh, you do remember that. Now, here is one thing, Nov. 19. You now remember that Dittmore protested against the — discipline case, claiming that the decision had been arrived at by the board before — was heard? A. I would not fix the date upon which Mr. Dittmore made that statement of Nov. 19, but I recall his making it.

Q. That is, Mr. Dittmore was standing before that board for the proposition that a man, an accused, should not be tried and found guilty until he had been heard? That was his position, was it? A. Yes.

Q. Did you as a man approve of that position?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—What has his approval or disapproval to do with the matter?

Mr. Streeter—Well, I don't know as it has anything; I think Your Honor must be right.

Q. Now, turn to your record of Nov. 20. Will you let me see the record? A. Yes.

Mr. Bates—If Your Honor please, I assume my brother is going to leave this incident. I do not know who Mr. — is, nor anything about the matter, but I suggest that his name ought to be left out of the record.

Mr. Streeter—I don't care anything about the name, that isn't of the slightest consequence. That may be left out.

Mr. Bates—Then the reporters will be kind enough to leave that blank.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, I would be glad to have you.

The Master—By agreement, that name may be left blank.

Mr. Streeter—I was trying to show the way they did things down here, not who they did them to, in this case.

Mr. Bates—You are trying to show the way you said they did.

Mr. Streeter—It shows the way they did it—the same they did to Dittmore and to Rowlands both, later.

Q. Well, now I come to another subject. Will you look at Nov. 20. You were present, weren't you? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Well, you look at that and see if you don't remember that you were there? A. I was present part of the time, at least.

Q. Does the record show that Messrs. Dittmore, Neal, Merritt, and Rathvon were present at that meeting? A. Present, yes; Messrs. Dittmore, Neal, Merritt, and Rathvon.

Q. Did you ask the board whether you should take from the historical safe, delivered to you from Mr. Beauchamp's office, the old church records which belonged to The Mother Church? Did you ask the board that? A. I find a record here referring to the subject. I do not recall whether I raised the question in the form of a request for permission to remove them, or whether I was authorized at the instance of some member of the board, and instructed by the board itself.

Q. Read your record on that. A. "The corresponding secretary was authorized to remove the old record books of The Mother Church, Massachusetts Metaphysical College, and Mother Church Sunday School, from the safe containing historical data assembled by Mr. Beauchamp, and place them in the directors' vault; and to consult the board regarding the manuscripts, original letters, etc., collected as a part of the historical data pertaining to our Leader and the Cause of Christian Science, before taking steps to have any of the papers mounted for permanent preservation."

Q. Is that all? A. That is all.

Mr. Whipple—May I suggest, with regard to the name of the gentleman or gentlemen whose name was deleted a few minutes ago, that I am informed that he would be identified if you leave in the residence.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I am perfectly willing to strike out the residence.

Mr. Whipple—The trustees join in the request that the name should be left out.

Mr. Streeter—Yes. I would like to strike out anything in that that would identify the man. He wasn't the gentleman I was looking after.

The Master—Make it clear to the stenographer; it seems to be agreed.

Mr. Whipple—Not only the name, but the residence and state.

The Master—The state.

Q. This record, made only last November, seems to remind you, to refresh your memory, doesn't it, Mr. Jarvis, about that transaction? A. The record speaks for itself.

Q. No; but have you any memory independent of the record? A. Yes; I—

Q. Now, do you remember raising the question whether all the letters, manuscripts and documents from Mrs. Eddy's home at Chestnut Hill should be sorted and mounted by Mr. Hoard? Do you remember raising that question? A. No, I do not.

Q. Let's see. Did you say you got $5500 a year? Is that right? A. I did.

Q. Well, do you remember whether Mr. Dittmore pointed out to the board that the directors had no right to assume control over any of the manuscripts or documents which came from Chestnut Hill? Did he or not take that position? A. I believe he did.

Q. Did he take that position on the ground that the manuscripts did not belong to the directors, but belonged to the trustees under Mrs. Eddy's will—the New Hampshire trust? A. He took it temporarily.

Mr. Streeter—I didn't ask you that question. The stenographer will read it, please.

[The question is read by the stenographer.]

Q. Did he or didn't he? A. He did, because he had forgotten the bill of sale transferring them to the directors, apparently.

Mr. Streeter—Well, of course, Your Honor, before this tribunal I do not care whether that is struck out or is not. Of course, it is a mere volunteer statement, and it is not true.

The Master—You may have it struck out if you desire.

Mr. Streeter—Well, let it be struck out.

Q. Did he claim that no disposition of Mrs. Eddy's manuscripts or documents could be made except under the order of the trustees under Mrs. Eddy's will? A. I do not remember.

Q. Is your memory getting brushed up on that transaction some—a little? A. No, I remember very little about it.

Q. Very little, I see. See if you remember this: Did Mr. Neal ask if those manuscripts and letters and documents that Mrs. Eddy left at Chestnut Hill were not included in the bill of sale of the property at Chestnut Hill, to the directors? A. I don't remember such a question.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Dittmore replied to Mr. Neal, or said at the time that they obviously were not included in the bill of sale, as the appraisal would show? A. I do not remember it.

Q. Did the board then agree that all of this property should remain in the safe under the custody of Mr. Jarvis, and that no other disposition should be made? A. That is my impression of the situation.

Q. At that time? A. Yes.

Q. It was left in your charge? A. Yes.

Q. With Dittmore's protest that those manuscripts and letters belonged to the New Hampshire Trust, and not to the Church—is that right? A. I don't recall Mr. Dittmore's protest in the board room.

Q. What? A. In the board room.

Q. You said a moment ago that Mr. Dittmore did claim that, that those articles, manuscripts and letters, did belong to the New Hampshire Trust? A. Yes.

Q. You remember that now? A. Yes.

Q. And they were left in your custody to hold, with the protest of Dittmore that they belonged to the New Hampshire Trust—that is right, isn't it? A. I don't recall his—

The Master—You mean left by vote of the directors?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Witness—I should say, if I may, by the consent and approval of the directors, if I may distinguish between such consent and an actual vote.

Q. How long did they remain in the safe under that vote, these letters and manuscripts of Mrs. Eddy that Dittmore claimed belonged to the New Hampshire Trust? A. I do not know whether such a vote was passed.

Q. I didn't ask you that. How long did they remain in the safe after that day? A. They are still in the safe.

Q. What have you been doing to them since? A. They have been—some of them have been inspected.

Q. By whom? A. By Miss Warren in our office.

Q. By whom else? A. I could not say. Possibly one or more of our counsel; possibly one or more of the directors.

Q. What one or more of your counsel? A. I could not say.

Q. They were in your custody. Now, charged with their custody, do you mean to tell the Court that you can't remember who has been handling and dealing with those papers since? If you do, let us have it. A. I recall that Miss Warren and I have opened the safe on possibly one or two occasions, and examined or taken therefrom envelopes containing papers.

Q. By whose direction did you do that? A. I believe Miss Warren said to me that some one wanted to see certain of the papers.

Q. Who wanted to see them? A. I don't recall.

Q. Are you sure that you are telling that accurately? A. I believe I am.

Q. Has anybody connected with the management of the Church talked with you about those manuscripts and letters of Mrs. Eddy's that were put in the safe under your custody in November, 1918? A. I don't know that anyone besides Miss Warren has.

Q. Now, did Mr. Dittmore go to you on the 15th day of January last and talk with you about these papers, these important manuscripts and papers? A. One Wednesday evening meeting—one Wednesday evening, while I was in the office, Mr. Dittmore came down the hall and spoke—

Q. Why can't you say yes or no, without a lot of details? Did he talk with you or not? A. I don't know whether he talked with me on the 15th day of January or not.

Q. Well, did he talk to you at about that date? A. He made a remark to me one evening to take good care of the records, that he felt that they belonged to the Trustees under the Will, and that was prior to the incident to which you have referred in your recent questions.

Q. What did you say to him? What did you say to Dittmore? A. I don't know that I said anything.

Q. Well, did you assent to taking good care of those valuable manuscripts and letters of Mrs. Eddy, or didn't you? A. I don't remember that I made any reply. He didn't ask me any question.

Q. Well, have you since that time taken them out, or has anybody taken them out, and had them mounted, or any part of them? A. I don't know whether any part of them have been mounted or not. As I have stated, we have taken them out of the safe—

Q. Now, see here! Will you tell Judge Dodge all that you know about these manuscripts and letters claimed to belong to the New Hampshire Trust since they were put in your custody last November? Turn right round and tell the judge all about it. A. (Turning toward the master.) The question of ownership of the documents in the safe in question was raised, and I understood subsequently that the matter had been settled at the meetings of the Board of Directors and of the Trustees under the Will, who are the trustees under the New Hampshire Trust, to which General Streeter refers. I understood that the ownership had been decided to be in the Board of Directors under the bill of sale, with this exception, that manuscripts by Mary Baker Eddy were not to be disturbed or published or in any way disposed of without the authority of the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy. The other papers I did not feel came under that ruling, and therefore, on my responsibility, I felt at liberty to extract from the safe such papers as might be needed for reference.

Q. Reference in what respect? A. In respect to the present litigation.

Q. So you took those papers which were claimed to be the property of the New Hampshire Trust, the manuscripts and letters and you have gone through them to find what you could that would help in this litigation, have you? A. I did not say so.

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—He says he did not say so.

Q. Well, I ask you if that is what you did. A. I did not.

Q. Who told you that the question had been settled that they did not belong to the New Hampshire Trust? A. I do not now recall.

Q. Well, is it so bad as that? Can't you remember? A. I am saying as a general impression that I gathered that the question had been settled as to ownership.

Q. Well, it was not Dittmore, was it? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it anybody in authority? A. My impression is that I gained the information from some one or more of the directors. How I gained it I cannot now state; I do not recall.

Q. Let us see. Before March 17, or since, did you gain that impression? A. I don't recall. I would say that it was before March 17.

Q. Well, it was not Dittmore, therefore it must have been either Dickey, Neal, or Merritt. A. Possibly it was one of those, or more of them; I don't remember.

Q. Well, don't you know? A. No, I don't.

Q. Was that in a meeting? A. I couldn't say. I don't remember how I got the impression.

Q. Did you ever examine the question yourself as to who owned those letters and manuscripts? A. I examined the bill of sale, yes.

Q. Did you examine the appraisal in connection with it? A. I don't remember whether I did or not.

Q. Really, can't you remember? A. It seems to me that it is all incorporated in one. It seems to me that the appraisal and the bill of sale are in one document.

Q. The appraisal was of property at Chestnut Hill, amounting to $21,000 plus, wasn't it? A. I believe so.

Q. And no manuscripts or letters were appraised in that $21,000, were they? A. I don't remember as to the appraisal. It seems to me that the bill of sale included all documents, manuscripts and everything of whatsoever nature.

Q. Yes. But assume, Mr. Jarvis, that the appraisers appraised the property at Chestnut Hill, including furnishings and laces and carpets and other ordinary household furniture, at $21,000, and didn't appraise the manuscripts and letters that were there, and then the Church directors voted to buy the property appraised for the amount of the appraisal, and the draftsman put into the bill of sale "also all letters, manuscripts," and so on, covering the property that you had got: would you then claim that those letters and manuscripts were transferred from the trustees, the New Hampshire trustees, to the Church?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment on that question.

A. I would under the bill of sale. The Master—Don't you think that that is leading us rather far away from our present purposes?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, I do, Judge. As usual, you are right, I was somewhat tempted, Your Honor, because that matter will cut a very important figure. Perhaps I ought not to have gone into it so much now.

Q. Come to your records of Nov. 27. A. We do not seem to have had a meeting on that day, General Streeter. 1918?

Q. That was a Benevolent Association meeting. Did you have a meeting on Dec. 3?

The Master—A directors' meeting, I suppose you mean?

Mr. Streeter—A directors' meeting. A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Dickey state at that meeting that Mrs. Eddy's $3,000,000 trust, or $2,500,000 trust, in New Hampshire, had been kept there by deliberate falsification? I am asking you for your memory. I assume you wouldn't get it in your record. A. I don't recall his making such a statement.

Q. Do you find any vote there under Dec. 3—a motion by Mr. Dittmore that a full statement of the Benevolent Association be given to the field? A. No; no record of such motion.

Q. Very likely there is no record. Now I ask you if Mr. Dittmore didn't then move, at that meeting, that information regarding the Benevolent Association be given to the field, which you didn't put into your record? A. No; I have no recollection of his making such a motion.

Q. You don't remember that? A. No.

Q. What is the Christian Science Benevolent Association? You are an officer of it, aren't you? A. I am.

Q. What is your position? A. Clerk.

Q. Who constitute the governing board of the association? A. A board of trustees, consisting of John V. Dittmore, Adam H. Dickey, Edward A. Merritt, William R. Rathvon, and James A. Neal.

Q. In other words, the directors of the Church are the board of trustees. Mr. Dittmore is chairman of that board, is he not? A. President of the association.

Q. And how long has he been president? A. Since the—about the beginning of this year, of this calendar year.

Q. It is a corporation, isn't it? A. A charitable corporation.

Q. What does it own? A. It owns approximately 21 acres of land on Lone Tree Hill, Brookline, with the buildings thereon.

Q. Did Mrs. Longyear contribute the land to this association? A. She did.

Q. Did she contribute $90,000 in cash? A. She, I believe, contributed some money, a portion of which was subsequently withdrawn, or returned to her.

Q. Did she originally suggest $150,000, and take back $60,000, leaving her contribution to this $90,000? A. I don't remember the exact figures, General Streeter. I remember she made a liberal cash donation upon certain conditions, and subsequently she saw fit to ask for the return, or at least a portion of it was returned to her, as it did not seem at the time wise to carry out part of the project.

Q. Was it stated to be because the board declined and refused to let her build a memorial to Mrs. Eddy at Pleasant View in Concord? A. I don't remember of her giving such a reason.

Q. How much was contributed to the assets of the Christian Science Benevolent Association, this charitable organization? A. I couldn't tell without the treasurer's books before me.

Q. Was it some five or six hundred thousand dollars? A. Yes, I should say so.

Q. That has been poured into that association. Mr. Dittmore here is president of the board? A. Yes.

Q. Has Mr. Dittmore, to your knowledge, been trying for the last three weeks to get information regarding the standing, the financial standing, of that association of which he is president? A. He has recently made requests of me for certain financial information.

Q. Have you furnished it? A. I am in process of furnishing it. I am accumulating it.

Q. Have you furnished it? A. I have not.

Q. Why not? A. Because I haven't been able to get the figures.

The Master—I shall have to ask what we have to do with that at present. It is not only since this bill was filed but since we have begun these hearings.

Mr. Streeter—Your Honor, I am hoping to satisfy the Court that on the question of the directors' dealings with Mr. Dittmore the question of their good faith in expelling him or undertaking to expel him—I am hoping to satisfy your Honor that their acts since March 17 are just as vital as they were before.

The Master—Well, let us get those before first.

Mr. Streeter—I thought I had gotten quite a lot of them.

The Master—Have you got through?

Mr. Streeter—But I will follow Your Honor's suggestion.

The Master—I am not at present inclined to admit evidence regarding all that has passed since the filing of the bill between Mr. Dittmore and the directors.

Mr. Streeter—Does Your Honor's ruling go so far that you are not inclined to admit anything that has happened since the filing of the bill?

The Master—I don't think I need to go so far as that at present.

Mr. Streeter—I wish to ask with reference to the question that I started on about a deletion of the records in May. May I come to that, or shall I not?

Mr. Dane—It seems to me, Your Honor, that no foundation has been laid for that. We made the objection at the outset, and I renew it now, as to going into matters subsequent to the filing of the bill.

Mr. Streeter—I will take Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—So far as I now see, I shall exclude matters of that kind subsequent to the filing of the bill.

Mr. Streeter—That is, anything with reference to a continuation of the method of keeping the records. But I assume, Your Honor, it is without prejudice. Or does Your Honor make a final ruling that no evidence subsequent to the filing of the bill on the effect of what these gentlemen have done is admissible?

The Master (addressing Mr. Dane)—Anything further?

Mr. Dane—No, Your Honor; simply to say that I don't see how they could properly go into that because it bears only upon the question of good faith, and in order to do it they must have shown something occurring prior to the filing of the bill that would warrant their going into it on the theory of a continuation or lack of good faith, which has not yet been shown.

The Master—There has got to be shown, to be of any consequence in the case, a want of good faith prior to the filing of the bill. I am unable to believe that for that purpose we ought to investigate all these matters which have come up since. I will rule, for the present at least, and until something further appears sufficient to require a change in the ruling, to exclude evidence of all these transactions subsequent to the filing of the bill.

Mr. Streeter—And does that cover evidence of all acts done and things said since the filing of the bill?

The Master—These matters that you have been going into this afternoon and today.

Mr. Streeter—You mean with reference to the record?

The Master—With reference to the record, yes, with reference to the benevolent society, and with reference to votes of the directors to delete, subsequent to March 25.

Mr. Streeter—Well, as a matter of form—and as a matter of substance, too—I would like to enter a general exception to that ruling, but with the confident belief that we shall be able to satisfy Your Honor's mind so that the ruling will be changed hereafter.

The Master—We have quite a task before us, haven't we, to get at all matters relevant to the case that happened before the filing of the bill?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, but our view, Your Honor, is that—

The Master—I think we had better get on with that.

Mr. Streeter—Our view is that their performances since the filing of the bill are quite as bad, with reference to the question, as they were before. But we will come to that later. I will take Your Honor's ruling.

Q. Do you have anything to do with the Board of Trustees under the Will of Mrs. Eddy? A. No, sir.

Q. Turn to your records of March 11. Had there been a meeting of the board with the trustees of the Publishing Society the day before? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any reference to it in the minutes of the board meeting of March 11? A. No, no reference to the meeting of the previous day with the trustees.

Q. Now, when you read the records did Mr. Dittmore protest against the board having an official meeting with the trustees and not making any record of what transpired? A. I don't recall that he made such a protest.

Q. Do you say that he did not? A. No, I wouldn't say that he did not.

Q. Did you record Mr. Dittmore's protest—any protest of Mr. Dittmore? A. As to the minutes with reference to the trustees?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. Did Mr. Dickey give you direct instructions in the board meeting not to record or make any mention in the minutes of Mr. Dittmore's protests? A. I don't recall his so instructing me.

Q. You can't remember back to March 11, three months ago, Dickey telling you that? A. If such a remark was made it was one of many. I don't recall of such instructions.

Q. One of many of the same kind? A. No, one of many on different subjects.

Q. And you can't remember? A. No.

Q. See if you can't remember this: After reading the minutes you said that you had presented to the directors yesterday, after Mr. Dittmore left, his request for copies of such part of the minutes as referred to the motions to prevent Dittmore from having copies of the minutes affecting him, and that the directors had said to bring it up this morning. Do you remember that? A. I probably did make such a report because of an entry I find in these minutes.

Q. What do you find? A. "The corresponding secretary reported a request from Mr. Dittmore for copies of those portions of the minutes of March 6 referring to him and of Mrs. Longyear's letter of Feb. 27. The chair declined to authorize the secretary to make copies of minutes in response to the request that they be given out, and a motion to appeal from the ruling of the chair made by Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, was carried, whereupon the corresponding secretary prepared and gave Mr. Dittmore the copies as requested."

Q. That is, that was once when the other directors voted down Mr. Dickey's refusal to let Mr. Dittmore have copies. Is that correct? A. Yes; the record so recites.

Q. Do you remember any other instance when the majority of the board did not sustain Mr. Dickey in his refusal to let a fellow member have copies? A. I don't recall that a similar request was made on other occasions.

Q. Did Mr. Dickey say: "If Mr. Dittmore were acting in harmony with the rest of us we would not object to giving him copies of the minutes"? A. I don't recall his making such a remark.

Q. Did Mr. Dittmore remind the board of a letter written two or three years ago by a New Hampshire attorney warning them that they were bound to furnish every member of the board copies as he wanted? Do you remember that? A. It seems to me that Mr. Dittmore did make some such assertion—whether on that date or not, I don't recall.

Q. That referred to a time when Mr. McLellan wanted copies of the records of the board and they were refused him, did it not, as you understood it? A. I don't know what it referred to, General Streeter.

Q. Wasn't that stated? A. I do not recall.

Q. Did Mr. Dittmore ask for the letter of New Hampshire counsel advising and warning against withholding records from a member? A. I don't recall his asking for such a letter.

Q. Did you send out and get it in the other room? A. I don't remember whether I did or not. I don't remember his request.

Q. Do you remember that word came back that the letter was not in the file of the directors? A. I do not.

Q. Where is the letter that was written to Mrs. Longyear, that Dittmore protested against? A. Since—I don't know. I don't know what letter you refer to, General Streeter.

Mr. Streeter—I refer to the one that we have been talking about here. Have you got it?

Mr. Bates—I don't know what one you refer to.

The Master—Is that the letter you referred to in your examination regarding the directors' meeting of Aug. 15, 1913?

Mr. Streeter—It is the one that Merritt took back, that Jarvis brought in.

Mr. Bates—It wasn't a letter to Mrs. Longyear, then. It was something Mr. Merritt suggested that never was used and never was sent, that you want.

Mr. Streeter—I suppose it was a draft of a letter.

Mr. Bates—Well, you didn't suppose the letter was ever sent?

Mr. Streeter—No, I suppose they backed out of it afterward and then moved to delete it from the records and got rid of it from the records.

The Master—Now I suggest that you identify the particular letter you want to find and then see whether the counsel for the directors will give it to you.

Mr. Streeter—The letter was one that was prepared and voted to be sent, that Mr. Dittmore protested against, that Mr. Jarvis went out and brought in and gave to Mr. Merritt, and that then Mr. Dickey and the rest of them refused to have Dittmore see a copy. It is the one that Mr. Dittmore wrote the letter about that has been put in here.

The Master—That will be a better way to make your request here, won't it, if Mr. Dittmore's letter is here?

Mr. Streeter—Let me see—May 21, 1918—wasn't it?

The Witness—Yes, I will find it.

Mr. Bates—I understand, Your Honor, that it was not a letter. They had a memorandum that had been drawn by Mr. Merritt, and it was given back to Mr. Merritt. Mr. Merritt says it is in his private office. If it is that memorandum you want we will endeavor to have it here for you Monday morning.

Mr. Streeter—We do want it.

The Master—Then you apparently have no dispute as to the particular document?

Mr. Bates—I think not, except that he has called it a letter, as if it was something that was sent. It was simply a suggestion or memorandum on Mr. Merritt's part.

The Master—And the document or memorandum or letter, whatever it was, you undertake to have here at the next hearing.

Mr. Bates—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—Then that will be here Monday.

Mr. Bates—I expect so, yes, if we can find it, and I assume we can.

Q. Turn to your records of March 6, the meeting of March 6. A. Yes.

The Master—March 6, 1918 or 1919?

Mr. Streeter—1919. That is three months ago.

Q. Let me see them, please. A. Yes.

[Portion of directors' records, March 6, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 202, and read by Mr. Streeter.]

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it is voted that any copies of resolutions or minutes of this board which are given to the members thereof be returned to the corresponding secretary to be destroyed by him within one month of the date they are given out without their having been copied.

"A roll call on the above motion resulted as follows:

"Mr. Dittmore ..... No.
"Mr. Dickey ..... Aye.
"Mr. Merritt ..... Aye.
"Mr. Rathvon ..... Aye.

"Mr. Dittmore said he would file a letter reviewing the situation and explaining why he voted against this motion. Mr. Merritt declared that he offered the resolution in loyalty to the Board of Directors, that their proceedings should not go beyond the board."

Mr. Streeter—I also read the following from the record of the same meeting:

"Mr. Dittmore asked the corresponding secretary for copies of the informal notes made by Mr. Merritt and Mr. Rathvon of the two conferences between the directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society when he was not present.

"The chairman entered an objection to Mr. Dittmore's taking copies of any of the memoranda on file in our church with reference to the transactions of this board. Mr. Dittmore requested the board to be asked to sustain or not sustain the chair, and that a roll be called. Mr. Merritt left the room. The roll call resulted as follows:

"Mr. Dittmore ..... No.
"Mr. Rathvon ..... No.
"Mr. Dickey ..... Aye.

"Whereupon the corresponding secretary had copies made and given to Mr. Dittmore of the informal memoranda prepared and filed by Mr. Merritt and Mr. Rathvon of the meetings of Feb. 24 and March 3 with the trustees."

Mr. Streeter—Will you produce the letter filed by Mr. Dittmore, with reference to that transaction, Governor Bates?

Mr. Bates—If we have it. Oh, do you mean you want it now?

Mr. Streeter—Yes. It will be March 7, it will be the next day, March 7.

Mr. Bates—Is that what you wanted, General? (Handing letter to Mr. Streeter.)

Mr. Streeter—My friend Governor Bates has furnished the original letter, of March 13, 1919, from John V. Dittmore to The Christian Science Board of Directors. It is marked with a red stamp "indexed" and "Read March 13, 1919, C. S. Board of Directors." It reads as follows:

[Letter, John V. Dittmore, to directors, March 13, 1919, marked Exhibit 203.]

[Exhibit 203]

"March 13, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Gentlemen:

"I voted against Mr. Rathvon's motion of March 11 for reasons which include the following:

"1. The action it contemplates is illegal and is so designated by an attorney's opinion which is, or should be in the files of this board.

"2. Just before this action was taken, Mr. Dickey, the chairman, said: 'If Mr. Dittmore were acting in harmony with the rest of us, we would not object to giving him copies of the minutes,' which simply means that because a member of this board disagrees with the majority, the majority thereupon retaliates by using its claimed power, either legally or illegally, to adopt rules to deprive such a dissenting member of his rights.

"3. This action is but another instance of the policy adopted by the majority of this board, to strangle the rights of a dissenting fellow member.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "J. V. DITTEMORE."

JVD—L

Mr. Streeter—In this connection—I am not quite through with him—but I would like to serve on my friend, or notify my friend, Governor Bates, of a list of letters and records in the files of the directors which we desire to use and desire to have you have them here on Monday, so that they can be accessible.

Mr. Bates—Have you a copy of that for us?

Mr. Streeter—Yes. I will read it right into the record.

Mr. Bates—Well, but we won't have the record; if you will let us have the copy now, we will know what you want.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I will, but I want it to appear in the record, too. I will give you a copy.

Mr. Bates—Well, I thought that was certainly encumbering the record; it is not evidence.

Mr. Streeter—No; but it is evidence of what we call for. I will do just as Your Honor thinks best about it. It is quite long.

The Master—It is quite long?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master—I suppose if we can get along without having it in the record we shall all be glad.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I simply desire to have this in the record. I want to do as near what the Judge thinks best as I can, but I would like to have this in the record.

The Master—My impression would be to leave it out of the record. That would be the best course.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I will follow it.

The Master—The only important thing would be to know in case of a given document whether you called for it or not.

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master—You can easily show that by the copy that you preserve.

Mr. Streeter—This list, which I hand to Governor Bates, is headed "List of Letters and Records in Files of Directors Desired by Counsel for J. V. Dittmore," and begins, "Copies of letters to Eustace, Ogden and Watts, confirming Mr. Rowlands' dismissal, dated March 19," and follows with the items, covering nearly five pages. If we can have those, if you will have those accessible Monday, Governor, it will save time.

Q. Please turn to your record of Oct. 31. A. I have it before me.

Q. Do you find anything in that record with reference to the board's decision against Mr. Anderson's plan to put Mrs. Eddy's picture at the Benevolent Association entrance? A. I don't find any reference to the subject in the minutes of that date.

Q. Do you remember anything about it? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember that the subject was discussed and that you were ordered not to make any mention of it in the minutes? A. I don't remember such a fact.

Q. Was the subject discussed? A. Yes.

Q. And it didn't get into the minutes? A. Well, not in these minutes, no.

Q. Well, those are the minutes of the board, aren't they? A. Well, the hanging of this picture refers to the Christian Science Benevolent Association.

Q. I understand that, but it was discussed and determined in The Christian Science Board of Directors, and your records do not mention it? Is that true? A. I couldn't say whether or not it is true, because I do not remember whether it was discussed at a meeting of the Board of Directors or of the trustees of the Benevolent Association.

The Master—Do you contend, General Streeter, that the omission of a discussion not resulting in action by the directors is a serious matter?

Mr. Streeter—No; I haven't made any such contention, and I have no purpose to make such a contention. What I am saying is that a large amount of action was taken officially, by official vote, which was subsequently deleted from the record, and goes not appear.

The Master—The question referred only to this last matter, as to which it appears only that there was or there may have been a discussion on the subject.

Mr. Streeter—I didn't mean to put it that way. I think there was action.

The Master—And the discussion was omitted.

Mr. Streeter—No.

The Master—That is as far as you got with it according to my recollection so far.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I meant action.

Q. Was any action taken by the board? A. I don't remember whether there was any action or not.

Q. Don't you remember whether there was or not? A. No.

Q. If action was taken, official action was taken, it didn't get into the records. Is that correct? A. I can't answer that question.

Q. Why, you can say whether it is in that record or not? A. It is not in that record.

Q. So that if official action was taken you did not record it?

Mr. Bates—You mean official action by the directors?

Mr. Streeter—Certainly, that is just what I mean.

Mr. Bates—He is talking about the trustees.

Mr. Dane—He is talking about the Benevolent Association.

The Master—No; the directors.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, no, I am talking about official action by the directors.

The Witness—No.

Q. And if official action was taken, then it is not recorded in the records? A. It is not, in the minutes of the directors.

Q. Turning to the record of the meeting of Dec. 22, Sunday morning, a special board meeting at 9:30, have you got it? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Will you let me see it? A. Yes.

Mr. Streeter—I read this into the record.

Mr. Dane—What date, General?

[Portion of directors' records, Dec. 22, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 204 and read by Mr. Streeter as follows:]

"At a special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors held at 9:30 a. m. on the above date in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Neal, Merritt, and Rathvon. The board met in executive session and listened to a report from Mr. Adam H. Dickey, who stated that he had individually and unofficially talked informally with Mr. Herbert W. Eustace with regard to the situation that has arisen between the trustees of the Publishing Society, and The Christian Science Board of Directors. After a brief discussion of the situation Judge Clifford P. Smith and Attorney Edwin A. Krauthoff were called into the conference.

"It was decided to transmit to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society the opinions obtained by the directors from Judge Clifford P. Smith, Mr. Edwin A. Krauthoff, and the joint opinions of John L. Bates and Leon M. Abbott, with the information that these opinions were obtained by the board from their desire to fulfill their duty to the fullest degree possible.

"It is also decided to call in for a friendly conference Editor William P. McKenzie and Business Manager John R. Watts, and at that time to hand each of them a letter to be prepared by Judge Clifford P. Smith, indicating the board's desire that any important or unusual action should be taken by either of them in the course of their official work only after they have made sure that it has this board's approval."

Mr. Streeter—The last paragraph is apparently immaterial. It is signed "Adam H. Dickey, Chairman," and approved by Edward A. Merritt.

Q. Were you present at that meeting? A. I was not.

Q. Were you present at a meeting on Dec. 24? A. I don't remember whether I was or not, General Streeter.

Q. Can't you tell by looking at it? A. No; the minutes do not record whether I was present or not. I was—

Q. Let me see the record of Dec. 30. A. Dec. 30 (passing to Mr. Streeter the volume of records, who, after examining it, returns it to the witness).

Q. Let me see the record of Dec. 2 (the record of the meeting of Dec. 2 is passed by the witness to Mr. Streeter, who, after examining it, returns it to the witness). Who were present at that meeting? A. Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Neal, Merritt and Rathvon.

Q. Do you find any reference to any action or statements made by Mr. Dickey with reference to the Manual of The Mother Church? See if you find that. A. I do not find any such record.

Q. Were you present at that meeting? A. I was present part of the time.

Q. Well, now, while you were there—and I ask you to note this particularly, and see if you recollect it, or the substance of it—did Mr. Dickey make the statement that "We made a vital mistake when we commenced to say 'Manual by Mary Baker Eddy': we will sometime want to make new by-laws, and we could do so; and the Manual was not really by Mrs. Eddy"? A. I do not recall hearing Mr. Dickey ever make such a statement.

Q. Will you state that at this meeting of Dec. 2, 1918, Mr. Dickey did not make that statement, in substance? A. I repeat that I do not recall hearing Mr. Dickey make such a statement at that meeting, or on any other occasion.

Q. Let me see the meeting of Dec. 30. (The record of the meeting of ferred to is passed by the witness to Mr. Streeter, who, after examining it, returns it to the witness.) I will not take the time for both of us to look at it. I want you to see if you can find in the meeting of Dec. 30 any record of a report or statement by Mr. Edgett with reference to the clothing, etc., in the War Relief Fund. A. Will you please repeat the question?

Mr. Streeter—The stenographer will read it. (The question last put is read to the witness.)

The Witness—Yes.

Q. Read it. A. —

“Mr. Edgett’s letters to the board of Dec. 17, about giving away worn garments to local branch churches, and Dec. 23, asking that an audit be made of the Comforts Forwarding Committee; also a letter from Miss Lillian I. Slate . . . relative to her dismissal, were discussed and disposition indicated.”

Q. What disposition was indicated? A. I would have to refer to the letters, General Streeter.

Q. Did his report go into details? A. I couldn’t say what the contents of these letters were in detail without—

Q. Don’t you recall what his reports amounted to? A. No, sir.

Q. Who was Mr. Edgett? A. Mr. Edgett was for a time manager of the Comforts Forwarding Committee of Christian Scientists in Boston.

Q. Did he report that there were 375 cases of clothing on hand at the rooms, and that in November they had packed and sorted 200,000 articles, and that over 1,000,000 articles had been sent in, and not one had gone abroad? A. I believe he did so. Whether on this date or not I do not recall. The figures sound familiar to me.

Q. Was about $1,300,000 contributed by Christian Scientists for war relief work? A. I believe approximately that sum.

Q. Who managed that money? A. The Board of Directors.

Q. Who actively acted for them, for the board? A. In dispensing the funds?

Q. Yes. A. Appropriations were made and—

Q. No, no, no; I didn’t ask you about that; but who was the active manager? A. Mr. George P. Dutton, of Springfield, was manager of the Comforts Forwarding Committee. He was succeeded by Mr. Edgett, and Mr. Edgett was succeeded by a committee of ladies of the Comforts Forwarding Committee. Mr. Harsch and Mr. Wallace—

Q. I understand that that is not the thing. That is another matter. Now, I want to ask you if it didn’t appear to the Board of Directors, if it was not shown to the Board of Directors, that in the management of that $1,300,000 War Relief Fund there had been bought wool under the authority of the board on which an actual loss of more than $90,000 was sustained? A. As to the fact that the committee was authorized to purchase wool, I shall say Yes. As to the loss, I am not prepared to answer.

Q. Is it your impression that the loss as shown, reported and known to the board exceeded $90,000? A. Possibly.

Q. Did not Mr. Dittmore protest to the Board of Directors against the turning over of such large sums of money contributed for war relief work to the Comforts Committee? A. I believe he did protest.

Q. And this business was carried on at a loss of a very large sum of money against his protest, was it not? A. The loss—

Q. Will you please answer that question? A. I can’t answer it.

Q. He protested? A. He did.

Q. And the money was lost—is that right? A. Eventually, yes.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, that is all I am asking you about.

Well, Your Honor, I may have a few questions more to put, but I hope not many; but if we are going to adjourn, we might retire to our—

Mr. Whipple—If you have only a few more questions, you can probably finish by 4 o’clock.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, no, it is practically 4 o’clock now. Just as Governor Bates does, I would have to ask questions up to 4 o’clock so as not to conclude my examination until I look it over! Oh, I will help you out by asking another question.

Q. Were you present in the board meeting on St. Patrick’s Day, March 17, 1919? A. A portion of the time, yes.

Q. What portion of the time were you there? A. At the beginning of the meeting.

Q. Well, was that when they took Rowlands and threw him out?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor’s judgment.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, yes, yes; I beg your pardon!

Q. Was that when the board gently voted that Mr. Rowlands should be expelled?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor’s judgment as to the form of these questions.

Mr. Streeter—Strike out “gently.” I do want, while I am round here, to satisfy my metropolitan brethren.

Q. Were you there when they expelled Mr. Rowlands?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor’s judgment. I do not believe that this is a proper examination.

Mr. Whipple—Tried to.

Mr. Streeter—Tried to.

The Master—Passed the vote of expulsion—will that do?

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Dane may put that question to suit himself.

The Master—All that we want to get is the fact whether or not he was there at the time.

The Witness—Shall I answer it, Your Honor?

The Master—Yes; answer it.

A. I believe I was there.

Q. Were you there when they tried to expel Mr. Dittmore? A. I cannot say precisely.

Q. Well, now, look here, brother Jarvis, that was an important enough procedure so that it would seem as if you ought to remember it.

The Witness—May I relate the circumstances, Your Honor?

The Master—No, no. Were you there or not?

The Witness—I cannot say definitely whether I was there when the vote was passed dismissing Mr. Dittmore from the board.

Q. Well, were you there when his fellow directors pleaded with him to resign in order to escape the condemnation of expulsion? Did you hear that? A. I was present when the directors asked Mr. Dittmore if he would resign.

Mr. Streeter—It is now 4 o’clock, Your Honor.

Mr. Bates—You have been talking against time!

Mr. Streeter—I told you so. I will be frank with you.

The Master—That is all the examination, is it?

Mr. Streeter—For the present, until Monday.

The Master—It occurs to me to ask about those various editions of the Manual, a matter that we have not heard anything about, I think, yesterday or today. My idea was to wait until all the evidence was in regarding those various editions, and then see about marking them as exhibits. I believe they now stand marked only for identification. Has the time now come when they ought to be marked as exhibits, and have they all been picked out, and are they all here so that there can be no question about them?

Mr. Dane—They are here, Your Honor. There will probably be some other evidence bearing upon them, but they are all here, and they will be produced.

The Master—Then I will leave it for the present. I want to be sure that it is not forgotten.

Mr. Dane—It is not forgotten.

The Master—Is that all, then, for this afternoon? We will adjourn to Monday at 10 o’clock.

[Adjourned to 10 o’clock a. m., Monday, July 14, 1919.]

July 14, 1919

THIRTEENTH DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room, Boston, Massachusetts, July 14, 1919.

Charles E. Jarvis, Cross-Examination, Resumed

[Counsel confer with the Master concerning the memorandum prepared by Mr. Dittmore in 1916, and appearing in the answer of Mr. Dittmore in Eustace et al. v. Dickey et al., page 21.]

Q. (By Mr. Streeter.) Now, Mr. Jarvis, I want you to give me the records from January to March, 1918. Will you furnish them here? (A book is passed by the witness to Mr. Streeter.) Oh, I want 1919. I could not find anything that I wanted there. Give me 1919.

[Another book is passed by the witness to Mr. Streeter.]

Mr. Streeter—I read from the record of Monday, Feb. 3, 1919, a meeting held at 9:30 a. m. Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon.

"Two letters were read from Mr. Dittmore, both dated Feb. 3, 1919, one with reference to the failure of Mr. Bicknell Young, First Reader of The Mother Church, to send the board a letter 'confirming his verbal assertions of loyalty to the church By-Laws and the constituted government of The Mother Church; also his failure to do his duty as First Reader of The Mother Church as demanded by Mr. Dittmore in his letter to the board of Jan. 27;' the other letter setting forth his reasons why he could not participate in the conference between the Board of Directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society, as arranged by counsel for the respective boards, to be held at 11 o'clock today.

"At 11 a. m. Mr. Dittmore left the meeting."

Mr. Bates—Will you give me the date of this meeting?

Mr. Streeter—Feb. 3, 1919.

"The directors had a conference with Messrs. Herbert W. Eustace, David B. Ogden, and Lamont Rowlands, the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society. Mr. Rathvon read a letter addressed jointly to the directors and to the trustees expressing his sentiments, and after touching briefly on some of the points involved in the recent situation, it was agreed that hereafter the trustees would meet with the directors weekly at 12 o'clock noon on Mondays, in the board room of The Mother Church.

"After the trustees had retired and at 12:30 p. m. Mr. Dittmore returned to the meeting.

"A letter was read from Col. F. A. Bangs of Chicago, dated Feb. 27, together with copy of a letter addressed by him to Herbert W. Eustace, Lamont Rowlands, and David B. Ogden, as trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 3, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 205. R. H. J.]

Records of the meeting of Feb. 5, 1919:

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, it was Voted: That Edward L. Ripley, as treasurer of Mary Baker Eddy Memorial, be and hereby is authorized to indorse and transfer into coupon form $8000 United States Government registered 3½ per cent bonds, due 1947, now standing in the name of Mary Baker Eddy Memorial, and numbered as follows:"

At the same meeting a list of letters was read from the following, including:

"Judge Clifford P. Smith, dated Boston, Feb. 5, presenting certain facts disclosed by the letters from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and their legal counsel, regarding which the directors may wish the trustees to definitely declare themselves."

[The records of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 5, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 206. R. H. J.]

From the records of Thursday, Feb. 6:

"On motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Dittmore, it was voted that we ask the opinion of counsel as to the legality of the trustees' paying attorneys' fees to counsel in the present situation from the funds they have in their hands.

"Letters were read from the directors to Mr. Frederick Dixon, formally tendering him the position of editor of The Christian Science Monitor, his reply thereto indicating the conditions under which he would accept, and the directors' response thereto, all three letters dated June 3, 1914."

The Master—June 3 of what year?

Mr. Streeter—June 3, 1914. Letters were brought up—

The Master—These records were made in February, 1919?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master—They went back to—

Mr. Streeter—It is simply recorded that they got out the letters of 1914 to read them.

[The records of Thursday, Feb. 6, 1919, of the Board of Directors, from which the foregoing extracts are read is Exhibit 206a. R. H. J.]

Record of Feb. 7, 1919:

"The directors had an interview at his request with Mr. Frank H. — of Chicago, at which he expressed his views relative to the situation between the directors and the trustees."

[The record of the meeting of the directors of Feb. 7, 1919, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 207. R. H. J.]

From the records of Feb. 10, 1919:

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith with reference to the letters written by him to certain Committees on Publication about the situation existing between the trustees and the directors."

Mr. Whipple—May I just look at the last that you read?

Mr. Streeter—Certainly.

[Mr. Whipple examines the record from which the foregoing extract is taken.]

"On motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted that the memorandum of this day, containing two points prepared and recommended by our counsel, be signed by all of the members of this board jointly with the trustees, as follows:

"Boston, Feb. 10, 1919.

"It is mutually understood by The Christian Science Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society that the former board, as in relation to the latter board, has final authority in regard to the editorial policy of the official organs of The Mother Church, and final authority in regard to all matters affecting the policy of The Mother Church for the cause of Christian Science.

"In witness whereof this memorandum is signed by the respective members of said boards as follows:"

And then there are five blanks for The Christian Science Board of Directors, and three blanks for the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

"A roll call on the motion resulted in the following vote:

"Mr. Dittmore, not voting; Mr. Dickey, aye; Mr. Merritt, aye; Mr. Rathvon, aye.

"Mr. Dittmore explained that he had not voted for the motion 'because I decline to tie myself in advance on the matter, because I hope that "in that hour it shall be given me what I shall say."'

"Judge Smith stated: 'I wish to offer two items of advice, each with equal strength if possible. One is that you get the written acceptance of these two points. The other is that you make no additional agreement which would amount to a concession or compromise on this board's part.'

"Two letters were read from Mr. Dittmore, both dated Feb. 10, 1919; the first, filing in writing his views as to the proper course for the Board of Directors to pursue in notifying the trustees and business manager of the Publishing Society that the Board of Directors will hold them strictly accountable for any misuse of the trust funds in their possession; the second letter, expressing his views on the failure of any of the Christian Science periodicals to announce the completion of the pyramid memorial to Mary Baker Eddy erected by Mr. James F. Lord, on the Baker homestead, at Bow, New Hampshire.

"The directors had an interview with the three trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, lasting two hours."

Mr. Thompson—Was Mr. Dittmore present?

Mr. Streeter—Yes. That already appears.

[The record of the meeting of Feb. 10, 1910, of the meeting of the directors, from which the foregoing extracts are read is Exhibit 208. R. H. J.]

From the record of Monday, Feb. 17, 1919:

"Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, Rathvon.

"A letter was read from Mr. J. V. Dittmore, dated Boston, Feb. 17, reiterating his position in the situation now existing between the directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society."

From the records of Feb. 18, 1919. Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon.

"The minutes of the regular meeting of Feb. 17 were read and approved; the minutes of Feb. 10 were approved; and informal memoranda of details of the conference between the directors and trustees on Feb. 10, as prepared by Directors Merritt and Dittmore were read and ordered filed.

"Mr. Dickey reported to the board that he had had a very interesting conversation with Trustees Eustace and Ogden of the Publishing Society, regarding their attitude, and recommended to the other board members that they see said trustees and discuss with them the questions under consideration.

"A letter was read from Mr. William R. Rathvon, dated Boston, Feb. 18, relative to the situation existing between the directors and the trustees."

[The records of the meeting of the directors of Feb. 18, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read is Exhibit 210. R. H. J.]

Mr. Streeter—Will you produce that letter, Governor Bates? A letter from Mr. Rathvon to the board, dated Feb. 18?

Mr. Bates—Is that one of those you called for?

Mr. Streeter—I do not remember.

Mr. Thompson—We called for all letters written by Mr. Dittmore to the Board of Directors.

Mr. Bates—It is not Mr. Dittmore's letter.

Mr. Streeter—This is Mr. Rathvon's letter.

Mr. Thompson—Then you had another call which I think included that.

Mr. Bates—We will look it up. I do not think that is included in your call.

Mr. Streeter—Your Honor, may a memorandum be made by the stenographer right here that Mr. Rathvon's letter when it is found will be inserted at this place? Is that agreeable?

Mr. Bates—Not necessarily. Whether it should be inserted I suppose would depend on what it is when it is found—whether it is relevant and has any bearing on the issues here.

Mr. Streeter—Can't you find it? Don't you find it there, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Bates—I think we have a copy of it, General, if you will wait a minute.

Mr. Streeter—I would just as soon use a copy. I have not a copy. I will use your copy.

[Paper is handed to Mr. Streeter by Governor Bates.]

Mr. Streeter—The letter referred to in the record is as follows—

Mr. Whipple—May I ask, General Streeter, if that is offered in our case?

I mean, in the first case, the Eustace case?

Mr. Streeter—Well, it will be offered in both cases, I suppose.

Mr. Whipple—Then without stopping to read it in advance I would like to reserve the right to object after we hear it read, if we desire so to do.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, certainly. (Reading.)

"William R. Rathvon, C. S. B.

"236 Huntington Ave.

"Boston, U. S. A.

"February 18, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends: At our meeting yesterday such an amazing change of thought was expressed concerning the trustees' affair that I feel greatly disturbed over the outlook, and beg to here set forth briefly my position so that it may be clearly understood in whatever may follow.

"If a course of supine acquiescence with the trustees' present position of ignoring the Manual be followed by this board, I cannot be a party to it. I am not bloodthirsty nor have I yet reached the point where I hold it to be impossible to heal the situation without removing the offenders. I am free to say that no other course is apparent, yet I do not claim that no other course exists.

"I am endeavoring whole-heartedly to let Principle be my only guide in every step of this momentous hour, as, I believe, all of us are doing. The ultimate solution is, therefore, of less moment now than the immediate steps we have to take to reach it and the pitfalls we must avoid on the way. While we rely wholly upon that divine Love which our textbook tells us 'inspires, illumines, designates, and leads the way' (Science and Health, p. 454), we cannot be controlled by 'animosity nor mere personal attachment' (Manual); we cannot be diverted by fear of malpractice or be lulled to sleep by sympathetic mesmerism. We may desire greatly to save our erring brothers from the edge of the precipice upon which they are buoyantly dancing with closed eyes, but we must remember that the destiny of thousands of others rests upon our righteous action.

"We have placed upon us the protection of a divinely established organization, upon which hundreds of thousands of equally devout brethren are depending. We have never seen more than a comparatively few of them, yet their trust in our defense is unquestioned and unquestioning. Shall we be faithless to the many for the sake of the headstrong few?

"The trustees are on record as assuming the supposed moral obligation to ignore the Manual which their counsel has laid upon them, and which they have not yet formally denied or disclaimed. At our last meeting they were given an opportunity to repudiate this position which must be abhorrent to every well-balanced Christian Scientist. They have refused to retract in writing their treasonable declaration which stands in the files of both boards.

"It was suggested yesterday that we refrain from further efforts to have the trustees sign the memorandum of understanding which they refused to sign and which was prepared by our legal advisers and that we adopt instead some different method. This, to me, seems equivalent to allowing the dirty pool to remain unpurged while we lovingly endeavor to show the transgressors the unwisdom of their defiance.

"I can conceive of no appeal we might make to them that has not already been poured into their ears time and again by those whose counsel they prize above ours. Yet, I will gladly assist in awakening them, but it must be after they have lowered the red flag.

"As I have repeatedly said before, I am unalterably opposed to any compromise with treason and cannot be a party to any course that provides for the continuation of present relationships so long as the trustees refuse to go on record as repudiating the most dangerous and treasonable declaration ever made by three Christian Scientists in positions of authority.

"The enemy would like nothing better than that we should become dulled and insensible to the enormity of the offense through our commendable desire to save the offenders. But we must not confuse the issue or allow error to lull us to sleep.

"This is not a Boston affair, it is not a mere tangle between the two boards. It is a subtle attempt of error to 'steal the livery of heaven to serve the devil in.' It is a determined effort to divide our Church from within as it has so often failed to do from without, and I must again decline to go further towards adjustment in any plan that will allow their present defiant attitude to remain unrepudiated by the trustees.

"Without consulting anyone I have written this hastily just before coming to this meeting, or I would say much more and say better what I have said, but every word is from my heart of hearts.

"Fraternally yours,

(Signed) "WM. R. RATHVON."
WRR-F

[Letter, dated Feb. 18, 1919, from Mr. William R. Rathvon to the Board of Directors is marked Exhibit 211.]

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I think it is obvious that that intercommunication between the Board of Directors is not admissible in the Eustace case. We had no knowledge of any such letter.

The Master—Does anybody claim that it is admissible in the Eustace case?

Mr. Streeter—I do not make the claim.

Mr. Dane—We think, if Your Honor please, that it is admissible in the Eustace case.

Mr. Streeter—It is what?

Mr. Dane—It is admissible in the Eustace case, particularly as bearing upon the question of good faith of this director and of the other directors in the action which they took.

The Master—How are you going to prove good faith by their letters to each other?

Mr. Dane—It is a declaration of what actuated them, the motive by which they were moved in taking this action; and is, furthermore, a record of the directors of that date, made of record in their minutes book. It shows what was in the minds of the directors and I understand that the reasons that actuated them are admissible on the question of good faith.

Mr. Whipple—If we were to make any claim about it, if Your Honor please, we would say that it was rather an attempted justification of themselves for having violated an agreement which they had entered into within a week or two. And it showed their bad faith. But it does not need any such argument as that, I think. It was a matter which was not called to our attention in any way.

The Master—I do not at the present time see that it can be admissible in the controversy between the trustees and the directors. That may be the ruling for the present. We have got the letter in in the other case, and should there sufficient reason appear later the ruling may be corrected.

Mr. Dane—I will not take an exception at this time.

The Master—Well, you better reserve all your rights, I think, whatever they are.

Mr. Dane—I assumed it was admitted rather de bene or provisionally; for that reason I did not take an exception.

The Master—Well, it is excluded subject to your objection. You can do as you think best about it.

Mr. Dane—Then possibly, to save all rights, we will save an exception at this time.

Mr. Streeter—Well, not in the Dittmore case?

The Master—Oh, no, of course not. We are not talking about that.

Mr. Streeter—Shall I proceed?

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—Further quotation from the record of Feb. 18:

“Mr. Dickey offered a proposition that the board ask the trustees of the Publishing Society to put in writing, in a letter to the board, their understanding of the present situation. Copies of Mr. Dickey’s proposition were given to the board members present, and the subject laid over for consideration at the next meeting of the directors.”

[The above paragraph, as read by

Mr. Streeter, was offered in evidence as a part of Exhibit 210.]

Mr. Streeter—I read from the records of Feb. 20, 1919:

“The following resolution was introduced by Mr. Dickey, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, and adopted, Mr. Dittmore not voting, to wit:

“Resolved that hereafter no copies of letters, articles or documents of any nature, written, dictated or prepared by Mrs. Eddy, be made or given to any person without the majority vote of the full board. This action rescinds all former decisions of the board relating to this subject.”

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated Feb. 20, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 212.]

Q. (By Mr. Streeter.) Mr. Jarvis, Mr. Dickey at this time was chairman of the board, was he not? A. He was.

Q. And as chairman he introduced this resolution, I infer from the record? A. So the record reads; yes, sir.

Mr. Streeter—From the records of Feb. 20:

“Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor, dated Boston, Feb. 20, requested an interview with the board, which was granted, for 11 a. m., Friday, Feb. 21.”

[The portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 20, 1919, as above, is offered in evidence as a part of Exhibit 212.]

Mr. Streeter—From the meeting of Feb. 21, 1919:

“Mr. Dittmore read extracts from ‘Trustees Hand Book’ by Loring, and from ‘Perry on the Law of Trusts and Trust Deeds’ bearing on the situation between the trustees of the publication society and the Board of Directors. The corresponding secretary was instructed to procure copies of the books for the use of the directors.”

From the same meeting:

“The directors had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor about the labor situation which he wishes to handle in The Monitor, about selecting a successor to Dr. Allen W. Heber Percy of the War Relief Committee for Great Britain and Ireland, and about his article in the Sentinel entitled ‘Mortal Mind and Human Mind.’”

[That portion of the record of the minutes of meeting of the Board of Directors dated Feb. 20, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 213.]

Mr. Streeter—From the records of Feb. 24:

“Present: Messrs. Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon. The directors had an interview with Trustees Eustace, Ogden, and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society, in the course of which a letter from the directors to the trustees of even date was read and a copy thereof was later delivered to the trustees’ secretary.”

I think, Your Honor, that letter has already been put in.

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors dated Feb. 24, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 214.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me a moment, General; before the stenographers go I want to speak to Mr. Dane.

[Conference between counsel.]

Mr. Bates—I understand, Your Honor, that the name that was mentioned in the letter from England is the name of a party that it would be wise to eliminate, as it was a matter of discipline. I presume there will be no objection to eliminating the name, if the reporters will kindly do so.

Mr. Streeter—I do object. I read that record with an intelligent purpose.

Mr. Bates—Do you want the name left in?

Mr. Streeter—Yes; that is the successor of Dr. Allen W. Heber Percy of the War Relief.

Mr. Bates—You take the responsibility.

Mr. Streeter—I read from the records of Feb. 24, didn’t I, “The directors had an interview with the trustees”?

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—I read from the record of Feb. 25, 1919.

[Directors’ records, Feb. 25, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 215, and read by Mr. Streeter, as follows:]

“Letters were read from the following:

“Mr. Dittmore, dated Boston, Feb. 24, calling attention to his efforts to secure action in the situation between the directors and the trustees.

“Mr. Dittmore, dated Boston, Feb. 25, offering the following resolution:

“Whereas the By-Laws of The Mother Church [Article 25, Section 3] provide ‘The Christian Science Board of Directors shall have the power to declare vacancies in said trusteeship (of The Christian Science Publishing Society) for such reasons as to the board may seem expedient,’ and

“Whereas, the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society have for many months followed a course of action exceedingly detrimental to the cause of Christian Science,

“Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the directors shall and do hereby declare vacant the trusteeships held by Herbert W. Eustace, Lamont Rowlands and David B. Ogden, and that this course be followed by such legal steps as we are advised are necessary to confirm the proper appointment of those persons who are named as successors to these officers.

“Mr. Rathvon seconded Mr. Dittmore’s motion, and after discussing the question a roll call resulted in the following vote: Mr. Dittmore, aye; Mr. Merritt, no; Mr. Rathvon, no; Mr. Dickey, no.

“Mr. Rathvon stated that his purpose in seconding the motion was to secure discussion. Mr. Dickey explained his negative vote by saying that if the action proposed in Mr. Dittmore's resolution were followed it would necessitate our making an appeal to the court to sustain our action and appoint new trustees, and that he felt it was not a wise thing to do at this time.

"The directors had an interview with Mr. Charles T. Root of New York City, as requested by the Board of Directors of Second Church of Christ, Scientist, New York. Mr. Root presented, on behalf of the Christian Science churches and societies of Greater New York, a plan for the appointment by The Christian Science Board of Directors of a Monitor representative for New York City, to stimulate the circulation of The Monitor, all expenses of the office to be borne by the New York churches and societies, and the control of which is to be in the hands of The Mother Church. Mr. Root discussed with the directors the question of the situation between the trustees and the directors, and agreed to place his views in writing. He also assured the directors of the fullest support from the New York field.

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith with regard to the situation between the trustees and the Board of Directors, particularly with reference to the removal of one or all of the trustees."

Mr. Streeter—I read from the records of Feb. 26, 1919:

[Directors' records, Feb. 26, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 216, and read by Mr. Streeter, as follows:]

"Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon.

"On motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted that each member of the board, in compliance with the suggestion of our counsel, prepare reasons why one of the trustees should be removed, these reasons to be submitted to our counsel tomorrow that they may advise the board how to proceed legally to remove one of the trustees at once."

Mr. Streeter—Governor Bates, will you furnish the letter of counsel upon which this vote was based?

Mr. Bates—I don't know of any letter.

Mr. Streeter—Well, you wouldn't want to say that the records are not correct?

Mr. Bates—Does it refer to a letter?

Mr. Streeter—No, it says "suggestion." Have you such a letter?

Mr. Bates—No such letter, sir, so far as I know.

Mr. Streeter—This was oral advice?

Mr. Bates—Yes; and we will be very glad to tell you all of it if you would like.

Mr. Streeter—I should be glad to have you. I read from the records of Feb. 27, 1919.

[Directors' records, Feb. 27, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 217; and read by Mr. Streeter, as follows:]

"Proposed letter to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, requesting detailed itemized statements of monthly outlay and expenses, was approved. . . .

"The directors had a conference with Judge Clifford P. Smith, ex-Governor John L. Bates, and Mr. Leon M. Abbott, in connection with the next step to be taken by the directors toward the removal of one or of all the trustees of the Publishing Society. Governor Bates was of the opinion that the board ought not to do anything for the present in the way of dismissing the trustees, lest this action might throw the directors into court unprepared. He advised the board to prepare its case in such a way that if brought into court the board would be prepared to give its reasons for removing one or all of the trustees of the Publishing Society. Counsel encouraged the directors to continue to make requests of the trustees for the proper fulfillment of their duties."

Mr. Thompson—That has been read, General, once—isn't that in?

Mr. Streeter—Well, I cannot tell. Here is another one from the next meeting, March 3, and I don't know whether it is in or not.

Mr. Whipple—I think these recent excerpts that you have read, General, were all put in by us, but it doesn't do any harm to remind us of them.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Thompson says this has not been put in. This is from the record of March 3.

[Directors' records, March 3, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 218, and read by Mr. Streeter, as follows:]

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith who read to the board two letters from himself to the board, both dated March 1, one recommending that the Board of Trustees of the Publishing Society be composed of three editors, and recommending that an early selection be made of a business manager for the Publishing Society; the other conveying an opinion expressed by ex-Governor Bates in a consultation with Judge Smith, that the board make frequent demands upon the trustees for information.

"Letters were read from the following:

"Mr. Frank H. Leonard, dated Chicago, Illinois, dated Feb. 27, together with a copy of his letter of that date to Trustee Herbert W. Eustace. . . .

"On motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted to ask the trustees of the Publishing Society to let the board know the amounts that have been paid for attorneys' fees by the trustees of the Publishing Society during the past six months, including the names of such attorneys and the amounts paid to each. Also to advise the directors if any legal services have been rendered to the trustees during this period which have not yet been paid for, and, if so, the amount of unpaid obligations.

"At 12 o'clock noon Mr. Dittmore left the meeting.

"The directors had an interview with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

Mr. Streeter—I read from the records of March 5.

[Directors' records, March 5, 1919, introduced in evidence as Exhibit 219, and read by Mr. Streeter, as follows:]

"Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon. The letter from Mr. Paul Harvey to Mr. John R. Watts, business manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Jan. 24, 1919, was again read to the board by Mr. Rathvon.

"Mr. Dittmore's letter to the board dated April 25, 1918, with reference to conditions facing the board and the Christian Science movement was read."

Mr. Streeter—Will you produce that letter, Governor Bates?

Mr. Bates—Mr. Dittmore's letter?

Mr. Streeter—Yes; Mr. Dittmore's letter dated April 24, 1918, which was reconsidered by the board on March 5, 1919.

Mr. Bates—Haven't you a copy?

Mr. Streeter—No, we haven't a copy of it. Haven't you got a copy in your hands, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—The young lady is finding it.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, haven't you got with you a copy of the minutes of February, 1916—the minutes of that meeting?

Mr. Krauthoff—We have a copy of a memorandum.

Mr. Streeter—Will you let us see that?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, that isn't anything that belongs to you.

Mr. Streeter—Why not? If you have a copy of the original minutes, that we are hunting for—

Mr. Bates—We have not—the original records are here.

Mr. Streeter—No, no. We are now about these records of 1916. There isn't anything in the records of February, 1916, about this memorandum—in the original records.

The Master—Pardon me, do you mean 1916?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, 1916—this memorandum that we were speaking of in the first instance this morning.

Mr. Whipple—He has gone back to that part of the record which was stricken out.

Mr. Streeter—I call for the original minutes.

Mr. Bates—Well, you have called for two or three things at the same time.

Mr. Streeter—I am calling for the original minutes, which Mr. Krauthoff has got in his hands, and which you have advised him that we are not entitled to see.

Mr. Bates—You are entirely mistaken.

Mr. Streeter—As I understand it.

Now, will you produce them? Mr. Jarvis testified that he made copies of that and gave to the directors, and Mr. Krauthoff has got a copy, and I cannot see any reason why he should want to conceal it.

Mr. Bates—I will state, Your Honor, that General Streeter is mixing things a little bit. He called for something on March 5, 1919, and while we are trying to look for that he jumps back to 1916 and asks for the memorandum which Mr. Krauthoff has. This memorandum is something that we want to put in the case as badly as General Streeter does.

Mr. Streeter—Then what is the objection to it?

Mr. Bates—We have no objection to it, but I think you had better take things in their order. You called for another matter.

Mr. Streeter—I hunted for half an hour this morning to find that record, and I didn't find it.

The Master—I have not been quite able to follow your course for the last few minutes. I had my mind fixed upon a certain letter from Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, sir.

The Master—Now, hadn't we better see about that first?

Mr. Streeter—Yes. Let us have that first. Will you let me see that letter from Mr. Dittmore, April 25—the letter of April 25, 1918, referred to in the foregoing record of March 5, 1919?

The Master—What are you going to do with that?

Mr. Streeter—I am going to put it in.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, that is a letter, again, that the trustees know nothing about. Whether or not it is admissible in the Dittmore case we do not venture to say, but we think it is clear that it is not admissible in the trustees' case.

Mr. Streeter—I have a copy of the letter. It is of the highest consequence in connection with this record, when they got out Mr. Dittmore's letter of April 25, 1918, with reference to conditions facing the board and the Christian Science movement—got it out and considered it.

The Master—The condition, in other words, facing the board in 1916?

Mr. Streeter—1918. this was.

The Master—No; but what you said seemed to me to indicate that it was a letter referred to in 1916.

Mr. Streeter—Yes. I have misled you by referring, pretty nearly at the same time, to two documents. One was a memorandum of 1916 prepared by Mr. Dittmore, which I tried to get this morning.

The Master—What is the date of this letter you are now offering?

Mr. Streeter—This is April 25, 1918.

The Master—All right. Now, the record says that that is material about the conditions existing in 1918.

Mr. Streeter—Yes. "Mr. Dittmore's letter to the board dated April 25, 1918, with reference to conditions facing the board and the Christian Science movement is read." It was read March 5, 1919, this last March; they got it out and read it.

The Master—What do you understand that means—that the letter refers to the 1919 conditions?

Mr. Streeter—No; it refers to the—

The Master—Refers to the 1918 conditions?

Mr. Streeter—Refers to the 1918 conditions.

The Master—That is what I thought.

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me, General, didn't you ask for a letter of April 24? We gave you one of April 24; now you speak of one April 25.

Mr. Streeter—It was April 25—the one I called for in the record.

The Master—Is that the one you have got there?

Mr. Streeter—Yes. I have got a copy here, Mr. Krauthoff. If you have got the original I will take it or I will read from my copy and you can look at the original.

The Master—Now let us see where we are.

Mr. Streeter—April—

The Master—One moment.

Mr. Streeter—Let me see the original, please. (A letter is handed to Mr. Streeter.)

Mr. Bates—Will you give me back the one you didn't use?

Mr. Streeter—This is a letter from Mr. Dittmore to the—

The Master—The same letter, isn't it?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master—Very good. Now pause one moment. You offer that in the Dittmore case?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master—Mr. Whipple objects that it is immaterial as evidence in the other case.

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master—Am I right? For the present the ruling made with regard to the letter last dealt with may stand. I understand this to be a letter from Mr. Dittmore to his co-directors—

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master— —and nothing except that, so far, to connect it with the trustees.

Mr. Streeter—No.

The Master—Very good. The same ruling, then.

Mr. Streeter—The stenographer will note that this letter is marked with a red stamp "Indexed"; also marked with a red stamp, "Read Apr. 25, 1918. The C. S. Board of Directors"; also marked with a red stamp, "Read Mar. 5, 1919, The C. S. Board of Directors."

Now the letter:

"April 25, 1918.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"After my remarks yesterday on the serious conditions which this board and the Christian Science movement are facing, one of the members said he would be glad to know what I believed the remedy to be. I have decided to briefly and hastily outline some of the needs and reforms which are essential as a beginning.

"The first is an unselfish love for the cause of Christian Science expressed in a willingness to subordinate every personal pleasure to the vital duties of the movement which the members of this board have been chosen to direct. With such a foundation this body can begin to be 'lifted up' in thought above the sordid, selfish expressions of mortal mind's modes and methods, to take the first steps toward that unity of thought and action which will manifest itself in a united front to the enemy and to the Church membership, and which will draw those to Truth which are ready for its blessings.

"All is thought. Why should we expect that The Mother Church attendance for instance, should come out of its years of stagnation and increase unless we produce the occasion for it? Why should we expect the Real Estate Fund of The Mother Church to grow and meet our needs when there is the opposite of love, compassion, and unity expressed on this board? We have been agreeing with A. M. to move when it is willing. The various forms of the hidden hand of telepathy playing upon the weaknesses of those who are not seeing the foe in ambush necessarily hide also the hand of God which is always ready to save when consciousness is ready to accept the guidance of Principle.

"Now is the accepted time and now must Israel be delivered from its idols and go forward to the destiny for which God has called it.

"Among the departments of The Mother Church perhaps the most important activity is The Christian Science Publishing Society. This society was founded and has been maintained for the double purpose (which is really one) of providing authorized Christian Science literature and furnishing the principal source of income to The Mother Church. The custody and management of its property is intrusted to its trustees, but the general supervision of its policy is a responsibility of this board as directors of the Christian Science movement.

"Something was accomplished in the society last year, and in some respects progress is still being made and more efficient helpers speak well for the future. However, when this board gets ready to learn some of the things they ought to know, I am ready to see that those who can tell them are produced—not subordinate employees or former employees, but among the best and most faithful of our helpers.

"Lovingly, but firmly, this board must sooner or later eliminate the belief that the Publishing Society is a separate institution. This board must also be able to judge righteous and impartial judgment on matters presented to it, regardless of the relationship to us of those essential to our inquiry. Arrogance, autocracy, Pharisaism, unmercifulness, and incompetence which cannot be healed must be ruled out, or those expressing these qualities must go.

"The editorial management of The Monitor needs to be lovingly, but firmly, brought within the range of the general direction of the movement which is represented by this board. This is a kindness, not an act of hostility.

"This board must know the situation of the circulation of the publications and the finances of the Publishing Society at all times. A letter of Monitor circulation in Boston handed you herewith more than confirms my statements.

"Regular conferences are essential between this board and the trustees and editors and manager, and with such others as are necessary.

"It is this board which the By-Laws charge with the responsibility of keeping the periodicals abreast of the times. The Monitor alone has kept abreast of the times, but this board can take little credit for that fact. The Sentinel—perhaps the greatest asset this cause has—is being wasted and made of little use. A. M. has said for a long time that we cannot change the editorial situation of the Sentinel, and we accept its dictum. But God demands that this great potential force be brought to life now.

"When we allow thought to develop even slightly in regard to the Sentinel, the possibilities seem unlimited. An active editor with vision would confer with all writers of promise, develop their natural abilities along various lines according to their talents, find new contributors, rejuvenate the departments, and establish at least two new ones. There should be a column of 'Signs of the Times,' serving the double purpose of furnishing items significant to Christian Scientists as evidences of Truth's appearing and also serving as a link to connect and interest the outside world with Christian Science. Another column should serve a purpose which could be epitomized in Mrs. Eddy's sentence: 'Whatever inspires with wisdom, Truth, or Love—be it song, sermon, or Science—blesses the human family with crumbs of comfort from Christ's table, feeding the hungry and giving living waters to the thirsty.' (Science and Health, page 234.) It occurs to me that it might be called 'Crumbs of Comfort.' Into such a column would come brief paragraphs of various kinds, points on the Bible, the significance of important Scriptural unfolding. Every member of this board should furnish data of this kind, for if we are not inserting our 'Key' in the locks of the treasure-house of Truth and taking our gems of inestimable value, how can we expect the movement as a whole to go forward to spiritual heights? I would be glad to add to my own work to the extent of undertaking to furnish such a column, for I know I could give a message to the field anonymously which would aid in some measure in bringing what Mrs. Eddy classified as the third degree of Christian Science, viz., 'a correct knowledge of the spiritual significance of the Scriptures.'

"It is through the Sentinel that the greatest work can be done. The arousing of Israel! The greatest work any man or woman can be connected with today. A labor which is worthy of 'absolute consecration of thought, energy, and desire.' (Science and Health, p. 3.) A work which must be done now. God calls upon this board now to make its demonstration of an ascension above the mists of petty selfishness and free from the image which Ezekiel says is always seen sitting at the inner gate by those gaining new visions of the Christ and of the New Jerusalem.

"And what about the budget? That which dissolves budgets scientifically has not been present on this board for a long time, and our gross neglect of communications from the field during the past year or more will never be met by mere personal presence in the board room even for long periods of time. It seems to me it is time to go back to the sane method of having the chairman and secretary, with the corresponding secretary, meet probably twice a week and sort over the correspondence and indicate the disposition of that which is unimportant or capable of being handled according to precedent.

"One of our members has said on several occasions that no deliberative body can be as efficient as it should be without utilizing committees to some extent. We are paying quite a penalty for our idiosyncrasy on this subject. When we get to working in Science we will not fear that a member who may be especially efficient in some particular line will abuse the confidence of the board or get some undue 'glory' because he is acting as a committee.

"There are many more things which can be done to accentuate the spiritual side and show the field that their directors have not lost the vision of their great Leader, but that the waters of mortal mind are dividing and that the people shall cross over into the promised land where the Ark of safety from the perils of these 'latter days' shall be proven to be their 'strong defence.'

"And now, as Mrs. Eddy puts it, 'What will you do about it?' 'Will you give yourself wholly and irrevocably to the great work of establishing the Truth, the gospel and the Science which are necessary to the salvation of the world from error, sin, disease, and death,' or will our classification be not above the 'intermediate worker' as he is described by Mrs. Eddy in her 1900 Message to The Mother Church?

"I for one have no other interests requiring a moment of time other than this Cause. I am willing to devote all of every day, and the nights if necessary, to stemming the tide which is rapidly taking us beyond our depth.

"God demands a different standard and course of action from this Christian Science Board of Directors than heretofore, and I am convinced that the time is at hand when a great change must occur in the consciousness of this board.

"I plead guilty to every indictment that I have openly and secretly striven to extend the usefulness of Christian Science in connection with giving a more spiritual and progressive tone to our publications, and for ten years, to revealing the significant facts of our Leader's human experience which A. M. is so determined to suppress.

"I pray that the work of these last two days shall not be in vain.

"Very sincerely,

"J. V. DITTEMORE."

"JVD-L"

[The letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 220. R. H. J.]

I read from the record of March 6—

The Master—You have now finished reading what you desire to read from the record of the meeting at which that letter was produced and considered, have you?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, the record of that meeting. That was the record of the meeting of March 5. Now I turn to the meeting of March 6.

Present, Messrs. Dittemore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon.

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted that any copies of resolutions or minutes of this board which are given to the members thereof be returned to the corresponding secretary to be destroyed by him within one month of the date they were given out without their having been copied.

"A roll call on the above motion resulted as follows:

"Mr. Dittemore, No; Mr. Dickey, Aye; Mr. Merritt, Aye; Mr. Rathvon, Aye.

"Mr. Dittemore said he would file a letter reviewing the situation and explaining why he voted against this motion.

"Mr. Merritt declared that he offered the resolution in loyalty to the Board of Directors that their proceedings should not go beyond the board."

Another excerpt:

"Mr. Dittemore asked the corresponding secretary for copies of the informal notes made by Mr. Merritt and Mr. Rathvon of the two conferences between the directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society when he was not present. The chairman entered an objection to Mr. Dittemore's taking copies of any of the memoranda on file in our Church with reference to the transactions of this board.

"Mr. Dittmore requested that the board be asked to sustain or not sustain the chair, and that a roll be called.

"Mr. Merritt left the room. The roll call resulted as follows:

"Mr. Dittmore, No; Mr. Rathvon, No; Mr. Dickey, Aye.

"Whereupon the corresponding secretary had copies made and given to Mr. Dittmore of the informal memoranda prepared and filed by Mr. Merritt and Mr. Rathvon of the meetings of Feb. 24 and March 3 with the trustees."

[The minutes of the meeting of the directors of March 6, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 221. R. H. J.]

Mr. Bates—That is another record that is already in.

Mr. Streeter—I think that that is in.

Mr. Bates—Among some of the other records which General Streeter put in this morning.

[Here followed a discussion concerning two letters dated March 13, 1919, from Mr. Dittmore to the board, which, by agreement of counsel and the approval of the Master, is omitted from the record, because Mr. Streeter suggests that he will offer the letters later, in connection with another matter.]

Mr. Streeter—A further excerpt from the records of March 6:

"Letters were read from the following: Mr. Edward L. Ripley, treasurer, dated Boston, Feb. 25, recommending that the Mary Baker Eddy memorial fund be merged with the general fund of The Mother Church, which was, upon motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, approved."

[Excerpt from record of March 6 of meeting of the Board of Directors, as read by Mr. Streeter, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 222.]

Mr. Streeter—The following excerpt from the records of March 10, 1919:

"Harvey S. Chase & Company, Certified Public Accountants, dated Boston, Feb. 24, being a preliminary report upon their examination of the War Relief and Camp Welfare Fund, and the Comfort Forwarding Committee. Disposition indicated."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated March 10, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 223.]

Q. Do you know what that record means, Mr. Jarvis—"Disposition indicated"? A. It would be noted on the letter itself to which the record refers.

Mr. Streeter—Will you produce the letter, Mr. Krauthoff, or Governor? The letter from Harvey Chase, dated Feb. 24, inclosing a preliminary report with reference to the War Relief Fund.

Mr. Bates—We haven't it here, Your Honor.

Mr. Streeter—Well, will you get it?

Mr. Bates—Yes, certainly. But, as I have suggested before, I think you should put your request in the form of a letter so that we can know what you want, so that we won't keep running back and forth all the time.

Mr. Streeter—We will do the best we can, but you won't mind about this one, will you?

Mr. Bates—Oh, no; we will make a minute of it to help you out.

Mr. Streeter—Thank you. From the records of March 11, 1919, the following extract is quoted:

"The corresponding secretary reported a request from Mr. Dittmore for copies of those portions of the minutes of March 6 referring to him and of Mrs. Longyear's letter of Feb. 27. The chair declined to authorize the secretary to make copies of minutes in response to the request that they be given out, and a motion to appeal from the ruling of the chair, made by Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, was carried, whereupon the corresponding secretary prepared and gave Mr. Dittmore the copies as requested."

From the same date:

"Letters were read from Judge Clifford P. Smith, manager of committees on publication, as follows:

"Dated March 11 advising that Attorney Samuel L. Powers had requested a conference between Judge Smith, the board and himself, and counsel for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Nashville, on Saturday, March 15; also requesting the engagement of Attorneys John L. Bates and Leon M. Abbott as counsel for The Mother Church. Disposition indicated."

Also the following excerpt:

"The following resolution was offered by Mr. Rathvon, its adoption seconded by Mr. Merritt, viz.:

"Resolved, that no copies of any portions of the minutes of the meetings of this board shall be made by or for any member except by unanimous vote of all members present.

"Roll call resulted in the following vote:

Mr. Dittmore .....	No.
Mr. Dickey .....	Aye.
Mr. Merritt .....	Aye.
Mr. Rathvon .....	Aye.

"The resolution was declared adopted. At 12 o'clock Mr. Dittmore left the meeting.

"The remaining directors had an interview with Trustees Eustace, Ogden and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[The portions of the meeting of the directors dated March 11, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 224.]

Mr. Streeter—From the records of March 13, 1919:

"A letter was read by Mr. Dittmore, dated March 13, 1919, requesting copies of certain portions of the minutes of March 11, and a letter written by Mrs. Eddy to the directors about the failure of the board to join other Boston churches in ringing the chimes on the occasion of the passing on of Pope Leo. The chair asked for a motion as to the disposition of Mr. Dittmore's request for a copy of certain of the minutes; the chair also asked Mr. Dittmore if he wished to make a motion; whereupon Mr. Dittmore offered a motion supporting his written request but as it did not receive a second, the matter was dropped. Mr. Dittmore asked for a copy of Mrs. Eddy's letter referred to in his letter of even date and the chair referred to a motion passed by the board prohibiting the giving out of such copies."

Q. Mr. Dickey was chairman at this time, was he not? A. He was.

Mr. Streeter—Another excerpt:

"A letter was read from Mr. Dittmore, dated March 13, giving his reasons for voting against Mr. Rathvon's motion of March 11."

[Those portions of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors dated March 13, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 225.]

Mr. Streeter—Now, those two letters Mr. Thompson will read into the record.

Mr. Thompson—We have one, and they say they have not got the other one.

Mr. Streeter—Haven't you got copies?

Mr. Thompson—Yes; but I want the originals.

Mr. Whipple—I take it, if Your Honor please, those letters do not affect our case and come under the ruling Your Honor has already made.

The Master—I will rule as requested by Mr. Whipple as to that letter. Are you going to read it?

Mr. Thompson—Yes, sir. There are two letters of this date, both referred to in the records. The first one is as follows:

[Copy of Exhibit 226.]

"John V. Dittmore, C. S. B.

"236 Huntington Ave.

"Boston, U. S. A.

"March 13, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Gentlemen:—

"As a member of this board and as a co-trustee of the interests of the members of The Mother Church, the beneficiaries under this trust, I hereby respectfully request copies of the following:

"First—Copy of such parts of the minutes of this board of March 11 as refer to a motion by Mr. Rathvon adopted by the board, attempting to provide a means of preventing a minority of this board from securing copies of motions of record in the minutes of this board.

"Second—Copy of a letter written by Mrs. Eddy to the directors for their instruction and now in the files of the directors, giving advice in regard to the directors taking advantage of their opportunities and referring specifically to the failure of the board to join the other Boston churches in ringing the chimes on the occasion of the passing on of Pope Leo.

"Very sincerely,
(Signed) "J. V. DITTEMORE."
"JVD-L"

[Letter, dated March 13, 1919, Mr. Dittmore to Board of Directors, is marked Exhibit 226.]

Mr. Thompson—The second one is as follows—the same date, addressed to The Christian Science Board of Directors. That is the one I would like to see. Have you got it here?

Mr. Bates—No, we haven't found it.

Mr. Thompson—It may have some marginal comments on it. Many of these originals, as they come in here, have little pencil memorandums on them by somebody, and sometimes of significance. (Reading.)

"March 13, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,
"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.
"Gentlemen:

"I voted against Mr. Rathvon's motion of March 11 for reasons which include the following:

"1. The action it contemplates is illegal and is so designated by an attorney's opinion which is, or should be in the files of this board.

"2. Just before this action was taken, Mr. Dickey, the chairman, said: 'If Mr. Dittmore were acting in harmony with the rest of us, we would not object to giving him copies of the minutes,' which simply means that because a member of this board disagrees with the majority the majority thereupon retaliates by using its claimed power, either legally or illegally, to adopt rules to deprive a dissenting member of his rights.

"3. This action is but another instance of the policy adopted by the majority of this board, to strangle the rights of a dissenting fellow member.

"Very sincerely,
(Signed) "J. V. DITTEMORE."
"JVD-L"

Now, that is the letter I would like to see the original of. You must have it there.

Mr. Dane—I think, Mr. Thompson, that letter was produced at the last hearing and was read into the record.

Mr. Thompson—Was it? Well, I did not see it. If it was it has got back into your possession, and I would like to see it again and see what is written on the margin.

Mr. Streeter—I also read from the records of March 13—

The Master—Pause one moment. Have you got through about this letter?

Mr. Thompson—I do not suppose any further request from us will produce anything more. Apparently counsel haven't it at hand in such a way that they can produce it at this time.

Mr. Dane—I have a recollection, Your Honor, that that letter was produced on last Thursday and was read into the record at that time, and it is not at the present time in our files of the Dittmore letters.

Mr. Thompson—Possibly, but it was not produced at our call, it was not handed to us. Now, it must have been returned to you by Mr. Whipple, unless he has it now, and I don't think he has.

Mr. Dane—It is marked Exhibit 203.

Mr. Whipple—My memory was that it was called for by General Streeter on Thursday. I do not remember that we had it, but I may be mistaken.

Mr. Dane—It was produced at the instance of General Streeter on Thursday and read into the record, and is marked Exhibit 203.

The Master—Now, does anybody want it in twice?

Mr. Thompson—No.

Mr. Streeter—No, Your Honor.

Mr. Bates—It has already been read.

Mr. Streeter—Only one more excerpt I want to read before recess. It is from the records of March 13:

"Christian Science War Relief Committee for Great Britain and Ireland (cable), dated London, March 11, submitting three nominations of the London churches for a successor to Mr. Allen W. Heber Percy on the committee. On motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted to appoint Mr. Anthony Maxtone-Graham to fill the vacancy."

[That portion of the meeting of the directors, dated March 13, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 227.]

Mr. Streeter—Now, we come to the records of March 17, and those have got all to be read into this record. Shall we take a little recess before it is done?

The Master—We will take a recess if you desire.

[Recess.]

Mr. Thompson—These are the entries of the directors' records, Monday, March 17, 1919.

[Directors' records, March 17, 1919, introduced in evidence as Exhibit 228, and read by Mr. Thompson as follows:]

"At a regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors, held at 9:30 a. m. on above date in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon. The minutes of the regular meeting of March 13 and of the special meeting of March 14 were read and approved.

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, the corresponding secretary was instructed to arrange if possible for the installation of secondary clocks in the directors' room, in the hallway of the Readers' rooms, and in the Sunday School room of The Mother Church, to be connected with the master clock in The Christian Science Publishing House."

The Master—I take it, if you will allow me to interrupt a moment, that an entry like that throws no light on the case.

Mr. Thompson—Let it go out; it ought to go out, certainly. It is of no consequence.

"A letter was read from The Christian Science Publishing Society dated March 14, in acknowledgment of the board's letters of March 3 and 13, requesting certain information.

"The following preamble and resolution was offered by Mr. Rathvon, its adoption seconded by Mr. Merritt, viz.:

"The following resolution is offered for adoption by The Christian Science Board of Directors, the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and the governing board of the Christian Science denomination. It is offered for adoption in the exercise of the rights and powers vested in this Church and in this board by the law of Massachusetts; by the Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898, through which Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and the Leader of the Christian Science movement, constituted the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society; by the By-Laws of this Church and by the usage of the Christian Science denomination.

"Whereas, Mr. Lamont Rowlands, who has been acting as a trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society under said Deed of Trust and under Art. 25 of the By-Laws of this Church, was put into said position for the reason, among other reasons, that he was a member of this Church who had subscribed to its By-Laws and was regarded as obedient to its By-Laws and government; and

"Whereas, Mrs. Eddy has declared that "the present and future prosperity of the cause of Christian Science is largely due to the By-Laws and government of 'The First Church of Christ, Scientist,' in Boston" (Christian Science Sentinel, Vol. XVI, page 1010); and

"Whereas, Mrs. Eddy has declared that "Law constitutes government, and disobedience to the laws of The Mother Church must ultimate in annulling its Tenets and By-Laws. Without a proper system of government""—

The Master—Now, if you will let me interrupt there again, all this is printed in the pleadings, isn't it?

Mr. Thompson—I don't know whether this is or not.

Mr. Bates—Yes, sir.

The Master—I have it right before me.

Mr. Thompson—Very well; then that may not be read.

The Master—Do you want it all?

Mr. Whipple—I think it was read in the plaintiffs' case, was it not?

Mr. Thompson—My impression is that this resolution has been read at some time in the case.

Mr. Whipple—Yes; I think we read it.

The Master—It is in full, as I understand it, in the bill.

Mr. Streeter—What are you looking at?

The Master—If you read enough to identify it it seems to me that that is all you need.

Mr. Thompson—If Your Honor is sure that this is set out somewhere.

The Master—In the pamphlet containing the bill in equity and the answer of Dickey and others, I find it on page 57; in the pamphlet containing the bill in equity and the answer of Mr. Dittmore I find it on page 51, beginning at page 51.

Mr. Thompson—If it is not only in the pleadings but also admitted by the persons against whom it is pleaded there would be no occasion for reading it now.

The Master—As I understand the pleadings, it is admitted by both respondents. I don't know if I am right or not.

Mr. Bates—You represent one of them, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—Well, we certainly admit that this resolution was passed as I have been reading it and as it has been set out in our pleadings.

Mr. Streeter—All we care, Your Honor, is that these two resolutions should be legitimately in the record of the case before you by proof. That is all we care for.

The Master—I supposed that must be all you cared for. Now that you have read enough to identify the document, isn't it enough after that to refer to the pleadings?

Mr. Thompson—If, with that reference, goes an admission on all hands that the pleadings correctly set out the contents of the records.

Mr. Streeter—They do set out—

The Master—I should suppose by this time counsel would know whether the pleadings correctly set forth the documents or not.

Mr. Bates—We admitted it in our pleadings.

Mr. Thompson—Very well; it apparently is admitted. Then I will read, without reading the rest of those preambles, the reasons that are alleged for Mr. Rowlands' dismissal—I will read the roll call on that motion:

"A roll call on the adoption of the resolution resulted as follows:

Mr. Dittmore .....Not voting
Mr. Dickey .....Aye
Mr. Merritt .....Aye
Mr. Rathvon .....Aye

The resolution was declared adopted."

"The following resolution was read, viz.,

"Whereas Mr. John V. Dittmore, one of the members of this board, has frequently and continually failed and refused to accept and obey the by-law of this Church that "the business of The Mother Church""—

Mr. Streeter—Now isn't the rest of that all in?

Mr. Thompson—Yes; I am reading just enough to identify it.

"—'be transacted by its (C. S.) Board of Directors' (Manual, Article 1, Section 6)."

Then follow a large number of alleged reasons justifying the concluding sentence:

"Now therefore it is resolved by The Christian Science Board of Directors, the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, that Mr. John V. Dittmore be, and he is by the adoption of this resolution, removed and dismissed from this board.

"Resolved further that Mr. Dittmore be and hereby is requested to return to the clerk of The Mother Church and corresponding secretary of this board all letters, documents, papers, copies thereof, and other articles which he has taken or received as a member of this board or an officer of this Church, or which have been delivered to him by reason of his being a member of this board or an officer of this Church.

"And before the adoption of the foregoing resolution, the individual directors appealed to Mr. Dittmore that for his own sake he should tender his resignation as a member of the board. On his declining to do so, it was moved by Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, that the resolution be adopted. Carried.

"Shortly thereafter Mr. Dittmore left the board meeting.

"The directors had an interview with Trustees Eustace, Ogden, and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and the resolution adopted earlier in the meeting, declaring the trusteeship of Mr. Rowlands terminated and the position vacated, was read.

"After the trustees retired, it was moved by Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Merritt, and carried unanimously, Mr. Neal's vote being taken over the telephone, to elect Mrs. Annie M. Knott a member of The Christian Science Board of Directors to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Dittmore.

"At 1:35 p. m. the directors took a recess until 2:45 p. m.

"Letters were read from the following:

"Mr. Frank H. Leonard, dated Chicago, Illinois, March 15, and from Mrs. Eloise Hallenbeck, dated Port Chester, New York, March 15, both letters relating to the situation between the directors and the trustees.

"The directors had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor.

"The directors had an interview with the Finance Committee of The Mother Church, namely, Messrs. Calvin C. Hill, Charles E. Lord and Fred M. Lamson.

"At 5:35 p. m. the meeting adjourned.

"ADAM H. DICKEY, Chairman.

"Approved, March 18, 1919,

"EDWARD A. MERRITT, Secretary."

Mr. Streeter—I will read the following extracts from the records of March 18, 1919.

[Directors' records, March 18, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 229, and read by Mr. Streeter, as follows:]

"The directors had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor, in the course of which he expressed the hope that the differences between the directors and trustees might be adjusted amicably and he offered his services to that end. Upon his recommendation, the following tentative agreement was taken by Mr. Dixon in the hope of obtaining the signatures of the trustees of the Publishing Society thereto, viz.:

"Final authority in regard to editorial policy of the organs of The Mother Church and the general supervision of the affairs of The Christian Science Publishing Society as set forth in the Manual of The Mother Church."

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, if Your Honor please, I take it that the account of this meeting and the efforts that were made as to compromise would not be material in the Eustace suit or the trustees' suit. I would like to raise the point.

Mr. Bates—I think I also, Your Honor, will raise the question as to whether any of these records after the date of the removal have any competency in the case, or are relevant.

Mr. Streeter—We filed our bill April 29, and we are proposing, with the approbation of Your Honor, to go over their records up to the time of the filing of the bill, and then the question whether later records will be offered we will discuss afterward.

Mr. Bates—This is an action to reinstate Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Streeter—No, sir. I beg your pardon. This is an action—

The Master—I did not hear that.

Mr. Bates—This is a bill in equity to have Mr. Dittmore declared still a director in The Christian Science Church.

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Mr. Bates—And I assume that these records as to what happened since, where he was not a party, and of meetings which he did not attempt to attend, have no bearing on the questions which are raised by our removal of him.

Mr. Streeter—May I be heard?

The Master—Of course.

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, this is not a proceeding to reinstate John V. Dittmore as a member of The Christian Science Board of Directors. It is a proceeding to have declared null and void and unlawful an attempt made to remove him from that office to which he had been appointed by the recommendation of Mrs. Eddy. Do not let us have any misunderstanding. We are not trying for reinstatement; we are challenging your power and authority and the lawful exercise of any power or authority that you had to dismiss Mr. Dittmore. Now, that—

The Master—Well, you want his attempted dismissal declared void?

Mr. Streeter—I do.

The Master—That is what it comes to.

Mr. Streeter—Unlawful.

The Master—Whether you call it a reinstatement, or call it by some other term, does not matter very much.

Mr. Streeter—Well, not so far as results are concerned, but so far as the general situation is concerned, I am stating it as I regard the situation to be.

The Master—I am not prepared to rule at present that everything done by the directors after March 17 is inadmissible as against Mr. Dittmore. I think I will take that subject to your objection, as I have several other pieces of evidence offered today. Some of these doings of the directors, although after March 17, appear to have a more or less direct relation to what was done on or before March 17.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I interposed the first objection. Unless the directors' records contain admissions which the plaintiffs would desire to put in evidence, I do not see that they affect the trustees' case. I do not know that General Streeter is offering them in the trustees' case.

The Master—It may be all taken subject to your objection, and admitted over your objection, if necessary.

Mr. Streeter—From a meeting of March 19—oh, did I put in March 18? Yes, I did. Now, the next excerpt is from the meeting of March 19, 1919.

Present, Messrs. Dickey, Merritt, Rathvon and Mrs. Knott.

"The chair reported that yesterday afternoon Mr. Frederick Dixon came over to the directors' offices and interviewed Messrs. Rathvon, Merritt and Dickey. While he did not report a complete failure in his efforts to obtain the agreement of the trustees of the Publishing Society to the statement he received from the directors at their board meeting earlier in the day, he seemed to think that they were united in their opposition to the wishes of the Board of Directors as expressed in that paper. It seems that their intention as disclosed to him is that they shall take no action whatever regarding the dismissal of Mr. Rowlands and expect to continue their management of the Publishing Society, retaining him as co-trustee. At the request of the directors present, the corresponding secretary prepared two letters and sent them to Trustees Eustace and Ogden, and to Business Manager Watts, respectively, confirming the dismissal of Mr. Rowlands from trusteeship in the Publishing Society.

"Mr. Rathvon referred to certain steps which might be taken in connection with the situation, consideration of which was deferred until Monday, March 24."

"Another excerpt:

"An informal memorandum, prepared by Mr. Rathvon, of certain details of the conference between the trustees and directors on March 11 was read and placed on file."

Will you produce that, Mr. Jarvis? Do you remember what those "certain steps" were which Mr. Rathvon suggested?

The Witness—No, sir.

The Master—Pause a moment. You called for the memorandum, didn't you?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, I did.

The Master—Well, if that is here, I suppose it is the best evidence.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, Your Honor. You are quite right.

Mr. Bates—Here it is, General (passing a paper to Mr. Streeter).

Mr. Streeter—

"Memorandum of Notes

"by Wm. R. Rathvon

"taken at meeting

"between

"Trustees and Directors

"March 11, 1919."

And it is marked with a red stamp. "Read Mar. 19, 1919, the C. S. Board of Directors."

"Mr. Dickey—Then you concede that the directors have final authority in affairs of The Mother Church but not in the Publishing Society. Is that it?"

"Mr. Rowlands—We do not admit and never have admitted the final authority of the directors in affairs of the publishing house. That authority belongs to the trustees.

"Mr. Dickey—I have a letter here bearing Mr. Eustace's signature which admits it.

"Mr. Eustace—Now, Mr. Dickey, you know that was written at a time when we were trying to reach some working agreement. It does not bind my colleagues today as they were not trustees then. The two boards must act concurrently neither being superior to the other.

"Mr. Merritt—Suppose you were wanting to spend a sum of money for some purpose the directors did not approve and the two boards could not concur, would you go ahead and spend it?"

"Mr. Eustace—No, we would not.

"By W. R. R.—Suppose, on the other hand, you had adopted and were carrying out some policy or measure and the directors believed you should take another course, would you feel obligated to follow the course indicated by the directors?"

"Mr. Eustace—No, not unless the two boards concurred.

"Mr. Rathvon—Well, what could be done under such circumstances?"

"Mr. Eustace—We would all have to work it out by demonstration.

"Mr. Dickey—That is, you would have your own way about it."

"Another excerpt from the meeting of March 19, 1919: "The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, who was requested to confer with Attorneys John L. Bates and Leon M. Abbott, with reference to the possible retirement of Mr. Dittmore as Trustee under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy." I will remind Your Honor—

Mr. Bates—That also has been read into the record.

Mr. Streeter—No; I don't remember it.

Mr. Thompson—Yes, it has been.

Mr. Bates—It has been. Mr. Thompson read it in.

The Master—It has a familiar sound.

Mr. Bates—I think that it should be struck out, Your Honor, for the sake of saving the space, if nothing else.

The Master—I beg your pardon, Governor Bates?

Mr. Bates—I say, I think that it should be struck out of the record for the sake of saving the space.

Mr. Streeter—I don't remember it, but, at any rate, we want it here.

The Master—Well, we do not want to get into the practice of putting anything twice into this record.

Mr. Streeter—No. Well, it might be struck out in the—well, I don't care if it is in: I simply want to be sure that it is in.

The Master—You are perfectly right, of course, in doing that. Can you not find out whether it has been put in already or not?

Mr. Bates—We can in a moment.

Mr. Streeter—Well, you may have it either way you wish. All that I want is to have it in once.

The Master—Well, then, if no one is prepared to show us now that it is in before, the stenographer had better take it, and it had better be stricken out should it appear later that it was put in before.

Mr. Streeter—I would remind Your Honor with reference to this vote that the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy are not subject to removal by this Board of Directors or anybody else except the courts of New Hampshire.

Another excerpt:

"Mr. Rathvon read a letter to him from Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear, dated Pasadena, March 12, with reference to the situation between the directors and trustees, and a copy thereof was placed on file."

Will you produce that letter?

Mr. Dane—What is the date?

Mr. Bates—Will you give us the date again?

Mr. Streeter—March 12.

Mr. Bates—From whom?

Mr. Streeter—From Mrs. Longyear, at Pasadena.

The Master—I suppose, in regard to that letter, that the only material point would be what action, if any, the directors took about it.

Mr. Streeter—Yes. Your Honor is quite right. The matter of Mrs. Longyear's benefactions to this board, and their treatment of her, against Mr. Dittmore's objection, is a matter of some consequence.

Mr. Bates—It is nothing that we object to, Your Honor, we do not consider the letter material.

The Master—I have already indicated that I do not see how the letter, in and of itself, can be material.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I supposed that it referred to the donations and benefactions. I find that it does not. It is purely a Christian Science letter. I will put it in or not, just as you want me to. I called for it and I will put it in if you say so.

Mr. Bates—We don't care what you do with it.

Mr. Streeter—All right. Then leave it out.

The Master—Leave it out.

Mr. Streeter—Another excerpt:

"A letter was read from Editor Frederick Dixon, dated Boston, March 19, advising the unchanged attitude of the trustees of the Publishing Society in spite of his efforts. Reply indicated."

[The record of the meeting of directors of March 19, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 232. R. H. J.]

From the records of March 20, 1919. Present, Messrs. Dickey, Merritt, Rathvon, and Mrs. Knott.

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith who reported an interview with Attorneys Bates and Abbott, who saw no reason why a vacancy should not be declared in the directorate of the Benevolent Association in case Mr. Dittmore should refuse to resign, but they advised waiting a while before taking any action to effect a change in his trusteeship under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy, so as not to have too many contests on hand at the same time."

Mr. Bates—I submit, Your Honor, that this has all been read into the record once before by General Streeter's associate counsel. Nearly everything that he has read today has been read into the record before.

Mr. Streeter—Sir?

Mr. Bates—I say that nearly everything that you have read here today has been read before.

Mr. Thompson—Oh, no.

Mr. Streeter—You are absolutely wrong. Do you say that that was read in, Mr. Thompson?

Mr. Thompson—Yes, Mr. Whipple or I read it into the record; I am not sure which.

Mr. Streeter—If it has been read I withdraw it.

Mr. Bates—Well, then, let it go out.

The Master—Yes, let it go out. We do not, any of us, want the record to be swelled by what does not belong there.

Mr. Streeter—Another excerpt:

"The directors approved the permanent mountings of letters from Mrs. Eddy's secretaries or assistants, also letters written by Mrs. Eddy in the files which came from Chestnut Hill; also any communications bearing notations of importance in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting."

Under date of Saturday, March 22, 1919.

Present, Messrs. Dickey, Merritt, Rathvon, and Mrs. Knott.

"The directors held a consultation with Judge Clifford P. Smith, and Attorneys Bates and Abbott, with reference to the resolutions adopted March 17, declaring vacant the directorship of John V. Dittmore and the trusteeship of Lamont Rowlands.

"During the conference letters were read from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated March 21, acknowledging receipt of the board's letter of March 18, advising them of the removal of Mr. Rowlands; also from the business manager of the Publishing Society, dated March 21, in reply to the directors' letters of Feb. 27 and March 13, advising the charges made by their attorneys.

"After the attorneys retired the directors had an interview with the business manager, John R. Watts, of the Publishing Society."

The meeting of March 24, 1919:

"Letters were read from the following: Mr. John V. Dittmore, dated Boston, March 12, to Mr. Albert F. Gilmore of New York City, about the situation between the directors and the trustees."

Will you produce that letter?

Mr. Bates—That was a letter from Mr. Dittmore?

Mr. Streeter—This is a copy of a letter from Mr. Dittmore to Albert F. Gilmore, dated Boston, Massachusetts, March 12, 1919, and considered by the board at their meeting of March 24.

Mr. Bates—We haven't the letter here. It is not one of those that you asked for. We haven't it.

Mr. Streeter—Well, we want it, Mr. Bates. Will you get it for us?

Mr. Bates—That is from Mr. Dittmore to Mr. Gilmore?

Mr. Streeter—From Mr. Dittmore to Mr. Gilmore.

Mr. Bates—Dated March 12?

Mr. Streeter—Dated March 12, about the situation between the directors and the trustees.

Mr. Bates—And read at the meeting of March—

Mr. Streeter—And read and considered by the directors at the meeting of March 24.

Mr. Bates—All right.

Mr. Streeter—Can you have it here this afternoon, Mr. Bates?

Mr. Bates—I presume so.

Mr. Streeter—Will you get it?

The Master—Are you going to rely on something that the directors did about that letter?

Mr. Streeter—Your Honor can see how—

The Master—If it simply stops there, that there was a letter from Mr. Dittmore to some outside party, that was read, and nothing done about it, I do not think that we want it.

Mr. Streeter—I read the following excerpt from the same record, the record of the same meeting:

"The directors requested Mr. Leonard to go to New York to consult Mr. Albert F. Gilmore and others regarding the local situation. The directors asked Col. Bangs to remain over until the following morning for further consultation."

This was obviously as a result of this letter.

The Master—Of what significance is it if they did send somebody over to consult with Mr. Gilmore?

Mr. Streeter—Well, it is preliminary.

The Master—Preliminary to what?

Mr. Streeter—Preliminary to what they did and what they said.

[The record of the meeting of the directors of March 24, 1919, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 234. R. H. J.]

Well, I will proceed. I would like to have you get the letter.

Another excerpt:

"After considering various candidates for the position of associate editor to succeed Mrs. Annie M. Knott it was upon motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, and after consulting Editor William P. McKenzie, voted unanimously to elect Mrs. Ella W. Hoag as associate editor of the Christian Science periodicals."

[That portion of the record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated March 24, as read by Mr. Streeter, is offered in evidence as a part of Exhibit 234.]

Mr. Streeter—From the records of March 25:

"A letter was read from the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, March 25, advising the Board of Directors that the trustees had filed in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts a Bill in Equity to prevent the directors from the exercise of their authority, which the trustees allege will result in the destruction of a sacred trust created by our great Leader, defeat her purposes as therein declared, injure irrevocably the Christian Science movement and deprive The Mother Church and Mrs. Eddy's trustees of a great benevolence with which she has endowed the movement."

Another excerpt from the same meeting:

"The directors had an interview with Col. F. A. Bangs of Chicago respecting the differences between The Christian Science Board of Directors and the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

Another excerpt:

"A tentative proposal to be submitted to the trustees of the Publishing Society, offering to arbitrate the alleged differences, was dictated, edited and laid over for further consideration."

[Those portions of the record of the meeting of Board of Directors, dated March 25, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 235.]

Mr. Streeter—From the records of Wednesday, March 26:

"The directors had an interview with Col. F. A. Bangs of Chicago in connection with the local situation."

Further excerpt:

"A conference was also held with Judge Clifford P. Smith, who was authorized to confer with his associates as to the wisdom of presenting a proposition to arbitrate the differences between the two boards."

Another excerpt:

"Judge Smith reported in person developments and conclusions reached by himself and Messrs. Bates and Abbott of counsel for the directors."

Another excerpt:

"Judge Smith submitted a proposed letter to be printed as a circular, which was, upon motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Neal, approved and ordered printed in circular form to be mailed immediately to practitioners, readers and clerks of branch churches and societies, and to members of the Board of Lectureship."

[Those portions of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated March 26, 1919, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 236.]

Mr. Streeter—From the meeting of March 29:

"Judge Clifford P. Smith and Mr. Edwin A. Krauthoff of counsel were present, and the propriety of sending out a letter to the field asking Christian Scientists to defer judgment until our answer had been prepared and submitted to the courts was discussed, and a letter agreed upon and submitted by counsel was approved and ordered printed and mailed immediately."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated March 29, 1919, as read by Mr. Streeter, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 237.]

Mr. Thompson—There are one or two more here—we will try to get through quickly. Meeting of April 7:

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, it was voted to raze and destroy the boathouse and store the boat in the barn for the present."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated April 7, as read by Mr. Thompson, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 238.]

Mr. Thompson—That is Mrs. Eddy's boathouse at Pleasant View.

Mr. Bates—Now, I submit, Your Honor, that has no reference to this case whatever.

The Master—What do you want it for?

Mr. Thompson—I suppose what the General has in mind is this: Preceding the dismissal of Mr. Dittmore on March 17, there were differences of opinion between him and some of his fellow directors, especially Mr. Dickey, on a great variety of topics. He did not treat those as personal matters, merely as matters of sincere and honest differences of opinion. It appears that the only way to account for this extraordinary action of March 17, dismissing him, is merely because he preferred to discharge all the trustees at once rather than one at a time. The only explanation we can offer on that is, as bearing on the charge of bad faith, that it was an effort to get rid of him, not because of his difference of opinion with them on this theoretical topic, largely a matter of law, but by reason of the growing antagonism of a personal character between him, and especially Mr. Dickey, owing to a great variety of differences of opinion in the past. Now, this boathouse matter, I understand, is one of them. If it is, it is a trifling one, but that is the only pertinence of putting it in.

The Master—We haven't had anything about any difference of opinion regarding the boathouse?

Mr. Thompson—No, you have not. I suppose you will have to hear it for the first time sometime. You will hear a great deal about differences of opinion the moment Mr. Dittmore begins to testify. We are simply picking up from the records such corroboration as we can find—

The Master—I suppose if he says that he expects to make it material hereafter, I shall have to let it stand.

Mr. Thompson—If I do not make it material there is no reason why the reference to the boathouse should not go out.

The Master—Go on.

Mr. Thompson—I will add this: It might appear to the outsider, and it did to me when I first began to consider some of these matters, extremely remote, and difficult, to understand how men should get into a personal—how either one of two men should find ground for personal antagonism in some of these matters. But as I got into it more deeply and realized the significance to a Christian Scientist of some of these matters, it began to dawn on me why some of these things should lead to that very unchristian, and un-Christian Science-like state of mind which led finally to a discharge of Mr. Dittmore for merely obeying his own convictions.

Mr. Bates—I submit, Your Honor, that the counsel's statement is entirely out of place.

Mr. Thompson—I made it in response to a question of the Court's. It is entirely in place.

Mr. Bates—It is entirely out of place when you characterize the acts of the associates of Mr. Dittmore. You forget Mr. Dittmore is one and that he was removed by all of the board. You have stated that the only reason was because of personal differences between him and Mr. Dickey. The evidence shows exactly the contrary. You have stated that you know of no reason except the differences on this trusteeship.

Mr. Thompson—I haven't said that.

Mr. Bates—The reasons are set forth in our answer in full.

Mr. Thompson—Now, you have made your speech. If I chose to characterize it as you have mine—

The Master—You began by making one, you know, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—You asked me, and I made it in reply to your request.

The Master—I think you went a little further than was strictly necessary. But I think we will not follow it any further now.

Mr. Thompson—April 9 is the next one:

"Mr. Franklin Hess of Chicago, Illinois, dated April 7, acquainting the board with valuable information concerning Mr. Rowlands' business interests. Letter referred to counsel with request to obtain further information in the case."

[That portion of the meeting of the Board of Directors dated April 9, 1919, as read by Mr. Thompson, is marked Exhibit 239.]

Mr. Bates—Now, I submit, Your Honor, that that also has absolutely no reference to this case whatever.

Mr. Thompson—We will connect that.

Mr. Bates—So far as its being material.

Mr. Whipple—I would like to have it appear, if Your Honor please, because it has never yet appeared, as is the fact, that these complaints in regard to his business interests were ex post facto. They made them on the spur of the moment and then tried to get evidence to prove them afterward.

Mr. Bates—If Mr. Thompson is representing your clients I can see that it may be admissible, but as to questions between Mr. Dittmore and the directors it has no bearing whatsoever.

Mr. Thompson—It has a very marked bearing. I will make it material later.

The Master—On your undertaking to make that material I will let it stand.

Mr. Thompson—Yes, sir. And it will be made material in this way: that Mr. Dittmore objected to the dismissal of Mr. Rowlands and refused to participate in this unfounded charge of his lack of business ability and then have to search for evidence afterwards to get something against him.

April 14:

"The directors had an interview with counsel, viz.: ex-Gov. John L. Bates, Mr. Leon M. Abbott and Mr. Dane, of Bates, Nay, Abbott & Dane, Mr. Edwin A. Krauthoff and Judge Clifford P. Smith, and discussed the probable line of testimony in connection with the hearing before the master on the suit in equity brought by the trustees against the directors."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors dated April 14, 1919, as read by Mr. Thompson, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 240.]

Mr. Bates—And I submit, Your Honor, that that has no reason for being in the record, either.

The Master—I do not see any reason for it. We would assume that they would have such conferences.

Mr. Thompson—We will assume that they would have a conference as to the actual line of testimony, but not that they would have a conference as to the probable line of testimony.

Mr. Bates—That is because we could not fathom what you were going to do; and we have not been able to yet.

The Master—I am unable to see any materiality in that.

Mr. Thompson—I think we will connect it later, sir.

Meeting of April 22:

"Attorney Leon M. Abbott, of counsel, dated Boston, April 22, submitting a proposed letter to be used in answering inquiries as to the removal or dismissal of Mr. Dittmore from the Board of Directors."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated April 22, 1919, as read by Mr. Thompson, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 241.]

Mr. Thompson—I would like to see that letter if you have it handy.

Mr. Bates—I submit, Your Honor, that that letter is something we are perfectly willing that the world should have, but it has no bearing on this case. It is a question of advice of counsel, and my brother knows as well as anybody that it is not material or admissible.

Mr. Thompson—Well, I would like to know what reasons Mr. Abbott thought would be good reasons. They were not the reasons alleged. I would like to see that letter.

The Master—I should hesitate a good while before ruling that the directors' counsel were obliged to produce it.

Mr. Thompson—They have only to decline if they are unwilling to do so. Monday, May 5:

"The directors had an interview with Judge Smith to consider the point of informing members of the Board of Lectureship about Mr. Dittmore's attitude, etc."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated May 5, 1919, as read by Mr. Thompson is offered in evidence as Exhibit 242.]

The Master—Now, I think you have got to a date subsequent to the filing of the bill.

Mr. Thompson—Yes, subsequent to the filing of the bill. Let me just see if there is anything more here.

Mr. Bates—Seeing you called for that, I will ask you to put it in (handing paper to Mr. Thompson).

Mr. Thompson—Well, I will be glad to get it. Yes, I would like to put this in. I will read it now.

The Master—Well, wait one moment. I understand at present that that was a letter prepared to be sent out. There is nothing at present to show that it ever was sent out?

Mr. Thompson—The Governor wants me to put it in, asked me to.

The Master—I want to see if I clearly understand the precise situation.

Mr. Bates—You are right, Your Honor. There is no evidence it ever was sent out, but my brother said he would like it.

The Master—Why should any of us want to have that in?

Mr. Thompson—Because it indicates the fluctuating attitude of these people in explaining what they have done. They did it first and then thought of the explanation afterwards, and their explanations do not always agree. I should like that letter to go in very much.

The Master—If it was never sent out I do not see what significance it can possibly have. Perhaps they thought better of it after they got it prepared.

Mr. Thompson—I do not think Your Honor quite sees what it is. It is a letter to the directors from Mr. Abbott. Here is a letter by Mr. Abbott to Judge Smith.

The Master—A mere suggested letter that it might be well to send out. There we stop.

Mr. Thompson—It is written by counsel for these directors after considering the facts, and when asked to prepare a statement of reasons for discharging Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Bates—That was not the request at all.

Mr. Thompson—That was the request made.

Mr. Bates—No, it was not. It was your characterization.

Mr. Thompson—Does Your Honor rule it out? Counsel wants it in. If Your Honor rules it out that is the end of the matter.

The Master—If all the counsel want it in you may put it in.

Mr. Thompson—Very well. This is dated April 22, 1919, on the letterhead of Bates, Nay, Abbott & Dane, addressed to Judge Smith, signed by Mr. Abbott:

[Copy of Exhibit 243.]

"Bates, Nay, Abbott & Dane

"Counselors at Law

"933-939 Tremont Building

"73 Tremont Street

"Boston, Mass., April 22, 1919.

"Hon. Clifford P. Smith,

"236 Huntington Avenue,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"My dear Judge:

"I have talked over with the Governor, the proposed form of letter from the directors. Both Mr. Bates and myself still feel that it would be unwise to send out these or similar letters except to inquirers. To send them out generally, and not in response to a direct inquiry, looks as though the directors felt a little sensitive and that they must defend themselves. In our opinion, they ought to assume, as they have a right to do, that the field has confidence in them and believes in them. However, this is simply a matter of judgment and we should not feel to criticize if the board thought it best on the whole to send out such a letter generally.

"We have revised the form which you left with us just a little, and feel that it perhaps would better state the position of the board as we have redrafted it. However, we have no pride of opinion in the matter.

"I return the two drafts of letter which you left with me and also inclose a copy of the letter from Mr. Thompson to Mr. Bates.

"You will be glad to know that Judge Dodge has consented to act as master if he should be named by the court.

"Yours sincerely,

"A/L" (Signed) "LEON M. ABBOTT."
"Encs."

[Letter, dated April 22, 1919, Leon M. Abbott to Hon. Clifford P. Smith, is marked Exhibit 243.]

Mr. Thompson—The letter referred to in next to the last paragraph as having been sent from Mr. Thompson to Mr. Bates is not here. If you have got it, we will put it in if you like. Here is the proposed letter (reading):

[Copy of Exhibit 243a]

"The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

"Office of

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Boston, Mass., April 21, 1919.

"The information in this letter is sent you by reason of inquiries which have been received, and by reason of mistaken reports which have gained currency.

"Mr. John V. Dittmore was dismissed from The Christian Science Board of Directors by the votes of three members of this board, with the concurrence and approval of the fourth member, who was consulted but was unable to be present. He was dismissed in full accordance with Article 1, Section 5, of our Church Manual.

"Mr. Dittmore was not willing to cooperate with the other members of the board, his views did not accord with theirs, and he often acted independently of the board and to the hindrance and embarrassment of its work. The other members of the board frequently expostulated with him, and in a Christian spirit tried to point out the necessity for unity of purpose and action. He persisted, however, in his opposition until the situation finally became such that it seemed necessary that he be retired from membership on the board.

"The resolutions setting forth the reasons for his retirement were read to him and he was given an opportunity to resign. This he declined to do, and thereupon he was removed.

"Sincerely yours,"

[Proposed letter, dated April 21, 1919, headed "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Office of The Christian Science Board of Directors," is marked Exhibit 243a.]

The Master—Perhaps we better stop until 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Q. (By Mr. Streeter.) I have only a few questions more, Mr. Jarvis. I hand you a letter, a copy of a letter, which I understand that you made, which was sent by the Board of Directors to Mrs. John M. Longyear, under date of Nov. 6, 1917. Did you make a copy of that letter (handing letter to witness)?

Mr. Streeter (To Mr. Bates)—Perhaps you have the original—no, you wouldn't have the original; you would have another copy. I was asking Governor Bates.

A. It has every evidence of being a copy of a letter prepared in our office.

Q. And the copy was made by you, wasn't it? A. Not by me personally; it was made by a stenographer.

Q. Under your direction? A. Yes.

Mr. Streeter—I offer this.

Mr. Bates—May I see it, please?

Mr. Streeter—Oh, certainly, Governor.

[Letter from the Board of Directors to Mrs. John M. Longyear, dated Nov. 6, 1917, is marked Exhibit 244, and is read by Mr. Streeter as follows:

[Exhibit 244.]

"Nov. 6, 1917.

"Mrs. John M. Longyear,
"Leicester Street,
"Brookline, Massachusetts.
"Dear Mrs. Longyear:

"Your letter of Nov. 3, has been presented to us and we appreciate deeply your very generous offer to build and endow a 'historical building' to be dedicated to the history of Christian Science.

"We assume that this building will be devoted to housing and preserving permanently and securely records, documents, books, pictures, and other evidences of the fadeless human footsteps of the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and of those who assisted her in the fulfillment of her mission. It would seem proper, and we are sure it will coincide with your desire and expectation, that when this building is complete and ready for use, the land and building will be conveyed to The Mother Church without restrictions.

"Again thanking you, we remain,

"Very sincerely,

"THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE BOARD
"OF DIRECTORS.

"By (Signed) JAMES A. NEAL,
"Secretary."

Mr. Streeter—That is all, Mr. Jarvis.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

Q. (By Mr. Whipple)—Mr. Jarvis, in your cross-examination you stated that the directors had, at a comparatively recent date, been going through letters and manuscripts of Mrs. Eddy, in order to find things that might bear upon or concern this litigation? A. Yes.

Q. You remember that, in substance? A. Yes.

Q. Who were the people who did it? A. I think Miss Warren, of the directors' office.

Q. Any one else? A. I don't know that any one else examined them.

Q. Did you assist? A. I opened the safe and made a memorandum of what was given to Miss Warren. We opened it jointly.

Q. Do you know, in a general way, about how many papers or manuscripts or letters were examined? A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you find any that you thought, or did she find any that she thought had a bearing upon this litigation? A. I think she did.

Q. What was done with them? A. I believe she referred them to counsel.

Q. Well, what do you mean by that? A. Submitted them.

Q. Did she write a letter to counsel? A. No, she probably exhibited them to counsel for perusal, and their judgment as to their value as evidence.

Q. Did you examine them yourself? A. I did not.

Q. Did she submit them to you? A. No—some of them she did, yes.

Q. Did you see them? A. I saw some of them, yes.

Q. How many of them? A. Oh, perhaps five or six.

Q. How did you happen to see those, as distinguished from the others? A. I saw certain Manuals with Mrs. Eddy's penned notations therein.

Q. Well, how did you happen to see some of them and not others? Did you request it? A. No, because I had a particular interest in keeping track of these Manuals, to see that they went back into the safe, because of the large number of various issues of the Manual in the directors' offices.

Q. Did you request it? A. I beg pardon?

Q. How did you happen to see certain ones and not others? Did you request it? A. Because I was present when they were examined.

Q. Now, to what extent were you present when the papers were being examined? A. I was not present when the papers were being examined, but only when Manuals were being gone over; certain Manuals.

Q. Your specialty in that examination was Manuals? A. Yes.

Q. So to speak, and such Manuals as were discovered bearing any notation indicating that they had come under Mrs. Eddy's eye, you examined? A. I did.

Q. And put back in the safe? A. No.

Q. What did you do with them? A. They are in the hands of counsel.

Q. Did you put them there? A. I did.

Q. Do you know of any that they have not already put in evidence in their documentary proof? A. I do.

Q. How many Manuals, or copies of Manuals among those that you discovered have they thus far failed to put in evidence? A. Those to which I am referring at this moment are, I believe, four, possibly five Manuals.

Q. That is, that they have not put in evidence? A. Yes.

Q. You noticed that they had not offered some, or marked them for identification? A. I was about to explain.

Q. Pardon me. You noticed, did you not? I will defer your explanation; just get your question. You noticed that they had not introduced in evidence at least four or five of those that you discovered? A. These particular ones they have not offered in evidence.

Q. They have not offered them for identification? A. Not as yet.

Q. When did you discover them? A. On Saturday morning last.

Q. Well, then, when you testified to the examination I am asking about, you did not refer to an examination last Saturday, did you? A. Certainly not.

Q. Well, I am asking you about an examination you have already testified to. Had you any part in that? A. No, only to the extent of opening the safe and to extract—

Q. Did you in that examination or as a result of it find any papers or manuscripts or letters that had to do with this litigation? A. No.

Q. That is, in any examination that was made of the manuscripts of Mrs. Eddy up to last Saturday, you had discovered nothing that concerned the litigation? That is what you mean? A. I personally did not examine any manuscripts.

Q. Had any been submitted to you, or did you know of any? A. There was—

Q. As a result of this young lady's examination? A. None that she submitted to me personally, no, sir.

Q. Has she told you about any? A. As I recall, she told me that in one of the envelopes that she found nothing pertinent to the case, and the papers were replaced.

Q. Then, as of the date that you testified of the letters and manuscripts of Mrs. Eddy's having been examined to find whether anything was there which bore upon or concerned the litigation, up to the time you so testified there hadn't been anything discovered, had there? A. Not to my personal knowledge.

Q. And not to your information, as far as concerns any information that you had either, was there? A. No.

Q. That is, an examination had been made of these manuscripts of Mrs. Eddy, to see what there was bearing on the litigation, and up to the time you testified nothing whatever, so far as you knew, had been discovered? A. No, nothing.

Q. But after you had testified, on last Saturday a further examination was made. By whom? A. By myself and Miss Warren, and certain of counsel.

Q. Which of counsel? A. Mr. Dane and Judge Smith.

Q. And then you found four or five papers or manuscripts or Manuals? A. Manuals.

Q. Which you kept out for submission to counsel? A. Yes.

Q. And those have not shown up yet? A. No.

Q. In the case. Then, to summarize your testimony, although you had discovered this great mass, or bulk of documents for evidence favorable to the directors, or evidence bearing on the issues of the case, you discovered nothing until last Saturday? A. I have not testified to going over a great mass of manuscripts, in testimony, only to a portion which was examined.

Q. This young lady went over all of it, didn't she? A. No, by no means.

Q. That is, she made a partial examination, then, of these manuscripts, for the purpose of discovering what bore upon this litigation? A. That would correctly characterize it.

Q. That was made after the date of this meeting, in which it is recorded that Governor Bates advised you not to go ahead on this case; he thought you were not prepared with your reasons? A. I could not testify as to the date.

Q. Can't you testify as to the relation between those two events; that is, calling in Governor Bates and his telling you how unprepared you were to go ahead with removal, and then the discovery among the effects, or the search among the effects of Mrs. Eddy to substantiate your position? A. No, I couldn't.

Q. Can't tell which it was? A. I can't connect the two at all. It might have occurred before or after that advice was given.

Q. In point of fact, there are in the possession or within the control of the directors something like 7000 of Mrs. Eddy's letters, are there not; letters either signed or authorized by her? A. I presume there are that many.

Q. Well, won't you look at your records, and find out? A. I don't—

Q. You have that book here. Give us the highest number that you did have.

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Dane, will you be good enough to give us your highest number, so that this man may see it?

Mr. Bates—We are not testifying now. We can't give you the figure. We would be glad to do it if we could.

Mr. Whipple—I don't want you to, but we want to get your book which contains the highest number of these things; each is stamped with a number, apparently.

Mr. Bates—No, they are not all.

Mr. Whipple—Give us the highest number you have, then. We will make a computation of the rest from it.

Mr. Dane—I am informed that there are over 7000 in the mounted collection.

Mr. Whipple—Well, that accords with what we have said. There are over 7000 that are already numbered; is that correct?

Mr. Dane—That is my information.

Q. Have you others in your possession, or in the possession or within the control of the directors that have not been mounted? A. There may be a small number, yes.

Q. But not many? A. No, not a great many.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, through this witness I should like to call to Your Honor's attention the record of Sept. 11, 1918, which has already been referred to, and referred to more than once, in our endeavor to find the real record of that meeting, which was a meeting at which the Board of Trustees were present. That is, we wanted to find, as Your Honor may remember, the explicit record of what happened between the trustees and the directors on that date. May I read all that appears, just to refresh Your Honor's recollection, with reference to that interview?

Mr. Bates—Pardon me, Mr. Whipple. Hasn't that all gone in?

Mr. Whipple—Between the trustees and the directors. It has, but I am referring to it to reestablish it in our minds, that is all.

[Mr. Whipple reads from the meeting of the directors, Sept. 11, 1918, as follows]:

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with The Christian Science Board of Directors for consideration of the pamphlet, 'Purification,' and stated their view—"

Mr. Bates—I pray Your Honor's judgment as to whether this ought to be read into the record again.

The Master—Perhaps it is hardly necessary to have it put down again in the record.

Mr. Whipple—I think it is. It is only a paragraph, if Your Honor please. It is preliminary to a question. (Reading):

"—and stated their view of the relations and respective responsibilities of these boards as the same are determined by the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust described in Art XXV, Sec. 1, thereof. The directors were unable to agree to or even acquiesce in the views expressed by the trustees, but deferred making a definite statement of the directors' views until it could be carefully prepared."

Q. You remember that record, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you remember that I have asked, and asked this young lady when she testified, for the full record of that meeting? A. Yes.

Q. And that a paper was produced which she said, so far as she knew, was a record of the meeting in relation to which there was a comment on Oct. 1? You remember that, do you not? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—May I direct Your Honor's attention to what is said about that on Oct. 1, 1918. I read again from the record:

"The minutes of the directors' meeting of Sept. 11, relating to a conference with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society on that date, were again taken up for consideration. To be referred to Judge Clifford P. Smith for an opinion as to what it will be best to include in the minutes." . . .

Q. Now, you remember at that point I asked for the data that was given to Judge Smith with reference to that meeting, and what should be included in the record? A. I do.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, may I direct Your Honor's attention and that of counsel to one other paper with reference to that meeting, as bearing on the question of whether we have really got that record yet. I refer to Exhibit 4a in letter Sept. 30, 1918, from the trustees to the directors, which begins thus:

"Dear Friends:

"Referring to our meeting with you on Wednesday, Sept. 11, and your request later that the Board of Trustees listen to the reading of the minutes of the Board of Directors recording their interpretation of that meeting, after most careful and earnest consideration, the Board of Trustees has decided that this would not be a wise course of action for the trustees to take."

Q. You remember the directors receiving that communication, do you not? A. I cannot say positively, as I was away a portion of the time; specifically, on Sept. 11.

Q. Well, you were not on Sept. 30, were you? A. I was not present Sept. 30.

Q. Well, I will ask you whether you will testify from your knowledge of the circumstances that the directors invited the trustees over to hear read a record of that meeting as meager as I have read in these records of Sept. 11, which merely states that "the trustees met the directors for consideration" — and "stated their views of the relations and respective responsibilities of these boards, as the same are determined by the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust"?

Mr. Dane—We object to the question.

Q. (Continued.) Was there not a fuller statement with regard to what was said as between the trustees and directors at that time than has yet been produced?

Mr. Dane—We object to the question, calling for the witness' knowledge. I understand that the witness was not at that time in Boston.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, but he is the corresponding secretary, and if he is away, he may have some knowledge of some more competent and probable statement in the original record as to what happened at that meeting.

The Master—I think the witness must answer so far as his knowledge goes.

Q. Did you understand the question, or would you like to have it read? A. I think I would.

Q. Very well; I would like to have it, and I would like to have you pay close attention to it, especially the latter part.

[Question read by the stenographer.]

A. Not to my knowledge. The only minutes with which I am familiar are those, and the ones from which those permanent minutes were copied, and which have been handed to you.

Q. Well, as you have known this controversy, can you state any reason why these directors would invite the trustees over "to listen to the minutes of the Board of Directors regarding their interpretation of that meeting," when there is in the record itself practically nothing but a statement that there was a meeting, and that a certain subject was referred to? [Handing record book to witness.] A. I am not familiar with any invitation the directors sent to the trustees.

Q. Look at it [handing paper to witness]. Look at it. I was just reading from it. Look at it in the first few lines of that letter of Sept. 30, which has been referred to several times. A. [Reading] "Referring to our meeting with you on Wednesday, Sept. 11, and your request later that the Board of Trustees listen to the reading of the minutes of the Board of Directors," etc.

Q. Yes. A. In the form of a letter under date of Sept. 30, I am not familiar with such an invitation, because I was not present, and had I been in Boston, I might not have been in the board room when such an invitation was sent, or it might have gone over the telephone from any of the directors to one of the trustees personally.

Q. I am not asking you to be familiar with any letter inviting them. I am asking you if with your knowledge of the circumstances you can state why in any form an invitation should be given by the directors to the trustees to come over and read the record of the Sept. 11 meeting as meager as that which is contained in your record? A. I cannot state why.

Q. Who would know? A. Possibly one of the directors who was present when such an invitation was given.

Q. You think that that is a possibility, do you? A. Yes.

Q. Would this young lady, whose name I have forgotten, know about it? A. Miss Warren?

Q. Yes. Was she discharging your duties in your absence? A. She was.

Mr. Whipple—I shall wish to ask her some questions about it.

Mr. Bates—You already have.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, but not when I had as full information of the facts, which show that she must have been mistaken.

Mr. Bates—I beg your pardon. You had those papers at that time.

Mr. Whipple—Well, if I did, we did not appreciate the significance of them as fully as we do now, when we collate them; and probably you didn't, either, or she didn't.

Now, I have asked for, and I do not remember that we have had given to us, the data which were given to Judge Smith with reference to that meeting, in order that, on the basis of those data, he might inform the directors what they should include in their records.

Mr. Bates—Let me see those papers, will you, that you have?

Mr. Whipple—What papers?

Mr. Bates—The ones that you were just reading from.

Mr. Whipple—I hand you here the record—

Mr. Bates—No; the other papers which you have.

Mr. Whipple—What other papers?

Mr. Bates—Those.

Mr. Whipple—When? Why, this is one of the exhibits in the case, the letter of Sept. 30 (passing a document to Mr. Bates), and that is material only as showing the invitation that you sent to the Board of Trustees to come over there and listen to the reading of this sort of a record which you have finally included in your records, presumably by the direction of Judge Clifford P. Smith.

Q. Now, while counsel are looking at that, I will ask you whether this record of the Sept. 11 meeting was written up before or after you got back from California—written up and put into that book? A. After I returned from California.

Q. Well, then, you must know something about the original data there which were handed over to Judge Smith to form a basis for an opinion on his part as to what should be put into the records. A. Not necessarily.

Q. No, not necessarily, but didn't you? A. No.

Mr. Dane—Mr. Whipple, I have found—

Mr. Whipple—Pardon me a moment.

Q. What did you get to make that record up from after you got home from California? A. I had the original minutes of that day.

Q. Where are they? A. They are in the court room.

Q. Produce them, please.

Mr. Dane—I have here a paper dated Sept. 11, 1918, which has heretofore been produced at your request (passing a document to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

Mr. Dane—And also a paper dated Sept. 10, 1918, which I think also was produced at your request (passing another document to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—You produced—and I will have this marked, not for the purpose of offering it, but for the purpose of identification—a paper or memorandum which purports to be dated Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1918, which has stamped on it "Copied and compared." Another stamp "Read Sept. 12, 1918, the C. S. Board of Directors." And then penciled afterward in someone's handwriting—whose, I don't know—"Approved Oct. 7." Perhaps you can tell me whose handwriting that is that I have just read (passing the document to the witness).

The Witness—I think it is Miss Warren's or Miss Lowe's.

Mr. Whipple—Let me take that, please.

The Witness—Yes (returning to Mr. Whipple the document referred to).

Mr. Whipple—Will you mark that, which consists of two and one-third typewritten sheets, and then a sheet with handwriting on it attached, and that is dated in somebody's handwriting "Wednesday, September 11, 1918." Someone has written in pencil "insert"; and it is stamped "Copied and compared"; and "Read Oct 7, 1918, the C. S. Board of Directors"; and then in pencil "& Approved." In whose handwriting is that fourth page, if you know?

The Witness—Judge Smith's.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I will offer this as an exhibit, but I want to do it with the reservation that we do not accept it as the original minutes, but we accept it as a paper which is furnished to us, because, calling Your Honor's attention to what they had written there with regard to that, we submit to Your Honor an inference, or shall submit in due time an inference, as to whether the directors would have invited the trustees over to hear any such thing read as is here recorded. But we will have it marked as an exhibit.

Mr. Thompson—Here is another one that came over from Governor Bates (passing another document to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—I will take this one first.

Mr. Thompson—That was drawn by Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Whipple—Yes. I will lay that aside for a moment, because that did not refer to a meeting.

Mr. Bates—I understand that the date, the 10th, on there, is Mr. Dittmore's mistake; it should have been the 11th.

Mr. Thompson—It should have been the 11th.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, a large part of this paper which will be marked Exhibit 245 is a duplicate of the actual record of the meeting as it seems to have been finally settled upon. Have you that Sept. 11 record?

The Witness—Yes (passing the record book to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—Therefore I am sure Your Honor would not wish me to read or to have printed in the record anything more than the paragraphs which I desire to compare; and, assuming that that has Your Honor's approval, I will call attention to the fact that the paragraph in the record which I read a moment ago, which is at the bottom of page 98 and the top of page 99, appeared in the following form, and it has been stricken out, and the revision of that paragraph appears on the pages that I have indicated. May I read what appears in the original minutes?

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with the board for consideration of the pamphlet 'Purification,' at which time the trustees presented their interpretation of the Deed of Trust under which they are operating the business of the Publishing Society, with the request for the entire cooperation of the directors of The Mother Church to the extent of consulting them on all important matters in regard to the publishing and issuing of Christian Science literature and any other affairs connected with the Publishing Society."

That was what was stricken out, and what I have read was substituted therefor.

Then the substitute is in Judge Smith's handwriting. It does not appear that Judge Smith was present at that meeting of Sept. 11, does it? Will you look and see if there is any evidence in that record of the meeting that Judge Smith was present, so that he knew what did happen?

The Witness (after examining the book of records)—No, apparently not.

Q. Apparently he was not there? A. No.

Q. Were the records of your meetings made up frequently by some person who was not there? A. No.

Q. It was not a usual occurrence that the records should be made up by some one who was not there? A. No.

Mr. Whipple—The insert in Judge Smith's handwriting is on the fourth page,

"Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1918"—

This is what appeared from the record, but the cabinet work, if I may call it that, in the way of insertions, etc., does not appear in the record.

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with The Christian Science Board of Directors"—

then here is an insert of the words "for consideration of the pamphlet 'Purification,'" and then it goes on,

"and stated their view of the relations and respective responsibilities of these boards, as the same are determined by the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust described in Article XXV, Section 1, thereof. The directors were unable to agree to or even acquiesce in the views expressed by the trustees, but deferred making a definite statement of the directors' views until it could be carefully prepared."

Mr. Bates—Will you pass that on to the Court, that memorandum, so that the Court may see it?

Mr. Whipple—That was my plan. May I ask Your Honor's special attention to that? The only thing that is changed that is of any importance is at the bottom of page 2, and if Your Honor compares it with the written memorandum which constitutes page 4, Your Honor will see that the record is changed from stating what the trustees proposed to an omission of that, and stating what the directors proposed.

Mr. Thompson—Mr. Whipple, here is a statement of what the trustees proposed (passing a document to Mr. Whipple).

[The paper produced by Mr. Dane, dated Sept. 11, 1918, in typewriting, attached to which is a paper in manuscript, dated Sept. 11, 1918, from which the foregoing excerpts are read, is marked Exhibit 245. R. H. J.]

Mr. Whipple—Will Your Honor be good enough to keep that (Exhibit 247. R. H. J.) while I read another paper for comparison? Your Honor may desire to look it over. With that memorandum (Exhibit 245. R. H. J.) came this one, handed to me by Governor Bates, which contains these legends at the top: In pencil, "Filed by Mr. Dittmore." Whose handwriting is that?

The Witness—Miss Warren's, I think.

Mr. Whipple—Then in red pencil, "File." Then stamped on it is this legend, "Copies sent to directors Sept. 16, 1918." Then the legend is stamped on it "Indexed." Then in pencil, "Copy sent to Mr. Dickey 4/2/19 L." Whose handwriting is that?

The Witness—Miss Lowe's.

Q. Who is she? A. A stenographer in the directors' office.

Mr. Whipple—Then in pencil, "Copy to Mr. Neal 4/26/19 L." Then the legend, which is stamped, "Read Sept. 16, 1918, the C. S. Board of Directors."

Now, if Your Honor please, the typewritten heading of what I am about to read is,

"Memorandum of additions to complete minutes of meeting of Sept. 10, 1918."

I am informed that all agree that that "10" is a typographical error for "11." Am I right?

The Witness—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Now, I will read a paper which I shall offer, consisting of two pages, one full written and the other about a third written.

[Copy of Exhibit 246.]

"Memorandum of additions to complete minutes of meeting of Sept. 10, 1918.

"The trustees protested against the recent order of the directors through the business manager of the Publishing Society to stop, pending a personal interview, the issuance of the pamphlet, 'Purification,' on the ground that 'the absolute management of the Publishing Society is vested in the trustees, and if the directors have anything to do with the publishing house it must be through the trustees.'

"The trustees also presented what they declared to be their further present unanimous concept of the relation of their Board of Trustees to The Mother Church and to its Board of Directors, which included the following points:

"(a) That the 'directors have no supervision of the trustees or right to declare vacancies on the Board of Trustees except only for dishonesty or immorality.'

"(b) That the trustees do not recognize that the directors have succeeded to any of the rights or responsibilities stated in The Mother Church By-Laws as formerly belonging to Mrs. Eddy in relation to the Publishing Society and its Board of Trustees.

"(c) That the final decision on what goes out as official Christian Science literature rests with the trustees.'

"(d) That 'the trustees need not employ the manager or editors whom the directors elect.'

"(e) That 'the trustees must hereafter be supreme in the publishing house.'

"(f) That 'the trustees are absolute in formulating rules for the recognition of practitioners' cards and church cards in The Christian Science Journal.'

"After a general discussion of the above-named matters and other questions related thereto covering a period of over three hours, the directors stated to the trustees that they would give further consideration to the whole subject and would advise the trustees of their conclusions."

[Document, two pages, headed "Memorandum of conditions to complete minutes of the meeting of Sept. 10, 1918," is marked Exhibit 246.]

Q. Now, when you got back that memorandum, which is marked Exhibit 246, was in your possession, was it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it was in your possession as one of the original memoranda of what happened at that meeting, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Who told you not to include it in the record? A. I do not recall that any instructions were given to me relative thereto.

Q. Did you upon your own responsibility reject it from the record? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, then, who did? Whose responsibility was it, if you know?

Mr. Bates—Pardon me just a moment. I furnished that paper to you and therefore I have a right to state to His Honor what that paper is, inasmuch as you have not done so. That is a memorandum which was drawn up by Mr. Dittmore of what he thought it would be well to put in the record as the result of that conference. The board could not agree with him as to it, or as to what had taken place, and then it was that the question was submitted to Judge Smith to see what ought properly to go into the record in regard to that matter. It was the result of a dispute or a difference between Mr. Dittmore and the other directors. And this memorandum was drawn by Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Thompson—I am advised, if Your Honor please, that all of that statement except that it was drawn by Mr. Dittmore is absolutely not the fact. I would like to have that go on record also. Mr. Dittmore informs me that everything you have said except the mere fact that that was written by him is without foundation in fact. That was an accurate statement of what took place and he urged it for that reason.

Mr. Bates—Do I understand you to deny that Mr. Dittmore and the other directors could not agree as to what ought to go into the record, and that was the reason it was drawn up?

Mr. Thompson—I think, to use your own expression, we will wait now until Mr. Dittmore gives a full and accurate account, as he expects to do, from diaries and notes of what really took place here at this and other meetings, where your records utterly fail to show the truth.

Mr. Bates—My explanation was intended merely to assist Your Honor. I think Your Honor understands the situation, notwithstanding Mr. Thompson undertook to befog it.

Mr. Whipple—Colloquy between counsel has perhaps explained by whose authority this paper, which purported to be a statement of what had happened, failed to go on record.

The Master—It leaves me in doubt on this point: That paper, which purported to be a statement of what happened—the one you last read, Exhibit 246—aren't we left in some doubt as to whether this was a part of the original memoranda of what happened at the meeting, kept by or under the authority of the recording officers? What is there to show that that was the case in regard to this paper?

Mr. Whipple—As I have relied entirely upon the colloquy which has taken place between counsel for the respective defendants, I am unable to answer, and I fear this witness may be unable to answer, except that I will now, in view of what Your Honor said, press the question—

The Master—It purports to be a memorandum of additions to complete minutes of meeting.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, may I suggest—

The Master—It appears also to have been read at the meeting of the Board of Directors.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, read twice.

The Master—Read at the Board of Directors' meeting a week later.

Mr. Whipple—Read twice, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Read twice?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—We have not any clear testimony, have we, that it was a memorandum of what took place at the meeting, made at the time by anyone whose duty it was to keep memoranda of what took place at the meeting?

Mr. Whipple—Well, now, one difficulty lies in this, if Your Honor please—that so far as I have found out, I can't find whose duty it was to keep memoranda. Almost anybody who felt like it kept memoranda, and then when they started to make up the record this major seemed to control, the strongest one, the one having the largest number of votes, dictated what the record should be, and not always with fine regard to what had actually happened.

The Master—Very well. With regard to the first paper that you have presented here, Exhibit 245—I understand this witness says it was a part of the original memorandum made at the meeting?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, I understand him to say that it was.

The Master—I do not understand him to make any such statement regarding this Exhibit 246.

Mr. Whipple—I don't know that he has.

The Master—So that they stand on different grounds?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—And on what grounds they do stand we are certainly left in very considerable doubt.

Mr. Whipple—I feel myself unable with the present witness to clear that up, unless some question occurs to Your Honor which I might put. Because you see I am depending largely upon colloquy of counsel. If it becomes very material we shall offer the trustees' version as to what happened, but at the present time we are dealing with a situation with regard to the directors' records that was a little startling to us in view of the desire of every one to have accuracy in those records.

Mr. Thompson—It might assist if I recall the fact that Miss Warren testified, when asked by me—I was referring to Mr. Dittmore absolutely—that Mr. Dickey did start to dictate the minutes of the meeting himself, she saw that. She went to that extent. When I asked her if he did not tear them up, she said she didn't know.

The Master—I don't think that helps us very much.

Mr. Thompson—It simply shows there was another set of memoranda started to be dictated by Mr. Dickey of what took place. These contemporaneous interests seem to differ very widely in their statements of fact.

The Master—We look first, do we not, to contemporaneous memoranda made under the authority of somebody whose duty it was to keep them?

Mr. Thompson—We would like to, but we can't find them sometimes.

The Master—Where are those? That is the first thing.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, the directors apparently have no sworn clerk. Sometimes the secretary makes them up, sometimes the stenographer is there and takes a part of it. I think the situation is subject to the comment I made some time ago that they are not an organized body, that their records are not such records as are contemplated in our statutes; that is, records which may be put in by reason of the fact they are the records of some one who by law ought to make a record. I offer that suggestion, if Your Honor please, although, it may be, and probably is a fact that The Christian Science Board of Directors, as Trustees under Mrs. Eddy's Deed of Trust for holding church property, are probably a corporation, whether they think they are or not, under our statutes.

The Master—To that extent it would seem as if they must be at least such a body as were required to keep records.

Mr. Whipple—But if they do not know it, and do not have any officer to keep them who is sworn to that duty, but simply go slipshod about it, anybody who happens to be there noting down whatever happens to interest him, then they lose that reality of record.

The Master—We must remember we have not as yet the testimony of any of them.

Mr. Bates—I submit, Your Honor, that notwithstanding all these comments that Mr. Whipple has made with regard to the records, which are so far apart from the evidence, that these records have been kept in a manner which is almost exemplary. You can hardly produce a corporation which has been formed by Mr. Whipple, or by any of his clients, that has records that have been kept so well as these records have been kept.

Mr. Whipple—I do not form corporations.

The Master—You mean, generally speaking.

Mr. Bates—Generally speaking. When he refers to the fact that these records are made up from memoranda, it is the almost universal custom at the present time. These records have been made up in the same way. When he says there is no secretary, he knows that every one of those records is signed by the recording secretary and also signed by the chairman.

Mr. Whipple—Are either of them sworn as recording officers of a corporation, so far as you know?

Mr. Bates—You have not put in evidence that they are not, and I assume they are.

Mr. Whipple—That is what I was commenting on. I say that different people, naming themselves secretaries, do not make them so unless they are sworn under the statute.

Mr. Bates—Well, if you will turn back to the records, you will find, probably, that they were sworn.

Mr. Whipple—I am not going back hunting for what you think is probable. If you will point out anything, then we will have a certainty. However, I think perhaps we have commented fully as much as Your Honor would approve in regard to it. I do not think of any further questions that I can put with regard to a controversy which is entirely between the different members of the Board of Directors, and one regarding which we have no personal knowledge.

Mr. Bates—I will just add one thing more, Your Honor, and that is in regard to what is in these records and the implications in regard to these memoranda. The records, as Your Honor suggested the other day, are supposed to keep an actual statement of what is done, they are not supposed to keep discussions, and if a discussion of the trustees lasted three hours there is no reason why the discussion should be in there. If that is present, that is all the record is supposed to show. These records show that Judge Smith's suggestions in regard to it did not change the facts at all; it simply changed the question as to how much of a discussion should be put into the record.

Mr. Whipple—The only thing that changed was a fair record to one that was not fair to the trustees—that is all.

Mr. Bates—The record is absolutely fair in accordance with your own trustees' records.

Mr. Whipple—Pardon me. The original record of the Dittmore record shows what the trustees were there for and what they said. And under the advice of counsel that was entirely omitted for the purpose of putting in the position of the directors. Now, if you call that a fair record, why, you are welcome to thus name it. I was not characterizing the fact that they did not have a discussion put there; I was criticizing the fact that they made a partisan record against the trustees rather than a fair one.

Mr. Bates—I assert that you can't show it by the record or by any memoranda in connection with it.

Mr. Whipple—I assert that the record and the things shown in connection with it by the admissions of the counsel indicate it was not a fair record. Now, I will ask—

The Master—Well, we have now, haven't we, all the facts that we can get at the present time about that record?

Mr. Whipple—From this witness, yes, Your Honor.

The Master—Now, inasmuch as the directors are now supposed to be putting in their case, hadn't we better leave it there for the present?

Mr. Whipple—That is what I was about to do, having on my tongue's end to ask for another letter from Mr. Dickey when he was down south. It was Jan. 14. We called for a letter the other day which we read, and we find there was another one which was not produced and which we had not technically asked for, to be sure. That is of the present year, Miss Warren. I think it was called to your attention Friday.

Mr. Bates—My recollection is, Your Honor, that we handed Mr. Whipple two letters the other day and he returned one of them and said he didn't want it.

Mr. Whipple—There are three. You handed one which was camouflage, and I handed it back. But it was one that we did not want.

Mr. Bates—Now, I object. I ask my brother to explain what he means by saying one was camouflage?

Mr. Whipple—I mean, it was utterly immaterial, and when you handed me a letter that was utterly immaterial you did not hand me one that was very material. That is what I mean by "camouflage."

Mr. Bates—We handed you the one you asked for.

Mr. Whipple—I might have said that you were trying to draw a herring across the trail, but I didn't, I just called it camouflage, because that is politer. Now, let me have the real one.

Mr. Bates—I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that he read one of them and had it read into the record. If he did not regard it as material he certainly was taking up the time of the Court.

Mr. Whipple—I did. There were three letters instead of two. You haven't got it straightened out now, Governor Bates. You don't know what is being done under your pure personality. Hand it over.

Mr. Bates—Oh, it is very hard work to find out what is being done by you at times.

Mr. Whipple—That is all right, but you ought to keep up with the procession, and then you would know.

The Master—Have you now got the letter he is calling for?

Mr. Bates—I don't know, Your Honor, yet.

Mr. Streeter—Governor, I guess you had better let him have it.

Mr. Bates—There is something (handing paper to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—This is a letter from Adam H. Dickey to The Christian Science Board of Directors, Boston, Massachusetts, and it is dated Jan. 14, 1919. It is on the letterhead of the Savannah River Lumber Co., manufacturers of long and short leaf yellow pine, cypress and hardwoods, Savannah, Georgia. It is stamped: "Read, Jan. 16, 1919. The C. S. Board of Directors." (Reading):

[Copy of Exhibit 247]

"Savannah, Georgia,
"Jan. 14, 1919.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Brethren: Doubtless you have thought over many phases of the controversy now on between our board and the trustees of the Publishing Society, and you may have already considered the question of bringing charges against them individually for infraction of The Mother Church By-Laws. It seems to me there are a number of important By-Laws which cover their case, and if they continue their insane actions they could easily be disciplined.

"You may have thought this all out and concluded it would not be wise to pursue such a course at present, but the thought has come to me, and I decided it would do no harm to pass it along. Certainly, if ever anyone has worked against the Cause and against what Mrs. Eddy has considered best for the Cause, the present trustees are doing it to the fullest extent. Perhaps if the directors were to order one or more of their cards removed from the Journal they would refuse to consent and dispute the authority of the board—thereby furnishing additional cause for their removal. There seems to be no end to the complications which might ensue; therefore, I am leaving the question with you.

"Sincerely yours,
(Signed) "ADAM H. DICKEY."

Q. Now, you know what church discipline means, don't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Unchurching? A. Yes.

Q. And you know or understand from this Trust Deed that if they could turn these trustees out of the Church on some excuse that they could no longer be trustees because they were not good Christian Scientists? You know that, don't you? A. I understand church discipline to mean just exactly what the term "discipline" means—not necessarily to dismiss a person from membership in the church, but to admonish them or to otherwise discipline them.

Q. Yes; but if they did not mind the admonishment, you understand what unchurching them is? A. The Manual provides the means for disciplining the members of The Mother Church.

Q. And, among other things, discipline means turning them out? A. That is one.

Q. You understand if they were turned out they could not be trustees of the Publishing Society? A. Not under the Manual.

Q. Well, not under the Trust Deed.
A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—I offer that as an exhibit, if Your Honor please—I don't know as its materiality is questioned—as showing the discussion of the things which we outlined in our bill against which we ask an injunction.

[Letter, Adam H. Dickey to directors, Jan. 14, 1919, is marked Exhibit 247.]

Mr. Whipple—That closes our examination.

The Master—Anything further from this witness?

Mr. Dane—Only one or two questions.

Re-Direct Examination

Q. (By Mr. Dane) You were asked, Mr. Jarvis, about the compensation that you received from The Mother Church and you stated, as I recall it, that it was $5500 a year. A. That is correct.

Q. What positions do you hold for which you receive the compensation of $5500? A. Clerk of The Mother Church and corresponding secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors.

Q. In addition to those positions, have you other duties in connection with The Mother Church? A. I have.

Q. And what other duties or what other positions do you hold in connection with The Mother Church? A. Clerk of The Christian Science Benevolent Association and clerk of the trustees under clause 6 of the Will of Mary Baker Eddy.

Q. For those latter two positions you receive no compensation? A. No compensation at all.

Q. You were asked also, Mr. Jarvis, something with relation to the so-called loss of $90,000 on a purchase of wool in connection with the war relief work. I wish you would explain what you know about what was termed a loss of that sum of money by the examiner. A. The Comforts Forwarding Committee in Boston and in other places was made possible—through an announcement from The Christian Science Board of Directors, appearing in, I think, the latter part of 1917. When the committee was organized in Boston, funds wherewith to carry on its activities were appropriated from the War Relief Fund, to which contributions were made by Christian Scientists from all over the world, for the purpose of extending war relief of various kinds to the people in the countries affected by the war. It was considered an opportunity to provide comforts for the armies and navies of the allied nations, and for refugees and others suffering in the countries affected by the war. These Comforts Forwarding Committees purchased yarn, knitted it into sweaters, helmets, socks and other garments, and this yarn was purchased at the time when the demand for that commodity was tremendous and the prices soaring constantly. The comfort of the people as a humanitarian measure was considered of prime importance rather than the money involved. When the armistice was signed, considerable wool was on hand and additional quantities contracted for. Naturally, with a prospect of an early peace, the price of wool in the open market depreciated, and I presume that is what is referred to as a loss. As a matter of fact, the Comforts Forwarding Committee was not in a commercial business but was conducting a humanitarian activity, and that wool was, all of it, either sold to those who knitted it into garments for those in need, or given away for such a purpose. So no actual loss, as I understand it—no actual monetary loss—accrued, aside from the expense of administration and cost of shipment, etc., which is a legitimate charge against a charity.

Mr. Streeter—Are you through?

Mr. Dane—No, not quite.

Q. I have in my hand, Mr. Jarvis, eight books of the minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, covering a period from 1909 to 1916. Perhaps you can identify those books without carefully examining them; I presume you have examined them many times. (Handing books to witness.) A. I can identify them as the minutes of the regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors for a succession of years.

Q. And, for the purpose of the record, will you state the date of the earliest meeting recorded in those books and the date of the last meeting? A. The date of the earliest meeting is May 31, 1909.

Mr. Whipple—Why not have that with regard to each volume, for purposes of identification, the first meeting and the last?

Mr. Dane—I have no objection.

Mr. Whipple—You cannot have those all marked by one number.

Mr. Dane—No. I have no objection.

Q. If you will adopt Mr. Whipple's suggestion, and read beginning with the earliest record, the earliest date in it and the last date in it, and so on through the series.

The Master—Do I understand these are what have been referred to as original minutes?

Mr. Dane—These, I understand, are Mr. Dittmore's official records of the Board of Directors from 1909 to 1916.

Mr. Whipple—I understand they are only offered for identification.

Mr. Dane—Yes; while Mr. Dittmore was secretary.

The Master—These other books that we have been listening to are a different date.

Mr. Dane—From 1916 to date.

The Master—Oh, yes.

Mr. Dane—While Mr. Jarvis was secretary.

The Master—I see. Now we go back to 1909-16, during Mr. Dittmore's incumbency?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

The Master—Very good.

A. The first book contains the minutes beginning with May 31, 1909, to and including those of Dec. 30, 1909. [Marked Exhibit 248 for identification.]

The second record book contains the minutes of meetings from Jan. 1, 1910, to Dec. 30, 1910, both dates inclusive.

[Marked Exhibit 249, for identification.]

The next book includes the records of meetings of the directors from Jan. 2, 1911, to Dec. 29, 1911, both dates inclusive.

[Marked Exhibit 250, for identification.]

The next book contains the minutes of the meetings of the directors, Jan. 4, 1912, to Dec. 26, 1912, both dates inclusive.

[Marked Exhibit 251, for identification.]

The next book contains the minutes of meetings from Jan. 1, 1913, to Dec. 31, 1913, both dates inclusive.

[Marked Exhibit 252, for identification.]

The next book commences with the minutes of Jan. 7, 1914, and concludes with the minutes of the meeting of Dec. 31, 1914.

[Marked Exhibit 253, for identification.]

The next book begins with the minutes of the meeting of Jan. 6, 1915, and concludes with the meeting of Dec. 29, 1915.

Q. Hasn't that already been marked for identification? A. Yes; Exhibit 197.

Mr. Thompson—There are seven books in all? A. (Continued) The next and last book begins with the minutes of the meeting of Jan. 3, 1916, and concludes with the minutes of June 5, 1916.

[Marked Exhibit 254, for identification.]

Q. I understand, Mr. Jarvis, you were not present at the directors' meeting on Sept. 11, 1918? A. That is correct.

Q. And you were not present on Oct. 1, 1918? A. I was not.

Q. You were away on your vacation? A. I was.

Mr. Dane—That is all now.

Re-Cross Examination

Q. (By Mr. Streeter) Mr. Jarvis, I called your attention last Thursday to a letter which the chairman of the Board of the Benevolent Association had written asking for information about the finances. A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Dittmore is chairman, is he not? A. He is chairman by reason of his former association with the Board of Directors.

Q. What do you mean by his former association? A. Well, as a former director of The Mother Church.

Q. Well, what do you mean by a former director? Are you passing on the question of whether he is now or was formerly a director? A. He became a director of the Benevolent Association because of being a director of The Mother Church.

Q. How long has he been trying to get information from you about the finances of the Benevolent Association?

Mr. Bates—Hasn't that all been gone into, Your Honor?

Q. For the last two or three weeks? A. Yes.

Q. Has he got it? A. Not yet.

Q. Is he going to have it? A. He is.

Q. When? A. As soon as it can be handed to him.

Q. How long will that be?

The Master—Why should we spend time on this now, General Streeter? We went into it the other day, didn't we, to some extent?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, we did. We have been trying for two or three weeks to get some information and we haven't got it.

The Master—All subsequent to the date of the suit.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I know, but he is responsible; he is the responsible official.

The Master—Oh, I do not deny there may be a time and place at which you have a right to do it, but hardly now and here, is it?

Mr. Streeter—Well, I don't know. Your Honor knows better than I do.

Q. Have you called a meeting of the Association for tomorrow? A. I have.

Q. Have you got money enough to pay your bills?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment on such a question as that.

The Master—I don't think we ought to go into that now.

Mr. Streeter—I withdraw it because Your Honor thinks I ought to.

The Master—Mr. Dane, what next?

Mr. Dane—I have some records from the books of the trustees that I would like to put in at this time.

The Master—Are you going to call a witness?

Mr. Dane—No witness. They are the trustees' records. I assume that we can read such extracts from them as seem to be material. Mr. Krauthoff can read the records.

The Master—You can read those most any time. Had you not better be getting through with your testimony?

Mr. Dane—Records in the trustees' books of course have to be offered sometime. It seemed to us that it would possibly make the testimony of the witnesses more intelligible if those records were read now.

The Master—Very well.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, this is the first record book of the trustees, being the book which bears on its title page, page 1, these words:

"Minute Book for the Board of Trustees appointed by the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy for her Trust in behalf of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts."

I do that by way of identifying the book. I suppose that it ought to be identified by the stenographer.

Mr. Whipple—I think not, if Your Honor please. I think that the things that are read should be marked with exhibit numbers, the same course that was pursued with the directors' records; and I should like to see what you intend to read, if there is very much of it, and see whether we object to its materiality.

Mr. Krauthoff—There is considerable of it.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I think, if Your Honor please, that it would be much better for them to call attention to such things as they desire to offer, and then we can know whether we assent or object. Why not go ahead with oral evidence and get this thing into shape by agreement with counsel, not taking Your Honor's time, so that they can be read promptly and with dispatch, instead of taking so much time as we are taking by reading these dry details of records?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, these are all arranged. There are other documents that fit in, and I will always show Mr. Whipple what it is that I expect to offer.

Mr. Whipple—You can show it to Mr. Withington after hours and the question will be immediately settled whether there is any objection to its materiality, and there will not be these delays for discussion. I offer the suggestion merely to facilitate and expedite the procedure, if Your Honor please. However, if Your Honor does not approve of it, I will not press it.

The Master—I think if it could be done it would be a good thing to do it, but Mr. Dane's statement is that he puts these in now because he believes that they will assist and expedite the examination of witnesses whom he is going to call.

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be very glad—

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, it did not occur to him last week when he put Mr. Dickey on the stand: they were not going to have in any of these records: they were ready to go right ahead with him. So that they must have had enlightenment since that time.

Mr. Dane—No; we have not had any enlightenment, but we have had about a day of directors' records, and that being so, I think that we ought to have the correlative records of the trustees.

The Master—I think that we will go on, and follow the same course with regard to the trustees' records that was pursued with regard to the directors' records, as far as possible?

Mr. Krauthoff—On page 3 of the book, if Your Honor please, is a document headed, which has heretofore been offered in evidence in the examination of Mr. Eustace; and we desire to begin on page 7.

"A Gift to The Mother Church, and A Grant of Trusteeship,"

Mr. Whipple—While you are speaking of that, I find, if Your Honor please, by comparing it with Mrs.

Eddy's original letter, that there are some errors or omissions in the copy which we have in our record book. The copy that was given to the trustees was not a correct copy. So sometime we want to put in the original, but we will not stop now.

Now, as to what you want to read, I am going, if Your Honor please, to suggest that it be read without my stopping to look it over to consider whether I will object to it, but it will be with the understanding that I may offer any suggestions about it after it is read. I think that that will save time.

Mr. Krauthoff—After the document of Jan. 15, 1898, to which Mr. Whipple has referred, as set out—and at the proper time we will produce the original of that document—the record continues—

The Master—Where is the original, while we are on that? I mean, which side has possession of it just now?

Mr. Krauthoff—We have it here.

The Master—All right. That answers my question. You have that in your books, your collection of Mrs. Eddy's writings?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; it is right here.

Mr. Krauthoff—Page 7:

"Whereas, on Jan. 15, 1898, the above letter was addressed by Mary Baker G. Eddy to The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, accompanied by the above instrument in writing, and both documents were read in a meeting of the First Members of the said Church convened on that date; and,

"Whereas, this Gift and Grant was accepted by The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, through its First Members at this meeting held on Jan. 15, 1898, and so recorded in the minutes of the said meeting by the Clerk of the Church; and,

"Whereas, for the purpose of carrying out the Trust above mentioned, Edward P. Bates, James A. Neal, and William P. McKenzie met at the publishing house of The Christian Science Publishing Society, at 95 Falmouth Street, in Boston, Massachusetts, at 9 o'clock in the morning of the 26th day of January, 1898; and,

"Whereas, Judge S. J. Hanna presented to the meeting a deed from Mary Baker G. Eddy to The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, of the real estate of the above-mentioned Gift, which deed is as follows:—"

The deed is not here recorded.

"And whereas the said Judge S. J. Hanna presented also a bill of sale and Declaration of Trust from Mary Baker G. Eddy to Edward P. Bates, James A. Neal and William P. McKenzie, a copy of which is as follows."

Then here follows a document attached to the Bill in Equity herein as Exhibit A, which has been heretofore offered in evidence. And then the record continues (page 19):

"Thereupon

"The said Edward P. Bates, James A. Neal and William P. McKenzie accepted all and singular the terms, conditions and specifications contained in the said Declaration of Trust and proceeded to enter upon their duties as such trustees by organizing, as follows: Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Edward P. Bates; treasurer, James A. Neal; secretary, William P. McKenzie."

Your Honor will recall that in the Deed of Trust the Hymnal was made a part of the Deed of Trust—the Church Hymnal in connection with that—

Mr. Whipple—You do not mean that the Church Hymnal was made a part of the Deed of Trust?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was conveyed in the Deed of Trust.

Mr. Whipple—Oh.

[The minutes from the Minute Book of the Board of Trustees of which the foregoing are extracts, are Exhibit 255. R. H. J.]

Mr. Krauthoff—On Feb. 4, 1898, an adjourned meeting of the Board of Trustees was convened at 9:20 a. m. Present Messrs. Bates, Neal and McKenzie.

"Voted, That the secretary write to Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy in regard to the Church Hymnal included in her Deed of Trust but copyrighted by the Christian Science Board of Directors."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, of Feb. 4, 1898, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 256. R. H. J.]

On Feb. 11, 1898 (page 29):

"At 95 Falmouth Street the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 9:15 a. m. Present Messrs. Bates, Neal, and McKenzie. . . .

"At this meeting the following notice was approved for insertion in the March Journal:

"It is announced that The Christian Science Journal has become the official organ of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, and that in the April number, 1898, the names of Christian Scientists therein given will be arranged in directory form; and as it is desirable to have all names of Christian Science practitioners properly accredited and advertised, blanks will be sent to all who request them that the information desired may be furnished. These blanks will hereafter be sent to new applicants; and present advertisers are requested to send for them and fill them out so that the record may be preserved on file. Since all mentioned in this directory will be known as Christian Science practitioners, and as this department of The Journal has become over-voluminous, it is desirable that the cards be condensed as much as possible."

Mr. Whipple—What is the date of that, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is Feb. 11, 1898.

In connection with that, we desire to call attention to the fact that such notice appears in The Christian Science Journal for March, 1898, and that The Christian Science Journal for January, 1898, bears upon its cover the imprint, and the same imprint appears upon the February, 1898, Journal; and the same upon the March, 1898, Journal. In due course I will offer the April, 1898, Journal to show the change. On the same day, Feb. 11, 1898 (page 33):

"Official Organ of National Christian Scientist Association";

"For insertion in the April Journal, to head the Directory, the following notice was framed:

"Those whose names are hereafter inserted in this Directory must be members of The Mother Church, and so amenable to its discipline, and have recommendation as Christian Science practitioners deemed satisfactory to The Christian Science Publishing Society. They must be Christian Scientists who use as their only textbooks the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and who use and distribute in Christian Science work only the works of Mary Baker G. Eddy and the publications of The Christian Science Publishing Society. If conclusive evidence be furnished that any person named here is not conformed in life and practice to the teaching of the above-named textbooks, such name will be removed, money due for unexpired term being refunded."

Page 41: "April 15th, 1898. Regular meeting convened at 9 a. m. All members present. A reply to communication sent Feb. 4th to Mrs. Eddy was received from Mr. C. A. Frye, as follows: Stating that Mrs. Eddy 'desires the copyright of Hymnal to remain the property of the C. S. Board of Directors, and of course the revenue to go to them.' This letter was dated April 9th, 1898.

"Voted that the Business Manager be instructed to pay to the Christian Science Board of Directors the net receipts from sales of the Hymnal."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of April 15, 1898, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 258. R. H. J.]

Page 47: "May 20th, 1898. Regular meeting of the trustees convened at 9 a. m., present Messrs. Neal & McKenzie.

"A communication from Rev. Mary Baker Eddy was received directing that the forthcoming Quarterly be copyrighted in her name—which was so ordered."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of May 20, 1898, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 259. R. H. J.]

Page 49: "June 8, 1898. Special meeting in lieu of this week's regular meeting called at 5 p. m., present Messrs. Bates and McKenzie. Voted to withdraw name of (blank) from list of practitioners in Journal for reasons given in writing by Mrs. (blank)."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of June 8, 1898, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 260. R. H. J.]

We are offering that, if Your Honor please, for the purpose of showing that at that time the Publishing Society took names out of the list, in connection with further evidence as to a change in the Manual, and the practice thereafter. We omit the reading of the names, because, it being a matter of discipline, the name is not important.

Page 51: "July 8, 1898. Regular meeting of trustees convened at 9:10 a. m. Present Messrs. Bates and McKenzie, and later Mr. Neal.

"Applications for cards in August Journal were passed upon, and various communications received. A notice for the Journal was framed as follows: 'The attention of the branch churches of The Mother Church is called to the notices published in The Christian Science Journal for December, 1896, page 424, and for June, 1898, at the foot of page 167. And also to the general directions regarding church services in the Manual, in so far as they govern the members of The Mother Church. Branch churches which are not conformed to these directions cannot be advertised in the Journal.'"

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of July 8, 1898, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 261. R. H. J.]

In connection with that notice, attention is called to The Christian Science Journal for December, 1896, at page 424, which contains this notice:

"The Bible Lessons as prepared by a committee appointed for that especial purpose, constitute the entire lesson-sermon, and no remarks whatever by the readers about the lesson or in explanation thereof are to be made at any time during the service."

Also, attention is called to the statement in the Journal for June, 1898, page 167:

"Notice

"All the churches of Christ, Scientist, are hereby notified to hold their weekly Friday evening testimonial meetings on Wednesday instead of Friday evening, commencing the second Wednesday in June, 1898.

"MARY BAKER EDDY.

"Pleasant View, Concord, New Hampshire, May 11, 1898."

[The notice appearing on page 424 of The Christian Science Journal for December, 1896, from which the foregoing notice is read, is Exhibit 262. R. H. J.]

The notice appearing on page 167

of The Christian Science Journal for June, 1898, of which the foregoing is a copy, is Exhibit 263. R. H. J.]

Page 63:

"Aug. 19, 1898. Regular meeting of the trustees convened at 9:55 a. m. Present Messrs. Neal and McKenzie. A communication from Mr. Frye was reported, saying that Mrs. Eddy declined to nominate a trustee to fill the vacancy on the board. It was voted that Septimus J. Hanna be, and is now nominated by the remaining trustees to fill the vacancy on the board—in accord with directions in the Church Manual, page 28 of eighth edition, and section 10 of the Deed of Trust—and that Mrs. Eddy be notified of this nomination."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, of Aug. 19, 1898, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 264. R. H. J.]

The correlative passage in the eighth Manual, referred to in these minutes, reads as follows:

"Whenever a vacancy shall occur in said trusteeship for any cause the Pastor Emeritus reserves the right to fill the same by appointment;"—

Mr. Whipple—May I ask what you are reading now? I thought that you were reading the records of meetings.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was reading from the eighth Manual that the record of the meeting referred to.

Mr. Whipple—That has not been admitted in evidence.

Mr. Dane—I think that that is in evidence.

Mr. Whipple—You have done so much of identifying, and so little of offering in evidence, that I must confess that I never know what is offered in evidence and what is merely identified. I would like to see the exhibit.

The Master—You say that that one has been admitted unconditionally, do you, without any qualification?

Mr. Dane—My recollection is that that is so. Perhaps I can find that.

Mr. Krauthoff—Independent of any question of that kind, here is a record of the trustees which refers to the Church Manual.

Mr. Whipple—What difference does that make? The trustees do not create the Church Manual.

Mr. Krauthoff—Wait a minute. This is the book to which they do refer.

The Master—How do we know?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is being offered as the book to which they refer. Its legal aspect is another question.

Mr. Whipple—I move that that be stricken out at present, this reading from the Manual.

The Master—I think that you had better leave it out for the present.

Mr. Whipple—I thought that counsel was safely fixed for the rest of the afternoon reading records, and I did not notice what he was doing. Give us notice when you leave the records again, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Bates—He gave you notice, and you were not listening.

Mr. Whipple—It is so dull! How can we listen?

Mr. Bates—Then don't blame him.

Mr. Whipple—Sitting here and hearing these records read is very dull business.

Mr. Bates—They are your records. They ought not to be dull.

Mr. Whipple—They are not ours. The people are all dead who made these records. They are ancient history. You are not up to the times, Governor.

The Master—Are you going to read something from the minutes of every meeting for the last 20 years?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, Your Honor; I have no intention of doing that.

The Master—You are going back a long way.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have already traveled from Jan., 1898, to Nov. 21, 1899, Page 125:

"November 21, 1899.

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 9:30 a. m. All members present. . . .

"Voted, that C. S. Reading Rooms shall be advertised only when established under the auspices of a recognized Church of Christ, Scientist, or congregation holding regular Sunday services. No mention of reading rooms which are not established under this rule shall be made in personal cards or church notices."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, Nov. 21, 1899, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 265, R. H. J.]

"August 14, 1900.

. . . "In accord with the recent by-law the trustees made appointment for the Church Reading Room of Mrs. Laura Sargent, C. S. D., to have charge & Mrs. Nunn to be assistant, subject to Mrs. Eddy's approval."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Aug. 14, 1900, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 266, R. H. J.]

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, we object to that if an inference is to be drawn that there was any by-law. We do not object to the record in and of itself; but any inference that there was a by-law we should object to. It has not been shown yet that there was anybody capable of creating a by-law.

Mr. Krauthoff—Page 169, Nov. 22, 1900. "10:00 a. m. At an informal meeting with the directors the decision was agreed to that when complaints come in against practitioners whose cards are in the Journal, the trustees shall offer the accused the opportunity to present his defense, before presenting the papers to the committee appointed to administer discipline, viz., the Board of Directors and First Reader of The Mother Church."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated Nov. 22, 1900, as read by Mr.

Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 267.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Page 181, March 13, 1901: "Adjourned meeting convened at 11:30 a. m., all members present. . . . A message was received from Mr. Frye saying it was Mrs. Eddy's wish to have Mr. Willis, the new member of the Bible Lesson Committee, elected by the trustees, this being in accord with the Deed of Trust."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated March 13, 1901, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is marked Exhibit 268.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Page 183, April 8, 1901: "Special meeting with the directors convened at 12:30 p. m. and the following instructions were read from a letter signed by Mrs. Eddy, regarding Mr. Willis: 'You must put him in first editor now, not wait a day, so as to let him have the run of things. Have the trustees attend to this business at once.' In accordance with these directions, it was voted that Mr. John B. Willis be appointed first editor, and so notified, and that this action be reported to our Leader."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated April 8, 1901, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 269.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Page 199, Sept. 9, 1901:

"Special meeting of Board of Trustees convened at 10 a. m., all members present. The business manager, Mr. J. Armstrong, was present and signified that as his time would be required more continuously with other work, he desired to be relieved of his duties as business manager. A letter was written Mrs. Eddy, informing her with regard to the situation, in accord with Manual, Art. XXX, Sec. 4."

[That portion of record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Sept. 9, 1901, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 270.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Sept. 17, 1901, page 201:

"Notice was received from the Board of Directors regarding suspension of (blank) card."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Sept. 17, 1901, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 271.]

Mr. Krauthoff—March 18, 1902:

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 10 a. m., all members present. . . . From 10 to 11:45 a conference was held with the Board of Directors and First Reader in regard to recognition of churches, and the agreement came to was that as the Manual permitted a loyal and exemplary member of The Mother Church to form a branch church, when complaints were made against those forming new churches, they should be in form as required by Manual and directed to the committee on complaints, and that recognition of applicants for such branch church would be withheld so long as complaints were pending."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees dated March 18, 1902, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 272.]

Mr. Whipple—May I suggest, if Your Honor please, inasmuch as reference has been made to an agreement between the then trustees and the then directors, that it is our claim that the Deed of Trust cannot in any way be affected by any agreements of the incumbents at a particular time; that there is no estoppel; if they act either in a neglect of their duties or in ignorance of what their duties properly are, or in ignorance of the law, no estoppel is thereby created. I venture to speak of it at this time because it is likely to come up in a different form and more important relation later.

Mr. Krauthoff—At the proper time we shall present our views with respect to that phase of the case.

April 22, 1902:

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 10 a. m., all members present. . . . Conference with the directors in regard to (blank) church was had and a letter prepared in agreement."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated April 22, 1902, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 273.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Page 225, June 17, 1902:

"Special meeting convened at 11:30 and the trustees met with Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Johnson of the Board of Directors, who made it known that Archibald McLellan of Chicago had been elected editor-in-chief of the Journal and Sentinel, and Miss Mary Speakman, assistant. Mr. McLellan was present and signified his acceptance of the office and indicated that a salary proportionate to his present income would be $4500. Conference was had in regard to the work, and he announced his intention to return to Chicago and there terminate his business connections. These elections were accepted, but awaiting further instructions, no action was taken."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated June 17, 1902, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 274.]

Mr. Krauthoff—June 21, 1902, page 227:

"A special meeting of the Board of Trustees convened to meet with the directors at 11:15 a. m., and the following instructions were communicated: that during Mr. McLellan's absence they should retain Mr. Willis and Miss Speakman in charge of the editorial department with Mr. Willis in the place of editor-in-chief—that there should be published in the next Sentinel an explanation of Mr. McLellan's absence—that an editorial by Mr. Willis should appear in the next Sentinel, and that he be retained in editorial department as second editor after Mr. McLellan's return."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated June 21, 1902, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 275.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 9, 1903: (1904?)

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened 10:15 a. m., all members present. . . . Mr. McKenzie reports that on his western trip he had a conference with Mrs. (blank) and also the Board of Directors of the (blank) Church of (blank) city, and says that difficulties have been removed so that no objection remains to the establishment of the (blank) Church in (blank) city."

[That portion of record of the meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Feb. 9, 1903, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 276.]

Mr. Krauthoff—March 15, 1904:

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 10:10 a. m., all members present. . . . The passing away of our beloved sister and faithful worker, Mrs. Mary W. Munroe, having created a vacancy on the Bible Lesson Committee, and as the 'Deed of Trust' indicates that it is the duty of the Board of Trustees to fill vacancies on said Bible Lesson Committee, the situation was discussed, and it was decided that a letter be sent our revered Leader and Teacher advising her of the vacancy and requesting her to nominate anyone whom she thinks best fitted to do this work. Said letter was written and mailed this date."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated March 15, 1904, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 277.]

Mr. Krauthoff—April 11, 1904, page 282:

"Special meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 10:45 a. m. . . . A letter from our beloved Leader, Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy, requesting the appointment of Mrs. Annie M. Knott upon the Bible Lesson Committee, to fill the vacancy now existing there, was received through the Board of Directors, and in accordance with the same Mrs. Knott was notified of her appointment to take effect at once and accepted the appointment. A letter was sent our Leader notifying her of Mrs. Knott's appointment and acceptance. A similar letter was also sent the Board of Directors."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated April 11, 1904, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 278.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Nov. 3, 1904, page 295:

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 3 p. m. Present, Messrs. Clark and McKenzie. . . . The issue of a circular to advertisers was considered and proofs examined and corrected."

[That portion of record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Nov. 3, 1904, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 279.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Nov. 4, 1904:

"Meeting. . . . Time was given to a further discussion of the proposed circular and conference was had with Mr. Kimball in regard to its wording."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Nov. 4, 1904, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 280.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Nov. 5, 1904:

"A special meeting was called because of a new by-law which required further revision of the circular, and in conference with the editor-in-chief and business manager, this was done between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Nov. 5, 1904, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 281.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 6, 1904, page 297:

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 10:20 a. m., all members present. . . . It was decided by the Board of Directors to remove without further advice the cards of all advertisers in The Journal who say on the form letter which was furnished the directors that they are engaged in other professions or pursue other vocations. A general letter was prepared to be sent to such advertisers, explaining that cards are dropped to conform to a recent by-law in regard to advertisers not being engaged in other vocations or professions."

Mr. Krauthoff—April 25, 1905, page 307:

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 9:30 a. m., all members present. . . . The following letter from our beloved Leader was received by Mr. McKenzie and placed before the trustees:

"Concord, N. H., April 22, 1905.

"Rev. McKenzie. Beloved Student. I think it just and a duty for the first provisions of the Deed of Trust to be carried out for the trustees. I am glad to know that the revenue to my Church is what it already is, and I well knew it would be thus when I gave my paper to the Church.

"With love,

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

"The receipt of this letter by the trustees was duly acknowledged by one sent to our Leader, thanking her for the loving thought and interest in our welfare. A letter was also prepared and sent to the Board of Directors, together with the letter received from our Leader, and asking that her recommendation be accepted and acted upon by the directors, and the letter returned to us at once."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated April 25, 1905, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 283.]

Mr. Krauthoff—I omitted one. March 5, 1902, page 215:

"Special meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 9:45. Present, Messrs. Hatten and McKenzie. Directions from Mr. Frye for Mrs. Eddy were received stating that Mr. Tomlinson would retire from the Bible Lesson Committee, and nominating Rev. Charles D. Reynolds: accordingly Mr. Reynolds was appointed and letters sent to Mrs. Eddy announcing this action to Messrs. Tomlinson and Reynolds informing them of the change."

Mr. Krauthoff—July 23, 1902, page 231:

" . . . Meeting . . . It was voted in accord with a message from Mr. Frye, that Mr. Tomlinson be reinstated in his position on the Bible Lesson Committee, and that Mr. Reynolds, who has been his substitute, be relieved."

[That portion of record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated July 23, 1902, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 286.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Nov. 12, 1902, page 241:

"Meeting convened at 10 a. m., all members present. It was voted to nominate Miss Emma H. McLauthlin, C.S.B., and John W. Reeder, C.S.B., as librarians for the Boston Reading Room, and a letter explaining the proposed change in hours, giving from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. hospitality to the public, and presenting these nominations was written to Mrs. Eddy in accord with Art. XXXVIII, Sec. 2 of the Manual."

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 7, 1906, meeting of the Board of Trustees: "At the suggestion of our Leader made in a communication to Mr. McLellan, certain changes are to be made in the cover page of the Sentinel. An artist drawing has been prepared and this day sent to our Leader by special messenger for her consideration and approval and request to return same as soon as possible."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Aug. 7, 1906, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 290.]

Mr. Bates—May it please Your Honor, just a moment before adjournment. General Streeter has asked us to obtain for him certain information with regard to the Christian Science Benevolent Association. I did not understand, and do not understand, that we are under any obligation to do so, but we are pleased to furnish him the information as a matter of courtesy, and as he made the request in open court I hand it to him in open court.

Mr. Streeter—Governor Bates, you are a good man, and I appreciate your courtesy very much. I thank you.

The Master—Shall we stop until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning?

[Adjourned to 10:00 a. m., Tuesday, July 15, 1919.]

July 15, 1919

FOURTEENTH DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room, Boston, Massachusetts, July 15, 1919.

The Master—Go on, Mr. Krauthoff. Mr. Krauthoff—We offer from the second record book kept by the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society the minutes of the meeting of Jan. 4, 1908, at page 1:

"Special meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 11:45 a. m., all members present. Mr. Stewart announced that he had received appointment as director on condition of resigning from the Board of Trustees, and after discussion of the situation presented his resignation, which was accepted with regret for the loss of his brotherly fellowship in work, and with congratulations, because of the new opportunity for service. The remaining trustees conferred together and presented the case to the Leader according to the Manual, asking her if she wished to exercise her reserved right to fill the vacancy by appointment, indicating that if she did not exercise this right they would ask her approval of their election of Mr. William D. McCrackan, at present First Reader of The Mother Church, but with only five months to serve, expecting from him good assistance in connection with the increasing scope of our periodicals and general literature, and especially in connection with German and foreign work."

[That portion of the record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees dated Jan. 4, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 291.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Meeting of Jan. 7, 1908, page 3:

"Meeting convened at 9:20 a. m., Messrs. McKenzie, Hatten, and McCrackan present.

"The trustees put on record their conference with the Board of Directors on Jan. 6, when by invitation they were allowed to present the needs of the business in connection with the appointment of a business manager. In compliance with the request of the directors a letter was addressed to the directors presenting these needs and setting forth the qualifications of David B. Ogden, C. S. B., of Portland, Oregon, to fill the vacancy, if elected."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Jan. 7, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 292.]

Mr. Whipple—May I ask if you read all the statement with regard to Mr. Ogden?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—If at any time you do not give the whole, if you omit any part of the record, will you please call attention to it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, I will be very glad to.

Mr. Whipple—Thank you, if you will. Then I will assume that you read everything on a particular subject unless you state to the contrary.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Everything in the record of a meeting on a particular subject unless you state to the contrary. I am asking this because I am not asking to see what you read in advance.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right. We will do that, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—Thank you.

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 9, 1908:

"A letter was sent to Mr. David B. Ogden, C. S. B., of Portland, Oregon, defining in a general sense the duties of the office of business manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society. A telegram was also sent, informing him that the Board of Trustees had been notified of his election, asking him to come as soon as convenient, and offering to pay traveling or removal expenses."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Jan. 9, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 293.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 14, 1908, page 6: "It was unanimously voted by the Board of Trustees not to publish hereafter in the directory of the Journal any notices of churches or societies until the question of their recognition has been decided in each case by the Board of Directors."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Jan. 14, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 294.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 4, 1908, page 15:

"It was voted to prepare a complete list of all persons connected with editing or publishing the Christian Science periodicals, or with The Christian Science Publishing Society, in order to be ready to obey Art. XXIX, Sec. 5. In accordance with this vote, Mr. Hatten was instructed to find out the dates of admission to The Mother Church of all persons enumerated above."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Feb. 4, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 295.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 7, 1908, page 17:

"It was decided to send a letter to the directors asking for authorization to remove the cards of delinquent advertisers from the Journal."

[That portion of the record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Feb. 7, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 296.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 13, 1908:

"Meeting convened at 10:25 a. m. in the usual way. The meeting reconvened at 3:45 p. m. to consider a new by-law, Art. XXVIII, Sec. 8, entitled 'Requirements for organizing branch churches.' Another application blank for church notices was then considered, to comply with this new by-law, also those portions in the publishing department which would be affected by the change."

[That portion of the record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Feb. 13, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 297.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 14, 1908, page 20:

"The proof of a new application blank for church notices to comply with the new by-law was presented and approved."

[That portion of the record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Feb. 14, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 298.]

Mr. Krauthoff—June 19, 1908, page 40:

"Theodore Stanger having been elected by the directors to be assistant editor of Der Herold, the trustees offered him, and he accepted a salary of $200 per month, and he was thus employed. The trustees conferred with Mr. McLellan regarding the division of work between Mr. Stanger and Miss Kollmorgan and the direction of their work. It was agreed between Mr. McLellan and the trustees that he alone should direct the work of the assistant editor of Der Herold and his assistants. Mr. Stanger was present during this conference."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated June 19, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 299.]

Mr. Krauthoff—July 14, 1908, page 50:

"The practice of furnishing periodicals without charge to officers and employees of the Publishing Society for their personal use will be discontinued Aug. 1, 1908. The Church Manual (Seventy-Second Edition), Article X, Section 2."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated July 14, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 300.]

Mr. Krauthoff—July 27, 1908, page 54:

"The trustees met the directors at their request to consider about the printing of a list of members of The Mother Church. The directors agreed with the trustees that the new by-law entitled 'Numbering the People,' forbids publishing said list. The directors requested the trustees to keep said list printed up to date by printing such copies thereof as may be needed by the clerk, treasurer, and directors of The Mother Church, and by the Publishing Society; and the trustees agreed to do this by printing such lists after each admission to membership in The Mother Church."

[That portion of the record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated July 27, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 301.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 10, 1908, page 57:

"This meeting was called at the instance of Mr. McLellan, and he appeared at the meeting and delivered to the trustees the following letter from our Leader:

'Box G, Brookline, Massachusetts,
'Aug. 8, 1908.'

This letter, if Your Honor please, has been read in evidence. It is the letter referring to the starting of The Monitor. Shall I read it again?

The Master—Can you refer to it by the exhibit number?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I do not know the exhibit number.

Mr. Whipple—Read it right in; it is short, isn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—(Reading):

"Christian Science Board of Trustees,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Beloved Students:

"It is my request that you start a daily newspaper at once and call it 'The Christian Science Monitor.' Let there be no delay. The Cause demands that it be issued now. You may consult with the Board of Directors. I have notified them of my intention.

"Lovingly yours,

"MARY B. G. EDDY."

Mr. Whipple—This is addressed to the trustees of the Publishing Society, is it not?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. Delivered to the Christian Science Board of Trustees by the hand of Mr. McLellan. (Reading):

"The Trustees immediately commenced making plans for the new daily, and arranged a consultation with the directors concerning it to tomorrow morning."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Aug. 10, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 302.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 11, 1908:

"A regular meeting of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society convened at 9 o'clock a. m. in the directors' room at The Mother Church. Trustees all present. The trustees conferred with the directors in regard to The Christian Science Monitor. It was agreed between the two boards that the directors are charged with the duty of providing the building or place for the publication of the Monitor, and that the trustees are charged with the duty of organizing and starting the new paper, subject to such special authority in regard thereto as is vested in the directors by the Church By-Laws, or in Mr. McLellan by our Leader."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Aug. 11, 1908, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 303.]

Mr. Krauthoff—March 26, 1909, page 116:

"After carefully considering the subject, the trustees proposed to the directors a change in the basis for the accounting of the Publishing Society to The Mother Church. A letter was written to the directors in part as follows:—

Now, if Your Honor please, the details of the change are not important. This is being offered for the purpose of showing that it was submitted to the directors, and unless requested so to do I will not read the letter setting forth the details of the change.

Mr. Whipple—It does not seem to me it is important to any issue in this case that the trustees did submit questions to the directors and conferred with them and agreed with them upon certain matters of administration. It is a part of our claim that it was the duty of the trustees always to coordinate their activities with those of the directors; it was contemplated by Mrs. Eddy; and all this that is being read shows just exactly that course of procedure—a meeting together and an agreement with regard to matters having to do with the Publication Society. It has seemed that it was entirely immaterial to any controverted issue in the case. So far as it goes it is merely proving what we have had more plenary proof of in the case that has already been put in by the directors. But if any point is made of the trustees consulting the directors or writing letters to them, it is important what they wrote—quite as important as the fact that they wrote, because it shows, as we claim, that the administration has been that of the two boards trying to cooperate together to forward the great purpose as to which both of them were charged with duties—coordinating their work, agreeing together wherever they could. And this disturbance would not have arisen, as we claim, if the directors had continued to pursue that course. Mr. Krauthoff—Then I will not read that letter.

Mr. Whipple—I think you better. It is just as material as any part of what you are putting in.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading):

"We have concluded that it (the Deed of Trust) permits us to keep the amount of the assets received at the beginning of the trust besides enough assets to equal our necessary liabilities, it permits it to purchase such furniture, fixtures, and machinery as may be needed to conduct the business, paying for this as well as paying what is usually called the expense of a business, and it requires us to pay to the treasurer of The Mother Church the balance remaining in our hands after making these deductions at the end of each six months. Upon this basis we would strike a balance at the end of each six months by putting on one side of the balance sheet the amount of the original Trust Fund and the amounts which we owe to subscribers, advertisers, and others, first paying everything that should be paid in cash, and by putting on the other side the amount of cash on hand and the amounts of all other assets held by us as trustees, putting in the various items of property at their estimated cash value."

"This letter was taken to the directors' room by Judge Smith and submitted to them, and they expressed their approval of the proposed basis for accounting."

Judge Smith, at that time, if Your Honor please, was a member of the Board of Directors.

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated March 26, 1909, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 304.]

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, if it would not be out of order, I would like to point out in regard to that letter that it was—

Mr. Bates—I object. Pardon me, Mr. Whipple. I object to your making any further statement. Mr. Whipple has already made the argument which had no place here. If he wished to have that letter read, all he had to do was to ask for it. If he wished to object, he could have objected; but to get up and make an argument without any request and without any objection is entirely irregular.

Mr. Whipple—I ask to have this letter and the entire record excluded, because it does not bear upon any issue; it shows merely that the trustees and beneficiaries were attempting to agree with regard to the administration of the trust, the trustees having the handling of the trust and the directors representing the beneficiaries. And this is an agreement of an accounting between them. It does not show any domination or authority on the part of the trustees at all; it is merely a letter, usual and ordinary letter, passing between the trustees and the beneficiaries as to the administration of the trust.

The Master—Anything further?

Mr. Bates—I would simply like to state that Mr. Whipple's contention shifts somewhat. He contends that these were entirely separate and independent activities. This is introduced for the purpose of showing that there was supervision, and always had been, on the part of the directors. Certainly it is plainly competent on that issue.

Mr. Whipple—I want to just point out it does not show any such thing, that there was any supervision, any more than the report of a trustee to a beneficiary shows that the beneficiary supervised the administration of the trust. He does not do it at all; he simply receives the accounting of the trustee and the money that is to be paid over. And to attempt to say that that is a supervision of the trust is a stretch of the imagination that I did not think even the Governor would be capable of.

Mr. Bates—That is a matter for argument later.

Mr. Whipple—Well, you are arguing it now, and very effectively. I congratulate you.

Mr. Bates—Well, you ought to.

The Master—We are now investigating a course of conduct continued through a series of years, the effect of which on the issues in the case is in dispute. I think that we had better go on and get all there is about that, and reserve all argument about it until we have got it all.

Mr. Whipple—That is, Your Honor would prefer that we would not speak with regard to individual matters as they go on?

The Master—I think that that would be the best way.

Mr. Whipple—Very well, Your Honor; I will observe Your Honor's suggestion.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well. Now we will resume the evidence. Page 135, July 6, 1909:

"With the approval of the directors, the trustees instructed the manager to purchase $4000 of the preferred stock of the United Press Association from the president of this association at par."

[The record of the meeting of the trustees of July 6, 1909, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 305. R. H. J.]

Page 175—This is the consolidated record, covering six meetings—Feb. 15, 18, 22, 25, and March 1 and 4, 1910—

The Master—1910?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Go on.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"Regular meetings of the trustees of the Publishing Society were held on all these days, at which all the trustees were present. . . . During this period the trustees were requested by the directors to undertake the work of investigating complaints against advertisers in the Journal, and this work was commenced."

[The consolidated record of the meetings of the trustees on Feb. 15, 18, 22, 25, March 1 and 4, 1910, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 306. R. H. J.]

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I want to ask Mr. Krauthoff if it would be satisfactory to him, inasmuch as he has put in something from our records with regard to the Hymnal, to put in the letter which was written on July 13, 1909, to the trustees from the Board of Directors with regard to the Hymnal. We shall have to put it in later if you do not, Mr. Krauthoff, and it had better go in in its order. It clears up that Hymnal matter.

Mr. Krauthoff—We prefer to let that be introduced by Mr. Whipple as a part of his case.

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 2 p. m., all members present. . . . A letter was written and sent the Board of Directors, suggesting that in reappointing the managing editor in June he be relieved of the management of the advertising department."

[The record of the meeting of the trustees of May 23, 1912, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 307. R. H. J.]

Page 267, Sept. 12, 1911—I have to go back of that for one date:

"Under the by-law directing that when a new trustee is required 'the remaining trustees shall fill the vacancy,' James A. Neal was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Clifford P. Smith."

[The record of the meeting of the trustees of Sept. 12, 1911, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 308. R. H. J.]

"Special meeting of the Board of Trustees convened all members present at 2 o'clock the trustees met with the Board of Directors in The Mother Church by invitation, and the matter of The Christian Science Publishing Society having an exhibit at the Panama Pacific International Exposition to be held in San Francisco, California, was thoroughly discussed and the business arrangements for carrying out the same was turned over to the trustees."

[The record of the meeting of the trustees of Jan. 8, 1913, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 309. R. H. J.]

"A letter requesting a conference with the Board of Directors next Wednesday 19th, 2 p. m., to submit plans for distribution of literature was sent."

[The record of the meeting of the trustees of March 13, 1913, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 310. R. H. J.]

That is on page 137, Mr. Whipple (passing to Mr. Whipple the volume of trustees' records from which the foregoing extracts have been read).

Mr. Whipple—What is?

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter that you asked for.

Now, if Your Honor please, Jan. 1, 1914, page 32:

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 2 p. m. all members present the trustees in accordance with previous appointment met with the Board of Directors at 10 o'clock and was in conference until 1:30 p. m., the duties and position of the Board of Trustees as defined and provided for in the 'Deed of Trust' and the Manual and other matters of business were discussed."

[The record of the meeting of the trustees of Jan. 1, 1914, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 311. R. H. J.]

At this point, if Your Honor please, I may take the liberty of saying that this is my first discovery in the records of these trustees, in 1914, 16 years after the trust started, of any difference of opinion being discussed, as a matter of record.

Mr. Whipple—It does not say that there was any difference of opinion there, either. They seemed to be cooperating very nicely.

Mr. Krauthoff—The first discussion of their respective duties that appears of record.

"The trustees were in conference with the Board of Directors at The Mother Church from 1 to 2 p. m., and the matter of further improving The Monitor by employing the services of Mr. Tennant was discussed, the consensus of opinion was in favor of doing so."

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 2 p. m., all members present. On invitation the trustees met with the Board of Directors and were with them until 4:20 p. m. and a general discussion of business matters was held, the question of continuing publishing of a cheap edition of the book, 'Life of Mary Baker Eddy,' was considered, and it was thought best to do so. The trustees returned to their office and closed their meeting at 5 p. m."

Mr. Bates—Mr. Krauthoff, you have read all that is put into these records about the joint conferences?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; I have read the record exactly as it is written.

Mr. Bates—I am surprised that the trustees should have had so limited a record of two and three-hour conferences!

Mr. Whipple—And have you put in all the conferences that they had?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have put in all that I have found. Page 182, Feb. 15, 1916:

"Tuesday. Special meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 2:45 p. m. All members present. After a conference with the Board of Directors at 2 p. m., a letter was prepared by the trustees setting forth their view of the duties, responsibilities, and work of the trustees, and delivered to the directors."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Feb. 15, 1916, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 318. R. H. J.]

That letter, if Your Honor please, has not yet been offered in evidence, but I shall be glad to have Your Honor record that that letter is of some importance in the history of the case.

Mr. Streeter—Why don't you put it in? If it is of any consequence I would like to see it; if it is not, I do not care about it.

Mr. Bates—It will be put in later. The Master—Why isn't this the proper place for it?

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter can be proved only by extraneous evidence. If the trustees have it in their files, and they will produce it, I shall be very glad to have it.

Mr. Streeter—Why don't you call for it, then?

Mr. Whipple—I understand that the original was directed to the directors?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Haven't they it in their files?

Mr. Krauthoff—The history of that is this—

Mr. Bates—We have a copy of it.

Mr. Whipple—Pardon me. You haven't the original? Evidently you did not think very much of it if you did not keep it.

Mr. Krauthoff—We haven't the original.

Mr. Bates—No; it was returned to you.

Mr. Krauthoff—The history of that letter is that it was sent from the trustees to the directors, and returned by the directors to the trustees as not being sufficiently full, at least that was the reason that was stated that it was not sufficiently full.

Mr. Whipple—I take it that you will offer proof of that.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is the reason why I am explaining it. And the trustees then destroyed it. Later Mr. McKenzie, who wrote the letter—

The Master—If the letter is destroyed, I suppose we cannot get it in.

Mr. Krauthoff—We have copies of it that we will prove in due course. If the trustees at this time will produce the copy that Mr. McKenzie gave them of that letter in the fall of 1918, I shall be very glad to put it in now.

Mr. Thompson—You have a copy yourself, haven't you?

Mr. Krauthoff—We have a copy, and I shall be very glad to submit it.

Mr. Streeter—We have no objections.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will continue for a moment the reading, until I locate the letter.

This is page 184, Feb. 24, 1916:

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 2 p. m., all members present, minutes of previous meeting read and approved a conference was held with the Board of Directors in The Mother Church from 2:15 to 3:15 p. m., a good working basis was arrived at and agreed to by all, a meeting with the directors was arranged for at 2 p. m. Monday 28th."

[The record of the meeting of the trustees of Feb. 24, 1916, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 319. R. H. J.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple, here is our carbon of that letter of Feb. 15.

Mr. Whipple—May I ask where you got it? It cannot be a carbon of it, because you naturally would not have a carbon. You should have the original.

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me. I should say our copy of it.

Mr. Whipple—May I ask you where you got it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. It was in the files of one of the directors. When the letter was received copies were made of it, and a copy was given to each one of the directors, and this is the copy of one of the directors.

Mr. Whipple—That is, it is not a copy that you got from Mr. McKenzie?

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

Mr. Whipple—From which director did you get it?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was in the files of Mr. Neal. You have a copy of it that you got from Mr. McKenzie in the fall of 1918.

Mr. Whipple—I am glad to hear that.

Mr. Bates—Do you object to our reading this copy?

Mr. Whipple—Not until I see it.

Mr. Bates—You might pass it to him, then.

[A paper is passed by Mr. Krauthoff to Mr. Whipple.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, Your Honor, in passing, may I say of this date, Feb. 24, 1916, that that is the date on which, according to the directors' record, this so-called Dittmore memorandum was discussed?

Mr. Thompson—What do you mean by that, Mr. Krauthoff? Was the Dittmore memorandum discussed at this meeting?

Mr. Streeter—What is the date?

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 24, 1916.

Mr. Thompson—Wait just a minute. If you expect any statement of fact like that to be accepted, we shall have to look it up.

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not expect it to be accepted.

Mr. Thompson—Then you ought not to make it.

The Master—Your statement was that, according to the directors' records, a certain letter was discussed.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is, the situation is that Feb. 24, 1916, is the day on which this so-called Dittmore memorandum came out between the trustees and the directors.

The Master—No; you said something about "according to the directors' records."

Mr. Krauthoff—According to the directors' records, that is—

The Master—Has that record been put in?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, not yet.

Mr. Thompson—Well, then, why make any statement about it?

The Master—I do not see why you referred to it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I referred to it at this time, if Your Honor please, to register this date of Feb. 24, 1916, as shown by the directors' records.

Mr. Thompson—You characterize a written document as registering a date. I should like to see the trustees' records.

Mr. Bates—It is put in to fix the date.

Mr. Thompson—Then don't speak of it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was not offering to prove the record, if Your Honor please. I was just trying to help—

The Master—Oh, I think that you had better go on and finish up what you have to read from the trustees' records.

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 185, is introduced in evidence as Exhibit 320, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Feb. 28, 1916.

"The trustees met with the Board of Directors in The Mother Church at 2 p. m. and remained until 4 p. m. discussing matters of business, then returned to their office to take up routine business."

[Extract from the trustees' records, page 188, March 13, 1916, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 321, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"March 13, 1916.

"The Board of Trustees met with the Board of Directors in The Mother Church at 2 p. m. and remained until 3:55 p. m., discussing matters of business, including the Bible Lesson Committee work and form letters to be sent to churches and societies applying for advertisements in the Journal, returning to their office at 4 p. m. to take up routine business."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 189, March 20, 1916, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 322, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"March 20, 1916.

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 4:05 p. m., all members present. A meeting was held with the Board of Directors in The Mother Church from 2 to 4 p. m. Matters of business discussed, including application blanks to be sent to applicants for cards and church notices to be published. The terms 'Christian Science' and 'Christian Scientists' to be retained."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 191, March 27, 1916, introduced in evidence as Exhibit 323, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"March 27, 1916.

"Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 4:30 p. m., all members present. A meeting was held with the Board of Directors in The Mother Church from 2 to 4:25 p. m., discussing matters of business."

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, referring now to the letter, or copy of a letter, dated Feb. 15, 1916, addressed to The Christian Science Board of Directors and purporting to come from the trustees, I understand it is a fact that some such letter was prepared by Mr. McKenzie, then on the Board of Trustees, and sent to the Board of Directors, and that it was returned, as Mr. Krauthoff has stated, and the original was destroyed, the attempt to reconcile the views of the different parties having thus utterly failed. If it be understood that this paper was prepared by Mr. McKenzie, who is not a lawyer, and not after consultation with any attorney as to its legal effect, we have no objection to its going in upon the same terms that other matters have gone in, merely as a thing which transpired, merely saying that counsel do not care to be concluded by any legal views that are expressed by Mr. McKenzie, if there are any in the letter. We have no objection to its being read now with that understanding.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, Mr. Whipple, as I understand, that is the letter which, according to the minutes of the trustees of Feb. 15, 1916, was prepared by the trustees setting forth their view of the duties and responsibilities and work of the trustees, and delivered to the directors.

Mr. Whipple—I do not understand that it was expressive of their view. I understand it was to compromise a controversy which had arisen, and was not satisfactory to that purpose.

Mr. Krauthoff—In the circumstances, if Your Honor please, we will offer the letter in due course; we do not like to limit it.

Mr. Whipple—Let it be marked for identification.

Mr. Streeter—Why don't you read it into the record now so it will be printed?

Mr. Krauthoff—We do not want to limit it to Mr. Whipple's views.

Mr. Streeter—Well, you don't have to.

The Master—You have read a record—

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—The record refers to a letter in the terms that you have given us. Now you want to put in the letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—This is the letter.

Mr. Streeter—Nobody objects to it.

The Master—I think you better put in the letter now.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well, but not under Mr. Whipple's limited—

The Master—I do not understand that either side is limited by what has passed. The letter comes in as part of the record of what was done at the time, does it not, and speaks for itself? We will see what conclusions are to be drawn from it later on.

[The letter above referred to, said to have been prepared by Mr. McKenzie, addressed to the Board of Directors, dated Feb. 15, 1916, is introduced in evidence as Exhibit 324, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Feb. 15, 1916.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Brethren:

"We express our grateful appreciation of the three conferences we have lately had with your board, and desire very much that the opportunity for meeting together may be continued. We think there is good ground for this desire in view of our relationship to The Mother Church, since it is our duty to hold and manage the business which Mrs. Eddy made a gift to her Church, and The Christian Science

Board of Directors is the responsible authority of this Church.

"The business known as The Christian Science Publishing Society began with the publishing of The Christian Science Journal by Mrs. Eddy in April, 1883. Ten years later at the World's Fair, a meeting of the National Christian Scientist Association, by which the Journal had been for a time copyrighted, voted to give back the ownership to Mrs. Eddy, and she thereupon appointed a publishing committee to manage it for her. In 1897 she added two more members to the original three. The following year she made of the business 'A Gift to The Mother Church,' and this gift was accepted by the First Members for the Church, Jan. 15, 1898.

"Accompanying the gift, and making it available, there was 'A Grant of Trusteeship' whereby to fulfill her statement, 'the present Publishing Society can only act as my Trustees.' Three trustees were appointed to hold and manage said property and property rights exclusively for the purpose of carrying on the business, which has heretofore been conducted by the said Christian Science Publishing Society, in promoting the interests of Christian Science.' Complete rules for the guidance of this work were incorporated in the Deed of Trust, and in the Manual of The Mother Church.

"In defining the financial situation in regard to the Church edifice the Manual says: 'The Christian Science Board of Directors owns the Church edifices, with the land whereon they stand, legally, and the Church members own the aforesaid premises and buildings, beneficially.' We believe the situation to be similar in regard to the business, in that, according to the Deed of Trust, the Board of Trustees holds the property 'legally,' and The Mother Church owns the business 'beneficially.' It is provided that the net profits must be paid semi-annually to the treasurer. Originally the First Members had the authority, but at the present time the Board of Directors have the authority, of the disposing of this fund. The business then becomes a benefit to The Mother Church, this benefit increasing according to the success of the business.

"It was the First Members who accepted Mrs. Eddy's gift, and those who accepted the trusteeship were all three also First Members, and so had access to the councils of the Church. These members were later called Executive Members, and the acceptance of new members into The Mother Church, the dismissing of members, and the discipline of individuals or churches, was also in their care. They ceased from office with the appearing of the by-law, Art. I, Sec. 6: 'The business of The Mother Church shall be transacted by its Christian Science Board of Directors.' On one occasion when a vacancy was declared on the Board of Trustees, this was done by the First Members in session, according to the provisions of the Deed of Trust. The Manual, Art. XXV, Sec. 3, specifically transfers this right to the Board of Directors.

"The directors have, by the rules now given in the Manual, taken the place of the First Members (or executive members) and exercise the rights which they formerly had. The Christian Science Board of Directors is therefore the responsible authority in direction of the affairs of The Mother Church, and the business of The Christian Science Publishing Society being a gift to the Church, the Board of Trustees in carrying out their well-defined duties according to the Deed of Trust and the Manual, are working under the authority of The Mother Church.

"At the initiation of the trusteeship the first three trustees were also First Members, and as has been mentioned, had access to the councils, and took part in the deliberations of the Church, and were thus apprised of its plans and polity. It would be an advantage now if the trustees could meet at a regular time with the directors, to consult with them in regard to questions involving action which may affect the field, and therefore should come under the authority of the Church.

"To show that this is desirable let us cite a few examples: (a) Remembering that the business is intended to affect The Mother Church, beneficially, when the expenditure of an unusual amount seems necessary, since this may affect the semi-annual payment for that period, it should be the privilege of the trustees to confer with the directors, and have their authorization for the expenditure before it is finally decided upon.

"(b) The Manual provides for the election by the directors of several officers who are employed by the trustees. It would work very much for harmony if the trustees could arrive at an agreement with the directors in regard to the salaries to be paid these officers at the time when they are elected, since there may be a difficulty in arranging this after the official has been notified of his appointment.

"(c) In connection with The Monitor, the managers of circulation and advertising departments are in constant communication with advertisers, distribution committees, subscribers, and every letter they write cannot be supervised but when the field is circularized by either of these departments if the trustees were meeting regularly with the directors, these form letters could be presented and discussed, and have the approval of the Church in so far as they affect the field, before they issue.

"(d) While the Deed of Trust makes specific provision for the issue of the Quarterly, and for the preparation of the Bible Lessons, it was the custom to report to Mrs. Eddy every nomination of a new member for the Lesson Committee. We think it would be well for the trustees to consult with the Board of Directors in regard to the standing in the church of anyone they propose to appoint as a member of the Bible Lesson Committee, so as to be assured of their availability.

"(e) The business affords such varied services to the field that sometimes questions are raised involving the authority of the church as well as the sphere of the business, which questions could be discussed better in conference than by correspondence of a more formal nature. For example, we should appreciate the opportunity to determine in conference the rules according to which advertisements in the Journal and Herald should be accepted.

"(f) When we have had conferences in the past they have given results for which all may be grateful.

"We would, therefore, ask that a regular time be arranged when the directors may receive the trustees for a conference.

"Very sincerely yours,"

Mr. Krauthoff—Taking up the trustees' records again, April 3, 1916, page 193.

"April 3, 1916.

"A meeting was held with the Board of Directors from 2 to 3 p. m. Among other business matters discussed, was the plan of closing the publishing house at 4:30 p. m. No objection was offered. This change will be made without a vote of the employees."

[A conference between counsel.]

Mr. Streeter—If I may interrupt for a moment, Your Honor, with reference to the records of the Board of Directors from May 23, down to the present date.

The Master—May 23?

Mr. Streeter—May 23, down to the present date.

The Master—What year?

Mr. Streeter—This year. The matter was brought up, and Governor Bates permitted us to see those records.

Mr. Bates—We permitted you to see all the records.

Mr. Streeter—Yes; that is entirely correct. Then Your Honor ruled, but ruled without prejudice, that for the present we would not be permitted to introduce those records after May 23—I am stating that date rather than April 29, because we have them until April 29—until it was shown that a condition of things first existed which we claim continued after that day, and of course we assented to that, as we had to. Perhaps I ought not to say that. Your Honor made that ruling, or you said at a later date, after the case had gone on further, we could show the existence of a condition on which the record subsequent to this time would show a continuance. Now, we have seen those records, but we have not taken any notes from them. I assumed that Governor Bates would let us take them to make notes, the question of the admissibility of anything on them to be later determined; but he sees fit now to decline. I think we are entitled to see all the records, whether they are admissible or not, and we would like an understanding that Governor Bates shall furnish us those records—

Mr. Thompson—In the court; we won't take them out of court.

Mr. Streeter—To examine here in court. The question whether anything thereon is admissible is to be determined by Your Honor later; but we ask that some understanding be reached, through the suggestion of the master, that we shall have a further opportunity to examine those records.

Mr. Bates—Your Honor's ruling was that you would not at the present time admit anything that had taken place since the filing of the bill of Mr. Dittmore, which is April 29. I understood that ruling to be made without prejudice in case they should lay a foundation for going into any of those matters. They have not laid any such foundation; they have not attempted to; and I have therefore told General Streeter I did not think he was entitled to again look at those recent records, all of which are records since this suit was brought. I do not know why he raises the question now. It certainly has no bearing on the present condition of the case, and I do not think he should raise the question again under Your Honor's ruling until he has laid a foundation that would show that they could possibly be material.

The Master—I understood that at an earlier period in the case you informed General Streeter and Mr. Whipple that all the directors' records were open to their inspection, and under, of course, proper restrictions—not letting them go out of the directors' custody. Do I understand that you withdraw some of that now?

Mr. Bates—They have been, Your Honor; they have had free access to them up to the time of Your Honor's ruling. Since that time I have assumed that they had no right to look at the records which have taken place since. I do not think that because I offered to let them see the records that we should keep them open for them, or keep them here for them to examine, or in my office for them to examine indefinitely. And in offering the records I had assumed that they would not expect to put in any records except those which were prior to the suit, and I had assumed they would not look at the others. As a matter of fact, they are in the same volume, therefore, when we allowed them to see the records which were pertinent and material, we had to let them see records which were not. But that is no reason why they should be shown some specific records—

The Master—It seems to me that you had better let them continue their examination. I can't tell, of course, what there might be in those records—whether there would be something in regard to which I should be obliged to change my ruling or not. But it seems to me that it would be much better to let the examination continue, under, of course, proper restrictions, the same as before.

Mr. Bates—If Your Honor thinks that they ought to see the records, or if that is Your Honor's preference, I am perfectly willing General Streeter should see them.

Mr. Streeter—Have you the records here?

Mr. Bates—No, we haven't them here. You can see them at our office.

Mr. Streeter—Now, wait a minute. Mr. Dittmore went to your office and was informed by a very nice and agreeable young lady, in a nice and agreeable way, that he could not see them.

Mr. Bates—I think she was perfectly right, after the opportunity you have had. Now, if His Honor thinks you ought to see them now, you shall see them.

Mr. Streeter—He does apparently think so. Can you send for them and have them brought up here?

Mr. Bates—You have omitted to state that you went at least two or three times when you were allowed to see them.

Mr. Streeter—I am informed otherwise.

The Master—As to their being brought here, or as to counsel going down there, that arrangement had better be made which will involve the least trouble and loss of time and friction.

Mr. Streeter—Yes. The governor and I do not quarrel. So far as the record is concerned, I am corrected; we have never seen those records, so I am told—but that is immaterial, so long as we are fixing things up.

Mr. Bates—The records are not in court; we will endeavor to let you see them tomorrow.

Mr. Streeter—Can't you get them this morning?

Mr. Bates—No, we can't.

Mr. Streeter—Can't you get them some time today?

Mr. Bates—No. I understand the recent records have not been written into the book yet. You may see them tomorrow.

Mr. Thompson—Therefore, they were not in the book that we were permitted to investigate.

Mr. Streeter—Well, aren't some of them written up since May 23?

Mr. Bates—I have given you what I understand to be the situation. You have asked for all the records since May 23. We are content that you should see them as soon as they are in the book.

Mr. Thompson—As soon as they appear in the book?

Mr. Streeter—May 23—and it is now nearly two months. Do you mean to say, Governor, that the records of all the meetings since May 23 have not been written into the book and approved?

Mr. Bates—I am not prepared at the present time to give you information, because I am not informed.

The Master—I do not think you can call on him to answer that. You go ahead and complete your examination of what is shown you, and then we will see what the next step will be.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I understand that you will have them written up and have them here tomorrow morning?

Mr. Bates—We will endeavor to.

Mr. Streeter—I thank you, Governor.

The Master—This has given us a little break in the reading of records, but I can't quite see why it was necessary to bring it up at this particular time.

Mr. Bates—I cannot see any reason why it should be brought up at the present time.

Mr. Thompson—The reason was, if Your Honor please, Mr. Dittmore could now look at them if they were here. He would like to spend his time looking at those records—that is all.

Mr. Krauthoff—June 21, 1916, page 209: "Regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 2:55 p. m., after a conference with the Board of Directors. All members present. 'Memorandum C' was discussed and some slight corrections made and released for publication."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated June 21, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 326.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Your Honor will recall that Memorandum C is the document which Mr. Eustace identified. March 26, 1917, page 299: "The meeting of the Board of Trustees convened Monday, March 26, at 2 p. m., all members being present. . . .

"Mr. Dixon appeared at 3:05, and a discussion ensued regarding an increase in the price of The Monitor on account of the increase in the price of paper and other commodities attendant on increased cost of publishing. The question was fully considered, reaching the range of the Sentinel, Journal, Quarterly, and Herold, with the conclusion that whereas the increased price of all materials and other features entering into the publications of the Publishing Society should be considered at this time; therefore, be it Resolved that from and after July 1, 1917, the Board of Trustees propose to issue the publications of the society under the following rates":—Then appear the names of the periodicals and the new rates per annum and per copy.

"It is agreed that the question be placed before the Board of Directors before issuing any information on this subject."

[Those portions of the record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated March 26, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 327.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Reading from the fourth book of minutes of the Board of Trustees, beginning April 18, 1917, page 11:

"Memorandum of joint conference of The Christian Science Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees, held at 12 o'clock, Wednesday, April 18:

"The main purpose of the conference was to discuss the proposed increase in rates for the periodicals. After a general discussion of the needs for the increase, on account of the present cost of paper and labor, and the probable increase in postage, and various other elements entering into an increased cost of the periodicals, the trustees proposed that the Journal be increased from $2 to $3 for annual subscription, the Sentinel from $2 to $3, the Herald from $1 to $1.50, the Quarterly from 50 cents to $1, and the Monitor from $5 to $9, each for annual subscription.

"Mr. McLellan proposed that the Herald be increased to $2, and after a general discussion of the wisdom of making this change, and so putting the Herald onto a paying basis, it was agreed that the prices recommended, including the increase to $2 for the Herald, should go into operation, and that a notice to the field should be prepared and thoroughly discussed by both boards and then published in the periodicals. The proposed date of change in rates is July 1, 1917.

"The question was also discussed of the proposed new French Herald—that is, the present Herald translated into French, with the English equivalent on opposite pages. It was decided that this would be an excellent thing to get out to be ready for the close of the war."

[That portion of the record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated April 18, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 328.]

Mr. Krauthoff—May 4, 1917, page 23:
"A special meeting of the Board of Trustees convened May 4, 1917, at 3 p. m., all members of the board being present.

"The meeting was called for the purpose of considering a bulletin presented by Mr. Ogden, who had been requested by Judge Smith to print the bulletin, which would give information to all congressmen regarding the affairs of the Publishing Society."

As a matter of explanation, if Your Honor please,—at that time there was a bill pending in Congress affecting postal rates of periodicals of the Publishing Society.

"Mr. Dixon came into the meeting. The question was fully discussed and the directors' committee was invited to come into the meeting. It was found that Mr. Dittmore was out of town, but Mr. Neal appeared.

"After going over the important facts, the board requested Judge Smith to appear before the meeting, with the result that the bulletin was changed, and it was concluded to take the question before the Board of Directors at a meeting to be appointed later."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated May 4, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 329.]

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, Mr. Krauthoff. It has been called to my attention that you did not read all of that.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. I owe you an explanation about that, Mr. Whipple, which I was about to make.

Mr. Whipple—Never mind about the explanation; just read the rest of it, won't you, of the meeting of April 18.

Mr. Krauthoff—April 18?

Mr. Whipple—About the enlargement of the publishing house.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, I did not read that because I assumed that was not a matter of controversy, because however the case may be decided we were the owners of the publishing house. But I will be glad to read that.

Mr. Whipple—If you do not mind, please read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is on page 11 of this book. Mr. Whipple, I have not in my reading offered any evidences of the physical details of the publishing house. And I also want to make this explanation now, while I am speaking on the subject: all of the conferences of the trustees and the directors have not been offered in evidence because many of them simply record a conference without saying what was done, and some of them were upon others which, as we understand it, do not affect the controversy. I will finish the reading of the minutes of April 18, 1917, at the request of Mr. Whipple:

"The question was then discussed of the enlarging of the publishing house to secure more room. The trustees told the directors that they were having an engineer report on what sort of a building and what would be the best plan for an up-to-date manufacturing plant that would serve our purpose for several years to come, to be arranged in the most economical manner. In the discussion of the proposed new building the question arose relative to preparing for printing all our Leader's works, and the trustees were requested to have this taken into account in planning a new building."

[Excerpt from record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated April 18, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as a part of Exhibit 328.]

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, to meet the suggestion which Mr. Krauthoff made a moment ago about the ownership by the directors of the publishing house, we want to register our protest against that, because that publishing house was paid for by subscriptions from the field; it was just as much a gift—it was for the purposes and uses of the publishing house.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, the statement on that subject, if Your Honor please, is that the legal title to the ground on which the publishing house is erected is of record in The Christian Science Board of Directors. That is all I meant.

Mr. Whipple—I am informed to the contrary. However, we will go into that later.

Mr. Bates—And the subscriptions from the field were made to the Church, and went into the hands of the Church treasurer, and he was the one who paid them out at the direction of the Board of Directors for the building of the publishing house building.

Mr. Whipple—It may well have been that the directors laid hands on the fund, but there was no question as to why the field subscribed for the fund, and that was to provide a publishing house. I am merely meeting the assertion of Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, regarding—

Mr. Whipple—Let me ask in that connection—isn't the title in your partner's name, Governor Bates—Mr. Abbott?

Mr. Bates—No, it is not.

Mr. Whipple—Well, wasn't it until recently?

Mr. Bates—Why, I cannot tell you.

The Master—I am afraid I do not follow that. I had understood that the title was in the directors:

Mr. Whipple—Well, that has been asserted a great many times, and it is possible that since these controversies arose Mr. Abbott has passed it along. But whatever may be the fact with regard to the legal title, the subscriptions were made by the field for the publishing house.

The Master—The legal title is all we have been talking about, isn't it?

Mr. Whipple—That was the subject of discussion a moment ago,—the legal title.

The Master—Well, perhaps you can clear up my mind about the legal title before saying anything about the beneficial ownership.

Mr. Whipple—Now then, if Your Honor please, I was informed after I sat down that there was doubt as to the question as to whether the legal title was in the directors. I know nothing about it myself, but the intimation was that the legal title had been taken in the name of Mr. Abbott,—Governor Bates' partner,—and my informant, the business manager, thought that it had not been transferred by him. But if it has, they have transferred a mere bare legal title.

Mr. Abbott—If Your Honor please, the title to the real estate on which the publishing house stands, did stand in my name for some years as trustee. It was conveyed by me to the directors several years ago. I do not remember just how long ago.

The Master—As trustee?

Mr. Abbott—As trustee, to the directors of the Church.

Mr. Whipple—Now, I should like to know when that was, and by what authority it was conveyed?

Mr. Bates—It would be a simple matter for you to look up the records.

Mr. Abbott—It is a matter of record in the Registry of Deeds.

Mr. Whipple—Well, is the authority a matter of record? A contribution was made of thousands, and hundreds of thousands of dollars by the field in order to provide a publishing house; and the legal title to that land was put in your name, as I understand it. Now, the contributions being for a publishing house, the next question is, by what authority you ever transferred it to the Board of Directors or the Church? And we want to have proof and not this loose assumption in regard to it. But Your Honor sees what the situation is.

The Master—The first thing to do, I suppose, is to get the various conveyances and see what they say.

Mr. Whipple—Yes; and the authority for this conveyance.

The Master—Now we will have the letter.

Mr. Abbott—Now, I will say just one thing more: I did take title at the request of the Board of Directors. They were buying various pieces of property, and it was thought best not at first to take them in the name of the Board of Directors. Later, at my suggestion, followed by their adoption of my suggestion, the title was put into the Board of Directors, that all of the legal title might be vested in the board, where it properly belongs.

Mr. Whipple—Wasn't that since 1916?

Mr. Abbott—It certainly was not since 1916. If my memory serves me rightly, I think it was two or three years prior to that time.

Mr. Thompson—While you are about it, do you mind stating how long a time the deed remained with the directors unrecorded?

Mr. Abbott—I have no recollection as to that.

Mr. Thompson—I am advised it was finally recorded only a little while ago.

Mr. Bates—Why don't you ask your client? He was on the board.

Mr. Thompson—He is the man who just explained it to me.

The Master—When you get the conveyances, that will all appear.

Mr. Krauthoff—It might be stated in passing that none of the pleadings in this case refer to any controversy as to the ownership of that property.

The Master—Yes, I think that is undoubtedly so.

Mr. Whipple—Well, whatever there is of controversy as to the legal title, the fact that the funds were so contributed by the field, and were for the purpose of constructing the publishing house, remains undisputed.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. The publishing house of The Mother Church.

Mr. Whipple—And if the directors got the title into their hands, we will find it out.

Mr. Bates—I would suggest that if my brother has any new issues to be raised, or any old ones to be changed, that he set them up in his pleadings by amendment.

Mr. Whipple—Governor, you seem to have come to life.

Mr. Bates—We are ready to meet any new issues if he raises them.

Mr. Whipple—The most you have got is issues, and nothing else. Very little of administration of Church affairs.

Mr. Bates—The quarrels are only with Mr. Whipple.

The Master—I think that we had better get on now with the records that Mr. Krauthoff was reading.

Mr. Krauthoff—I hope that this will not be charged up against my time, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Streeter—I did not suppose that there was any limit to your time!

Mr. Whipple—It is such a trifling part of the time that you have taken, that I do not think that anybody will notice it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Returning to the trial of the case, I read from the record of May 4, 1917 (page 23) about the discussion of this bulletin that was to be sent to congressmen with respect to increase in rates of postage.

Page 24, May 5, 1917:

"The joint meeting of the Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees convened Saturday, May 5, at 9 a. m. All members of both boards were present.

"The object of the meeting was to consider the question brought up at the meeting of the Board of Trustees on May 4 regarding the bulletin prepared by Judge Smith to be given out to congressmen if necessary. All members present agreed on the specific points and referred the question to be properly framed up by the Board of Trustees and the committee from the Board of Directors together with Judge Smith."

[The record of the joint meeting of the Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees of May 5, 1917, of which the foregoing is a copy, is Exhibit 330. R. H. J.]

On the same page, May 5, 1917, there is the record of another meeting of the board on the same day, a special meeting of the Board of Trustees:

"A special meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 10:30 a. m., May 5, with the committee from the Board of Directors present.

"The object of the meeting was to further consider the bulletin as revamped by Judge Smith, with the hope of making certain changes which would be unanimously agreed to as being the best possible information to go before the public, or specifically before the congressmen in Washington. Judge Smith was called into the meeting and the proper action was taken, resulting in the adoption of the following resolution:

"Whereas: The question of printing the bulletin as amended by Judge Smith on May 4, and as reconsidered and amended further on May 5 by Judge Smith, in conjunction with the committee from the Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees, has been fully considered; therefore, be it resolved: That the Board of Trustees consent herewith to the printing of the bulletin, a copy of which is made part of these minutes."

[The record of the special meeting of the Board of Trustees, May 5, 1917, of which the foregoing is a copy, is Exhibit 331. R. H. J.]

Now, if Your Honor please, that bulletin covers four pages of printing, and there is one paragraph, and one sentence in it, that I desire to read into the record. I will point out what it is, and then submit the bulletin to Mr. Whipple:

"United States of America.

"Sixty-Fifth Congress.

"First Session.

"Statement by The Christian Science Publishing Society concerning the proposed increase of second-class postage.

I.

"The Christian Science Publishing Society is a trusteeship or unincorporated association managed by a board of trustees, without stockholders or personal proprietorship. Except as reasonable wages and salaries are paid, the business of this society is conducted without pecuniary profit to any person. It is an auxiliary institution of the Christian Science Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts."

And then in the course of the bulletin, on the second page, the following question is asked:

"Why, it may be asked, does the Christian Science Church issue a newspaper?"

Page 43, June 7, 1917:

"... The subject of the Bible Lesson Committee was discussed by the members of the board for some time, and at 3:40 Messrs. Dittmore and Neal, committee for the directors, entered the meeting, and a further discussion of the same subject ensued."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of June 7, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 332, R. H. J.]

"... The directors' committee, Messrs. Neal and Dittmore, met with the board until 3:10. The question of the pamphlet, 'What went ye out for to see?' containing the quotation from the Popular and Critical Encyclopedia, was considered, and it was deemed advisable to eliminate that feature from the publication. Therefore the following resolution was unanimously adopted: Resolved, That the pamphlet containing the reference to the Popular and Critical Encyclopedia be and is hereby recalled, the sentences in question to be eliminated from all existing pamphlets, and a new publication to be issued without these sentences."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of June 20, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 333, R. H. J.]

Page 75, July 26, 1917:

"The meeting of the Board of Trustees convened at 1:45 p. m.; present Messrs. McKenzie, Eustace and Merritt. . . .

"At 2:05 p. m. Mr. Lamont Rowlands and the directors' committee, Messrs. Dittmore and Neal, came into the meeting, Mr. Rowlands having been called by telegram to consult with the trustees regarding the trusteeship of The Christian Science Publishing Society. Mr. Rowlands being the unanimous choice, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That Mr. Lamont Rowlands be and is hereby appointed a trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society, to succeed Edward A. Merritt, to take effect as of Aug. 1, 1917."

"Mr. Rowlands expressed himself regarding the trusteeship, agreeing to the action of the Board of Trustees, and formally accepted the office."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of July 26, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 334, R. H. J.]

Page 79, Aug. 1, 1917:

"... A letter was read from The Christian Science Board of Directors, requesting that eight copies of proof sheets of all metaphysical articles intended for the Journal and Sentinel editorial pages, and for the Home Forum page of The Christian Science Monitor, be sent to the directors at least 48 hours before publication. The business manager was ordered to send such proof sheets to the directors in accordance with this request."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Aug. 1, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 335, R. H. J.]

"At 11 a. m., the Board of Trustees met with the Board of Directors to discuss the advisability of establishing a railroad and steamship ticket department."

Now, there are a lot of details that—

The Master—A railroad and what?

Mr. Krauthoff—A railroad and steamship ticket department. That was to sell railroad and steamship tickets. I do not care to read the details of that. I am just reading it for the purpose of showing the conference.

"... The question was then discussed with regard to the proposed changes in the Journal cover and in the editorial pages of the Journal, and also in the Sentinel editorial masthead. It was unanimously agreed that these changes were all in the line of progress, and further, that every one of the periodicals of the Christian Science movement should carry the statement that it was founded by Mary Baker Eddy."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Aug. 7, 1917, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 336, R. H. J.]

Mr. Whipple—What was the date of that?

Mr. Krauthoff—That was Aug. 7, 1917. Page 108, Aug. 21, 1917:

"At 10:30 the trustees met with the Board of Directors, together with Mr. Lesan and the editors, Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Dixon. . . . The subject of the meeting was the advertising of The Monitor in the Christian Science publications. After a thorough discussion of the question, the editors and Mr. Lesan withdrew.

"On further consideration of the subject by the trustees and directors, it was decided to appoint a committee of three—Mr. Lesan, Mr. Dixon, and Mr. McKenzie—to formulate advertising to be displayed in the Sentinel during the month of September, and to provide suitable advertising for the periodicals.

"It was approved that Mr. Lesan be retained as advertising counsel on a basis of $500 a month, this money to be considered as a retainer, with the further understanding that in case money is expended in advertising by any of the activities of The Mother Church, the commissions on which will fully compensate Mr. Lesan for his work, this retainer is to be adjusted accordingly."

[The record of the meeting of the trustees with the Board of Directors on Aug. 21, 1917, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 337, R. H. J.]

The Master—That I think we have had before.

Mr. Krauthoff—No; I am quite sure we have not, Your Honor. We have mentioned Mr. Lesan's name, if Your Honor please, but I am quite sure that that was not proffered in evidence.

The Master—Well, all right.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is half-past 11. I have reached the point where I desire to confer. May we now suspend for a few moments?

The Master—We will stop for a few minutes.

[Short recess.]

[An extract from trustees' records, page 132, Sept. 11, 1917, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 338, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 2 p. m.; present Messrs. Eustace and Ogden. Mr. Rowlands still absent, now in Chicago.

Mr. Watts reported that the Board of Directors had requested a new editorial to take the place of that prepared by Mrs. Knott for the October Journal."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 139, Sept. 19, 1917, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 339, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Mr. Watts came to the meeting at 2:15. The board approved the feature subject, 'Opportunity,' for Sentinel of Sept. 29.

"There was a general discussion as to how these features should be handled in connection with getting the approval of The Christian Science Board of Directors so as not to cause delay in connection with the printing of the publication."

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, in connection with the word "feature" as used there, it is proper to say that the advertisements which I offer in evidence in bulk on the inside pages of the Christian Science periodicals are called, in advertising parlance, "features."

[An extract from trustees' records, page 170, Oct. 18, 1917, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 340, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Mr. Watts came to the meeting at 2:15, and the contract between the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy and the trustees of the Publishing Society was considered very carefully, as rewritten by Mr. Norwood following amendments previously made. The trustees of the Publishing Society approved the contract as now submitted with a few minor changes. Mr. Watts was instructed to go thoroughly over the contract this afternoon, and to get in touch with Mr. Norwood and have the contract put in final form for signature tomorrow, Oct. 19.

"In connection with this contract, it was decided after due consideration to write to The Christian Science Board of Directors for written consent for the publishing by this society of Mrs. Eddy's writings. Consequently, the following letter was written by the Board of Trustees to the directors:

"The Christian Science Publishing Society is contemplating entering into a contract with the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy to become the publishers of Mrs. Eddy's works: Article 25, Section 8, of The Mother Church Manual provides for "written consent" for the publishing or republishing of these works. We shall be glad if The Christian Science Board of Directors will give their "written consent" to our publishing these works."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 188, Oct. 29, 1917, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 341, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The notice to appear in the Sentinel announcing the new periodical, Le Hérait de Christian Science, was re-arranged pending its submission to The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"The trustees went across the street for conference with the Board of Directors at 2:30 and submitted the prepared announcement for the Sentinel and Journal regarding the Herold. This announcement, with a few amendments on the part of the directors, was approved.

"The trustees also informed the Board of Directors of the need for more room for the general printing department, and the directors informed the trustees that it was their intention to move the offices of the Trustees under the Will to the Massachusetts Trust Company building as soon as arrangements could be made for proper space."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 216, Nov. 16, 1917, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 342 and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The following letters were received from The Christian Science Board of Directors:

"1. In answer to our letter of inquiry regarding the removal of advertisements from the Journal when the practitioner enlists for military service, saying to remove, but to restore without formality on request after the war.

"The business manager reported that the Board of Directors had called his attention this morning to the omission of Mrs. Eddy's name from the Sentinel feature of the vest pocket edition of Science and Health; also that it was desirable in the advertisement of the French translation of Science and Health that the full title of the book be given, as well as Mrs. Eddy's name. The trustees ascertained that the name of our Leader did not appear, either, in the feature ad. of the vest pocket Science and Health for the December Journal, and in consequence ordered that the covers for this issue be rerun with a corrected advertisement."

[An extract from the Trustees' Records, page 267, Dec. 27, 1917, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 343, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"At the request of the trustees, a meeting was had with The Christian Science Board of Directors in Mr. Stewart's office, and a letter from Judge Smith to the business manager relative to supplying Monitor subscriptions to members of Congress was considered. It was decided that it would be well for this work to be carried on, as in former years, by the Publishing Society's making written inquiry of each member of Congress before sending him The Monitor.

"The question of the pamphlet edition of the Hymnal for soldiers and sailors was considered with the directors, and it was reported that this was now satisfactorily under way, and that it was expected to be able to produce the Hymnal in pamphlet form, containing some 40 or 50 hymns as set for male voices. The Christian Science Board of Directors approved the plan, and the trustees were authorized to get out the book.

"The subject of the directors' letter, relative to the translation of 'Answers to Questions Concerning Christian Science' into Japanese was discussed."

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, the fifth volume of the Board of Trustees' minutes, beginning with Jan. 2, 1918, page 281, Jan. 9, 1918.

[A portion of the trustees' records, page 281, Jan. 9, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 343, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors at 10:30 to discuss the question of the advisability of preparing a vest pocket edition of the Quarterly containing the Bible references in full, as proposed in their letter of Jan. 3.

"After considerable discussion it was decided that it did not seem advisable to print the Quarterly in this manner, but that it would be well to reproduce the present Quarterly in vest pocket form, and also to secure a Bible similar in size to the vest pocket Science and Health for the use of the soldiers and sailors."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 325, Feb. 15, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 344, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The Board of Trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors at 12:30 Friday, Feb. 15.

"The first subject considered was the cards in the Journal. The trustees presented to the Board of Directors their proposal to publish the practitioners' cards four times a year, once every three months, beginning with the April issue, the charge to be the same per line for the four insertions as had been made for 12 insertions in the past. The church and society advertisements were to continue to run monthly as in the past, but the charge was to be increased $5 a line, making a total charge of $10 per line. It was further recommended that a special letter be sent to all of the practitioners throughout the field and to all of the churches and societies, explaining the reason for this action. The letter will be submitted later."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 339, Feb. 27, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 345, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Mr. Watts gave a report on the handling of the legal affairs for the Publishing Society and his experience with Mr. Norwood. Mr. Watts further stated that he felt that as business manager of the Publishing Society, and also having a thorough knowledge of law, he could better handle the Publishing Society's legal affairs individually, rather than by cooperating with Mr. Norwood's office. The trustees approved this recommendation and instructed Mr. Watts to handle all of the Publishing Society's affairs hereafter."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 343, March 4, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 346, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees convened Monday, March 4, 1918, at 12:30 p. m.; present, Messrs. Eustace, Ogden and Rowlands.

"At 1 o'clock the trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors. . . . The proposed letter to be sent to the field with regard to the arrangement"

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Are you proposing to omit with regard to the McLellan letters and the letters from Mrs. Eddy?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not see that they have any bearing on this situation; I shall be very glad to read it.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I do not see that any of the things you are reading have any bearing on the situation.

Mr. Bates—Well, then, don't multiply it.

Mr. Whipple—But perhaps these do as much as any.

Mr. Krauthoff—Are you asking for the McLellan and the Eddy letters?

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

"At 1 o'clock the trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors to report that they had read carefully and classified all the letters from Mrs. Eddy to Mr. McLellan. The trustees expressed their appreciation for the privilege of reading these letters, and also stated that there were a great many which would serve as guides in connection with the work of the Publishing Society in the different departments. The Board of Directors were glad to have the trustees retain the copies they had presented.

"The trustees asked the Board of Directors if it would be in keeping with their ideas to let the trustees from time to time have the files of Mrs. Eddy's letters which they have collected, so that the trustees might read them and study them. The directors said they saw no reason why the trustees should not have these letters, but that they would report later on this subject.

"The proposed letter to be sent to the field with regard to the arrangement concerning practitioners' and nurses' cards and the raise in rate for churches' and societies' cards was read, and the substance of the letter was approved by the Board of Directors.

"Preliminary plans for the new publishing house were presented to the directors for their consideration, the trustees saying that these plans were at the time rather indefinite, but that they wished the directors to know that they were being forced to the point where it would be necessary to take some action in the very near future as the space in the publishing house was becoming very limited, and taking into consideration the future growth of the movement and the increasing circulation of the periodicals, it would be necessary to take some definite action in the near future looking to making provision for growing needs."

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, May 27, 1918—

Mr. Whipple—You are not reading all the conferences or meetings that they had together.

Mr. Krauthoff—No; I said a moment ago I was not.

Mr. Whipple—I am sorry; I didn't hear you.

[An extract from trustees' records, page 444, May 27, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 347, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"At 12 o'clock, on Monday, May 27, 1918, the Board of Trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors as arranged at the request of the trustees, to consider a letter from the directors dated May 21, 1918, referring to 'Section E of paragraph 7 of a memorandum considered jointly by the directors and trustees in February, 1916.' The trustees wished to talk this subject over with the Board of Directors rather than to reply by letter, as they felt there should be a thorough understanding between the two boards relative to their relation to the work of the Christian Science movement.

"The trustees stated that there had never been any records in the trustees' files in regard to the memorandum referred to, and that in considering this memorandum it was the unanimous conclusion that there was nothing in this unrecorded memorandum which was not already in the By-Laws of The Mother Church and in the Deed of Trust, and that it would not be right to attempt to supplement this by recorded interpretation; that the Manual was provided by Mrs. Eddy as being sufficient, and that the provisions contained therein would continue to unfold through further demonstration.

"The trustees assured the directors of their most hearty cooperation and support, and this was reciprocated on the part of the directors. It was finally decided that the memorandum should be destroyed."

[A portion of the trustees' records, page 448, May 29, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 348, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The report for the year of the activities of The Christian Science Publishing Society, to be sent to Mr. Jarvis to be embodied in his annual report, was read and approved and ordered sent to Mr. Jarvis."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 453, June 3, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 349, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"A letter was received from The Christian Science Board of Directors announcing the following appointments for the ensuing year."

Mr. Krauthoff—Then follow the names of Mr. McKenzie, Mr. Mc-

Crackan, Mr. Dixon and Mr. Watts, as editor, associate editors, and editor, and manager.

"It was moved and seconded that the secretary acknowledge the receipt of the letter and thank the board for its compliance with the request of the trustees to omit the appointment of the German translator, leaving the continuance of this appointment with the Board of Trustees.

"Mr. Watts came to the meeting and reported the receipt by him of a letter from the directors announcing his appointment for the forthcoming year."

Mr. Krauthoff—June 17, 1918, page 470:

"The business office was instructed to have the article by Mr. Dixon in Saturday's Monitor, 'Lusting Against Lust,' set up for use with other articles in a vest pocket pamphlet to be entitled 'Purification.'"

[That portion of the record of the meeting of Board of Trustees, dated June 17, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 350.]

Mr. Krauthoff—June 22, 1918, page 477:

"The appointment of some one to fill the vacancy made on the Bible Lesson Committee by Mr. Dutton's resignation was considered, and after going over the available workers, it was felt that Dr. Colby was well qualified for work on the Bible Lesson Committee. On motion duly seconded, therefore, Dr. Colby was elected and a letter was written to The Christian Science Board of Directors notifying them of the election and saying that the trustees would notify Dr. Colby providing the directors saw no objection to this appointment."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated June 29, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 351.]

Mr. Krauthoff—June 24, 1918, page 480:

"At 11:30 the trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors also stated that they had received the trustees' letter notifying them of the election of Dr. Colby as a member of the Bible Lesson Committee. They said that this was being considered, and that the directors would reply formally to our letter in the near future."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated June 24, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 352.]

Mr. Krauthoff—July 5, 1918, page 492:

"A letter from Judge Smith, regarding The Christian Science Publishing Society, and the questions of using the words 'Sole Publishers of All Authorized Christian Science Literature,' was given consideration with the business manager, and the business manager said that he had made a careful study of the situation and would submit a letter later for the trustees' consideration.

"It was felt by the trustees that this phrase did not conflict in any way with the work of the Committee on Publication, and was an additional protection to the Publication Society, besides being in accordance with the Manual of The Mother Church and the Deed of Trust."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated July 5, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 353.]

Mr. Krauthoff—July 8, 1918, page 494:

"At 12 o'clock the trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"The question of storage space and additional space occupied by the Publishing Society outside of the publishing house being paid for by The Mother Church, was considered. It was felt by the trustees that this additional space should, according to the Manual, be paid for by the Mother Church, inasmuch as the Manual provides that 'It shall be the duty of The Christian Science Board of Directors to provide a suitable building for the publication of The Christian Science Journal, Christian Science Sentinel, Der Herold der Christian Science, and all other Christian Science literature published by The Christian Science Publishing Society' (Article 1, Section 7). This question was left open for further consideration.

"The new vest pocket Bible, and the possibility of its distribution through the Welfare Committee was considered. The directors felt that with the present cost of the Bible it would be impossible for the Welfare Committee to do much distribution. They therefore asked the trustees if it would not be possible to purchase the plates, or arrange for quantity distribution, so as to materially lower the present cost. The trustees assured the directors that they would be glad to make further investigation and report later.

"The indorsement of the appointment of Dr. Colby to fill the vacancy on the Bible Lesson Committee came up for consideration. The directors appreciated the fact that it was a courtesy to refer these appointments to them for their consideration before finally advising the appointees, and said that Dr. Colby was satisfactory to them in every way.

"The question of changing the date of issue of the Sentinel was presented for consideration, but because of lack of information the subject was deferred."

[Those portions on the record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated July 8, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 354.]

Mr. Krauthoff—July 30, 1918, page 517:

The Board of Trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors at 12:30 on Tuesday, July 30, the trustees having asked for this meeting in order to discuss the editorial department of the Journal, Sentinel, and Herald.

The situation was discussed at length, but the directors gave the trustees no definite information on the subject.

The question of the interpretation of the By-Law, Article XXV, Section 9, in The Mother Church Manual, was discussed, and left open for further consideration. The trustees of the Publishing Society agreed to submit further data.

The Manual By-Law Article XXVII, Section 4, was also discussed in connection with Mr. (blank), who has recently applied to have his name inserted as a practitioner in Le Héraut. The trustees assured the directors that they would give this subject careful consideration and advise them later.

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated July 30, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 355.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 8, 1918, page 528:

The Board of Trustees with the editor of The Christian Science Monitor and the business manager met with The Christian Science Board of Directors by appointment at 12 o'clock. The trustees asked for this meeting so as to present the recommendations and decision in regard to making The Christian Science Monitor in one edition, changing the issue of the paper from an afternoon to a morning newspaper. The chairman of the trustees and the business manager laid before the Board of Directors quite at length the recommendations and conclusions of the trustees. After thorough discussion and consideration of the subject, it was the unanimous conclusion of the meeting that the recommendations should be adopted and put into effect at once. It was the thought of the meeting that the change should be made before Aug. 12 if possible so as not to leave any chance of coming under the new ruling of the War Industries Board, which the business manager stated would become effective Aug. 12, 1918.

[That portion of record of the meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Aug. 8, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 256.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 15, 1918, page 539:

The Board of Trustees met with The Christian Science Board of Directors at 12 o'clock; present, Messrs. Adam H. Dickey, J. V. Dittmore, E. A. Merritt, James A. Neal, David B. Ogden, and Lamont Rowlands.

The directors desired to make inquiry of the trustees regarding the recent purchase of the Franklin automobile for the use of the Publishing

Society, and also to submit to the trustees a list of comparative inquiries regarding the progress and profits of the business. These questions were freely and frankly discussed by all present, and the trustees expressed surprise at the apparent lack of confidence expressed in the inquiry regarding the automobile, inasmuch as they felt that the conduct of the publishing house business and its efficient operation was, under the Deed of Trust, left to their own good judgment.

Regarding the long list of questions, which concerned principally the accounting department of the publishing house, the trustees assured the Board of Directors that they would be very glad to obtain this information and submit a report to them at the earliest possible moment.

The plans for rearranging the shipping rooms were submitted to the Board of Directors, and the directors asked that a written recommendation be presented to them, together with the plans. The trustees assured the directors that they would be given attention immediately.

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Aug. 15, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 357.]

Mr. Krauthoff—In connection with that automobile, if Your Honor please—

The Master—What was the date of that last meeting?

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 15, 1918. In connection with the automobile, I omitted a meeting of the trustees on Aug. 10, 1918, page 533:

The trustees recommended that a motor car should be purchased at once to accommodate the demands of the trustees, business manager and editors, especially in connection with the work which will be occasioned by The Monitor being printed at night. The business manager asked that a Franklin be purchased, and this was approved.

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Aug. 10, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 358.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 27, 1918, page 558:

Mr. Rowlands reported that he had had a telephone call from Mr. Dickey, chairman of The Christian Science Board of Directors, asking for information relative to the vest pocket pamphlet, 'Purification,' which was coming off the presses and which would soon be ready to send to the field. Mr. Dickey said that the Board of Directors at their meeting today had passed a resolution asking that the pamphlet be held up for the time being, as there were several points in connection with the pamphlet which should be discussed. The trustees were asked to meet with the directors next Tuesday, when there would be a full Board of Trustees.

After further consideration, the trustees felt it would be wise to defer this meeting until Wednesday, inasmuch as the trustees would not be in session until Tuesday afternoon. Therefore, the following letter was sent to The Christian Science Board of Directors:

In compliance with your telephone request this morning, the pamphlet 'Purification,' which is now coming from the bindery, has been withheld from shipment until we have an opportunity to confer with your board.

In the meantime, we should appreciate it if you will write us regarding the points in the pamphlet which are under question, in order that we may give them consideration before the conference. We would like to have this information for our meeting tomorrow afternoon if convenient to you.

Inasmuch as Monday will be a holiday and our full board will not be available until an afternoon meeting on Tuesday, we should like to arrange the conference for Wednesday noon, rather than for Tuesday, as first planned.

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Aug. 27, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 359.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Sept. 2, 1918, page 564:

The trustees' letter regarding the pamphlet 'Purification,' and the reply received last week from the directors, was again considered preparatory to a conference asked for by the directors and arranged for next Wednesday noon.

Then comes some other matter, not now important.

Later the trustees gave earnest and thorough consideration to their position and obligation under the Deed of Trust, and they were of one mind, that every part of this obligation should be faithfully lived up to.

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Sept. 2, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 360.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Sept. 3, 1918, page 566; the meeting having been at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and then it continues:

The meeting convened again at 3 p. m., with all members present.

This meeting was had to give further consideration to the Deed of Trust and its application to the work of the trustees and the Publishing Society.

After further consideration by the trustees of questions of import to the Publishing Society, the meeting adjourned with the reading of the Rule for Motives and Acts from the Manual.

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Sept. 3, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 361.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Sept. 4, 1918, page 567:

The trustees went over for their conference with the directors at 12:30, at which meeting all members of the Board of Directors were present except Mr. Stewart.

"An hour and a half was spent in a general discussion regarding the advisability of issuing the articles on 'generic man' in pamphlet form, under the title of 'Purification.' It was evident that the directors recognized that the issuing of this pamphlet was wholly a question which rested with the Board of Trustees, and that their question was not one of criticizing the metaphysics of the articles, but rather of the expediency of issuing it at this time.

"Three or four slight corrections were recommended in order to make some statement more definite, and the question of issuing the pamphlet without the name of the author of the articles was also considered. The trustees finally said they would be glad to give the recommendations consideration and would later notify the directors regarding their decision. The meeting was harmonious and beneficial to all concerned."

"Mr. Dixon came to the meeting and the question regarding the pamphlet 'Purification' was discussed with him. He readily consented to the few minor changes in the articles which have been discussed with the directors. It was finally decided that the issue of the pamphlet as now printed be sent out to the field, and that one or two minor changes be made in the next edition, but that the question of including the author's name be left open for further consideration. The secretary was instructed to prepare a letter notifying the directors of the decision of the board."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Sept. 4, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 362.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Sept. 5, 1918, page 570—

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me a moment. Is there any particular reason for omitting the rest of that record? You have omitted in connection with the discussion of the pamphlet "Purification" a statement was made by Mr. Dittmore, and so forth. Why not read it?

Mr. Thompson—If there is anything about him, put it in.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will read that as we go along.

Mr. Whipple—You have passed it, so that you will have to go back and pick it up.

Mr. Streeter—Let me ask if you are omitting from your reading anything that relates to Mr. Dittmore? Have you heretofore?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not recall that I have, but I would prefer that you make your own examination of the records.

Mr. Streeter—Well, do you think it would be fair for you to read, when you are reading a part of those records—to read the whole of them relating to both these matters?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I have not assumed that a statement in these records of the trustees is evidence against Mr. Dittmore. There are a number of statements in here of conferences between the directors, and between these trustees and Mr. Dittmore alone, and Mr. Dittmore and Mr. Neal, in which the nature of the conference is not set out. I have not purposely omitted anything.

Mr. Thompson—Did it ever occur to you that there might be evidence in favor of Mr. Dittmore?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, he has two very good lawyers.

Mr. Thompson—They are good enough to insist on your playing fair in this case. I want it read.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offered to read this and I—

The Master—It is on the question of reading the letter, is it?

Mr. Krauthoff—A statement of Mr. Dittmore. And in connection with that, if Your Honor please—

The Master—Well, if you undertook to read a letter it would seem that unless there is consent to the contrary you ought to read the whole letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, this is not a letter. Here is a record of the trustees as to what Mr. Dittmore said. Now, I had not, in the first instance, assumed that what the trustees wrote upon their records about what Mr. Dittmore said—

The Master—Did you read a part of that?

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not. I will read it now.

The Master—Do you desire to have it read?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, we want him to read what he has got in there about Mr. Dittmore. I supposed he was doing it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, may I make this suggestion: Some intimation has been made here about being unfair. Now, this morning I undertook to explain something as I went along and I precipitated upon myself an avalanche. Now, I am ready—

Mr. Streeter—Well, go ahead.

Mr. Thompson—Never mind about the avalanche.

The Master—It is agreed now that that is to be read. Go ahead and read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, this is from the trustees' records on page 568, under date of Sept. 4, 1918:

"In connection with the discussion of the pamphlet 'Purification,' the statement was made by Mr. Dittmore that if attempted interpretations were made of Mrs. Eddy's writings, this would ultimate in disaster to the Christian Science movement. The chairman of the Board of Trustees,

Mr. Rowlands, took emphatic exception to this statement and rebuked it with the iteration that the permanency of the Christian Science movement rested on Mrs. Eddy's demonstration, and that no condition or power can ever overthrow it. This is sustained by what Mrs. Eddy has said, 'Truth is revealed. It needs only to be practised.' (Science and Health, p. 174), and 'No human pen nor tongue taught me the Science contained in this book, Science and Health; and neither tongue nor pen can overthrow it' (p. 110)."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Sept. 4, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as a part of Exhibit 362.]

Mr. Bates—Do you feel better, General?

Mr. Streeter—Well, not much, because apparently he has gone on here for eight or ten years, and I supposed that he was reading it, and he has not read it, so that I don't feel much better.

Mr. Bates—We are glad to have your permission to do so, some of it was not read because we thought it was not admissible. Now it is.

Mr. Thompson—Is that the reason why you did not read it?

Mr. Bates—Mr. Thompson has asked me a question, and I will answer it. He has asked me if that is the reason why we did not read it. There are many paragraphs in there in regard to Mr. Dittmore that we did not read because we supposed that they were not admissible. But let me state also that we are under no obligation to read them, as the counsel on the other side very well know. We are putting in our part of the case. We are required to put in only those records which concern us. If either of the other counsel desires to put in any more of the records, he has a right to put them in; but counsel have no right to interrupt us and ask us to put them in for them.

The Master—I think that it would be better for you to put in what you desire to put in, and leave it for them to put in what they desire to put in.

Mr. Krauthoff—September 5, 1918—

The Master—One moment.

Mr. Streeter—You need not be at all sensitive about reading anything in that record regarding Mr. Dittmore. Mr. Dittmore wants the whole record, all there is on the trustees' records and the directors' records, spread out in the sunlight before the Master; and you need not hesitate to read them.

The Master—Mr. Dittmore may want that, but I do not think that any of the rest of us desire to have the trustees' and the directors' records put in here in extenso, the whole of them.

Mr. Streeter—It will simply compel us to put it in at a later time.

The Master—Mr. Krauthoff is now reading from the trustees' records certain things that he deems important to his case. Now, if the privilege is reserved to you to read what you desire to read out of those records, making your own selection, what have you to complain of?

Mr. Streeter—I do not know that I have anything to complain of, except that he puts it in at a different time and place, and I supposed that he was reading—

The Master—We do not want all the records of the directors and the trustees just as they stand copied into this record.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, no; that is not it. It is only with reference to his remark—

The Master—Then let each side select what it wants.

Mr. Streeter—Well, if Your Honor thinks that that is the better way, we bow to your suggestion.

Mr. Whipple—But I understand, if Your Honor please, that where a record is put in purporting to cover a general subject, they ought to read it all, just as they would a letter, and not select sentences, and leave out other isolated sentences.

Mr. Thompson—That is the point, sir. And it seems to me that it is putting a great burden on us. Here is a part of a subject, this pamphlet "Purification," and Mr. Dittmore took a certain attitude on it, and Mr. Krauthoff read a certain portion of it. We are not asking for detached matters connected with Mr. Dittmore, but if he takes up a subject he ought not to eliminate what bears on it. It is not fair to Mr. Dittmore, and it is not a fair way to try a case.

The Master—If you put in a part of any statement of Mr. Dittmore, you ought to put in the whole of it.

Mr. Bates—We have; Your Honor.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, then, if Your Honor please, since we have been authorized to offer evidence on the part of Mr. Dittmore, we will try to do it.

Mr. Streeter—What was that that you said?

The Master—I do not understand that there has been any express authorization.

Mr. Thompson—That is a silly comment on what we have said. We have only asked you to be fair. We have not asked you to put in evidence in behalf of Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well. Now I will read the record of the next meeting.

Sept. 5, 1918, page 570:

"... Mr. Parker came to the meeting inasmuch as Mr. Watts was in Washington, and reported that an inquiry had been made by the Board of Directors of the business office as to whether the pamphlet 'Purification' had been released. Mr. Parker had replied that no word had yet been received from the Board of Trustees for its release, and that 5000 were ready for issuance, while the balance of the edition was being held in process in the bindery. It was decided to hold the letter to the directors regarding the issuance of the pamphlet 'Purification' until Monday, but to authorize the finishing of the pamphlet in its present form, and its issuance to the field as soon as prepared."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Sept. 5, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 363. R. H. J.]

Page 574, Sept. 9, 1918:

"... The secretary read the draft of a letter prepared by the editor of The Monitor to the directors on the subject of 'Purification,' which met with the hearty approval of the trustees. . . . A letter was received from The Christian Science Board of Directors, acknowledging our letter of Sept. 6, and asking that the sending out of the pamphlet 'Purification' be further deferred until another conference could be had between the two boards. The secretary was instructed to write the Board of Directors that the trustees would be glad to meet with them on Thursday at any time they might state, but that it seemed impossible to do so tomorrow or Wednesday. It was decided, however, that no change should be made in the release given the business manager regarding the sending out of the pamphlet.

"... Mr. Dixon said he had given further earnest consideration to his letter prepared to the Board of Directors, and had decided to send it to them this evening."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Sept. 9, 1918, from which the foregoing extracts are read is Exhibit 364. R. H. J.]

Page 577, Sept. 10, 1918:

"An inquiry was made by the Sentinel editorial department regarding the Christian Science Society at Kirksville, the card of which does not appear in the Journal. The inquiry was occasioned by a lecture announcement having come from that point. They were notified that the application for reinsertion of the advertisement of this organization was not yet completed, and that therefore the society would not be eligible under the by-law for a lecture. The business manager was instructed to notify Dr. Tutt, who was to deliver the lecture in question, of the status of the society's affairs.

"Mr. Rowlands reported that the secretary of the Board of Directors had telephoned him that the directors would like to arrange a meeting with the Board of Trustees for tomorrow noon, instead of Thursday, as planned in our letter. Although this made it necessary for Mr. Rowlands to rearrange his plans with some of his business associates, the trustees decided to arrange for this conference, and so telephoned Miss Warren, the acting secretary.

"Mr. Watts came to the meeting and reported that early this morning he had been called by Mr. Dickey and asked whether the pamphlet 'Purification' had been sent out from the publishing house. Mr. Dickey had also requested the business manager to hold it from further shipment, saying that he would take this up with his board when it convened this morning.

"Mr. Watts then thought it advisable to see one of the trustees, and as no member was at hand, went over to see Mr. Eustace and notified him that he (the business manager) would undoubtedly be called to the meeting of the Board of Directors on this subject. Later he was called to the Board of Directors, and instructed to withhold the pamphlet from circulation until conference could be had by the two boards. The business manager asked that this request be given him in writing, which was done.

"After hearing this report from the business manager, the trustees told him that their instructions in the matter had been given several days ago by memorandum, and that he must look to Principle to decide what course he should now take. Mr. Watts spoke most earnestly of his desire to fulfill the requirements of business manager, and said that he felt the position of business manager should have the support of the Board of Trustees and the Board of Directors. He was assured that this was the desire of the trustees and that he must look to Principle for guidance."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of September 10, 1918, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 365. R. H. J.]

"The meeting of the Board of Trustees convened Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1918, at 11:35 a. m.; all members being present. . . .

"The business manager came to the meeting and reported that after very earnest consideration he had decided it was his highest understanding of Principle to follow the original order of the trustees relative to the shipping out of the pamphlet 'Purification,' notwithstanding the letter he had yesterday received from the Board of Directors requesting him not to ship out any of the pamphlets till authorized by the Board of Directors to do so, and that he had consequently notified the shipping room first thing this morning to send out the pamphlet. The trustees expressed their approval of his decision, feeling that he had made it wholly without influence from them, being guided solely by his own understanding of what Principle demanded of him to do.

"A general discussion was had of questions concerning the Deed of Trust.

"At 12:15 p. m. the trustees went over for a conference with the Board of Directors. The members of the Board of Directors present at the conference were Adam H. Dickey, James A. Neal, John V. Dittmore, and Edward A. Merritt."

"The chairman of the Board of Directors, Mr. Dickey, stated in detail how certain incidents and remarks in connection with their inquiries and requests regarding the pamphlet 'Purification' had been used by animal magnetism to try to bring about a difference and misunderstanding between the two boards; that the arrangement in the letter of Sept. 6, sent by the trustees to them, stating that the trustees had decided to make the one or two slight changes which had been discussed by the two boards in the next edition of the pamphlet, was agreeable to them, but that they believed from what they knew of Mrs. Eddy's general expressed desire that the name of the author should appear on the pamphlet. Mr. Dickey further expressed the sense of the Board of Directors that the pamphlet could in no way do any harm.

"After some further general remarks, Mr. Rowlands, as chairman of the Board of Trustees, stated for the trustees that it was felt that there was a still larger question connected with these recent occurrences than that of the issuance of the pamphlet, namely, that of the responsibilities and obligations demanded of the trustees by the Deed of Trust, and that the trustees felt the action of the Board of Directors in giving the business manager of the publishing house written instructions regarding the pamphlet directly contrary to those given him by the trustees, or in fact, giving him any instructions whatever, was illustrative of the question to be considered.

"He stated that the trustees had every consideration, respect, and friendship for the directors, individually and as a board, and that the trustees are willing and desirous of cooperating with them in every right way, but that they insist, since they are the ones who have accepted the trust and its obligations, that they must be the interpreters of the provisions of the trust deed, for the trustees feel that the Deed of Trust is not only the highest moral trust ever recorded, but that it is equally a strictly legal trust, and that in consequence the importance of the trust from every standpoint is one that must, of necessity, receive the greatest honor, obedience, and protection from its signatories; therefore, the trustees, in the fulfillment of their trust, must be left free to manage the publishing house absolutely, and be treated by the Board of Directors as colleagues.

"Mr. Rowlands called attention to the fact that Mrs. Eddy had made the Deed of Trust of her own accord, without consulting the then Board of Directors, or First Members, and that she used terms in connection with the wording of the deed which were unmistakable in their intent, such as 'for the purpose of more effectually promoting and extending the religion of Christian Science . . . upon the following perpetual and irrevocable trust and confidence. . . . Said trustees shall energetically and judiciously manage the business of the Publishing Society on a strictly Christian basis, and upon their own responsibility . . . shall have direction and supervision . . . using their best judgment as to the means of preparing and issuing the same so as to promote the best interests of the Cause.'

"Mr. Eustace followed Mr. Rowlands in the statement of the attitude of the Board of Trustees in regard to the Deed of Trust and the relationship of the two boards, indorsing emphatically everything that had been said by Mr. Rowlands, and supporting the decision of the trustees to preserve and enforce their right to govern and direct the activities of The Christian Science Publishing Society unhampered. Mr. Rowlands stated that The Christian Science Board of Directors was the authority under Principle for the direction of the affairs of the Church, and in the same way the Board of Trustees was the authority under Principle for the direction of the affairs of the Publishing Society. Mr. Eustace emphasized this fact, indorsing it fully.

"The question of the provision of the Deed of Trust and The Mother Church Manual pertaining to the rights of the directors to 'declare vacancies in said trusteeships for such reasons as to them may seem expedient' was referred to by Mr. Dickey, and a discussion ensued regarding the meaning of the word 'expedient.' The trustees maintained that our Leader used this word advisedly as she always used words, and in its highest meaning of right, best, and advantageous, even as Jesus used it when he declared 'It is expedient for you that I go away.' Mr. Dickey read certain definitions of this word in its lower meaning from the dictionary, that the trustees refused to accept as our Leader's meaning of the word as used by her.

"The trustees admitted that the Deed of Trust and the Church Manual gave certain disciplinary power to The Christian Science Board of Directors as to the declaring of vacancies on the Board of Trustees, but that this could properly only be invoked for moral offenses such as dishonesty or immorality, and being untrue to the teachings of Science and Health as stated in the Deed of Trust, but for no other purpose. Certain members of the Board of Directors expressed a contrary opinion with this interpretation, at least for the time being, until they could give further study to the Deed of Trust and the Manual on the subject.

"The wording of the Deed of Trust in this connection was cited as a standard of what Mrs. Eddy required of the trustees, namely, that they should be 'loyal, faithful, and consistent believers and advocates of the principles of Christian Science.' The trustees maintained that so long as these requirements were fulfilled, no disciplinary action could be enforced.

"There was a general discussion of many points regarding the Deed of Trust and the By-Laws of The Mother Church.

"On the question being put to Mr. Ogden, he affirmed his unqualified agreement with the entire statement presented by Mr. Rowlands and continued by Mr. Eustace, and insisted on the unity and determination of the trustees regarding their right and obligation to manage the Publishing House without interference. This attitude of the trustees was thoroughly understood by all present, and so stated.

"It should be recorded that during the conference reference was made to a semi-official communication designated as a memorandum that had once been under consideration by a former Board of Trustees two or more years ago, and which had been again under discussion at a meeting of the directors and trustees in June of this year, a copy of which memorandum in the hands of the trustees after the meeting was torn up as being utterly repudiated by them. The directors were told of this fact and were reminded further of the fact that that memorandum bore witness to the attempt of the Board of Directors to define the Deed of Trust for the trustees, and in so doing attempted to curtail their freedom of action in regard to not only appointments on the Bible Lesson Committee, but even in the purchasing of necessary machinery, etc., for the conduct of the business in direct opposition to the powers conferred on the trustees by the Deed of Trust, this curtailment extending to even necessary communications to the field about promoting the business of the Publishing Society. It was plainly pointed out that the trustees could not and would not tolerate any such actions, for to do so would virtually make void the Deed of Trust.

"Mr. Rowlands closed the conference for the trustees with the statement that the Deed of Trust and the Manual would be the guide of the Board of Trustees to the end, and that they could do no other than put their own metaphysical interpretation on the instrument of which they were trustees, lead wherever it might.

"The trustees returned to the publishing house at 3:15 and after consulting with the business manager regarding the possibilities of placing Mr. Dixon's name as author on the cover of the pamphlet 'Purification,' and finding that this was practicable, it was decided to have this done."

". . . The business manager came to the meeting and reported that he had been phoned by Mr. Dickey, chairman of the Board of Directors, requesting the return of the letter of the Board of Directors referred to in preceding minutes, and stating that the board had decided to withdraw the letter and release the pamphlets. The business manager answered that the pamphlets had already been released and later he handed the letter to the chairman."

"... Mr. Eustace read a brief summary he had prepared for the trustees some four years ago on the Deed of Trust and the Manual and their particular application to the care of Journal cards. This statement was absolutely in accord with the views of the trustees today, as stated on Wednesday to The Christian Science Board of Directors."

"... The trustees spent the morning session considering the draft of a letter to The Christian Science Board of Directors, reaffirming and amplifying the statements made to the directors relative to the Deed of Trust at the time of their conference Sept. 11.

"After drawing up the first copies of this letter, it was given to Mr. McKenzie, the editor of the Journal and Sentinel, who was one of our Leader's original appointees on the Board of Trustees and who served for 19 years on that board. A copy was also given to Mr. Dixon, editor of The Monitor, and to Mr. Watts, the business manager, so that each of these officers were fully conversant with the text of the letter. Each assented to and approved of the contents.

"Some additional slight changes were made by the trustees at the afternoon session and five copies were to be prepared for signature at the evening session."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Sept. 30, 1918, from which the foregoing is read, is Exhibit 369. R. H. J.]

Page 610, the record of the same meeting:

"Several documents connected with the consideration of the Deed of Trust in former years were given the trustees by Mr. McKenzie, and it was moved and seconded that these letters and papers, together with a copy of the brief prepared by the trustees several years ago, and referred to in the minutes of Sept. 13, 1918, and a copy of the memorandum prepared in February, 1916, by the Board of Directors, should be placed on file as a permanent record for this board, in a special folder entitled 'Deed of Trust,' together with a copy of the letter prepared today.

"The session then adjourned, to reconvene at 10 p. m.

"The meeting convened again at the appointed time, and the trustees again carefully read and compared the letter prepared to the Board of Directors, and affixed their individual signatures thereto. . . . A copy of this letter, as signed by the three trustees, is attached as a part of these minutes."

That copy of letter, if Your Honor please, is a copy of a letter of Sept. 30, 1918, which was offered in evidence in connection with the testimony of Mr. Eustace.

Mr. Whipple—You haven't the number of the exhibit?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I have not. There was no other letter on that date.

Page 611, Oct. 1, 1918:

"The meeting of the Board of Trustees convened Tuesday, Oct. 1, 1918,"

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon the interruption, to fix that, it is Exhibit 4a.

Mr. Krauthoff—A letter of Sept. 30, 1918, found in the trustees' record as a part of the minutes of Sept. 30, 1918, is Exhibit 4a.

Mr. Whipple—That will serve to identify it.

[An extract from trustees' records, page 611, Oct. 1, 1918, offered in evidence as Exhibit 371, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The Board of Directors telephoned at 11 a. m., saying that in view of the letter received from the trustees, they would ask that the conference scheduled for this morning be deferred."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 618, Oct. 3, 1918, offered in evidence as Exhibit 372, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Mr. Watts reported a meeting with the Board of Directors regarding a notice to be published in the Sentinel regarding Mr. Ripley's appointment as church treasurer. Mr. Seeley was asked to come to the meeting to discuss the placing of notices of this kind, and it was the unanimous decision that notices such as this should hereafter appear at the end of the editorial columns rather than at the head. This is to be talked over with the editor before being put into operation.

"A general discussion was had with Mr. Seeley as to the relation of the editorial department to the work of the Publishing Society and The Mother Church, and he was given a copy of the Deed of Trust to read."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 643, Oct. 24, 1918, offered in evidence as Exhibit 373, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Mr. Watts came to the meeting and the trustees discussed with him a private letter written by Mr. Eustace to Mr. Rowlands regarding the Deed of Trust. Later Mr. Dixon came to the meeting and the letter was discussed with him. It was agreed by all that it covered the points well."

[An extract from trustees' records, page 669, Nov. 19, 1918, offered in evidence as Exhibit 374, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"A letter was received from The Christian Science Board of Directors, acknowledging our letter relative to the recent payment to the treasurer, and requesting a copy of the auditor's report for the period. The business manager was instructed to send the directors a copy of the semi-annual summary as soon as it is ready, and to state that the auditor's report is made only once a year, at the April accounting."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 671, Nov. 21, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 375, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Mr. McKenzie came to the meeting, and later Mr. Watts. General consideration of the Deed of Trust and the Manual, and their application to the work of the publishing house, was had. At the editor's request, a copy of the references to the editorial department, in the trustees' letter of Sept. 30 to the directors, was to be made for his information."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 707, Dec. 24, 1918, offered in evidence as Exhibit 376, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The last letters of Dec. 20, from the directors were again carefully considered by the trustees and the business manager, and it was decided to send the following acknowledgment and reply, signed by all of the trustees:

"After careful consideration of your two letters dated Dec. 20, this board can only reiterate and reaffirm its position as stated in previous letters to your board of Sept. 30 and subsequent dates.

"With our united kindest regards, and wishing you all the greetings of the season,

"Very sincerely yours,

"BOARD OF TRUSTEES."

"Mr. Rowlands asked to have recorded in the minutes that he had read the minutes of the actions taken by the trustees during his recent absence, particularly the letters to the Board of Directors, and these actions taken by the trustees were wholly in accord with the unanimous intention of the Board of Trustees, and had his full approval."

"Mr. Watts came to the meeting and reported that he had been asked by the Board of Directors to come over to their meeting this morning and that the directors had handed him a letter which they had prepared asking him to report to their board any special actions of importance in the Publishing Society before he put them into effect. This gave Mr. Watts an opportunity to declare himself on the Deed of Trust, and he talked at length with the directors on this subject, and gave them to understand that, in obedience to the Deed of Trust and The Mother Church Manual, he had reached the decision that his instructions should come to him through the Board of Trustees. Mr. Watts will embody in a letter to the trustees a copy of the letter he received from the Board of Directors.

"The trustees gave further consideration to their reply to the recent letter from the Board of Directors, which they had prepared at their last meeting, Dec. 31, and it was decided that each member of the board should sign the letter, as in previous correspondence, and that it should be sent at once to the directors."

Mr. Krauthoff—That is a letter already introduced in evidence, referring to the Philadelphia lawyer.

Mr. Whipple—Don't you remember the number of that exhibit?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I do not.

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 740, Jan. 22, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 378, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows]:

"Mr. Watts reported the conversation he had had this morning with Mr. Dickey, who had returned to Boston last night, in which Mr. Dickey emphasized his conviction of the wrongness of the position of the trustees, and indicated to Mr. Watts that such a course would result disastrously to the business manager as well as to the trustees, intimating that it might be necessary to have recourse to the Manual By-Laws for the dismissal of members. . . .

"After the meeting convened, Mr. McKenzie came down and indicated by his appearance and expressions that he was disturbed regarding the situation between the directors and trustees, and would not sustain his statement made at a recent meeting that he approved the course which had been taken by the trustees relative to the Deed of Trust. The trustees had a long conversation with him, and told him of the correspondence and of our attitude in being defenders of the Deed of Trust and not aggressors in a church dissension. They also told Mr. McKenzie that unquestionably the time would come very soon when it would be necessary for him to definitely take his stand on the question in connection with his office as editor, and that this could not be avoided.

"Two letters were received from the Board of Directors dated today, one directing that certain changes be made in the announcement in The Christian Science Journal regarding the 'teaching year' and applications for advertisements in the Journal, making these latter apply to the Board of Directors rather than to the Publishing Society. This letter also requested a meeting with the Board of Directors at 10 o'clock, Monday, the 27th, to consider the question of handling correspondence on the above subject. The second letter made a change in the wording of one of the paragraphs in their former letter of Dec. 20.

"After considering these letters the trustees felt that it would be well to have Mr. Rowlands present as soon as possible, to have a full consideration by the whole board, and a wire was sent to him acquainting him with the receipt of the letters and asking him to come to Boston at once. The wire was sent to him both at Picayune and New Orleans.

"The trustees put in a long distance call for Mr. Rowlands at Picayune for 10 o'clock tonight, at the publishing house."

[An extract from the trustees' records, page 757, Feb. 1, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 379, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows]:

"The counsel for the trustees, Justice Hughes, Mr. Strawn, and Mr. Whipple, met with the counsel for the directors, Governor Bates, Mr. Abbott, Mr. Krauthoff, and Judge Smith, at 10 a. m. in Mr. Whipple's private office in the Tremont Building, and were in session three hours.

"At 2 p.m. the trustees and the business manager met with counsel at Mr. Whipple's office, and were told the result of the morning conference. The directors claimed final authority in the following matters:

"1. The recognition of new churches.

"2. As to the eligibility of practitioners and nurses, who are members of The Mother Church, to cards in the periodicals.

"3. As to the entire policy of all the publications."

Mr. Krauthoff—I think that should read "editorial policy."

"4. As to matters affecting the cause of Christian Science and of church policy.

"5. That the salaries of the editors and of the manager should be subject to the approval of the directors.

"6. That vacancies in the Committee on Bible Lessons should not be filled without the approval of the directors (Manual, Article XXV, Section 5).

"The first two of these points the counsel for the trustees acquiesced in, because they had already been agreed to in the letter from the counsel for the trustees to the counsel for the directors, but the last four, being in conflict with the requirements of the Deed of Trust, were positively denied.

"Each of our counsel advised the trustees to express a willingness to consult with the directors on the last four points, and try to make all questions those of agreement, without defining the matter of authority. The trustees acquiesced in this arrangement, and the counsel for both boards then went into conference again, and the trustees retired to a near-by office in the suite.

"Mr. Strawn brought the trustees a written outline relative to the Journal cards acceptable to the directors, which the trustees assented to, and which was afterwards initialed by Messrs. Bates, Smith, and Krauthoff. This is as follows:"

Mr. Krauthoff—Then follows the memorandum which was set out in the letter of Governor Bates to Mr. Whipple, in the early part of February, 1919, and which has been heretofore offered in evidence.

Mr. Streeter—Is it printed?

Mr. Krauthoff—In the record.

Mr. Whipple—What is the number of the exhibit?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not know.

Mr. Streeter—Can't this be referred to now, so that we can find it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I will undertake to get the exhibit number between now and 2 o'clock.

"Judge Smith came from the directors and reported that they were in accord with the proposal of counsel that the Board of Trustees turn over to the Board of Directors the question of the acceptance of applications from churches, societies, practitioners, and nurses covered in points 1 and 2, and as to matters under discussion not covered by these two points, neither side waived its contentions, but it was understood that the two boards would resume their meeting with the hope that agreement regarding all points of difference might then become possible. This arrangement was also acceptable to the Board of Trustees, and it was finally arranged that the trustees should meet the directors in conference in the board room of The Mother Church at 10 o'clock Monday morning."

Mr. Krauthoff—I have reached the point, if Your Honor please, where I desire to confer with my associates. It is now practically 1 o'clock.

The Master—Very good. I suppose you can hardly rely on these records, made after the controversy had developed itself, as showing any course of conduct or acquiescence material to the purposes of the case.

Mr. Krauthoff—We do not offer it for the purpose of showing the conduct; they are offered for the purpose of showing a change in the conduct.

The Master—They certainly seem to be material, if at all, for a different purpose than that for which the earlier part of the records is offered.

Mr. Krauthoff—They are offered for the purpose of telling a continuous story, showing how it was done in the days of peace and what is being done in days of disagreement.

The Master—What is done in days of disagreement we have had a good deal of evidence about already.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was preferring to tell the story consecutively and continuously; I am almost through.

Mr. Bates—These last records, if Your Honor please, also bear on the question which has been raised as to whether or not the directors did anything except what was expected of them in their endeavor to settle these other problems; in other words, this alleged agreement between counsel which was arrived at was left open, as this record shows, for the very purpose of seeing whether or not the parties could not get together on these other matters; and yet because they did attempt to get together they have been accused of violating the agreement.

Mr. Whipple—No; we say they didn't attempt to get together, but they reopened the discussion within two days.

Mr. Bates—Well, of course the record is offered for the purpose of bearing on that.

The Master—Of course you are entitled to bring out just what happened.

Mr. Streeter—Before we adjourn let me remind Your Honor and Governor Bates that he made a very nice promise to me that he would produce a letter this morning from Mr. Dittemore to Mr. Gilmore of New York, which ought to have gone in yesterday, but you did not have it here and said you would have it this morning. I would like to put it in now or have it so that I can put it in at an early date.

Mr. Bates—We have the letter here, I think.

Mr. Streeter—I could do it in two minutes.

Mr. Bates—That is the letter, if I remember right, that Your Honor suggested you could not see what bearing it had on the case. Therefore I assume when the General offers it Your Honor will want to pass on that question.

The Master—Nevertheless, General Streeter wants it, and you have agreed, I understand, to give it to him.

Mr. Bates—I have agreed to have it here, and it is here.

The Master—It is here.

Mr. Bates—I haven't read the letter myself.

Mr. Streeter—I can see that Governor Bates and Mr. Krauthoff want to go to lunch; it is now 1 o'clock.

The Master—Perhaps before we do we can settle about this letter.

Mr. Streeter—I would like to look at it.

The Master—It is here.

Mr. Bates—Do you refer to Mr. Dittemore's letter to Mr. Gilmore?

Mr. Streeter—Yes. Let me see it, will you, please?

Mr. Bates—We have no objection to it. (Handing letter to Mr. Streeter.)

Mr. Streeter—Well, I will look at it and see this afternoon.

Mr. Bates—The General is now undecided as to whether he wants to put it in; there is just time enough to read it.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, there will be time enough after lunch. You are willing I should take it, Governor?

Mr. Bates—Certainly.

The Master—If you have no objection to his keeping it; we will stop until 2 o'clock.

[Recess till 2 p. m.]

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, by agreement I put in this letter that was called for yesterday. Governor Bates has been good enough to furnish it. This letter is on the letterhead of John V. Dittemore, Boston, Massachusetts, and is dated March 12, 1919, and is marked in large letters at the top—capital letters, "Confidential," and addressed to Mr. Albert F. Gilmore, 52 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

"Dear Mr. Gilmore:

"I am glad to have the information contained in your letter of March 11.

"The memorandum which reached you through Mr. Root was never signed, ostensibly because of a technical objection by Mr. Eustace that the Deed of Trust should be the only signed document relating to the Publishing Society business. It was definitely agreed, however, as the minutes of that meeting show, that the provisions of the memorandum were accepted by both the directors and the trustees."

This, if I may interject, refers to the memorandum of February, 1916.

"It was learned only a few weeks ago, however, that immediately following the conference at which this agreement was made, the trustees returned to their office in the publishing house whereupon Mr. Eustace tore his copy into bits. I do not believe that it would be wise for you to use the document itself, but the story of our efforts to remove the abuses at that time and the tearing up of the document are matters of quite general knowledge.

"Upon my return home I discovered an exceedingly interesting and instructive situation. Nothing appears to have been left undone that gives promise of securing some semblance of concessions from the trustees which will justify their continuance in office. There seems to be the greatest fear of publicity, litigation, or investigation when the policy being pursued is the surest guarantee that these will all come. I should not be surprised to see a recombination and realignment of most any kind to prevent the common danger.

"In the meantime, telegrams and letters continue to come in from the most responsible sources in the movement, all pledging their loyalty to the board, but predicating it upon the sustaining of Mrs. Eddy's By-Laws in the spirit and the letter and keeping pure the channels she has provided. I am convinced that we are rapidly approaching, not only the most interesting, but perhaps the most vital moment in the history of the organization. There is cause for the greatest rejoicing. 'This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby' (John 11:4). Principle is going to win as great a victory for the 'children of Israel' of today who are faithful as it ever did in the centuries gone by. Truth is an 'automatic rejecter,' and those who bend the knee to a modern Baal in any form of unfaithfulness to the idea and ideal which Mrs. Eddy has founded, will experience whatever reward their motives and actions demand.

"Joshua 7:13.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

[Letter of March 12, 1919, John V. Dittemore to Albert F. Gilmore, is marked Exhibit 380.]

Mr. Streeter—As a part of this exhibit I read the reference—Joshua 7:13, as follows:

"Up, sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against tomorrow: for thus saith the Lord God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you."

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I take it that that letter is not accepted as evidence in any way in the trustees' case?

The Master—I suppose it stands just where the similar letters produced by General Streeter in Mr. Dittemore's case stood?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—I see no ground for any distinction.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. Krauthoff—Trustees' record of Feb. 17, 1919, page 775:

"Mr. Dickey came to the meeting informally, on his own behalf, and discussed with the trustees for an hour or more what he believed to be a disturbed situation in the field at large, and expressed his hope that the trustees would signify in some way in writing what had been stated repeatedly by them—that they were in full accord with the requirements of The Mother Church Manual and were willing to abide by them in connection with their work. The trustees reiterated to Mr. Dickey that they meant exactly what they all had said at the meeting with the directors on Feb. 3, that to them there was no inconsistency between the Deed of Trust and The Mother Church Manual, and that it was their purpose to work all questions out regarding the true demonstration with the Board of Directors, and that with this assurance they could see no good reason for making any written statement. Mr. Dickey explained to the trustees that he had come to them on his own responsibility, as an individual Christian Scientist and because he wanted to help in the solution of the problem."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Trustees, dated Feb. 17, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 381.]

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, will you be good enough to give the date of that?

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 17, 1919.

Now, Feb. 18, 1919, page 777:

"Mr. Merritt came to the meeting informally and spent a half an hour with the trustees discussing the general situation in the most kindly manner. His whole attitude was simply to recommend what he felt would make for greater unity of action between the two boards.

"The trustees sent a night letter to Mr. Rowlands telling him that all was going well, and reporting the visits of the two friends from across the street."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated Feb. 18, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 382.]

Mr. Krauthoff—March 6, 1919:

"Mr. Dickey came to the meeting at 3:40 to further discuss the question of the relationship of the two boards, and some plan for working out unity of action.

"After more or less discussion, Mr. Dickey read section by section the draft of the directors' memorandum which has been under consideration a number of times during recent years, and asked the trustees to express such modifications as they felt would be acceptable to them,"—

I think this has been offered in evidence by somebody, where they referred to the four copies—no, no, it has not been.

"After more or less discussion, Mr. Dickey read section by section the draft of the directors' memorandum which has been under consideration a number of times during recent years, and asked the trustees to express such modifications as they felt would be acceptable to them, in order that he might present these to his colleagues. The question was tentatively discussed and a number of changes made, and it was agreed that the publishing house should make copies of the corrected memorandum and send four of these to Mr. Dickey and keep copies for themselves, in order that it might be given earnest and thoughtful consideration before making any decision. Miss Farr was asked to make these copies, and later in the evening, Mr. Rowlands and Mr. Ogden compared them with the original and sent the four copies to Mr. Dickey's residence.

"Later on in the evening Mr. Eustace also came to the publishing house, and the trustees for a few moments discussed the memorandum, but left the whole question open until further consideration tomorrow."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated March 6, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 383.]

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, isn't it a fact, or don't you understand that the memorandum there referred to was that original memorandum of February, 1916?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, it is the memorandum of Feb. 24, 1916.

Mr. Streeter—The one drawn by Mr. Dittemore?

Mr. Whipple—We do not so understand it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not know if it was drawn by Mr. Dittemore.

Mr. Thompson—It has all gone in by Mr. Rowlands—this same passage, and Mr. Rowlands has testified.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is the memorandum of Feb. 24, 1916. I have no knowledge of who wrote it. It is the memorandum which I understand you have attached to your answer.

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—March 7, 1919: "The trustees gave careful consideration to their amended draft of the agreement discussed with Mr. Dickey yesterday, the changes being those which had occurred to them individually and collectively. No further word was had from Mr. Dickey consequently action regarding the agreement was deferred awaiting some word from him."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated March 7, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 384.]

Mr. Krauthoff—March 10, 1919:

"At 12 o'clock they met by appointment with the Board of Directors. Mr. Dickey, in company with Judge Smith, had prepared a new and shorter memorandum which the directors wished to discuss with the trustees, and this was read paragraph by paragraph twice, and given some brief discussion. The trustees, however, asked to take the memorandum for their own consideration and return it with their comments tomorrow. This was satisfactory to the directors, and the conference adjourned at 1:15."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated March 10, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 385.]

Mr. Krauthoff—March 11, 1919:

"The trustees met at 11:30 a. m. on Tuesday, March 11, with all members present, and opened the meeting with the usual prayer.

"A few additional changes were considered in the memorandum which was to be discussed today with the Board of Directors.

"The trustees met in conference with the directors at 12 o'clock.

"Mr. Rowlands, as chairman, read the memorandum, paragraph by paragraph, on which there was more or less discussion. The directors did not concur in all the provisions of the memo., because it did not contain a provision stating that the Board of Directors had final supervision over the work of the publishing house. The memo. did, however, contain a paragraph which agreed that no important action affecting the Christian Science movement or the 'net profits' should be taken without the concurrence of the two boards. The trustees unanimously and steadfastly maintained that they could not concede that the final authority for The Christian Science Publishing Society under the Manual and the Deed of Trust could rest other than with the trustees, and they positively denied that the directors had final authority. The trustees left with the directors the memorandum for their further consideration."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated March 11, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 386.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Then the next record is March 17, 1919, at which the trustees were at the directors' office with respect to the vote of dismissal.

Mr. Streeter—Let me see that, please.

[Volume handed to Mr. Streeter by Mr. Krauthoff.]

Mr. Krauthoff—That is all the records which we are offering at this time, if Your Honor please—of the trustees' records.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I would like to have go into the record the letter that I referred to at the time it was reached in chronological order. Page 137, July 13, 1909. The original records are not here; they are in use by the stenographer. The record reads as follows:

"The following letter was delivered to the trustees by Mr. Dittemore:

"Boston, Mass., June 26, 1909.

"The Trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society, Judge Clifford P. Smith, Secretary, Falmouth and St. Paul Sts., Boston, Mass.

"Dear Friends:

"At a time when the members of The Christian Science Board of Directors received no compensation for their work, the profits of the Christian Science Hymnal were voted to them pursuant to the desire of the Pastor Emeritus that "the Copyright of the hymnal of the Christian Science Board of Directors and of course the revenue to go to them," and these profits have been paid to the individual members of the board since that time. The salary since paid to the members of this board has been fixed with these profits in contemplation, and it now appearing to the present members of the board that the enlargement of the Hymnal which is in process of preparation for publication will greatly increase the sale of the book and thereby increase the profits to a degree not contemplated in the original transaction, they now desire to relinquish their right to the profits, and for this purpose of carrying this desire into effect, they hereby direct you to pay over to the Church Treasurer the profits derived from this publication, as you pay over the profits of other publications under Mrs. Eddy's trust conveyance of Jan. 25, 1898, and under the Church Manual and By-Laws.

"You will, of course, pay out of the Hymnal account all sums due on that account and all sums due or to become due on account of the preparation of the new Hymnal.

"IRA O. KNAPP,

"STEPHEN A. CHASE,

"ARCHIBALD McLELLAN,

"ALLISON V. STEWART,

"JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

"After receiving this letter the trustees directed the manager to continue to keep a separate account for the Hymnal and to pay the net profits of the Hymnal to the Church Treasurer."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Trustees, dated July 13, 1909, as read by Mr. Whipple, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 387.]

Mr. Thompson—What is the date of that?

Mr. Whipple—The letter from Mr. Dittmore is dated June 26, 1909. The meeting at which the letter was made a part of the records was July 13, 1909.

Mr. Streeter—I ask Mr. Krauthoff if he knows if the last paragraph of the trustees' records of the meeting of March 17, 1919, has been put in?

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not offer it.

Mr. Streeter—If not, it should go in now.

Mr. Bates—If Your Honor will pardon me, I do not think either General Streeter or Mr. Whipple is following the suggestion which Your Honor made this morning. They will have their time for putting in such portion of the records as they desire; I do not see why they should interrupt our case at this time.

Mr. Whipple—I thought this was our time, and I was doing it.

Mr. Bates—I did not so understand it.

Mr. Whipple—Well, why not; you put in all the directors' records you wanted to; now I am putting in ours.

Mr. Bates—I am ready to take Your Honor's ruling whether it is a proper time for Mr. Whipple to be putting in these records.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, if the regular proceeding had been followed some one would have been put on the stand as a witness through whom these records would go in and be read. We waived the formality of a witness being put on the stand; but the position remains just the same. They having put in through this hypothetical witness the records that they want, it becomes our turn to put in what we desire to put in by way of cross-examination, or quasi cross-examination. They cannot escape our right to put in the records we desire simply by not calling a witness but by taking our record books and reading them themselves. Now, the next record that I desire to read—

Mr. Bates—Aren't you going to wait for the Court to rule?

Mr. Whipple—I thought you had subsided.

Mr. Bates—It is a question for the Court to decide; not Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—I thought it was so clear that you had subsided and did not want a ruling.

The Master—Let us find out all there is to find out about it. What have you to say, Governor Bates?

Mr. Bates—I assume, Your Honor, that these gentlemen will have a chance to put in their evidence in rebuttal at the proper time. Mr. Whipple has already put in what he wanted to put in from the records. Now we are putting in our case. I submit that he should wait to put this in until the time comes for the reply by rebuttal by the evidence, and not to interrupt our case to put in his records at this time.

Mr. Whipple—I suppose learned counsel would call cross-examination an interruption of his case, but the principle is somewhat elementary that you have a right to cross-examine and to interrupt distinguished gentlemen like this.

Mr. Bates—I do not assume because I state a thing it is always so. I haven't that degree of assumption that some gentlemen have.

Mr. Whipple—Yours is presumption instead of assumption.

The Master—We must try to treat everybody as nearly alike as we can here. Now, in putting in your case, your first witness, the first one you spent any time about, was Mr. Johnson, wasn't it? You called him because he was the clerk, having charge of the records.

Mr. Streeter—It was Mr. Jarvis.

The Master—Then you offered a lot of directors' records. He was cross-examined about them, was he? And if we go back farther to the trustees' case, they called the person who kept their records, I think. And they introduced such of the trustees' records as they wanted to put in, referring to him as the person who kept them. Am I right?

Mr. Bates—Yes, Your Honor; they have already put in the records presumably what they wanted to. And we have the right to put in the records we wish.

The Master—Then you cross-examined, didn't you, and called for further records?

Mr. Whipple—And put them in, if Your Honor please, on cross-examination.

The Master—And put them in. Is that not so?

Mr. Bates—I assume we did, Your Honor, as a part of the cross-examination, but not in our case.

The Master—As a part of your cross-examination. I am a little uncertain in what light I ought to consider the reading of the records this morning. I was a little doubtful about it when you began to read them. You did not call any witness; you did not put any person on the stand as the person having the custody or control of the records, or as having had anything to do with keeping them: you simply read them.

Mr. Bates—Simply because the records had already been introduced by the plaintiffs.

The Master—How can that alter the case? I do not quite see?

Mr. Bates—Why, Your Honor, these record books had been produced with the understanding that we should have a chance to read from them anything that was material, that the Court considered important, and that is a procedure which I do not think is unusual.

Mr. Whipple—Where is that understanding expressed or stated?

Mr. Bates—What is that? That understanding has been all the way through the trial. You have done the same thing.

Mr. Whipple—I did it with a witness on the stand.

The Master—That is just the point, now, that I am trying to find out. Have they done anything like that? Have they done the same thing, namely, putting into evidence records simply by taking them up and reading them, not in connection with anybody's testimony?

Mr. Thompson—No.

Mr. Bates—Yes. If I understand it aright, Your Honor, these records have been produced as the trustees' records, and it was understood that either one should have a right to put in whatever he thought was competent from those records. We have been doing that. We might have gone through the formality of calling Mr. Eustace or Mr. Ogden back to the stand, but it would have been simply a waste of time.

The Master—Who kept the trustees' records?

Mr. Bates—Mr. Ogden, I think, kept the trustee's records.

The Master—Who was the man who was examined with regard to them?

Mr. Whipple—They were kept by different members of the board at different times.

The Master—Oh, yes.

Mr. Whipple—Sometimes Mr. Ogden was secretary, sometimes Mr. Rowlands, sometimes Mr. Eustace.

Mr. Bates—It is simply a question of the orderly procedure which I raise, and, as I stated, if Your Honor thought that you could get that matter better by having Mr. Whipple put it in at this time, I have no objection, but I had assumed that he would wait until he was putting his case in in rebuttal before he attempted to reply to these matters.

The Master—Is it understood that the trustees or Mr. Dittmore now have a right to pick up any volume of the directors' records and read it into the case?

Mr. Bates—They have been doing so.

The Master—Without calling any witness at all in connection with it?

Mr. Bates—I assume so. The records have been identified. The only question now is whether or not the record which they wish to read is one which Your Honor thinks is competent.

The Master—Oh, subject, of course, to materiality and competency.

Mr. Bates—Certainly.

The Master—But I do not understand that that has been done thus far up to this point.

Mr. Thompson—No.

The Master—It may be a good thing to do, but we have not so far done it.

Mr. Bates—It was done this morning, surely, with the consent of all parties.

Mr. Whipple—Simply because we waived your calling a witness, assuming that the—

The Master—The difficulty there is to know precisely what was assented to. They raised no objection to your reading these records. To my mind, it is only a question of what will be the most expeditious way, and save the most time. May it not be a good idea, now that we have all got our minds on these records, and have heard them consecutively, if the other parties have anything to suggest as to anything that ought to be read in that connection as showing something further, to have it read now?

Mr. Bates—Well, I certainly do not object to it, if Your Honor please.

The Master—It does not seem to me a very vital matter either way, but I would like to get some course that all parties will agree to. What do you say, General Streeter? Is there any objection to that?

Mr. Streeter—It is all right, only there are quite a number of entries in those records, I infer, that we are not prepared to put in now, simply because we have not scrutinized them closely enough.

The Master—Well, you had a good deal—They are not your records, that is true—

Mr. Streeter—What, Your Honor?

The Master—I will withdraw what I was about to say. Can you show me, Governor Bates, any prejudice that you will be likely to sustain?

Mr. Bates—Oh, no, Your Honor; I do not think that it will prejudice our case a particle, and if Your Honor thinks that that is a better way—

The Master—I want to do what is best for all parties, and preserve the rights of all parties.

Mr. Bates—We have no objection at all, if Your Honor thinks that it is admissible.

The Master—Now, we will understand that if in connection with what Mr. Krauthoff has read there is anything further which the other parties think ought to be read to make what he has read perfectly intelligible—

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, so far as we are concerned, we think that it will be more expeditious if before we try to put in scattered bits of this record some of us take and go over the entire record and see what has not been put in, and make up a list so that we can read it chronologically, and without any delay. If we undertake to pick out all that we want now it will make a good deal of work, and we have not had time—

The Master—You have not yet had the opportunity, I understand, to go over the trustees' records in full?

Mr. Streeter—No. Neither have we carefully scrutinized the directors' records, except for a certain period.

We will put all these in in a bunch later.

The Master—In that case, Mr. Whipple, if the counsel for Mr. Dittmore are not prepared now to put in what else they think should go in from the trustees' records, would it not be better to wait until that can be done all at once by you and Mr. Dittmore's counsel?

Mr. Streeter—So far as we are concerned, Your Honor, we have no objection to any course that the other counsel may desire to pursue, but we are suggesting that course for ourselves.

Mr. Whipple—Ours is so short and direct that we would rather put it in now, if Your Honor please, so that it will be associated in the record with what has already gone in.

The Master—I think that there is an advantage there, so that you can find it all together in one place as nearly as possible. Very well; you may continue.

Mr. Whipple—As bearing upon the kind of things that were the subjects of conference between the trustees and the directors, things that were concededly within the scope of the authority of the trustees, we offer a record of March 13, 1916, from the trustees' records. It reads as follows:

"The Board of Trustees met with the Board of Directors in The Mother Church at 2 p. m., and remained until 3:55 p. m., discussing matters of business, including the Bible Lesson Committee work."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of March 13, 1916, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 388. R. H. J.]

The Master—I find that Mr. Krauthoff read a record of March 13, 1916.

Mr. Whipple—He did not read that, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Now, this is part of the record of that date, which he did not read, I understand?

Mr. Whipple—Well, I take it so, yes, Your Honor. This was not read.

Mr. Krauthoff—My recollection is that I read it.

Mr. Bates—That is my recollection. The Master—Read what he just read now?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, sir.

Mr. Whipple—We followed it very closely, and we think he did not.

Mr. Krauthoff—Nor do we concede that that is a subject upon which the trustees have sole jurisdiction.

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps you do not, but Mrs. Eddy's sacred deed provides for it, and you are finding yourself contradicted right along.

The Master—I think that we will not talk about Mrs. Eddy's deed every time—

Mr. Whipple—The trouble is that I was replying to this gentleman who was interrupting me.

The Master—Now, go on and read what you want from that record of March 13, 1916.

Mr. Whipple—I have read it, that is, all we want.

The Master—I have an impression that we have had it once.

Mr. Whipple—We were following it, or trying to follow it, as counsel read it.

The Master—Very well.

Mr. Whipple—That is all that we care to offer of the records, is that.

Mr. Thompson—Without waiving the right that General Streeter asked for, of a general inspection of these records, and putting in anything all together which we may find, in connection with what Mr. Krauthoff has read, I should like to put this in, unless it has already gone in—

The Master—Do I understand that Mr. Whipple is all through?

Mr. Thompson—Yes; he says that he is all through.

Mr. Whipple—So far as the records are concerned, I desire to call for a letter also bearing upon this record—a letter of Mrs. Eddy, in volume 3.

Mr. Withington—283 in the book.

Mr. Whipple—Page 283. Is that the page number, or the number of the letter?

Mr. Withington—It is the page number, I think.

The Master—You call for that in connection with what you have just read?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor, and especially in connection with the statement of counsel that they do not concede that the Bible Lesson Committee work was within the scope of the trustees' activities.

[A book is passed by Mr. Dane to Mr. Whipple.]

The letter is No. 283 of the collection, on page 137 of volume 3 of Mrs. Eddy's letters. It has the scroll "M. B. E."

"Pleasant View,
"Concord, New Hampshire, Aug. 23, 1901.

"Dear Student:

"The Bible Lesson Com. (for 'committee') is not included in the last by-law. This Com. belongs to the Publishing Society.

"With love,
"M. B. EDDY."

[The letter of which the foregoing is a copy is Exhibit 389, R. H. J.]

That letter is all of it in the original handwriting of Mrs. Eddy herself.

The Master—Now, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—Now, in the meeting of March 17, 1919, speaking of their calling upon the directors, and of their being notified of the resolution attempting to remove Mr. Rowlands, it goes on to say:

"The directors intimated that another action had been taken by them which would be made known later on in the day, and which later developed to be the retirement of Mr. Dittmore from the board, and the appointment of Mrs. Knott in his place. . . .

"Mr. Dixon came to the meeting about 4:30, and reported that he had been two hours with the directors discussing the action of this morning, and that they had requested him to confer with the trustees with a view to ascertaining if some agreement could not be reached regarding the situation between the boards. They stated to him that they were willing to agree to the memorandum last submitted by them. The trustees explained to Mr. Dixon, paragraph by paragraph, why they felt it was necessary to make changes in the directors' memorandum as submitted by the trustees to the directors at their meeting last week. Mr. Dixon took both copies for consideration, with a view to discussing the question fully with the directors tomorrow."

[The foregoing extracts from the record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of March 17, 1919, are Exhibit 390, R. H. J.]

That is all we desire to put in at this time, but we reserve the right mentioned by General Streever to make a systematic inquiry into the various volumes of these records and see whether there is anything more that ought to go in, in behalf of Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, supplementing these trustees' records, there was a reference to them with respect to the proposed increases of prices of the periodicals, and I would desire at this time to offer a letter from the directors to the trustees of April 30, 1917. I suppose you have the original?

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps so. I will look and see. Under the same restrictions and limitations that affect the other evidence, we are content that that shall be read. In other words, we claim that it does not show any estoppel by conduct, but, if it did, it would not be admissible.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"April 30, 1917.

"Board of Trustees,
"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to say that after further consideration of the question of increase in the prices of the periodicals, it has seemed to the Board, as they indicated to you on the day of the recent conference, that the way in which the announcement of this change is presented to the field is of paramount importance. Inasmuch as the field holds the directors responsible in all matters affecting the field, they are anxious, as they have no doubt your board is, to have this important statement go out in the most effective way. They believe that what is said should be in no way apologetic, and that it should definitely cover three points. These points are: First, an explanation of the reason for a change of price; second, a statement of just what the change will be; and third, a call to the field to realize more clearly the responsibility which is theirs for giving all of our publications a wider circulation. Inclosed herewith is a statement which the directors believe will accomplish the desired result.

"The directors are heartily in accord with your action and on April 18th it was unanimously voted that the board approve the proposal of the Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society to increase the price of the periodicals published by them.

"Very sincerely,

"CHAS. E. JARVIS.

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors."

Mr. Whipple—We have the original, if you desire it, and a copy of the answer.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have the answer, thank you.

Mr. Whipple—Yes. Will you read that?

[The original letter from Charles E. Jarvis to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated April 30, 1917, of which the foregoing is a copy, is marked Exhibit 391. R. H. J.]

Mr. Krauthoff—This is the answer:

"April 30, 1917."

This is on the letterhead of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"Thank you for your letter dated today relative to the proposed increased prices for our periodicals, and for the text of the announcement of this change of prices which accompanied your letter. The announcement is adequate and satisfying in every respect, and the only change which it seems to us necessary to make is to add the single copy rate to the table of prices, and in the paragraph which follows to call attention to subdivided subscriptions and to the fact that the new schedule gives one subscription price to Christian Scientists throughout the world.

"It is planned to print the announcement in the Sentinel of June 2, in order that it may be known before the time of the annual meeting, and also in the July issue of the Journal. It is further planned to send advance galley slips of the announcement to the reading-rooms in countries other than the United States and Canada, in order that the announcement may be made practically at the same time to all Christian Scientists throughout the world.

"A copy of the announcement as amended, and the original draft, are inclosed.

"With best wishes,

"Yours sincerely

"Board of Trustees.

"HERBERT W. EUSTACE,

"Secretary."

[The copy of letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 392. R. H. J.]

Mr. Krauthoff—In that connection I desire to offer this announcement as it appeared in the Christian Science Sentinel of June 2, 1917, over the signature of The Christian Science Publishing Society. "New Prices for Our Periodicals." It covers over a column, and I will read the part which is vital. It begins with the statement of the increase in price, and continues:

[This article, entitled "New Prices for Our Periodicals," Sentinel, June 2, 1917, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 393, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"As Christian Scientists catch a glimpse of Mrs. Eddy's vision of the Church of Christ, Scientist, they commence to understand more clearly the means which her demonstration has provided for the extension and broader usefulness of the present Church activities. They then see what lay behind her earnest hope that Christian Scientists would support our literature. The effectiveness of a subscription to the Journal, Sentinel, Herald, Quarterly, or Monitor increases in direct proportion to the understanding of the subscriber as to what is his privilege and therefore his responsibility to the Christian Science literature. The financial returns from the Christian Science publications constitute not only an expression of value received for the contents of the publications, but they also furnish a substantial part of the financial means for supporting and extending all the activities of The Mother Church, the effects of which reach to every part of the earth.

"The Christian Scientist whose 'eye is single' to the limitless opportunity which today awaits his awakened and selfless activity, will extend an even more hearty and effectual support to our periodicals than heretofore. In this vital hour of the world's history will he especially give his earnest help to enable The Christian Science Monitor, the great 'apostle of the Gentiles' in this age, more efficaciously to fulfill its mission as the world's medium of circulation and exchange for truer ideas and ideals of human experience approaching the true substance and vitality of the universe."

Mr. Krauthoff—The same notice appeared in the July, 1917, Journal. That is all, if His Honor please; I will yield to Mr. Dane.

The Master—What will you do next, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—We desire to call Miss Warren. I desire to take up now the matter of the Manuals, that was interrupted by the cross-examination of Mr. Johnson and Mr. Jarvis.

Lucia C. Warren, Recalled

The Master—Miss Warren, I think you will have to make a little effort now to speak as loud as you can and as distinctly, so that those gentlemen farthest from you can hear.

Q. (By Mr. Dane) Miss Warren, you have been employed in the office of the secretary of the Board of Directors for how long a period? A. Over 12 years.

Q. Were you employed there before Mrs. Eddy passed on? A. I was.

Q. And while you were there did your office receive communications from her? A. It did.

Q. In her handwriting? A. Yes.

Q. Have you been engaged in making a collection of Mrs. Eddy's original letters and papers? A. I have.

Q. For how long a period had you been thus engaged? A. I should say five or six years.

Q. And during that period of time substantially how many of Mrs. Eddy's original writings had come under your eye? A. Over seven thousand.

Q. Are you familiar with her handwriting and her signature? A. I am.

Q. I show you this book—

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, did she ever see Mrs. Eddy write?

Q. Miss Warren, Mr. Whipple wants to know if you ever saw Mrs. Eddy write? A. I never did.

Mr. Whipple—I think that is an essential of a handwriting expert. She can only know by comparison of these other signatures, said to be those of Mrs. Eddy, and if you think you have qualified her as an expert on Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, I submit, if Your Honor please, counsel has not done so. I think by submitting them to General Streeter, who does know her handwriting and has seen her write many times, possibly we can make an agreement.

Mr. Dane—I have concluded the preliminary examination of Miss Warren, and I have nothing further to ask her on the question of whether she is qualified or not to identify Mrs. Eddy's writing and her signature.

Mr. Thompson—I think she is not.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I don't care to ask any further questions, because it is so perfectly clear that she never saw her write. You never saw Mrs. Eddy, did you?

The Witness—I never did.

Mr. Whipple—Well, it is a curious handwriting expert when they never saw the person, even, whose handwriting she is asked to judge about.

Mr. Dane—I understand, if Your Honor please, that it is the common, ordinary way of proving qualifications to prove that the witness has seen the person write, but I do not understand that that is the exclusive method of qualifying a witness on handwriting. Here is a witness who has seen over 7000 pieces of Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, seen letters come to her in her official capacity as a clerk of the Church.

The Master—Isn't the objection there, then, how did she know that these were Mrs. Eddy's handwriting? How can she know?

Mr. Dane—Well, I don't want to waste much time about it; I will take Your Honor's ruling. If Your Honor thinks the witness is not qualified of course I can prove it by other witnesses.

The Master—If there is any prospect of any dispute about it, if the genuineness of any signature of Mrs. Eddy is to come up as a question in this case, then I think you have not qualified this witness as an expert to prove the genuineness of her writing.

Mr. Dane—You may step down, Miss Warren.

Mr. Whipple—I do not wish to make any technical objection with regard to Mrs. Eddy's signatures or writing. If it can be shown to General Streeter, who does know about it, or some person who ever saw Mrs. Eddy write, we can very likely make an agreement; but the idea of putting on as an expert in the handwriting of a person who has passed on a person who never even saw her, founding the whole testimony upon hearsay, is a novel proposition.

The Master—Well, let us see if we cannot get some agreement about it. It does not seem to me quite possible that there can be a serious dispute.

Mr. Whipple—What do you want? Have you anything in particular that you want to offer?

Mr. Dane—You have been talking so long I don't know just where I am at.

Mr. Whipple—Well, then, I will sit down till you find out where you are at; I have noticed for some time that you didn't know where you were at.

Mr. Dane—I appreciate that attitude very much.

Mr. Whipple—We will pause now to let you find out where you are at.

Mr. Dane—Are you all through?

Mr. Whipple—We are waiting for you to find out where you are at.

Mr. Dane—I understand General Streeter has no hesitation in saying that that signature is Mrs. Eddy's that I proposed to prove by Miss Warren. I understand that that is satisfactory to Brother Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—Now, let me see it, please.

Mr. Dane—I will show it to you.

Mr. Whipple—Thank you. (Examining volume.)

Mr. Streeter—I haven't any doubt that she wrote that.

The Master—Do I understand that there is an agreement about that signature?

Mr. Dane—I understand that General Streeter has identified the signature on the title page of the book which I have as Mrs. Eddy's signature. I understand that that is satisfactory to Brother Whipple.

The Master—Nobody desires to cross-examine General Streeter as a witness on that?

Mr. Whipple—I have done so, if Your Honor please, privately. I am satisfied.

The Master—Very good. That may go down, then, on the record.

Q. Miss Warren, I show you a book entitled, "Church Manual of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., 1895," and ask you when you first saw that book? A. The inside of it, last Saturday.

Q. When did you first see the book in its entirety, or about when? A. About October, last year.

Q. Where did you see it? A. In the vault of The Mother Church.

Q. Was that one of the books which came to The Mother Church from Mrs. Eddy's residence at Chestnut Hill? A. It was.

Q. And did it come to The Mother Church from her residence at Chestnut Hill after her passing on? A. It did.

The Master—Is that a book you have already marked for identification?

Mr. Dane—It has not been marked, and I want now to explain about this book.

The Master—What is the earliest book you did mark for identification?

Mr. Dane—The earliest book that I did mark for identification was 1895, the same date as this book. There appear to have been several editions issued in that year. If Your Honor will recall, at the time that the Manual of 1895, which I think was the fourth edition, was marked last week, I said that I was not sure that it was the exact edition that was adopted by the First Members, and written out in their records. Upon comparison with the By-Laws as adopted by the First Members, which are in evidence, with the book which was marked as an exhibit for identification, it was found not to be the set of by-laws that was there adopted but by comparison with the book which the witness has been testifying about, it is found that this book which I now hold, and which I now offer as an exhibit, does compare with the By-Laws that were adopted by the First Members, which have already been offered as an exhibit.

Q. I now ask you, Miss Warren, whether or not you have made a comparison of the By-Laws and Church rules and tenets as they appear in Volume 2 of the First Members' minutes, under date of Nov. 20, 1895, commencing on page 47— A. I have.

Q. —with the book which I have shown you, and about which you have testified? A. I have.

Q. And whether or not the Church By-Laws and rules as contained in the First Members' volume are the same as those appearing in this book? A. They are substantially the same.

Mr. Whipple—Well, substantially!

The Master—Can you tell us, Mr. Dane, how it happened that in 1895 there were editions of the Manual showing different by-laws?

Mr. Dane—I expect, Your Honor, although I have no definite knowledge, that there were some slight amendments that were made between the editions of the Manual in the same year.

The Master—What edition is that?

Mr. Dane—This is apparently the earliest one—this is the third edition.

The Master—What edition was it that you offered?

Mr. Dane—It was the fourth that I offered last week, and I was under the impression then that it was the same that appeared in the book.

The Master—This, then, may be taken to be an earlier volume than any which you have so far produced?

Mr. Dane—It is, Your Honor. It is suggested that General Streeter only identified the signature appearing on the title page. I call his attention to the word "by," and ask him if there is any question but what that is also Mrs. Eddy's handwriting?

Mr. Streeter—I will answer that I think so, but I should not be so confident about it as I am about the signature itself. It is my impression that it is.

Mr. Dane—I will show this to Your Honor.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, if there is a difference between the By-Laws in the Manual of the same edition wouldn't it be proper that counsel should undertake to show any change by the First Members? If not, when and where changes were made by the First Members, some authority from Mrs. Eddy about it?

Mr. Dane—Well, it is not the same edition.

Mr. Whipple—Is it possible that we are going to attempt to receive these different editions without any authority from Mrs. Eddy for these changes?

Mr. Dane—It is not the same edition; there are no changes in the same edition.

Mr. Whipple—I thought you said there were in the 1895 edition.

Mr. Dane—You didn't quite understand me, Mr. Whipple. There are various editions apparently that were issued in the same year, but there is no difference in the same edition.

Mr. Whipple—Well, your vote that you are comparing it with, the vote of the First Members, was in November.

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—There must have been a good deal of hustling if there were a lot of editions after that. Your fourth edition is dated in 1895, I notice, and you say now your third edition is also.

The Master—I notice that in the book that I have before me, although as printed it read "Third Edition," the word "Third" is crossed out in pencil.

Mr. Dane—I noticed that.

Mr. Thompson—Before you offer that will you show it to me?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Thompson—I would like to have a chance to look at it sometime.

Mr. Whipple—I am told it was Dec. 28 that they identified as the fourth edition; that is, the meeting, the By-Laws adopted on Dec. 28, was the one they attempted to identify as the fourth edition. But now when was this third edition? If you say it corresponds with the vote of Dec. 28, 1895, when do you think that was gotten out, if you offer it as corresponding with that vote?

Mr. Dane—Well, I do not think it is profitable for anybody to speculate about such matters as that, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—That is just why I was objecting to speculation and asking you to produce evidence.

Mr. Dane—I produced an edition of the Manual of 1895, coming from Mrs. Eddy's possession, which bears on its title-page the words, "By Mary Baker G. Eddy," in her own handwriting, and that compares with the Manual as adopted by the First Members in 1895.

Mr. Whipple—Dec. 28?

Mr. Dane—Yes. The record of the adoption has already been received in evidence. I now offer the Manual which I have produced as an exhibit.

Mr. Whipple—I object to it on this state of the evidence, if Your Honor please. In looking through it there are a lot of pencilings in it.

The Master—As to those pencilings to which you refer—General Streeter's statement related, as I understood the matter only to the words, "Mary Baker G. Eddy" on the title-page. It has nothing to do with the pencilings inside the book?

Mr. Whipple—None whatever.

The Master—Isn't it obvious that we have got to have these Manuals in? I think I shall admit it subject to objection.

Mr. Whipple—I understand Your Honor saves our rights.

The Master—But I am still very much in doubt as to what edition you can call that one which I have admitted.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor will pardon me, you will remember that this is three years before the Trust Deed. What its pertinency is, as affecting the Trust Deed, has never been explained by counsel. They may have remotely or otherwise in their minds some effect that they think this action three years before has on the Trust Deed, but that is largely the basis of our objection.

The Master—My view is that the Manual appears to have been developed in the successive editions, and that you had better begin as far back as you can.

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

The Master—Perhaps in that way we shall be enabled to find out exactly what the Manual was at a given date. It may be necessary to know.

Mr. Whipple—But what we want—the trustees desire—is a most careful scrutiny as to the extent to which Mrs. Eddy gave authority to any of these By-Laws. That is the thing which concerns them most. And this general putting them in without the authority and stamp of Mrs. Eddy is a thing that we want to prevent as far as it is possible.

The Master—That is entirely within your rights, undoubtedly.

Mr. Dane—It is pretty well established that this particular Manual that has gone in is Mrs. Eddy's Manual.

Mr. Whipple—It is established merely that she wrote her name on the title-page. That is all that is established about it.

Mr. Dane—It says, "By Mary Baker G. Eddy."

The Master—Then we have the record which somewhat assists on that point.

Mr. Dane—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—What will you next put in?

Mr. Dane—Then we have also—

Mr. Thompson—Is this supposed to be in, Your Honor?

The Master—Yes, I have admitted it subject to objection.

Mr. Thompson—Then have it marked.

Mr. Streeter—I haven't any idea what is supposed to be rubbed out.

Mr. Thompson—There are two passages rubbed out; also handwriting in it that is said not to be hers.

Mr. Whipple—Is it her handwriting that some one has attempted to erase?

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—I think that ought to appear.

Mr. Dane—Let us have it marked.

The Master—I want to hear all of his objections before I finally act; I want to know just what we are doing.

Mr. Whipple—On what was originally page 73, at the bottom, there is an attempted, and somewhat successful attempt to erase several lines of the handwriting which General Streeter recognizes as that of Mrs. Eddy.

Mr. Thompson—Another place in front.

Mr. Whipple—I would like to have Your Honor look at that, and then we would like to call your attention to another place in it (handing Manual to the Master).

The Master—You have seen that, undoubtedly, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—Yes, Your Honor. It is so perfectly obvious that there were attempts to erase something which has been written there—undoubtedly Mrs. Eddy's own work.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, but erasing Mrs. Eddy's handwriting is something different.

Mr. Bates—She had a perfect right to erase it herself, I suppose.

The Master—Let me understand exactly what is offered. Is it only the printed matter, or is it the printed matter plus the penciling?

Mr. Dane—Only the printed matter, and the notation on the title-page.

Mr. Whipple—In reply to Governor Bates' suggestion we quite recognize the right of Mrs. Eddy to erase her own handwriting, but not your right to testify that she did.

Mr. Bates—I have not so testified.

Mr. Whipple—Well, you have implied that.

Mr. Bates—I object.

Mr. Whipple—You have put in no evidence—

Mr. Bates—You have not given us any chance. If you just sit down and wait your time—

Mr. Whipple—Well, if you will put in your evidence before you get your papers marked, you will do better. On page 9 there are several erasures.

The Master—Now, let me suggest this to you, Mr. Whipple: Is that material, in view of their statement—the statement of directors' counsel—to me just now, that they offer only the printed matter?

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, we think it is, because the only way in which they get it in is to have the handwriting of Mary Baker G. Eddy to identify it on the title-page, and she does not identify it as the third edition, because "the third" is stricken out. That is just it. They fail utterly when they begin to ask to have the "Mary Baker G. Eddy" an identification of the printed matter here. It is perfectly evident that it is an identification or the start on identifying another and a new edition—not the third edition at all.

Mr. Dane—If Your Honor please, we have failed in absolutely nothing we desired to show in this connection, and that simply is that the printed matter corresponds with the record which is already in evidence, and that the title-page bear the words "By Mary Baker G. Eddy."

Mr. Whipple—It does not—not as the third edition.

The Master—That is not necessary. He does not insist on calling it the third edition. As a Manual of 1895 which corresponds with the First Members' record adopting the Manual.

Mr. Dane—That is precisely so.

Mr. Whipple—Now, it will be enough if I state this, if Your Honor please: It is perfectly obvious that so far as Mrs. Eddy had anything to do with it, it was merely as a framework for another edition. And it is not in any way an approval of this edition. It is perfectly evident that it was not and cannot be used as an approval of that edition. And with that statement we are content—calling attention to the various changes—

Mr. Bates—I thought you were content.

Mr. Whipple— —and interlineations of other people's handwriting in the book.

Mr. Dane—Now are you content?

Mr. Whipple—I beg your pardon?

Mr. Dane—Now are you content?

Mr. Whipple—Not with your manners.

The Master—Just a moment. Mr. Thompson wants to be heard now.

Mr. Thompson—I am extremely anxious to see the book printed which Mrs. Eddy was preparing here. I have looked through here—and I find Mr.

Dittemore has verified the handwriting—on page 26, Article IX is stricken out by Mrs. Eddy under the heading "Seating of Strangers," and on the margin "Rule for page 18, Art. 10, Sec. 6," and then, "Rule for page 18, Art. 11, Sec. 7," and then "Applicants." Repeatedly through here Mrs. Eddy has eliminated printed provisions and indicated what was to be done with them. It is merely nothing more nor less than a correction of proof. I should be extremely glad to see the document showing her O.K. on the edition which she evidently was so very laboriously preparing.

The Master—For anything we can now tell we may be going to see it. I admit that book in view of the testimony which has been offered in regard to it and in view of the record of the First Members that the printed matter in the book is said to correspond with the record of the First Members.

Mr. Thompson—Then I would like to ask this lady one question.

Q. (By Mr. Thompson.) You said you had compared the printed matter here with the document called the First Members' By-Laws. Didn't you?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you find that the matter which Mrs. Eddy had eliminated here, the printed matter which she had struck out—did you find that corresponded with what was in the book?
A. Not at all. The printed page corresponds with the record book.

Q. You mean to say, what corresponds with the record book is this print if you subtract from this print what Mrs. Eddy has put her pencil through. Is that it?
A. Yes.

Mr. Thompson—Yes, that is what I thought.

Mr. Bates—No, she didn't say anything of the kind.

The Witness—The book—the Manual—as originally printed, is exactly like the record in the book—the First Members.

Mr. Thompson—I do not get that.

The Witness—The Manual as originally printed is exactly like the record in the book, the First Members.

Q. Take, for instance—you have said that you are familiar with the Article IX. "Article IX" is struck out, "Article X" is struck out, and then there are various memoranda in the margin, and a line is drawn all around the text of Article IX, Section 1, and Article X, Section 1. In the book do you find Article IX, Section 1, just as it is printed?
A. Just as it is printed.

Q. Not struck out. So that in the By-Law book what we have is a set of By-Laws which have not been subjected to the criticism of Mrs. Eddy, as indicated here on the margin. That is a fact, isn't it?
A. Not submitted to her alterations.

Q. Well, call it "alterations." That is, what is in that book is not the By-Laws as altered by Mrs. Eddy in her own handwriting in this book, is it?

A. No.

Mr. Dane—It is not supposed to be and it is not offered as such. Of course she made corrections on this Manual, probably was preparing for another edition, a subsequent edition.

The Master—Now, without going into the realm of conjecture at present, what do you offer next?

Mr. Dane—This ought to be marked as an exhibit.

The Master—You are going to leave the one you marked for identification just where it is?

Mr. Dane—I will withdraw that. I will take Your Honor's direction as to that; it has no pertinency now.

The Master—Put this in in place of it?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—I should like to have the other marked for identification. It will never go any further unless they offer it.

Mr. Dane—I have no objection.

[Church Manual of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, 1895, with "By Mary Baker G. Eddy" on the title page, in her own handwriting, is marked Exhibit 394.]

Mr. Dane—I now offer as an exhibit the book marked "Exhibit 130 for identification," which is the tenth Manual.

The Master—What do you mean—the tenth edition of the Manual?

Mr. Dane—The tenth edition of the Manual. There has already been put in evidence the vote of the First Members adopting the tenth edition of the Manual. This is offered as an exhibit; it is already marked "Exhibit 130 for identification."

Mr. Whipple—This illustrates one of the difficulties, if Your Honor please, of putting in for identification one week and then offering your book the next week, after every one has forgotten what went in in connection with the identification. I can only say in regard to this that here there seems to be a number of changes, and there is nothing which connects with Mrs. Eddy in any way whatever as far as I can see. There is nothing in her own handwriting, and nothing that is authentic. It appears to have been published by The Christian Science Publishing Society in 1899, but I do not remember any vote in connection with it. What vote do you claim there was?

Mr. Dane—The vote of the First Members adopting the tenth edition of the Manual.

Mr. Whipple—Who testifies that this corresponds to the one that was in the vote?

Mr. Dane—No one.

The Master—Perhaps you can refer us to the place in the record.

Mr. Dane—I can, Your Honor.

Mr. Whipple—Your Honor will notice that this is a vote after the date of the Trust Deed.

Mr. Streeter—This is 1899.

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Strawn—On page 246, Mr. Dane.

Mr. Dane—Of the stenographer's record?

Mr. Strawn—No.

Mr. Dane—Of the large record?

Mr. Strawn—Of the large record.

Mr. Dane—Thank you. The record of the First Members adopting the tenth edition of the Manual is Exhibit 129. A meeting held on March 10, 1899, and the vote is that the "tenth edition of the Church Manual be accepted subject to future by-laws and amendments. Minutes approved and meeting adjourned." And this is offered as the tenth edition of the Manual.

The Master—You offer that as a copy of the edition of the Manual referred to in that vote?

Mr. Dane—In that vote, yes, sir.

The Master—It purports to be, does it, on its face?

Mr. Dane—On its face it does.

The Master—Tenth edition. That is all you know about it?

Mr. Dane—Tenth edition, published by the Publishing Society.

Mr. Whipple—Now, no evidence whatever is offered that this is the edition which was referred to there at all. No one attempted to identify it as being the one which was before the First Members; there is not the slightest evidence connecting it. So far as I remember, nothing is pointed out. Of course, our memory as to what happened last week may be infirm. There is nothing that connects it with Mrs. Eddy or her authority. I hand it back (handing Manual to Mr. Dane).

Mr. Dane—There is nothing except what is shown upon the face of the book.

Mr. Whipple—There is nothing in her handwriting, and no evidence there.

The Master—Isn't that rather unsatisfactory? How can we be sure that that book is the one that was referred to in the vote that you just read?

Mr. Dane—Why, I take it that the evidence of that is that what it purports to be is a book published by the plaintiffs, The Christian Science Publishing Society, in 1899, as the tenth edition of the Manual of The Mother Church. The vote of the First Members accepted and adopted the tenth edition of the Church Manual.

The Master—Isn't it a little surprising that no particular copy of the tenth edition was then marked and identified by the directors themselves?

Mr. Dane—It would have been much better if it had been done, but in this particular instance the entire Manual is not set out in extenso in the record of the adoption. Undoubtedly they had it before them in book form, or in printed form, and there adopted it.

Mr. Whipple—Why would it be printed before they adopted it?

Mr. Dane—That might well be.

Mr. Whipple—Then your adoption—

The Master—I think that we shall have to have it in, Mr. Whipple, subject to your objection. We have to get to the bottom of this matter of the Manual somehow.

Mr. Whipple—It is somewhat tenuous.

The Master—It is very unsatisfactory, it seems to me.

Mr. Bates—It is all there is, Your Honor.

Mr. Whipple—I suppose that they are doing the best they can.

The Master—Is it not surprising that a book of the importance of the Manual should be left without any more authentication than here appears?

Mr. Dane—It would have been better for the purposes of proof if it had been set out in extenso in the record, but it was not, and, so far as I know, there is no record, no documentary identification, that could be produced.

The Master—Well!

Mr. Whipple—If it had been really inspired by Mrs. Eddy, I think that there would have been more care taken with it than appears to have been. I think we have got some of your handiwork now.

Mr. Dane—Oh, well, we shall come to that in a few moments.

Mr. Whipple—Well, but you are right at it now. You have come to it.

Mr. Thompson—If Your Honor please, we were relying on the directors to establish these By-Laws. The only importance of it from our standpoint, in this whole controversy, is a very significant note occurring on the official edition of the twenty-eighth edition, which was introduced by Mr. Dane as an exhibit, or for identification.

Mr. Dane—Oh, no. I introduced the twenty-ninth.

Mr. Thompson—Your Honor has made a suggestion—

The Master—Why could you not wait until he gets to the twenty-eighth edition, and then put it in at that point?

Mr. Thompson—Your Honor has made a suggestion, wanting to know why this is not any more definite. I call Your Honor's attention to this memorandum on that book, opposite Section 5 of Article I, which is the provision authorizing the expulsion of directors, and opposite the words "with the consent of Mrs. Eddy," or "the request of Mrs. Eddy," which we have always supposed was perfectly valid, occur these words in ink, "Amendment adopted Mar. 12, 1903. Changes evidently made in proof." Now, who "evidently" made those changes in proof? That is what we would like to know.

The Master—Perhaps we can understand that better after we have taken them in order. What is the next one, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—The twenty-ninth edition of the Manual.

The Master—What was the one that you just had?

Mr. Thompson—The twenty-eighth edition.

The Master—Now you are skipping over the twenty-eighth?

Mr. Dane—The twenty-eighth was not marked.

Mr. Thompson—Why not?

Mr. Dane—It was not called for, brother Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—Excuse me.

Mr. Dane—It was not introduced by us.

Mr. Thompson—I have a note here that you produced it.

Mr. Dane—After they requested it we produced it.

Mr. Thompson—No, I am sorry that I haven't the reference to those remarks here.

Mr. Dane—I have them.

Mr. Thompson—They appear on pages 247 and 248 of that copy of the printed record that I was using. If I could borrow that for a minute—

Mr. Whipple—Is this the one (passing a document to Mr. Thompson)?

Mr. Thompson—Yes; that is the one. It is on page 249. Now, in the twenty-eighth edition—I copied it off when I saw it—

"A majority vote and the consent of Mrs. Eddy shall dismiss a member of this board"— that got changed somehow to the words,

"A majority vote or the request of Mrs. Eddy," and apparently it was made in proof; and all that we would like to know is that Mrs. Eddy wanted that change made. We do not feel bound by by-laws altered by unauthorized persons, that is all.

Mr. Dane—Mrs. Eddy approved of that change.

Mr. Thompson—I am glad to hear you say so.

Mr. Dane—And it is in evidence already.

Mr. Thompson—But I have not heard any proof of it yet.

The Master—Go on. You were going to refer us to the proof. Let us hear it.

Mr. Dane—The proof is this, that the change was made between the twenty-eighth edition, which Brother Thompson asked for, and the twenty-ninth edition, which was offered as an exhibit for identification. The twenty-ninth edition was authorized by the directors, in compliance with a request of Mrs. Eddy over the telephone to have all By-Laws that were to constitute the twenty-ninth edition of the Church Manual adopted.

Mr. Whipple—Who says over the telephone?

Mr. Dane—The record says so.

Mr. Whipple—Pardon me.

Mr. Dane—And the change occurs between the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth editions; and there is the approval of Mrs. Eddy as to the change which Brother Thompson has spoken of. It is on page 248 of the large records which you have.

The Master—There again we are in a rather serious difficulty, are we not, because we do not know exactly what the by-laws were which she referred to in that telephone message?

Mr. Dane—Well, the twenty-ninth edition.

The Master—Afterward the twenty-ninth edition came out.

Mr. Dane—Yes.

The Master—But that had not then been published.

Mr. Thompson—That note is on the twenty-ninth edition, Mr. Dane.

Mr. Dane—Yes. She approves the By-Laws in the twenty-ninth edition.

Mr. Thompson—Is it conceivable that you will stand up here and maintain that when some one in your office has written opposite these words which now turn out to be very important, but which never before were thought to be of any importance—these two or three words have become very important—every one has been living on the supposition that they had been authorized by Mrs. Eddy as they now appear—and you say to me that because Mrs. Eddy said over the telephone that she wanted the changes made and put into it and adopted, she is responsible for the changes, when on the margin somebody in your office has written, "Changes evidently made in proof"—do you mean that Mrs. Eddy made that change in proof? All that I want to get at is the truth about it.

Mr. Whipple—He says that Mrs. Eddy telephoned, and the record says "telephone message"; it does not say from her, or from Mr. Frye, or from anybody else.

Mr. Dane—The proof about it will develop, and the proofs about it start with this record relating to the twenty-ninth edition, which was adopted at Mrs. Eddy's request over the telephone. Now, that by-law which Mr. Thompson speaks of continues during the various subsequent editions, the fifty-seventh and the seventy-third; and Mrs. Eddy approved specifically the seventy-third edition, and established it as the authority, and approved specifically every amendment which was adopted to the seventy-third edition. So that she has specifically approved not only beginning with this record, but down through and including the seventy-third edition, a change which Brother Thompson speaks of, which occurs in all subsequent editions.

Mr. Thompson—Of course, Mr. Dane, any statement of fact made by you as of your own knowledge imports absolute verity; but I do not know that you are making statements of fact on your own knowledge. It is very easy to brace up suddenly discovered weak spots in a case by asserting that they are not weak; but all that I would like is the proof of those things in this case.

Mr. Dane—I am giving it to you.

Mr. Streeter—May I make a suggestion to you, Mr. Dane? I am informed that every change that was made in the by-laws was indorsed by Mrs. Eddy in her own handwriting on the back of them, and that those documents are on file. Now, if that is so, why not produce them? We do not want to contend against by-laws, but we do want to know—in fact, we want to support the by-laws—but we do want to know that Section 5 was changed, as Mr. Thompson suggests, by Mrs. Eddy's authority. I never dreamed that there was any dispute about it.

Mr. Dane—There is not a doubt about it.

Mr. Streeter—What?

Mr. Dane—There is not a doubt about her ultimate approval of every by-law that is in this Manual.

Mr. Streeter—Well, show it.

Mr. Dane—I am showing it as fast as I can.

Mr. Bates—Give us a chance.

Mr. Streeter—All right. We will withdraw all suggestion, with the understanding that you are to show that Mrs. Eddy approved of that change; and if you do we will very gladly accept it.

Mr. Dane—If Mrs. Eddy approved the changes that were made on the proof sheets, I expect that those proof sheets are now in the possession of the Publishing Society, and we gave notice this morning, and I would like to repeat it now, Brother Whipple, that I would like to have you produce all proof sheets relating to all editions of the Manual that are in the possession of the Publishing Society at the present time.

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Dane, can you tell us the significance of that indorsement "must have been made on the proof"? Who put it on there? Some one was looking it up and found that it could not be accounted for in any other way except that it was made on the proof. Who was it? Do you mind telling us?

Mr. Bates—Produce the proof.

Mr. Dane—The proof would be the best evidence of it. We have not seen it. We have not had access to it.

Mr. Whipple—Do you really decline to say who made that memorandum on there?

Mr. Dane—I don't know, Mr. Whipple. I would like to see the original proof which you have in your possession.

Mr. Thompson—Let us have the book a minute.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Dane, I am informed that the trustees have not got that proof, but that the directors have, that those slips with her indorsement on the back of each by-law were in the hands of Mr. Stewart, her publisher, and that long before his death those papers and documents were turned over to the directors. If that will help you any I shall be glad of it.

Mr. Dane—Our information is that those proofs are still in the hands of the Publishing Society.

Mr. Streeter—Well, Mr. Dittmore says otherwise.

Mr. Dane—That does not make it so.

Mr. Bates—Probably he thinks so, but that does not make it so.

Mr. Whipple—May I make the statement that about four months ago the directors wrote to the trustees of the Publishing Society and asked to have all these things—correct me in this, Mr. Watts, if I do not state it accurately—asked to have all the manuscripts, proofs and everything else in their possession that related to any one of these Manuals sent to them, and it was done, and you have it all. Now, we will bring your directors' letter tomorrow morning, and show it to you, so that you cannot call on us for anything further in that connection.

Now will you let us take your alleged twenty-eighth edition of the Manual a moment?

Mr. Thompson—The twenty-ninth.

Mr. Whipple—Or the twenty-ninth.

Mr. Dane—The twenty-ninth is the one that is marked for identification.

Mr. Whipple—Now, let us see it, and let us see if you can't tell us whose writing it is that expresses a doubt about that by-law. Do you mind letting us take it?

Mr. Dane—No.

Mr. Whipple—Let us take it a moment.

[A book is passed by Mr. Dane to Mr. Whipple.]

The Master—I understand Mr. Thompson to say that it was in the twenty-eighth edition.

Mr. Thompson—It is in either the twenty-eighth or the twenty-ninth. We will find out in a moment.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, let us follow this right down, if we may. Here is Sect. 5 of Article I; and right opposite the printing are these words written in pen, "Amendment adopted March 12, 1903. Changes evidently made in proof."

[The twenty-ninth edition of the Manual is passed by Mr. Whipple to the Master.]

Now, I have asked for the identification of that handwriting, if counsel can state it.

The Master—This is the twenty-ninth which you offer, is it?

Mr. Dane—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—That is the copy which you put in?

Mr. Dane—Yes; that is the copy.

Mr. Whipple—It was offered for identification. Now, don't you know whose handwriting it is?

Mr. Dane—I will examine it as soon as His Honor gets through with it.

Mr. Whipple—You must know where you got the book.

Mr. Dane—Oh, yes; I know that.

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps your witness would know whose handwriting it is.

The Master—The question now is about having that made an exhibit, it heretofore having been marked for identification only.

Mr. Dane—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—And—

Mr. Whipple—Now, can you tell us whose that is (passing to Mr. Dane the twenty-ninth edition of the Manual)?

The Master—And there again you offer only the printed matter, I take it?

Mr. Dane—Only the printed matter, Your Honor.

Mr. Whipple—That being so, if Your Honor please, we desire to call attention to the fact that here we begin to deal with by-laws which it is alleged the directors passed. We have pointed out that at this time the directors were not church officers at all.

Mr. Dane—Pardon me for interrupting, but haven't we had this argument over and over again?

Mr. Whipple—We therefore object on that ground, that the directors had no authority, not being officers, or officers of the Church at all, to pass anything which could be called a by-law or accept a Manual. I am not speaking about anything that Mrs. Eddy may have authorized. I am talking about the absolute want of authority of these men who were not even officers of the Church; and on that additional ground we desire to object to this book.

The Master—I understand, Mr. Dane, that that is all the evidence that you are going to offer about the twenty-ninth edition of the Manual, is it?

Mr. Dane—On the twenty-ninth, at this time. I think there is a letter—

The Master—You offer only the printed contents of this copy of the twenty-ninth?

Mr. Dane—Exactly.

The Master—Now, it seems to me that that is evidence tending to show what the Manual was, at any rate. It is part of the history of the Manual. I think it is proper to admit it as an exhibit for that purpose. What conclusions we can draw from it will be entirely another matter.

Q. Now, Miss Warren, I call your attention to a book marked—

Mr. Bates—Has this been marked, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—No.

Mr. Bates—Shall we take the identification number?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

[The twenty-ninth edition of the Church Manual is now admitted as Exhibit 133, the words "for identification" being crossed out.]

Q. Miss Warren, I call your attention to the fifty-seventh edition of the Manual, marked "Exhibit 137 for identification," and I also call your attention to the record contained in the Church By-Law book, Volume 1, beginning on page 1, and extending to and including page 33, and ask you whether or not you have made a comparison of the provisions of the printed matter in the book, "Exhibit 137 for identification," with the printed matter contained on the pages to which I have called your attention?

A. I have.

Q. And whether or not the printed matter in the Manual is the same as the printed matter in the volume of Church By-Laws, Volume 1? A. It is identical.

Mr. Dane—Then, Your Honor, I offer as an exhibit the book "Exhibit 137 for identification," the fifty-seventh edition of the Manual.

Mr. Whipple—I assume that Your Honor will accept it under the same limitation.

The Master—The same ruling may apply to that.

Mr. Bates—That will be Exhibit 137. [The fifty-seventh edition of the Church Manual is admitted in evidence as Exhibit 137, the words "for identification" being stricken out.]

Q. Now I show you, Miss Warren, the seventy-third edition of the Manual, marked "Exhibit 140, for identification," and I show you the Church By-Law book, Volume II, and call your attention to pages 1 to and including page 33, and ask you whether or not you have made a comparison of the printed matter contained in the printed Manual with the printed matter contained on the pages in the Church By-Law book? A. I have.

Q. Whether or not it is the same? A. It is exactly the same.

Mr. Dane—I offer "Exhibit 140, for identification," being the seventy-third edition of the Manual, as an exhibit.

The Master—The same ruling.

[The seventy-third edition of the Church Manual is admitted in evidence as Exhibit 140, the words "for identification" being stricken out.]

Mr. Dane—I show you, Mr. Whipple, a document appearing on page 133 of Volume 9, Letters and Miscellany, and ask if you make any question that that is Mrs. Eddy's signature. (Handing volume to Mr. Whipple.)

Mr. Whipple—You mean 992?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—I understand there is no doubt about that signature.

Mr. Dane—I offer from Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, Document No. 992, appearing on page 133.

[This document is offered as Exhibit 395, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"July 30, 1908.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to Church By-Laws, Article XXVII, Section 1, of the seventy-second edition of the Church Manual; and, if adopted, publish in our periodicals and in the Church Manual.

"MARY B. G. EDDY.

"Article XXVII.

"Soloist and organist. Sect. 1. The music in The Mother Church shall not be operatic, but of an appropriate religious character and of a recognized standard of musical excellence; it shall be played in a dignified and suitable manner. Music from the organ alone should continue about eight or nine minutes for the voluntary and six or seven minutes for the postlude, the offertory conforming to the time required to take the collection. The solo singer shall not neglect to sing any special hymn selected by the Board of Directors."

Mr. Dane—I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that on page 37 of the Church By-Law book, Volume 2, under date of Friday, July 31, 1908, appears a record of a meeting of the directors adopting the article which I have just read. It has been introduced in evidence.

The Master—I guess we had that the other day.

Mr. Dane—I read from the same volume, page 139, Letters and Miscellany, Document No. 995, appearing on page 139, the following:

[This document is offered as Exhibit 396, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"August 15, 1908.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to By-Law Article XXXVI, Section 2 of the Church Manual:

"M. B. G. EDDY.

"Seventy-Third Edition the Authority. Sect. 2. The Board of Directors, the Committee on Bible Lessons, and the Board of Trustees shall each keep a copy of the Seventy-Third Edition and of subsequent Editions of the Church Manual; and if a discrepancy appears in any revised edition, these editions shall be cited as authority.

"MARY B. G. EDDY."

The Master—Haven't you put that in once?

Mr. Whipple—I am sure that was read—I feel very sure.

Mr. Dane—I think that I put in the adoption of it, as adopted in the By-Laws. I do not believe I have read that. On page 37 of the second volume of the Church By-Law book appears a meeting of the directors adopting that by-law which I have just read. I offer from the same volume, Letters and Miscellany, page 137, Document No. 994.

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 397, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"384 Beacon Street,

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"August 8, 1908.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors, Boston, Mass.

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following By-Law, Article XVII, Sect. 4, of The Mother Church Manual.

"Article XVII.

"Overflow meetings. Sect. 4. A Church of Christ, Scientist, shall not hold two or more Sunday services at the same hour.

"MARY B. G. EDDY."

Mr. Dane—I call Your Honor's attention, that on page 38 of the Church

By-Law book, under date of Sept. 4, 1908, is the record of the meeting of directors adopting the by-law which I have just read. From the same volume of Letters and Miscellany, page 135, I offer Document No. 993, which reads as follows:

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 398, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"384 Beacon Street,
Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts,
Aug. 8, 1908.

"Board of Directors, of The Mother Church, Boston, Massachusetts.

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the following amendment to Article I, Section 1, of The Mother Church Manual.

"Article I.

"Names. Section 1. The Church officers shall consist of the Pastor Emeritus, a Board of Directors, a President, a Clerk, a Treasurer, and two Readers.

(Signed) "MARY B. G. EDDY."

Mr. Whipple—I am sure that was read the other day.

Mr. Dane—I am not sure but what it was read the other day.

Mr. Whipple—I don't think we ought to repeat the record.

Mr. Dane—I do not intend to, but Your Honor will see the purpose of this is to show that every amendment to the Manual, the seventy-third, has been adopted by the directors at the request of Mrs. Eddy.

Mr. Whipple—Well, you see, the trouble is you have not shown it; you are doing it latterly, but earlier you do not.

The Master—Either the adoption or the request for that by-law I am quite sure you have put in already.

Mr. Bates—It was the record of the adoption.

Mr. Dane—I think it was the record of the adoption, and Governor Bates so remembers it.

The Master—Maybe you have put in both, I don't know.

Mr. Thompson—Now if you will come to Article I, Section 5.

Mr. Dane—I simply call attention to the fact that the adoption of that by-law appears on page 38 of the Church By-Law book, Volume 2. From the same volume of Letters and Miscellany I offer, from page 141, Document No. 996, reading as follows:

[The above document is offered as Exhibit 399, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
August 22, 1908.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors, Boston, Mass.

"Beloved Students:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to By-law Article VIII, Sect. 28, of the 73d edition of the Manual.

"As ever, MARY B. G. EDDY.

"Article VIII.

"Numbering The People. Sect. 28. Christian Scientists shall not report for publication the number of the members of The Mother Church, nor that of the branch Churches. According to the Scripture they shall turn away from personality and numbering the people."

Mr. Dane—That was adopted at a meeting of directors, Sept. 4, 1908, appearing on page 38 of Volume 2 of the Church By-Law book. I offer from the same volume of Letters and Miscellany, page 145, Document No. 998, as follows:

July 16, 1919

FIFTEENTH DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room,
Boston, Massachusetts, July 16, 1919.

The Master—Go on when you are ready, Mr. Dane.

Mr. Whipple — If Your Honor please—

The Master—One moment, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple— I would like to respond to an inquiry which was put to us yesterday in regard to certain documents said to be in the hands of the trustees. On July 15 we received a notice from counsel for the defendant directors asking us to produce at this trial all original proofs of By-Laws for any of the Church Manuals of The Mother Church, and the memorandum of February, 1916, referred to in the trustees' records of Sept. 30. Now, I stated yesterday in regard to the Church Manuals that there had been correspondence between the parties on the subject, and that they had been delivered.

May I offer, first, a letter of Aug. 8, 1918, Mr. Jarvis to the Board of Directors, as follows:

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Boston, Massachusetts,

"Aug. 8, 1918.

"Board of Trustees,

"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"107 Falmouth Street,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by the Christian Science Board of Directors to say the board understands that The Christian Science Publishing Society is in possession of letters from Mary Baker Eddy to her publisher, regarding changes in the Manual of The Mother Church.

"The directors would be glad to have you send these letters over for permanent preservation as a part of the records of The Mother Church. If you wish to retain copies of these letters, the directors will be glad to have you do so.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "CHAS. E. JARVIS,

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors."

"CEJ-L"

[Letter, Aug. 8, 1918, Charles E. Jarvis, corresponding secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors, to the Board of Trustees, is marked Exhibit 405.]

Mr. Whipple—The business manager was requested to report, and on Oct. 22 of last year the business manager wrote to the Christian Science Board of Directors as follows:

"Oct. 22, 1918.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"The Board of Trustees asks us to transmit to you the accompanying correspondence between our Leader and her publisher relating to changes in the Manual of The Mother Church. This is the correspondence requested in your letter of Aug. 8.

"With best wishes,

"Yours sincerely,

"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"by

"incl. Business Manager."

[Copy of letter, dated Oct. 22, 1918, from business manager of Publishing Society to Board of Directors, is marked Exhibit 406.]

Mr. Whipple—On Oct. 22 Mr. Jarvis, as corresponding secretary, replied as follows:

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Oct. 22, 1918.

"Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to thank you for transmitting to The Mother Church, through the business manager, the correspondence passing between Mrs. Eddy and her publisher which related to changes in the Manual of The Mother Church. The directors will be glad to include these communications in the files of Mrs. Eddy's letters which are now being permanently preserved.

"With all good wishes,

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "CHAS. E. JARVIS.

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors."

[Letter of Oct. 22, 1918, Charles E. Jarvis, corresponding secretary for the Christian Science Board of Directors, to the Board of Trustees, is marked Exhibit 407.]

Mr. Whipple—I stated yesterday that we had delivered all this original correspondence in our hands, and this correspondence is offered for the purpose of showing that we have done so. Now, as we did not keep a list of the letters which were so sent, we should be glad at the appropriate time to have those letters all presented so that a list may be taken of them. But at all events, we have long ago complied with your recent request.

The Master—If you did not keep a list you are unable to identify what was delivered in pursuance of that request.

Mr. Whipple—Except by possible memory of Mr. Watts, the business manager. You will observe—

The Master—Are the directors able to identify what they received?

Mr. Bates—Yes, Your Honor, we can identify what we received. I want to direct Your Honor's attention to the fact that that correspondence does not mention the proof sheets. We had supposed from what Mr. Whipple said yesterday that he understood that the proof sheets had been returned to us. We find upon examination that they were not, with the exception of two or three by-laws, which were not the long proof sheets that had been sent or that we understood they had in their possession. We think those still must be in the possession of the Publishing Society, and I think possibly a diligent search may produce them. At any rate we would like very much to have them. The correspondence which was sent to us in connection with that was very meager, and we can put a witness on to show just what it was. We will be glad to do so.

The Master—Do you claim that in response to that request any proof sheets were delivered them?

Mr. Whipple—I do not. I do not know about it, therefore I make no claim. What do you say as to that?

Mr. Watts—We have got quite a number of proofs or references to articles in the Manual that were published in the Sentinel and Journal. We have them.

Mr. Whipple—Have you any with any indorsement of Mrs. Eddy thereon?

Mr. Watts—Yes, quite a number. But they are all relative to the Sentinel and Journal.

Mr. Bates—Well, they are relative to the By-Laws.

Mr. Whipple—I am talking about the Manual.

Mr. Watts—None of these as to the Manual.

Mr. Bates—They are relative to the By-Laws, and we would like to have them produced so that we can see them.

Mr. Whipple—I understand—and you will correct me, Mr. Watts, if it is not correct—that we have nothing in the way of proofs in respect of the Manual or any of the provisions.

Mr. Watts—Only these relate, Mr. Whipple, to the By-Laws, notices of which were published in the Sentinel and Journal—

The Master—We had better not get that in at present. Were there any proof sheets of the Manual? That is what you are inquiring about, Mr. Bates?

Mr. Bates—Proofs sheets of the Manual, or proof sheets of any of the By-Laws, we are asking for. Now, the By-Laws were under Mrs. Eddy's instructions published in the Sentinel.

Mr. Whipple—Let us get one at a time. Are there any proof sheets of the Manual?

Mr. Watts—None that I know of at this moment.

Mr. Whipple—Now, I understand that there is a voluntary statement that with reference to some of the By-Laws which were published in the Sentinel and Journal, and possibly were later incorporated in the Manual, there are proofs.

Mr. Bates—That is what we want.

Mr. Whipple—Well, that is not what you asked for. That is not what you asked for.

Mr. Bates—We asked for all proof sheets relating to the Manual, and a proof sheet of a by-law is a part of the Manual.

Mr. Whipple—I will read your letter, sir, and see:

"All original proofs of By-Laws for any and all of the Church Manuals of The Mother Church."

Mr. Bates—That is exactly it. Now, you have proof sheets of some of those By-Laws, and we want them.

The Master—It does not seem to me that proof sheets of something else, something other than the Manual, come within your call.

Mr. Bates—Your Honor will recall that the By-Laws—whenever Mrs. Eddy requested the directors to adopt a by-law she would say, "Have this published in the Sentinel." Now, those proof sheets of the By-Laws were sent to her to see that they were correct before they were published. They became a part of the Manual. The fact that they were published in the Sentinel did not prevent their being a part of the Manual. They became a part of it by virtue of being by-laws.

The Master—We are only concerned, then, with the directors' action in adopting these By-Laws.

Mr. Bates—Well, if Your Honor will recall, Mr. Thompson, or General Streeter, requested information with regard to a certain by-law. Now, we think that that information might be disclosed by the production of these proof sheets. You will recall the memorandum which Mr. Thompson read from the page of the by-law indicating that the change had been made in proof.

The Master—It hardly seems possible that the proof of something published in the Sentinel or Journal can assist in proving the authentication of a given by-law.

Mr. Bates—Not if it was in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting as a by-law of the Church?

The Master—We want the production by the directors of the written instruction by Mrs. Eddy, I take it, do we not, for any given by-law?

Mr. Bates—I think it would tend, if Your Honor please, to give us all the information there is, at any rate, in regard to the By-Laws, if we had everything that is in her handwriting in regard to them. And it seems to me, therefore, that our request for proofs in regard to by-laws which have become and are a part of the Manual ought to be complied with.

The Master—Perhaps it ought, but I think hardly under the call which has been read.

Mr. Bates—Then I will ask for them now, that they be produced.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if you will name what you ask for, so that we may have recorded what we give to you.

Mr. Bates—I ask for the proofs of any by-laws that have any writings upon them by Mrs. Eddy.

Mr. Whipple—That is, any of her handwriting?

Mr. Bates—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—You mean, published in the Sentinel—

Mr. Bates—Whether published in the Sentinel or not.

Mr. Whipple—All right. (Conferring with associates.) I hand you a proof sheet of an article, "No Executive Members, Section (blank), Article V; no monopoly, Section (blank)." On the front—

The Master—Have you a list of those?

Mr. Whipple—No, Your Honor.

The Master—Wouldn't it be better to make a list before you offer them, to save time in going over them here?

Mr. Whipple—Well, we should want to have the list put into the record, because we do not wish to hand these over without some record of what we hand over.

The Master—If you had a list prepared perhaps it would save time in getting it into the record.

Mr. Whipple—I think not; there is very little of it, if Your Honor please. Let us try it this way, if Your Honor does not mind, and see if we can't expedite it.

On the back, in what purports to be Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, is written, "Do not publish it as a by-law, but a notice. Eddy." That is a provision as to the executive members. (Handing paper to Mr. Bates.)

The next paper is "Amendments to By-Laws, Article XXVI, Private Communications; Article XXVII, Music in the Church." On the back side is written, in pencil, in what purports to be the handwriting of Mrs. Eddy, the word "Eddy." (Handing the paper to Mr. Bates.)

Then, headed "An Amended By-Law, Article XXXVII, in Branch Churches, Section 3"; in handwriting apparently that of Mrs. Eddy is the word "Over." On the back side, "Our Manual specifies jurisdiction over the U. S. and Canada only. M. B. E." (Handing paper to Mr. Bates.)

The Master—No dates to any of these?

Mr. Whipple—None whatever.

The next is headed "A new By-law, Article XXVIII." As originally printed, "No more communion," which is changed in what may be Mrs. Eddy's handwriting into the words "communion service, section 16; The Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, shall observe no more communion seasons." On it is marked in another handwriting, "Sentinel, Journal and Der Herold." On the back is written, in what purports to be Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, the word "Eddy." (Handing paper to Mr. Bates.)

The next is headed, "A new By-law, Article XXVIII." Originally written, "No Census Taking, Section 8"; and then that is erased and "Numbering the People" is written in what purports to be Mrs. Eddy's handwriting. "Sentinel, Journal, Der Herold" on the face in another handwriting; and on the back side is indorsed "Eddy" in pencil. (Handing paper to Mr. Bates.)

Then, "An Amended By-law, Article XXVIII; The Mother Church and branch churches local self-government, Section 1." And on the back is written, in the same handwriting, in pencil, "Eddy." (Handing paper to Mr. Bates.)

The next, "An Amended By-law, Article XIX, Teaching in Sunday School, Section 5." Indorsed in the same handwriting in pencil, "Eddy." (Handing paper to Mr. Bates.)

I have a few more here. I will take Your Honor's direction. I think it will save time if I go right through them, but I am not sure.

The Master—You may as well continue as you have begun, I think.

Mr. Whipple—Yes. The next is an amended by-law, Article XXXVII, "In Branch Churches," Section 3. There is a caret in the sentence, "Each County of Great Britain through its three largest branch churches," and the insertion is of the two words "and Ireland," apparently in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting—is that, General?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Lower on the page, an amended by-law, Article XXXVII. This is also as to branch churches; it is another proof of the same by-law, and in the handwriting of Mr. McLellan are these words:

"Beloved Leader: Please see Mr. Johnson's letter regarding this. There are over 50 counties in Great Britain; the name Great Britain does not include Ireland.

"Lovingly yours,

"ARCHIBALD McLELLAN."

It is indorsed "Eddy."

Next, "Amendment to By-Law, Article XXVIII. Church Membership. Section 14." That is indorsed on the back side "Eddy." This refers to the teaching of Roman Catholics. I would like to call attention to that a little later.

The next is headed "Amended By-Laws, Article XVII. Debt and Duty. Section 7. The Mother Church shall not be made legally responsible for the debts of individuals," etc.

"Committee on Business. Section 8. The Christian Science Board of Directors shall elect a committee on business."

At the bottom, in what purports to be the handwriting of Mr. McLellan: "Beloved Leader: Are both sections to be published in all three of the periodicals?"

"Lovingly,
"ARCHIBALD McLELLAN."

Here we have a date because there is a letter from Mrs. Eddy, in her own handwriting, dated Dec. 23, 1906, from Pleasant View, Concord, New Hampshire:

"My Beloved Student: By-law 'Debt and Duty' should be published in the Sentinel. 'Committee on Business' is to be published only in our Church Manual.

"Lovingly yours,
"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Next, a Church By-Law:

"Article XX. Testimonials. Section 12. Glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's. (St. Paul.)"

It is indorsed, "September Journal, September 1 Sentinel, October Herald," with an interrogation mark after it; and, following that interrogation, in the handwriting of Mrs. Eddy, is this legend, "Yes, Eddy," apparently in reply to the interrogation as to whether it should go into the Herald. That is indorsed in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, "Eddy."

The next, "Amendment to Church By-Law, Article XVIII. Local self-government. Section 1." In the handwriting apparently of Mr. McLellan, "Sentinel, January 27, 1906; February Journal." Indorsed on its face in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, "Eddy."

The next, "Amendment to By-law, Article XX."

"The promotion of peace. Section 14. It shall be the duty of the members of The Mother Church," etc.

That is indorsed in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, "Eddy," and in some other handwriting, "Sentinel."

Next, "An Amended By-law, Article XVII. Committee on Business. Section 8." Indorsed on the back, "Eddy."

The next, "A New By-law, Article XX."

"Sudden decease. Section 8. If a member of The Mother Church shall decease suddenly."

"Sentinel, Journal, Der Herald," indorsed in what appears to be Mr. McLellan's handwriting. "Eddy" indorsed on the back.

The next proof is "Church Manual, Article XX. Sudden decease. Section 8."

And on the back, indorsed in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting is this legend: "Publish these articles together. Eddy."

The next, "Church By-law, Article XXII."

"Publications unjust. Section 11. Should a member of The Mother Church publish, or cause to be published, an article that is false, or unjust," etc.

In the last line the word "Church" is stricken out, and the word "its" substituted therefor in what is apparently Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, so that it will read, "in this Church and from its membership." It is indorsed in lead pencil. "Punctuation O. K. M. B. G. E. Sec."

The next is "Amendments to By-laws. Article XXVIII. Local Self-government. Section 1." From that the word "Annual" is stricken, and "triennial" inserted, in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, so that it reads, in part:

"No conference of churches shall be held, except the triennial conference at The Mother Church, unless," etc.

"Article XXVIII. Communion of branch churches. Section 8."

On the back is indorsed, "Eddy," in the same handwriting. Attached is a letter dated July 12, 1906:

"Dear Mr. McLellan:—

"I inclose corrected proof with Mrs. Eddy's indorsement. Will you please see that Mr. Johnson has this proof so that proper correction can be made in the copy for the Church Manual?"

"Sincerely,
"LEWIS C. STRANG."

Indorsed on it are the words:

"Mr. Johnson, please note and return. A. McL."

The next, "Amendments to By-laws, Article XII."

"Regular and special meetings. Annual meetings. Section 1."

The next, "Meetings of Board of Directors. Section 2."

The next, "Article XX."

"No malpractice. Section 8. (Paragraph 2.)

"A member of The Mother Church who mentally malpractices or treats our Leader or her staff without her or their consent," etc.

The word "or" is stricken out and the word "and" inserted in what apparently is Mrs. Eddy's handwriting. That is indorsed, "Sentinel, Journal, Der Herald"; and indorsed on the back, "Eddy."

The next, "An amended By-Law. Article VI."

"Executive Members' Meetings. Section 2. There shall be no annual meetings of the executive members," etc.

On the back in the handwriting of Mrs. Eddy is this legend: "I see no fault; do you see any?"

Mr. Thompson—Mr. Whipple, would you mind my calling attention to this Amendment to Article XX, to the fact that under the title "No Malpractice, Section 8 (paragraph 2)," it read originally, in print, "A member of The Mother Church who mentally malpractices or treats our Leader," and the word "or" is struck out, and in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting is written the word "and."

Mr. Whipple—I think I referred to that.

Mr. Thompson—Perhaps you referred to that.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, I did.

Mr. Thompson—Showing the great care that she had of those matters.

Mr. Whipple—Next, "Amended By-Law, Article XX."

"Joining Another Society. Sect. 14. It shall be the duty of members of The Mother Church and of its branches to promote peace on earth and good will toward men; but members of The Mother Church shall not hereafter become members of other societies except those specified in the Church Manual."

Just before the words "Church Manual" is inserted, or an indication that there is to be inserted, the word "Mother," and the word is written in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting. It is indorsed "Eddy" on the back.

The next paper is in part a by-law and in part not, but the indorsements, in the part that is not a by-law, are in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, so that I will call attention to them. "A Question. Mary Baker Eddy." That is in print. Then there is the insertion of a "G," so it will read, "Mary Baker G. Eddy," and that is in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting. There is a sentence, "Thinking of person implies less thinking of Principle." The word "less" is stricken out, and the words "that one is not" are inserted, so that it would read, "Thinking of person implies that one is not thinking of Principle." Then there is the insertion of a "they" later, also in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, and the striking out of the word "will."

Also, "Church By-law, Article XI. Duty to God. Section 4."

The paper is indorsed on the back with the legend "Eddy."

The next, "A New By-law. Article XXVIII."

"Requirements for Organizing Branch Churches. Section 8. A branch church of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass., shall not be organized with less than sixteen loyal Christian Scientists, four of whom are members of The Mother Church. This membership shall include at least one active practitioner whose card is published in the list of practitioners in The Christian Science Journal."

That is indorsed with the word "Sentinel," and that is indorsed on the back, in ink, "Eddy."

Those are all the proofs which relate to by-laws which have any indorsement or stamp giving or indicating Mrs. Eddy's authority.

The Master—How shall we avoid confusion hereafter about what you have now produced? Will those documents be kept together?

Mr. Whipple—I wish they might be, and kept very carefully. If they are offered in evidence I should like to have them made separate exhibits and returned to us, as we produced them.

Mr. Bates—No objection to that.

Mr. Whipple—Or, if you do not care to use them as exhibits, I would like to have them handed back.

Mr. Bates—We certainly shall do so.

The Master—Can't you put them all into one envelope or in some way separate them from the other papers?

Mr. Bates—We haven't any envelope here big enough for them, but we will keep them together and see that they are returned to Mr. Whipple.

The Master—Now, may it be assumed, in regard to each document, where Mr. Whipple has told us that Mrs. Eddy's signature or handwriting appears that it is Mrs. Eddy's signature or handwriting, until somebody undertakes to deny it?

Mr. Bates—That is satisfactory.

Mr. Whipple—We have an envelope which we would like to have them put in.

The Master—In regard to several of the documents the statement was that Mr. McLellan's handwriting appeared on it or in connection with it. May it also be assumed that that is in fact his handwriting?

Mr. Bates—Unless evidence is offered to the contrary.

The Master—Anything further at present, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor will indulge me just a moment, I think there may be. If Your Honor please, I ascertained what I did not know when I was on my feet before, that Mr. Ogden, in searching among some papers of a former publisher, discovered last night still other proofs which bear the indorsement of Mrs. Eddy. I will therefore continue, with Your Honor's permission, identifying a few more. The first reads as follows:

"Church Manual, p. 69. Due notice required. Sect. 12. To leave Mrs. Eddy's home either without her consent or without giving at least three weeks' notice to her, in advance thereof, shall cause the removal of this offending member from membership with The Mother Church of Christ, Scientist."

Then the word "either," in a pencil memorandum, is indicated to be stricken out. Then at the bottom are written the words "Erased by Eddy" apparently indicating this "either." That is in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting. Then a pencil cross is drawn through or over the whole by-law. Then there is attached to it something purporting to be Article XXII, page 68, headed, "Opportunity for Serving the Leader, Sect. 11."

"At the written request of the Pastor Emeritus, Mrs. Eddy, the Board of Directors shall immediately notify a member of this Church to go in 10 days to her, and it shall be the duty of the member thus notified to remain with Mrs. Eddy 12 months consecutively, or three years consecutively, if Mrs. Eddy requires or requests it. Any member who leaves Mrs. Eddy's home in less time than she requires or requests, or without her consent, after having given at least three weeks' notice to her, in advance thereof, or who declines to obey this call to duty without the Church's consent, shall be excommunicated from the Church.

"Members thus serving the Leader shall be paid semi-annually at the rate of $1000 yearly in addition to rent and board. Those members to whom she teaches the course in Divinity, and those who remain with her three consecutive years, receive the degree of the Massachusetts Metaphysical College, if they are considered by Mrs. Eddy prepared to receive it."

That bears no indorsement in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting and has a pencil cross over its face. These are both attached to a letter of Allison V. Stewart, publisher, on a heading of that description, dated Boston, Nov. 4, 1908:

"Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy,
"Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts,
"Beloved Leader:

"I inclose herewith proof of the new by-law entitled, 'Due notice required.' I have located this by-law on page 68 following the by-law, 'Opportunity for Serving the Leader,' as it seems to me this is the proper place for it.

"Unless you would like to have this by-law appear in a section by itself, it might be embodied in Section 11 of Article XXII, on page 68 of the Manual.

"I have written out the section including that part of this new section not already in Section 11, and submit it for your consideration.

"Lovingly yours,
"ALLISON V. STEWART,
"Publisher."

Indorsed on the back side of the letter in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting is the legend, "Thank you, Eddy."

The Master—Is that regarded by anyone as material for any purpose in the case?

Mr. Whipple—I am sure I do not know. I am simply identifying these as I hand them over.

Mr. Bates—No, Your Honor.

Mr. Whipple—But it bears the indorsement of Mrs. Eddy, and it may be material, if it be a fact, that neither of these by-laws that were indorsed by her ever got into the Manual. I mean that we are now dealing perhaps with the question as to the manner in which the Manual was constructed and what parts of it bear the inspiration of Mrs. Eddy.

The Master—Very well. My remark is caused by the fact that the whole thing seems to have resulted in nothing.

Mr. Whipple—I am not sure whether that is in one of the Man-uals or not. It apparently had Mrs. Eddy's indorsement.

The Master—But I understood you that the proposed addition to the Manual was crossed out.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I do not know whether that cross means stricken out or whether it is an indication that it has been examined.

The Master—Very well.

Mr. Whipple—But I thought it proper to state that the cross was there.

The Master—Perhaps we will hear more about it.

Mr. Whipple—There are here four papers pinned together, and the stamp on the first one is "May 18 1908 O K with punctuation Ans 5-19-08.

"page 69

"Special Offense. Sect. 3. If a member of this Church, either by word or work, represents falsely to or of the Leader and Pastor Emeritus, said member shall immediately be disciplined, and a second similar offense shall remove his or her name from membership in The Mother Church."

There are changes in punctuation indicated on the proof. It is indorsed with the legend "Eddy."

The second sheet is another copy of the same by-law, also indorsed "Eddy." The third sheet is another copy of the same by-law, all three sheets being stamped with the date "May 18, 1908," and this third sheet does not bear any indorsement.

The fourth sheet is printed on different paper, but is headed "A New By-Law. Special Offense," and that bears the indorsement on the back, in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, of this legend: "Church Manual Eddy."

The next paper bears the stamped indorsement "Jun 25 1908," and then in pencil, "Page 61 new," with an interrogation mark in pencil.

"mother church p. 81

"No More Communion. Sect. 17. The Mother Church of Christ Scientist shall observe no more Communion Seasons.

"Approved, Eddy."

The last two words are in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, and on the back is the legend, "Eddy."

The next is indorsed "Jun 5—1908." "church manual, p. 61

"Joining Another Society. Sect. 14. It shall be the duty of the members of The Mother Church and of its branches to promote peace on earth and good will toward men;"—

That is the same as we have had, and it bears the indorsement on the back "Eddy."

Here is what purports to be a page about the size of the Manual, stamped "Feb. 9—1909." It is headed "Teaching Christian Science 85." The headings of the paragraphs on the page are: "Change of Location. Sect. 8. Caring for Pupils of Strayed Members. Sect. 9. Teachers must have Certificates. Sect. 10." In handwriting, in ink, on the back, is the legend, "Eddy."

The next one is stamped "Feb. 17, 1908."

"Church Manual, Article XXVIII, Section 7.

"Organizing Churches. Sect. 7. A member of this Church, who obeys its by-laws and is a loyal exemplary Christian Scientist working in the Field, is eligible to form a church in conformity with Article XXVIII, Sect. 8, and to have Church services conducted by reading the Scriptures and the Christian Science textbook. This Church shall be acknowledged publicly as a Church of Christ, Scientist. Upon proper application, made in accordance with the rules of The Christian Science Publishing Society, the services of such a church may be advertised in The Christian Science Journal. The branch churches shall be individual, and not more than two small churches shall consolidate under one church government. If the Pastor Emeritus, Mrs. Eddy, should relinquish her place as the head or Leader of The Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, each branch church shall continue its present form of government in consonance with The Mother Church Manual."

That is indorsed on the back, "Eddy."

Here is a letter from Mr. Dickey:

"Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy,
Office of Secretary.

"Brookline, Mass.,
Feb. 17, 1908.

"Mr. A. V. Stewart,
Boston, Massachusetts.
Dear Mr. Stewart:—

"I return herewith proofs of Article XXVIII, Section 7, with our Leader's indorsement.

"Will you kindly hand one of these to Mr. Johnson.

"Sincerely,
ADAM H. DICKEY."

Also attached to the letter is another copy of the same proof, bearing the stamp "Feb. 17, 1908. Organizing Churches. Sect. 7." There are some directions about changes, which are not in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting. There are two other copies of this proof attached, neither of which have any legend connected with Mrs. Eddy.

I hand them all over to counsel because we have not cared to remove the pins or other clasps that attach them.

Here, pinned together, are two proofs, apparently of page 86, headed "Church By-Laws."

The Master—Is there any reference to any edition?

Mr. Whipple—The second one, on the back, has Mrs. Eddy's indorsement—the word, "Eddy" put on it. They are as follows: "Article XXVII. Pupils." The headings of the paragraphs on the page are: "Authorized to Teach. Section 1. Without Teachers. Sect. 2. Basis for Teaching. Sect. 3."

Mr. Streeter—Will you pardon me a minute, Brother Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—Certainly. (After a pause.) Shall I proceed?

The Master—Shall Mr. Whipple continue, General Streeter?

Mr. Streeter—Oh, yes, I beg your pardon. I have found out what I wanted.

Mr. Whipple—Clasped together are three pages purporting to be pages 99, 100, and 101. The heading on the first is, "Committee on Publication"; on the second, "Church By-Laws"; and on the third, "Committee on Publication." On the first page there seems to be a by-law continued from another page. Then comes the paragraph headed, "Appointment. Sect. 4. Removal from Office. Sect. 5. Case of Necessity. Sect. 6." On the back of the third page, in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, appear the words, "Mary Baker Eddy." Will you hand that to His Honor (passing papers to Mr. Thompson)? They bear the indorsement, "March 22, 1910."

Mr. Thompson—I will look at them first.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, if you will, and then hand them to His Honor.

The next purports to be page 83, headed "Teaching Christian Science. Article XXVI. Teachers. Motive in Teaching. Section 1. Care of Pupils. Sect. 2."

Mr. Thompson—Your Honor, he has asked me to hand them to you (handing papers to the master).

Mr. Whipple—I thought Your Honor might desire to see the signature.

The Master—What is it I am desired to look at here?

Mr. Whipple—The signature on the back.

This is indorsed with the legend, on the back, "Eddy." It is stamped "Oct. 14, 1909."

The Master—Why is it desirable for me to look at that any more than any of the other signatures?

Mr. Thompson—I do not know, sir.

Mr. Whipple—The next purports to be page 85, headed "Teaching Christian Science," and is stamped "Oct. 22, 1909." The paragraphs are headed: "Caring for Pupils of Strayed Members. Sect. 8. Teachers Must Have Certificates. Sect. 9." It is indorsed on the back, in pencil, "Mary Baker Eddy."

The next purports to be page 84, and has the stamp "Oct. 19, 1909." The paragraphs are headed: "Defense against Malpractice. Sect. 3. Number of Pupils. Sect. 4. Pupil's Tuition. Sect. 5. Associations. Sect. 6. A Single Field of Labor. Sect. 7." It bears the indorsement on the back, in pencil, "Eddy."

The next are three pages, which are identical in their print, the first being page 71 and headed, "Discipline," and bearing the stamp "Jan. 1—1908." It is headed "Article XXVI. Members." The paragraphs are headed: "Departure from Tenets. Section 1. Violation of By-Laws. Sect. 2. Illegal Adoption. Sect. 3." The first copy bears the indorsement, on the back, in pencil, "Eddy."

Here is another sheet, stamped

"Mar. 14, 1910," which is an exact duplicate of one already put in. It is page 84, headed "Church By-Laws," and the paragraphs are headed, "Defense against Malpractice," and otherwise just as I stated. It bears on the back, in pencil, the indorsement, "Eddy."

The next is page 91, stamped "March 14, 1910," and headed, "Board of Education." Under this heading the paragraphs are entitled: "Signatures. Sect. 3. Remuneration and Free Scholarship. Sect. 4. Surplus Funds. Sect. 5. Primary Students Sect. 6." It is indorsed on the back, in pencil, "Eddy."

The next is page 92, bearing the stamp, "Jan. 25, 1910," and the paragraphs are headed, "Healing Better Than Teaching. Sect. 7. Not Members of The Mother Church. Sect. 8." It is indorsed on the back, in pencil, "Eddy."

The next is page 87, stamped "June 26, 1909," and the paragraphs are headed: "Church Membership. Sect. 4. Class Teaching. Sect. 5." On the back, written in ink, are the words, "Mary Baker Eddy."

The next is page 103, stamped "March 23, 1909," with the heading, "Church-Building. Article XXXV." The paragraphs are headed: "Building Committee. Section 1. Designation of Deeds. Sect. 2." It bears the indorsement on the back, in pencil, "Eddy."

The next is page 69, bearing the stamp "Nov. 16, 1908," and the paragraphs are headed: "Help. Sect. 12. Students with Mrs. Eddy. Sect. 13. Mrs. Eddy's Room. Sect. 14." On the back is the stamp, "Dec. 1, 1908" and under it, in pencil, the indorsement, "Eddy."

The next is stamped, "Mar. 4—1919," and reads as follows:

"church manual p. 69

"No Interference. Sect. 18. There shall be no interference by students with the rules governing Mrs. Eddy's home, nor by any individuals whom she has not called upon for counsel."

Indorsed in some one's handwriting, in blue pencil, are the words, "Canceled when final proof was sent." There is attached another copy of the by-law, which has been amended in pencil, and is indorsed on the back, in ink, "Eddy."

The next are pages 68 and 69, pinned together. The paragraphs are headed: "First Opportunity for Serving Leader. Sect. 11. Location. Sect. 12. Help. Sect. 13. Students with Mrs. Eddy. Sect. 14. Mrs. Eddy's Room. Sect. 15." It is indorsed on the back, "Eddy." This is in part a duplicate of the last.

The next is stamped, "Feb. 9—1909," page 63, and the first paragraph is headed, "Subject for Lessons. Sect. 3." Then comes the main heading, "Reading Rooms. Article XXI. Establishment. Section 1. Librarian. Sect. 2." Then, on page 64, is the main heading, "Relation and Duties of Members to Pastor Emeritus. Article XXII. The Title of Mother Changed.

Section 1." Each sheet is indorsed on the back, in ink, "Eddy."

The next is page 69 and reads as follows:

"Agreement Required. Sect. 13. When The Christian Science Board of Directors call a student in accordance with Article XXII, Sect. 11 of our Church Manual, to the home of their Leader, Mrs. Eddy, said student shall come under a signed agreement to remain with Mrs. Eddy during the time specified in the Church Manual. "Incomplete term of service. Sect. 14."

It is indorsed, on the back, "Eddy."

March 26, 1909, "Literature in Reading Rooms, Sect. 3." Indorsed "Eddy."

Two pages together, "Privilege of Members, Sect. 8"; "No close communion, Sect. 9"; "No interference, Sect. 10." "Guardianship of Church Funds: Church edifice a testimonial, Sect. 1"; "Financial situation, Sect. 2." This is stamped "May 19, 1909," and indorsed "Eddy."

Aug. 4, 1909, "Pastor Emeritus to be consulted, Sect. 18"; "Teachers' and practitioners' offices, Sect. 11," indorsed "Eddy."

Page 56, "The Sunday School, Sect. 4." "Eddy."

Page 74, "Teachers' and practitioners' offices, Sect. 11," "Recognition, Sect. 12," indorsed "Eddy."

Page 48, "The Golden Rule, Sect. 27," "Numbering the people, Sect. 28," "Our Church edifices, Sect. 29," "No monopoly, Sect. 31," "Christian Science nurse, Sect. 31," "A legal ceremony, Sect. 1," "Sudden decease, Sect. 2," "Debating in public, Sect. 1." Both of them are indorsed "Eddy," and are stamped "December 1, 1908."

May 26, 1909. "Article IX. Marriage and decease. Sects. 1 and 2." "Debating in public." It is a duplicate of the one I just read, and the first page is indorsed "Eddy."

The next one is stamped March 16, 1910, purporting to be pages 44 and 45, beginning, "Obnoxious books, Sect. 12." There are other headings which I have not read.

Forty-two and 43, beginning Sect. 5, "Prayer in church." May 24, 1910, indorsed "Eddy."

What purports to be page 29, "Church officers and Readers of The Mother Church," July 13, 1909, indorsed "Eddy."

Page 46, stamped, "August 31, 1909." The first is "Illegal adoption, Sect. 20," "Practitioners' patients," indorsed, "Eddy."

Page 32, "Church By-Laws." "Naming book and author, Sect. 5," "Readers in branch churches, Sect. 6," "Enforcement of By-Laws, Sect. 7." "A table of contents." There are four copies of that, and then some printed matters under Sect. 4, giving the duties of readers. The last is indorsed "Eddy."

These are all attached to a letter from Mr. Johnson, dated Jan. 14, 1907, addressed to Mrs. Eddy at Pleasant View, Concord, New Hampshire:

"Beloved Leader and Teacher:

"I have received the following question:

"Is it a violation of Article XXVIII, Sect. 6, to insert in the By-Laws of a branch church any part of the By-Laws of The Mother Church; for instance Article IV? If so, could the By-Laws contain the following clause: "The readers of this Church must act in accordance with Article IV of the Manual of The Mother Church"?"

"If it were permissible to grant the request yet, it appears to me that it would be better to govern the readers in all Christian Science churches directly from the Manual of The Mother Church, rather than give permission to branch churches to embody in their respective by-laws portions of the By-Laws of The Mother Church other than what is now indicated in Article XXVIII, Sect. 3, page 78, last sentence.

"In looking over Article IV I find, with a few changes, which I have made in the inclosed proof pages, it will be applicable to the readers in all Christian Science churches that it will command uniformity in the duties of the readers throughout the entire field.

"Will you kindly let me know if these changes have your approval and if you desire them to be made in our Church Manual?"

"Lovingly your student, (Signed) "WILLIAM B. JOHNSON." "I do approve of said changes. M B G Eddy." And it is indorsed "Eddy" on the back.

The next two pages, July 1, 1909, purporting to be pages 120 and 121, giving the appendix, indorsed "Eddy."

Two pages, 120 and 121, in different form but in substance the same, giving the order of services in The Mother Church and branch churches, and the order of exercises for the Sunday School; indorsed "Eddy."

A collection of two pages, 125 and 126 of the Appendix, "Eddy."

120 and 121 of the Appendix, giving the order of services in The Mother Church. That is also indorsed "Eddy."

122, "Wednesday meetings," Appendix; indorsed "Eddy."

123 and 124, headed "Order of services," also indorsed "Eddy"—two pages.

Those are all the proofs that we have bearing Mrs. Eddy's indorsement.

The Master—The stenographer asks me whether all those are to be marked as exhibits, and it seems to me at present we stand with regard to them in this way: Mr. Whipple has offered them and submitted them to counsel for the directors in pursuance of a call from them. I take it that the directors will now want to look over them and see which of them they will want to put in evidence. Is that right?

Mr. Bates—That is right.

The Master—Is that understood, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—It is entirely agreeable.

The Master—And until they or some of them are offered by counsel for the directors, or perhaps by counsel for Mr. Dittmore, none of them are to be marked as exhibits.

Mr. Whipple—That is correct.

The Master—One further point: Do they need to be marked for identification?

Mr. Whipple—I tried to identify them as I handed them over.

The Master—You think they are sufficiently identified?

Mr. Whipple—I think so.

The Master—For the present?

Mr. Whipple—I think so.

The Master—Very good, then.

Mr. Whipple—I would like to have this last collection of them put back or kept in the original file in which we found them last night.

Mr. Bates—Kept separate from the others?

Mr. Whipple—Yes. This is indorsed, "Manual page proof," O. K.'d on back by Mrs. Eddy. And I think I may have said it—if I have not I want to state—that these are from Mr. Stewart's files that had not been looked at by us before last night.

Mr. Bates—Mr. Stewart, Your Honor will remember, was formerly the publisher. He is now dead. He was formerly Mrs. Eddy's publisher of her own works.

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Bates—Also one of the directors for a time. I understand, then, Mr. Whipple, that you have produced—

Mr. Whipple—Was Mr. Stewart one of the trustees at one time?

Mr. Bates—No, I think he never was a trustee; he was a director.

Mr. Whipple—He was a trustee, if Your Honor please, I am informed.

Mr. Bates—Oh, very well. I understand you have introduced all of the proofs you have relating to the Manual or the By-Laws.

Mr. Whipple—Quite right. All that are indorsed by Mrs. Eddy.

Mr. Bates—Yes, or all that came from her home, with the indorsement of herself or of her secretaries for her.

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

Mr. Bates—Will you also be kind enough to let us see, either before the next session or to produce in court, all letters which you have from Mrs. Eddy relating to the Publishing Society or its business?

Mr. Whipple—Of course we have put in some of them. We have put some of them in evidence, if Your Honor please—those that seem to be material.

Mr. Bates—We only want those that you have not put in, of course.

Mr. Whipple—Very well. We will collect them and let you have them or examine them. I am informed that you have copies of all that are in our possession, but if you want to inspect the originals you will be privileged to do so.

Mr. Dane—At the time of the adjournment yesterday I was offering in evidence the written request of Mrs. Eddy for the adoption of amendments to the seventy-third edition of the Manual, and had reached the date Dec. 14, 1908.

I now offer from Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 155, document No. 1003, reading as follows:

"Chestnut Hill,
"December 14, 1908.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amended Church by-law and if adopted publish in our periodicals and in the Church Manual.

"MARY B. G. EDDY."

[Letter of Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, December 14, 1908, being Document No. 1003, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 408.]

"Article XXII.

"Opportunity for Serving the Leader. Sect. 11. At the written request of the Pastor Emeritus, Mrs. Eddy, the Board of Directors shall immediately notify a person who has been a member of this Church at least three years to go and tend her, and it shall be the duty of the member thus notified to remain with Mrs. Eddy three years consecutively. A member who leaves her in less time without the directors' consent or who declines to obey this call to duty, upon Mrs. Eddy's complaint thereof, shall be excommunicated from The Mother Church. Members thus serving the Leader shall be paid semi-annually at the rate of $1000 yearly in addition to rent and board. Those members whom she teaches the course in Divinity, and who remain with her three consecutive years, receive the degree of the Massachusetts Metaphysical College."

[Proposed Article XXII, Section 11, "Opportunity for Serving the Leader," as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 409.]

Mr. Dane—That amendment was adopted by the directors, as appears in the Church By-Law book, Volume 2, on page 41, and has heretofore been put in evidence.

The Master—It is another amendment to the seventy-third edition, is it?

Mr. Dane—Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. Whipple—What edition? I did not catch that.

Mr. Dane—Of the seventy-third edition, as adopted by the directors in the Church By-Law book, Volume 2, page 41, and the following pages.

Mr. Whipple—Was this by-law adopted?

Mr. Dane—That was adopted.

The Master—Under what date?

Mr. Dane—Under date of Dec. 15, 1908.

Mr. Whipple—Was it ever printed in the book, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—I beg your pardon, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—Was it ever printed in one of the printed Manuals?

Mr. Dane—I think the subject appears in the present, the eighty-ninth Manual.

Mr. Whipple—Not in this form, however?

Mr. Dane—I think substantially in this form. I will come to that. In any event, I am coming to that later, because I am going to trace it to the present Manual.

I now offer from Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 161, Document No. 1006, a letter under date of Dec. 28, 1908:

"Chestnut Hill
"Dec. 28, 1908.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Brethren:—

"Please vote on the adoption of the following Church By-law and if adopted have it published in our Church Manual.

"As ever, Sincerely,
"MARY BAKER EDDY."

[Letter Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, Dec. 28, 1908, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 410.]

Mr. Dane—The words "As ever, Sincerely" are in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, and the signature, "Mary Baker Eddy."

"Article XXII

"Incomplete Term of Service. Sect. 14. If a student who has been called to serve our Leader in accordance with Article XXII, Sect. 11, of the Church Manual leaves her before the expiration of the time therein mentioned such student shall pay to Mrs. Eddy whatsoever she may charge for what she has taught him or her during the time of such service."

[Proposed Article XXII, Section 14, to Church By-Laws, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 411.]

Mr. Dane—The adoption of that by-law appears upon page 42, under date of Dec. 31, 1908, of the Church By-Laws book, Volume 2.

I offer from the same volume of Letters and Miscellany a letter on page 163, Document No. 1007, on the letterhead, "Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy, Office of Secretary, 384 Beacon Street":

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"January 15, 1908."

The Master—You go back now from December?

Mr. Dane—Yes. This says "1908" in typewriting, and underneath in pen is "1909." Evidently it was a typographical error of the date.

Mr. Whipple—What was the date?

Mr. Dane—In typewriting is "January 15, 1908," and in pen underneath "1908" appears the figures "1909."

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"January 15, 1908.

"Board of Directors
"The First Church of Christ, Scientist,
"Boston, Mass.

"Beloved Brethren:
"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to Article XXII, Sect. 13 of The Mother Church By-laws, and if adopted publish in the Church Manual and in our periodicals.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, Jan. 15, 1908/1909, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 412.]

"Article XXII

"Agreement Required — Sect. 13. When The Christian Science Board of Directors calls a student in accordance with Article XXII, Sect. 11, of our Church Manual to the home of their Leader Mrs. Eddy, said student shall come under a signed agreement to remain with Mrs. Eddy if she so desires, during the time specified in the Church Manual."

[Proposed Article XXII, Sect. 13, to Church By-Laws, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 413.]

Mr. Dane—On the bottom of the document appear the words and figures, "Allison V. Stewart, 1/5/09," as fixing the date.

The By-Law just read was adopted, as appears in Church By-Laws book, Vol. 2, under date of Jan. 15, 1909, page 44.

I offer from the same volume of Letters, page 165, Document No. 1008, reading as follows:

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"Feb. 4, 1909.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to By-Law, Article XXI, Sec. 2 of the Church Manual:

"Article XXI

"Librarian. Sec. 2. The individuals who take charge of the Reading Room of The Mother Church shall be elected by The Christian Science Board of Directors, subject to the approval of Mary Baker Eddy. He or she shall have no bad habits, shall have had experience in the Field, shall be well educated, and a devout Christian Scientist.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, dated Feb. 4, 1909, with accompanying By-Law, Article XXI, Sec. 2, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 415.]

Mr. Dane—That was adopted by the directors, as appears in the Church By-Law book, under date of Feb. 8, 1909, page 44.

I offer from the same volume of letters, page 167, the document No. 1009, as follows:

"384 Beacon Street,
"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"Article XXVI.

"Teachers Must Have Certificates. Section 10. A member of this Church shall not teach pupils Christian Science unless he has a certificate to show that he has been taught by Mrs. Eddy or has taken a normal course at the Massachusetts Metaphysical College or in the Board of Education. Such members who have not been continuously active and loyal Christian Scientists since receiving instruction as above shall not teach Christian Science without the approval of the Christian Science Board of Directors.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, Feb. 6, 1909, with accompanying proposed by-law, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 416.]

Mr. Dane—That was adopted by vote of the directors under date of Feb. 8, 1909, as appears on page 44 and 45 of Volume 2 of the Church By-Law book.

From the same volume of Letters and Miscellany, page 173, I offer document No. 1012.

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 417, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"Article XXXV.

"Designation of Deeds, Section 2. All deeds of further purchase of land for The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., shall have named in them all the trusts mentioned in the deed given by Albert Metcalf and E. Noyes Whitcomb in March, 1903; but this rule shall not apply to land purchased for any purpose other than the erection of a Church edifice. Also there shall be incorporated in all such deeds the phrase, 'Mary Baker Eddy's Church, The Mother Church or The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.'

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—This amendment was adopted by the directors as appears on page 45 of the Church By-Law book, Volume 2, under date of March 20, 1909. From the same volume of Letters and Miscellany, page 175, I offer Document No. 1013.

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 418, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the repeal of Article XXIII, Section 10, of The Mother Church By-laws and on the adoption of the following Amendment:

"Article XXIII.

"No interference. Section 10. A member of The Mother Church may be a member of one branch Church of Christ, Scientist, or of one Christian Science Society holding public services, but he shall not be a member of both a branch church and a society; neither shall he exercise supervision nor control over any other Church. In Christian Science each branch church shall be distinctly democratic in its government, and no individual, and no other church shall interfere with its affairs.

"If the By-law above is adopted please publish it in the Church Manual, and in the Christian Science periodicals.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—The adoption of the By-law appears on page 46, under date of May 14, 1909, in the church by-law book, Volume 2.

The Master—What appears in the by-law book—anything beyond the by-law, or a record of its adoption?

Mr. Dane—A record of its adoption at a meeting of the directors.

The Master—That is true in every case, is it?

Mr. Dane—In every case as far as I have read at present; and in every case the documents appearing in Volume 9 have a notation on the foot of them "Adopted," and the date of their adoption. From the same volume of Letters and Miscellany, page 181, I offer Document No. 1016, on the letter head "Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy, Office of Secretary, 384 Beacon Street."

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 420, and is read by Mr. Dane as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"May 22, 1909.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
Boston, Mass.
"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the repeal of Section 2, Article IX, of The Mother Church By-laws, and on the adoption of the following Amendment:

"Article IX.

"Sudden Decease. Section 2. If a member of The Mother Church shall decease suddenly, without previous injury or illness, and the cause thereof be unknown, an autopsy shall be made by qualified experts. When it is possible the body of a female shall be prepared for burial by one of her sex.

"In case the above Amendment is adopted, please publish it in The Mother Church Manual.

"Lovingly yours,

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—The adoption of that amendment appears upon page 47 of the church by-law book, under date of May 22, 1909. I offer now, from Volume 6 of Letters and Miscellany, page 163, Document No. 606, a letter to Mrs. Eddy from The Christian Science Board of Directors, by J. V. Dittmore, Secretary. I think there is no question about Mr. Dittmore's signature?

Mr. Thompson—You might just let us look at it.

Mr. Dane—Do you make any question about that?

Mr. Thompson—(Examining signature) Yes; that is all right.

[This Document, No. 606, Letters and Miscellany, page 163, May 31, 1909, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 421, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Boston, Mass.

"May 31, 1909.

"Rev. Mary Baker Eddy,
"Brookline, Mass.
"Beloved Leader:

"This board respectfully represents to you that there seems to be no need for the missionaries provided for in Article XXXIII of the By-Laws of The Mother Church and they ask your consent to the repeal of said article of the By-Laws.

"Lovingly yours,

"CHRISTIAN SCIENCE BOARD OF DIRECTORS,
"By J. V. Dittmore, Secretary."

Mr. Dane—Indorsed upon the bottom of the letter are the words: "You have my hearty consent, Mary Baker Eddy." Do you make any question about that handwriting?

Mr. Whipple—No.

Mr. Dane—It is understood that the words "You have my hearty consent, Mary Baker Eddy," are in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting. From the minutes of regular and special meetings of the directors, under date of June 1, 1909, I offer the part which I read into the record.

[An extract from directors' records, June 1, 1909, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 422, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Upon motion of Mr. Stewart, seconded by Mr. Chase, it was unanimously voted that Articles XXXIV, XXXV, and XXXVI in the eightieth edition of the Manual shall be numbered Articles XXXIII, XXXIV, and XXXV, respectively, in the eighty-first edition, this action being necessary because of the repeal of Article XXXIII."

The Master—Is there no vote repealing that Article XXXIII?

Mr. Dane—I omitted that. It should have been read before the one I just read, but it is as follows:

"Upon motion of Mr. Stewart, seconded by Mr. Chase, it was unanimously voted that Article XXXIII of the By-Laws be repealed, such action having been authorized by the Pastor Emeritus."

Mr. Dane—I offer, from Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 183, Document No. 1017.

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 423, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut, Hill, Mass.,
"June 23, 1909.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Students:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following Church By-Law, Article XXVII, Section 5, and, if adopted, publish in the Church Manual and in our periodicals.

"Article XXVII.

"Class Teaching. Section 5. Members of The Mother Church who are authorized by its by-laws to teach Christian Science, shall not solicit, or cause or permit others to solicit pupils for their classes. No member of this Church shall advise against class instruction.

"Teachers of Christian Science must have the necessary moral and spiritual qualifications to elucidate the Principle and rule of Christian Science, through the higher meaning of the Scriptures.

"The less the teacher personally controls other minds and the more he trusts them to the Divine Truth and Love, the better it will be for both teacher and student." (Retrospection and Introspection, page 84.)
"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—I offer, from the records of the directors, under date of June 25, 1909, the following vote.

[An extract from the directors' records, June 25, 1909, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 424, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Having received the written approval of the Pastor Emeritus, it was unanimously voted to adopt the By-law, Article XXVII, Section 5, 'Class Teaching.'"

The Master—The by-law itself is not quoted?

Mr. Dane—It is not quoted in the vote adopting it. It is referred to by title; it is on the same date.

The Master—Two days later, I think.

Mr. Dane—Is it two days later? That is right. The vote is June 25, and the letter June 23. I offer now from Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 185, Document No. 1018, what appears to be a proof sheet of the Manual, page 29, with the indorsement on the reverse side, "Eddy."

[This document is introduced in evidence as Exhibit 425.]

The Master—Any date?

Mr. Dane—There is stamped upon the document "July 13, 1909," and there is on the margin of the document, in handwriting, "Amendment adopted July 12, 1909."

Mr. Whipple—In whose handwriting?

Mr. Dane—I do not know, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Thompson—Let me see that, please.

The Master—Is there any record of the adoption?

Mr. Dane—Yes, Your Honor, I was coming to that. Mr. Thompson asked to see the document.

Mr. Thompson—Will you just specify what that refers to, please—the article in the by-laws?

Mr. Dane—The article in the by-laws just referred to refers to this subject, and I will read the last paragraph, the paragraph in which the amendment occurs:

"If the Christian Science Board of Directors fails to fulfill the requirements of this by-law and a member of this Church, or the Pastor Emeritus, shall complain thereof to the clerk and the complaint be found valid, the directors shall resign their office or perform their functions faithfully. Failing to do this, the Pastor Emeritus shall appoint five suitable members of this Church to fill the vacancy. The salary of the members of the Board of Directors shall be at present two thousand five hundred dollars each annually."

On page 11 of the directors' minutes, under date of June 12, 1909, I offer the following vote:—

The Master—Don't you mean July 12?

Mr. Dane—July 12; I beg pardon; 1909:

"Having been approved by the Pastor Emeritus, it was voted that the last sentence in Section 9 of Article I of the By-Laws of The Mother Church be amended by substituting the following:

"The salary of the members of the Board of Directors shall be at present two thousand five hundred dollars each annually."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of July 12, 1909, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 426. R. J. M.]

From Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 187, I offer Document No. 1019, reading as follows:

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"July 23, 1909.

"Board of Directors,
"The First Church of Christ, Scientist,
"Boston, Mass.

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following Church By-law, article 23, section 11, and, if adopted, publish in the Church Manual and in our periodicals.

"Article XXIII.

"Sect. 11. Teachers and practitioners of Christian Science shall not have their offices or rooms in the branch Churches, in the reading rooms, nor in rooms connected therewith.

(Signed) "MARY BAKER EDDY."

[The document No. 1019, Vol. 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 187, is Exhibit 427. R. J. M.]

From the minutes of the regular and special meetings of the Board of Directors I offer, from page 14, the following vote, under date of July 23, 1909:

"At the request of the Pastor Emeritus over her own signature, the following by-law was unanimously adopted:

"Article XXIII.

"Teachers' and Practitioners' Offices. Sect. 11."

And then is set forth the by-law in the same words which I have already read.

[The foregoing extract from minutes of the Board of Directors, page 14, dated July 23, 1909, is Exhibit 428. R. J. M.]

From Vol. 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 189, I offer document No. 1021, as follows:

"July 28th, 1909.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Brethren:

"I request you to vote at once upon the adoption of the following Church By-law and send your decision to me by Mr. McLellan.

(Signed) "MARY BAKER EDDY."

"The Mother Church shall not make a Church By-law nor enter into a business transaction with a Christian Scientist whom I am employing without first consulting Mary Baker Eddy on said subject and adhering strictly to her advice thereon."

[The document No. 1021, of Vol. 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 189, is Exhibit 429. R. J. M.]

And from page 15 of the directors' minutes of regular and special meetings, under date of July 23, 1909, I offer the following vote:

"Voted to adopt the following by-law:

"Article XXII

"Pastor Emeritus to be Consulted. Sect. 18. The Mother Church shall not make a Church By-law nor enter into a business transaction with a Christian Scientist in the employ of Rev. Mary Baker Eddy without first consulting her on said subject and adhering strictly to her advice thereon."

[The foregoing extract from directors' minutes of July 28, 1909, page 15, is Exhibit 430. R. J. M.]

It is to be noted that there are slight changes in the order of the words between the by-law as set out in the letter of July 28, 1909, and the by-law as adopted, and I will point them out. In the letter it reads: "nor enter into a business transaction with a Christian Scientist whom I am employing;" in the by-law as adopted, it reads: "nor enter into a business transaction with a Christian Scientist in the employ of Rev. Mary Baker Eddy." In the by-law as set out in the letter it reads: "without first consulting Mary Baker Eddy on said subject," and in the by-law as adopted it reads "without first consulting her on said subject."

The Master—Is there anything about that in the Church by-law book?

Mr. Dane—In the Church by-law book there is a record, under date of July 28, 1909, which apparently is supplementary to the record as made on page 15 of the minutes of regular and special meetings. In the Church by-law book, on page 50, the vote is set forth and is set forth in the phraseology used in the by-law as adopted by the directors on page 15 of the directors' book. In that connection—

Mr. Whipple—There is something omitted.

[Short conference between Mr. Dane and Mr. Whipple.]

Mr. Whipple—Your Honor has observed the relation of the two books. There is no certification of what you call the by-law?

Mr. Dane—No; to the prior ones, yes. I am going to explain that as soon as I have completed what I was doing.

Mr. Whipple—Was this ever incorporated in any edition of the Manual?

Mr. Dane—I understand so.

The Master—I understood, at the start, that all this related to amendments to the seventy-second edition. Is that right?

Mr. Dane—It is correct. It relates to amendments to the seventy-second edition. Some of these were put into editions which were issued between the date of the issue of the original seventy-third, so that some of them as they appear in the record of the Church by-law book appear to be amendments to editions which were issued subsequent to the seventy-third but which contained the same by-laws as the seventy-third. The matter of issuing editions we expect to show in evidence by another witness a little later. It will clear up all the confusion on that, if there is any now.

The Master—And the dates of the different issues?

Mr. Dane—The different issues, yes. It seems that there was a practice of printing 1000 copies of each edition and as soon as the thousand copies were exhausted then another edition was printed and issued, and a subsequent number was given the edition. Sometimes the following edition contained the same by-laws as were in the preceding edition. If in the meantime any amendments had been adopted, they were incorporated into the subsequent editions.

Mr. Streeter—Let me ask you, Mr. Dane, if it was not the practice to issue a new edition upon the coming into office of a new official?

Mr. Dane—I had never heard of that.

The Master—Mr. Dane says that he is going to introduce evidence to explain it all later.

Mr. Streeter—Yes; that is all right.

The Master—The seventy-third edition appears to be a sort of starting point, or standard, according to the Manual?

Mr. Dane—That is it exactly.

The Master—So that no doubt, when you come to it, you will tell us all about the issue of that seventy-third edition. And perhaps there is somewhere an authenticated copy of the seventy-third edition. When you simply produce a book and say, "This is the seventy-third edition, because it says so on the title page," it does not seem very satisfactory, does it?

Mr. Dane—The evidence relating to the seventy-third edition, as I recall it now, is that the directors voted to adopt the seventy-third edition, and in the record of their adoption it purports to have been done at the request or upon the approval of Mrs. Eddy. That is a part of the record of the adoption, and then following that—

The Master—Have we—Go on; I did not mean to interrupt you.

Mr. Dane—Following that we have the by-law which was proposed by Mrs. Eddy for adoption, which made that edition of the Manual the authority, and provided that if there were any discrepancies between that edition and the others, that that edition should govern. Then—

The Master—Well, now, ought we not to have some—

Mr. Dane—I beg your pardon.

The Master—No; you have not got through; go on.

Mr. Dane—It is suggested to me that the seventy-third edition is copied in full into the Church by-law book, Volume 2, following the vote of the directors under date of July 31, 1908.

The Master—Oh, yes.

Mr. Dane—And it has already been testified that, upon a comparison, the printed pages as they appear in the Church by-law book are the same as they appear in the Manual which was issued—the seventy-third edition.

The Master—That is, you put in here a given copy of the Manual?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

The Master—The seventy-third edition?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

The Master—And the evidence is that that is just the same as what was written out in the Church by-law book?

Mr. Dane—Exactly.

Mr. Bates—That authenticates that issue.

Mr. Dane—That is the starting point as we maintain, of an authenticated edition in its entirety. Now, these amendments which I am putting in now, which were made at the request of Mrs. Eddy, become, together with the seventy-third edition, the eighty-ninth edition, which is now—

The Master—They first become a number of other editions?

Mr. Dane—Yes; they are issued in a number of other editions.

The Master—And then they wind up with the eighty-ninth edition?

Mr. Dane—Eighty-ninth.

The Master—Is that right?

Mr. Dane—That is right; which is the last edition and was the edition which was in force on March 17, 1909, which has already been marked for identification.

Mr. Whipple—Will you let me see where you say the seventy-third edition is in your By-Law book?

The Master—That is already in evidence, you say, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—It is in evidence, as I recall it.

The Master—I do not want to make you go over again anything that is in evidence.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I thought not, because here there is nothing except the same thing that they offered in another way—taken to pieces and pasted into this book. Where is the authentication?

Mr. Dane—Right here on page 1 (indicating in book).

Mr. Whipple—Now, that says: "The following resolution was introduced. Be it resolved by the Board of Directors of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, that each and all of the By-Laws contained in the seventy-third edition of the Manual of said Church, as printed and published by Allison V. Stewart, be now adopted as the By-Laws of said Church. The adoption of this resolution being moved and seconded, the question of its adoption being duly put, it was adopted by the unanimous vote of all the directors. William B. Johnson, Clerk."

It does not refer to anything that follows.

Mr. Dane—Oh, yes. I would like to show it to Your Honor. It seems to me it is a sufficient identification. Your Honor will notice that it is the one published by Allison V. Stewart, and is the seventy-third edition.

Mr. Whipple—That does not prove itself. It is only printed; there is no signature of Mr. Stewart.

Mr. Bates—That is a matter of argument, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—It is a matter of proof.

Mr. Bates—It has been put into evidence already.

The Master—It would have made it a little clearer, certainly, if the resolution had added, "and as set forth in the following pages"; but it does not say so.

Mr. Whipple—Nor does it appear who pasted it in.

The Master—Nor does it appear by whom these were pasted in. And when you get to the end, is there any certification? I do not find any.

Mr. Dane—I think not. I think there is no certification.

Mr. Whipple—All you have, as I said a moment ago, is a printed copy torn to pieces and pasted in there, instead of being in a bound volume; and all that Your Honor has said with regard to the bound volume not proving itself would appear to apply to the fragments or parts that are there pasted in.

The Master—Well, perhaps it is not too much of an inference that they meant to say, "as set forth in the following pages."

Mr. Whipple—The courts have power to supply an interpretation, but—

Mr. Bates—There is no logical interpretation otherwise.

The Master—We will consider that later. We have now got the facts.

Mr. Dane—It seems to me to be simply a question of identification. If the Court is satisfied that what the directors then adopted was the Manual as set forth on the following pages, I think that is sufficient.

Mr. Whipple—The Court would have to be satisfied that they knew it to be there.

[Short recess.]

The Master—How would it do, Mr. Dane, to correct that now?

Mr. Dane—My attention has been called to the fact that several times this morning I referred to the seventy-second edition of the Manual, I should have said the seventy-third edition of the Manual, as the seventy-third is the one of which there is the record of the adoption in the Church By-Law book.

Mr. Thompson—When you said that those amendments were amendments of the seventy-second, you meant that, did you?

Mr. Dane—Seventy-third.

Mr. Thompson—You meant that all those various amendments were amendments of the seventy-third?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

The Master—They appear, I think, by their dates—the seventy-third edition, according to the record, having been adopted July 31, 1908. What he has put in this morning, if I understand it right, are letters by Mrs. Eddy or actions by the directors on dates subsequent to July 31, 1908.

Mr. Thompson—I thought some of those yesterday were on dates previous to that.

The Master—Yes, so they were. But this morning when Mr. Dane told us he was now going to put in letters referring to the amendments relating to the seventy-second edition, he meant amendments to the seventy-third edition.

The stenographers had better correct that wherever it is necessary.

Mr. Dane—Before leaving the subject which was last under discussion at the time of the recess, I merely desire to point out that in the Church By-Law book, Vol. 2, the record of the adoption of the seventy-third edition appears under date of July 31, 1908, and the printed pages of the seventy-third edition appear on pages 1 to 33, inclusive; and then upon page 37 there appears a record of the directors under date of July 31, 1908—the same date as is the meeting adopting the seventy-third on the first page. Showing that—

The Master—Is there anything in the action following the pages you have referred to that is material?

Mr. Dane—There is nothing. It simply proceeds to adopt By-Laws to the seventy-third.

The Master—If you had followed the practice that is followed by the Secretary of the Commonwealth in the successive editions of the Acts and Resolves of the Legislature, you would have had your secretary certify that everything contained in this volume is a true copy of the original, referring to where it is in the record.

Mr. Dane—That is correct. But that was not done.

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps it might be well to call attention to the testimony that these records frequently were not made up until some weeks or months after the meetings were held.

Mr. Bates—There is no such testimony.

Mr. Whipple—Well, you do a lot of disputing, but you do very little looking up in order to verify your ideas. If you would look up the evidence maybe you would realize what it is.

The Master—I think we have had some testimony, haven't we, to the effect that the book which you have put in as the seventy-third edition has been compared and is a true copy?

Mr. Dane—Yes, we have, Your Honor.

The Master—The particular book which you put in. That only goes no further than to show that that particular book is a true copy.

Mr. Dane—Yes. It was done yesterday afternoon.

The Master—Yes, you are right.

Mr. Dane—This was the question: "I show you, Miss Warren, the seventy-third edition of the Manual, marked 'Exhibit 140 for identification,' and I show you the Church By-Law book, Volume 2, and call your attention to pages 1 to and including page 33, and ask you whether or not you have made a comparison of the printed matter contained in the printed Manual with the printed matter contained on the pages in the Church By-Law book? A. I have.

"Q. Whether or not it is the same? A. It is exactly the same."

Mr. Whipple—Both of them are printed, and all that means is that one of them is torn to pieces and pasted in the book, and the other one is not.

Mr. Bates—Why are you so disturbed, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—I am not disturbed. There is not the slightest disturbance.

Mr. Bates—Your actions seem to belie your words.

Mr. Whipple—You seem to prove something; you can't tell, you are not a good judge of human nature, Governor; you don't know what is going on by any observations that you make.

The Master—Is there anything further, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—Yes, Your Honor.

I offer now from Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 201, Document No. 1027, as follows:

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"October 9, 1909.

"Christian Science Board of Directors, "Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to By-law Article XXVI, Sect. 2, to be published in our periodicals and in The Mother Church Manual:

"Article XXVI.

"Care of Pupils. Section 2. Christian Scientists who are teachers shall carefully select for pupils such only as have good past records and promising proclivities toward Christian Science. A teacher shall not attempt personal control of or attempt to dictate to his pupils, but he shall hold himself morally obligated to promote their progress in the understanding of divine Principle, not only during the class term but after it, and to watch well that they prove sound in sentiment and practical in Christian Science. He shall persistently and patiently counsel his pupils in conformity with the unerring wisdom and law of God, and shall enjoin them habitually to study the Scriptures and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, Oct. 9, 1909, with accompanying proposed by-law, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 431.]

Mr. Dane—I offer from the records of the directors' minutes, the minutes of the regular and special meetings of the Board of Directors, page 31, a vote under date of Oct. 13, 1909.

[An extract from directors' records, Oct. 13, 1909, introduced in evidence as Exhibit 432, and read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Having been approved by the Pastor Emeritus, the following amended By-Laws were adopted by the unanimous vote of the directors present."

Mr. Dane—Then follows the Article XXVI as set out in the letter of Oct. 9, 1909. On page 203 of Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, I offer also Document No. 1028, with the indorsement on the reverse side, in Mrs. Eddy's hand, "Eddy," in which is set out under the caption, "Care of pupils, Sect. 2," the by-law as it appears to have been adopted on page 31, under date of Oct. 13, 1909, in the directors' minute book.

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 433.]

Mr. Dane—I offer, from Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 197, Document No. 1025.

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 434, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"Oct. 9, 1909.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following Amendment to By-law, Article XXVI, Section 7, to be published in our periodicals and in The Mother Church Manual:

"Article XXVI.

"A Single Field of Labor. Section 7. A loyal teacher of Christian Science shall not teach a loyal teacher's pupil except it be in the Board of Education. Outside of this board each student occupies his own field of labor. Pupils may visit each other's churches and by invitation attend each other's associations.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—I offer from the meeting of the directors, from the minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, under date of Oct. 13, 1909, on page 31, the following.

[Extract from directors' records, Oct. 13, 1909, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 435, and read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Having been approved by the Pastor Emeritus, the following amended By-Laws were adopted by the unanimous vote of the directors present:

"Article XXVI.

"A Single Field of Labor. Section 7. A loyal teacher of Christian Science shall not teach another loyal teacher's pupil except it be in the Board of Education. Outside of this board each student occupies only his own field of labor. Pupils may visit each other's churches and by invitation attend each other's associations."

Mr. Dane—From the same volume of Letters and Miscellany, Volume 9, page 205, I offer Document No. 1029.

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 436, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"October 15, 1909.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following Amendment to Article XXVI, Section 6, to be published in our periodicals and in the Manual of The Mother Church.

"Article XXVI.

"Associations. Section 6. The Associations of the pupils of loyal teachers shall convene annually. The pupils shall be guided by the Bible and Science and Health, not by their teacher's personal views. Teachers shall not call their pupils together, or assemble a selected number of them, for more frequent meetings.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—From the minutes of the regular and special meetings of the Board of Directors, page 33, under date of Oct. 18, 1909, I offer the following.

[Extract from the directors' records, Oct. 18, 1909, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 437, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Having been approved by the Pastor Emeritus, the following amended by-law was unanimously adopted."

Mr. Dane—Then follows the by-law as set forth in the letter that has been read. From Volume 9, Letters and Miscellany, page 209, I offer Document No. 1031.

[This document is introduced in evidence as Exhibit 438, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"October 18, 1909.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the repeal of the following By-law.

"Article XXVI.

"Change of Location. Section 8. Faithfully to fulfill the solemn responsibilities of a teacher of Christian Science or of a Reader, a teacher or Reader should remain with his own pupils, Association and Church. But if, for sufficient cause or to supply a need of the Pastor Emeritus, a teacher permanently changes his location, he may select a member of his church to guide his pupils.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—From the records of the minutes of the regular and special meetings of the Board of Directors, held on Oct. 21, 1909, page 33, I offer the following record:

[An extract from directors' records, Oct. 21, 1909, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 439, and read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Pursuant to the request of the Pastor Emeritus, under date of Oct. 18, Art. XXVI, Section 8, of the church By-Laws was repealed."

Mr. Dane—From Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 213, I offer Document No. 1033.

[This document is introduced in evidence as Exhibit 440, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"January 24, 1910.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amended By-law, Article XXX, Section 8, to be published in The Mother Church Manual.

"Article XXX.

"Not members of The Mother Church. Section 8. No person shall receive instructions in Christian Science in any class in the Massachusetts Metaphysical College nor receive the degree of C.S.B. or C.S.D., who is not a member of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

"Only those persons who are members of this Church and possessed of the qualifications named in Section 9, Article XXVI, of these By-laws, shall be deemed loyal teachers of Christian Science.

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—From the minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, on page 6, under date of Jan. 27, 1910, the following record, or part of record, of a meeting.

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 27, 1910, is introduced in evidence as Exhibit 441, and read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Having been approved by the Pastor Emeritus, the following amended by-law was unanimously adopted by the Board of Directors. Article XXX."

Mr. Dane—Then follows the by-law as set out in the letter of Jan. 24, 1910. From Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 217, I offer Document No. 1035, on the letter head "Rev. Mary Baker Eddy, Office of Secretary, 384 Beacon Street."

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 442, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"March 10, 1910.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Boston, Mass.

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment of The Mother Church By-laws.

"Article XXX.

"Remuneration and Free Scholarship. Section 4. Tuition and class instruction in the Board of Education shall be $100. The bearer of a card of free scholarship from the President, Rev. Mary Baker Eddy, shall be entitled to a free course in this department on presentation of the card to the teacher. Only the President gives free admission to classes.

"If adopted, please publish in the Church Manual.

"Lovingly yours,

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—From the record of regular and special meetings of the Board of Directors, on page 16, under date of March 11, 1910, I offer the following part of the record.

[An extract from the Board of Directors, March 11, 1910, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 443, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Voted, unanimously, to adopt the following By-law. Article XXX."

Mr. Dane—Then follows the By-Law as set out in the letter of March 10.

Mr. Thompson—Aren't section numbers given when they are adopted?

Mr. Dane—Yes. Article XXX—and they are the same as I have read in reading the letter unless I call attention to it.

Mr. Thompson—Yes; but you only say in each case "Article XXX." Don't the directors say "Article XXX, Section 4"?

Mr. Dane. They do, yes. From Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 219, I offer Document No. 1036, on the letterhead "Rev. Mary Baker Eddy, Office of Secretary, 384 Beacon Street."

[This document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 444, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,
"March 10, 1910.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
Boston, Mass.

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to The Mother Church By-Laws.

"Article XXVI.

"Pupils' Tuition. A student's price for teaching Christian Science shall not exceed $100 per pupil.

"If adopted, please publish in the Church Manual.

"Lovingly yours,

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

Mr. Dane—From the minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, under date of March 11, 1910, page 16, I offer the following part of the record.

[An extract from the directors' records, March 11, 1910, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 445, and is read by Mr. Dane, as follows:]

"Voted, unanimously, to adopt the following By-Law. Article XXVI. Pupils' Tuition. Section 5."

Mr. Dane—Then follows the By-Law as set out in the letter of March 10.

From Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 225, I offer document No. 1040:

"Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy,

"Office of Secretary,

"384 Beacon Street,

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"March 15, 1910.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
Boston, Mass.

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the amendment of Article 8, Sect. 15 of the Mother Church By-laws to read as follows:

"Article VIII.

"Church Organizations Ample. Sect. 15. Members of this church shall not unite with organizations which impede their progress in Christian Science. God requires our whole heart, and He supplies within the wide channels of The Mother Church dutiful and sufficient occupation for all its members.

"If adopted please publish in our periodicals and in the Church Manual.

"Lovingly yours,

(Signed) "MARY BAKER EDDY."

From the minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors I offer, from page 18, the following part of a meeting under date of March 14, 1910:

"Voted unanimously to adopt the following amended by-law:

"Article VIII.

"Church Organizations Ample. Section 15."

Then follows the By-Law as set out in the letter of March 15, 1910.

[The foregoing extract from the directors' minutes, page 18, dated March 14, 1910, is Exhibit 447. R. J. M.]

Mr. Thompson—That is, the meeting was on the 14th?

Mr. Dane—I notice that there is an apparent discrepancy. Either the meeting or the letter is wrongly dated, because the letter is dated March 15 and the meeting is dated March 14, and one or the other is a typographical error. My attention is called to the fact that at the bottom of the document there are the words and figures: "Adopted March 14, 1910," and the "14" is underscored.

From Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 229, I offer Document No. 1042, as follows:

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"March 21, 1910.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to by-law, Article 33, Section 3, to be published in The Mother Church Manual.

"Article XXXIII.

"In branch churches. Sect. 3. The readers of the three largest branch churches in each state of the United States and in Canada shall annually and alternately appoint a committee on publication to serve in their localities. For the purposes of this by-law, the State of California shall be considered as though it were two states, the dividing line being the thirty-sixth parallel of latitude. Each county of Great Britain and Ireland, except as hereinafter specified, through the readers of its three largest branch churches, shall annually and alternately appoint a committee on publication to serve in its locality. Each church is not necessarily confined to its own members in selecting its committee, but if preferred can appoint a committee on publication who is in good fellowship with another Church of Christ, Scientist.

"This by-law applies to all states except Massachusetts, in which the committee on publication is elected only by The Christian Science Board of Directors. The committee for the counties in which London, England, is situated shall be appointed by The Christian Science Board of Directors, and he shall, in addition to his other duties, act as district manager of the committees on publication for Great Britain and Ireland.

"Lovingly yours,

(Signed) "MARY BAKER EDDY."

The words "Lovingly yours" appear in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, as well as the signature.

[The document No. 1042, Vol. 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 229, is Exhibit 448. R. J. M.]

From the minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, under date of March 22, 1910, I offer from page 20 the following:

"Voted unanimously to adopt the following amended By-Law:

"Article XXXIII.

"In Branch Churches. Sect. 3." and then follows the By-Law as set out in the letter of March 21.

[The extract from the directors' minutes, dated March 22, 1910, page 20, is Exhibit 449. R. J. M.]

From Vol. 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 243, I offer Document No. 1046:

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.,

"May 18, 1910.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amended By-Law, Article VIII, Section 8, to be published in The Mother Church Manual:

"Article VIII.

"No Malpractice. Sect. 8. Members will not intentionally or knowingly mentally malpractice, inasmuch as Christian Science can only be practiced according to the Golden Rule: 'All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them.'

"A member of The Mother Church who mentally malpractices upon or treats our Leader or her staff without her or their consent shall be disciplined, and a second offense as aforesaid shall cause the name of said member to be dropped forever from The Mother Church.

(Signed) "M. B. EDDY."

[The Document No. 1046, Vol. 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 243, is Exhibit 450. R. J. M.]

And from the record of minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, under date of May 20, 1910, at page 35, I offer the following:

"The following amended by-law having been approved by the Pastor Emeritus, was unanimously adopted:

"Article VIII.

"No Malpractice. Sect. 8."

Then follows the by-law as set forth in the letter of May 18, 1910.

[The extract from the minutes of directors, dated May 20, 1910, at page 35, is Exhibit 451. R. J. M.]

From Vol. 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 247. I offer Document No. 1048:

"Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts.

"Aug. 27, 1910.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Beloved Brethren:

"Please vote on the adoption of the following amendment to by-law Article VIII, Section 22, to be published in our periodicals and in The Mother Church Manual:

"Article VIII.

"Practitioners and Patients. Sect. 22. Members of this Church shall hold in sacred confidence all private communications"— then the three words, "as may be," are stricken out, and then follow the words:

"made to them by their patients. Also such information as may come to them by reason of their relation of practitioner"— the word "and" is stricken out and the word "to" is inserted—

"to patient. A failure to do this will subject the offender to Church discipline.

"A member of The Mother Church shall not, under pardonable circumstances, sue his patient for recovery of payment of said member's practice, on penalty of discipline and liability to have his name removed from membership. Also he shall reasonably reduce his price in chronic cases of recovery, and in cases where he has not effected a cure. A Christian Scientist is a humanitarian; he is benevolent, forgiving, long-suffering, and seeks to overcome evil with good.

(Signed) "MARY BAKER EDDY."

[The Document No. 1048, Volume 9 of Letters and Miscellany, page 247, is Exhibit 452. R. J. M.]

And from the minutes of regular and special meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, under date of Aug. 29, 1910, page 67, I offer the following:

"Having received the written approval of the Pastor Emeritus, the following amended by-law was unanimously adopted:

"Article VIII.

"Practitioners and Patients. Sect. 22."

Then is set forth the by-law as it appears in the letter of Aug. 27, 1910, excepting that in the sixth line as the by-law appears in the record book the word "shall" is used and in the corresponding line in the letter the word is "will"; and excepting that in the tenth line, as the by-law appears in the record book, the word "for" is used before the word "said," and in the corresponding line in the by-law as set out in the letter the word "of" is used.

[The foregoing extract from the minutes of the directors, dated Aug. 29, 1910, page 67, is Exhibit 453. R. J. M.]

In that connection I offer from Volume 50 of Letters and Miscellany the Document No. 7025, which is the proof of an amended by-law, Article VIII—this by-law, on the back of which is the signature "Eddy" in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting.

[The Document No. 7025, Volume 50 of Letters and Miscellany, is Exhibit 454. R. J. M.]

The Master—Is there any date?

Mr. Dane—There is indorsed upon the proof these words: "From McLellan's Collection, Adopted Aug. 29, 1910." And I call the court's attention to the fact that in this printed proof the change which was made in the record of the vote adopting the by-law is made in the proof, with Mrs. Eddy's indorsement on the back; that is, the proof has the changes "shall" instead of "will," and "of" instead of "for."

Now, Miss Warren, will you take the stand again?

Lucia C. Warren, Recalled.

Q. (By Mr. Dane.) Miss Warren, have you made a comparison of the seventy-third edition of the Manual together with the amendments to that edition of the Manual as they appear in the Church By-Law book, Volume 2, and the Minutes of the Regular and Special Meetings of The Christian Science Board of Directors, with the eighty-ninth edition of the Manual? A. I have.

Q. And is the printed matter in this eighty-ninth edition of the Manual the same as is contained in the seventy-third edition, with its amendments, as they appear in the Church By-Law book, Volume 2, and the Minutes of the Regular and Special Meetings of the Board of Directors? A. They are exactly the same.

Q. Miss Warren, from your examination of the records of the Board of Directors, can you tell us the date of the adoption of the last by-law or amendment? A. I think it is Aug. 27, 1910.

Q. I show you this record book and I ask you if that refreshes your recollection as to the date of the adoption of the last by-law or amendment? A. Yes; Aug. 29, 1910.

Mr. Whipple—Don't you take the official record rather than the witness's memory as establishing it?

Mr. Dane—I thought that would be a convenient way of showing it on the record.

Mr. Whipple—Well, heretofore you have been reading from the record itself, without objection. I should think that the record would be the thing that would prove it and not the testimony of the witness.

The Master—What does the witness's testimony add?

Mr. Dane—It adds nothing except to fix the fact, as shown by that record, that Aug. 29 was the date of the last adoption by the board of an amendment or by-law.

Mr. Whipple—Isn't that one that you put in?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—The last one that you put in?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Then what you want to ask her is, I suppose, whether she finds in any of the records since then the adoption of any By-law, and she says no.

Mr. Dane—Precisely.

Q. Miss Warren, have you here the eighty-ninth edition of the Manual that you compared? A. I have. It has my name in the front cover.

Q. Is this the edition of the eighty-ninth that you compared? A. That is.

Mr. Dane—Would you mark this for identification (handing book to reporter)?

Mr. Whipple—Haven't you had one marked for identification?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Now this is another one?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Of the alleged eighty-ninth edition?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

[The above referred to copy of the eighty-ninth edition of the Manual is marked Exhibit 455 for identification. R. J. M.]

Q. Now, Miss Warren, I show you this Manual marked Exhibit 455 for identification, and I show you the Manual marked Exhibit 57G for identification, and ask you whether or not the printed matter in those two is the same? A. The printed By-Laws in those two are the same.

The Master—The By-Laws are the same, but I infer that there are differences outside the By-Laws?

Mr. Dane—The lists of officers undoubtedly are changed.

Q. Is that what you refer to, Miss Warren? A. That is what I refer to.

Q. Is the printed matter the same, with the exception of the lists of officers? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. Dane—Then I offer now as an exhibit the Manual which has already been marked Exhibit 57G for identification, which was identified by Mr. Eustace in his cross-examination.

Mr. Whipple—I take it that that will be received subject to the same objection and limitation as before?

The Master—Yes, I admit it subject to the same objection.

[The above referred to copy of the Manual marked Exhibit 57G for identification, is marked Exhibit 57G.]

[Recess until 2 p. m.]

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Master—Are you ready, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—The witness has not shown up.

The Master—All right. Go on when you are ready.

Mr. Dane—I can proceed and read the record without the witness actually being on the stand, if it is agreeable. The witness is not here, but I can proceed with the records if you consent.

The Master—You can read the records and you can ask her if you need to, afterwards, about them.

Mr. Dane—Yes. I call Your Honor's attention to the first sentence of Section 5 of Article I of the Eighty-Ninth Manual:

"The Christian Science Board of Directors shall consist of five members."

And in that connection I offer an original letter of Mrs. Eddy from Volume III of Letters and Miscellany, page 221, Document No. 323.

"Board of Directors.

"Beloved Students:

"I send the enclosed By-laws. Please convene immediately and vote on them. They are of great importance to our cause. After adopting the By-law on the number of C. S. directors, then consider and act on my candidate for director, Mr. Archibald McLellan, our Editor in Chief. I have watched him and so far he has been right on all important subjects. You will have three in unity. That leaves a majority when they are right. Also you can now remove a member of your board. 'Mother' lives and learns by the things she suffers.

"With love, your teacher,
"M. B. EDDY."

The letter is all in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting.

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, dated Feb. 5, 1903, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 456.]

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me a moment. In connection with that letter, or perhaps with the vote, I want again, if I may, to direct your attention to the fact that the Church Manual did not then provide for directors of the Church. The question which arises as to the status of Mr. McLellan or his successors under the Trust Deed may have important consequences in the case. I want to just note those suggestions to be taken up later.

Mr. Streeter—Let me ask you, Mr. Dane: Accompanying this letter, was there any form of by-law?

Mr. Dane—I am about to put that in, General Streeter.

Mr. Thompson—That is the form in which it was voted. Does anything go with the letter which you have just read?

Mr. Dane—I will read the vote, and then I think it will probably be necessary to show the connection later. Perhaps it will be done by some one.

I offer from Volume 3 of the records of the directors, page 82 that part of the record of a meeting held on Feb. 7, 1903, which I now quote:

"Feb. 7, 1903. A meeting of the full board was held this day at 1 o'clock p. m. On motion the following by-law was adopted by a unanimous vote:

"By-Law.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors shall consist of five members."

Mr. Streeter—Is that all?

Mr. Dane—That is all.

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated Feb. 7, 1903, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 457.]

Mr. Thompson—Now, in the letter it spoke about something else—"you can now remove a member of your Board."

Mr. Dane—Yes.

Mr. Thompson—Is there any by-law going with that letter?

Mr. Dane—That meant by a majority, I expect.

Mr. Thompson—How do you know that, Mr. Dane?

Mr. Dane—I don't, Mr. Thompson, except from inference.

Mr. Thompson—I do not draw any inference that you can now remove a member of the board unless you produce what must undoubtedly have been there—the particular paper that she inclosed or the suggestion that she made.

Mr. Dane—I expect that will appear later. There is no witness here at the present time that can make that explanation satisfactorily.

Mr. Thompson—How did the by-law read after the adoption of this?

Mr. Streeter—I have got it here.

Mr. Dane—There is only the one section which I have read that I care to offer at this time—that the Board of Directors shall consist of five members.

Mr. Thompson—At that time was there anything else in Sect. 5?

Mr. Whipple—Let me ask if there were other by-laws adopted on that date?

Mr. Dane—Yes, there are other by-laws adopted as of that date. In looking them over I found nothing which appears in that particular section of the eighty-ninth Manual.

Mr. Streeter—Will you pardon me for one more question? Do you understand by what you are reading that Article 1, Section 5, on Feb. 7, 1903, read as follows: "The Christian Science Board of Directors shall consist of five members," and that there was nothing further in that by-law but that? Is that your understanding?

Mr. Thompson—Mr. Dane apparently does not care to answer that very proper question.

The Master—Well, he is looking.

Mr. Dane—I am not refusing to answer any question.

The Master—I think he was looking to see what answer he should make.

Mr. Dane—I was looking. Apparently in the Manual in force at that time, Section 5—(Manual examined by Mr. Streeter and Mr. Thompson.)

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, by reference to this alleged by-law Your Honor will observe that it is not enacted by the First Members at all, it is by the body, The Christian Science Board of Directors, which had not at that time become church officers at all.

Mr. Bates—Well, that is your contention, but we do not admit it.

The Master—Let us get the facts, and then we will see.

Mr. Whipple—I am only commenting on what the By-Laws show.

Mr. Dane—Apparently before the adoption of the by-law which has been introduced, there was no provision in the Manual as to the number.

The Master—Was there a Section 5?

Mr. Dane—There was a Section 5, but it was not on this subject. The letter and the vote is offered at this time, and we expect later—because it has a particular bearing on the Dittemore case—to go into it more in detail, when we have the proper witnesses here to do it.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Dane, we will not bother you any further. We will expect that you will fill up that gap.

Mr. Dane—We certainly will.

Mr. Streeter—We assume that you can, and expect that you will, and we will wait until you do that before doing anything further about it.

Mr. Dane—Thank you.

Mr. Thompson—In the meantime, will you give us what this was called? What was it called—the passage about the Christian Science directors shall consist of five members. What is it called? Article I, Section 5, as adopted?

Mr. Dane—The record does not state.

Mr. Thompson—It does not state?

Mr. Dane—No. Now, I offer from Volume 4 of Letters and Miscellany, page 47, Document No. 348, a letter in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting, signed by her.

"C. S. Board Directors,

"Beloved Students:

"I give you direct orders to bring out our Manual and not to delay one other day. I know the Manual is right. God tells me to have it published as it is. You have adopted the By-Laws; now delay no longer to put it in book form."

The Master—Is there any date?

Mr. Dane—Yes.

"Nothing whatever but malicious mortal mind is now causing delay.

"With love,

"M. B. G. EDDY.

"Aug. 17, 1903.

"What and who caused this last delay?"

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, Aug. 17, 1903, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 458.]

Mr. Dane—Now, in that connection I call Your Honor's attention to Exhibit 131, from which it appears that it was on July 30, 1903, that the Board of Directors adopted the twenty-ninth edition of the Church Manual. Now, I offer from Volume 3, of Letters and Miscellany, a letter signed by Mrs. Eddy, page 225, Document No. 325, on the letterhead of "Works on Christian Science by Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy; address all inquiries to Joseph Armstrong, C. S. D., 95 Falmouth Street, Boston, Mass."

"Pleasant View,
"Concord, N. H.,
Feb. 27, 1903.

"Dictated.

"Christian Science Board of Directors,
"Beloved Students:

"I am not a lawyer and do not sufficiently comprehend the legal trend of the copy you inclosed to me to suggest any changes therein. Upon one point, however, I feel competent to advise, namely: Never abandon the By-laws nor the denominational government of The Mother Church. If I am not personally with you the Word of God and my instructions in the By-laws have led you hitherto and will remain to guide you safely on, and the teachings of St. Paul are as useful today as when they were first written. The present and future prosperity of the cause of Christian Science is largely due to the By-laws and the government of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. None but myself can know, as I know, the importance of the combined sentiment of this church remaining steadfast in supporting its present By-laws. Each of these many By-laws has met and mastered or forestalled some contingency, some imminent peril, and will continue to do so. Its By-laws have preserved the sweet unity of this large church, that has perhaps the most members and combined influence of any other church in our country. Many times a single by-law has cost me long nights of prayer and struggle, but it has won the victory over some sin and saved the walls of Zion from being torn down by disloyal students. We have proven that 'in unity there is strength.'"

And in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting:

"With love as ever,
"MARY BAKER G. EDDY."

And further in Mrs. Eddy's handwriting:

"N. B. I request that you put this letter upon our church records.

"M. B. E."

The Master—To what particular by-law has that reference?

Mr. Dane—To all of them, if Your Honor please. It speaks of all the By-Laws of The Mother Church.

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, dated Feb. 27, 1903, as read by Mr. Dane, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 459.]

The Master—I suppose you mean all of them up to the date of the letter.

Mr. Dane—Exactly.

[Miss Warren resumes the witness stand.]

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Dane, was that in reply to some letter?

Mr. Dane—It speaks of copy that was inclosed to her.

Mr. Whipple—Now, couldn't you assist by showing what that copy was?

Mr. Dane—I haven't it at hand, but I will endeavor to locate it, and if I can find it I will see that you have it, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—It would seem that that was in reply to a letter that we ought to have, then we would know what the letter referred to, in accordance with His Honor's suggestion.

Mr. Dane—That is all with this witness.

The Master—Now you have Miss Warren.

Mr. Dane—Miss Warren is on the stand.

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me a moment. That letter was written before the by-laws to which you have just referred, or which you put in—before this one with regard to the Board of Directors consisting of five members, was it not?

Mr. Dane—I will look it up and let you know. No, it was written afterward.

Mr. Whipple—What are the respective dates of the ones—

Mr. Dane—The by-law was adopted Feb. 7, 1903, and the letter is dated Feb. 27, 1903.

Mr. Whipple—Well, then, the letter was written after the by-law was adopted?

Mr. Dane—Yes. That is what I said.

Mr. Whipple—Will you let me take that Manual that has the handwriting on the margin?

Mr. Dane—You mean Mrs. Eddy's first edition?

Mr. Whipple—No.

The Master—The twenty-eighth edition, I think it is.

Mr. Whipple—I want to have that one with the writing on the margin, expressing a doubt. (Book produced.)

Cross-Examination

Q. (By Mr. Whipple) Let me ask you to look at this document—Exhibit 133, is it? A. Yes.

Q. On page 36, opposite section 5, will you read the legend there in some one's handwriting? A. "Amendment adopted, Mar. 12, 1903. Changes evidently made in proof."

Q. In whose handwriting is that, do you know? A. I think that is in the handwriting of Miss Firth, one of the young ladies in our office.

Q. Is she still there? A. She is. It was made under my direction.

Q. And do you remember it being made? A. Yes.

Q. When was it made? A. About four or five months ago, I think.

Mr. Thompson—I can't quite hear over here.

Mr. Whipple—Four or five months ago, she said.

Q. Was it made as a result of some studies that you had given to the subject? A. It was made to complete our set of Manuals, which in later editions had been marked in this way, but the earlier editions had not, and we started and worked backward and marked them.

Q. Well, was it in completing some system that you had? A. Yes.

Q. And an investigation to find where changes were authorized, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. And you couldn't find any authority for this change, could you? A. No definite form signed.

Q. Or authority? And therefore you wrote "Changes evidently made in proof"? A. Yes.

Q. But you didn't find the proof? A. No.

Q. And in the proofs that are produced here today you have not found any that referred to that? A. I have not looked them over.

Q. Well, were you here when they were read this morning? A. I was.

Q. You didn't hear any that applied? A. I heard some of them, but not all.

Q. You didn't hear any that applied to it? A. No, none that applied to it.

Mr. Dane—You didn't read them all, did you, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—I sufficiently identified them so as to indicate if they applied to this section.

Mr. Dane—You didn't read their contents.

Mr. Whipple—I beg pardon?

Mr. Dane—You didn't read the contents of them all.

Mr. Whipple—No; but I identified them as amendments, or new By-Laws; and no amendment, as I remember it, referring to this, appeared.

Q. Now on this same page there is in some handwriting, penciled, this: "Was Section 143, Article 111-28th." In whose handwriting is that? A. The same person's.

Q. You say she is still with you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, on page 27, here is a typewritten rider under Section 28, "Duties of Church Officers." The rider is as follows:

"Section 8. Duties of Church Officers. Evidently new by-law. No record of adoption. The last sentence of this by-law appears in Section 1, Article 6, in the 28th."

Who put that in? A. The same young lady.

Q. By your direction? A. Yes.

Q. Was that the result of your investigation? A. Yes. There is no record of adoption, refers to a specific adoption of one by-law.

Q. I so understand. A. Yes.

Q. That is, this by-law, appearing on page 27 of Exhibit 133, reads as follows:

"Duties of Church Officers. Section 8. Law constitutes government, and disobedience to the laws of The Mother Church must ultimate in annulling its tenets and By-Laws. Without a proper system of government and form of action, nations, individuals, and religion are unprotected; hence the necessity of this by-law and the warning of Holy Writ:

"That servant, which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes."

"It is the duty of the Christian Science Board of Directors to watch and make sure that the officers of this church perform the functions of their several offices promptly and well. If an officer fails to fulfill all the obligations of his office, the Board of Directors shall immediately call a meeting and notify this officer either to resign his place or to perform his office faithfully; then failing to do either, said officer shall be dismissed from this church, and his dismissal shall be written on the church records.

"It is the duty of any member of this church, and especially of one who has been or who is the First Reader of a church, to inform the Board of Directors of the failure of the Committee on Publication or of any other officer in this church to perform his official duties. A director shall not make known the name of the complainant.

"If the Christian Science Board of Directors fail to fulfill the requirements of this by-law, and a member of this church or the Pastor Emeritus shall complain thereof to the clerk and the complaint be found valid, the directors shall resign their office or perform their functions faithfully. Failing to do that, the clerk of this church shall call a meeting of the executive members, and their two thirds vote, with the consent of the Pastor Emeritus, shall elect five suitable members of this church to fill the vacancy. The salary of the directors shall be at present $1000 each annually."

Mr. Dane—What section is that, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—That is Section 8 of Article I, page 127.

Q. Now, with regard to that entire section the comment is made by your authority, after having looked it up: "Evidently a new by-law. No record of adoption. The last sentence of this by-law appears in Section 1, Article VI, in the twenty-eighth edition?" A. Yes.

Q. Now this is the twenty-ninth edition, or claimed to be the twenty-ninth? A. Yes.

Q. And that had not appeared in the twenty-eighth at all and there was no record of its adoption in the interim? A. Except Mrs. Eddy's authority to adopt the full twenty-ninth edition.

Q. Yes; but there was nothing in the meantime? A. No.

Q. But you say the last sentence, "The salary of the Board of Directors shall be at present $1000 each annually"—that sentence appeared in the twenty-eighth, Section 1, Article VI, did it? A. Yes.

Q. On pages 30 and 31 a penciled mark is drawn opposite Section 2, and a part of Article III, and a part of Article IV, Section 1. Do you know the significance of that? A. I do not.

Q. And you don't know what similar marks indicate on the succeeding page? A. No.

Q. Was an attempt made to trace all the articles appearing in this exhibit to some previous authority? A. Yes, and to show the changes from the last previous edition and also the changes in the next following edition.

Q. When there is no memorandum opposite any of the provisions what does that signify? A. That it was the same in the previous edition and the same in the following edition.

Q. It would not be the same number? A. Not necessarily, but the statement is exactly the same.

Q. And where there are memoranda it is intended to indicate where it has appeared before? A. Yes.

Q. Now, on page 75, Sections 11, 12, and 13, are on the following subject: "No Impromptu Meetings. Sect. 11." "Laying of Corner Stones. Sect. 12." "Our Church Edifices. Sect. 13." As against each of those is written a legend: "New, not in the twenty-eighth?" A. Yes.

Q. Did you find any authority for any of those—I mean authority from Mrs. Eddy, in the interim? A. I would have to look that up.

Q. This would indicate that there was no such authority found, would it not? A. It would.

Q. According to the system which you adopted? A. It would, yes. I might say that our work is not completed on this.

Q. On page 80, Article 31, headed "Normal Teachers, Sect. 1,"—opposite that is the legend: "Amendment evidently covered by meeting March 12, 1903, re By-Laws?"

Mr. Whipple—Will you let me take the minutes of the meeting of 1903, March 12?

The Witness—First Members' meeting. (Book produced.)

Q. Would you be good enough to point out what there is in that record which is the basis of this marginal legend: "Applicants and graduates"? That is the heading. Sub-heading: "Normal Teachers. Sect. 1." A. I see no reference to that matter.

Q. That is, you find nothing whatever which would justify this marginal note: "Amendment evidently covered by meeting March 12, 1903, re By-Laws"? A. I cannot.

Mr. Thompson—We cannot hear anything from the witness.

Mr. Whipple—She says she does not.

Q. Now, while we have the record of that meeting, let me revert to Article I, Section 5, and its marginal legend to which I have already referred, page 26, as follows: "Amendment adopted Mar. 12, 1903. Changes evidently made in proof." Now, won't you read what was adopted on March 12, 1903,—in respect of Article I, Section 5? A. "Article I p. 23 twenty-eighth edition By-Law Section 1. The Christian Science Board of Directors shall consist of five members. They shall fill a vacancy occurring on that board after the candidate is approved by the Pastor Emeritus. They shall neither"—there is evidently a word left out—"the discussions of this board, nor those with Mrs. Eddy.

"This By-Law cannot neither be amended nor annulled except by the written consent of Mrs. Eddy, the Pastor Emeritus."

Mr. Whipple—Now may I read, unless Your Honor has it before you, the By-Law as it appears in this exhibit?

The Master—That is the twenty-ninth edition?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—

"Directors. Section 5. The Christian Science Board of Directors shall consist of five members. They shall fill a vacancy occurring on that board after the candidate is approved by the Pastor Emeritus."

Q. Now that is just exactly like what you have there, isn't it, in your adoption? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Then follows this:

"A majority vote or the request of Mrs. Eddy shall dismiss a member."

Q. That is not in the vote of March 12 at all, is it? A. No, but it is taken from Article VI. Section 1 of the twenty-eighth edition.

Q. But it is not in the March 12 record? A. No.

Mr. Whipple—Then it goes on:

"Members shall neither report the discussions of this board, nor those with Mrs. Eddy."

The Witness— "the Pastor Emeritus."

Q. Is that the same? A. Except for "the Pastor Emeritus."

Mr. Whipple—Now, going back to page 81, opposite Article XXXII, Sect. 2, on the subject of "Special Instruction," is this legend:

"Amendment adopted Feb. 24, 1903. Changes evidently made in proof."

Q. Reverting to the meeting of Feb. 24, 1903, will you point out what changes there are, or at least in what respects the section has been changed? A. "Amend Article XXXIII, Section 3, page 73 of the twenty-eighth edition of the Manual to read as follows:

"Not less than three thorough lessons, by a well qualified teacher, shall be given to each primary and normal class on the subject of mental practice and malpractice. Each student in the class shall prepare a paper on said subject that shall be read to the class, thoroughly discussed, and understood.

"After their teacher has carefully examined these papers and pronounced them to be sufficient and accurate, the authors may retain their copies. These papers shall be required of each normal class student before he shall receive the certificate of degree. None but the teacher and members of the college shall be present at any of its Sessions."

Mr. Whipple—Now, in comparison, may I read what appears in the twenty-ninth edition:

"Special Instruction. Sect. 2. Not less than three thorough lessons, by a well qualified teacher shall be given to each primary and normal class on the subject of mental practice and malpractice. One student in the class shall prepare a paper on said subject that shall be read to the class, thoroughly discussed and understood;"—

Q. So far it is practically the same? A. Except for one word.

Q. And that is— A. "One" instead of "Each" before "student."

Q. Yes. It is changed from "Each student in the class shall prepare a paper" to "One student," is it? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—And the rest otherwise is the same. Then this follows: "then this paper shall be given to the teacher and he shall not allow it or a copy of it to remain, but shall destroy this paper."

Q. Nothing like that in the amendment that was adopted, is there? A. No.

Q. But quite a different thing, as you read it? A. Quite different.

Q. And that was the basis of your assistant's legend here: "Changes evidently made in proof"? A. Yes.

Q. But so far as you heard the proofs read or referred to this morning, did you notice anything as to that? A. Not in those I heard this morning.

Q. But you did not hear them all? A. I did not.

Q. So that it is possible there may be something. Now, reverting for a moment to this Article I, Section 5, again, you said that the words, "A majority vote or the request of Mrs. Eddy shall dismiss a member," appeared in Article VI, Section 1, in the twenty-eighth edition? A. Yes; but not identical. That is a reference to refer one to some passage in the previous—

Q. Well, now, if it is not identical let us have it accurate. We have what purports to be the twenty-eighth edition, and now won't you find it anywhere in what purports to be the twenty-eighth edition? Article VI, Section 1—see if it is there. A. "A majority vote and the consent of Mrs. Eddy shall dismiss a member of this board."

Q. That is referring to the Board of Directors, is it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, let us read those together for comparison. In the twenty-eighth edition it is, "A majority vote and the consent of Mrs. Eddy shall dismiss a member of this board"? A. Yes.

Q. In the twenty-ninth edition it reads, "A majority vote or the request of Mrs. Eddy shall dismiss a member"? A. Yes.

Q. Did you think those were practically the same? A. I did not mean to say that they were practically the same.

Q. Or substantially the same? A. No. This is a reference to show the similar by-law.

Q. But you realize that one of them, the first one, made it impossible for the directors to take any action without Mrs. Eddy's consent?

Mr. Dane—I pray Your Honor's judgment. It is a question of law, I think, that has got to be determined by somebody other than by the witness.

Mr. Whipple—I will waive it; I will waive the question because I think you did not intend to state quite as broadly as you did the identity—

The Witness—I did not intend to state the identity at all. That is a marginal reference to allow one to refer to some by-law in the previous edition.

Q. I quite realize that, but what you first said was, when I read this section, "A majority vote or the request of Mrs. Eddy shall dismiss a member"—you said that appeared in the twenty-eighth edition. A. Yes.

Q. And of course you did not mean that? A. I did not mean it.

Q. You did not mean it as broadly as that. I think it was purely an inadvertence, and perhaps the vast difference between what is here and in the other did not occur to you. Now, on page 82, Section 7 of Article XXXII, there is the notation, "New. Not in 28th." That indicates that there was no authority found from Mrs. Eddy for that section under the heading, "Healing Better than Teaching," except so far as she approved, if she did approve, the collection in the twenty-ninth edition? A. Yes, it may so indicate, although I would want to look up the records before I so stated.

Q. But, according to the system under which these notations were made, that is what it would indicate? A. As I say, our record is not complete; it was stopped right at this point.

Q. As far as it goes, that was what it was intended to indicate? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Now, on page 85, under the general heading, "General Association of Teachers . . . Uniformity in Teaching and Practice Required. Sect. 4," there is the notation: "By-law adopted June 7, 1903. Minor changes evidently made in proof."

Q. Will you be good enough to refer to the adoption of that by-law, or to the record, at least, of June 7, 1903? A. "The following by-law was adopted by a unanimous vote of those present. It is to be placed as section 4, Article XXXIV"—and then in pencil—"XXXIII" with a question mark.

"Uniformity in teaching and practice required. If one or more of the pupils of either a Normal class teacher or of a Primary class teacher shall practice differently from the others, and so depart from the theory and practice which they have been taught, this departure shall be noted and discussed Christianly at the annual meeting, and then acted upon by the Board of Teachers."

Mr. Whipple—The sentence here is, "by this body of teachers." A. (Continued): "the rule of uniformity in the teaching and practice of Christian Science shall be strictly adhered to by both teacher and pupil. If a pupil persists in disobeying this rule his name shall be dropped from the membership of the Teachers Association."

Mr. Whipple—It says here, "the Association of Teachers." A. (Continued):

"And if a teacher after being admonished, continues to disobey said rule, he shall be dismissed from this board."

Mr. Whipple—"Association" is the word here and not "board." A. (Continued):

"A two-thirds vote shall admit a member or dismiss one, from the Board of Teachers"—

Mr. Whipple—"Association of Teachers" here. A. (Continued):

"And when dismissed he shall no longer be regarded as a teacher of Christian Science."

Mr. Whipple—There is the addition, if Your Honor please, in Exhibit 133, of this sentence, besides the minor differences which I have noted as the section was being read:

"He can be reinstated by the Board of Education after he is willing to comply with the rules of the Association of Teachers."

Q. There is nothing in the record, so far as you know, giving specific authority of Mrs. Eddy for the addition of that sentence? A. No, not up to this point.

Q. So far as you discover. Now on page 97, under the heading "Church Building. Article XLI. . . The Mother Church Building. Section 3," there is this legend:

"By-Law adopted May 2, 1903. Changes evidently made in proof."

Will you give us the actual by-law as adopted, the terms of the by-law they have adopted?

A. "On motion and by unanimous vote of those present the following by-law was adopted:

"By-Law. The edifice erected in 1894 for The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, shall not be demolished, joined to another building, nor be removed from the spot where it was built."

Mr. Whipple—The addition is, if Your Honor please, in the following words: "without the written consent of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy."

Q. I take it that you have found no specific authority from Mrs. Eddy for the addition of that provision? A. Not so far as I know.

Mr. Whipple—On the following page, 98, under the heading "Church Manual" and the sub-heading "Amendment of By-Laws, Sect. 3," there is this legend:

"By-Law. (?) Adopted Mar. 25, 1903. Minor changes evidently made in proof."

Q. Will you be good enough to turn to the record of the meeting of March 25 and state what vote appears to be recorded in respect to the amendment to By-Laws? A. "On a motion and by a unanimous vote of all present the two following by-laws were adopted.

"All deeds of further purchase of land for The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, Mass., shall have named in them, all the trusts mentioned in the deeds given by Mr. Albert Metcalf and E. Noyes Whitcomb, March, 1903. Also there shall be incorporated in all future deeds for land for said Church the phrase 'Mary Baker G. Eddy's church,' The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass."

Q. What does it say about amendments of By-Laws? A. "The Manual of The Mother Church shall not be revised nor a by-law amended or annulled without the written consent of Mary Baker Eddy."

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, what appears in this exhibit is as follows:

"Amendment of By-Laws. Sect. 3. No new Tenet or By-law shall be adopted, nor any Tenet or by-law amended or annulled, without the written consent of Mary Baker G. Eddy, the author of our textbook, Science and Health."

Q. You do not find anywhere up to the present stage of your search any specific authority from Mrs. Eddy to change this Section 3 in the manner in which we find it changed from that which the directors adopted? A. No.

Q. And you have looked for it, I take it? A. Somewhat.

Q. Evidently this legend here indicates that it has been given consideration and search has been made? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—At the other side of this Section 3 there is another notation: "See Art. XXIX, Sect. 1 twenty-eighth edition." Have you the twenty-eighth edition, Mr. Withington?

[Mr. Withington passes a book to Mr. Whipple.]

That, if Your Honor please, on page 65, under the heading, "The Mother Church and Branch Churches," reads as follows:

"Tenets and Governments. Section 1. The tenets and the government of The Mother Church in Boston, shall neither be amended nor annulled without the consent, over her own signature, of the Founder of Christian Science."

There are, therefore, those three provisions differing in phraseology, the one in the twenty-eighth edition, Article XXIX, Section 1, under the heading "Tenets and Government," and the vote—

Q. Well, that does not say that that is to be incorporated in the by-law, does it, among the By-Laws there is nothing indicated? A. "The two following by-laws were adopted." This is one and this is the second.

Q. Yes, you are quite right; but it is not under any heading? A. No heading.

Mr. Whipple—And then this article, amendment to the by-law, Section 3, Article XLII, under the heading, "Church Manual," differs from both of them.

Q. Now, you said something about deeds in there—the adoption of a by-law in relation to deeds. A. Yes.

Q. Have you found where that was included in the so-called twenty-ninth edition? A. Article XLI, Section 2.

Q. Under "Church Building"? A. Yes.

Q. Is it identical in language? A. Apparently.

Q. This index of amendments of the twenty-ninth edition, and amendments in the earlier part, in the front pages, the inserted pages of this exhibit, are the handiwork of your assistant? A. Yes.

Q. And are recent and not a part of the paper? A. Are recent, yes.

The Master—Is there anything further from Miss Warren?

Mr. Thompson—Just a moment, Your Honor.

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps while the conference is going on I may be permitted to put this general question which involves the result of Miss Warren's very painstaking, and I have no doubt careful, research—although perhaps it has sufficiently appeared.

Q. (By Mr. Whipple) It is a fact, is it not, Miss Warren, that you have found no document, or paper, or Manual or by-law constituting The Christian Science Board of Directors officers of the Mother Church—that is, putting them in, creating those offices—in any of the books or papers prior to 1903?

Mr. Dane—Wait a moment.

A. No, that is not a fact.

Mr. Dane—Wait a moment.

Q. Now, I will ask you to point out in any paper you have discovered any statement of a church officer known as a director, or church officers known as directors, in any Manual or other paper prior to 1903. You are familiar, are you not, with the section which creates and names the church officers? A. I am.

Q. Now, I want to have you produce any paper in which, among the Church officers as named in the By-Laws relating to them, any such officer or officers are created or named. A. You refer—

Mr. Dane—One moment,—just a moment.

Q. Can you do it?

Mr. Dane—I object, if Your Honor please, to the witness being asked as to what creates and what does not create the Board of Directors of this Church.

The Master—Oh, I do not think she is asked that. It must be purporting to create.

Mr. Dane—That would be a different question.

The Master—We could hardly understand it, could we, in any other way?

Mr. Dane—I should not think so; but the question was so framed that it might be later argued if it had been admitted.

The Master—Well, Miss Warren evidently has something in mind on that point. I think we had better let her speak.

Mr. Whipple—I would like the book produced, because in every one of the books that I have seen there is a statement in the By-Laws of the Church officers under that name, and I want to see if the witness knows of a provision in the By-Laws creating Church officers under that name prior to 1903.

The Witness—When I answered, I had in mind the one that was offered in evidence this morning, also the title page to the Manual, or the list of officers in the Manual which gives the Board of Directors as officers of the Church.

Q. I am referring to By-Laws. Do you know of any By-Law prior to 1903— A. No.

Q. —in which any such officers are listed? A. No.

Q. As officers of the Church? A. No, not listed as officers of the Church.

Q. Do you know that under the Deed of Trust which creates The Christian Science Board of Directors they are given that name?

Mr. Dane—Just a minute. Does Your Honor think that is proper cross-examination?

The Master—Well, what would follow if she did know that?

Mr. Whipple—Merely a preliminary question, because she is evidently the person who has searched and the person upon whose knowledge of the facts counsel very much rely.

The Master—Well, you say that is preliminary to something else?

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

The Master—Let us see what the real inquiry is.

Mr. Whipple—Well, the real inquiry is as to whether in all the research she has made The Christian Science Board of Directors are not mentioned and referred to in exactly the terms in which they are described in that Deed; desiring thereby to show that when they are referred to either in the Manual or any other paper before they were created officers of the Church, they were referred to under the name by which they are described in the document which created them.

The Master—Well, if she knows of anything, I think it is proper enough for her to state it.

Mr. Whipple—That is what I inquired.

The Witness—Well, I think there is a letter from Mrs. Eddy in which she addressed them as The Christian Science Board of Directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Q. That is, she addressed them differently from what they are described in the deed? A. I should not say so.

Q. Well, she addresses them exactly as they are described in the deed, or practically so? A. Practically so.

Q. Sometimes simply addresses them "Board of Directors"? A. Sometimes "Dear Students."

Q. Or "Beloved Students"? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, her addresses to them, substantially, as far as you have observed them, are under the name in which they are described in the Trust Deed? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—That is all I want to ask.

The Master—Is there anything further?

Re-Direct Examination

(By Mr. Dane.) Miss Warren, you referred to a letter—

The Master—One moment. I do not know but Mr. Thompson has something, or General Streeter.

Mr. Thompson—We think at the present time that if we are to have the liberty of recalling her later we do not desire to ask her anything now.

Q. Miss Warren, you referred to the letter which Mrs. Eddy addressed The Christian Science Board of Directors as The Christian Science Board of Directors of the Church? A. Yes.

Q. Can you produce that letter? A. I cannot locate it just now.

Q. Well, is it here in court? A. Yes, it is.

Q. Will you produce it later, when you have an opportunity? A. Yes, I will.

The Master—Apparently we are through with Miss Warren for the present.

Mr. Dane—I think we are for the present.

Mr. Krauthoff—Will you take the stand, Mr. Dickey? I believe, Your Honor, Mr. Dickey has been sworn as a witness.

The Master—I think so, and you began to examine him, did you not?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I do not think we asked him a question.

Adam H. Dickey—Sworn

Q. (By Mr. Krauthoff.) Your name is Adam H. Dickey? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you are one of the defendants in this case? A. Yes.

Q. And a member of The Christian Science Board of Directors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have been since what time? A. Since November, 1910.

Q. Prior to your becoming a director of The Mother Church had you served Mrs. Eddy in a personal capacity? A. Yes, sir; I was her secretary.

Q. For what period of time? A. 1908, 1909, and 1910.

Q. And, of course, as such you saw her personally? A. Yes, sir; constantly.

Q. And you saw her write and are familiar with her handwriting? A. Yes.

Mr. Streeter—Now, Mr. Krauthoff, I thought I should not be able to hear Mr. Dickey. I can hear him so far, but I can't hear you. Suppose you speak up, please.

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall elevate my voice.

Q. Is this document in the handwriting of Mrs. Eddy (showing document to witness)? A. It is.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer from Volume 6 of Letters and Miscellany, by Mary Baker Eddy, from the office of the clerk of The Mother Church, the following document:

Mr. Whipple—What is the number of it?

Mr. Krauthoff—635.

Mr. Whipple—If you will kindly give us the volume, the number, and the date, then we could identify them and look them up.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right. It is Volume 6, page 225, document 635. It has no date except the date on which it is stamped received by the clerk, Nov. 21, 1910.

Mr. Thompson—Hadn't we better look at it before you put it in?

[Mr. Krauthoff hands volume to Mr. Thompson.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Does Mr. Whipple wish to see it?

Mr. Whipple—I will look at this, but generally speaking I am content after they are identified as Mrs. Eddy's letters, or her handwriting, to have them read, and then offer objection later if there is any objection, or comment upon them—which will save time. Or else I will look over your shoulder, as I did.

Mr. Streeter—I will say, if the Master please, that we have no expectation of offering any objection to any document or letters either dictated by or signed by Mrs. Eddy, of whatever character it may be.

The Master—Then you had better read it, Mr. Krauthoff, if there is no objection.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was asked to show it to Mr. Thompson after the statement was made that it was Mrs. Eddy's handwriting. Now if the gentlemen who have no objection to it will be good enough to give it back to me I will proceed.

Mr. Streeter—Don't be sarcastic; he is doing the best he can. He doesn't know any better.

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Krauthoff is not sarcastic; he is as genial and friendly an individual as you can find.

Mr. Krauthoff—(Reading:)

"The Board of Directors

"Beloved Students:

"Please appoint Mr. Adam H. Dickey member of the Board of Directors.

"Lovingly yours,

"MARY B. EDDY."

"Clerk's Office, received Nov. 21, 1910."

[Letter, Mrs. Eddy to Board of Directors, without date, stamped as received Nov. 21, 1910, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 460.]

Q. And upon that request being made you were made a member of the Board of Directors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as a matter of historical incident, was that the last communication from Mrs. Eddy to the board, so far as you know? A. It was.

Mr. Whipple—Have you the date of the election by the board, stating whom he succeeded, and the formal proof in regard to that? If so, wouldn't it be in order now?

Q. Do you have a personal recollection of the person whom you succeeded on that board? A. Yes.

Q. Who was that? A. Mr. Ira O. Knapp.

Q. He had passed away? A. He had.

Q. He had been a director from 1892, I believe? A. I don't know about the time, but he was a director.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer the record of The Christian Science Board of Directors of Nov. 21, 1910:

"A special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors, duly called by the clerk at 11:00 a. m. Messrs. Chase, McLellan, Stewart and Dittmore present.

"Having received written nomination from the Pastor Emeritus, Rev. Mary Baker Eddy, Mr. Adam H. Dickey was unanimously elected a member of The Christian Science Board of Directors to succeed Mr. Ira O. Knapp.

"Meeting adjourned. App. Nov. 25-10. J. V. D."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors dated Nov. 21, 1910, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 461.]

Mr. Krauthoff—On Nov. 18, 1910, the record recites:

"Regular meet of The Christian Science Board of Directors at 9:30 a. m. Messrs. Chase, McLellan, Stewart and Dittmore present.

"It was unanimously voted that at this, our first regular meeting since the passing on of our beloved associate, Mr. Ira O. Knapp, the secretary be instructed to express to Mr. Knapp's family our appreciation of his services on this board during the many years past."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated Nov. 18, 1910, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 462.]

Q. When did you first become interested in Christian Science? A. In 1893.

Q. Where did you live at that time? A. Kansas City, Missouri.

Q. Were you then engaged in—

Mr. Streeter—What was the other question? What is your question—the next to the last one?

Mr. Krauthoff—When did he first become interested in Christian Science.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—And the answer was 1893.

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Q. Did you then live at Kansas City, Missouri? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what business were you engaged? A. Manufacturing of clay products.

Q. In connection with your brother, I believe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that an extensive business establishment? A. It was.

Q. And what interested you in Christian Science? A. The healing of one of the members of my family.

Q. What steps did you take after you became interested in Christian Science? A. I continued the study of Christian Science for six years.

Q. Did you become a practitioner of Christian Science? A. I did; I began to practice it at once.

Q. I mean by practitioner, in the sense of having your card in the Journal? A. After six years I gave up my business and went into the practice of Christian Science exclusively.

Q. And took out your card in the Journal? A. Soon thereafter, yes.

Q. What offices did you hold in the activities of the local church in Kansas City, Missouri? A. Why, I began at once to serve in the church in various capacities, as usher, Sunday School teacher, Sunday School superintendent. I was treasurer of the church, one of its Board of Directors, also the presiding officer of the church. Of course, these all came in turn, you understand.

Q. You mean presiding officer of the church or presiding officer of the Board of Directors of the church? A. Of the church at its business meetings.

Q. Yes. A. I was also First Reader of the church up until the time I left to come to Boston.

Q. Did you take what is commonly known as class instruction in the primary class? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then afterward were you taught further? A. Yes. I was called to the Metaphysical College in Boston in the years 1900 and 1901.

Q. And who was your teacher in the Metaphysical College? A. Edward A. Kimball.

Q. Were you thereafter taught by Mrs. Eddy while in her household? A. I was. I was taught in the Normal Class by Mrs. Eddy and given a certificate from her to that effect.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, taking up your work in the local church, I desire to first call your attention to the work that you did in the Sunday School, and I will ask you to state, from the work that you did as a Sunday School teacher in Kansas City and your subsequent experience in Christian Science, of what importance to the movement is the Sunday School work? A. It is considered of the greatest importance.

Q. And the holding of Sunday Schools is provided for in the Church Manual? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, a pleasant and friendly introduction of Mr. Dickey and a recounting of his activities is unobjectionable, but what is the importance of the Sunday School to any issue in this case? Why not pass on to those things that are really in issue?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will approach it in a moment and demonstrate its importance.

The Master—And may we not assume, without more, that all the Christian Scientists regard it as important?

Mr. Krauthoff—The work of the Sunday school?

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—And that it is provided for in the Church Manual?

The Master—That speaks for itself, I suppose.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with the literature of the Christian Science movement as it appears from time to time in the publications of The Christian Science Publishing Society? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall that from time to time articles appear in these periodicals bearing upon the teaching in the Sunday schools? A. Yes.

Q. Do you regard it expedient to have as a trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society, in charge of its periodicals, a trustee publishing articles on a Sunday school provided for by the Church Manual, who is not in every way loyal to the Church Manual?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to.

The Master—I think we shall have to leave that out.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, may I be heard for a moment on that? Mr. Dickey is charged at the bar of this Court with having acted arbitrarily and capriciously and not in good faith in the removal of Mr. Rowlands. He has a right to show his own state of mind and the reasons which actuated him in reaching the conclusion that he did.

The Master—Anything further?

Mr. Whipple—The only thing we have charged in the matter of bad faith is as stated in our bill, and this does not meet any charge of that sort or description.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, yes.

Mr. Whipple—All we say is with regard to their removal that they have put up frivolous and baseless charges against Mr. Rowlands—utterly baseless; that the real reason they attempt to oust him is because he will not submit his trust, which came from Mrs. Eddy, to the dictation of these directors. That is all. That is what they are really trying to do, and that they are getting up charges which they really do not believe in and for which there is no foundation, as an ostensible excuse.

The Master—I do not recall anything in the pleadings that raises a question about the Sunday schools or the literature of the church regarding Sunday schools.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor

please, the case involves the literature of the Church in its entirety, the claim of the plaintiffs being that they have the right to publish the literature of the Church in its entirety, without any control on the part of The Mother Church of its own literature. We are offering to prove that an essential part of this literature is articles written on Sunday schools, which in and of themselves are created and provided for by the Church Manual, which, in the very nature of things, cannot be accurately treated from the standpoint of Christian Science without adhering to the Manual; and that this man, this defendant, does not regard it as expedient to keep in office as a trustee to publish literature on the subject of Sunday schools, a man who is not loyal to this Manual. Now, that is the whole case so far as the plaintiffs are concerned. He claims the right to write articles on our Sunday schools, and sell them in our churches without our having anything to say about it.

The Master—I think we must begin by confining ourselves to those specifications of want of good faith which are brought up by the pleadings. I shall exclude this at present.

Mr. Krauthoff—And we shall note our exception.

Q. In the work that you did in the local church, Mr. Dickey, did you come in contact with the work of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in what manner are lectures given by the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church? A. The Manual provides that each branch church shall—

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me. If Your Honor please, he is not asked what the Manual provides. He is asked a plain, simple question.

The Witness—I am going to answer it.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I wish you would; all of us wish you would, instead of telling us what we already know.

The Witness—I will be very glad to if you will give me an opportunity.

Mr. Whipple—Very well, go ahead, without telling us what is in the Manual, because that we know.

A. The Manual provides that each branch church shall have a lecture each year, and in compliance therewith the churches employ the lecturers, who are appointed by The Christian Science Board of Directors or The Mother Church, in Boston.

Q. That is, who are members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church? A. Yes.

Q. And are any lectures given in Christian Science churches other than those given by members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church? A. None.

Q. Do Christian Scientists, so far as you know, attend any lectures on Christian Science given at other places than given in churches of the Christian Science denomination by members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church? A. They do not attend lectures on Christian Science by any others than those who are members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, in Boston.

Q. Are these lectures published from time to time, or at least some of them? A. They are.

Q. By The Christian Science Publishing Society? A. Yes.

Q. And when these lectures are so published are they sold by The Christian Science Publishing Society? A. They are.

Q. To whom? A. To the Christian Scientists and members of The Mother Church at large.

Q. And to branch churches? A. And to the reading rooms of branch churches, yes, sir.

Q. Do you regard it as expedient to have in charge of the publication of lectures delivered by members of The Mother Church a person who is not obedient to the Church Manual?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please.

A. No.

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Dickey, I will suggest that when I make an objection you refrain from answering until it is passed on by the Court.

Mr. Krauthoff—The answer may be stricken from the record.

The Witness—I certainly will do so, Mr. Whipple; I was not aware that you were going to object to that.

Mr. Whipple—If you will observe, I was already objecting before you answered.

The Witness—You didn't speak until I answered.

Mr. Whipple—On the other hand, I did; I was objecting before you spoke.

The Master—Well, let us settle this with as little friction as we can. Go on. It is objected to. I will hear what you want to say about the objection.

Mr. Krauthoff—The point we make about that, if Your Honor please, is this. The Christian Science Publishing Society claims the right to publish lectures on Christian Science and to sell them to branch churches of The Mother Church, without The Mother Church having anything to say about what shall be contained in those lectures. Mr. Rowlands has been removed from office by a vote of Mr. Dickey, and Mr. Dickey is charged with bad faith in the casting of that vote. We now offer to prove by Mr. Dickey, as one of the elements of his good faith, that he regards it as an expedient reason within the meaning of the Deed of Trust to remove from office any trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society who claims the right which I have described.

The Master—Mr. Dickey, as I understand the matter, voted for Mr. Rowlands' removal on certain specified grounds.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Is this one of the certain specified grounds?

Mr. Krauthoff—The question of the right of the Board of Directors to give directions to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society is one of the certain specified grounds. The claim in the bill is that we asked them, that is, the directors asked the trustees, to sign a memorandum giving the directors full control of the periodicals.

The Master—I do not find it among the specified grounds; perhaps you can point it out.

Mr. Krauthoff—The lectures, of course, were not mentioned in terms, but the specified grounds are very comprehensive. May I have the bill just a minute?

The Master—I think you had better come at once to the proof of good faith in regard to the specified grounds. I am very anxious to avoid going into any field that will take us beyond the issues in the case.

Mr. Krauthoff—As I understand it, if Your Honor please, that is one of the controversies in this case, whether the Publishing Society can publish lectures and sell them to the Christian Science churches, and in the reading rooms of the Christian Science churches, without those churches having anything to do with the publication of them. In addition to that, if Your Honor please, there is another issue tendered by this bill, and that is that The Mother Church be enjoined from establishing any publishing house of its own and publishing any literature of any kind. That is one of the prayers of the bill; and we have upon that the right to show the importance, not only of the literature as to lectures, but the literature as to everything. It goes to the very heart and the kernel of the controversy—the right of The Mother Church to control its literature, consisting, among other things, of published lectures.

The Master—I think I shall have to exclude it on the same ground that I excluded the other.

Mr. Krauthoff—We note an exception to that.

The Master—Certainly.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, in the work that you did at Kansas City, Mo., did you become acquainted with the nature of the reading rooms conducted by branch churches? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And have you since become more familiar with the work of the reading rooms done generally? A. I have.

Q. What literature is sold in these reading rooms? A. All the literature that is published by The Christian Science Publishing Society, and Bibles in addition to that.

Q. And that of course includes the works of Mary Baker Eddy? A. Yes.

Q. At one time they were not published by The Christian Science Publishing Society? A. That is true.

Q. Who conducts these reading rooms? A. They are conducted by the branch churches, by a librarian appointed or elected by the church.

Q. And does The Mother Church conduct several of its own? A. It does.

Q. Is any other literature sold in these reading rooms, so far as you know, except the literature that you have described? A. Nothing more.

The Master—Isn't that all regulated by the By-Laws which we have been over?

Mr. Krauthoff—I believe it has been provided in a by-law. I thought it would be helpful to have Mr. Dickey state the form and structure of this situation.

Q. And does this literature include the periodicals published by The Christian Science Publishing Society? A. Yes.

Q. Including the daily newspaper, The Monitor? A. Yes.

Q. Is this literature sold also in the Church buildings at times? A. On some occasions, Wednesdays, I believe.

Q. Wednesdays, following the testimony meeting? A. Yes.

Q. Who purchases this literature from the Publishing Society for these reading rooms? A. Purchased almost entirely by Christian Scientists.

Q. I know; but who purchases it from the Publishing Society in the first place? A. The branch churches, through their reading rooms.

Q. Do you know in the conduct of the business of the Publishing Society, of the Publishing Society giving away any literature? A. No, they do not.

Q. Or distributing any literature other than as they sell it? A. No.

Q. Now, these reading rooms—are they conducted as activities of the branch churches and of The Mother Church? A. They are.

Q. Do you regard it as expedient to have a trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society, a trustee selling literature to the reading rooms of your churches, and claiming the sole right to do it, who is not in every particular loyal to the Church Manual of The Mother Church?

Mr. Whipple—That, if Your Honor please, is evidently objectionable on the same ground.

The Master—I will make the same ruling on that.

Mr. Krauthoff—And we will take the same exception.

Q. In your work in the branch church at Kansas City you served as Reader, I believe you said? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you briefly describe the manner in which the services in a Christian Science Church are conducted? A. They are conducted by—

The Master—Is that strictly necessary for the purposes of the case?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I feel that it is or I would not have asked it.

The Master—It will take a long time and I cannot see that it comes near enough to anything we have got to decide to make it material.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will explain the materiality of it. The plaintiffs in the case at bar claim the sole right to prepare the sermons to be read in the Christian Science churches of the world, without the Christian Science churches of the world having anything to say about the preparation of those sermons. In order to understand the precise importance of that controversy it becomes necessary for the Court to be advised as to just what these sermons are and how they are prepared.

The Master—I do not think that is necessary any further than that they are used in the services of the Church.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if I have progressed that far in Your Honor's consciousness I am grateful to know it.

Q. What sermons are read in these branch churches, Mr. Dickey? A. The sermons prepared by The Christian Science Publishing Society through its Bible Lesson Committee.

Q. Consisting of what? A. Consisting of reading alternately from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, written by Mrs. Eddy.

Q. The Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those sermons are called Bible Lessons, I believe, at some times, and at some times are called Lesson Sermons? A. Yes.

Q. And they are arranged as shown in The Christian Science Quarterly which has been introduced in evidence? A. Yes.

Q. What is the importance of the manner of the arrangement of these sermons, Mr. Dickey?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Krauthoff—It seems to me, if Your Honor please, that we do have the right to show, as against people who are claiming the right to prepare our sermons for us, that the manner and the arrangement of these sermons is of such importance that we have some rights in the premises with respect to them.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I think that counsel do not understand quite what they are doing or he is doing. It is quite possible that this Board of Directors, with the assistance of counsel, could construct a better project, a better method of spreading the gospel of Christian Science than Mrs. Eddy did; quite possibly they may; but we are dealing with the method that she created, and she provided as to how these lessons should be prepared,—the Bible Lessons,—how they should be read, who should be appointed to do it; and your suggestion is that you desire to substitute the opinion and judgment as to how that should be done of this gentleman and yourself rather than that of Mrs. Eddy.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, we had not thought at this stage of the case that we would be called upon to argue it, but in order that Mr. Whipple may know just exactly the falsity of his accusation with respect to us, our position is this: We take the inspired word of Mary Baker Eddy as a complete whole, which means all that she did; and all that she did was to provide that this Publishing Society should be subject to the control of The Mother Church.

The Master—That will be argued later.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well

The Master—Now, I want to give you, of course, opportunity to reply to anything that Mr. Whipple states, if you will come directly to it. Is there anything further that you desire to say?

Mr. Krauthoff—Not in view of Your Honor's intimation that the argument is not proper at this time.

The Master—That the sermons—that is the matter you are on now, I think.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Or the preparation of the sermons is important for the purposes of the church, I do not imagine anyone will think of disputing.

Mr. Whipple—It is a matter of supreme importance, we think, and the trustees have so regarded it, as one of the most important commissions that Mrs. Eddy gave to them in the trust deed.

The Master—Now my objection is that I do not think we add anything to the material evidence by finding out from this witness how and to what extent he thinks it is important.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, the reason that I asked this witness what he thought about it, if Your Honor please, was this: The Board of Directors asked the Board of Trustees of the Publishing Society not to name anybody on this Bible Lessons Committee unless he was approved of by The Christian Science Board of Directors. The Christian Science Board of Directors predicates its right to make such a request on the fact that the Manual says that no person not accepted as suitable by The Christian Science Board of Directors and the Pastor Emeritus shall in any way be connected with The Christian Science Publishing Society. The trustees wrote us and said that that was a subject with which we had nothing to do.

The Master—Pardon me? Why need we go over that now? I am now considering only this: How can the degree of importance or the manner in which the sermons become of importance in the opinion of this witness be material evidence?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will answer that in this way: After the—

The Master—It being admitted on all hands that the sermons and their preparation are of importance, of great importance to the purposes of the Church? Now you do not add anything by asking him that question and getting an answer to it.

Mr. Krauthoff—This is not an ordinary witness on that question, if I may be pardoned for a moment. After the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society had taken that position, subsequently one of them was removed from office—Mr. Rowlands. He brings a suit and says that his removal from office was in bad faith and was arbitrary and capricious, and for a great many other reasons set out in the bill. We are now proving by Mr. Dickey, whose good faith Your Honor is sitting in judgment upon, what induced him to take the step which Your Honor is called upon to say was done in bad faith.

The Master—I do not see how you can make anything more appear on the question of his good faith by asking him to what extent and in what manner the preparation of the sermons is important—it being admitted, as I say, on all hands that they are of great importance.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, having reached that point, why, we will move on.

Q. Do you know of anything, Mr. Dickey, that makes the Bible, together with "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," the only preachers in all these Christian Science churches throughout the world, outside of the order of Mrs. Eddy in that respect which was adopted and became a part of the Church Manual?

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment. I think that I should have to object to that on the ground that I do not understand it. There may be other objections after you have elucidated what it means.

Mr. Krauthoff—We may concede that Mr. Whipple does not understand it, but here is what we are trying to point out, if Your Honor please—

The Master—No; put the question again. Rather than tell what you are trying to do, let us have the exact question.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well. Will the stenographer read it?

[The question is read as follows: "Do you know of anything, Mr. Dickey, that makes the Bible, together with 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures,' the only preachers in all these Christian Science churches throughout the world, outside of the order of Mrs. Eddy in that respect which was adopted and became a part of the Church Manual?"]

The Witness—No.

Mr. Whipple—I think I will have to object to that.

The Master—Do you know anything outside of Mrs. Eddy which makes so-and-so and so-and-so the only preachers—is that it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—I cannot see how we gain anything, but you may get an answer to that question if he can answer it. A. I know of nothing outside of the Christian Science Manual that does that.

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please, because that was not the question. Do you know anything outside of Mrs. Eddy's orders with regard to it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Mrs. Eddy's orders, which became a part of the Church Manual.

Mr. Whipple—Well, that involves a great many questions.

The Master—I think we had better let the answer stand as it is.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

The Master—It cannot make very much difference.

Q. In your work at Kansas City in these various capacities in the branch church and in your work as a member of the Board of Directors, have you had occasion to study the relation of The Mother Church to its branches throughout the world? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the bill filed by the plaintiffs in this case it is alleged that you are the director of only one of 1800 churches. Will you please state the relation of The Mother Church to the branch churches as it is worked out in practice from day to day and in the work that you are doing as a director?

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment. That all appears in the Manual.

Mr. Bates—I am glad you have found that there is a Manual!

[Loud applause]

Mr. Whipple—There never has been a body of men more consistent supporters of the Manual than these trustees.

Mr. Bates—Whom are you addressing?

Mr. Whipple—I am addressing these people who are impertinent enough to clap their hands in a court of justice.

Mr. Bates—They are wise enough to recognize the inconsistency of your position.

Mr. Whipple—We do not want to recognize that sort of thing in a court of justice! We have the judicial determination here and we ought not have this sort of display.

Mr. Bates—You are fighting the whole Church.

Mr. Whipple—We are not fighting the Church.

The Master—I think I should have—

Mr. Whipple—We are fighting the benighted ignorance of men drunk with power!

[Hisses. The master raps for order.]

The Master—I shall have to request the people in the audience to abstain from making any demonstration either of approval or disapproval of anything that may be said during the progress of the hearing.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, the statement with which Mr. Whipple concluded his remarks shows the importance of this court having some comprehension, from the statement of the people who are engaged in the administration of affairs with respect to which their good faith is attacked, as to the practical relationship of The Mother Church to its branches. We had this Manual introduced in evidence. There is the Manual to be construed. But if Your Honor will remember for a moment, you are dealing with a question of church law which has to be proved before you as a fact, the same as if it were the law of England, or the law of any jurisdiction with which the court, as such, is not presumed to be familiar and of which it does not take judicial notice. If a lawyer from America was called as a witness in a foreign country to testify what the Constitution of the United States meant when it said that the Congress of the United States shall have the power to regulate commerce among several states and with the Indian tribes and foreign nations, he would be denying the judge all the light he had if he refused to say what John Marshall had said about it, or if he refused to say what the Supreme Court of the United States had said since John Marshall's day, or what was done in daily practice in the Congress of the United States in the way of enacting laws regulating interstate commerce.

Now this man is the director of a Church which we claim extends in its activities around the world, a Church which is, in its true sense, a "Mother" Church to the 1800 branches over which it must of necessity extend the care that a mother does over her children as it continues from time to time. In the exercise of that, he discharged his duty and removed Mr. Rowlands. Mr. Rowlands has summoned him to the bar of this court; has filed here a bill in equity and has sent 140,000 copies to the branch churches, in which the issue is made that The Mother Church has nothing to do with the branch churches, and Mr. Eustace has so testified upon the stand. Now we submit that we have the right, on behalf of these directors, to explain what their concept of the relation of The Mother Church to the branches is, that in order through their explanation Your Honor may understand what it was that moved them to the action that they did take.

The Master—I do not think that the witness should take up the time by recounting, going over again what the Manual provides for. We can assume from his position, from what he says, that he recognizes all that. Now, further than that, you desire to ask him to give his opinion as to what follows from the provisions of the Manual, do you?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not ask for his mere opinion. He is a member of the board, and has been since 1910, which is charged with the duty of enforcing this Manual. It is an ecclesiastical tribunal, in effect, and his views, and his judgment and his statements, about what this Manual means in its application to The Mother Church and the branch churches, are as applicable and admissible in this case as would be the testimony of a lawyer from England as to what the British Constitution is and how it is administered and applied in courts of justice in England.

The Master—You are examining him, then, as an expert on the Manual, are you?

Mr. Krauthoff—Not only as an expert of the Manual but also testifying to his own good faith; and I want to say to Your Honor—

The Master—You do not quite make it clear to me whether you are examining him as an expert on the Manual or on the ordinary practice under the Manual, or on his state of mind bearing on his good faith.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am taking all three of those in order. I am offering him as an expert on the Manual, and his expert judgment, of course, comes from the application that has been made of the Manual in the work that he has done as a director and in the Christian Science movement preceding his becoming a director, and in what he learned from Mrs. Eddy and from his study of her works; and then I will follow that by asking him, as bearing upon his good faith, whether he did all that in the performance of the acts with respect to which it is charged that he acted in bad faith.

Now, if I may be pardoned for just a moment, if Your Honor please, I appreciate at the outset that it may seem that I am entering upon an inquiry which is very comprehensive; but it has been my privilege to take these footsteps, it has been my privilege for six months to study these things, and it is because I have done it that I can present to you something that will help you, and it is because the lawyers on the other side have not done it that they have brought a lawsuit which has no basis.

The Master—Perhaps before tomorrow you can find and refer me to the testimony of Mr. Eustace to which you have just now had reference. I would like to look at that again.

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be very glad to do it.

The Master—I suppose if it be true—it is so many days ago that I do not recall the precise form in which Mr. Eustace's testimony came out—if he has been allowed to give his interpretation of the Manual, I suppose we must allow Mr. Krauthoff time to do the same thing.

Mr. Whipple—Not if he was asked in cross-examination.

The Master—That is why I requested that counsel refer me to the place in order that I could see the connection in which it came up.

Mr. Whipple—It is perfectly clear, if we had asked him his interpretation with regard to a particular part of the Manual, that it would be unfair to exclude the other side from asking expert questions; but it is only a belated thought on the part of counsel that he was examining Mr. Dickey as an expert. His first statement was that he was trying to show his good faith.

Mr. Krauthoff—One of the things to which I desire to call Your Honor's attention in that respect is the sixth paragraph of the bill in equity.

The Master—I have it before me, I believe. What have you to say about it?

Mr. Krauthoff—In that, if Your Honor please, the issue is distinctly stated that the defendant directors are the directors of only one of these Christian Science churches, "to wit, The Mother Church, situated in Boston," and then an interpretation of the Manual is pleaded: "The Church By-Laws created by Mrs. Eddy provide for local self-government of churches," and a part of the Manual is quoted.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if you can quote any part of the Manual contrary to that, I think you would be entitled to call His Honor's attention to it.

Mr. Krauthoff—We are now endeavoring to show, if Your Honor please, by taking the Manual as a whole, by taking the structure of the Christian Science movement as a whole, that that statement there is not accurate.

Mr. Whipple—That is, that Mrs. Eddy did not mean what she said here—

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

Mr. Whipple—because you can find somewhere else something that you think is opposite to it?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I beg your pardon.

The Master—The question raised by the sixth article of the bill and by your answer to it seems to be this: The plaintiffs' allegations are that the Board of Directors are directors of only one of the Christian Science churches. You, on the contrary, allege that The Mother Church is the central organization of which all other Christian Science churches are branches?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; and we also allege that The Christian Science Board of Directors is the governing body of The Mother Church and of its branches with respect—

The Master—Well, that is not necessary, if you establish that The Mother Church is the central organization of which the other Christian Science churches and societies are branches, in your sense of the word.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. Now, we offer to prove that by the manner in which the business of The Mother Church and other branches has been conducted ever since 1892—we offer to prove that by the form and structure of the movement, which of necessity makes that true, and we offer to prove it by the tenets and principles of Christian Science. Now, we cannot do that in a minute and it cannot be taken for granted.

The Master—I think that I shall have to permit an inquiry into the manner in which the business has been done since 1892. I will hear counsel if they desire to object to my permitting that inquiry.

Mr. Whipple—If it has been done contrary to the terms of the Manual, it could have no effect; if it has been done under the terms of the Manual, the Manual ought to be the controlling feature.

The Master—There we should only get into a dispute as to whether it was under or contrary to the terms of the Manual. I think that we had better have the evidence as to what the practice has been.

Mr. Whipple—Very well, Your Honor.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is now 4 o'clock. The Master—So far I will rule, and you may proceed on that line tomorrow morning.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

The Master—But that is not to be understood as opening your inquiry at present to the extent which you have claimed.

[Adjourned to 10 a. m., Thursday, July 17, 1919.]

July 17, 1919

SIXTEENTH DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room,
Boston, Massachusetts, July 17, 1919.

Adam H. Dickey, Resumed

Mr. Krauthoff—At the adjournment on yesterday, if Your Honor please, a question was pending as to which some objection was made, and the master made a general ruling on the subject of the course of testimony that might be pursued. In view of that ruling the question is for the present withdrawn—the question of the relationship of The Mother Church to its branches—and I will proceed along the line of showing the fact.

The Master—Let me see the particular question that you are talking about, which you now say is withdrawn.

Mr. Krauthoff—The particular question was the witness' statement as to the relationship of The Mother Church to its branches.

The Master—Will you let me hear the question just as it was put? Have you got it there?

Mr. Krauthoff—The question was: "Will you please state the relation of The Mother Church to the branch churches as it is worked out in practice from day to day and in the work that you are doing as a director?" And on that—

The Master—One moment. I do not think I excluded that, did I?

Mr. Bates—No, Your Honor did not. The Master—"As it is worked out in practice."

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. Now, what I was going to do, if Your Honor please, was to withdraw that question for the present and take up a line of inquiry preceding Mr. Dickey's advent on the Board of Directors, and then, having reached his position as a member of the Board of Directors, I will again return to this subject. I feel that that is a more orderly presentation of what I am about to prove by Mr. Dickey.

The Master—Very well.

Q. Mr. Dickey, how long—

The Master—It is understood, however, that that particular question I did not exclude.

Mr. Krauthoff—I appreciate that, if Your Honor please, and I appreciate the courtesy that was shown us on yesterday in permitting us to express our views at the length that we did.

The Master—Why, that is what we are here for.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

The Master—I don't see any particular courtesy about it.

Q. Mr. Dickey, in your work in the service of Mrs. Eddy individually, please state to what extent you became acquainted with her? A. After coming to her home she asked me if I would be willing to come there and live in her house, and I expressed my willingness.

The Master—Is that necessary? You asked him to state the extent to which he became acquainted with her.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. Just state generally, Mr. Dickey. Did you live in the household? A. I did.

Q. And was your work of such a nature that you saw her both day and night? A. It was.

Q. I mean both in the day and the evening? A. Yes.

Q. What was your work? A. She asked me if I would accept the place of secretary. I did so, and then she told me what my duties would be.

The Master—I think, Mr. Dickey, if you could answer the question directly without quoting Mrs. Eddy it would be better. Put the question again, and let the witness notice what is asked.

Q. What was your work?

The Master—What was your work?

A. That of secretary to Mrs. Eddy.

Q. In your work as secretary did you handle the incoming mail? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you reply to some of the letters? A. Many of them.

Q. And others were referred to her for reply? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have charge of the household in any way? A. Yes.

Q. The details of the household? A. Many of them.

Q. Now, this was in Chestnut Hill, in Boston? A. In Newton.

Q. In Newton? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time Mrs. Eddy had moved from Pleasant View, at Concord, New Hampshire, to Chestnut Hill? A. Yes, to Chestnut Hill.

Q. What was the habit of Mrs. Eddy with respect to the use of the Church Manual? A. Well, Mrs.—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I cannot see how that is material, if Your Honor please. It must be assumed that she knew of the Church Manual, and wrote about it, but no particular point such as is indicated by the question is of importance.

Mr. Krauthoff—I understand, if Your Honor please, from Mr. Whipple's line of objections during the last two days that there was some doubt in his mind whether all of this Manual was approved by Mrs. Eddy; and I want now to prove by this witness the extent to which she used this Manual from day to day, and what she said about it and what she did about it.

Mr. Whipple—I do not believe that evidence can be offered of that description. The inquiry which we desired to have made was the extent to which Mrs. Eddy, who, apparently with the most meticulous care attached her name to anything that she approved, actually did approve in writing different provisions of the Manual. We have seen the very great care with which every scrap of paper that came down bore her signature on the back; sometimes the same by-law, three or four copies of it, bore her signature. We were interested to find the authority, approval, of Mrs. Eddy, in writing, of different parts of the Manual; and that is probably what caused the somewhat mistaken view you have expressed this morning as to the purpose of the objections that have been made.

The Master—The purposes?

Mr. Whipple—Of objections which we had made. What I have in mind is only an inference, so far as expressed—only an inference of Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—What we are trying to prove, if Your Honor please, is that continually during the time Mr. Dickey was in Mrs. Eddy's household this Manual, which bore upon its face "By Mary Baker Eddy" was cited and used by Mrs. Eddy—

The Master—Pause a moment, Mr. Krauthoff. I am inclined to think I shall have to admit the question. You may proceed.

A. Mrs. Eddy regarded the Manual as a very—

The Master—No, no; not how she regarded it, but what she stated and what she did.

A. Why, she was very careful about all of the By-Laws, to see that they were properly presented to the directors, examined the proof carefully when it returned and put her signature on the back, which was her custom of approval of anything to be printed in the periodicals.

Q. In her daily work did she have the Manual on her desk? A. She did.

Q. Did she cite it in her correspondence, or refer to it? A. Many times.

Q. Did she call the attention of the Board of Directors to any omission to follow the Manual? A. Whenever such occurred.

Q. What did she enjoin upon the members of her household with respect to the Manual? A. That they should strictly obey the By-Laws in the Manual.

Q. What, if anything, did she say as to the relation of the Manual to The Mother Church—I mean to the Christian Science movement?

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment as to that.

The Master—I hardly see the necessity for that in view of what the Manual itself says in her name. It is merely superfluous, isn't it?

Q. What were the habits of Mrs. Eddy with respect to accuracy of language? A. She was the most accurate person I ever saw or came in contact with.

Q. What attention did she give to the question of punctuation? A. Very strict attention.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, we offer the original of the document of Jan. 15, 1898, being on page 167, Document 179, of Volume 2 of Letters and Miscellany.

The Master—Hasn't that been in already?

Mr. Krauthoff—Not the original.

The Master—We have it in in some form?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was in the form in which it was written in the books of the trustees, but that is not the precise order of arrangement that it is in the original, and we desire now to offer the original document. It was offered in the books of the trustees for the purpose of showing that it was written upon their books. We now offer it in its original form, and, preliminary to its offer, I will ask you, Mr. Dickey, if that is the signature of Mary Baker Eddy to the document which I have shown you.

The Witness—It is.

Mr. Streeter—May I ask you, Mr. Krauthoff, if there are any differences between the original and the one copied in the book?

Mr. Krauthoff—My understanding is that the language is not exactly the same, and then the order of arrangement is not exactly the same. May I show Your Honor a photograph of the original?

[Mr. Krauthoff passes two photographic reproductions to the Master.]

Mr. Whipple—Ought not this go first?

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be very glad to offer that in connection with it. That is the one in which the most striking difference appears.

I call your attention to this other document, No. 178, on page 165 of volume 2 of Letters and Miscellany—

The Master—Just a moment, Mr. Krauthoff. Have you got through with this?

Mr. Krauthoff—No; Mr. Whipple has thought that the other should be offered first.

The Master—Oh, very well. I did not hear that. Go on.

Mr. Whipple—Is there a photograph of this?

Mr. Watts—No. We should like to have one.

Mr. Streeter—May I have one?

Mr. Whipple—Here is a photograph of the paper which Mr. Krauthoff is about to read (passing photographic reproduction to the Master). I think it would be fortunate if you could give the number, the serial number, the exhibit number, of the paper that is already in which corresponds. Do you happen to remember it?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I do not.

Mr. Whipple—Can you tell, Mr. Withington, what the number is of this letter of Mrs. Eddy's of Jan. 15? Your Honor will notice that these are both in advance of the trust deed.

The Master—I noted that.

Mr. Withington—I do not think that it has been given a number. Mr. Krauthoff read it out of the trustees' book.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have the first volume of the trustees' book, please?

[Mr. Withington passes a book to Mr. Krauthoff.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, document No. 178, on page 165, in its original form reads as follows:

"To The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass.

"Jan. 15, 1898.

"My beloved Students:—

"I appreciate your uniform loyalty and courtesy to mother who desires to know no partiality for one or another of her children but to earnestly consider the welfare of all. I have asked for a small Board of Trustees (to keep peace in the family) and as I believe a strong board; one is a business man [man], another a doctor, and still another a scholar.

"I now recommend that these trustees continue at present Mr. Joseph Armstrong as the business manager of the Publishing House for the benefit of the Mother Church in Boston, Mass.

"Please to hand an attested copy of this letter and documents to the editors of The Christian Science Journal for publication in the March number of The Christian Science Journal.

"With love mother

[Signed] "MARY BAKER EDDY."

Now, shall I at this time point out wherein this differs from the record in the book?

The Master—I think it would be as good a time as any.

Mr. Krauthoff—The distinction is this, if Your Honor please. In recording that letter in the book the words, "A Gift to The Mother Church and a Grant of Trusteeship," were placed in advance of this letter. As will be presently pointed out, those words are on the part of the caption to the second document which I will presently read. The address, "To The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass.," and the date, "Jan. 15, 1898," at the top of the document, are not recorded in the book. Then the words, "My beloved Students"—with those the recording begins. The parenthetical clause, "(to keep peace in the family)" is omitted in the record, and the word "mother" is omitted. It reads, "With love Mary Baker G. Eddy." The true signature is, "With love mother Mary Baker Eddy." The recorded document says, "the February number of The Christian Science Journal," and the original document says, "the March number of The Christian Science Journal."

[The document No. 178, Volume 2 of Letters and Miscellany, page 165, is Exhibit 463. R. J. M.]

Now, if Your Honor please, the document—

Mr. Strawn—As a matter of fact, Mr. Krauthoff, that document never was published.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not now able to state in what form it finally appeared.

Mr. Strawn—I understand that was supplemented—I mean the one of Jan. 25 was substituted for that, and therefore that was never published.

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not agree to the word "substituted." I am not sure as to what was published in the Journal. I will get that. (To Miss Warren) Will you please get me the Journal for February, 1898?

Mr. Whipple—Or March.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, in Volume 2 of Letters and Miscellany is the document to which I will call Your Honor's attention—document No. 179: "A Gift to The Mother Church."

And Your Honor will note, in that connection, that the period is after the word "Church."

"A Gift to The Mother Church, and a Grant of Trusteeship.

"I hereby constitute a Board of Trustees namely, Edward P. Bates, James A. Neal, and William P. McKenzie, all of them being residents of Boston, Massachusetts. And I hereby entrust to the aforesaid persons The Christian Science Journal, and all moneys, subscription lists, real estate, or whatever other property is connected therewith at this date. This property is only to be held in trust by the above named persons for the purpose of carrying on the business which has been conducted by the Christian Science Publishing Society at Boston, Massachusetts. The net proceeds accruing from sales of The Christian Science Journals and the literature connected therewith, after deducting therefrom semi-annually the salary for each of these trustees—shall, by the treasurer of the trustees for the publishing house of the Mother Church, be immediately handed over to the treasurer of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, to be applied to the use and for the benefit of this Church. I retain my ownership of the Christian Science Journal; and it shall be copyrighted in my name during my so-called natural life, in which I give the above named church the benefits derived therefrom; but thereafter the copyright and the aforesaid Journal shall become the property of this Church.

"No member of this Board of Trustees shall be empowered to conduct the business as pertains to the board without the knowledge and consent of the majority of its members.

"For the faithful performance of this trust each of the above named trustees or their successors shall, from the above date, receive a salary of one thousand dollars, payable semi-annually, beginning at the date of this trusteeship. The Christian Science Journal shall not descend to my heirs or assigns; but it shall continue a perpetual benefit for the Mother Church—unless that for some reason I shall over my own signature and handwriting withdraw it.

"If for any reason a member of this board becomes incapacitated to transact the duties of his office, his place shall, by a majority vote of the board subject to my approval (or by myself if I see fit so to decide) be declared vacant, and the remaining members shall at once proceed to elect a new member to fill the vacancy. No candidate shall be eligible to this position unless it can be shown that he or she is at the time of election a true and loyal Christian Scientist.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 15th day of January in the year of our Lord 1898.

"(Signed) MARY BAKER EDDY.
"Witness (Seal)

"(Signed) FRED N. LADD,
"HENRY STEVENS."

[The document No. 179, Vol. 2 of Letters and Miscellany, is Exhibit 464. R. J. M.]

Now, as recorded, the document says: "I hereby create a Board of Trustees, namely Edward P. Bates, James A. Neal, and William P. McKenzie, all of them being residents of Boston, Massachusetts, for the purpose of entrusting to the aforesaid persons The Christian Science Journal," and from that point on the recorded instrument appears to be the same as the original document.

Mr. Whipple—Just what do you mean by "recorded"?

Mr. Krauthoff—I mean recorded in the book of the trustees.

Mr. Whipple—That is, it is one thing that is set forth at the beginning of their records?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; the instrument is there recorded.

Now, with respect to the publication of that document, if Your Honor please, Mr. Strawn asked a question in regard thereto. The circumstances of the execution of that document and the publication, or rather the manner in which the whole transaction was published, will be explained by the deposition of Judge Hanna. At this time I call attention to the article in the February, 1898, number of The Christian Science Journal, which has the headnote, "A Gift to The Mother Church, and a Grant of Trusteeship." We offer the article in its entirety, and we read from it at this time the following statements—

Mr. Whipple—Well, ought it not all to be read? Is it very long?

Mr. Krauthoff—No. I will read it all.

Mr. Whipple—If it is very long, if you will let us take it and look it over, perhaps you need not read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I will read it.

"A Gift to The Mother Church, and a Grant of Trusteeship.

"My kingdom is not of this world," said the gentle Nazarene. And when the temptations of evil spread out before him in visions, 'all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them,' his sharp rebuke to the temptation was, 'Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.'

"So unlike his generation was he that his motives were misunderstood, and he was stoned and crucified because of them.

"In a large sense all who have sincerely followed in his footsteps have met a similar fate.

"The Reverend Mary Baker Eddy has been said, by those who cannot comprehend the elevated and broadly humanitarian character of her life and work, to be sordid and mercenary. Her charges for her work have been said to be exorbitant, and many a stone has been thrown at her on this ground; but by those only who know nothing whatever of her work or its value. The thousands who are familiar therewith, because they have been the joyous beneficiaries thereof, have been able themselves to prove the truth of her teachings in the most indubitable ways, and are, therefore, competent to judge of her work (and the only ones who are). Let their testimony be received by the charitable and unbiased everywhere. And what is their testimony? There is not a sincere student of Mrs. Eddy in the world who will not declare, out from the depths of an honest heart, that all they ever paid her was not a drop in the ocean as compared with all they have received in return.

"And suppose, as the result of her long years of toil, Mrs. Eddy did accumulate somewhat of this world's wealth. Has that wealth become her kingdom? Has she yielded to it, or, like her great Exemplar, has she said, 'Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve'?

"Let a few indisputable facts, selected out of thousands, answer our question.

"Besides an almost countless number of private charities extending over a long time, she has contributed large sums for the benefit of the Cause which she established. Years ago she donated a lot of ground in Boston on which to erect The Mother Church, then valued at $20,000, and now estimated to be worth more than double that sum. Recently she gave to the church at London, England, $1000. Also purchased a lot in Concord and refitted a building on it for church purposes, at a cost to her of about $20,000.

"We cannot now recall all the contributions of like kind she has made even within two years. We have heard of a number, and many, doubtless, we have not heard of and never shall hear of. We can mention, however, by her permission, her latest magnificent donation. It is none other than this:

"1. A conveyance in perpetuity to The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, of the real estate of The Christian Science Publishing Society, with the buildings, now used by the society, and located at 95 and 97 Falmouth Street, in Boston. Its value is not less than $22,000, and it is situated in a vicinity where the increase in value is considerable.

"The following reservation is made by Mrs. Eddy in this conveyance:

"Reserving, however, the right to have and occupy so much room conveniently and pleasantly located in the Publishing House as may be necessary to carry on the publication and sale of the books of which I am or may be the author, and other literature connected therewith."

"2. A transfer to said Church in perpetuity of The Christian Science Journal, Quarterly, and all the literary publications of the society, and every right and privilege whatever connected therewith, saving only the right to copyright the Journal in her own name, and all the moneys and assets thereof; these to be held in trust by three trustees, namely, Edward P. Bates, James A. Neal, and William P. McKenzie. These trustees are to have charge of the business affairs of the society, and the business is to be continued in the name of The Christian Science Publishing Society. The moneys and assets of the society now on hand go into the hands of the treasurer of The Mother Church, and all accruing profits over and above the actual running expenses of the business are to be turned over semi-annually to said treasurer, meantime to be kept by the trustees in a safe bank or trust company.

"These funds are to be held by the treasurer for the benefit of The Mother Church, as now organized, and disbursed under careful safeguards in such manner as will best promote the interests of the cause. The total present value of the entire property thus conveyed and transferred is fairly estimated at $50,000. We may add that about a year since Mrs. Eddy safely assigned her copyrights of all her books and writings.

"It is needless to comment on the importance of this movement or its mighty augury for the future. We cannot now comprehend, much less estimate, its significance.

"Let us endeavor, nevertheless, to lift up our hearts in thankfulness to God for His goodness to us and our cause, and to his servant, our Mother in Israel, for these evidences of a generosity and self-sacrifice that appeal to our deepest sense of gratitude, even while surpassing our comprehension.

"God grant that this great trust may be carried out in the same Christ-like spirit in which it is conferred.

"The present publisher and editors remain as formerly."

"We are requested by Mrs. Eddy to return, through the columns of the Journal, her sincerest thanks and gratitude for the numerous beautiful and valuable Christmas remembrances received from many of her students, and to say that she has been prevented by the stress, even for her, of unusual work for the Cause, from making personal acknowledgment of these tokens of love.

"Will the dear donors please accept this public acknowledgment in lieu of private ones?"

[The article in the February, 1898, number of The Christian Science Journal, of which the foregoing is a copy, is Exhibit 465. R. J. M.]

The Master—Is that the publication to which the letter of January 15 refers?

Mr. Krauthoff — If Your Honor please, as I stated a moment ago, the circumstances of that will all be disclosed in the testimony of Septimus J. Hanna, who at that time was the editor of The Christian Science Journal.

The Master—I gathered from what you said that you were going to read the publication which was made in the March number of The Christian Science Journal—

Mr. Krauthoff—I am reading the publication—

The Master— —in pursuance of the last paragraph of Mrs. Eddy's letter of Jan. 15, 1898?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. I have read the publication—

The Master—They did not publish—I have not seen in what you have read any publication of the letter and document.

Mr. Krauthoff—No; I was about to say, if Your Honor please—

The Master—Why do we need all that article?

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Strawn asked me what was published, and I read it.

Mr. Strawn—I asked you if that article was published. I beg your pardon. I did not ask what was published.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, I beg your pardon. Very well. I offer that for the purpose of showing what was published in the February, 1898, number of the Journal, with particular reference to the statement that Mrs. Eddy transferred to the Church—

The Master—You have not got yet any publication of the attested letter and document?

Mr. Krauthoff—No; and, as to that, the document and letter were not published in the Journal.

The Master—That request was not complied with?

Mr. Krauthoff—That request was not complied with for reasons—

The Master—Never mind the reasons. It was not as a matter of fact.

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not undertake to state them—for reasons which are stated in Judge Hanna's deposition. I will register that now so that you can associate it when you come to work it out.

Mr. Whipple—I understand that it is clear that this request, "Please to hand an attested copy of this letter and document to the editors of The Christian Science Journal for publication in the March number of The Christian Science Journal," was never complied with?

Mr. Krauthoff—That request was not complied with, and the reasons are explained by Judge Hanna.

Mr. Whipple—Well, then, I had supposed that you were going to read from The Christian Science Journal something which you claimed was a compliance with this, and therefore I asked you to do it. It appeared that it is no such thing, and I will ask whether that should not be withdrawn from the record? I cannot see anything in it that is material, nor can I see anything that is authorized by Mrs. Eddy. If it were, it would be on a different basis. So far all we have is that the people to whom this letter was directed did not comply with it. The fact that they did something else is of no importance, and I should say that that ought not to be printed.

The Master—I am unable to see why that should not go into the record in full.

Mr. Krauthoff—The reason I read it in full, if Your Honor please, was that Mr. Whipple raised a question as to whether it was going to be read in full or not. All of it does not strictly belong in the record. And so far as the document itself is concerned, it will become important, and the circumstances connected with this article will be shown by Judge Hanna's deposition. I merely read it at this time by reason of the fact that some inquiry arose as to what was published.

The Master—On your statement that evidence to be introduced in the future will make it admissible, it may stand for the present.

Mr. Krauthoff—Without prejudice to renew the objection, I suppose?

The Master—Certainly not.

Q. Mr. Dickey, I call your attention to Document 5208 on an unnumbered page of Vol. 39 of Letters and Miscellany, and I will ask you to state whether the handwriting in there, exclusive of the words in the rubber stamp on the upper left-hand corner, is that of Mary Baker Eddy? A. The signature and the superscription, and some of the alterations in the typewritten letter, are in the handwriting of Mrs. Eddy.

Q. All that portion thereof which is not in typewriting? A. Yes.

Q. 5207, in the same book. Is the part, other than within the rubber stamp in the handwriting of Mary Baker Eddy? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have those two photographs a moment? (Documents are handed to Mr. Krauthoff.)

Q. Referring to the document that was offered as No. 178. Did you state that the signature was that of Mary Baker Eddy—the words, “With love, Mother”? A. That is her signature.

Q. And the word “this,” and the words “and document,” interlined therein? A. That is her handwriting; yes, sir.

Q. And did you state that this was her signature to the document marked 179? A. It is.

The Master—I understood you to make some statement regarding the order of those two documents.

Mr. Krauthoff—The two photographs?

The Master—The two documents photographed. Did you say something about there being a dispute as to the order in which they came?

Mr. Krauthoff—I understand they came together. This is what happened, if Your Honor please: I first referred to the instrument which was the document of gift, and that was No. 179, and Mr. Whipple asked me if it was not better to read 178 first, and I acceded to that suggestion. They are in the book in the order that I have stated—178 and 179. As a matter of history, they both came—

The Master—And they are in the same order in the trustees' records?

Mr. Krauthoff—They are in the same order in the trustees' record, with this distinction: the words “A gift to The Mother Church” are preceding the letter in the trustees' record.

The Master—Then they are in a different order?

Mr. Krauthoff—May I give you the book itself, and you can see it.

The Master—Oh, I see, the heading.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor will take the book (handing volume to Master, who examines it).

The Master—Yes. I see what you mean.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, this is the next document. Your Honor, Document 5208 in Volume 39, unbound, of Letters and Miscellany:

“My Beloved Students:

“I have conveyed The Christian Science Journal etc. to The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts—holding its services at this date in The Mother Church—and that shall continue to hold its meetings at this First Church edifice, erected by the Christian Scientists in Boston, Massachusetts.

“The real estate that is Quit Claimed to me by The Christian Science Publishing Society I deed to The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. and not to the Board of Trustees who are to conduct the publishing business. I reserve however so much room, well located, in these buildings, as may be necessary to carry on the publishing and sales of the works of which I am author.

“With love,

“MARY BAKER EDDY.

“Pleasant View

“Jan. 22, 1898.

“Please publish this letter in Feb. Journal. M. B. E.”

[Letters and Miscellany, Document 5208, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 466, as read by Mr. Krauthoff.]

Mr. Krauthoff—That letter was not published in the February Journal, and the circumstances of its non-publication will be explained in the deposition of Judge Hanna.

The Master—The document which you read begins, “My Beloved Student”?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. Students.

The Master—Students—is that right?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. And the deposition of Judge Hanna will show that that was received by Judge Hanna, who, together with Mrs. Hanna, was a student of Mrs. Eddy, and at that time they were editors of The Christian Science Journal.

The Master—The stamp in the corner here is, “Written to Judge and Mrs. Hanna.”

Mr. Krauthoff—That is a mark that the clerk of the Church put on the document when these documents were donated to the Church, and were identified so as to show their donor.

The Master—You do not dispute the statement?

Mr. Krauthoff—Pardon me?

The Master—You do not dispute the statement?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I do not dispute it.

The Master—Then by “My Beloved Students” is there meant Judge and Mrs. Hanna?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. Now, here is a photograph of the other document that Mr. Dickey identified (handing document to Master).

Document 5207 in Volume 39 of Letters and Miscellany:

“Pleasant View,

“Concord, N. H. Jan. 18, '98.

“Beloved Student

“For special reasons and to prevent unhappy results this transaction had to be rattled off that night in time for the meeting as called. I employed a lawyer called smart. His father was our Senator at Congress. I had scribbled it for a schedule but there was not time for the Lawyer to read and rewrite it and mail it in time, so I read it to him and he said it was ‘right’ and I signed and Mr. Ladd my 2nd cousin, treasurer of The Loan and Trust Savings Bank, Concord, put down his signature. The lawyer is of the firm of Stevens & Leach, city. Names, Fred N. Ladd, Henry W. Stevens. Do as you think best about adding the signatures.

“With love, M. B. EDDY.”

[Letters and Miscellany, Document

5207, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 467.]

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, calling your attention to Document 5206 in Volume 39, of Letters and Miscellany, is that in the handwriting of Mrs. Eddy? A. Yes.

Q. Including the reverse of it? A. Yes.

Q. Both sides? A. That is her writing; yes, sir.

The Master—This letter of Jan. 18. It is not entirely clear to what transaction it refers. But you expect to show that by other evidence?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. It refers to the instrument of Jan. 15, 1898, and that will be shown by the deposition of Judge Hanna.

Mr. Whipple—Unfortunately, these are going in in the reverse chronological order, and that makes it a little more difficult to understand them. The next one is the 17th.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was going to ask, if Your Honor please, and Mr. Whipple has called my attention to the inverse chronological order—I have offered three documents, one of Jan. 22, 1898; one of Jan. 18, and one of Jan. 17, and with the consent of Mr. Whipple and the order of the Court I would like to have the stenographers rearrange the order so that they will appear in chronological order.

The Master—I certainly have no objection if that can be done without confusion.

Mr. Whipple—Can that be done easily? You see, it involves a redraft.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, then, we will try to avoid that in future.

Document 5206, in Volume 39, of Letters and Miscellany:

“Pleasant View,

“Concord, N. H., Jan. 17.

“Beloved Student,

“I will attend to that business. Have had so much on hand could not before. Confidential.

“With love Mother

“M. B. Eddy

please find the amendment to by-law for next edition of Manual. I read and showed my woman document to Lawyer of Concord who is considered smart. And he said ‘there is nothing incorrect in it.’

“Well had I been its author I scarcely could have believed it. But I was not more the author of that than of S & H as I regard it.

“Again M B E”

[Letters and Miscellany, Document 5206, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 468.]

The Master—Both these letters appear to have been written to Judge Hanna?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, Your Honor, that is right.

Q. Now, with respect to the statement of Mrs. Eddy, Mr. Dickey:

“Well had I been its author I scarcely could have believed it. But I was not more the author of that than of S & H as I regard it.”

What did Mrs. Eddy teach with regard to the authorship of Science and Health? A. She taught that she was divinely guided in the authorship of that book.

Q. And that the authorship was of God? A. It was.

Q. You became a director in the fall of 1910? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And shortly thereafter Mrs. Eddy passed on? A. She did.

Q. With the passing on of Mrs. Eddy the board at that time—the Board of Directors—consisted of Mr. McLellan, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Chase, Mr. Dittmore, and yourself? A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Chase had been a director since the inception of the Church?

A. I don't know as to that. He had been a director for many years.

A. Mr. McLellan had served for a considerable period of time?

A. Yes.

Q. And also Mr. Stewart? A. Yes.

Q. The relationship between the various members of the directors and Mrs. Eddy up to that time—were they of a close and intimate nature? A. Very close.

Q. Did you then make a statement as a Board of Directors of your relation to the Christian Science movement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the records of the Board of Directors of Dec. 7, 1910, and ask you if that is the statement that the board then wrote upon its records? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer that, if Your Honor please, for the purpose of showing the situation as the board understood it on Dec. 7, 1910, it being claimed in the bill in this case that the authority which the Board of Directors is now seeking to exercise is of recent origin. We offer this for the purpose of showing that immediately upon the passing of Mrs. Eddy the board in its official capacity made this statement and published it.

Mr. Whipple—One moment. I object to that. I cannot see how that has any probative value of any sort whatever on any issue in this case.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I show the copy of it to the master?

Mr. Whipple—Yes; just show that. [The document is handed to the Master.]

Mr. Krauthoff—I wanted to add, if Your Honor please, that that is offered as the statement of an ecclesiastical tribunal, and stands as the established law of the Christian Science Church.

Mr. Whipple—What authority is there for the statement that an ecclesiastical tribunal can make a law for the Church, assuming that this is the statement of an ecclesiastical tribunal?

The Master—It is the first we have heard about ecclesiastical tribunals. The directors at that date had powers which were then, whatever they may have been, settled and fixed. They could not be altered or changed by anything the directors could put on their records. I suppose you will agree with me there?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—We have got to decide what they were.

Mr. Krauthoff—Certainly. You asked me one question. I wanted to state my answer to it more accurately. I said a moment ago, if Your Honor please, that this stands as the declaration of an ecclesiastical tribunal and as such becomes the law of the Church. My attention has been called to the fact that the Manual is the law of the Church, and in my expression, "the law of the Church," I meant the law as it is commonly known in courts of justice, that is, the law as the Court interprets and administers it. The Manual, of course, is the law. The Bill in Equity in this case tenders the issue that these directors, the defendants in this case, have sought to exercise powers and jurisdiction which they never theretofore exercised prior to this controversy; that they were reaching out for power; as the expression was used yesterday, they have become drunk with power; that they were trying to do things from which they were excluded by the practice and the Manual of The Mother Church. Now, the Board of Directors is the tribunal of The Mother Church charged with administering and enforcing, and, so far as it becomes necessary to administer and enforce it, to interpret the Manual of The Mother Church, in the light of their understanding.

The Master—Their interpretation of the Manual could have no weight whatever unless the Court agreed to their interpretation of the Manual.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is evidence, however, if Your Honor please. It is evidence of those who were charged with the duty of enforcing it. It is the evidence of those who were familiar with Mrs. Eddy in her lifetime, and some of those who gave to Christian Science the thought and study of a lifetime. It is exactly the same as the conduct of parties in an executive department under the law, which the Court always accepts as an understanding of what the law means—in reaching an understanding of what the law means. Now, the argument made in this case is that The Christian Science Board of Directors have no charge of certain affairs of The Mother Church and of its branches, and we offer this as showing the statement that was publicly made on Dec. 9, 1910, more than eight years ago, and which has been accepted and acted upon by everybody since, as the evidence of the form and structure of the Christian Science Church.

Mr. Whipple—I did not understand that the Christian Science Church had been governed ever since by a declaration of the directors made at the decease of Mrs. Eddy. I had always supposed that it had been governed by the Manual, and not by their declaration—

Mr. Krauthoff—It has been governed by the Manual.

Mr. Whipple—always—absolutely always—

Mr. Krauthoff—Exactly.

Mr. Whipple—until your directors began to encroach upon an authority that is not in the Manual.

Mr. Krauthoff—They have always been governed by the Manual; but what that Manual means, and how it has been administered, and in practice how it has been applied, is the question that this Court is called upon to determine officially and judicially, and we offer this as evidence of what the directors have done under it.

Mr. Whipple—That does not affect the Deed of Trust, which was Mrs. Eddy's Deed of Trust—you keep forgetting—an inspired Deed of Trust, made intentionally an irrevocable Deed of Trust.

The Master—Well, that leads us, I think, a little too far into the argument of the whole case. The question now is whether this is admissible for any purpose. I am at present entirely unable to see how what power the directors had would settle the interpretation of the Manual.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if Your Honor please, in the course of the case it will develop that in the administration of the affairs of The Mother Church questions arise under the Manual precisely as in a court of justice questions arise under the Constitution of the United States, and some authority must decide those questions in so far as they affect the administration of the affairs of The Mother Church and of its branches.

The Master—The decision, however, could be of no final and binding effect in court.

Mr. Krauthoff—Certainly not; because the Court would have to reach its own conclusion. But it is, if Your Honor please, important as bearing on the practice which has been had and what the directors have done; and then, if Your Honor please, if it becomes vital as to any specific issue, there are many authorities which hold that on a question of church government the decision of the tribunal charged with the enforcing of that law is final in a court of justice, if done in good faith.

Mr. Whipple—May I suggest, if Your Honor please, that this does not come within the description of the learned counsel as to what they have done. At most all this is what they said. If you want to offer any acts, why, we will get onto a different ground.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am going to offer this as preliminary to the question whether he has conducted himself as a director in accordance with this statement.

The Master—Having undertaken to let Mr. Krauthoff show the practice followed by the directors in the government of the Church, and in view of his statement that he proposes to begin with this and go on to show certain action by the Church in general upon it, I am going to let him put the letter in subject to your objection. I have already stated the view which I entertain regarding it at present.

[An extract from the directors' records of Dec. 7, 1910, is introduced in evidence as Exhibit 469, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors at 1 p. m. Present, Messrs. Chase, McLellan, Stewart, Dittmore and Dickey.

"Upon motion duly made and seconded, it was unanimously voted that at this first formal meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors since Mrs. Eddy passed from our sight, the following statement be authorized by this board and given to the press through the channels of the Committee on Publication.

"The authority given to the Board of Directors by the Church Manual remains intact, and is fully adequate for the government of the organization in all its affairs. The policy of this board will be the same as when under Mrs. Eddy's active direction.

"The board is in complete harmony and hundreds of telegrams and letters received from branch churches and societies throughout the world show that it has the unswerving loyalty and support of the entire denomination.

"The adequate written instructions and directions of Mrs. Eddy, under which the Christian Science movement has grown and prospered, including the By-Laws which place the direction of the spiritual and business affairs of the Church entirely in the hands of The Christian Science Board of Directors, will continue to guide their actions."

"Meeting adjourned.

"Approved, December 16, 1910.

"J. V. D."

Q. You have been a director, as you have stated, since that date to this? A. Yes.

Q. And in the conduct of your office as director, have you accepted that statement as your guide?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please; that is not keeping the word that Mr. Krauthoff stated—

The Master—What has he done?

Mr. Whipple—It is simply getting in as a generalization—

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, then I will prove it in detail; excuse me.

Mr. Whipple—State what he did in detail and see whether it conforms; and, if so, in what respects.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well.

Q. That statement was published in the press of the country at the time, Mr. Dickey? A. Yes, it was.

Q. Mr. Eustace, as I understand, became a trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society in the fall of 1913?

The Master—I did not get his testimony as to the publication of that vote.

Mr. Krauthoff—He said it was.

The Master—Published where and when and how?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was published in the press of the country.

The Master—What do you mean by the press of the country?

Mr. Krauthoff—I mean by several newspapers; excuse me.

Q. In what newspapers was it published, if you recall, Mr. Dickey? A. In the Boston newspapers and in other papers throughout the country, the United States.

Q. It was given to your Committee on Publication, Mr. Alfred Farlow? A. Yes.

The Master—By the press of the country, then, he means by certain newspapers in Boston and elsewhere?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Witness—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—If it is of any importance the newspapers should be produced, we think, if Your Honor please.

The Master—That is hardly publishing it in the press of the country.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, being in Boston, if Your Honor please, I thought that—

The Master—Well, the actual fact is it was published in several Boston newspapers and in several newspapers outside of Boston?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—That is where we stop at present.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; and whether that is the press of the country of course is an inference.

Q. Was that published in any of the periodicals of the Christian Science denomination? A. I do not recall now that it was.

Q. Did you regard it as necessary to publish it in the periodicals?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to.

The Master—I shall have to exclude that.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well.

Q. Mr. Eustace, I believe, became a trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society in the fall of 1912? A. I think so.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer at this time, if Your Honor please, from the records of the Board of Directors, Feb. 5, 1913, the following:

[An extract from the directors' records, Feb. 5, 1913, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 470, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Regular meeting The Christian Science Board of Directors at 1 p. m. All members present."

Mr. Whipple (after examining record)—Very well.

The Master—What is this, the directors or the trustees?

Mr. Krauthoff—This is the directors' records of Feb. 5, 1913.

"Voted, unanimously, that the board concurs in the opinion of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society that the letters 'C. S.' can properly be used in the C. S. Journal only following the name of a person who has received class instruction from an authorized teacher of Christian Science."

Q. I will ask you if at that time Mr. Eustace submitted any views to the directors on that question? A. He did.

Q. Is that the document containing his views at that time? (Handing paper to witness.) A. It is.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple asks "whose views." They purport to be the views of Mr. Eustace.

The Master—For what purpose are they offered?

Mr. Krauthoff—For the purpose of showing that at that time the Publishing Society, The Christian Science Publishing Society, submitted to the Board of Directors of The Mother Church the question of whether certain initials should be used in publishing cards in the Journal, and in submitting their views they treated it from the standpoint of the Church Manual governing the situation.

The Master—Is it offered in contradiction of anything testified to by Mr. Eustace?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, it is. It is offered in contradiction of his testimony that The Christian Science Publishing Society had the absolute power to publish the list in the Journal.

The Master—Oh, no. I mean any specific statement by him that that would tend to contradict.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, he wasn't asked as to this particular document, no. He is a party to the case, and he did state that The Christian Science Publishing Society had the power to publish—

The Master—Well, that is only his opinion.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am only trying to show that that was not what was done.

Mr. Whipple—It was merely in cross-examination. You asked him his opinion and you must abide by it.

Mr. Krauthoff—We ask that the document be identified as an exhibit. I do not ask to read it into the record in full.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I am willing it should be identified, and probably it should, because you have referred to it, and we always ought to have a record of any paper that you have shown to the witness; but I do not think that it should go in as an exhibit because I do not think that it in any way sustains the claim made about it. It ought to be understood, once for all, that the trustees have always followed a course of the most friendly cooperation and consultation and conference with the directors of the Church with reference to anything that affected this great movement. But that is no concession of authority. The mere fact that they consult with them and get their opinion and judgment—that is what every trustee is bound to do with reference to his beneficiary.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have it identified?

The Master—It may be marked for identification. I do not admit it at present as evidence in the case.

[The document above referred to, headed "Regarding C. S.," and beginning, "The matter first to be considered is what do the initials 'C. S.' mean," is marked Exhibit 471, for identification.]

Q. Is that the signature of Mr. Eustace to the document in your hand, Mr. Dickey? (Handing paper to witness.) A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—We have no objection to that letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer this letter as evidence:

"The Christian Science Publishing Society,
"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,
"Boston, Massachusetts
"Manager's Office January 29, 1913.
"The Christian Science Board of Directors,
"The First Church of Christ, Scientist,
Boston, Mass.

"Dear Friends:

"The question of the use of the letters C. S. has come before the Board of Trustees and the board feels that it is really a matter that The Christian Science Board of Directors should decide.

"I have prepared a short brief that I think will facilitate your consideration of the question which I should like to present to you if you can spare ten minutes this afternoon or any afternoon. I will be in the trustees' room all this afternoon and I can go right over at a moment's notice if you telephone. If not today any day will suit me or if you prefer I will send the brief over to you.

"Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) "HERBERT W. EUSTACE."

[The letter from Herbert W. Eustace to The Christian Science Board of Directors, dated Jan. 29, 1913, is marked Exhibit 472. R. J. M.]

The reply to that letter is as follows:

"February 7, 1913.

"Mr. Herbert W. Eustace, Secretary,
"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Mr. Eustace:

"On Wednesday, following your personal presentation of the question regarding the use of the letters 'C. S.' in connection with the cards of practitioners, the subject was carefully considered by our board.

"I wish to advise you that we voted unanimously that the evidence submitted by you clearly confirms the fact that the letters 'C. S.' should be used in the Journal only after the names of those persons who have received class instruction from an authorized teacher of Christian Science.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "JOHN V. DITTEMORE,

"Secretary."

[The copy of the letter from John V. Dittmore to Herbert W. Eustace.

dated Feb. 7, 1913, is marked Exhibit 473. R. J. M.]

The Master—Those two letters, I understand, go in as exhibits?

Mr. Whipple—We do not make any objection to them.

The Master—They are not objected to.

Mr. Whipple—We do not admit their materiality, but it seems better to take them as showing the course of conduct.

Mr. Krauthoff—In this connection I wanted to introduce two Christian Science Journals which show that in accordance with that recommendation—

The Master—Well, why not introduce them?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am getting them, if Your Honor please. I will get them during the intermission and supply them then, if Your Honor please. They do not seem to be immediately at hand.

I offer from the records of The Christian Science Board of Directors, May 28, 1913, the following:

"Regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors, at 12 m. All members present. . . . Voted to recommend to The Christian Science Publishing Society that its employees be hereafter granted a vacation of two weeks per year instead of one week."

[The record of the meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors of May 28, 1913, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 474. R. J. M.]

Q. Do you recall that incident, Mr. Dickey? A. Yes.

Q. Was that taken up in conference with the trustees?

A. It was.

Q. And upon that recommendation of the directors did the trustees thereafter give two weeks' vacation to the employees? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, the bulletin shows they do it to all who have been there more than one year? A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—That is, they do not do it to all of them, but they do it to all of them who have been there more than a year?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is their present practice.

Mr. Whipple—In other words, the recommendation was followed in part. Is that your thought?

Mr. Krauthoff—The recommendation is that the employees "be hereafter granted a vacation of two weeks per year instead of one week."

Q. And the Publishing Society does do that to all employees who have been there more than one year? A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Dickey, referring to the annual election of editors and manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, as shown by the records, which Mr. Dane has offered in evidence, from June, 1911, until June, 1918, you participated in these annual elections as shown by the record? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Prior to the incident with regard to Mrs. Hoag succeeding Mrs. Knott as editor of the publications, was there any question raised by anybody in any form as to the power of the Board of Directors to elect those editors and business manager? A. Not—

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please.

The Master—If the question had ever come up, what was done might be important.

Mr. Krauthoff—We are proving that it never did come up.

The Master—I think I shall admit it as showing that nothing of the kind was ever discussed, or no question ever brought up.

Q. Did the editors and the manager that you elected serve as such? A. Do you want me to answer that question? I did not answer it.

Q. Oh— A. None whatever.

Q. Did the editors and the manager whom you did elect serve as such, to your knowledge? A. Always.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Dickey, that in the year 1913-1914 there were some improvements in the publishing house, or did you erect a new building at that time? A. Yes, there was a large addition built at that time.

Q. In whose hands were the details with respect to the erection of that building? A. In the hands of the Church, through its Board of Directors.

Q. The records show numerous instances of action by the Board of Directors upon that subject? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not offer these in evidence, if Your Honor please, because of their large number, but for Mr. Whipple's convenience, I will be glad to give him the dates on which the Board of Directors of The Mother Church did act on the publishing house building, so that he may cross-examine on those dates if he wishes to (passing a paper to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—Those do not interest me at all. I do not see what it has to do with any issue here. The publishing house was given by Mrs. Eddy in trust to the Church with the reservation that the Publishing Society should have quarters in it, and should have fitting quarters. Later, as I understand, the field were called upon to contribute large sums of money—I am right in that, am I not?—and the money was paid in by the field for the purpose of having the publishing house constructed. For many, many years Mr. Abbott, as it appeared the other day, held as trustee the title to the land upon which it was being constructed, not, as I understand, on any written trust. It appeared and we had knowledge for the first time the other day, that he had transferred that property to the Board of Directors, but the record of the deed was not made until after these proceedings were instituted, as we are informed as to the fact. Now, we cannot see possibly what bearing it has upon any issue here.

Mr. Krauthoff—We understood, if Your Honor please, the statement of Mr. Whipple that the Publishing Society were the real owners of the ground and the building in which they did business.

Mr. Whipple—Why don't you get the deeds and show that?

Mr. Krauthoff—As bearing upon that, in the course of our conduct, we show that the details of the erection of the building were entirely in the hands of The Christian Science Board of Directors. Now, as to the other statement that Mr. Whipple has made, the facts with respect to that will all be shown in the course of the case and in due course.

The Master—I understand that Mr. Whipple does not dispute that the additions to the building as they were made from time to time were managed by the directors?

Mr. Whipple—In consultation with the Board of Trustees, as you would naturally expect, who had greater knowledge as to the needs of the Publishing Society, and whose wishes or suggestions as to their convenience, as we understand, were always observed.

The Master—Nor do I understand Mr. Whipple to dispute that the directors were the proper persons to direct and manage those additions?

Mr. Whipple—I think that is probably so, in view of the fact that they undertook to go to the field to get the money.

The Master—There hardly seems to be any question there.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if Your Honor please, I at this time was simply proving the fact that The Christian Science Board of Directors did, in 1913 and 1914, have charge of the details of the improvements in this publishing house. Now, as to all the other things to which Mr. Whipple has referred—

The Master—We will consider that—

Mr. Krauthoff—We will consider them when they arise by due and proper evidence.

It is now half-past eleven. Shall we suspend?

The Master—If you desire. We will stop for a few minutes.

[Short recess.]

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, in connection with the testimony offered a few moments ago with respect to the letters "C. S.," I call your attention to The Christian Science Journal for September, 1913, and to the heading at the list of practitioners as it appears in this volume in the number of The Christian Science Journal, which reads as follows: "Christian Science Practitioners."

"The Practitioners whose cards appear in these columns are members of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, U. S. A., and are amenable to its discipline."

[Reading matter under heading "Christian Science Practitioners," appearing in The Christian Science Journal, September, 1913, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 475.]

Mr. Krauthoff—And as showing the change that was made, I call your attention to the wording in The Christian Science Journal for October, 1913, which reads as follows:

"Christian Science Practitioners. "The Practitioners whose cards appear in these columns are members of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, U. S. A., and are amenable to its discipline. They have presented testimony to The Christian Science Publishing Society showing that they are qualified to have their cards advertised in the Journal as practitioners of Christian Science.

"The degree C. S. D. is the Massachusetts Metaphysical College degree of Doctor of Christian Science.

"The degree C. S. B. is the Massachusetts Metaphysical College degree of Bachelor of Christian Science. This degree followed by (teacher) means one who has had normal course instruction, and has received a certificate.

"The letters C. S. after a practitioner's name designates one who has had class instruction. Those without such instruction have no designation.

"Note—Not all who have the degree of C. S. B. or C. S. D. are authorized teachers. See Article XXVI, Section 9, Church Manual. Authorized teachers hold but one class not exceeding 30 pupils each year. The teaching year begins Aug. 1."

[Reading matter under heading "Christian Science Practitioners," as appearing in The Christian Science Journal for October, 1913, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 476.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Those are offered for the purpose of showing that the recommendation or direction of the board in the premises was followed by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Mr. Whipple—Why did you use the word "direction"? It seems to have been a recommendation—at the request of the trustees.

Mr. Krauthoff—Then we will say the "decision." Mr. Eustace said it was a question to be decided by the Board of Directors. So that it was the decision of the board that was followed by the Publishing Society.

The Master—Haven't we had that before?

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon? The Master—Haven't we had all that before?

Mr. Krauthoff—Not that instance. You mean—

The Master—You want to prove the date of it, perhaps. I thought that had been gone over at some earlier stage in the case.

Mr. Krauthoff—I spoke to Mr. Eustace about it on cross-examination, and I am now offering the document in the case, and the Journal which shows the change that was made after the board wrote the letter to the trustees.

The Master—It does not show anything different from what Mr. Eustace testified to about it, does it?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was offered in order that the record of it might be shown and thus presented in its more accurate form. I do not know that there is any difference on that score between the testimony of Mr. Eustace and this. I shall be careful not to go over any subject on which we are in accord.

Q. Is this the signature of Herbert W. Eustace to the letter of Oct. 22, 1913? (Showing letter to witness.)

A. It is.

The Master—Why can't you assume that if a letter purports to be signed by Mr. Eustace it is his letter until some dispute is made.

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be very glad to do that, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Is there any objection to that?

Mr. Whipple—Not the slightest. I hope some such method will be adopted.

Mr. Krauthoff—While Mr. Whipple is examining that document I will offer from the record of the directors the meeting of Feb. 18, 1914:

"Regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors. Present, Messrs. McLellan, Dittmore, Dickey and Neal.

"Upon motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was unanimously voted that steps be taken immediately to have the Christian Science seal protected by registration or such other means as are available in the United States and all foreign countries, and with the cooperation of The Christian Science Publishing Society take steps toward having as soon as possible all authorized Christian Science literature bear upon its face this official seal."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated Feb. 18, 1914, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 477.]

Q. That seal, Mr. Dickey, refers to the cross within the crown, and the circle, that appears on the books that have been offered in evidence? A. And the legend printed in the circle, yes, sir.

Q. And this action was taken as set out in this record of Feb. 18, 1914? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, how can that possibly be material on any question of exercising control? It states that it was an action taken in cooperation with the trustees, and from the very beginning they had been cooperating. Now, this letter that is handed to me—is that in contradiction of anything Mr. Eustace has said?

Mr. Krauthoff—That letter is offered for the purpose of showing the recognition by the Publishing Society of the operative force and effect of the Manual.

Mr. Whipple—They have repeatedly said that they recognized the operative force and effect of the Manual. There is not the slightest question about it. Their complaint is that these directors are infringing upon the Manual as recognized in this trust. That is their complaint. I cannot see anything in that letter that would warrant taking steps—

The Master—It does not seem to me that it adds anything to what is undisputed in the case.

Mr. Whipple—Not at all.

The Master—But still, if Mr. Krauthoff thinks it does, I suppose I shall have to let him, under my undertaking to let him show the doings of the directors, the course of business, the acquiescence of the church members therein—I shall have to let him put it in.

Mr. Whipple—I was speaking of it merely in the interests of economy of space.

The Master—Quite so.

Mr. Whipple—If he wants it in, let it be in, except we have to pay for the printing.

Mr. Dane—There are only two sections, two paragraphs.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I don't want a paragraph left out of a letter without an explanation.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will read the whole letter, omitting the name of the gentleman to which it refers, because it is a question of discipline.

Mr. Whipple—Just wait a minute. Of course the trustees do not attempt any church discipline.

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter will speak for itself.

Mr. Streeter—I guess you better show it to us, if you are going to leave anything out of the letter, Mr. Krauthoff.

The Master—It seems like a pretty long letter.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I am willing that just that shall be read that Mr. Dane has wisely pointed out—those two last sentences. You will not object to those, General Streeter. Just read those.

Mr. Streeter—Let me see it first. (Looking at letter.)

Mr. Whipple—The two last paragraphs, the suggestion is, that he read.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I don't see what it comes to, but I do not object.

Mr. Whipple—Just identify the letter. Give the date of it anyway; from whom to whom, and read the last two paragraphs.

Mr. Krauthoff—The statement that we desire to quote from this letter reads as follows—

Mr. Thompson—What is the date of it, please?

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter is from The Christian Science Publishing Society, under date of Oct. 22, 1913, addressed to The Christian Science Board of Directors, Mr. John V. Ditte-more, Secretary, Boston, Massachusetts. It is from The Christian Science Publishing Society, the signature being "Board of Trustees, by Herbert W. Eustace, Secretary." The statement that I desire to read is as follows:

"This statement, we feel, sets forth exactly the attitude of the trustees, and if after receiving it, your board, who in the final analysis has, according to the Manual, Article VIII, Section 14, the overseeing 'that these periodicals are ably edited and kept abreast of the times,' considers that when the trustees have admitted an advertisement of either a church or a practitioner, their responsibilities cease and they need take no further cognizance of the card, the Board of Trustees is unanimous in its willingness and gladness to do this, and turn over to the Board of Directors any and all complaints that may arise about any card.

"Our desire is in no way to interfere with what is not our business, as we only desire to be helpful and not neglect anything which we should be doing, or to add to the work of your board."

Mr. Whipple—Read the last sentence, too.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"We shall appreciate your candid opinion on this matter and we wish to assure you in advance of our hearty cooperation."

[That portion of letter of Oct. 22, 1913, from Board of Trustees to Board of Directors, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 478.]

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer from the Board of Directors of June 18, 1914:

"Special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors, duly called by the clerk at 10 a. m. All members present.

"Upon motion of Mr. Dittemore, seconded by Mr. Neal, it was voted that hereafter all alterations in the publishing house building be charged to maintenance and paid by the Publishing Society."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated June 18, 1914, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 479.]

Q. Do you recall that action, Mr. Dickey? A. Yes. That was after the completion of the building and some few minor changes were being made from time to time; and to save the time of the board we asked the Publishing Society to do that themselves and pay for it.

Q. So far as you know, that was done without any question? A. It was.

Mr. Krauthoff—July 29, 1914, meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors:

"Upon motion of Mr. Dittemore, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted to recommend The Christian Science Publishing Society to translate a Christian Science lecture or other suitable fundamental statement of Christian Science into the Italian language."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated July 29, 1914, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 480.]

Q. Were steps taken to do that, Mr. Dickey? A. Yes, they were.

Q. It has not been accomplished? A. I am not aware that it has. I believe there has been an Italian pamphlet issued, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. I notice in some of these resolutions that I have read you use the word "recommend" as applied to The Christian Science Publishing Society? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your habit in dealing with them?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I pray Your Honor's judgment. The habit appears from the record, and we all of us are able to interpret the English language.

Q. Why did you use the word "recommend"?

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—I think the word will have to speak for itself, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—The point we make in that direction, if Your Honor please, is that it is claimed because we used the word "recommend" we thereby in some manner lost some of our own authority. And the explanation we desire to make is as to why the word "recommend" was used.

Mr. Whipple—That does not seem much of a point. That shows why you did not do something, instead of why you did.

The Master—I think you better go on and show what you did.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well, if Your Honor please. Aug. 12, 1914:

"Upon motion of Mr. Dittemore seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted to copy the following letter written by our beloved Leader under date of Feb. 27, 1903, into the minutes of this board, and also to publish it in full in an early issue of the Christian Science Sentinel."

[That portion of record of minutes of Board of Directors, dated Aug. 12, 1914, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 481.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, that is the letter which Mr. Dane read in evidence under date of Pleasant View, Concord, New Hampshire, Feb. 27, 1903, and it is the letter that was published in the Christian Science Sentinel under date of Aug. 22, 1914, under the heading, "Words of Counsel," and to which the attention of Mr. Eustace was called in his cross-examination.

Dec. 3, 1914:

"Present, Messrs. McLellan, Stewart, Dittemore, Dickey, and Neal.

"The board had an interview with Mr. Frederick Dixon in regard to the policy of The Christian Science Monitor in the publication of news from the countries now at war."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated Dec. 3, 1914, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 482.]

Q. In connection with that interview, Mr. Dickey, you recall Mr. Dixon was elected editor of The Monitor in the summer of 1914? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have frequent interviews with Mr. Dixon? That is, I mean the board? A. Yes, we did.

Q. From that time until when? A. Until comparatively recently.

Q. The interviews are not now taking place? A. Not as regularly as they did a few months ago.

Q. Now, the policy of The Christian Science Monitor in the "Publication of news from the countries now at war"—does that affect the cause of Christian Science as a whole? A. That policy would have some effect upon the cause as a whole; yes, sir.

Q. And you took up other matters with Mr. Dixon from time to time of the same general nature? A. Yes.

Q. Such as the Y. M. C. A., the Red Cross— A. Yes.

Q. —the government ownership of railroads— A. Yes.

Q. —and other matters? A. Other matters of public interest; yes, sir.

Q. On which you felt that the Christian Science Church should speak as a united body? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—March 31, 1915:

"Regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors. All present. Upon motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Stewart, it was voted to arrange for a Monitor meeting in The Mother Church to be addressed by Mr. Frederick Dixon on Thursday evening, April 29."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated March 31, 1915, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 483.]

Q. That meeting was held? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was the communication from the board to Mr. Dixon direct about that? A. Yes.

Q. And why did you hold The Monitor meeting in The Mother Church?

Mr. Whipple—I object, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Krauthoff—As showing the essential unity of the two so-called separate institutions, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—We have never said that we were not striving for unity. We have said repeatedly that we had striven from the outset for unity. It is only because we could not bring it about and because these gentlemen insisted upon going outside of the scope of their activities that we have—

The Master—The tendency of that action to show anything important in the case is not obvious to me. You can put it in.

A. We felt that since that newspaper belonged to the Church—

Mr. Whipple—Pardon me. I do not understand that his talk about reasons for the meeting are important.

The Master—No.

Mr. Whipple—That is what I was objecting to. His statement of his reasons for that meeting. That is excluded, I take it?

The Witness—Am I to answer?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, not for the present. May I say, if Your Honor please, in response to Your Honor's ruling, the bill tenders the issue that the Publishing Society—

The Master—We know now, I think, Mr. Krauthoff, what issues are tendered by the bill. I would not keep reciting them over and over.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Just come more directly to the point you wish to call attention to, if you please.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was just about to do that when Your Honor stopped me. July 22, 1915:

"Special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors. Present, Messrs. McLellan, Dittmore, Dickey and Neal.

"After due consideration and upon motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Dittmore, it was voted to remove the cards of the following named persons from the list of practitioners published in the columns of The Christian Science Journal."

I will omit the names.

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated July 22, 1915, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 484.]

Q. Action of that kind had been taken frequently by The Christian Science Board of Directors? A. As often as the necessity demanded; yes, sir.

Q. And in taking that action, Mr. Dickey, have you had occasion to consider the importance to the individual of having his card in The Christian Science Journal? A. We have.

Q. And some of these hearings have been somewhat complicated and extended? A. That is true.

Q. How is the privilege of having a card in The Christian Science Journal regarded by members of The Mother Church? A. Well, it is regarded as being a very desirable thing for a practitioner engaged in healing the sick to have his card appear in The Christian Science Journal.

Q. As a matter of fact, you have two lawsuits now on hand where persons whose cards have been removed are seeking to have them returned to the Journal? A. There is some litigation in progress, I believe.

Q. This list of practitioners that appears in The Christian Science Journal—is that on file in the reading rooms of the branch churches and societies and of The Mother Church? A. It is; it is published in the Journal.

Q. To what extent do these reading rooms, so far as you know, refer inquiries for practitioners to this list in the Journal? A. It is their custom to refer inquirers to this list of practitioners.

Q. You have had a card in for many years? A. Yes.

Q. And in being asked for the names of practitioners in other cities than the one in which you were engaged, or when you were not able to serve, what did you do in the way of selecting other practitioners or recommending other practitioners? A. I used the columns of the Journal.

Q. Does any authenticity or integrity attach to the persons whose name is in the Journal as a practitioner? A. There is.

Q. On Oct. 15, 1915, your record recites as follows: "The secretary was instructed to inquire of The Christian Science Publishing Society their reasons for questioning the maintenance of two Reading Rooms by the Brunswick, Maine, society." Do you recall that incident? A. I do.

Q. And how did it arise, Mr. Dickey? A. It came up on our board because we felt that that was a matter the Publishing Society should not interest themselves in, the question of what a church—

Mr. Whipple—That I ask to have stricken out.

The Master—Do you want that, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff. (To the witness)—It is not a question of what you felt. Maybe we can get at it this way. I think that may be stricken out.

The Master—Strike it out.

Mr. Whipple—The circumstances under which it arose I have no objection to the witness' stating.

Q. As I understand it, this society installed two reading rooms? A. That is so.

Q. And the Publishing Society took it up with the society? A. It did, directly.

Q. And then the matter came up before your board? A. Yes.

Q. And then you did take it up with the Publishing Society? A. Yes.

Q. There is a provision of the Manual about Reading Rooms, I believe? A. There is.

Q. By branch churches? A. There is.

Q. And the same subject seems to have come again before your board on Nov. 26, 1915.

"Oct. 20, 1915.

"The following communication was presented to the board:

"Frederick Dixon, Oct. 19, with proposed reply to Pamela Clough on the Montessori system."

The Montessori system is a system of the education of children, I believe? A. It is purported to be.

Q. And some question arose about some article in The Monitor on that system? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Dixon took up with the board his proposed reply? A. He did.

Q. Was that taken up definitely with the Board of Directors? A. With Mr. Dixon, yes, sir.

Q. Did the trustees have anything to do with it at all? A. They said nothing to us that I recall at that time.

Q. In any of your conferences with the editors and the business manager prior to this controversy did you in any way bring the trustees into the conference, or deal with them in any way, or did you deal directly with the editors and the business manager? A. We dealt directly with the editors and business manager.

Q. Was any question raised on the part of anybody as to your right or power or authority to do that? A. None whatever.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, coming down to January, 1916, you will recall that in Mr. Eustace's direct examination he identified a document that he had written in November, 1915?

Mr. Whipple—Cross-examination, was it not?

The Witness—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—Cross-examination, to be more accurate.

Q. Which he referred to as a brief upon the question of who controlled the cards in The Christian Science Journal? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that incident arising in the fall of 1915? A. I do.

Q. Then Jan. 11, 1916, your record recites: "The Board had an informal conference with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society"—

The Master—You mean 1916?

Mr. Krauthoff—1916, we are on now.

The Master—I thought you had begun with the fall of 1916?

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

The Master—It occurred to me when you spoke of January it must be January, 1917.

Mr. Krauthoff—No. If I said the fall of 1916 I made a mistake; it was the fall of 1915.

The Master—Oh, yes; thank you.

Q. On Jan. 12, 1916, the board had a conference with Mr. Frederick Dixon, editor of The Christian Science Monitor. Feb. 14, 1916, the board had a conference with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society. Do you remember the document that has been offered in evidence as having been written on Feb. 14, 1916, by the trustees, and which Mr. McKenzie— A. I do.

Q. —is said to have prepared? A. Yes.

Q. That document was presented to the Board of Directors by the three trustees? A. It was.

Q. And the original, as you recall it, bore their signatures? A. Yes.

Q. And later was returned to them? A. It was later returned.

Q. "February 15, 1916. The board had a conference with the three trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society. The trustees left with the board a letter addressed to the directors under date of Feb. 14." That letter appears to have been dated Feb. 15, but that is the letter, is it not? A. It is.

Q. "February 24, 1916. The board had a conference with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society on subjects of general interest connected with their work. Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey and Neal."

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me, Mr. Krauthoff, will you read right there all that is said in the record of 24—the directors' records of Feb. 24—relating to this matter?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have.

Mr. Streeter—Well, if you have that is all I ask.

Q. Now, that is the meeting, Mr. Dickey, at which the memorandum that has been referred to in evidence here as the Dittmore memorandum was taken up with the trustees? A. That is the meeting.

Q. Now, this memorandum of Feb. 24, 1916, has been referred to as the Dittmore memorandum; it is attached to Mr. Dittmore's answer in the trustees' case. That memorandum was worked out how, Mr. Dickey? A. That was—

Mr. Whipple—Well, I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have not offered it yet.

Mr. Whipple—That is just the trouble. You have not offered it and it isn't of any consequence how it was worked out.

The Master—Let me see if I quite grasp the question presented.

The Witness—That was prepared—

The Master—One moment.

Mr. Krauthoff—One moment.

The Witness—Pardon me.

The Master—You say that is in Mr. Dittmore's answer?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not sure.

Mr. Streeter—It is on page 80, Judge, of the Dittmore answer.

Mr. Whipple—No; this is a different thing that they have handed me.

Mr. Streeter—Well, let us see what you have got there.

Mr. Whipple—Well, it is not a thing that seems to have any author or anything else. It is a memorandum in typewriting, with nothing except that somebody penciled at the end of it "Trustees." I do not know who it is said got it up, or when it was gotten up, or anything about it.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, is that what you showed me the other day?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—The suggested record of a meeting?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—We have no objection to it as far as we are concerned.

The Master—Will you read me again what the record of the meeting said about it? Not the whole record, but just what it said about the particular document.

Mr. Krauthoff—"The board had a conference with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society on subjects of general interest connected with their work."

The Master—Oh, I don't want that.

Mr. Whipple—That is all there is.

The Master—What is there about that?

Mr. Whipple—It said nothing about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is all that the official record shows.

The Master—Oh, yes. Then the witness states that at that meeting something happened about this memorandum.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, in this conference with the trustees—

The Master—Well, what has he said? I am asking.

Mr. Whipple—He hasn't said.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am asking the question now. He hasn't said, if Your Honor please.

The Master—He hasn't said; all right.

The Witness—I would like to hear the question.

Q. In this conference with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society on subjects of general interest connected with their work, held by the Board of Directors with the trustees on Feb. 24, 1916, did the things set forth in this memorandum occur? A. That memorandum was presented to the trustees and discussed by the directors with the trustees.

Q. You mean from No. 1 on?

Mr. Whipple—Well—

Q. The question I am asking you, Mr. Dickey, is this whole document a correct statement of what happened at that conference? (Handing document to witness.) A. This is a memorandum of what transpired at that meeting.

Mr. Whipple—It doesn't show by whom it was made or its origin or anything else.

The Master—Perhaps Mr. Krauthoff was going on; let us see.

Q. Did you assist in the preparation of that document that you now hold in your hand? A. Yes. It was prepared by the secretary of the board and discussed and approved by the board.

Q. Mr. Dittmore was secretary of the board? A. He was.

The Master—I understand at the meeting of Feb. 24. Am I right?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is a record of what happened at the meeting of Feb. 24, 1916.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, no; he hasn't said that.

The Master—That is what I asked. The witness said it was prepared and discussed. I then inquired, was that at the meeting of Feb. 24?

The Witness—This was prepared, Your Honor, by the secretary, and brought into that meeting and discussed then by the directors before the trustees were present.

The Master—That answers my question. Go on, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Whipple—Then, if Your Honor please, it is not an account of what happened at the conference, of course, because it was prepared and discussed by the directors before they had a conference.

Q. Mr. Dickey, may I call your attention to the document consisting of several things? That is, it consists of a letter to the trustees, a proposed letter to the trustees, then relates some conversation, and then it begins with a memorandum in seven paragraphs? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what was it that was prepared before the trustees came over? A. The memorandum of seven paragraphs.

Q. Beginning with the figure 1? A. Beginning with paragraph 1.

Q. Now, the rest of that document, preceding paragraph 1, what is that? A. That is an account of what transpired at this interview between the directors and the trustees.

Q. And when was that prepared? A. After the meeting.

Q. And is that a correct statement of what happened at the meeting? A. It is.

Q. Did you assist in the preparation of it? A. To a limited extent.

Q. It was principally prepared by Mr. Dittmore? A. Yes.

Q. He was then the secretary of the board? A. He was.

Q. And you participated, of course, in the meeting? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer that memorandum.

Mr. Whipple—Why, I don't think that makes that memorandum of any value as a memorandum. If a man is sure of its accuracy he may take the responsibility of using it to refresh his recollection, but it is not a record in any sense. It is a mere paper that some parties get together after a conference and get up themselves. It is not certified by any secretary or anything else.

The Witness—May I say a word?

The Master—Why, isn't that true, Mr. Krauthoff? Can you treat that as a record of what took place? If it had been a record you would have put it in your record books, wouldn't you?

Mr. Krauthoff—As I understand, if Your Honor please, a record of the board proves itself; but as to a conference with these trustees as to what was said and done, the fact that the words or the documents are not spread on the record in the directors' book does not change the fact that things were said and done. The fact that it was not in the record book may have some bearing upon whether it was actually said or done, but not conclusive.

The Master—I think, then, that if this is a true statement of what took place in regard to the memorandum, that was prepared after the meeting, and that the witness took part in its preparation only to a limited extent, you will have to get his testimony as to what took place, permitting him perhaps to use the memorandum to assist his recollection, but that you have not yet made the memorandum evidence.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, at this meeting of Feb. 24, 1916, there were present Mr. Neal and Mr. Dittmore and yourself? A. Yes.

Q. Of the Board of Directors? A. Yes.

Q. And the three trustees? A. Yes.

Q. Who at that time were Messrs. McKenzie, Hatten, and Eustace? A. Yes.

Q. And who was the chairman of the meeting in the Board of Directors on that occasion? Who presided at the meeting? A. I may have done so, I have forgotten.

Q. What did you do with respect to presenting to the trustees the draft of a letter that had been proposed to be sent to them? A. We presented to them a draft of a letter.

Q. Which you had not sent? A. Which we had not sent.

Mr. Whipple—And never was sent. The Witness—Delivered to them.

Mr. Krauthoff—Not delivered, as I understand.

Mr. Whipple—Not given to them.

Mr. Bates—It was read to them.

Q. Didn't you read that letter to them at the meeting? A. Of Feb. 24.

Q. Now beginning with the words, "Your letter of Feb. 23d has been received," and going down to the tenth line on the second page, ending with the words, "is present," state whether or not that is the copy of the letter which you presented at that time?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Where is the so-called letter? Why do you use a copy? Why don't you use the paper that you claim was read, if one really was read?

Mr. Krauthoff—Our present information is that the original of that letter is not at hand.

The Witness—The original of that letter was given to the trustees on that occasion. They took it away with them.

Mr. Whipple—We have no such letter, and we deny that it was ever given to them.

The Witness—That is the one that was testified as being torn up after they got back to their meeting.

Mr. Whipple—I do not think so. I think you are mistaken in your testimony.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, the testimony is that it was delivered to the trustees, and we have asked them to produce it—

Mr. Whipple—We say that it was not.

Mr. Krauthoff—So I offer the document in its present condition.

Mr. Whipple—Well, that isn't any document. That is an alleged record that was gotten up subsequently or which you apparently thought that you might some time want to put in your records, but it was not an actual record and so you never put it in.

Mr. Krauthoff—We are not offering the whole record, if Your Honor please. We are offering that copy of the letter that was given to the trustees on that date.

Mr. Whipple—There is no verification; he cannot verify whether it was a copy or not.

Mr. Krauthoff—He states that it is.

Mr. Whipple—He states a lot of things that are impossible for any man to state or know.

The Master—The evidence being that a certain letter was delivered to the trustees on that date, the trustees' counsel stating that they now have no such letter and cannot produce it, doesn't that open the way for proof of the contents of the letter said to have been delivered by a copy? The witness testifies that this is a copy. It may or may not be—that is his testimony.

Mr. Whipple—I think the testimony of Mr. Eustace was to this effect, that something having been presented or read, there was a conference at which Mr. McKenzie was present, and this was said, "Come, now, let us tear up these papers and go along together as Christian Scientists," and it was immediately torn up right there. Am I not right? In substance, that was Mr. Eustace's testimony, that it was torn up; that this letter which they had gotten ready tentatively to present was torn up right there, and then they said, "We will go along as Christian Scientists."

The Witness—This was a letter—

Mr. Krauthoff—One moment.

The Master—Let us assume that it is torn up.

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

The Master—Isn't it now open to prove it, if material, by a copy?

Mr. Whipple—I suppose that is so, Your Honor.

Q. Did any tearing up of letters occur on February 24, 1916, at that conference? A. Not at that meeting, no.

Mr. Whipple—Do you want to ask him at what meeting it was torn up?

Q. Was it torn up at any other subsequent date, so far as you know? A. I heard it was.

Q. I mean in your presence? A. Not in my presence. I would like to make an explanation, Your Honor.

The Master—I think you had better wait, Mr. Dickey, until some question is asked of you. If your counsel desires to have you make an explanation of anything, we will see.

Mr. Thompson—Let us see that document before you put it in. Let us see what you are showing to Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—May I show that to Mr. Eustace?

[Mr. Whipple passes the document to Mr. Eustace, and then to Mr. Thompson.]

The Master—While they are looking at that, Mr. Krauthoff, I call your attention to the fact that the witness has said something about making an explanation. Is there anything you desire to have him explain?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, thank you.

Q. Was there some explanation that you desired to make in connection with what you have just said, Mr. Dickey? A. That letter that was given to the trustees was accompanied by the memorandum which follows there, beginning with Number 1 down to Number 7. That memorandum was read and discussed at that meeting.

Mr. Krauthoff—We will get to that presently, Mr. Dickey.

Mr. Thompson—We make no objection, but we do not feel called on to make any statement in regard to it, although we are fully advised as to what actually took place.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, this is the letter which Mr. Dickey testifies was given to the trustees at this meeting on Feb. 24, 1916:

"Your letter of February 23d has been received.

"To fulfill certain conditions simply in order to maintain a semblance of harmony would be to cry 'Peace, peace, when there is no peace.'

"We have made a very earnest effort to establish a basis for cooperation to the end that increased efficiency might result in the work of The Christian Science Publishing Society. When we undertook this duty we were unaware that a new concept of your trusteeship had been evolved and adopted by you. We, like most other Christian Scientists, had supposed that your trusteeship was a subordinate body which held and managed certain valuable property subject to the general direction and supervision of The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"We are not without previous experience in noting the tendency of departments of the work of The Mother Church to assume an independence of policy and action, which, carried to its ultimate conclusion, would destroy the unity of our Leader's demonstration for the government of The Mother Church.

"This church is one institution, and this board is charged with the inescapable responsibility of demonstrating the direction of its affairs. Mrs. Eddy says:

"I deprecate personal animosities and quarrels. But if one is intrusted with the rules of church government, to fulfill that trust those rules must be carried out' (Miscellaneous Writings 284:29).

"It is not our intention to in any way shirk our duties as we understand them. Under the circumstances which have developed, we do not feel called upon to take any further responsibility in this matter until our full board is present."

Mr. Streeter—By whom is that signed?

Q. By whom was that signed? A.

The Christian Science Board of Directors.

Q. Through Mr. Dittmore, its secretary? A. Through its secretary.

Q. And by whom was the letter prepared? A. It was prepared by the secretary and brought into the meeting and approved by the board.

Q. In that letter you refer to the letter of the trustees of Feb. 23, 1916? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what has become of the original of the letter of the trustees of Feb. 23, 1916? A. I believe it was returned—No, I do not think that that was the date. I do not know about that letter of Feb. 23, unless I could see it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Will you see if there is any copy of that in your files, Mr. Whipple? We have not the original for some reason.

The Witness—I do not recall it now.

Q. Now at this meeting, after reading this letter to the trustees, what then took place? A. We read the memorandum attached thereto, paragraph by paragraph, and discussed each paragraph as we read it.

Q. Now, is the memorandum that you discussed at that meeting set out in that document? A. It is.

Q. Beginning where? A. Beginning about the middle of the second page with paragraph numbered 1.

Q. And going how far? A. And going four pages, to the end of paragraph 7, which is subdivided into sections lettered from A to H.

Q. Now, this memorandum that you have identified, being paragraphs numbered from 1 to 7, both inclusive, including the subdivisions lettered from A to H, what did the trustees at that meeting do orally with respect to that memorandum?

Mr. Whipple—Well, I suppose that means what did they say, if anything, and who said it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, what did they say and who said it.

Q. The question is, what did they say, Mr. Dickey, and who said it? A. They said that they—

Mr. Whipple—Well, I do not know what "doing orally" is.

The Witness—They said that represented—

Q. I mean they—each one of them. A. The trustees—Mr. Eustace was the spokesman and said that was a satisfactory agreement to them, they accepted it as defining the relations between the directors and the trustees, they were perfectly agreeable to everything contained in those paragraphs as read.

Q. Now the statement—

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, to be certain, may I ask if the memorandum that Mr. Dickey is testifying about is the one that we have called the Dittmore memorandum that is in the end of Dittmore's answer on page 80?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is.

Mr. Streeter—That is the same one?

The Witness—That is the one, yes. We asked them at that time if the—

Q. Wait a moment, Mr. Dickey. You have stated what Mr. Eustace said. Did he state that in the presence of Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Hatten, the other two trustees? A. He did.

Q. What, if anything, did they say? A. They all agreed to that.

Q. What did one—it is not what they agreed. What did Mr. McKenzie say? A. Mr. McKenzie accepted it as being a satisfactory statement.

Q. What did he say? A. He said, "This is all right, it suits me."

Q. And Mr. Hatten? A. Mr. Hatten said, "That is quite satisfactory to me."

Q. Now, what, if anything, did any of the directors say—not what "we said"—what did you say, or Mr. Dittmore say, or Mr. Neal say? A. I asked them if they would attach their signatures to that document—

Q. Who answered it? A. —so as to go on record permanently and have their attitude fairly defined in writing.

Q. And who answered for the trustees? A. Mr. Eustace replied that they hadn't the slightest objection to anything in the paragraphs, but he thought they had better not sign it, for the reason that it might be considered equivalent to making a new by-law and the trustees would not like to be placed in the light of creating by-laws; therefore, they asked us if we would not be satisfied with their acceptance of it and that it would be kept as a gentleman's agreement without any writing connected with it.

Q. What, if any, answer did any of the directors make to that statement, and who made the statement? A. I assented to that, a little reluctantly, however. Mr. Dittmore and Mr. Neal also assented to that.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer, if Your Honor please, the paragraphs numbered from 1 to 7, both inclusive, including the subdivisions lettered A to H.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, we make the same objection that we have made to some other papers. If it is offered merely to show a course of conduct and an attempt to compromise, I do not know that it is of very much consequence one way or the other. If it is offered in any way to affect the Trust Deed or to change its import, or as an estoppel by conduct, then we think it is entirely inadmissible, because the Trust Deed cannot be affected in its terms by the agreement of any trustee for the time being; his opinion or his conduct cannot affect the obligations of that Trust Deed in respect of his duties or responsibilities.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is offered, if Your Honor please, for what it is, and I assume that the Court will determine its force and effect.

The Master—I think you may put it in.

The Witness—May I say something in addition?

Q. Did you answer fully, or did you want to say something further?

A. No. I would like to add something to that answer. In our discussions of this we took the language of the Trust Deed and the language of the Manual, and we agreed that there could be no conflict between the Trust Deed and the Manual.

Q. You say, "we agreed," Mr. Dickey. You will have to state who said it and what he said. A. Well, I think we all participated in that conversation. It was taken at some length, and we discussed the Trust Deed and the Manual together in that connection.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now we offer—

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I take it that "we agreed" will be stricken out because—

The Master—You do not want that, do you?

Mr. Whipple—That is an inference.

Q. What did they say, Mr. Dickey? A. Mr. Eustace said that was a satisfactory interpretation of the relations of the two boards, and I agreed to that, and I believe Mr. Dittmore and Mr. Neal—I know they also agreed to that.

Q. You say, "they agreed"; what did they say, Mr. Dickey? A. They said—

Q. In substance? A. In substance—

Mr. Whipple—Well, of course they did not talk in concert. Just tell us.

Q. I mean what did they say in substance?

The Master—He has given that, hasn't he? No, he has given what Mr. Eustace said in substance. Now what did you say?

Q. What did you say?

A. I stated that this memorandum stated my concept of the adjustment that we had arrived at between the trust deed and the Manual, and that it was quite satisfactory to me if they would sign it. I also agreed afterward that Mr. Eustace would keep his gentleman's agreement—

Q. You said, you mean? A. I said that that would be satisfactory. The other directors concurred in that.

Q. Leave out the word "agreed," Mr. Dickey, and tell who said it and what they said. Now, what did Mr. Dittmore say? A. Mr. Dittmore said that nothing short of what was contained in those memoranda would be satisfactory to him, but that if they would keep to this that would settle the whole dispute between the directors and the trustees.

Q. And what did Mr. Neal say? A. Mr. Neal said substantially the same thing.

Q. Now, in the course of this conference did you have a copy of the Deed of Trust before you? A. We did.

Q. And the Manual, of course? A. And the Manual.

Q. And you took up, as you said a moment ago, the provisions of the Deed of Trust and the Manual? A. We did.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer this document, paragraph 1—

The Master—Now, let me ask, Mr. Krauthoff. We have this in the pleadings, in print in full, haven't we?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have never compared it. I have understood it was there.

The Master—Oh, you are not prepared to say that we have got it exactly as it reads there in print in the pleadings? If that be the case I suppose you will have to go ahead and read it.

Mr. Whipple—Couldn't it be compared privately, if Your Honor please, without taking up the time while we are all waiting?

The Master—My suggestion is made for this reason only—that it seems hardly worth while taking up our time to read word for word what we have in print before us, if it be true that we have just the same thing in print before us.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will undertake to do that at noon, if Your Honor please. And then at 2 o'clock I will state whether or not it is correctly set out in the pleadings.

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is Mr. Dittmore's answer to the trustees' case.

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

Mr. Thompson—Haven't you admitted that it is in your answer to Mr. Dittmore?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not recall.

Mr. Bates—We have not had any occasion to admit what is in your answer, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, Feb. 28, 1916:

"On the request of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, they met with the directors.

"The trustees presented for the consideration and approval of the directors a revised form of announcement to be placed at the head of the church and practitioner department of the Journal, and form letters to be sent to persons requesting recognition for churches and societies.

"The trustees read to the directors a list of those employees who are paid annual salaries of $3000 or more."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated Feb. 28, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 485.]

Q. Did those incidents occur on Feb. 28, 1916? A. They did.

Q. And what was the state of the relations between the trustees and the directors of Feb. 28, 1916?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please.

The Master—I did not get the question.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am offering to prove how they got along with each other on the 28th of February—

Mr. Whipple—He asked, what was the state of the relations, and if that does not call for an opinion I do not know what does.

The Master—Why not ask what was said?

Q. I mean, was everything entirely harmonious on the 28th of February? A. It was, and we—

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Isn't that going a little too far, Mr. Krauthoff?

Q. Did any controversy of any kind arise on the 28th of February?

Mr. Whipple—Well, if Your Honor please, it does not appear they were meeting together then.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, it does. It says that "On the request of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society they met the directors."

Mr. Whipple—Yes; you are right about that.

Mr. Krauthoff—And we are offering generally that everything was serene and harmonious on that occasion.

The Master—Does the record say anything more?

Mr. Krauthoff—No. The record just simply says they met and took up certain things.

The Master—I think you may ask if any controversy arose at that meeting.

Q. Did any controversy arise at that meeting? A. No, none. We agreed—or, rather, they presented this recommendation to us and we accepted it.

Mr. Whipple—What recommendation? Let me see the recommendation. (Referring to records.) It does not appear that there is any recommendation mentioned there. The habit of construing these things to be something they are not seems to be prevalent.

Mr. Bates—We have noticed that.

Mr. Whipple—Well, you want to reform it, then, because your side has been the guilty party.

Mr. Bates—We have tried to reform you but we can't.

Mr. Krauthoff—March 6, 1916:

"Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey and Neal.

"The Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with the Directors and discussed with them the subject-matter of the letters sent to churches and societies desiring recognition by cards in the Christian Science Journal."

[That portion of the record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated March 6, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 486.]

Q. Did that conference occur, Mr. Dickey? A. It did.

Mr. Whipple—Why should those questions be put? We read the record—

The Master—Having read the record. I think we might assume—

Mr. Whipple—He is asking this gentleman to verify the record when it is verified by the signatures.

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall not verify in duplicate. March 13, 1916:

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with the directors and discussed further the subject-matter of the letters sent to churches and societies desiring recognition by cards in The Christian Science Journal.

"There was also a discussion of the proposed appointments to the Bible Lesson Committee, and the trustees presented to the directors a statement showing the growth and circulation of The Christian Science Monitor."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated March 13, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 487.]

Q. Now, this Bible Lesson Committee to which reference is here made. Is that the committee appointed by the Publishing Society for preparing the Bible Lessons, or the Lesson Sermons read in Christian Science churches? A. Yes; under the Trust Deed.

Q. And what had been the practice with respect to the trustees and the directors conferring as to the personnel of the Bible Lesson Committee?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Do you want to amend or add to the records you have put in on the subject? If every conference appears to be recorded, why don't you rely on the record?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I do not expect to read every one of them. I can do that if you prefer.

Mr. Whipple—Unfortunately, you have. I have not seen that you have omitted any conference.

Mr. Krauthoff—I asked the general question what the practice had been in respect to conferring about it?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, Your Honor.

The Witness—The Deed of Trust—The Master—One moment. What the practice had been?

Mr. Krauthoff—What the practice has been prior to this last controversy, in the fall of 1918, with respect to the trustees conferring with the directors?

The Master—I think he can answer that. I can't see any harm in it.

A. The trustees have always conferred with the directors in regard to their appointments on the Bible Lesson Committee.

Mr. Krauthoff—March 20, 1916:

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with the directors and discussed various revisions of the application blanks and circular letters sent to churches, societies, practitioners and nurses desiring recognition by cards in The Christian Science Journal.

"There was also a discussion of the question of keeping the term Christian Science in the English language in foreign translations of Christian Science literature. No decision was reached."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated March 20, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 488.]

Mr. Krauthoff—March 27, 1916:

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with the directors and discussed the revised list of questions to be asked persons requesting practitioners' cards in The Christian Science Journal."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated March 27, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 489.]

Mr. Krauthoff—On April 3, 1916:

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with the directors and discussed several questions of interest to The Mother Church, including a plan for the Publishing Society to extend credits to Christian Science reading rooms and the question of revising the hours for employees in the Publishing Society."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated April 3, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 490.]

Mr. Krauthoff—June 12, 1916:

"At this point the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society requested and were granted a conference with the directors with regard to the publication of their new pamphlet, 'Memorandum C.'"

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated June 12, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 491.]

The Master—I think you put in the trustees' record about that.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if Your Honor please.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, with respect to this Memorandum C. That is the document Mr. Eustace identified, being the document sent to the churches for literature distribution purposes? A. Yes.

Q. And that document was taken up with the directors and the trustees together? A. It was.

Q. Did the trustees take up Memorandum D with you? A. They did not. They took up C at our request.

Q. Do you recall the fact that in the year 1916 Mr. Willis was elected an editor? A. I didn't know he was elected in 1916.

Q. Oh, Mr. McCrackan. Excuse me. A. Mr. McCrackan, yes.

Q. Was elected in 1916? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer a letter from The Christian Science Publishing Society, under date of June 9, 1916. (Handing paper to counsel.) While counsel are examining that, if Your Honor please, may I ask, for the information of all of us—are we to have a session tomorrow?

The Master—What is the desire of counsel about that? I shall follow whatever that is.

Mr. Whipple—We all desire to go ahead.

Mr. Krauthoff—May we speak about it at 2 o'clock?

Mr. Whipple—We desire to make speed as fast as we can.

Mr. Streeter—While we do not want to go on tomorrow, we feel we ought to go on tomorrow and see if we can't get to an end of this case sometime.

Mr. Whipple—We are all willing to make sacrifices, and I assume we will go on tomorrow.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was not speaking for anyone but myself, and if we have anything further to say we will say it at 2 o'clock.

This is a letter to The Christian Science Board of Directors from The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated June 9, 1916:

"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,
"Boston, Massachusetts,

"Manager's Office, June 9, 1916.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"As a change will have to be made in the plate from which the Journal cover is printed, the Board of Trustees would like to know if in the place of Mr. Willis the name of Mr. McCrackan is to appear as one of the Associate Editors.

"We should like to know this at once, as the Sentinel for June 17 will go to press on the 10th in usual course, and a change must be made there too.

"Very sincerely yours,
"Board of Trustees,

"HERBERT W. EUSTACE,
"Secretary."

[Letter, Board of Trustees to Board of Directors, June 9, 1916, is marked Exhibit 492.]

Mr. Krauthoff—The answer to that is dated June 9, 1916:

[Copy of Exhibit 493.]

"June 9, 1916

"The Christian Science Publishing Society

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"In reply to your inquiry concerning the changing of the name of Mr. John B. Willis on the outside cover of The Christian Science Journal and Christian Science Sentinel, and substituting the name of Mr. William D. McCrackan as Associate Editor, we would say that this matter was brought up at a Board meeting today and Mr. McLellan explained to the Board that he had already provided for the change mentioned.

"Very sincerely yours,
"THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
"BOARD OF DIRECTORS."

"AHD/CEJ"

[Copy of letter from Board of Directors to The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated June 9, 1916, is marked Exhibit 493.]

Mr. Krauthoff—At this point we will suspend until 2 o'clock.

The Master—Suspend until 2 o'clock,

[Recess until 2 p. m.]

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, at the time of adjournment the question was asked with respect to a session on tomorrow, Friday, and we stated that if we had anything to offer with respect to that we would do so at this time. It is agreeable to us to proceed on tomorrow if such is the desire of the Master and of other counsel.

The Master—I am entirely ready to proceed tomorrow if counsel are. What about Saturday?

Mr. Streeter—Isn't that a terrible suggestion on the part of the Court? Of course, if the Court says so, we will come.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think there is a general understanding that we do not meet on Saturday. We would prefer not to meet on Saturday, I take the liberty of saying.

The Master—If that is the understanding among counsel, it is agreeable to the Master. We ought, of course, to use all the time we can.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you. With respect to the memorandum that Mr. Dickey identified as the memorandum discussed at the meeting of Feb. 24, 1916, we have compared the paper which Mr. Dickey identified with the memorandum appearing at the end of paragraph 20 of the answer of Mr. Dittemore in the Eustace case, and that memorandum is there correctly set forth, beginning with the figure 1. The title in the answer is not a part of the document as identified by Mr. Dickey.

Q. A meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors on Aug. 8, 1916:

"Letters were read from the following:

"Charles W. J. Tennant, dated London, July 27, relative to the outcome of the suit against Mrs. Annie C. Bill. Corresponding secretary instructed to transmit copies of above letter to trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and to the manager of the Committees on Publication."

Q. Mr. Dickey, what was the Annie C. Bill litigation? A. It was a suit brought against Mrs. Annie C. Bill to prevent her from publishing an infringement on The Christian Science Journal and Sentinel.

Q. A suit brought by The Christian Science Publishing Society? A. Yes.

The Master—I suppose he means infringement of copyright, doesn't he?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. You mean an infringement of copyright? A. Yes.

Q. And did the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society take up the incidents of that suit with the Board of Directors? A. We talked them over together, yes.

Q. And who conducted the correspondence with London? A. It was done by The Mother Church.

Mr. Whipple—Well, does it appear any more than that some one from London wrote to The Mother Church about it? You have not shown any letters that they sent about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Dickey has stated, generally, that The Mother Church conducted the correspondence.

Mr. Whipple—Yes. I notice you like those general statements, but why don't you come down to the specific point and show us any letters, and then we can see what they are and how they happened to be written?

Mr. Krauthoff—We will produce at the next hearing a complete file with respect to the Annie C. Bill suit, together with a copy of the suit itself.

Mr. Whipple—Well, in the meantime the testimony, I take it, may be stricken out, about conducting the correspondence.

Mr. Bates—Oh, no.

Mr. Krauthoff—He has stated that they conducted the correspondence. That is the fact.

Mr. Whipple—It may have been only one letter and a reply.

[The last question and answer are read by the stenographer.]

The Master—That is not responsive. He was asked who, what persons, conducted the correspondence. He did not tell us.

Q. By The Mother Church what do you mean? A. By its Board of Directors.

Mr. Whipple—Well, the Board of Directors didn't write the letter.

The Master—No, that is not an answer. Who conducted the correspondence? That means what persons.

Q. Was that correspondence conducted by Mr. Jarvis? A. By the secretary of the Board of Directors.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, we would like the letters.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, they will be here in the morning.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

Mr. Krauthoff—The Aug. 8, 1916, meeting further shows the following:

"Detailed report of The Christian Science Publishing Society showing Monitor income and outgo for six months ending June 30, 1916, was read, and upon motion of Mr. Dittemore, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted that a committee be appointed from the Board of Directors to confer with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society for consideration of the entire question of the deficit now shown by The Monitor department, and to report its findings back to the board. The chair appointed Mr. Dittemore and Mr. Neal to serve as such committee."

Mr. Thompson—Who was acting as chairman at that time?

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Stewart.

Mr. Thompson—Does the record show that?

Mr. Krauthoff—He signed it as chairman. We will verify that. The minutes are signed "Allison V. Stewart, Chairman."

Q. (Reading:) "Monday, Sept. 11, 1916.

"At a special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors held at 2 o'clock p. m. on above date in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. McLellan, Stewart, Dickey and Neal; also the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, Messrs. Thomas W. Hatten, William P. McKenzie and Herbert W. Eustace.

"A letter was read from Mr. McLellan to the Board of Trustees of the Publishing Society dated July 21, 1916, asking that Mrs. Myra B. Lord be made Editorial Manager of the Christian Science periodicals and her salary made commensurate with the work performed by her.

"After some discussion of the question, it was referred back to the trustees of the Publishing Society with the understanding that since Mrs. Lord's position would not be an editorial one, the question of salary should be settled by them."

Mr. Dickey, Mr. McLellan was a member of the Board of Directors during the time that you were there, up to July, 1917? A. He was.

Q. And at the time that he was a member of the Board of Directors what was the practice and habit of the board with respect to communicating with the editorial department of the Christian Science periodicals? A. Mr. McLellan was the editor-in-chief of the periodicals, and also sat on the board as a member, and our communications with regard to publications in the church periodicals were made through Mr. McLellan.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer at this time a letter from the Board of Trustees to the Board of Directors with respect to the establishment of a library for The Monitor.

[This letter is shown to counsel.]

[An extract from the directors' records, from the meeting of Jan. 17, 1917, is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Jan. 17, 1917.

"At the request of the directors, Mr. Frederick Dixon, editor of The Christian Science Monitor, appeared before the board for a conference with regard to certain phases of the problem of the foreign languages versus the English language. Mr. Dixon asked the cooperation of The Christian Science Church and of The Christian Science Publishing Society in a righteous endeavor to prevent encroachments on the English language through foreign channels. The question of printing the English version on the opposite pages of all translations into foreign languages was discussed. Mr. Dittemore asked permission to read to Mr. Dixon his letter to The Christian Science Board of Directors, dated Jan. 8, 1917, which was granted, and the letter read.

"After Mr. Dixon left the meeting, the following motion was made by Mr. Dittmore and seconded by Mr. Dickey, viz.:

"That the editor of The Christian Science Monitor be authorized to editorially and through the news columns of The Monitor indorse and support an alliance of the English-speaking peoples, and that the Christian Science Sentinel be asked to support this policy of The Monitor through the wise, metaphysical interpretation of this and other subjects of broad international significance as they are referred to in The Monitor.

"After some discussion of the question, it was laid on the table, to be taken up at the next meeting of the board."

Mr. Krauthoff—"Thursday, Jan. 18, 1917—"

Mr. Thompson—Just a moment. Before you pass on to that we think that letter of Mr. Dittmore's of Jan. 8, being part of the proceedings, if you are going to read them, ought to go in.

Mr. Krauthoff—Have you the letter?

Mr. Thompson—Of course not; it is in your possession.

Mr. Krauthoff—I mean, have you your copy?

Mr. Thompson—I dare say, but haven't you got it? We called upon you to have them ready. You certainly would not put in the proceedings of the meeting and leave out a letter like that, would you?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am just now putting in evidence on the trustees' case. I am quite willing to put in the letter.

Mr. Thompson—True enough; but that doesn't entitle you to mangle the proceedings.

Mr. Krauthoff—"Thursday, Jan. 18, 1917—"

Mr. Thompson—Just a moment. If you are now proceeding—

Mr. Krauthoff—I am on the same subject. When I find the letter I will read it. It was written by Mr. Dittmore, on Jan. 8, 1917. "Thursday, Jan. 18, 1917"—

Mr. Thompson—Just a moment. What are you reading now—some directors' record?

Mr. Krauthoff—Directors' record.

Mr. Thompson—Why don't you put in that letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I will as soon as it is handed to me.

Mr. Thompson—I have got a copy of it here.

Mr. Whipple—I am talking about the letter which you asked me to look at.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, I wanted to finish this about the English language while I was in the midst of it.

Mr. Whipple—All right. We are getting into chronological order now.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

[An extract from the directors' records, of Thursday, Jan. 18, 1917, is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The motion introduced by Mr. Dittmore at the meeting of the directors on Jan. 17 was taken from the table and the discussion thereof resumed.

Mr. Dixon was sent for, and, after conferring further with him, and he had left the board room, the motion was amended and passed unanimously as follows:

"Voted, That the editor of The Christian Science Monitor be authorized to, editorially through the columns of The Monitor, indorse a policy of cooperation among all English-speaking peoples for the peace and religious freedom of the world, and that the Christian Science Sentinel be asked to support this policy of The Monitor through a wise, metaphysical interpretation of this and other subjects of broad international significance, and that a copy of this motion be sent to the editors of the Sentinel and of The Monitor."

Mr. Thompson—Now, I have a copy of that letter. If you haven't the original I will read in the copy.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have the original.

Mr. Thompson—Let me look at it, will you?

[This letter is handed to counsel.]

Q. Mr. Dickey, with respect to the use of the English language, state whether or not the Board of Directors regards that as one of the questions which affect the cause of Christian Science as a whole? A. They do.

Mr. Whipple—How is that material? What if they did?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, if Your Honor please, the statement of the directors to the trustees at the time of the controversy was that the Board of Directors should have the final authority with everything respecting the cause of Christian Science as a whole. I am asking him if this is one of the things that he regarded as affecting the cause of Christian Science as a whole, within the meaning of that requirement?

The Master—I think I shall let him answer.

A. They did.

Mr. Thompson—Now will you read that letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—Certainly. Now I will read the letter of Mr. Dittmore, under date of Jan. 8, 1917, written on that subject referred to in the record. [A letter from John V. Dittmore to the Board of Directors, Jan. 8, 1917, is marked Exhibit 494, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

[Exhibit 494.]

"January 8, 1917.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"The First Church of Christ, Scientist, "Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"On December 28th the editor of The Christian Science Monitor came before this Board and in a more detailed and comprehensive way than at any previous conference he analyzed the international political situation and discussed the trend of human events. At this conference the editor of The Monitor recommended that the Christian Science Church through its periodicals should initiate and support a movement looking toward an alliance of the English-speaking peoples as a step toward the solution of the problem of attaining and maintaining world peace, and gave the reasons for his recommendations. The metaphysical analysis of the 'nations' drama' was considered in detail. The historical lineage of Christian Science and its direct bearing on the present demands upon our literature was also clearly set forth. Since the close of this interview, no discussion or consideration has been given to the subject by this Board, notwithstanding the fact that no more vital question confronts the human race at the present time.

"It is my purpose by this letter to recall to our thought that our Leader through her By-Laws has charged this board with the inescapable responsibility of keeping our publications 'abreast of the times.' In order to fulfill this duty God demands in this eventful hour that we shall 'discern the signs of the times' as interpreted by Christian Science through history, prophecy and revelation, and that the Christian Science movement shall point the way not only for those 'of our own fold,' but for all those who are ready to 'hear His voice.' In the words of our Leader, 'We are in the midst of a revolution; physics are yielding slowly to metaphysics; mortal mind rebels at its own boundaries; weary of matter, it would catch the meaning of Spirit.' (Christian Healing, p. 11, 11. 6-9.)

"To enable mortal mind to 'catch the meaning of Spirit' by 'spreading undivided' the record and scientific interpretation of current history and to 'hold guard' over the messages of Truth are the vital duties of The Monitor and the Sentinel. In order, therefore, for these publications to perform the functions for which their founder provided them, three things are absolutely essential.

"1st—A definite editorial and news policy for The Monitor based not upon the physical testimony of the kaleidoscope of mortal mind, but upon the metaphysical evidence which comes through inspiration and demonstration. It is such a policy wisely directed and uninfluenced by any sense of expediency which the editor of The Monitor is evidently striving to attain.

"2d. The adoption of a policy for the Sentinel which will afford proof that it is 'abreast of the times,' interpreting for the great body of Christian Scientists the 'signs mental,' as well as the current effects of Truth's activity. It is the duty of the Sentinel to point the way to the universal responsibilities of Christian Scientists for the protection and deliverance of the whole world.

"3d. A constant and hearty cooperation between the editorial management of The Monitor and of the Sentinel to the end that they may supplement each other and thereby gain for

The Monitor especially the sustaining and directing force of the awakened mental activity of all Christian Scientists.

"As a preliminary step, and in order to initiate an orderly plan of working toward the ultimate goal, I would propose that the leading Monitor editorials each Saturday be made to cover some broad phase of human history or international affairs as they already frequently do. I would also propose that in the issue of the Sentinel of the same Saturday one of our editors be instructed to cover the same questions from a strictly metaphysical standpoint for the benefit of students of Christian Science. In a way this has already been done to a certain extent by some of the Sentinel editorials, although not yet as a definite policy.

"With the earnest hope that these vital matters may be fully considered and acted upon and the present situation improved in the immediate future, I am

"Very sincerely,
"JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

"J. V. D.—L."

I offer also this letter from The Christian Science Publishing Society, under date of Nov. 22, 1916:

"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Manager's Office.

"November 22, 1916.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"In a conference with the directors six months ago, the need of provision for a library for the use of The Monitor was presented. The need for such a library is still apparent, as shown by the two letters inclosed, indicating the way in which the question presents itself to the Editor and his assistants.

"The expansion of the stencils department would at the present time require for convenient service the room now used as the index room.

"The Editor's proposal to ask for two rooms will, under the circumstances, require considerable readjustment. When the rooms occupied by the Committee on Publication can be made available for the uses of the business, two of these rooms would exactly meet the need for a Monitor library.

"Yours respectfully,

"BOARD OF TRUSTEES,
"By Wm. P. McKenzie."

[The letter from William P. McKenzie to The Christian Science Board of Directors, dated Nov. 22, 1916, of which the foregoing is a copy, is marked Exhibit 495. R. J. M.]

Now, we are not offering the two editor's letters attached because we do not think they are important in this particular; and, upon reading that letter, if Your Honor please, I am constrained to believe that I offered it in error. It seems to relate to rooms occupied by the Committee on Publication, which was a Church activity, and of course it would be proper to ask the Board of Directors to move the Committee on Publication. I should be very glad to withdraw the letter.

The Master—Is there any objection?

Mr. Whipple—I think it had better stand. I think it showed the relations between the parties.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, let it stand with the explanation that I have made.

Mr. Whipple—It is quite as important as the other letters that have been put in showing their relations.

Mr. Krauthoff—From the record of the meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors held on Feb. 9, 1917, I will offer the following:

"On motion of Mr. Dickey, seconded by Mr. Neal, the board voted that the editorial department of The Christian Science Publishing Society be requested to send to the corresponding secretary of The Christian Science Board of Directors a list of all contributors of articles to The Christian Science Journal and Christian Science Sentinel that are received from time to time, the notice to be given immediately upon receipt of the articles and to include therein the name of the contributor and the subject written upon.

"The editorial policy of the Sentinel and Journal was discussed and the members expressed themselves freely in regard thereto."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated Feb. 9, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 496. R. J. M.]

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, with respect to asking for these names of the contributors to the Christian Science periodicals, what is the point in that?

Mr. Whipple—I object to that, if Your Honor please.

The Master—I think you will have to ask him a definite question.

Q. What was the reason you asked for that? Why did you ask for it?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please. The undisclosed reasons of the directors in making the request cannot be of material importance.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, they can, if Your Honor please, as showing the importance of it and the necessity for it and what induced them to do it. One of the allegations in the bill is that we asked for things capriciously, upon one excuse and another we did this or that or something else, and we offer to show—

The Master—I do not think you can go into his undisclosed reasons.

Mr. Krauthoff—You mean the Board of Directors must disclose their reasons to the trustees in each case?

Mr. Whipple—They need not disclose them, except if they want to put them in evidence they must disclose them. You are asking him to disclose them now.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, we offer to prove, if Your Honor please, that the Board of Directors asked for this in order to prevent the possibility of articles appearing in the periodicals which were contributed to the periodicals by persons who had been disciplined in The Mother Church, or who at the time were under charges affecting discipline, and that the editorial department complied with their request.

The Master—I have not made any ruling against showing what the editorial department did with regard to any request.

Mr. Krauthoff—Then I will reserve the proof until I reach that, if Your Honor please.

I will offer the following records from the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 10, 1917:

"It was moved by Mr. Dickey, seconded by Mr. Neal and voted to publish in the Sentinel in parallel columns the poem 'Greeting from England' as originally published in the London Chronicle in 1898, together with the poem in reply by Mrs. Eddy, entitled, 'The United States to Great Britain' from the Boston Herald of May 15, 1898, and appearing on page 337 of Miscellany, together with an appropriate note of explanation over the signature of The Christian Science Board of Directors."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 10, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 497. R. J. M.]

Q. Was that done, Mr. Dickey? A. It was.

Q. It appeared in the Sentinel? Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer the following from the record of the meeting of Feb. 15, 1917:

"The question of fire protection for the rear of the Publishing House was brought up and the Corresponding Secretary was instructed to have the Purchasing Department of The Christian Science Publishing Society investigate and report to the board the cost of installing collapsible shutters on all windows in the Publishing House opposite buildings which are separated therefrom by the width of the alley only. The Corresponding Secretary was also instructed to ascertain to what extent the installation of such devices would reduce the insurance rate."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 15, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 498, R. J. M.]

Q. Were those shutters installed? A. We recommended them.

Q. You do not know whether they were? A. I believe they were, yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer the following from the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 21, 1917:

"Letters were read from the following:

Countess Elsie H. de Festetics of New York City, dated Feb. 19th (referred to the board by the Publishing Society) asking if her title might appear in her card in the Journal. The board could see no objection to granting the request and the Corresponding Secretary was instructed to advise the Publishing Society accordingly."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 21, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 499. R. J. M.]

Also the following from the record of the meeting of Feb. 28, 1917:

"Letters were read from the following:

"Mr. John S. Braithwaite, dated Dover, February 27th (cablegram), announcing that he had telegraphed instructions to cancel his lecture dates in America and Mr. McLellan was requested to make announcement in the Sentinel accordingly."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 28, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 500. R. J. M.]

Q. Mr. McLellan is the gentleman of whom you have just spoken as a member of the Board of Directors and also editor of the Sentinel? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer the following from the record of the Board of Directors of March 8, 1917:

"Letters were read from the following:

"Literature distribution executive committee dated Boston, March 5th, requesting permission to call a meeting of the practitioners in Boston for the purpose of securing the names of receptive persons for a mailing list, and to have such a meeting addressed by Mr. Frederick Dixon, editor of The Christian Science Monitor, and Judge Clifford P. Smith, manager of committees on publication. Upon the above recommendation, and on motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Dickey, the board voted to grant the request."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of March 8, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 501. R. J. M.]

Also the following from the record of the meeting of Friday, March 16, 1917:

"The corresponding secretary submitted a report on the names of contributors of articles to the Sentinel and Journal as submitted by the editorial department, and was instructed to send a copy of any complaints against such members of The Mother Church to the editorial department."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of March 16, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 502. R. J. M.]

I offer the following from the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Friday, April 6, 1917:

"Upon motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Dickey, the board voted to request the editorial department to publish the last paragraph of the leading editorial in The Christian Science Monitor of April 4, 1917, entitled 'The Crucible,' in a box at the head of the editorial column in the Christian Science Sentinel of April 14, 1917."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of April 6, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 503. R. J. M.]

Q. That was done, Mr. Dickey? A. It was.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer the following from the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of April 13, 1917:

"Letters were read from the following: . . . Mr. Archibald McLellan, editor, The Christian Science Journal, Christian Science Sentinel, and Der Herold der Christian Science, referring names of persons who have submitted articles for publication in the periodicals against whom charges or complaints have been made to the directors. The list was read and the approval or disapproval of the board indicated thereon for the information of the editorial department."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of April 13, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 504. R. J. M.]

Also the following from the record of the Board of Directors of May 1, 1917: "Letters were read from the following: . . . "Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated April 30, with reference to the proposed increase in prices of the periodicals."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of May 1, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 505. R. J. M.]

Also the following from the meeting of May 5, 1917:

"At a special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors at which were present the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society—"

If Your Honor please, this is a correlative record to that of the trustees on the same subject, and there is no conflict between the two. It refers to postal rates on second class postage. So I will not read the record, unless it is requested, and I will ask Mr. Dickey some questions.

Q. With respect to the legislation that was pending in Congress in May of 1917 affecting the rate of postage on second class mail matter, that is, the periodicals of The Christian Science Publishing Society, including The Monitor, did the directors and the trustees take that up together? A. They did.

Q. And what did the directors do with respect to the situation?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Do you claim that anything was done different from what is recorded in your book, and if not, why isn't that the best evidence?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was done in addition to what was recorded in the book. I will first read what was in the book to avoid any question.

The Master—Let us see if we cannot get along without that.

Mr. Krauthoff—In that—

The Master—One minute, Mr. Krauthoff. You refer to what you already have put in from the trustees' records about that?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Do I understand that you desire to prove something which is not brought out either by the trustees' records, or by these?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. I am now desiring to prove that The Mother Church retained counsel to appear before Congress and act with respect to this matter.

The Master—By "The Mother Church" I suppose you mean the Board of Directors?

Mr. Krauthoff—Acting through its Board of Directors.

The Master—Now, is there any controversy that that is the fact?

Mr. Whipple—What counsel?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, they retained Mr. Edwin A. Krauthoff, of Washington, District of Columbia, and Judge Clifford P. Smith also went to Washington in that capacity.

The Master—Why can't we agree that that is so?

Mr. Whipple—If Mr. Krauthoff says it is so, I have no doubt of it. It was a very wise thing to do.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I am acquainted with Mr. Edwin A. Krauthoff, who was retained!

Mr. Whipple—Are you acquainted with Judge Smith?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, very well.

Mr. Whipple—We have not heard anything from him for quite a while.

The Master—Let us assume that to be the fact; no one doubts it.

Mr. Thompson—You say that there is no record of this retaining of counsel?

The Master—It has already appeared, I think, that no record of that fact appears, either in the trustees' records or in the directors' records. Am I right, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have no information at present which shows that there is a record retaining Mr. Krauthoff. I would not state that affirmatively. I was not looking for that. The statement I made was that the record of the directors' meeting of May 5, 1917, does not show that counsel were retained.

Mr. Thompson—Were any counsel retained to advise whether or not to put that in the record?

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon?

Mr. Thompson—Is there any record about retaining counsel to advise about entering it in the record?

Mr. Whipple—No answer!

Mr. Thompson—I think you will find a letter from Mr. Dittmore of protest.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thursday, June 14, 1917:

"The request of Mr. Bicknell Young, First Reader of The Mother Church, that his local address 'for mail only, 385 Commonwealth Avenue,' be added to his card in The Christian Science Journal, was granted, and the Corresponding Secretary was instructed to notify The Christian Science Publishing Society accordingly."

[That portion of record of meeting of the directors, June 14, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 506.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday, June 25, 1917:

"Letters were read from the following: The Trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society, dated June 14, 1917, informing the Board of the proposed reconstruction of the Bible Lesson Committee. Reply indicated."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated June 25, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 507.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Have you your carbon of that letter here?

Mr. Whipple—What date?

Mr. Krauthoff—June 14, 1917.

July 6, 1917:

"Letters were read from the following: The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated June 28, proposing to dispense with the key-words to Science and Health now appearing in the Lessons and Sermons as published in the Quarterly. Action approved."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, dated July 6, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 508.]

Mr. Krauthoff—We would like to have your carbon of that letter (handing paper to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—Is this another one?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Subject to correction if you should find the original was not sent.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading):

"The Christian Science Publishing Society

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets

"Boston, Massachusetts

"June 28, 1917.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"The question has again arisen about continuing to give in the Quarterly the key-word of the 33-line edition of Science and Health. In trying to find copies to supply the six members of the Bible Lesson Committee at various times, it has proved almost impossible to get copies of this 33-line edition. This would indicate that these copies are pretty scarce.

"It is now proposed to dispense with the key-word of the 33-line edition, and in order to avoid any sense of hardship on anyone, the Publishing Society stands ready to supply any complainant there may be with a new Science and Health.

"This question was discussed with your board before, and at that time it seemed advisable to wait a while, but in view of the new committee's beginning its work for the year commencing July 1, 1917, we are again presenting the question. The trustees feel that it is now an opportune time to stop using the 33-line edition, and by giving a new Science and Health to anyone who complains, the possibility of working a hardship on anyone would be eliminated.

"An early reply, giving your views on this subject, will be appreciated.

"Very sincerely yours.

"Board of Trustees,

(Signed)

"HERBERT W. EUSTACE.

"Secretary."

[Letter, Board of Trustees to Board of Directors, June 28, 1917, is marked Exhibit 509.]

Mr. Whipple—That is the proposal and letter referred to in the record which you have just read?

Mr. Krauthoff—In the record, yes. And you have one that we are asking for about the reconstruction of the Bible Lesson Committee.

Mr. Whipple—Haven't you a copy of it?

Mr. Krauthoff—We do not locate the original; we were asking for your carbon.

Mr. Whipple—Well, haven't you a copy of it? I mean, one that you feel is reliable?

Mr. Krauthoff—We will look further for that.

Q. With respect to this correspondence referring to the 33-line edition of Science and Health, at one time there was an edition of Science and Health printed 33 lines on a page? A. Yes.

Q. And it now has 32? A. They all have 32, and the directors decided to authorize that change to be made.

Mr. Whipple—I move that be stricken out, if Your Honor please, as neither responsive nor proper. The record shows—

The Master—Strike it out if it is objected to.

Q. The 33-line Science and Health could only be used by having a key-word to relate the Quarterly to the 33-line edition? A. That was it, yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—We haven't any copy of that letter, Mr. Whipple, about the reconstruction of the Bible Lesson Committee. If you can give us your carbon we will appreciate it very much.

Mr. Whipple—We will continue to search.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you. July 10, 1917:

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to advise Mr. Frederick Dixon, editor of The Christian Science Monitor, to continue for the present his policy of handling items regarding the Red Cross Society according to their news value."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, July 10, 1917,

as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 510.]

Q. Is the matter of the relation of The Mother Church to the Red Cross Society one of the considerations which affect the cause of Christian Science as a whole, Mr. Dickey? A. It is.

Mr. Krauthoff—The record of the directors, July 18, 1917, showed the passing of Mr. McLellan on the morning of that day, and also the following:

"The board held an informal conference with Messrs. Herbert W. Eustace and Edward A. Merritt of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, July 18, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 511.]

Q. At that time, Mr. Dickey, Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Eustace and Mr. Merritt were the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society? A. They were.

Q. And as a result of action taken at that time, Mr. Merritt became a member of the Board of Directors? A. He did.

Q. And Mr. McKenzie an editor of the Christian Science periodicals? A. The editor.

Q. The editor, exclusive of the Monitor? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. McKenzie resigned as a trustee? A. He did.

Q. And Mr. Merritt resigned as a trustee? A. He did.

Q. And then Mr. Ogden, who had been the business manager, became a trustee? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Rowlands became a trustee? A. That is right.

Q. How were these changes worked out as between the directors and the trustees?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. We have the records and we have had them repeatedly in regard to that.

Mr. Krauthoff—The records show conferences, if Your Honor please, but they do not show what happened at the conferences.

The Master—Then ask him what happened at the conferences.

Q. What happened at the conferences between the directors and the trustees as respecting these changes which I have indicated?

Mr. Whipple—Pause a moment. Which conferences? If we are to meet any testimony in regard to that we want to know what conference you refer to.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I will read them off. I first refer to conference of Wednesday, July 18, 1917:

"The board held an informal conference with Messrs. Herbert W. Eustace and Edward A. Merritt of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[That portion of record of a meeting of Board of Directors, July 18, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 512.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Then on Thursday, July 19, 1917:

"The Board held a brief conference with Mr. Herbert W. Eustace of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[That portion of the record of meeting of the Board of Directors, July 19, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 513.]

Mr. Whipple—Now, why don't you ask him what happened at either one or both of those conferences?

Mr. Krauthoff—You wanted to know these conferences, and I am now telling you. On July 23, 1917—

Mr. Whipple—Pause a moment.

The Master—I think you will have to take them one by one if that is insisted on.

Mr. Whipple—How can we contradict them or meet them?

Q. Now, in respect to these conferences to which your attention has been called, are you able now to state just what happened at any particular one of them, Mr. Dickey? A. Yes.

Q. And what happened at the first conference that you had with Mr. Eustace and Mr. Merritt on July 18, 1917—the date of Mr. McLellan's passing? A. We explained to them—

Q. Not "we explained to them," but tell us what was said.

Mr. Whipple—What date is this?

Mr. Krauthoff—July 18, 1917, the date of Mr. McLellan's passing.

Q. You may continue, Mr. Dickey. A. I am just trying to recall who was the chairman of the board at that time.

Q. The records show that Mr. Dittmore was presiding. A. Yes.

Q. He was the chairman in the year 1917? A. Yes. The chairman explained to Mr. Eustace and Mr. Merritt that it would be necessary to elect a new editor, and he talked of the consideration of the board—or, he talked of the point the board had under consideration of making Mr. McKenzie the editor of the Christian Science periodicals.

Q. Now, was any other subject mentioned at that conference? A. There was.

Q. What further was said? A. It was originally talked of to make Mr. Ogden one of the trustees instead of the position of business manager, which he was occupying.

Q. Who first mentioned that in that conference? A. I do not recall. I think it was the chairman, however.

Q. Was it a member of the Board of Directors or Mr. Eustace? A. A member of the Board of Directors.

Q. And what did Mr. Eustace say to the proposition that Mr. Ogden should become a trustee? A. Well, substantially he said that that would be agreeable to him.

Q. Was anything said at that meeting about making Mr. Merritt a director? A. I think not at that meeting.

Q. Not at that meeting? A. No.

Q. Was anything else said at that meeting of which you know—I mean, of which you can now speak? A. I do not recall anything further.

Mr. Krauthoff—The record next shows on Thursday, July 19, 1917:

"The board held a brief conference with Mr. Herbert W. Eustace of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, July 19, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 514.]

Q. When did Mr. Rowlands come to Boston, if you know? A. The date is recorded, I believe, but I just can't remember it now.

Q. But referring to this conference of the next day, Thursday, July 19, 1917—what further details were taken up at that time with Mr. Eustace, and how, and in what manner? A. The chairman talked to him at that time of making Mr. Merritt one of the Board of Directors, which would necessitate the appointment of a new trustee.

Mr. Whipple—That is, talked with Mr. Eustace about it?

The Witness—Yes.

Q. And what did Mr. Eustace say about that? A. Mr. Eustace expressed his willingness to let the board make those recommendations, and he agreed to accept them.

Mr. Whipple—That is, that Mr. Merritt should become one of the directors? He approved of that?

The Witness—Yes.

Q. What did Mr. Eustace say about Mr. Merritt retiring from the Board of Trustees? In other words, did you ask Mr. Eustace' consent to elect Mr. Merritt a director—

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment. He has said—

The Master—Well, Mr. Krauthoff, let us get what was said first, before you refresh his recollection.

Mr. Whipple—He has already said they were put up to Mr. Eustace and Mr. Eustace approved it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Of course, if Your Honor please, that is really—

Mr. Whipple—I am not claiming it was an interference with the Board of Directors.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have listened to a great many things Mr. Whipple has said in this case, but when he begins to say that this Board of Directors asked Mr. Eustace whether Mr. Merritt should become a director—

Mr. Whipple—I did not say it; your witness said it. Now you are trying to extricate him.

The Witness—What I meant to convey was that he would be willing to part with Mr. Merritt in his department in order that he might serve on the Board of Directors.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will call your attention to the complete record on that subject.

"Thursday, July 19, 1917. At a special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors held at 10 a. m., on above date, in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Stewart, Dittmore, Dickey, and Neal.

"Because of the importance of pending matters requiring the attention of a full board, it was upon motion of Mr. Stewart, seconded by Mr. Dickey, voted that Mr. Edward A. Merritt of Brookline, Massachusetts, be elected a director of The Mother Church to fill the vacancy on this board caused by the passing away of Mr. McLellan. Carried unanimously.

"Mr. Merritt thereupon entered the meeting and took his seat as a director.

"Mr. William D. McCrackan met with the board at the latter's request for a conference relative to the editorial work.

"At 1:50 p. m. a recess was taken until 2:15 p. m.

"The board held a brief conference with Mr. Herbert W. Eustace of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and at 4:05 p. m.—The meeting adjourned."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, July 19, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 515.]

Q. Now, what happened after this conference you had with Mr. Eustace in the afternoon of the day on which Mr. Merritt had been elected a member of the Board of Directors? A. The chairman told him what the board had done and spoke to him with regard to a successor to Mr. Merritt.

Q. As what? A. As trustee.

Q. Were any names discussed at that conference to succeed Mr. Merritt? A. Mr. Rowlands' name, I believe, was.

Q. Who first mentioned the name of Mr. Rowlands? A. The chairman, I think.

Q. The chairman? A. The chairman of the Board of Directors.

Q. And what did Mr. Eustace say with respect to that? A. He expressed his approval of the appointment.

Mr. Whipple—Of the appointment?

The Master—That is what I understood the witness to say. Q. What did he say?

Mr. Whipple—I do not see how it could be an appointment.

The Witness—Perhaps I had better withdraw the word "appointment." We made no appointment; but of the change—the proposed change.

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday, July 23, 1917:

"The Board had a brief conference with Mr. Frederick Dixon, editor of The Christian Science Monitor.

"Upon motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted to appoint William P. McKenzie editor of The Christian Science Journal, Christian Science Sentinel and Der Herold Der Christian Science. Mr. Stewart's vote being taken by telephone, the vote was unanimous.

"The board took a recess of 25 minutes, after which a conference was held with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and the business manager.

"At 4 p. m. the meeting adjourned."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, July 23, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 516.]

Q. What was discussed at that conference, Mr. Dickey? Did the question arise as to who was to be the new business manager? A. We talked of that before we invited the trustees over.

Mr. Krauthoff—Then the next record is Tuesday, July 24, 1917:

"The board held conferences with Mr. David B. Ogden, and Mr. John R. Watts, of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

"A letter from Mr. David B. Ogden, dated July 24, 1917, tendering his resignation as Business Manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, effective Aug. 1, 1917, because of his election to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, was read, and upon motion of Mr. Dickey, seconded by Mr. Merritt, the resignation was accepted.

"Upon motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Neal, it was voted to appoint Mr. John R. Watts, Business Manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, effective August 1, 1917. The vote of Mr. Stewart was taken by telephone and the motion was carried unanimously."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated July 24, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 517.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Wednesday, July 25, 1917: "On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted to request The Christian Science Publishing Society to submit eight copies each of all metaphysical editorials intended for The Journal and Sentinel and of the metaphysical articles for the Home Forum page of The Monitor, to the corresponding secretary at least 48 hours before going to press.

"At 1:10 p. m. a recess was taken until 2 p. m.

"The board held a conference with Messrs. Herbert W. Eustace, Frederick Dixon, David B. Ogden and John R. Watts of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

"At 2:45 p. m. the meeting adjourned."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, July 25, 1917, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 518.]

Q. With respect to this request to submit eight copies each of all metaphysical editorials, please state the reason for making that?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please. Any undisclosed reasons they may have are not material as affecting the issue.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, the Board of Directors did not have to disclose its reasons to the Trustees of the Publishing Society, but the claim is made that these directors have been seeking to aggrandize their authority, and to extend into fields which theretofore they had not explored. Now, this is a new request made by them, and they have the right as relieving themselves against any charge of that kind, to show why they made this request.

Mr. Whipple—What we referred to in the bill, if Your Honor please, as making a lot of demands, and so forth, refers more particularly to those things that were done in pursuance of the advice of Governor Bates and Judge Smith, recorded in their minutes, in which they intimated they might lay some foundation for a case against the trustees by asking them a lot of things and urging them to do a lot of things. We suspected then that they were made merely as the foundation of some case they wanted to get up, and not bona fide demands for any real information. And therefore the bill alleged that they had been making a lot of inquiries of that sort, and we questioned whether they were done for any useful or proper purpose. What you say is that the directors were not bound to disclose their reasons for making the demands. If they did not want to do it then they need not do it now. If they wanted to make their demands and the reasons for them known, so that they would be evidence, they should have made them known. And their undisclosed reasons, since they desired to conceal them at that time, are of no importance in the case, I submit, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, Mr. Whipple having stated that this was not one of the things of which they complained, I shall not ask any more questions about it.

Q. Were those articles furnished from time to time? A. They were.

Q. And are they now being furnished? A. They are not, since this suit has been filed.

Q. Have you withdrawn that request in any way? A. No.

Q. Have you been advised of any reason for the discontinuance of these articles? A. No.

Q. These articles reached you 48 hours before the periodicals went to press? A. Yes.

Q. And unless you made some comment with respect to them they were automatically released, as that term is known in the publishing world? A. Yes.

Q. One other question. These articles coming to you in advance, did that give you an opportunity to call attention to anything that was wrong in them before it appeared in the literature of the movement? A. It did.

Q. In the periodicals of the Church? A. Yes.

Q. (Reading:)

"Friday, July 27, 1917.

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Neal, it was unanimously voted to authorize an increase in the salaries of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society to $6000 per annum each, beginning August 1, 1917."

At that time did any question arise as to who were the directors of The Mother Church? A. No.

Q. Or whether you were officers of The Mother Church? A. Not at all.

Q. Or whether you were acting under the Manual or the Deed of Trust? A. No question of that kind arose.

Q. Or any question of your irreconcilable positions? A. No, that was not brought up at that time.

Q. The salaries have continued at that rate up until this date? A. Yes; that is the present salary.

Q. (Reading:)

"Tuesday, July 31, 1917.

"The Corresponding Secretary was instructed to arrange for The Christian Science Publishing Society for delivery to the Board offices as soon as printed five advance copies each of the Sentinel and Journal, and one copy of the International edition of the Monitor, also five copies of the International edition of the Monitor to the respective offices of the directors."

How far ahead of the date of publication, as appears on the periodical itself, does the Sentinel appear? A. From eight to twelve days, I should say.

Q. And the Journal? A. The Journal about the same; perhaps a little longer time on the Journal.

Q. And under this resolution you were delivered these as soon as they were printed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Ahead of the publication date? A. Yes.

Q. Are these periodicals now reaching you? A. They are not.

Q. When did they cease reaching you? A. Some time after the filing of this suit.

Q. Any explanation as to the cessation of that service? A. No explanation.

Q. Was that service of value to you in the work you were doing? A. We thought it was.

[An extract from the directors' records, Aug. 7, 1917, is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Tuesday, Aug. 7, 1917.

"The board had an interview with Messrs. Eustace and Ogden, of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, regarding proposed changes and improvements in some of the Christian Science periodicals.

"Wednesday, Aug. 15, 1917.

"The board had an interview with Messrs. Eustace and Ogden, trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, about advertising the Monitor in the Christian Science Sentinel, Christian Science Journal and other publications."

Q. Up to that time, Mr. Dickey, had there been any advertisements of The Monitor in these other periodicals? I mean any general advertisement of it?

A. There had not.

Q. (Reading:)

"Thursday, Aug. 16, 1917.

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted to request the editor of the Christian Science Sentinel to publish frequently in the columns captioned 'Selected Articles,' metaphysical articles from the Home Forum page of The Christian Science Monitor without the name of the author, said selections to be submitted to The Christian Science Board of Directors in like manner as metaphysical editorials for the Journal, Sentinel and Monitor are now being submitted."

Were those articles published from time to time as here requested? A. They were.

Q. And at one time were they submitted to the directors? A. They were.

Q. Are they now being submitted to the directors? A. They are not.

Q. Any explanation for the cessation of the service, that you know of? A. No; no explanation.

Q. On the same date:

"The board approved an editorial by Mr. William D. McCrackan, entitled 'Work and Pray' for the Christian Science Sentinel of Aug. 25."

"Aug. 20, 1917.

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Neal, it was voted to publish an article entitled 'Principle and Practice,' by Mrs. Eddy, with a brief foreword on the editorial page of the Christian Science Sentinel of Sept. 1, 1917."

That appeared, did it, Mr. Dickey? A. It did.

Q. (Reading:)

"Aug. 21, 1917.

"The board held a conference with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and Mr. Harry E. Lesan of New York City in regard to presenting the facts connected with The Christian Science Monitor to other publications."

Up to that time had The Christian Science Monitor been advertised in other publications? A. It had not.

Q. And this related to advertising The Monitor in publications other than those of the Christian Science Church? A. Yes.

Q. Periodicals of general circulation? A. Yes.

Q. Was such a campaign of advertising worked out? A. It was.

Q. And was it done in conference between the directors and the trustees? A. Yes.

Q. Did the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy pay for part of that expense? A. They did.

Q. And the five then directors were five of those trustees? A. They were; but that was considered separately by the Trustees under the Will.

[Extracts from the directors' records of Aug. 27 and Aug. 29, 1917, are read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Interviews were held with:

"Mr. Frederick Dixon, editor of The Christian Science Monitor.

"Trustee David B. Ogden of The Christian Science Publishing Society, after which the board released the Christian Science Sentinel for Sept. 1, 1917.

"Associate Editor William B. McCrackan who was granted leave of absence until Oct. 1, his only responsibility in the meantime being his weekly and monthly editorials for the Sentinel and Journal respectively."

"Aug. 29, 1917.

"The board had an interview with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society with reference to cards in The Christian Science Journal from practitioners and branch churches and societies."

Q. Did you ever have any conferences as here related with the trustees on that subject? A. Yes, we did.

Q. And did you take up at those conferences the nature of the questions that they were asking applicants for cards as practitioners? A. We did.

Q. Did you make any objections to the questions? A. Yes; we at various times made objections, and corrections were made on our recommendation.

Q. The same record shows:

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted to tell the trustees of the Publishing Society that the board thinks it would be a good thing to put the Postmaster General's notice about mailing magazines to the front, on the front page of all the Sentinels and Journals."

Did that relate to the privilege that the Post Office Department extended of putting a 1-cent stamp on periodicals and putting them in the mails, and thus sending them to soldiers? A. It did.

Q. And was that notice thereafter put— A. Yes.

Q. —on the Christian Science periodicals? A. It was.

[Extracts from the directors' records of Aug. 31, and Sept. 4, 1917, are read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Aug. 31, 1917.

"After thirty minutes spent in considering editorials for the Sentinel of Sept. 8, a conference was held with Editor William P. McKenzie and the meeting adjourned."

"Sept. 4, 1917.

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Dickey, it was voted to publish in the Sentinel for Sept. 15 over the signature of The Christian Science Board of Directors the article entitled 'The Near Future.'"

Q. Was that article published in the Sentinel, Mr. Dickey? A. It was.

Q. Any question arise about the publication of it? A. None whatever.

[An extract from the directors' records of Sept. 10, 1917, is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Sept. 10, 1917.

"A letter was dictated to Associate Editor, Mrs. Annie M. Knott, requesting her to substitute another editorial for the one entitled 'Names and Their Significance,' prepared by her for the October Journal.

"The board had an interview with the business manager, John R. Watts, of The Christian Science Publishing Society regarding the proposed advertisements of The Christian Science Monitor on the cover pages of the Journal."

Q. Is Mr. Watts conferring with the board now about advertisements? A. Not now.

Q. With respect to this letter to Mrs. Knott, she did prepare the other editorial? A. Yes; Mrs. Knott prepared another editorial.

Q. And was very gracious about it, I believe? A. She was.

[Extracts from the directors' records of Sept. 11 and Sept. 14, 1917, are read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Sept. 11, 1917.

"Editorials for the October, 1917, Journal were considered and approved."

"Friday, Sept. 14, 1917.

"Letters were read from the following:

"Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Sept. 6, advising that after interviews with Mr. A. B. Ritchie of Kansas City and Mr. H. E. Lesan of New York City, it was decided that the time was not opportune for the establishment of a department of the Publishing Society to sell railroad and steamship tickets."

Q. How did that question arise, Mr. Dickey, and what was it? A. At one time The Monitor had a very successful advertising department known as the Hotel and Travel Department, and in connection therewith the Publishing Society undertook to direct people in their lines of travel, in selecting routes and selecting hotels, and in that way quite a large advertising business came to the newspaper. After their abandonment of that the advertising shrank considerably, and we suggested the advisability of reestablishing that department.

Q. And the matter was taken up between the directors and the trustees? A. It was.

Q. And it did not result in any definite action? A. No definite action.

[Extracts from the directors' records of Sept. 18 and Sept. 26, 1917, are read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Sept. 18, 1917.

"The board had an interview with Business Manager John R. Watts of The Christian Science Publishing Society, about advertising The Christian Science Monitor in the Journal and Sentinel."

"Sept. 26, 1917.

"The board had an interview with trustees Eustace and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society, regarding the magazine in the French language which they are to publish, beginning Jan. 1, 1918."

Q. The French Herald, Le Héraut de Christian Science, appeared in January, 1918? A. I believe it did.

Q. And the details of the appearance of that magazine, in advance thereof, were taken up between the directors and the trustees? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Thompson—Have you any entry under Sept. 24?

Mr. Krauthoff—Of what nature?

Mr. Thompson—A meeting of the Board of Directors.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. September 24?

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—No; they met on September 1 and September 25, but not on September 24.

Mr. Thompson—Well, that was the day they went to Washington, wasn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I see no record of any trip to Washington or any reference to it.

Q. (Reading):

"October 2, 1917.

"The editorial department was requested to publish the notice 'Distribution of Literature in The Christian Science Journal for November, 1917.'"

That notice appeared, Mr. Dickey? A. Yes.

Q. (Reading):

"October 15, 1917.

"The Board had an interview with Mr. H. E. Lesan, of New York City, about advertising, and the Board sanctioned Mr. Lesan's proposal to advertise The Christian Science Monitor in the leading magazines for a period of six months when he is authorized to do so by The Christian Science Publishing Society."

Q. Now, that was a problem of advertising The Monitor in the periodicals generally, just as you have mentioned a moment ago? A. Yes.

Q. And the Publishing Society took that up with the directors? A. They did.

Q. And the directors acted upon it in the way I have read? A. Yes; they recommended it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Here, and at other parts of the record. On the same date, Oct. 15, 1917:

"An interview was held with Trustees Ogden and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society, who reported progress with the new French magazine."

October 19, 1917:

"Periodical advertisement, 'Can Truth Grow Old,' for the Sentinel for Oct. 27, and statement from the Board of Directors, captioned 'Footsteps of Progress' for the editorial page of the Sentinel for Oct. 27, were read, edited and approved."

Q. That was done? Those were published, Mr. Dickey? A. They were.

Q. In the periodicals? A. That is right.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oct. 29, 1917:

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Stewart, it was voted to instruct the editorial department of The Christian Science Publishing Society to accept articles for publication in the periodicals, excepting The Monitor, from members of The Mother Church only."

In connection with that record of the directors I read from the April, 1919, number of The Christian Science Journal:

"Available articles from members of The Mother Church and good testimonies from those healed by Christian Science are always welcome for consideration by the editors."

November 2, 1917:

"Notice captioned 'Comforts for Army and Navy' for the editorial column of the Christian Science Sentinel of Nov. 10, was approved."

Q. That notice was printed as approved? A. Yes.

Q. (Reading):

"Nov. 5, 1917.

"On motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Stewart, it was voted to publish in the Sentinel of Nov. 24, the poem entitled 'Our National Thanksgiving Hymn,' by Mary Baker Eddy."

And that appeared, did it, Mr. Dickey? A. That appeared.

[Extracts from directors' records of Nov. 7 and Nov. 16, 1917, are read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Nov. 7, 1917.

"The Sentinel cover advertisement, 'What is Profit Sharing' was approved and released."

"Friday, Nov. 16, 1917.

"Mr. Frederick Dixon, editor of The Christian Science Monitor, was called in for a conference with a view to giving publicity to the Y. M. C. A. campaign to raise funds for War Camp Activities. While Mr. Dixon was present, Mr. Fred M. Lamson, and a delegation representing the Y. M. C. A., consisting of Mr. F. W. Stearns, Mr. Albert H. Curtis, and Mr. George W. Mehaffey, called on the board and a general discussion ensued, involving the attitude of the Y. M. C. A. toward the Christian Science movement. After the gentlemen retired from the meeting, it was voted to ask Mr. Dixon to go to New York for an interview with Mr. John R. Mott, general secretary of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A."

Q. In asking Mr. Dixon to go to New York, as you then did, did you in any way consult the trustees, or did the question in any way arise? A. We did consult them.

Mr. Whipple—I object to that. It does not seem to me it is of any consequence whether he did or not.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, Mr. Whipple claims that Mr. Dixon was in their employ, and subject only to their order at that date.

Mr. Whipple—I think that the chief editor of a great newspaper has the right, a recognized right, to use his time judiciously as he sees fit in great public undertakings. He was subject to no such restriction as that, that he could not go out of town without asking permission.

The Master—I think I shall let the question be answered for what it is worth.

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday—

The Witness—What is the question, please?

Q. Did you consult with the trustees about Mr. Dixon's going to New York? A. No, we did not.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)

"Wednesday, Dec. 19, 1917.

"... The board had interviews with the following:

"Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society about advertisements in The Christian Science Journal; about the proposed pamphlet concerning The Monitor; and the communication from the Christian Science organizations in Germany, about changing the title of Der Herold, of church, and the German equivalent of 'Christian Science.'"

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Dec. 19, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 521. R. J. M.]

Mr. Thompson—Is that all you have on Dec. 19 about that discussion of the German Christian Science publication?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; over the signature of John V. Dittmore, chairman. That is all I found.

Mr. Thompson—Who was the secretary?

Mr. Krauthoff—James A. Neal.

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—It seems to have been approved on Dec. 21, 1917, at a meeting at which Mr. Dittmore was present.

Mr. Thompson—Does it appear when those minutes were approved?

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 21, 1917. (Reading:)

"Friday, December 28, 1917.

"Proposed article for the Sentinel on joint distribution of literature was read, edited, and ordered set in type."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Dec. 28, 1917, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 521 A. R. J. M.]

Q. Mr. Dickey, this "joint distribution of literature" referred to the joint action of branch churches in the same community with respect to literature? A. I believe so, although I do not just recall the circumstances in connection with that.

Q. And the distribution of literature purchased from the Publishing Society is a church activity and in the hands of the churches? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That notice appeared? A. In all periodicals; I believe it did.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"Wednesday, January 2, 1918.

"Letters were read from the following:

"The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated December 24th, inclosing a letter indicating that magazines mailed without address under the Postmaster General's permit were not being properly distributed. To be referred to Camp Welfare Committee."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 2, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 522, R. J. M.]

Q. That was the privilege that the government gave of putting a one-cent stamp on the periodicals? A. Yes.

Q. And these periodicals were gathering in the mail and not being distributed? A. That was the report to us and we investigated.

Q. And that question was referred to you by the Publishing Society? A. It was.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"Wednesday, January 9, 1918.

"The Board had an interview with Trustees Eustace, Ogden and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society, who felt that it would not be best to publish a miniature Quarterly for the soldiers, to fit the vest pocket edition of Science and Health, and to contain the Bible references in full, together with the citations from Science and Health."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of January 9, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 523, R. J. M.]

Q. That question of the Quarterly came up later, did it not? A. Yes. We recommended that the Quarterly be published at that time, at that first interview, and it was not done, and it came up again and was finally published.

Q. It was finally published? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"Friday, January 11, 1918.

"A list of hymns from the Christian Science Hymnal, was submitted by The Christian Science Publishing Society for publication in a small Hymnal for soldiers' use. The list was approved with recommendation of slight changes."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 11, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 524, R. J. M.]

The Witness—That is correct.

Q. That Hymnal came out? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"Wednesday, January 16, 1918.

"The Board had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor regarding the position to be taken by the Monitor relative to Government ownership of railroads."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 18, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 526, R. J. M.]

Q. That sermon appeared as here voted? A. Yes, it did.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"Thursday, Jan. 24, 1918.

"The board had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor, about Y. M. C. A. work in Boston. The board requested him to encourage the drive now being made for $100,000.00."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 24, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 527, R. J. M.]

Mr. Thompson—Do you find anything else in those records about the trustees, Jan. 24, 1918, and about an objection to having struck out of the minutes of the meeting of Jan. 21 certain matter relating to the trustees?

Mr. Krauthoff—I find nothing in the meeting of Jan. 24, 1918, of the character indicated, and the minutes are approved by J. V. Dittmore, chairman, and James A. Neal, secretary.

Mr. Thompson—I guess not; I guess you will have to withdraw that statement later.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon?

Mr. Thompson—I think perhaps you had better not be too sure that the minutes were approved by J. V. Dittmore.

Mr. Krauthoff—I say that they are signed by J. V. Dittmore as chairman.

Mr. Thompson—A piece of paper signed by him.

Mr. Krauthoff—All I know is that it is in a book entitled "Minutes of The Christian Science Board of Directors," bearing the name, "J. V. Dittmore, Chairman."

Mr. Bates—If your client certifies to it, that is all there is to it.

Mr. Thompson—His signature is no doubt there.

Mr. Bates—Perhaps all your client's records are only scraps of paper.

Mr. Thompson—I do not believe you had better say too much about my client's records or your clients' records.

Mr. Bates—Don't go back on your client's records.

Mr. Thompson—I am not going back on them. I am going to make you show what the true records of your doings are later.

Mr. Bates—I think Your Honor has already stated that it was the privilege of Mr. Thompson to put in additional records when his time came, and that he should not interfere with our case by attempting to put them in now.

Mr. Thompson—When you undertake to make capital out of the signature of my client, on a piece of paper that you call a record, I think it is time for me to say something.

The Master—These conversations between counsel I hardly think can be considered a part of the proceedings, can they? They began in a tone of voice that was hardly audible to me and I supposed that it was a mere aside and that the stenographers would not take it down.

Mr. Thompson—I simply started by asking the gentleman whether he had read all of a certain record or whether he had on his records that he was then reading something relating to the trustees, which I supposed was what he was doing—

The Master—You got his answer.

Mr. Thompson—And he said he did not find it, and then the Governor talks about my client's having signed that record and tries to make some little capital about that fact.

The Master—Do you want all that on the record?

Mr. Bates—It is entirely immaterial to me, Your Honor. Mr. Thompson had stated to me that the record signed by his client was not a record, that it was only a piece of paper. I think that we have the right to call the Court's attention to that fact, because he has got that in the record.

Mr. Thompson—You are very sensitive about it. I have not made any statement. I said you have got my client's name on a piece of paper. You may draw what interpretation you please from it. Later the truth will come out. I would like my question to Mr. Krauthoff and his answer stay on the record, and the rest may be stricken out.

The Master — That unquestionably can stay on the record.

Mr. Streeter—Governor and Mr. Thompson, I am sorry I went out. You made it very pleasant!

The Master—I think you had better go on, Mr. Krauthoff. Our time is drawing to a close.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

“The board had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor, who reported the results of his trip to Canada.”

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 4, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 529. R. J. M.]

Q. Are you advised generally of a trip that Mr. Dixon made to England lately? A. Yes.

Q. Did he visit the board before he went to England?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment, if Your Honor please. I have not objected to this series of questions, as to whether there has been an alteration in the relation of these parties since the suit was brought. They are plainly not admissible, because things that have happened since the suit was brought, in their changed relations, are of no consequence whatever. They have been excluded repeatedly, and you would hardly expect, after what these directors have done or attempted to do, that the relations would remain the same as they were before.

Q. Did Mr. Dixon leave Boston before March 17, 1919, so far as you are advised? A. He did.

Q. And did he return before that time? A. He did.

Q. Was there any call made on the board before he went, or any report to the board after he came back? A. Nothing of an official nature.

Mr. Whipple—I do not want it to be implied that he had ever called upon them officially as representing the trustees. There is nothing in the record to show it.

Mr. Krauthoff—

“February 15, 1918.

“The board met the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society at the latter's request for a conference, and it was agreed with the trustees to omit all practitioners' cards listed in the Journal except for the months of April, July, October, and January, commencing with May, 1918, and to charge $5 per line per annum for such announcements; also to continue church and society notices monthly and to charge $10 per line per annum therefor. These changes are necessary because of the increase in the circulation and the cost of production, which at present is causing a loss instead of a profit from the publication of practitioners' cards in the Journal.”

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 15, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 530. R. J. M.]

Q. Prior to that meeting, Mr. Dickey, the practitioners' names had been appearing monthly in each issue of the Journal? A. Yes.

Q. And after that they appeared every three months? A. The trustees made a recommendation to drop the practitioners' cards out of the Journal entirely, and to print them in another form. The directors, however, made the suggestion that they appear every three months in the Journal itself, and be bound up with the Journal, which they thought was a good suggestion, and that was finally adopted.

Q. In that connection, did the question also arise that if the cards were not in the Journal as part of it, the mailing of them through the mails could not be done at the second-class rate of postage? A. I did not quite catch your question, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff (to the reporter)—Will you read it, please?

[The last question is read.]

A. Why, the cards became so numerous that we understood from the trustees—I understood there was a prohibitory rule of the United States Postal Department against the Journal going through the mail as second-class matter. In order to obviate that some change had to be made.

Mr. Krauthoff—

“Feb. 26, 1918.

“... The board considered the editorials prepared for the Sentinel by Editor William P. McKenzie and Associate Editor William D. McCrackan.”

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 26, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 531. R. J. M.]

“March 4, 1918.

“... A telegram was read from the Camp Welfare Committee of New York, dated March 2, and a letter from Mr. C. C. Wolcott, the Camp Welfare worker at Camp Upton, Long Island, inclosing a letter from the division surgeon's office at Camp Upton, dated Feb. 27, regarding the exclusion of The Christian Science Monitor from Camp Upton because of its articles against vaccination and serum therapy.

“The board had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor, regarding the attitude toward and the course to be pursued by The Monitor with regard to vaccination and serum therapy in the army and navy.”

[Record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of March 4, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 532. R. J. M.]

Q. Is that one of the things to which you refer as a matter affecting the cause of Christian Science as a whole? A. It is.

Q. That is the attitude of the Christian Science Church and of its periodicals toward the established law of the land as evidenced in its health laws and regulations? A. It is.

Mr. Krauthoff—March 25, 1918:

“Mr. Dittmore submitted a proposed notice to be published in the Christian Science Sentinel over the signature of The Christian Science Board of Directors, calling attention to the established rule governing the editorial and news columns of The Christian Science Monitor on the question of religion and politics. Laid over for further consideration on Tuesday.”

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, March 25, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 533.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Tuesday, March 26:

“After further consideration the board approved for publication in the Sentinel for April 6, the statement captioned ‘Religion and Politics.’”

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, March 26, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 534.]

Mr. Thompson—May I ask whether you find anything under date of March 27 about the Publishing Society?

Mr. Krauthoff—We will come to that in just a moment.

In this connection, if Your Honor please, I offer in evidence this article, “Religion and Politics,” from the Christian Science Sentinel on April 6, 1918:

“In The Christian Science Monitor of March 23 there appeared a leading editorial with the above title, which was of much more than passing interest.

“Its value is not alone in the incident which called it forth, but also in its declaration of the established rule which governs the editorial and news columns of The Christian Science Monitor on the question of ‘religion and politics’—a question which is daily attracting the attention of increasing numbers of thoughtful men and women.

“This editorial, which we commend to the attention of every Christian Scientist, points out clearly that the religious teachings of a church are primarily the concern of that church alone, whereas the political dealings of a church are, in the very nature of things, common property. It also points out that The Christian Science Monitor demands for, and extends to, every religion the toleration it claims for itself and has no conflict with any form of religious teaching. It does, however, maintain its right to record and analyze the signs of these times as they appear upon the political horizon, irrespective of whether these signs reveal the attempted manipulation of men and nations in the name of political parties, religious bodies, or individuals. To do less than this would be for The Monitor to fail to fulfill its responsibility to its Founder and to the world.

"In this period of universal conflict Christian Scientists need to understand clearly the issues upon which the world is being divided. They also need to stand fearlessly and understandingly on that side where only can be demonstrated 'Science and peace' (Science and Health, p. 96).
"THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE BOARD OF DIRECTORS."

[Article appearing on page 630 of Christian Science Sentinel for April 6, 1918, entitled "Religion and Politics," as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 535.]

Q. Is the attitude of the Christian Science periodicals upon the subject mentioned—religion and politics—one of the things to which you referred when you spoke of everything affecting the cause of Christian Science as a whole? A. It most assuredly is.

Mr. Krauthoff—April 8, 1918:

"The directors had an interview with Trustees Eustace and Ogden, of The Christian Science Publishing Society, with regard to the practice of closing the Sentinel forms two weeks before the date of publication; with reference to arrangements with Mr. John B. Willis, formerly associate editor; and the space to be occupied by the Publishing Society of the building at 59-61 Norway Street."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, April 8, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 536.]

Mr. Krauthoff—April 18, 1918:

"The directors had an interview with Mr. John R. Watts, business manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, in connection with release dates for the Christian Science Sentinel and other features of the work of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, April 18, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 537.]

Mr. Krauthoff—May 13, 1918:

"The directors had an interview with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society at their request."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, May 13, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 538.]

Mr. Krauthoff—May 15, 1918:

"The directors had a conference lasting two hours with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society at their request, to consider the work of the Publishing Society."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, May 15, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 539.]

Mr. Krauthoff—May 16, 1918:

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Neal, it was voted to instruct the corresponding secretary to write to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, calling their attention to paragraph E of Section 7 of a memorandum between the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and the Christian Science Board of Directors, adopted as the result of conferences held during February, 1916."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, May 16, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 540.]

Mr. Whipple—I take it that that recital, if Your Honor please, except so far as it was called to the attention of the trustees, cannot be accepted as any evidence of what is recited. It is a record of what was done by the directors. Where is the reply to this?

Mr. Krauthoff—We have no record of any reply to it. Paragraph E of Section 7 of that memorandum, if Your Honor please, reads as follows: "The salaries of all persons who are elected by the directors and employed by the trustees shall be fixed by mutual agreement."

[Paragraph E of Section 7 of memorandum of February, 1916, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 541.]

Mr. Krauthoff—May 21, 1918: "The corresponding secretary submitted and the board approved proposed letter to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society relative to salaries."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, May 21, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 542.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple has that letter.

Mr. Whipple—We have the original of that letter with a memorandum on it (handing paper to Mr. Krauthoff).

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter of May 21, 1918, reads as follows:

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Boston, Massachusetts,

"May 21, 1918.

"Board of Trustees,

"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to express their appreciation of the satisfactory meeting they had with you last Monday, and which they feel has been mutually helpful in many ways.

"In connection with the various subjects discussed, there is one point which the directors would like to have you consider, and that is the matter of salaries of those who are appointed by the Board of Directors, but who render service to and are paid by The Christian Science Publishing Society. Section E of Paragraph 7 of a memorandum considered jointly by the directors and trustees in February, 1916, reads, 'The salaries of all persons who are elected by the directors and employed by the trustees shall be fixed by mutual agreement.' In view of this the directors would appreciate the courtesy of your consulting with them before making any changes in salaries in excess of $5000 per annum.

"Will you kindly let the directors hear from you and oblige,

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "CHAS. E. JARVIS.

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors." On that letter is the pencil indorsement:

"Meeting arranged with Secty for May 27, noon. See minutes May 27, 1918."

[Letter, Board of Directors to Board of Trustees, May 21, 1918, is marked Exhibit 543.]

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, may I call attention to what I said a moment ago with regard to this record, and what I desire to have excluded, because it was never brought to the attention of the trustees.

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, I am content to let that incident rest on the letter.

Mr. Whipple—Well, wait a minute. I am not—

Mr. Krauthoff—All right.

Mr. Whipple—Where is the record you read?

Mr. Krauthoff—I thought you wanted the record excluded.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I guess in that connection we had better show how you keep your records as compared with the letters that you write.

Mr. Krauthoff—Then we are content to leave the record in.

Mr. Whipple—I am perfectly willing the record should be in, but I want a ruling that it is not evidence of what it states. Where is it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 16, 1918.

Mr. Whipple—Here is the vote.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, Mr. Whipple is asking that the record stay in, and it is in. He is now desirous of preventing my introduction of evidence by arguing that the record of the letter discloses that the record is inaccurate.

Mr. Whipple—I do not want to argue anything; I want to show you up a bit on your record.

The Master—Let Mr. Whipple state his point.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, he has not objected to the exclusion of any evidence, and until there is objection made I am willing to let it go. He says now he wants to keep it in, and he wants to keep it in for the purpose of arguing to Your Honor that our record is incorrect. This is not the time or the place to do that, and I respectfully object to his doing it.

Mr. Whipple—All I want to do is to have a ruling.

The Master—You ask me to rule something. I don't know what it is.

Mr. Krauthoff—He wants you to find at this time in the trial of the case that the record is not accurate.

The Master—Couldn't you let him state it?

Mr. Whipple—That is what I mean by saying that I want to show you up a bit. The part of the record of May 16 that was offered in evidence, and to which I made objection that it was not proof of what was stated therein is a fact unless it was made known to us, is as follows:

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Neal, it was voted to instruct the corresponding secretary to write to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, calling their attention to paragraph E of Section 7 of a memorandum between the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and The Christian Science Board of Directors, adopted as a result of conferences held during February, 1916."

Now, what we did not want to have accepted as showing was that part of it that it was adopted, unless they communicated to us that they regarded it as adopted. Now, in the letter which they sent on May 21, which they have offered as the letter sent in pursuance of that vote, they say this:

"Paragraph E of Section 7 of a Memorandum considered jointly by the directors and trustees in February, 1916," not stating or claiming that there was any adoption of the agreement, or any agreement entered into as the basis of it. They put in their records, which are not called to our attention, a suggestion that there was an agreement; in the letter they write to us they refer to it as a memorandum which was "considered jointly."

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, I respectfully submit, if Your Honor please, that Mr. Whipple has interrupted my introduction of evidence to argue the facts of this case, and I ask that that be stricken from the record.

The Master—No, I do not quite think that. The record is evidence of what took place at the meeting, it is evidence that the directors adopted the vote which you have read. It is no evidence to show that the letter to which they referred was adopted; that must be shown by other evidence, if at all. Must not that be so?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I read from the record of May 21, 1918, the following:

"The corresponding secretary submitted and the board approved a proposed letter to the Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society relative to salaries."

And then I read the letter. Then Mr. Whipple made the point that the letter did not correspond with the entry of May 16, 1918. I then offered to take that out of the record. He then said he wanted to keep it in the record and suspended the trial of the case at a time when I was introducing evidence in order to argue the facts of it.

The Master—Oh, no. Only to call attention to the probative force of what you read. How far it was competent, and how far it was not competent to prove—

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I offered to wholly withdraw it. The Master—to prove a certain thing.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offered to wholly withdraw—

The Master—I cannot see why that is not proper. Why not?

Mr. Krauthoff—I offered to wholly withdraw it, and I do it now.

Mr. Whipple—No doubt of it. Of course you would like to withdraw it after what has appeared. But I cannot consent to that.

Mr. Krauthoff—But I do not think, if Your Honor please, that it is fair and proper in the trial of the case to take evidence which is in, to which no objection is made, and which counsel asks to be kept in the case, and interrupt my introduction of evidence in the middle of the trial of the case to make an argument.

The Master—It very often happens that a piece of evidence is competent for some purposes and not for others, and a part of it is incompetent for a given purpose. Why not earmark that as you go along?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not talking about the competency of the evidence; I am talking about the courtesy of taking up the time of counsel who is introducing evidence in order to interject an argument on the facts.

[Adjourned to 10 a. m., Friday, July 18, 1919.]

July 18, 1919

Seventeenth Day

Supreme Judicial Court Room,
Boston, Mass., July 18, 1919, 10 a. m.

Adam H. Dickey, Resumed

The Master—Are you all ready, Mr. Krauthoff? If everybody is ready we will go on.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, yesterday some evidence was offered from the record of the Board of Directors with respect to what is known as the Bill suit in England, and I have now the correspondence on that subject, and also a transcript of the suit itself. In form it is a suit by The Christian Science Publishing Society of Boston, Massachusetts, against Mrs. Bill, an institution in England calling itself The Christian Science Publishing Society, and that—

The Master—It is a suit, as I understand it, brought in the English courts?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; in the nature of a suit to restrain unfair competition. We spoke of it yesterday as a suit for the infringement of a copyright.

The Master—Now, how much of the record of that case are we obliged to have in the record here?

Mr. Krauthoff—My present information, if Your Honor please, is that, so far as we are concerned, we shall be obliged to have none of it. At first impression I thought that it was significant that the trustees of the Publishing Society were taking up with the Board of Directors the matter of bringing a suit in England in the name of the trustees. On further investigation I find that the situation in England not only involved the question of Mrs. Bill's conducting a publishing society under the name of The Christian Science Publishing Society, but she was also conducting a church under the name of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of London, England, and calling it The Mother Church of London, England; so that it was a suit which affected both the Church and the Publishing Society, and no inference with respect to any issue in this case is to be drawn with respect to the case in England, so far as we are advised. In pursuance of my promise, I deliver all the documents to Mr. Whipple, for such use as he may see fit to make of them (passing documents to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—Accepting that statement that the attempted proof in connection with it that the directors were discharging something that came within our claim of the duty of the trustees has failed, I do not know that these papers are particularly material, but we will look them over, and if there is anything that needs to be brought to the attention of the Court we will do so.

The Master—Do you want to arrange anything now about going on this afternoon or not?

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have the trustees' record of June 8, 1914, a moment, please?

[A record book is passed by Mr. Whipple to Mr. Krauthoff.]

Q. (By Mr. Krauthoff.) Mr. Dickey, you are familiar with the handwriting of Mr. Frederick Dixon—

Mr. Thompson—Just a moment, Mr. Krauthoff. The question has been raised by Governor Bates about adjourning, and I think that we ought to settle that first.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon.

[Counsel confer.]

Mr. Whipple—So far as counsel for the trustees are concerned, we should hold ourselves in readiness to keep the usual hours. It is already obvious that we must all of us undergo some sacrifice to get the case dispatched as promptly as possible. It is of the greatest importance to those who are interested in the issues in this case, not merely the parties, but a great many people who are interested in the proceedings, that we should have no delay merely for personal convenience for vacations or things of that sort; and we are all agreed for the trustees that we will be very glad to keep the regular hours; and I understand that although it is a very distinct sacrifice to both General Streeter and Mr. Thompson with respect to their week-end engagements, or their desire to be with their families, they are willing to make the same sacrifice.

Mr. Streeter—You mean this week?

Mr. Whipple—Yes. We will deal with each week as the particular circumstances of the respective parties indicate with reference to the particular emergency; but this week we are ready to go ahead.

Mr. Bates—That is entirely agreeable to the counsel for the directors, Your Honor.

Mr. Krauthoff — If Your Honor please, one of the record books of the directors is not with us this morning, but I am sending for it, and so I may have to recur to some incidents between May 23 and May 31. June 24, 1918—

Mr. Whipple—What records are you referring to now?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, from May 23 on, from the book that ends June 4, 1918.

"Letters were read from the following . . . Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, June 22, concerning appointment to the Bible Lesson Committee"—

Mr. Thompson—What year, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—June 24, 1918.

Mr. Thompson—Is that a meeting of the directors?

Mr. Krauthoff—A meeting of the directors.

"Edward Smith, of the Boston Newspaper Web Pressmen's Union No. 3, dated June 21, relative to wage questions at the Publishing Society.

"The directors had an interview with Trustees Ogden and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society relative to the questions contained in the two foregoing communications."

[The record of the meeting of the directors of June 24, 1918, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 544. R. H. J.]

July 8, 1918:

We offer in this connection a letter to The Christian Science Board of Directors from The Christian Science Publishing Society, under date of July 12, 1918:

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"The following letter dated July 8, addressed to the business manager, has been received from the Third Assistant Postmaster-General at Washington, District of Columbia, exempting the Christian Science periodicals from the zone postage rates:

"In further reference to your call on the 29th ultimo, I have to say that your postmaster has been authorized to accept the publications mentioned in your letter of the same date for mailing at the special rate of postage prescribed by the provisions of the Act of Oct. 3, 1917, embodied in paragraph 4, amended section 429, Postal Laws and Regulations."

"Yours sincerely,

"THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY,

"By Ralph E. Parker,

"Assistant to Business Manager.

"Mgr-F7"

[The letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 545. R. H. J.]

July 11, 1918:

"Letters were read from the following: . . .

"Editor William P. McKenzie, dated Boston, July 10, concerning certain problems in connection with his work."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of July 11, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 546, R. H. J.]

July 15, 1918—well, that refers to the letter that I have just read in evidence, so that I do not care to read the record.

July 22, 1918:

"Letters were read from the following:

"Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, July 19, 1918, inclosing checks aggregating $48,869.73 completing balance due The Mother Church for the fifteen months ending March 30, 1918."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of July 22, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 547. R. H. J.]

July 30, 1918:

"The Directors had an interview with the Trustees Ogden and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society at the trustees' request."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of July 30, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read is Exhibit 548. R. H. J.]

Mr. Krauthoff—"Aug. 8, 1918—"

Mr. Thompson—Isn't there a motion there of great importance, on July 30, concerning matters of discipline, that has a bearing on this, that you have omitted? I don't want to interrupt the putting in of the evidence.

Mr. Krauthoff—I didn't notice it, if you will call my attention to it.

Mr. Streeter—Well, very likely it isn't in the record.

Mr. Thompson—There is a resolution offered there. It seems to me of some consequence if it is there, if it is in the record, to put it in.

Mr. Krauthoff—You mean July 30, 1918?

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—What is the incident, I do not find it.

Mr. Thompson—Well, the resolution, offered by Mr. Dittemore, is:

"That hereafter no discipline of any kind, either the removal of cards from the Journal, removal from Sunday school of teachers or officers, or any form of discipline, shall be taken without first giving the accused an adequate opportunity to be heard in their own behalf."

It seems to me that it might be of some consequence if it occurred.

Mr. Krauthoff—You mean that happened July 30, 1918?

Mr. Thompson—Yes; that was a resolution offered at that meeting.

Mr. Whipple—May I ask whether it was rejected? Does the record show it?

Mr. Thompson—Yes; it was not passed, it was rejected.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have no record on July 30, 1918, of that incident.

Mr. Thompson—Very well. I do not want to interfere with your putting in of the testimony.

[An extract from the directors' records, Aug. 8, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 549, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The directors had a conference with Trustees Ogden and Rowlands, Business Manager John R. Watts, and Editor Frederick Dixon, of The Christian Science Publishing Society, who recommended that as soon as the change can be effected, that The Monitor print one morning edition, thereby changing the paper from an evening to a morning edition. The recommendation was approved unanimously by the board, and the trustees were authorized to proceed with their plans."

[An extract from the directors' records, Aug. 15, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 550, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The directors had an interview with Trustees Ogden and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society. The board discussed with the trustees the recent purchase of a sedan automobile for the Publishing Society for its use, and asked the trustees if they thought that the circumstances warranted the outlay. The board also presented a number of questions, prepared by Mr. Dittemore, as follows:

"What was the gross income, net income and profit from subscriptions and sales of each of the Christian Science publications for the year immediately preceding the increase of price which went into effect on July 1, 1917?

"What was the total operating expense for the same period?

"What was the total pay roll for the same period?

"What was the average paid circulation of each publication for the same period?

"What has been the gross income and net income from subscriptions and sales of each of the publications for the year immediately following the increase of price?

"What has been the total pay roll for the same period?

"What has been the operating expense for the same period?

"What has been the paid circulation of each publication for the same period?

"What has been the income from subscriptions and other sales of each of the publications for each year during the last five years?

"What is the present paid circulation of each of the publications on bona fide subscriptions?

"What is the present paid circulation of each of the publications on subscriptions to Christian Science organizations, committees, camps, etc.?"

"What is the present paid circulation of The Monitor in Boston proper, Greater Boston, and the principal cities of the world, and total present paid circulation?"

"The trustees took the questions and said they would furnish replies as soon as the information could be collected.

"After a general discussion of the relationship of The Christian Science Publishing Society to The Mother Church, the trustees retired."

Q. In this meeting of Aug. 15, 1913, Mr. Dickey, in which reference was made to the purchase of this automobile, at that time did any difference of opinion arise as to the relation of the directors to the trustees? A. Yes, there was quite a controversy at that time.

Q. Was that the first time that any controversy arose after February, 1916? A. Yes.

Q. You remember you testified that on Feb. 24, 1916, the so-called Ditte-more memorandum was discussed? A. That was the first real outbreak.

Q. In August, 1918? A. Yes.

Q. And how did the outbreak occur, as you call it? A. Well, Mr. Dittemore brought the information to the board that—

Q. That is not proper to state. What did you say to the trustees? A. The board put the question up to the trustees.

Q. I beg pardon. What individual put it up to the trustees? A. I did, the chairman.

Q. You were chairman at the time? A. I was the spokesman for the board.

Q. Yes. And now what did you say and to whom did you say it? A. I addressed the trustees, all of them.

Q. At that time Mr. Eustace, Mr. Ogden, and Mr. Rowlands— A. Were present.

Q. And those were the three trustees at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now what did you say to the three trustees? A. I told them that it had been brought to the attention of the board that the trustees had purchased for themselves a limousine.

Q. Was the cost of it mentioned? A. No. I think nothing was said about the cost of it, but we thought it was rather an expensive luxury for the trustees to maintain.

Q. Did you so state to the trustees? A. We stated so to the trustees, and Mr. Rowlands replied resenting the imputation that the trustees did not have a right to buy an automobile for their use if they thought fit to do so.

Q. What else, if anything, was said in that interview? It speaks here "after a general discussion of the relationship," between the two.

Mr. Whipple—Has he finished all the colloquy or dialogue about it?

A. There was a great deal said in connection with the purchase of the automobile. The trustees—

Q. State as fully as you now recollect, Mr. Dickey, the subject of that conversation. A. Mr. Rowlands stated that he thought they had a perfect right to buy this automobile; that they felt they had use for it in taking some of their members to and from the trains, and meeting people who were coming to the city to see them at the train, and in using it for their night editorial service. He stated that if the directors objected to that outlay that he would be willing to purchase the automobile himself. I think that is all I can recall just at the present moment, of the conversation.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, I heard you ask a question whether this was the first time since Feb. 24, 1918.

Mr. Krauthoff—1916.

Mr. Streeter—1916. I didn't hear the answer. Did he answer it?

The Witness—I answered that, yes. I said this was the first real outbreak.

Q. Have you anything more to say about what was said on Aug. 15, 1918? A. Yes. We went on and discussed further the relationship of the trustees to the Board of Directors. The trustees raised the question of their rights under the Deed of Trust, and we raised the question of their obligation under the Church Manual.

Q. Was that the first time that the Deed of Trust had been mentioned after Feb. 24, 1916, so far as you know? A. In the way of discussion, I believe it was.

Q. Was there anything else that you wish to add to your testimony now on that subject, Mr. Dickey? A. There was quite a lengthy discussion.

Q. What if any statement was made at that time by the trustees about the rights they claimed under the Deed of Trust as distinguished from the Church Manual, if any? A. I don't recall specifically anything further, but, in general and in substance, there was quite a difference of opinion expressed as to whether the Trust Deed could be observed in conformity with the Manual. I maintained that it could.

Q. You mean you so stated? A. I did.

Q. And what did the trustees say on that subject? A. They apparently agreed with that statement.

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, I think you better put this language into the mouth of some one.

Q. What did any one of the trustees say on that subject—what did he say?

Mr. Whipple—And who was it?

A. They all participated in the conversation, and the substance, as nearly—

Q. Mr. Dickey, the intimation is that it is desired that you name the particular one of the trustees who spoke. A. Mr. Rowlands did the most of the talking, but I cannot recall his exact words, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. What was the substance of what Mr. Rowlands said on that occasion, as to whether the Manual and the Deed of Trust would work together or were irreconcilable? A. He said that there was nothing that would conflict in the Deed of Trust and the Manual. He stated further that he thought we were not treating the trustees as colleagues, that we were treating them as office boys, and expecting them to jump every time we pushed the button. We replied that that was not the situation at all, that we were trying in every way to cooperate with them, and merely expressed the wish that they would comply with the requirements of the Manual of The Mother Church in connection with their duties as trustees.

Q. And that, among other things, enjoins prudence and economy, I believe? A. I quoted that by-law which says that wisdom and economy shall govern the acts of the members of The Mother Church.

Q. Was there anything else at that time, Mr. Dickey? A. I think we must have talked for an hour or two.

Mr. Krauthoff—The other book, it

Your Honor please, has returned, and I will fill the gap that I left a moment ago.

[An extract from the directors' records, May 23, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 551, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to request from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society a copy of their letter to the Board of Directors dated Feb. 23, 1916, for the directors' files."

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer in connection with that the letter to the Board of Trustees.

[Letter, directors to trustees, May 23, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 552, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

[Exhibit 552.]

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Mass.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to ask you to kindly furnish them with a copy of your letter to the board, dated Feb. 23, 1916, the original of which we are unable to locate in the files of The Mother Church.

"Thanking you in anticipation of your courtesy,

"Sincerely yours,

Mr. Thompson—Didn't Mr. Dittemore present a report on periodicals at that meeting?

Mr. Krauthoff—On May 23, 1918?

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. I was going to suggest, if Your Honor please, that in the introduction of the testimony I am now directing myself to the trustees' case, and, with all deference to Mr. Thompson, when he asks me about incidents connected with Mr. Dittemore it diverts the course of the testimony, and I shall appreciate it if Mr. Thompson will take those up when I come to the Dittemore case.

Mr. Thompson—Let me just say, in reply to that, that I have carefully abstained from calling attention to any of the numerous things that have a bearing solely on Mr. Dittemore's case. I have tried to confine my suggestions, and they are merely suggestions, to matters bearing directly upon the present case. Mr. Dittemore played a very prominent part in asserting what he thought to be the rights of the directors here in these various conferences, and was trusted to prepare papers, and so on, by his fellow directors; and it occurred to me that in that very case, if he had presented a report on periodicals as part of this general discussion that was going on, it would be very appropriate in the Eustace and Dickey case to refer to it and put it in. What is really happening, and has been happening for a good while, is that the directors have now adopted Mr. Dittemore's position, and are putting in, in a way that perhaps his counsel would not choose if they had the guidance of the case—the case really prepared by Mr. Dittemore; and it is rather a painful process for us to sit here and hear our case put in by other people. Therefore I am once in a while venturing, when you seem to me to be leaving out something that Mr. Dittemore would naturally put in, just to call it to your attention; but if you do not desire me to do it I will remain silent.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, the intimation being that that letter bears on the Eustace case, I am quite willing to offer it.

[Mr. Krauthoff reads further from the directors' records of May 23, 1918, as follows:]

"A letter was read from Mr. Dittemore, dated Boston, May 23, being a report on ways and means for improving the Christian Science periodicals in accordance with a vote of the directors on April 25."

Mr. Krauthoff—Do you wish at this time, to have that letter read, Mr. Thompson?

Mr. Reuter—I wish you would, if you please.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, if it be read I must ask that it be not regarded as evidence in the Eustace case, unless it shall appear it was called to the attention of the trustees; because, of course, evidence affecting the trustees cannot come from the intercommunication of the directors as between themselves, not called to our attention. The letter may be admissible for some purpose, but not for proving anything with regard to the trustees. Whether it is admissible for some purpose I do not venture to say, but I see no purpose for which it is admissible in the trustees' case.

Mr. Krauthoff—The point made by Mr. Whipple, if Your Honor please, is the exact reason why I have not been doing that of which Mr. Thompson complains of the omission of it. The letter from Mr. Dittemore to the board, not communicated to the trustees, is not evidence against the trustees.

Mr. Thompson—I thought you suggested another reason a minute ago.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, that is the reason that I have not been reading these records.

The Witness—May I explain something about Mr. Dittemore's letter?

Mr. Thompson—I don't think we care for it at present.

The Master—Not just now.

Mr. Krauthoff—Perhaps not unless Mr. Dickey, it is to the effect that it was called to the attention of the trustees.

Q. Was it called to the attention of the trustees? A. Not at that time.

Q. At any time? A. I think not.

Q. That is all that is proper for you to state now; later we will come to that. A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—In view of Mr. Whipple's objection—

The Master—One moment, Mr. Krauthoff. You are taking, necessarily, a good deal of time in going through all these records, covering a long period. You have taken them in chronological order for a number of years. If there is any way in which we can arrange to have everything that is material in the case, in either case, go in during that process, wouldn't it be in the interest of all parties to have them so go in, rather than have Mr. Dittemore's counsel go all over them again?

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall follow Your Honor's direction.

The Master—Well, I do not direct; I simply suggest at the present stage.

Mr. Whipple—Now in that connection, if Your Honor please, it would serve a useful purpose if at the same time that the version of different conferences is given in the directors' records we could have the corresponding statement with regard to them in the records of the trustees. Perhaps that would be too burdensome, but we would be glad to have that done, because then we have collated and aggregated the entire picture with regard to the particular meeting.

The Master—We have already had the trustees' records to a considerable extent put in.

Mr. Whipple—But not with regard to the same conferences.

The Master—Very likely.

Mr. Whipple—I have followed it very carefully, and comparatively few of them correspond; and there are trustees' records that will have to go in finally if these records are considered of very vital importance. I merely offer the suggestion; I do not press it.

The Master—Now, we have got as far as we have, I do not quite see how we can make a material change in the method of doing things without introducing confusion. And it is quite likely that the suggestion that I made will be open to some objection.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I do not care to press it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think not, if Your Honor please, and in explanation of what Mr. Whipple has mentioned I endeavored to match the records of the trustees and the records of the directors, so that the correlative records of the same date could be introduced side by side, but I found they did not match. They did not always reflect each other's records.

Mr. Whipple—You mean, they were contradictory?

Mr. Krauthoff—No; I mean that there is not always a record in the trustees' records of a conference that the directors have recorded, and there is not always a record in the directors' records of a conference the trustees have recorded.

Now, I did read from the trustees' record every conference with the directors. I would be very glad from now on, if Mr. Whipple will take his trustees' record and see if there is anything on that date that bears on this, if it has not been introduced in evidence I will be very glad to do it. By taking the record of last Tuesday morning it can be found what I have omitted. I tried to read it all.

The Master—Well then, there is all of yesterday's work, and perhaps more, which has not been subjected to that process.

Mr. Whipple—I think, if Your Honor please, that we are getting to the more important meetings, so that we shall save a little time if this suggestion is adopted.

The Master—Very well. Unless counsel can agree upon some method of abbreviating it, we better go ahead as we have begun. My suggestion was made in the hope that possibly counsel would be able to devise a way—which I know they would be all very glad to do—to abbreviate the process of getting in these records with perfect justice to all parties concerned. Now, you may go on about the Dittmore letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, may it please Your Honor, this is the letter of Mr. Dittmore of May 23, 1918, to which Mr. Thompson has referred, which is being offered in evidence in the Dittmore case.

Mr. Whipple—Do I understand that Your Honor thought that letter might be put in in the Dittmore case?

The Master—Subject to your objection that it is not evidence in the Eustace case.

"Member of The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"May 23, 1918.

"Report on Ways and Means for Improving the Christian Science Periodicals.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"In accordance with the vote of the directors on April 25, I submit herewith my report on ways and means for improving the Christian Science periodicals—especially the Sentinel.

"Although this report is quite lengthy, I have reduced it about one-fourth of what it would have been had I inserted all of the notes and data which I have made during the past four weeks, during which time I have never so clearly seen the unlimited possibilities for progress which lie latent in our Sentinel.

"In order to adequately consider the needs of the Christian Science publications, it is necessary first that a clear comprehension be attained of Mrs. Eddy's purpose in establishing them. Each one of these periodicals represents a demonstration by Mrs. Eddy, and their continued growth and usefulness likewise require a demonstration by those who are responsible for their editing and publication and for keeping them 'abreast of the times.'

"Inasmuch, therefore, as demonstration is simply bringing within the range of the physical senses that which is supersensibly true, the demonstration of this Board of Directors in connection with their responsibility for the Christian Science periodicals can be assisted by seeing clearly what is the supersensible or spiritual fact in regard to each of them. To this end may we not

"1st. Analyze the significance of the name of each publication.

"2d. Consider Mrs. Eddy's statements in regard to the mission and purpose of each of them; and "3d. Make sure that they are kept 'abreast of the times' by seeing to it that those responsible for their editing and publication are growing in their vision and demonstrated ability for the work they are responsible for, and that they are gaining an increasingly clear perception of the signs in the mental heavens of this period which reveals the significance of the life and work of our great Leader and their relation to both history and prophecy.

"The first—The Christian Science Journal—was established 'to put on record the divine Science of Truth' ('The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany,' p. 353), and it has been said that:

"The Journal occupies, and shall ever occupy, a necessary and distinctive place in the history and literature of Christian Science. It can never, by the logic of events, sink lower in the scale of its mission and existence, but by the necessity of growth and progress, must continue in an ascending scale to perform the important function which gave it birth. Its establishment was fraught with far too much of sacrifice, struggle, and hardship,—its place in the rise and progress of the cause has been, is, and shall continue to be, much too important, to admit of its losing one jot or tittle of its proverbial value.—The Christian Science Weekly (Sentinel) Vol. 1, No. 1, p. 1.

"Der Herold der Christian Science and its more recent companion—Le Héraut de Christian Science—'proclaim the universal activity and availability of Truth' (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, page 353), and are undoubtedly intended to be the great missionaries to those of other folds than of 'Anglo-Israel.'

"The temperament, education (both secular and religious), and historical development of both the German and French peoples should be made the basis for selecting and producing the contents of these two publications. Simply translating and republishing articles from the Journal and Sentinel is entirely inadequate. Much material is available in current French literature to show the trend of the times in France and the signs which point to their national religious awakening.

"Because the English language is the language of prophecy and revelation, the human medium of expression by which divine Science—the 'Comforter'—has been reduced to human apprehension, this great fact should not be overlooked in these two publications especially, but rather should the thought of the ultimate universality of the English language be gently, but constantly kept in view. Neither should there be any fear in proceeding from this premise to point out that those whose broadening and progressing thought has led them to a domicile in English-speaking nations should fuse their consciousness with their adopted brothers in the sense of upholding their ideals, these ideals being the highest human concepts of liberty, even the solid foundation upon which the structure of revealed Truth has grown through the stages of stern Protestantism and the gradual emergence from the bondage of matter up to the revelation of divine Science. It is more than a mere matter of historical interest that our Leader's original plan for the Massachusetts Metaphysical College included instruction in the English language.

"The Christian Science Sentinel was established, not as a weekly edition of the Journal, but as Mrs. Eddy has explained, 'to hold guard over Truth, Life, and Love' (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 353), in fact, to perform the duties and responsibilities of a sentinel, which are to watch, to guard from surprise, to observe, and to give notice of danger. One of the reasons for its establishment is stated as follows in its initial number:

"The growing necessities of the situation seem to demand, at times, a speedier means of communication with the field than our monthly Journal affords.'

"As one of its duties the Sentinel should operate as a connecting link between the 'millions of unprejudiced minds' which The Monitor is reaching, and the coming of such to the serious study of Science and Health. This should not be done by having the Sentinel less spiritual, but more broadly spiritual and more universal in its appeal and with a keener insight into the spiritual meaning of world affairs.

"Men and women in every walk of human life need to have given to them a hint of the spiritual side of their daily responsibilities.

"I will now simply add some detached memoranda which, although disconnected, will tend to hint some of the latent possibilities of the Sentinel:

"The Sentinel should guard from the dangers that threaten the movement, and guide with true metaphysics into reducing error's claims to nothing.'

"The directors and editors should be in such close touch with the movement and with world affairs that the first symptoms of any evil which could become far-reaching in its undesirable or dangerous results would be checked and nullified by quick work through the Sentinel.'

"The editors should have a definite plan in the arrangement of their material.'

"The testimonials are the personal experiences; the articles should not be.'

"The periodicals should show the world that Mrs. Eddy's revelation must grow and expand in human consciousness until it fills the whole earth.'

"Christian Scientists need to know what Christian Science really is—its lineage and destiny—and the individual Scientist's responsibility.'

"The responsible heads of our periodicals should confer with, and develop the natural abilities of all writers of promise.'

"New contributors should be found, especially among progressive students who are active and successful practitioners and teachers.'

"The exchanges in the Sentinel are not always honest inasmuch as the article as a whole, if published, would usually contradict the sentiment of the detached sentence or paragraph quoted.'

"There should be less cant and stereotyped formality in regard to Mrs. Eddy, and a deeper, wiser estimate of her life and work.'

"The policy in former years has been largely one of glittering generalities and nothing that would offend anyone, instead of direct, clear, helpful admonitions. This policy has perhaps been responsible for the deep sleep of so many—more than any other one thing.'

"Introductions to lectures when given by Christian Scientists are not usually important.'

"Occasionally expressions of gratitude to Mrs. Eddy's loyal students and those who have borne the heat of the day would be welcome and appropriate.'

"Less conventionality and ironclad rules, and more elasticity and spontaneity.'

"Editing should not include re-casting articles into the mold of the editor's thought.'

"Leading articles and editorials should be timely and up to date. Those responsible for the Sentinel should be so alert to the "signs of the times" that they could call for and receive for publication from the writer best fitted to handle any particular subject, an article or editorial, in a few hours if need be, which would meet any emergency or forestall any effort of evil operating through suggestion.'

"There should be no effort to appear neutral on any vital question. Neutrality is impossible in Christian Science.'

"An understanding of God as Principle must also include an understanding of God as Love. Therefore, those who are taking their first footsteps should not be frightened, and human affection should not be criticized or chilled by intellectualism.'

"As a safeguard, all articles submitted for publication should be read and their availability considered by more than one person.'

"The Monitor's work—brilliant as it is—must be supplemented by the right activity of the Sentinel.'

"Lecture news that is news can be readily secured. The present department is entirely inadequate.'

"A column of "Current Items of Interest" should be started. For instance, within the past few days I recall seeing three items which could properly be reviewed in the Sentinel: an account of the discovery of a new papyrus, confirming the Scriptures; remarkable growth of the American Bible Society; new evidence that St. Paul visited Britain. The field should also be given brief sketches of the vital work of those men and women whom Mrs. Eddy has given undying recognition by mentioning them in her writings. For instance, such persons as Agassiz, Dr. Beaumont, Savonarola, Admiral Coligny, Charles Sumner, etc., etc. This would add a new interest to the study of our Leader's writings.'

"A column entitled "Signs of the Times." The Sentinel not only through its editorial, but especially by means of a well-balanced department, should review and interpret current events in the light of Christian Science. The Monitor does this editorially in the way in which a newspaper can do it, but the Sentinel should go more deeply into the significance of such events and thus supplement The Monitor's efforts with special consideration for the needs of Christian Scientists.'

"Articles which might be called "definitional" are dangerous because they usually attempt to re-state or re-interpret Mrs. Eddy's teachings and therefore to re-teach the field. This is one of error's ways of leading thought away from Mrs. Eddy's writings, instead of toward them.'

"The Sentinel should contain each week some new word from Mrs. Eddy, perhaps only a sentence, or a paragraph from a letter. The great storehouse of material which we have, not only from the letters that have been turned in to The Mother Church, but from the mass of material which Mrs. Eddy carefully preserved and which is in the hands of this board, really belongs to the world and must be given to the world. Such items, selected with care and wisdom, would stimulate the field at this time as nothing else would.'

"In journalism, the enemy of sustained activity and vitality is monotony—a claim that must be constantly handled.'

"The three following comments by Mrs. Eddy to her editors are deeply significant:

"To be wise and gentle and strong and fearless is the province of an editor.'

"There must be better literature and more interesting or it will not stand the test of what I require and the public needs—Two articles were shockingly wanting in quality.'

"Editorials explaining Scriptures is what I like. Watch signs of the times.'

"Most Christian Scientists add a dream about Christian Science to their dream of life in matter, just as they formerly dreamed of medicine or orthodoxy. Christian Science cannot be tacked on to anything else, but must be used to reform and transform out from matter and its dreams. To accomplish this end the Sentinel has been provided.

"Christian Scientists must see that a clear comprehension of Mrs. Eddy's place in history and prophecy is as essential to understanding her life-work as is an understanding of the significance of Jesus' human experience and accomplishments. In other words, the Israel of today needs to know the truth about itself and then as its belief fades into understanding and a broader vision ensues, Christian Scientists will have little time for personal opinions and the differences which grow out of fear and envyings. In a letter I received a few days ago was this statement: 'I have felt for some time that the Scientists generally should learn the truth about the Nation in whose consciousness the Messiah and the Comforter first appeared. It is amazing when you consider the part which Christian Science has to play in the events of these "latter days," that the Scientists generally are so indifferent or actually ignorant about these things.'

"In order to initiate and accomplish the changes and reforms in the periodicals so urgently needed, I stand ready to devote all of my time not required for board work, and to render this service anonymously or in any way that the board may desire. I have thought of the appointment of an 'editorial board' to serve perhaps only through one year of the Sentinel or until the rejuvenation is accomplished. The results of such a plan would, of course, depend upon the thought of those constituting the board.

"The possibility has been mentioned on this board of Mr. McKenzie taking the 'sabbatical year' to which his long and faithful service to the Church entitles him. I also believe that Mr. McCrackan and Mrs. Knott might be glad to have their service more in the capacity of contributing editors than in just the way they are now employed. I am strongly of the opinion that two fresh, active assistant editors should be appointed.

"Of one thing I am sure, and that is that God demands that our periodicals, and especially our Sentinel, should be brought to life, and that it be done now.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

[Letter, Mr. Dittemore to Board of Directors, May 23, 1918, is marked Exhibit 553.]

Now, this letter has on it the following marks—

The Master—I understand that it is the desire of General Streeter and Mr. Thompson that that whole letter, word for word, should go into the record.

Mr. Thompson—I think so, yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—This letter was received by The Christian Science Board of Directors on May 23, 1918. It was read on May 23, 1918, to The Christian Science Board of Directors; and read again on June 20, 1918, the marginal notation being that it was read before the full board on that date. There are also pencil marks which indicate that copies of the letter went to each of the other directors, including a copy to Mr. McKenzie on July 2, 1918. In the body of the letter, the first two of the last three paragraphs have the word "out" in pencil on either side.

Mr. Thompson—In the handwriting of Mr. Jarvis.

Mr. Krauthoff—Which Mr. Dittemore states is in the handwriting of Mr. Jarvis, and not in his handwriting.

I wish to make an explanation, if Your Honor please.

[At this point a colloquy is had which, at the suggestion of the Master, and with the acquiescence of counsel, is omitted from the record.]

I want to make a correction in the statement that I made a moment ago with respect to Mr. Whipple. I stated generally that I had put in all the records of the trustees that mentioned conferences with the directors. I am reminded that that statement is too broad. What I did was to put in evidence all records of the trustees showing conferences with the directors in which the nature of the conference or the business transacted was set forth.

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Krauthoff, may I return to you the papers with regard to the London suit? We see nothing in them that makes it desirable to put them in evidence (passing documents to Mr. Krauthoff).

Mr. Krauthoff—May 27, 1918:

"At 12 o'clock noon the board had a meeting with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society at their own request, to discuss the affairs of the Publishing Society and the relations between the Board of Directors and the trustees."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of May 27, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 554. R. H. J.]

Mr. Thompson—What date is that, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—May 27.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, with respect to the meeting of the Board of Directors of May 27, 1918, to which your attention has just been called, you are familiar with the trustees' record of May 27, 1918? A. I heard it read here in court.

Q. Which we offered in evidence as Exhibit 347. And is the trustees' record a correct statement of what happened at the directors' meeting, or were there other incidents? A. Could I hear that record again. I don't recall just what was said at the—

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not want to read it into the record again, because it has already been read into the record once. I will show it to you.

Mr. Whipple—I shall be very glad if you will read it in connection with the record that you have just put in.

Mr. Krauthoff—It has already been offered in evidence as Exhibit 347, and has been read.

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps it would refresh His Honor's mind if it were either read or laid before him at this time.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I read it, if Your Honor please, for the information of the master and the witness, with the understanding that the stenographer will not set it out again in the record? Let the record merely show that it is read at this time.

Mr. Whipple—Well, if it does not make any difference, why not let it go into the record. It does no harm; but I will take Your Honor's direction.

The Master—We want to do all we can to keep down the bulk of the record.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, if Your Honor please, but this is a very important meeting, or may be so considered, and I think that a great many things could be left out of the record to greater advantage.

The Master—It is now once in the record.

Mr. Whipple—Very well, Your Honor.

The Master—Why not have the memorandum here, Exhibit 347, noted in the record as read to the witness.

Mr. Whipple—Very well, Your Honor.

The Master—Let that take the place of putting the contents into the record again.

[At this point Exhibit 347 is read by Mr. Krauthoff.]

Q. Mr. Dickey, you will recall that at adjournment yesterday the letter from the directors of May 21, 1918, was read, referring to this Section E of Paragraph 7, which related to the salaries of those elected by the board? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And employed by the trustees. Now, at this meeting of May 27, 1918, did any question arise as to the power of the directors to elect the editors and the general manager?

Mr. Whipple—Well, if Your Honor please, I think that, in putting in the direct examination, it is very much better to ask the witness what was said, instead of putting leading questions: This is not directed to contradicting anything which is in the trustees' records; it is directing his attention in a way that is leading to a particular answer.

The Master—Try to get at it in that way, if you can, Mr. Krauthoff; it will shorten matters.

Mr. Krauthoff—I thought that I was shortening it by asking what was said on that subject. The conference was quite lengthy.

Q. Was anything said at that meeting about destroying this memorandum? A. Nothing.

Q. Was anything said at that meeting about that memorandum not being operative or in force or having been agreed to, as you said yesterday, as a gentleman's agreement? A. Nothing about its not being agreed to, but something was said about its having been agreed to.

Q. What was said about that, and by whom? A. I stated that this paragraph that I cited to them was an extract from the memorandum of Feb. 24, 1916, to which we had all agreed, and also stated this, that it seemed only natural and right that the editors and the business manager who were elected by the Board of Directors should receive a salary that was arrived at by the trustees after a consultation with the directors.

Q. What statement, if any, was made by any of the trustees, and by which trustee, in response to that? A. Mr. Eustace said that that was a proper and a fair arrangement. I replied that it had not always been carried out, and that we had in times past called their attention to this same neglect on their part, namely, that they had gone ahead and raised the salaries of our appointees without consulting us. Mr. Dittemore also joined in the conversation and stated that this had been done before, after it had been arranged between us, but that it should not be done without consulting with the directors.

Q. You speak of "this" having been done before— A. The raising of the salaries of our appointees.

The Master—Give me the date of that trustees' record.

Mr. Krauthoff—May 27, 1918, Exhibit 347.

The Master—All right.

Q. In that connection, Mr. Dickey, were you, as a board or otherwise, advised of the action of the trustees in October, 1918, raising the salary of Mr. Watts to $10,000 per year? A. I do not remember that we were apprised at that time that Mr. Watts' salary had been raised.

Q. Any request made of the board for its approval, or conference? A.

Nothing. We did not know that Mr. Watts was drawing a salary of $10,000.

Q. The last salary raise that Mr. Dixon received, was that with the knowledge and approval of the Board of Directors? A. It was not.

Q. Are you advised of any raise that was made in the salary of Mr. McKenzie? A. We heard indirectly that they had done so, but they did not advise us officially of their action.

Q. Or take it up with you in any way? A. No.

Mr. Whipple—Isn't it true that at least some of these increases of salary happened after May?

Mr. Krauthoff—After May, 1918?

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, Mr. Watts' did. I haven't the date of Mr. Dixon's increase.

Mr. Whipple—Well, then, you would seem to be defeating your own purpose by saying that an agreement had been reached, because it shows that the parties did not so understand it even afterward. However, that, I suppose, will be a part of your argument.

Mr. Streeter—You mean yours.

Mr. Bates—You remember that these salaries were raised on Sept. 30, the date that your records show that they agreed to this statement which the trustees had drawn up of their position.

Mr. Whipple—If you stated the contrary of what you did state you would be entirely correct, Governor.

Mr. Bates—Well, I will leave that to the record.

Q. Then was any statement made on May 27, 1918, as to what the trustees would do about these salaries of your appointees? A. They said it was perfectly right that we should be consulted, and that they would do so.

Mr. Whipple—You say "they." I think that we had better have the names.

The Witness—Mr. Eustace, and concurred in by the other two members of the board.

Q. That is, Mr. Eustace made the statement? A. Yes.

Q. Did the other two members, Mr. Ogden and Mr. Rowlands, say anything, or remain silent? A. They gave their assent to Mr. Eustace's statement.

Mr. Whipple—Well—

Q. What did they say? What did Mr. Ogden say? A. I don't recall the words he said—

Q. The substance. A. —but I know that it was—

Q. What was the substance of what Mr. Ogden said? A. The substance of what Mr. Ogden said was that that was quite a proper request for the directors to make, and that he would agree to that; and Mr. Rowlands also made the same statement.

Mr. Krauthoff—May 31, 1918.

"The directors had an interview with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society"—
Now, I haven't the trustees' record on that.

Q. Do you recall any subject that came up at that time, Mr. Dickey? A. I don't now, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Whipple—Do you want it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be glad to see what your record shows on May 31.

Mr. Whipple—Shall I read it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if you please.

Mr. Whipple—May 31, 1918. This is under the heading, "Conferences with directors from trustees' minutes."

The Master—This is exhibit what?

Mr. Whipple—It is not any exhibit.

The Master—It has not been put in. All right.

Mr. Whipple—"At the request of The Christian Science Board of Directors, the trustees met with them at 12 o'clock on Friday, May 31, 1918, and the directors said that the Assistant Secretary of War for France, His Excellency Justin Godart, would be in Boston tomorrow and would be at the publishing house about 10:10 a. m. with Monsieur J. C. Joseph Flamand, the French Consul. The directors asked the trustees to be on hand at the publishing house to show the gentlemen over the building. They also desired that Mr. Godart and Mr. Flamand be provided with copies of the French-English Science and Health and with copies of our other literature in French.

"The directors also considered with the trustees the question of the appointment of the translator for the German department, about which the trustees recently wrote the directors. In this connection the appointments of the French translators were also discussed."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees on May 31, 1918, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 555. R. H. J.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, having filled the gap, I will take up the record at the place where I stopped, after Aug. 15—

The Master—Is the record read by Mr. Whipple just now to be marked as an exhibit?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if Your Honor please.

The Master—You ask this witness no further questions about it.

Q. Now that you have heard the trustees' record, Mr. Dickey, was there anything that occurred at that meeting which you now recall? A. Yes, I remember that we received in the directors' room the French gentleman referred to there.

Mr. Whipple—Well, not on that day, he was not present.

The Master—That is another matter.

The Witness—I am referring to the record that was read about the visit of the Frenchman to the church.

Q. Was the question of the translation taken up as stated in the trustees' record? A. I don't remember that, Mr. Krauthoff. I do remember that there was a discussion at some time about the appointment of Mr. Stanger about the—

The Master—Do we need that now? Mr. Krauthoff—That, I believe, has already been shown in evidence.

The Witness—I don't recall the circumstances.

Q. You recall the letter from the trustees about Mr. Stanger having been changed from the position of assistant editor to that of a translator? A. I do.

Q. And that was submitted by the trustees to the directors at about this time? A. Yes. If I had the name of this person suggested, perhaps I could recall.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. If you want it, we have a line record of a meeting the next day, June 1, 1918, at 10:10 a. m.

Mr. Krauthoff—That refers to the same subject, doesn't it, Mr. Whipple, about the gentleman from France?

Mr. Whipple—It merely says:

"The Board of Directors brought His Excellency Justin Godart to the meeting, with the French Consul, Mr. Flamand, and the two aides, Major Rist and Major Locard."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of June 1, 1918, from which the foregoing is read, is Exhibit 556. R. H. J.]

And then it says that they walked round the publishing house, but it does not say that the directors went with them.

The Master—So far as I gather, if that is all about the meeting of the trustees with the directors on May 31—

Mr. Krauthoff—That is all.

The Master—There is no controversy about that.

Mr. Krauthoff—No; it is a mere passing incident.

The Master—What do you want it in the record for?

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not recall, if Your Honor please, when Mr. Whipple asked about reading it in the record, that that was the incident to which it referred. I did not select it as one that I offered, because I did not regard it as of any importance. I shall be very glad if the meeting of May 31, 1918, may be regarded as out of the record.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I think that it is quite as important as almost anything that has been offered from any of the meetings—

The Master—Mr. Whipple does not agree that that shall not stay in the record.

Mr. Whipple—That shows the kind of things that they were conferring about, and the attitude and relations of the parties at the time.

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 19, 1918:

"Letters were read from the following:—

The Master—You now continue from August, 1918?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Having filled, as you tell us, the gap which, if you had had the book here, you would have filled before, relating to May, 1918?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, Your Honor. We have now arrived at Aug. 19, 1918—

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Krauthoff, before taking that up, do you want our corresponding record of Aug. 15? You have just finished with that when you started in to fill the gap.

Mr. Krauthoff—My recollection is that that has been read in evidence.

Mr. Whipple—Has it been about this Franklin car?

Mr. Krauthoff—Your meeting of Aug. 15, 1918, has been offered in evidence as Exhibit 357.

Mr. Whipple—All right.

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 19, 1918.

"Letters were read from the following: Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, Aug. 16, recommending certain changes in the first floor offices and basement to provide better facilities for the shipping and storage departments," with the word "Approved."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Aug. 19, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read is Exhibit 557. R. H. J.]

Mr. Thompson—Is that all that you are going to read of Aug. 19?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is all I have in mind on that.

Mr. Thompson—If I may make the suggestion, isn't there something in that meeting about the minutes of that or a preceding meeting not being approved?

Mr. Krauthoff—I don't think that has any bearing on the Eustace case. I don't think I shall read it.

Mr. Streeter—Well, Mr. Thompson, what we shall have to do—this gentleman is reading such parts of these records as it seems to him that he wants, and he is omitting the other parts, and it will compel us to go through them and put in what he has omitted. Of course he doesn't want to read about not approving the minutes.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, on Aug. 19, 1918, this book recites:

"The minutes of the regular meeting of Aug. 15 were read and at the request of the Chair and approval of the same was deferred until the next meeting."

Mr. Thompson—Who was the Chair?

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Dickey was the chairman. Now, in presenting the record in the Eustace case I have not looked over these things.

Mr. Streeter—Don't spend too much time on it, we will take care of ourselves. Go ahead.

Mr. Thompson—One moment. You did use it in the Eustace case because you read the records of Aug. 15. Now, if they were not approved—very well.

The Master—Approval was deferred, so far as we have got, I believe.

[An extract from directors' records, Aug. 21, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 559, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"At a regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors held at 10:30 a. m., on the above date in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Neal, and Merritt. The records of the regular meetings of Aug. 13, 15, 19, and 20, were read and approved."

[An extract from the directors' records, Sept. 4, 1918, was offered in evidence as Exhibit 560, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The directors had an interview with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and discussed the wisdom of publishing the proposed pamphlet entitled 'Purification.' At the request of the trustees further consideration of the question was deferred until a later meeting."

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, with respect to this pamphlet entitled "Purification," I desire to have it identified as an exhibit, but I shall not read it—the pamphlet itself, as published by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

[A copy of the pamphlet entitled "Purification" is marked as Exhibit 561, for identification.]

Mr. Whipple—Would you like to have our record on that meeting?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have already offered it in evidence. Sept. 4, 1918, was offered in evidence as Exhibit 362.

Q. Mr. Dickey, you recall the incident of the pamphlet entitled "Purification"? A. I do.

Q. That pamphlet had its inception in some articles written for The Monitor and published therein by Mr. Dixon? A. Yes.

Q. Did the Board of Directors request the writing of those articles? A. They did not.

Q. Or did you know of the articles prior to their appearing in the advance sheets that were sent to the directors? A. We did not.

Q. At the time that these advance sheets were sent to the directors did you give to that pamphlet the care and thought which you afterward did? A. No.

Q. These sheets came to you 48 hours in advance of their publication in The Monitor? A. They did.

Q. And unless you made objection to them they were automatically released and published in The Monitor? A. That is correct.

Mr. Whipple—Well, if Your Honor please, we do not assent either to the fact or to your automatic recital. That is not the testimony of the witness. We do not assent at all that they were automatically released if they said nothing, nor do we assent that if they objected to them still they would not be published, if the trustees felt upon their own responsibility they should be. You have recited that once before. Your witness does not testify to it, but it is an assumption you have got into your mind of which you find it difficult to rid yourself.

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not know that that was a controversy in May of 1918. I will state it in another form.

Q. What was the practice—

The Master—Hadn't you better let the witness state? "What was the practice"—that is proper, go on.

Q. What was the practice at this time, in September, 1918, with respect to these metaphysical articles in The Monitor being sent by the trustees to the Board of Directors?

Mr. Whipple—As to that there is no dispute.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is what I thought.

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Dickey. A. The trustees were in the habit of sending over to the offices of the directors an advance proof or advance copy of the article that appeared each day in the Home Forum page of The Monitor, 48 hours before the article appeared. It was the habit of the directors to read these articles over, and if they felt it was necessary to make any change in the article these articles were marked and the question taken up with the editor.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, what we would like to know is whether this was ever done, whether they made any objection or criticisms or suggestions, and, if so, what and when, and what was done; because otherwise he is stating a theory of what might be done.

The Master—Well, you are going to have an opportunity, of course, to ask all those questions later if Mr. Krauthoff does not ask them now.

Q. Well, that was the general practice? A. That was.

Q. You are now stating as to the general practice? A. Yes.

Q. If the article met with your approval, or if you did not have an opportunity to go over it, what, if anything, was done? A. It was printed then by assuming that the directors had given their consent.

Q. That is, you did not formally express your approval of an article of which you did approve? A. No.

Q. Now, these articles that are in the pamphlet "Purification" were articles that did appear in The Monitor? A. They were.

Q. And they were articles to which, as they came to you, you expressed no disapproval at that time? A. That is right.

Q. When did you first hear about their being gathered and put into a pamphlet? A. Mr. Jarvis informed us one day that he had received a proof of a pamphlet being printed by the Publishing Society, containing a number of articles that had appeared in The Monitor, and that the title of the pamphlet was "Purification." I asked him if he could get the proofs. He said "Yes," and did so, and gave one to each of the directors.

Q. Is this the proof of the pamphlet which came to you? (Showing paper to witness.) A. Yes, it is.

Q. In whose handwriting is the lead pencil interlineation? A. That is my handwriting.

The Master—When you passed this up to me did you offer it as an exhibit? (Referring to a copy of the pamphlet entitled "Purification.")

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, may I show it to Mr. Whipple? He wants me to. I want to offer it as an exhibit but I want to first show it to Mr. Whipple.

The Master—I thought you gave it to me for my instruction.

Mr. Krauthoff—For your information.

Mr. Whipple—This appears to have been marked as an exhibit. When was that done?

The Master—Well, we will have that canceled, if necessary.

Mr. Whipple—No. I thought it had been put in before.

Mr. Krauthoff—It being a pamphlet issued by The Christian Science Publishing Society, I am ready to show it to Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—May I ask what the object is in putting it in in full?

Mr. Krauthoff—The object of putting it in in full is to compare it with the one that Mr. Dickey has just identified, for the purpose of showing how many of the changes which the board pointed out were put into the pamphlet as issued.

Mr. Whipple—What do you claim—that all the changes they suggested were adopted?

Mr. Krauthoff—That they were not.

Mr. Whipple—That they were not adopted?

Mr. Krauthoff—That they were not. Mr. Whipple—All right; we will agree to that. We will agree that some of the changes that were suggested by the directors were adopted and others we declined to adopt. Now, what more do you want than that?

Mr. Krauthoff—I think, if Your Honor please, it will aid Your Honor. I do not ask that this be copied into the record, I do not ask to read it, but that it be identified as an exhibit as other pamphlets are, in order that the court may have it before it.

Mr. Whipple—If you want to put it in for identification I have no objection, or if you want to point out the things or let your witness point out the things that he suggested, which were adopted, and those that he suggested which were not adopted, I am willing that should be done.

The Master—If that is done, and if the making or not making of the changes is important in the case, I suppose the pamphlet had better be an exhibit.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer it as an exhibit, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—I am perfectly satisfied provided we do not have to print it again.

The Master—That has already been understood.

Mr. Whipple—That settles it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Not to be printed in this form or to be transcribed by the stenographer, but merely offered as an exhibit—If Your Honor please, it is 11:35—if we may suspend for a few moments.

The Master—We will stop for a few moments.

[Short recess.]

Mr. Krauthoff — If Your Honor please, I desire to make a statement especially for the information of Mr. Whipple. Several times the question has been asked how many of these trustees' records are introduced in evidence, and there seems to be some question about whether I introduced all that bear on the case or not. I would prefer now to be released from all statements that I have made about how many trustees' records I have introduced and allow Mr. Whipple to take the record of the case and his trustees' records, and determine for himself, so that there may be no question of whether he is correctly advised.

At this time, in connection with this pamphlet "Purification," I have a letter from The Christian Science Publishing Society Board of Trustees, David B. Ogden, secretary, under date of Aug. 27, 1918. That letter was authorized by the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society on Aug. 27, 1918, and is set out in full in the records of the meeting on that date, which have heretofore been offered in evidence as Exhibit 359.

I offer the reply to that letter from the records of the Board of Directors, under date of Aug. 28, 1918:

"August 28, 1918.

"Board of Trustees,
"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to say in reply to your kind favor of Aug. 27 requesting the board to write you regarding the points in the pamphlet 'Purification' which are under question, that all that the board has asked so far is that you will kindly withhold the pamphlet from circulation until they have an opportunity to discuss it with you in person. After that, if they have any well-defined objections they will be made to you in writing as requested.

"With reference to your request to defer the conference until Wednesday noon, Sept. 4, it will be quite agreeable to the directors to see you at that time.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "CHAS. E. JARVIS,

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors."

"CEJ-C"

[Letter from Board of Directors to Board of Trustees, Aug. 28, 1918, is marked Exhibit 562.]

Q. In connection with the document I have just read in evidence, Mr. Dickey, there is a rubber stamp on the upper right-hand corner, "Read, Sept. 9, 1918, the C. S. Board of Directors." That means that you read the letter again in your own— A. It means that it was brought out and re-read for our own information.

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday, Sept. 9, 1918:

"A letter dated Sept. 6 from the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society regarding the pamphlet 'Purification' was read, also a letter dated Sept. 9, from Business Manager John R. Watts, on the same subject."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, Sept. 9, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 563.]

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"The Christian Science Publishing Society, Boston, U. S. A.,

"Cable Address, 'Monitor, Boston,'

"Sept. 6, 1918.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"Since our conference with you last Wednesday we have had a talk with Mr. Dixon regarding the pamphlet 'Purification,' and we have decided to send out the pamphlets we now have printed, and in future editions to make the one or two changes spoken of in our meeting with you, in order to clarify any possible misunderstanding.

"The point on page 20 was a typographical error, and there should have been simply a comma after 'universe' instead of a period.

"Very sincerely yours,

"Board of Trustees,

(Signed) "HERBERT W. EUSTACE,

"Secretary."

[Letter, Board of Trustees to Board of Directors, Sept. 6, 1918, is marked Exhibit 564.]

Mr. Krauthoff—I don't know whether I read this before adjournment or not—the minutes of the meeting of Sept. 4, 1918:

"Sept. 4, 1918. The directors had an interview with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and discussed the wisdom of publishing the proposed pamphlet entitled 'Purification.' At request of the trustees further consideration of the question was deferred until a later meeting."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Sept. 4, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 565.]

Q. Now, this letter from the trustees to you of Sept. 6, 1918, referred to "last Wednesday," which would, of course, be Wednesday, Sept. 4, 1918.

Now, at this conference on Sept. 4, 1918, did you take up the dummy pamphlet that you had with the lead pencil interlineations in? A. Yes. I held that in my hand while talking to the trustees. That was not submitted to them in its present shape with the request that they make the corrections made in that proof

Q. It was not? A. No. If you would like me to tell the whole story, I will do it.

Q. I want you to tell it, and tell it very fully, Mr. Dickey. A. When I first discovered what seemed to be some inaccuracies in this pamphlet—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. If Your Honor please—

Q. You mean by that—

Mr. Whipple—I think the story had better be confined to the conversation.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. I mean, of course, the conversation between you and the trustees, being careful always to say which trustee spoke and what he said. A. Yes. We at first discussed this in the board before the trustees were present. The board sent me over to Mr. Watts with the request that that pamphlet be not printed. I called on Mr. Watts, who was our appointee—

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, I will ask to have this all stricken out as unresponsive.

The Master—I think it will have to be.

Q. Will you please begin, Mr. Dickey, with the person to whom you spoke—that is, the trustee or Mr. Watts—and what you said to Mr. Watts or any one of the trustees, and what any one of them or Mr. Watts said to you, omitting such words as "we agreed," or "it was understood." Make it as individual as possible.

Mr. Whipple—How do you claim that the conversation with Mr. Watts is admissible?

Mr. Krauthoff—Because it is a subject upon which Mr. Watts has testified, and the trustees have written upon their records what occurred with Mr. Watts, and we have also the right to show, if Your Honor please, the directions we gave to our appointee, Mr. Watts, and what happened to those directions.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I challenge that right.

Mr. Krauthoff—Of course I—

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Watts is an employee of the board, of the trustees. He is paid by them and engaged by them, and I do not think it is material in this case what directions these directors undertook to give Mr. Watts.

Mr. Krauthoff—If he be treated as an employee of the board, of the trustees, and is therefore an agent of the Board of Trustees, why, certainly, any conversation with the agent of the plaintiffs is admissible against them.

Mr. Whipple—I had never known such a rule of law unless—

The Master—Now, has Mr. Watts testified about any conversation between himself and the witness?

Mr. Krauthoff—As to the pamphlet "Purification"?

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—According to the records of the trustees, Mr. Watts on one occasion said—

The Master—No; but has Mr. Watts testified about it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not able now to state about that, nor would I say definitely that Mr. Watts even testified on the subject of the pamphlet. I did not cross-examine him, and I did not charge my mind about that. But this pamphlet is mentioned in the trustees' records, and Mr. Watts' doings with respect to it are related in the trustees' records. Now, Mr. Watts, so far as this case is concerned, is either one of two things: He is either the employee of the plaintiffs and their agent in the conduct of the business which they claim to carry on, and as such, conversations with him are admissible; or he is the employee, the appointee, of the board, and subject to the board's direction, and the board has the right to show what directions it gave to its own appointee and what happened to those directions.

Mr. Whipple—We do not think that Mr. Watts was in a position to bind the trustees or receive communications for the trustees from the Board of Directors. He does not claim any such function, and he never did any such thing. He was not cross-examined on the matter, and therefore it cannot be for the purpose of contradicting him. It is purely a matter inter alios, and does not affect the Board of Trustees and is not admissible therefore, we claim.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, according to the contention of the plaintiff, Mr. Watts is their business manager for the transaction of their business with all the world, including The Christian Science Board of Directors, and any conversation that anybody has ever had with Mr. Watts about the affairs of The Christian Science Publishing Society is admissible against the plaintiffs as a conversation with their agent, on their own theory. I am not admitting that their theory is correct, but I say that on either one of the two aspects of the case we have a right to tell what we said to Mr. Watts.

The Master—What is the conversation with Mr. Watts? I mean on what date?

Q. What date did you speak to Mr. Watts first about the pamphlet "Purification," Mr. Dickey? A. About Sept. 4, I should say, as near as I can recall.

Q. That is the Wednesday on which the conference occurred? A. No; it was before that conference.

Q. The conference occurred on Wednesday, Sept. 4, 1918? A. Yes. This was prior to the conference.

Q. How long before the conference? A. A day or two; possibly two days.

Q. What did you then say to Mr. Watts—

The Master—Now, pause. You want to inquire into the conversation with Mr. Watts?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—On Sept. 4, or a day or two prior to that date, and Mr. Whipple objects.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. And we offer that in the aspect either as a direction to our own agent or an inquiry to our own agent with a view of following it up to show what happened to it; or, if the other theory which Mr. Whipple contends for be correct, our conversation with an agent of the plaintiffs.

The Master—I think I shall have to let you ask him, subject to Mr. Whipple's objection. A. I told Mr. Watts that the pamphlet "Purification" was not acceptable to the directors and asked him what shape it was in—if it had been printed. He said, "Wait a moment and I will inquire." He asked for Mr. Rhodes on the telephone, and a conversation ensued, a part of which I heard—namely, what Mr. Watts said. Then he said, "It has not been—"

The Master—You will have to leave that out, won't you?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not asking for that.

Q. What did Mr. Watts say to you after the conversation? A. He said, "Mr. Rhodes informs me that that has not been printed." "Well," I said, "that is good; will you kindly hold it up and not print it until you hear from us further?" He said, "I will." And with that understanding I left.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, what is the date of this conversation?

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Dickey said a day or two before Sept. 4, 1918.

Q. Now, in connection with the letter of Sept. 6—

The Master—Now, have you got all through with the talk with Mr. Watts?

Q. That is all that occurred on that occasion, Mr. Dickey? A. That is all with Mr. Watts.

Q. Now then, coming to the conference on Wednesday, Sept. 4, 1918. Who was present at that conference, of the trustees? A. All three trustees were present, as I recall it.

Q. And what was said by any of the directors to the trustees at that conference about that pamphlet, and what was said by any of the trustees to the directors at that conference, stating in substance what each individual said, and naming the individual. A. I addressed the board and stated that this pamphlet—

Q. One moment. Did you address the Board of Directors or the Board of Trustees? A. The Board of Trustees. I said that this pamphlet was not exactly satisfactory to the Board of Directors to be issued as a pamphlet. Mr. Eustace said, "Why, all of those articles have been published in The Monitor." I said, "That is true; but now you are going to republish them and circulate them in large quantities to Christian Scientists all over the world, and we think—I think it is a subject that had better be left as it is and not sent out in quantities into the field." Mr. Eustace asked me why. "Well," I said, "it treats to a great extent on the subject of generic man."

Mr. Streeter—What?

The Witness—The subject of generic man—g-e-n-e-r-i-c man.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, I can spell it after I hear it. Thank you.

The Witness—I said that I thought that Mr. Dixon said more in his pamphlet on that subject than Mrs. Eddy had said in all her books, and that I did not think it wise to send that out into the field. Mr. Dittmore remarked that the term "generic man" had been used as a fetish in the Publishing Society, that whenever anything went wrong over there the trustees said, "Now, that is because you do not understand generic man, and if you will study up on the subject of generic man your troubles will disappear." Mr. Dittmore also stated that he thought this was a subject that had better be left untouched. I stated that in addition to this there were certain inaccuracies in the pamphlet that ought to be corrected before it was sent out. I pointed out several myself by word, not by pencil indications. The pamphlet was in Mr. Eustace's hand, and he followed the statements I made. I told him why I thought these corrections should be made. I pointed out the place that their letter refers to as a mistake in punctuation, and told them that it did not make good sense. And I said that it was the wish of the directors that that pamphlet not be sent out until it had been corrected. I said, "Another thing, it does not bear the name of the author, and it was always Mrs. Eddy's custom and her desire that when articles on Christian Science went out into the field from the Publishing Society that they ought to bear the name of the author," that that custom had been carried out for years in the Journal and Sentinel and in all the pamphlets and lectures that had been issued. They said that—

Q. Not "they." Which one? A. Yes. Mr. Eustace said he couldn't see why that was necessary, but he finally agreed—

Q. What did he say? A. He finally said he would take that up with Mr. Dixon, and he saw no objection to putting Mr. Dixon's name on the pamphlet. I said, "Well, you understand—" I said, "You will now understand that this pamphlet is not to be sent out until we have an opportunity to confer with you again and suggest these corrections to you." He said, "We will hold it up." That is substantially all I can recall of that conversation.

Q. On Sept. 4, 1916? A. Yes, sir.

The Master—No; 1918, isn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—1918, yes.

Then the subject came up on Monday, Sept. 9, 1918, according to the record.

Monday, Sept. 9, 1918:

"A letter dated Sept. 6, from the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, regarding the pamphlet 'Purification' was read; also a letter dated Sept. 9, from Business Manager John R. Watts on the same subject."

I have read in evidence the letter of Sept. 6, 1918; I stated a moment ago that it had been offered in evidence. We now offer the letter of Mr. Watts of Sept. 9, 1918:

"Mr. Charles E. Jarvis, Clerk,
"The First Church of Christ, Scientist,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Mr. Jarvis:

"In response to a memorandum from Miss Warren, our records show that the pamphlet 'Purification' went to the printing department on July 17, and that 200,000 copies were ordered on July 24. In August, after 5000 copies had been bound, and the remainder of the order had been printed, all work on the pamphlet and announcements relative to it was ordered stopped by the business manager. The pamphlet was ordered released by the Board of Trustees directly to the printing department on Sept. 6. We have standing orders for about 50,000 in advance now in the shipping room.

"Sincerely yours,

(Signed) "JOHN R. WATTS.
"Business Manager."

[The letter from John R. Watts, business manager, to Charles E. Jarvis, clerk, dated Sept. 9, 1918, of which the foregoing is a copy, is marked Exhibit 566. R. H. J.]

To which the Board of Directors wrote on Sept. 9, 1918, as follows:

"Board of Trustees,
"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Boston, Mass.

"Dear Friends:

"Your kind letter of Sept. 6 has been received, and I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to say that they regret to learn that you have decided to send out the pamphlet 'Purification' prior to the carrying out of the understanding the directors had with you at their interview on Sept. 5, which was to the effect that the matter would be held in abeyance until after another interview should take place, the purpose being from the directors' point of view that a satisfactory understanding might be reached that would be for the very best interest of every one concerned. In order to have such a working out of this problem and to preserve the proper relations between this board and your board, the directors instruct me to say that they wish you would now withdraw the pamphlet in its present form until a further conference can be had and an agreement reached upon the subject.

"Trusting that it will be agreeable to you to comply,

"Sincerely yours,

"L. C. WARREN,

"Corresponding Secretary pro tem. for
The Christian Science Board of Directors."

[The copy of letter from L. C. Warren to the Board of Trustees, dated

Sept. 9, 1918, of which the foregoing is a copy, is marked Exhibit 567. R. H. J.]

Now, the meeting continues, the meeting of Sept. 9, 1918, after reading the letters that I have referred to:

"Mr. Watts was invited into the meeting for a conference relative to this pamphlet. After he retired, on motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Neal, the following vote was carried:

"Whereas the Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. This vote, unless it was called to the attention of the trustees, I take it, is not in evidence in our suit.

Mr. Krauthoff—It was called to their attention, if Your Honor please. This is the meeting of Sept. 9, and following this meeting this letter was written.

Mr. Whipple—Which letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—That I have just read in evidence.

Mr. Whipple—Well, does it recite the vote? If so, why didn't you put in your vote first, and then your letter. It would have been clearer if you had put them in chronologically, in order, instead of putting in the last first.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have the letter from the stenographer, please, the letter of Sept. 9? (Exhibit 567 is passed to Mr. Krauthoff.)

The record recites that:

"Mr. Watts was invited into the meeting for a conference relative to this pamphlet. After he retired, on motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Neal, the following vote was carried:

"Whereas the trustees of The Christian Science—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I object.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will have the record recite, if Your Honor please, that I withdraw for the present Exhibit No. 567, in order to show first the vote which authorized the sending of the letter.

Mr. Whipple—Well, if it is understood that its recitals are not evidence of the fact, I am content—the recitals of your vote.

Mr. Krauthoff—The recitals of the vote of the Board of Directors are evidence of what the directors did.

Mr. Whipple—It is not any evidence of the fact. It is evidence of their statement.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will prove the fact, then, affirmatively. "Mr. Watts was invited into the meeting for a conference relative to this pamphlet. After he retired, on motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Neal, the following vote was carried:

"Whereas, The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society agreed on Sept. 5 to interview this board again before taking any action on the pamphlet 'Purification,' and

"Whereas, A letter dated Sept. 6 has been received from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society to the effect that they have ordered said pamphlet issued without consulting this board,

"Now, therefore, be it Resolved, That the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society be and hereby are requested to withhold the issuance of the pamphlet 'Purification' in its present form until another conference be obtained and an agreement reached, also that a letter be written to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society to this effect."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Sept. 9, 1918, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 568. R. H. J.]

Now, then, having read the vote of Sept. 9, 1918, I offer again Exhibit 567, which I read a few moments ago.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, in this letter from the directors to the trustees of Sept. 9, 1918, and in the minutes of the meeting of Sept. 9, 1918, reference is made to Sept. 5. That is evidently an error: the conference took place on Wednesday, Sept. 4. A. The 4th—that is correct.

Mr. Krauthoff—1918.

Now, this resolution recites about what the trustees agreed on Sept. 4—that is, the resolution says Sept. 5—it means Sept. 4—"to interview the board again before taking any action on the pamphlet 'Purification.'" Was that statement by the trustees on Sept. 4, 1918—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Ask him what statement was made on the subject.

Q. What statement was made by the trustees on Sept. 4, 1918, and by which one, in respect to interviewing the directors again before taking any action on the pamphlet "Purification"? A. Mr. Eustace stated that they would interview the board again before anything was done about issuing the pamphlet.

Q. The resolution further refers to a letter dated Sept. 6, 1918. That is the letter which has been read in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. A letter from the— A. Pardon me. Isn't there an interview with Mr. Watts there?

Q. I beg your pardon. What happened at the conference with Mr. Watts on Sept. 9, 1918? What was said to Mr. Watts and by whom? A. I asked him if he didn't remember my calling on him and requesting that the pamphlet be withheld, and I recalled the conversation to the effect that he had stated that the pamphlet had not been printed. Mr. Watts said, yes, he recalled that, but he found out since that Mr. Rhodes had misunderstood his question, that he thought he was referring to another pamphlet; therefore the information was given to me that this pamphlet "Purification" had not then been printed, when, as a matter of fact, it had been printed.

Q. What was said, if anything, about having released the pamphlet for distribution and sale? A. We asked Mr. Watts if he didn't consider that he was under obligations to respect the requests of the Board of Directors, and he said he—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Does Your Honor admit that conversation on the ground that what Mr. Watts said upon that subject is binding upon the trustees?

The Master—I think that we had better have the conversation, subject to your objection.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

Mr. Streeter—I would like to know, Mr. Krauthoff, who said it? As it was given, it was "he said" and "we said."

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Dickey, always give the name of the person saying it.

The Witness—Yes. I beg your pardon. I made that statement.

Q. To Mr. Watts? A. To Mr. Watts.

Q. Did you complete the statement of it? A. Yes. Mr. Watts said that he recognized that he was under the authority of the directors.

Q. Did anything else happen at that conference? A. Nothing that I recall further.

Mr. Krauthoff—A letter from The Christian Science Publishing Society, Sept. 9, 1918:

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"Your letter of Sept. 9 is received.

"We shall be very glad to meet with you any time on Thursday that will suit you. Tomorrow and Wednesday it seems impossible for us to arrange to do this, but if you will set any time on Thursday we shall be glad to meet with you.

"Very sincerely yours.

"BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

(Signed) "Herbert W. Eustace,
"Secretary."

[The letter from Herbert W. Eustace, secretary, to The Christian Science Board of Directors, dated Sept. 9, 1918, of which the foregoing is a copy, is marked Exhibit 569. R. H. J.]

Now there is a pencil notation on this letter by Miss Warren, which, if agreeable to Mr. Whipple, I will read, in order to keep the record straight as we go along (passing to Mr. Whipple Exhibit 569, who, after examining it, returns it to Mr. Krauthoff).

The pencil notation is as follows:

"Sept. 10, 'phoned Mr. Rowlands asking if the trustees could confer with the directors at 12 m. Wed.—He said he would present the request and report—L. C. W."

[A letter from The Christian Science Board of Directors to Mr. Watts, dated Sept. 10, 1918.]

"Mr. John R. Watts, Business Manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Mr. Watts:

"The Christian Science Board of Directors instructs me to confirm Mr. Dickey's instruction to you this morning by saying that the board would like to have you defer sending out any further copies of the pamphlet 'Purification' until further advice from the board.

"Sincerely yours,

"L. C. WARREN,

"Corresponding Secretary, pro tem.
"For The Christian Science Board of Directors."

[The copy of letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 570. R. H. J.]

The Witness—That request I 'phoned to Mr. Watts, and the board confirmed it by letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—Tuesday, Sept. 10, 1918:

"A letter was read from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, Sept. 9, in reply to the board's letter of the same date to them, requesting that the pamphlet 'Purification' be withheld until a conference be had and an agreement reached. A letter was also read from Editor Frederick Dixon, dated Sept. 8, relative to this pamphlet. Business Manager John R. Watts of The Christian Science Publishing Society was invited into the meeting, and after discussion of the pamphlet a letter was dictated to be sent to Mr. Watts, confirming the chairman's verbal instructions of this morning to him to discontinue sending out this pamphlet, at least until receiving further advice from the board. It was agreed to ask the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society to confer with the board at 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, Sept. 11, if possible."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Sept. 10, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 571. R. H. J.]

Q. Now, the letter I read just before I read this record is the letter to Mr. Watts that was sent in response to this direction? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—Sept. 11, 1918—

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, weren't you going to read the letter from Mr. Dixon, and the trustees' reply, unless you have read the trustees' reply?

Mr. Krauthoff—I read the letter from the trustees, dated Sept. 9, didn't I?

Mr. Whipple—How about the Dixon letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—The stenographer has the letter from the trustees of Sept. 9.

Now, Mr. Whipple has asked about that letter from Mr. Dixon. That is a very lengthy letter, and goes into a very elaborate argument as to the correctness of the pamphlet itself. I will not offer that at this time, if Your Honor please, but will defer until 2 o'clock the question of whether that letter shall be presented.

Mr. Whipple—Well, if it goes in at all, it ought to go in in connection with this controversy.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon?

Mr. Whipple—And it does seem as though the letter or statement of Mr.

Dixon, who was the author of this "Purification," in meeting the suggestions or criticisms of the trustees, might be quite important.

Mr. Krauthoff—The point—

Mr. Whipple—If you make any point out of the fact that the split came over the publication of this pamphlet, what could be more important than what Mr. Dixon himself said on that subject?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, that letter, as I said a moment ago, is a very lengthy document. We do not present this pamphlet "Purification" for the determination of whether the trustees were right in claiming that it was a proper pamphlet, or whether Mr. Dixon is right in arguing that his metaphysics were correct. We present the incident of the pamphlet "Purification" as an exercise of the authority of the directors with respect to the literature of the Christian Science movement which the trustees disregarded, and which, from our point of view, is a violation of their duty as such, without regard to the question whether the pamphlet as published by them is correct or not.

Mr. Whipple—That is, what you are insisting upon is trying to show that they had a right to exercise an arbitrary authority, whether it was wisely exercised or not, and that even if they made a blunder in regard to it, and were entirely unjustified from the standards of common sense in what they requested, yet that it was a violation of duty by the trustees, because they did not accept their want of judgment and ignorance in the matter. Is that your position, or do you want to justify the action of your clients on the basis of common sense and ordinary judgment?

Mr. Krauthoff—The position we take, if Your Honor please, is this—

The Master—I do not understand at present exactly what letter you are referring to.

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, it is a letter from Mr. Dixon dated Sept. 8, 1918, to the Board of Directors.

The Master—Has it been referred to in what you have read?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; it says that a letter was also read from Editor Frederick Dixon, dated Sept. 8, relative to this pamphlet. It is referred to in the minutes.

The Master—I suggest that you produce the letter and offer it for identification, and perhaps we can postpone until later the question whether it shall be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Krauthoff—Your Honor has in mind that Mr. Dixon was the author of the articles.

The Master—I have that in my mind.

Mr. Krauthoff—In this pamphlet, and that this is a letter which Mr. Dixon submitted to the trustees for their approval and cooperation before he sent it to the Board of Directors.

The Master—Have you got the letter here?

[The letter is produced.]

The Master—Is there any objection to marking it now for identification?

Mr. Bates—No objection to its being identified.

The Master—Do you object to its being identified?

Mr. Whipple—Oh, no, Your Honor. We not only would like to have it identified, but mark it as an exhibit.

The Master—Mark it now for identification.

Mr. Bates—A letter of seven pages.

The Master—It is seven pages long. If it in any way can be—

Mr. Bates—From Mr. Dixon to Mr. Dickey, dated Sept. 8, 1918.

The Master—If any course can be taken which will result in omitting that letter from the record, without doing injustice to the rights of any of the parties in the case, I think we all want to omit it.

Mr. Whipple—It may be that some parts of it can be omitted, after it has been considered, but my present impression is that the importance of the letter deserves that, although it is a long one, it should be printed in the record, but I understand that, for the present, it is marked for identification.

The Master—Only for the present. Your right is reserved to insist later, if you wish, to insist upon its going into the record, and we will see about it then.

[Letter from Mr. Dixon to Mr. Dickey, dated Sept. 8, 1918, is marked Exhibit 572, for identification.]

The Master—What is next, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—"Wednesday, September 11, 1918." I will read first the record as written. You will remember, Your Honor, this is the date of the meeting that has heretofore given rise to considerable discussion, about the state of the minutes, so I first read what the record recites. I will read all the minutes on that date; it will present the subject fully.

[The directors' records, Sept. 11, 1918, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 573, and are read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1918.

"Present, Messrs. Dickey, Dittmore, Neal, and Merritt." Now, the record as written recites as follows:

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with The Christian Science Board of Directors for consideration of the pamphlet 'Purification,' and stated their view of the relations and the respective responsibilities of these boards, as the same are determined by the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust, described in Article 25, Section 1, thereof. The directors were unable to agree to or even acquiesce in the views expressed by the trustees, but deferred making a definite statement of the directors' views until it could be carefully prepared."

Mr. Krauthoff—"Thursday, Sept. 12, 1918"—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Now, would you like the record of the meeting of Sept. 11?

Mr. Krauthoff—That has been offered in evidence as an exhibit.

Mr. Whipple—You are quite sure of that?

The Master—I don't hear what you are now inquiring for, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—The trustees' minutes of the same meeting—but Mr. Krauthoff informs me that they have already been put in.

Mr. Streeter—It is printed, Brother Whipple; it is already printed. I don't remember the number of the exhibit.

Mr. Krauthoff—Exhibit 366 is the trustees' record of that meeting.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, have you read from the directors' record of Sept. 11 all that was there recorded with reference to this conference?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. I have read what is written in the record.

"Thursday, Sept. 12, 1918"—

Mr. Thompson—Is that all you have got on Sept. 11?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is all that is written in the record, I said, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—Well, I know—I assume that is what you mean.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not through with Sept. 11; I am just beginning.

Mr. Whipple—You do not claim that that is any sort of an adequate record? Your Honor will remember this is the meeting regarding which Judge Smith's opinion—

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, if these gentlemen will permit me to introduce some evidence in the case, I think we shall move along faster. I have started to tell the whole story of the minutes of Sept. 11, 1918, which I shall proceed to do rapidly if I am not interrupted.

Mr. Thompson—We don't want you to tell it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am telling it from the documents.

Mr. Thompson—What documents?

The Master—I think you will have to let Mr. Krauthoff take his own course here to a certain extent.

[An extract from the directors' records, Sept. 12, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 574, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Thursday, Sept. 12, 1918.

"Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Neal, and Merritt.

"The minutes of the regular meeting of Sept. 11 were read and approval of the same deferred until a later date."

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, referring to the minutes of the meeting of Sept. 11, 1918, that were presented to you on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918, I will ask you if this is the form in which the minutes came to the board on that morning? (Handing paper to witness.) I call your attention to the rubber stamp at the top, which you probably noticed. A. Yes; those are the minutes, yes.

Mr. Streeter—Just state what that is again that Mr. Dickey identified.

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, this is the form in which the proposed minutes for the meeting of Sept. 11, 1918, were read to the Board of Directors on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918.

Mr. Streeter—Read by whom?

Q. Who reads the minutes, Mr. Dickey, when the board meets in the morning? A. The secretary.

Q. Miss Warren—I mean the corresponding secretary? A. The corresponding secretary.

Q. So these minutes were read to you on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918, by Miss Warren? A. They were.

Mr. Krauthoff—And they have been heretofore identified, I think, as Exhibit 245.

Mr. Streeter—Now, will you read those right into the record?

Mr. Thompson—Well, let's see. Let me look at them.

Mr. Streeter—I want to have them in.

Mr. Thompson—Let's see what is in them.

Mr. Streeter—I don't care what is in them. It is what Miss Warren presented to the board on the morning of Sept. 12.

Mr. Krauthoff—Just one minute.

Q. Mr. Dickey, attached to Exhibit 245 in the form in which it is identified is a sheet of paper in the handwriting of Judge Clifford P. Smith. Now, that did not come to you on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918?

Mr. Thompson—Just a minute. This affects us.

A. I think not, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Thompson—Just a minute. That is a leading question. I ask to have it struck out, and the answer also.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well.

Mr. Thompson—When did it come to you?

Q. When did it come, Mr. Dickey? A. Some time after the meeting on Sept. 12.

Mr. Thompson—Why is it attached to that record?

Mr. Krauthoff—I suppose that is a question that will be answered.

Mr. Thompson—Before you tear it off, we want to know.

The Master—Suppose we proceed in this way—

Mr. Krauthoff—I wasn't going to tear it off.

The Master—It appears that when he told you, as I understood him to tell you, that the document was the minutes of the meeting of Sept. 11, read and presented on the morning of Sept. 12, he did not mean that statement to apply to the whole of the document.

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

The Master—Now, find out how much he did mean this to apply to.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is with the proposed minutes of the meeting of Sept. 11.

The Master—You want now what was presented on the morning of Sept. 12.

Q. How much of this document, No. 245, was presented upon the morning of Sept. 12, 1918? A. All but the attached sheet, dated Sept. 11, in the handwriting of Judge Clifford P. Smith, and stamped, "Read, October 7, 1918, C. S. Board of Directors." Stamped, "Copied and compared."

Q. When the first three pages of Exhibit 245 were read to the board on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918, did any difference of opinion arise as to any part of the proposed minutes, and if so, which part?

Mr. Thompson—Pardon me; I object to the question on behalf of Mr. Dittimore.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon?

Mr. Whipple—I take it what you mean, Mr. Krauthoff, is, Was there any conversation about it, and if so, what?

Mr. Krauthoff—Certainly.

Mr. Whipple—Now, wouldn't it be simpler to put it that way?

Mr. Krauthoff—I assume the witness would know that a difference of opinion could arise only in conversation.

Q. Did anybody say anything on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918, about the proposed minutes as set out in the first three pages of this exhibit, and who was it that said it, and what did they say?

Mr. Whipple—That is all right.

A. When the minutes were read for the approval of the board, Mr. Dittimore objected.

Q. What did he say, Mr. Dickey? A. He said that the minutes did not record the full proceedings of the meeting of the day before, and he objected to the minutes in the form in which they were presented.

Q. Did he present at that time any document that was from his point of view to be made a part of the minutes? A. I don't recall that he did.

Q. Now, then, the document which you have identified, the first three pages of Exhibit 245, is originally in typewriting. There seems to be a lead pencil deletion at the bottom of page 2 and the top of page 3. Do you know how that came to be put there? Was it done by some member of the Board of Directors or by someone else? A. No; that would not be done by any of the members of the board; that would be done by the secretary.

Q. What else did Mr. Dittimore say on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918, about these minutes and about what they should include from his point of view? A. He said he objected to the practice of the Board of Directors in not stating in full in the minutes the conversation had at an interview of that character.

Q. What, if anything, did any member of the board say in reply, and who said it? A. I said that I thought the minutes as recorded by the secretary were adequate; that it was not the custom of this board to record conversations or make extended items in their minutes where no action had been taken by the board. I objected to the minutes of The Mother Church recording anything in the nature of a dispute or a quarrel between the directors and the trustees unless some vote had been taken and some action done.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, this document, Exhibit 245, has not been read in evidence in full, I believe. It has been marked for identification, and at this time I will read the part of the minutes.

Mr. Whipple—You say it has not been read, it has not been put in evidence?

Mr. Krauthoff—It has been marked, as I understand it, as an exhibit, but it has never been read.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I think that has been read. It is not as an exhibit, not as an identification mark at all, and I feel confident I read it all; at any rate, it is an exhibit in the case.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I inquire whether this part that is deleted in lead pencil has been read into the record?

Mr. Whipple—If I could read it, I am sure I did, but if it was so obliterated that it could not be read, then I did not.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I see the record on exhibit 245? I will verify it.

Mr. Whipple—Of course, I cannot state with certainty as to what I read. It is my belief that I read the part that you have spoken of as deleted, and emphasized particularly that it has been stricken out,—

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have the document?

Mr. Whipple—At the bottom of page 2 and top of page 3. That would be my memory.

Mr. Krauthoff—I believe it would aid the Court if I may at this time read into the record the deleted part, which is only about eight or ten lines of typewriting.

Mr. Whipple—I have no objection to it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Your Honor will recall now that this is the form in which the proposed minutes were presented on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918:

"The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society met with the board for consideration of the pamphlet, 'Purification,' at which time the trustees presented their interpretation of the Deed of Trust under which they are operating the business of the Publishing Society, with the request for the entire cooperation of the directors of The Mother Church to the extent of consulting them on all important matters in regard to the publishing and issuing of Christian Science literature and any other affairs connected with the Publishing Society."

Q. Now, that is the form in which Miss Warren wrote the minutes which were presented on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918? A. It is.

Q. And the board did not, on Sept.

12, 1918, approve these minutes? A. They did not; they tried to.

Q. Was there any other objection made to these minutes on Sept. 12, 1918, than those of Mr. Dittimore? A. None but the ones made by Mr. Dittimore.

Q. Now, then, this subject came up frequently in September—these minutes? A. Yes, they came up with great regularity.

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, Mr. Krauthoff, I do not understand that Mr. Dittimore objected to anything that was in or objected to this particular paragraph; but objected because there was not more. Wasn't that the testimony?

Q. Have you stated all of the conversation with Mr. Dittimore? A. All that I recall.

Mr. Whipple—It does not appear that anybody objected to this paragraph which you have read, which was deleted.

The Witness—Mr. Dittimore objected to voting for the adoption of the minutes in the form in which they were read.

Mr. Whipple—We have not yet found who asked to have these deleted and Judge Smith's changes incorporated.

The Witness—Am I being cross-examined by Mr. Whipple or by you?

The Master—Perhaps we had better leave that, Mr. Whipple, for the present. Let his statement speak for itself as it stands at present.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

Q. Mr. Dickey, Mr. Dittimore did object to the minutes in the form in which they were presented on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918? A. He did.

Q. And he did say that the minutes should contain more than they did? A. Pardon me?

Q. Did he say that the minutes should contain more, or that what was in was wrong? A. He said that they were not adequate.

Q. And on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918, according to the record of the board, you deferred their approval? A. Yes.

Q. You are not able to state who it was that struck out the language in lead pencil that I read in the record? A. I don't know whose marks those are, no.

Q. I call your attention to this document and ask you when you first saw that. (Handing paper to witness.) Do you notice the rubber stamps on it. Mr. Dickey? A. Yes. This was presented by Mr. Dittimore at the meeting of Sept. 16, as his version—

Q. Sept. 16, 1918? A. 1918. —as his version of what should appear in the minutes of the meeting of Sept. 11. This date is Sept. 10 on the top of it, but I think it should be the 11th; shouldn't it?

Q. You said this was Mr. Dittimore's statement of his version. You meant by that, that was Mr. Dittimore's statement of what the minutes should be? A. Of what he thought should be contained in the minutes of that meeting.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, this is exhibit 246.

The Master—He said he first saw that on Sept. 16?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—You left off with Sept. 12.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Is there anything that comes between?

Q. Do you know of anything that comes between Sept. 12 and Sept. 16 on this subject?

The Master—Do you have any records there between? A. Not in writing.

Mr. Krauthoff—There was no meeting between Sept. 12 and Sept. 16.

The Master—Very well.

Mr. Thompson—If you are going to put anything in, you might let us see it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think we have already put it in evidence. (Handing paper to Mr. Thompson.)

Mr. Thompson—I don't know whether you have or not. Let us look at it and see.

The Master—Has that been put in?

Mr. Thompson—It seems a familiar document.

Mr. Krauthoff—It has been identified as an exhibit; I am not sure whether it has been read in evidence or not. I was just trying to verify the record to see whether it was read in evidence.

Mr. Whipple—I remember it, yes; I put it in.

Mr. Streeter—You did not read it.

Mr. Whipple—I read it fully and read all the notations on the top of it. But I do not remember that I knew at the time that it was what they call Mr. Dittimore's version.

The Master—If the fact be as stated, that that has already been read by Mr. Whipple—

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not going to read it.

The Master— —and it is marked as an exhibit, do you need to go any further than you have now, than to have the document referred to marked as such and such an exhibit?

Mr. Krauthoff—I was going to ask one question:

Q. With respect to this Exhibit 246 which is headed "Memorandum of Additions to Complete Minutes of Meeting of Sept. 10, 1918," the date "Sept. 10" is a typographical error, is it not, Mr. Dickey? A. I thought it was, yes.

The Master—What is the number?

Mr. Krauthoff—Exhibit 246.

Q. It was referring to the minutes of the meeting of Sept. 11? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was read to the Board of Directors on Sept. 16, 1918, and it seems to have been read again on Sept. 23, 1918. A. That is correct.

Q. In the course of the discussions that came up about these additions to complete the minutes of meeting of Sept. 10, 1918, was anything said by Mr. Dittimore as to the duty of the Board of Directors under the law to conduct its record? What was their legal duty? A. Mr. Dittimore characterized the action of the board as illegal.

Q. What did he say? A. He said it was illegal to withhold a proper account in our minutes of what had transpired.

Q. Now, do you have any recollection of anything happening between Sept. 16, 1918, and Sept. 23, 1918, about these minutes? A. We had a great many disputes over that question of admitting Mr. Dittimore's addition.

The Master—Yes; but do you remember anything that happened between Sept. 16 and Sept. 23? I think that is now the question put to you.

Q. Did anything happen? A. I do not remember anything definitely as to what happened between those dates. Q. Your attention has been called to a record of the board of Oct. 1, 1918:

"The minutes of the directors' meeting of Sept. 11 relating to a conference with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society of that date were again taken up for consideration, to be referred to Judge Clifford P. Smith as to what it would be best to include in the minutes, and an opinion upon the position of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society as outlined in their letter of Sept. 30, Judge Smith to be furnished all information on the subject which will be helpful to him."

Now, the records show that on Sept. 30, 1918, the trustees of the Publishing Society sent you a letter which has already been introduced in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at this meeting on Oct. 1, 1918, the full board was present—Messrs. Dittimore, Dickey, Neal, Merritt, and Rathvon, according to the record? A. They were.

Q. And the minutes of Oct. 1, 1918, as I have read, were approved on Oct. 2, 1918, at a meeting where Messrs. Dittimore, Dickey, and Merritt were present? A. Yes.

Q. Now, why did you refer these minutes to Judge Smith? A. Well, the dispute had been drawn out so lengthy it was impossible for us to conduct our business without settling that in some way, because it was raised at every meeting by Mr. Dittimore, who protested that he wanted his statement put into the minutes of that day. So thinking to settle the matter by calling in somebody from the outside. I suggested that we refer this matter to Judge Smith as to the legality of the action of the board in leaving out Mr. Dittimore's statement.

Q. Was that satisfactory to Mr. Dittimore—

Mr. Thompson—One moment. Pardon me a minute. That is going beyond the line. I pray Your Honor's judgment. I move to have that question excluded.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am glad to be corrected.

Q. What did Mr. Dittmore say to that? A. He said that would be satisfactory to him, or something to that effect. I do not remember the exact words.

Q. Did he vote for the resolution sending it to Judge Smith?

Mr. Thompson—One moment. The record shows that.

Mr. Krauthoff—The record does not show any aye or no vote on it.

Mr. Thompson—Then ask him first if he remembers and is prepared to swear whether he did or not.

The Witness—If Mr. Dittmore did not vote his vote would be recorded, there.

Mr. Thompson—If he did not vote his vote would be recorded, would it?

Q. You mean, if he did not vote, it won't be recorded. A. The action of his not voting would be recorded.

Q. And where the minutes are silent as to not voting, or he voted affirmatively or negatively, then what was the practice?

Mr. Thompson—One moment. I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Q. What is the practice of the board with respect to recording the unanimous action of the board in its minutes?

Mr. Thompson—Pause a moment. I pray Your Honor's judgment both as to form and substance. It is incompetent from beginning to end.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, this record is silent as to how the board voted on that order or resolution with respect to referring the subject to Judge Smith.

Mr. Thompson—May I look at your record there that you are talking about so much?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am now offering to prove by this witness what the practice of the board is with respect to recording the vote of the board where the action of the board is unanimous.

Mr. Thompson—Let me just see what you have got here. (Referring to record.)

Q. Have you any personal recollection of how Mr. Dittmore voted on that motion to refer this to Judge Smith?

The Master—I think Mr. Thompson asked you to pause until he looked at the record.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Thompson—Why, there isn't even a record of a vote here, if Your Honor please, or even a resolution. I marvel that Mr. Krauthoff should proceed here, leading on his witness and telling him what is in this written document, on such a slender basis as he has. Find me the record of a vote or resolution, or anything even approximating it, before you ask whether it was unanimous or not.

The Master—Just what, Mr. Krauthoff, is the vote you have in mind now?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is the vote with respect to this action: that the minutes of the directors' meeting of Sept. 11 were to be referred to Judge Clifford P. Smith.

Mr. Thompson—There is no vote at all there recorded.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, this Board of Directors—

The Master—Pause a moment. Mr. Thompson claims that there is no such vote recorded.

Mr. Thompson—Will Your Honor look at that thing he is talking about as a vote or resolution? It really seems strange; there is nothing there of either kind.

Mr. Krauthoff—It does not formally state that on motion of Mr. Jones, seconded by Mr. Smith, the following resolution was moved and seconded three times and then passed by a vote as follows. It is not kept with the precision of the records of a legislative assembly.

Mr. Thompson—Apparently not.

The Master—Couldn't that be taken as an elliptical form of stating that it was voted that it be referred?

Mr. Thompson—I dare say that what really happened, as far as I can make out, was that there was a general discussion, no vote taken at all, and the secretary, whoever it was there, some one, took notes, and suggested afterward that it be written up in that way, because there was no vote that it be put in that formal shape—without any vote or resolution at all.

Q. Mr. Dickey, what is the practice of the board with respect— A. You asked me a question before, what my personal recollection was.

Q. Very well. I was trying to accommodate myself to Mr. Thompson's objection. Never mind as to your personal recollection; I will withdraw that for the present. I will ask you this question: What is the practice of the board with respect to formal motions being offered in every case?

Mr. Thompson—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Q. That a formal motion is offered and seconded and a formal vote taken?

Mr. Thompson—I ask Your Honor to exclude that.

The Master—Pause a moment; do not answer until I give Mr. Thompson's objection due consideration. Have you anything more to say?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, not until I find out what was done. Mr. Dickey was there and Mr. Thompson was not.

The Master—If there was a practice of the board in that matter, I think he may show it. Mr. Thompson's objection, of course, being reserved.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, will you read the last question that was asked?

[The question is read by stenographer as follows: I will ask you this question: What is the practice of the board with respect to formal motions being offered in every case?]

Q. I will ask what was the practice in September, 1918, as to this subject. A. The practice was that if a formal—

Mr. Thompson—Is that question admitted?

The Master—Yes; I shall admit it subject to your objection. Go on. A. (Continued) If a motion was made and seconded and put before the board and voted upon, it was recorded in exactly that fashion. If there was any dissenting vote it was customary to record that fact; if any member wished to file his explanation of his vote, that privilege was accorded him. If just an agreement was arrived at—if the chairman should say, "Shall we do thus and so?" and they all agreed, it was frequently entered upon the minutes that the board decided to do thus and so. In the present case I asked Mr. Dittmore if it would be agreeable to him to refer this question to Judge Smith for settlement, and he said it would. The other members of the board assented and that was done.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, in connection with the minutes of Oct. 1, 1918, which I have read, I call attention to the minutes of Oct. 2, 1918, in which there was present at the directors' meeting, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, and Merritt.

"The minutes of the regular meeting of Oct. 1 were read and approved." Now, it is 1 o'clock, if Your Honor please.

[Recess until 2 p. m.]

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

Mr. Whipple—I understood that we were to call up at 2 o'clock the matter of this letter of Mr. Dixon to Mr. Dickey, of The Christian Science Board of Directors. We have examined it, and while it is a somewhat long production, we think it one which is very helpful as throwing light upon this whole situation, the situation just at this time. There are a great many things which could not be made to appear in any other way. We therefore would like at the proper time, and under Your Honor's direction, to have it admitted as an exhibit, it already having been referred to in the record, and to read it, and have it become a part of the record. It would seem as if the most convenient time to do it would be now, while we are in relation to the records of Sept. 11.

The Master—Is there not any way in which the significant parts can be read?

Mr. Whipple—It is so connected that it seems difficult to do it, and it is right on the point of this particular controversy on which a good deal of stress is laid by the defendant directors. It would not take a very great amount of time to read it, and, if it is agreeable, and if it is to be read, I should like to read it now.

Mr. Krauthoff—We object to the reading of the letter in evidence, for the reason that it has no relevancy to the controversy. The controversy is not as to whether it was proper or improper to send out this pamphlet from the standpoint of its own merit or its own correct statement of metaphysics. The question arises as to the power of the board to ask the trustees to hold it up, and that does not depend on whether the pamphlet is right or wrong; and this letter has no bearing on the extent of the authority and power of the board: it is an argument to the effect that the pamphlet is correct, and that is not the question before the Court, as we see it.

Mr. Whipple—That was not the controversy at the time at all. The directors were not as benighted, apparently, as their counsel is. They were not claiming then that whatever they said must arbitrarily be taken, whether right or wrong: they were claiming then that they were right in regard to this proposition, and that therefore what they wished should be complied with—they were at least pretending, or stating, and apparently in good faith, that they wanted their wishes observed because their wishes were right. Now their counsel says that the position that he wants to maintain is that, right or wrong, they were the absolute body who could cram wrong down the throats of this great denomination; that they had the power, quite irrespective of whether they were right, to enforce their wishes. It is in line with something which was developing the other day, developing fast, mentioned the other day, about this ecclesiastical tribunal. There is only one religious body, or was before we heard of this one, that was infallible, or religious person absolutely infallible. Apparently now the Pope has a rival, according to the contention that you are making. The question is not involved whether they were right. The question is whether, right or wrong, they could put something through.

The Master—If it is claimed that the letter has any bearing on the question which Mr. Whipple indicates, namely, whether it was at the time the directors' attitude that they must govern, right or wrong, I suppose that the letter will have to be read.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if Your Honor please, as to the directors' attitude at the time, Mr. Whipple has not said that at the time the directors claimed that, whether right or wrong, the pamphlet should not go out. Mr. Whipple has said that at the time the directors said if they were right the pamphlet should not go out. Now, for the sake of this record, this letter tends to show, from the standpoint of the writer, that this pamphlet is a correct statement of Christian Science doctrine, and should have been issued.

The Master—Nobody is going to expect me to decide, or the Court to decide, whether that is true or not, of course.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is just the reason why the letter should not be read in evidence.

The Master—But it being claimed that the letter has a relevancy beyond any such question, I think that, if it is insisted on, you will have to read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not understand that it was claimed that the letter had any relevancy as to the attitude of the directors at all.

Mr. Whipple—Why, I tried to make that position clear.

The Master—So I understood, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—We understood that that was the persuading influence which made the directors recede from the position that they had taken.

Mr. Krauthoff—As to receding, we will offer our own evidence.

Mr. Whipple—That is right, and I want this put in before you put in the evidence of your receding, so that its weight in accomplishing that result may be considered, with Your Honor's permission—

Mr. Krauthoff—As to the receding, if Your Honor please, we desire now to state that we do not admit that we have receded, and as to the claim of receding we will offer our own evidence.

Mr. Whipple—All right.

The Master—I think that undoubtedly you have that right.

Mr. Whipple—This is on the letter-head of—

"Mr. Adam H. Dickey,

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Mr. Dickey:

"I am writing to you, as chairman of the board, over the question of the pamphlet, 'Purification,' because I cannot any longer disguise from myself the fact that the matter needs to be cleared up. I will endeavor to make this letter as short as possible, but I am afraid I shall have to go into the whole matter."

"May I begin, therefore, by explaining the genesis of the pamphlet? Some time ago the trustees asked me if I would write this pamphlet. They gave me the names of the various subjects they wished dealt with. These sub-heads and the name of the pamphlet are theirs: the whole of the rest is entirely my own."

The Master—I suggest, Mr. Whipple, that if you find anything as you go along that is clearly only a discussion of doctrine, you omit it.

Mr. Whipple—I will.

Mr. Bates—I think, Your Honor, that it is all on doctrine, and that it ought to be handed to Your Honor to glance over, and then if Your Honor thinks that it is something that ought to be read into the record, we have no objection. It is merely because it has no bearing on any issue in this case that we have objected to it; but if it were handed to Your Honor, and Your Honor thought that it was a proper document to be put into this case, we should have no objection at all to its being read into the record.

The Master—Now that we have got started, I think that we will go through, and then we will all hear it at once. And let me add there, we will also reserve to you the right to move to strike it out later on.

Mr. Whipple (resuming the reading of the letter)—

"When they asked me to write it I had no hesitation in agreeing to do it, the trustees, as I understand it, being responsible for all literature issued from the publishing house. If, however, I had ever had any hesitation it would have been removed by the fact that the directors receive advanced copies of all Monitor articles, in order that they may satisfy themselves of any of these articles before they are published. As no objection was made to any of these articles before they were printed, and as no objection was made on their publication, I was a little surprised to get a letter from Mr. Jarvis, asking me if I would explain to the directors exactly what my thought was on a particular passage in one of these articles. It so happened that within a few minutes of getting that letter the directors asked me to come over and see them about an entirely different matter. When we had done discussing the subject they had asked me to come and see them about, I myself raised the question of these articles, and I explained exactly what I meant by the passage in question, and asked how the question came to be raised. The directors assured me, without any dissentient, that they did not in the least mean to question the metaphysics of any statement in them, but that they were a little doubtful about the wisdom of giving such advanced metaphysics to the field, especially as Mrs. Eddy herself had gone somewhat carefully over this ground. That I could not personally agree to, but it was a perfectly legitimate standpoint for anybody to take, and I, therefore, myself volunteered the information to the board that the articles had been written at the request of the trustees, and that the trustees intended to issue them in pamphlet form. I had a specific reason for stating this. It is, as I explained to the directors, that if anybody thought it wiser not to issue the pamphlet, on the grounds they had stated, action should be taken at once, as in a few days it would be too late to do anything without occasioning a great deal of trouble. I left the matter there, and said nothing to the trustees on the subject. This because it is my invariable habit to regard my interviews with the directors as entirely confidential, and never to repeat a single word, at any of them, to any person, unless that person is involved and is to be communicated with.

"After telling the directors that the articles were to be issued in a pamphlet, after telling them that personally I had no feeling in the matter, and did not mind one atom whether it was ever issued or not, provided that action was taken before any trouble could ensue, I never gave the matter any further thought, and I was therefore tremendously surprised when I received an intimation, from the trustees, long afterward, that the question had been raised again, and this after the pamphlets had been printed, and the fact was known to numbers of people, and after a considerable number of advanced copies had been sent away, so that there was no question that the matter had become public property."

I want especially, if I may interrupt myself, to call attention to that statement, as to the length of time that the directors had known about it and raised the question.

"It so happened that the next morning I saw two of the directors in Beacon Street, Mr. Neal and Mr. Merritt, and I spoke to them about it, and explained that though I said, and entirely meant that I did not mind if the pamphlet was held up before it was public property, I did feel that any attempt to hold it up after it had become public property, would make the situation quite impossible for me. Mr. Merritt and Mr. Neal assured me, as I understood, that the question involved was a question of the pamphlet being published without my name, and I then told them that the pamphlet had been shown to me with my name on it, but that I had struck it out because I had always maintained that all literature was best issued anonymously and on its own merits. Mr. Merritt, I think, explained that Mr. McLellan had said that Mrs. Eddy wanted the names of the writers of articles published, and that therefore it was felt that my name should appear on this pamphlet. I replied that as far as I was concerned personally I did not care, and that I was merely contending for the anonymity of publications in general. At the same time I pointed out that you could not use Mr. McLellan both ways. That his declaration that Mrs. Eddy had said other things had been questioned, and put right aside, on the ground that there was nothing to show that she had said it, and that you could not now use him as an authority on one point, when he had been rejected as an authority on another point. Besides I pointed out to them that if we were to accept statements of what Mrs. Eddy said through other parties, who might or might not have sufficient understanding or demonstration to report them accurately, or to give her reasons for them, we should very soon have a mass of authorization which would obliterate Mrs. Eddy's teaching. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Eddy had provided for this by insisting that no communication of hers should be even read, which was not read absolutely in full, and that acting on what she was supposed to have said to somebody was offending against the spirit of this by-law to the very limit.

"With the assurance that it was simply a question of name, I again thought no more about it until one afternoon the trustees asked me to come down to their room, and told me that at the directors' request they had discussed the pamphlet with them, and that exceptions had been taken to certain statements, which I will deal with separately. At the moment, however, what I want to draw attention to is the fact that in spite of everything I had said, to safeguard such an eventuality, the question of the publication of the pamphlet was again raised, and raised after a growing number of people had heard all about it. This, I think, would have been unfair enough to me, but since then the trustees have told me that the chairman of the board rang up Parker, and asked him if the pamphlet had been issued yet, and that at his request Parker had been up to the printers, had found out the exact status of the case, and had reported to him. Now this means that an ever-increasing number of people are having their attention drawn to the pamphlet, and are having doubts raised in their minds. You will remember that some time ago an article, upon which one of the directors had made some alterations, for his own satisfaction, and not because there was anything wrong in the pamphlet, was sent over to the manager's office, and openly passed forward and up to the composing room, with the necessary implication that the directors had to get the articles correct themselves. These combinations of circumstances make the work of an editor extremely trying, and are really not the support that any editor has a right to expect from the board, inasmuch as the mere printers and people are informed over his head of circumstances he knows nothing of, and the impression given that mistakes had occurred where there is no implication even of a mistake.

"Now may I come to the pamphlet itself? The pamphlet was written, and before it was even printed the proofs were shown to the trustees simultaneously with the directors. The trustees read these most carefully and assented to every statement in them. Subsequently they read the proofs of the pamphlet, which I was too busy to, and again individually assented to every statement in them. Now the trustees in talking to me on the subject told me that they had agreed with the board to see me, and to speak to me about certain matters in the pamphlet. They told me that the board had admitted that there was absolutely no metaphysical mistake in the pamphlet, but that they thought for certain reasons it was unwise to publish it. I am going to take these reasons seriatim, because the question is an intensely serious one. And in order that I may not misrepresent the trustees, in any way, I have shown them this letter so as to be perfectly positive that there shall be no misrepresentation of their statements. Now the points at issue, as I understand from the trustees, are these.

"1. That the pamphlet unveils a phase of Christian Science that Mrs. Eddy has carefully veiled.

"2. That it uses expressions which she has only used sparingly, sometimes only once.

"3. That its use of the word (a) 'reflection,' and (b) of the word 'subdivisions' is puzzling.

"4. That it interprets or restates Mrs. Eddy's teaching.

"I do not know if these are individual or general objections, and it is just as well that I do not, but I will deal with them in turn.

"1. The statement that Mrs. Eddy has veiled some of her teachings seems to me to be very much more serious than anything objected to in the pamphlet. It implies that Mrs. Eddy deliberately darkened certain phases of her teaching, and it does this on the authority of an individual or individuals, who, in doing so, certainly do interpret or restate Mrs. Eddy's teaching. Personally it never occurred to me for a second that I was unveiling anything. I was writing of a phase of Christian Science which was to me just as clear as the unreality of matter or the infinity of good. It is a subject I have talked over with numbers of Christian Scientists, and I never heard any single one of them imply that Mrs. Eddy had ever said anything which she did not think it wise that the world should know. To me personally there is nothing whatever veiled or hidden in her teaching of generic man. It is a plain, straightforward, metaphysical argument, which is nothing like as difficult or as involved as the unreality of matter. I therefore must take exception to the charge that I have unvelled anything of Mrs. Eddy's and I know that I am utterly incapable of unvelving anything that she has said, for she has taken the veil off for every human being to read.

"2. The criticism that I have used expressions which she used sparingly or only once, is, in my opinion, not exact and is, also, like the first objection, in itself an interpretation or restatement of Christian Science. I am told that it was said that the word 'generic' only occurs four times in Science and Health. If it had occurred only once, it would be absolutely sufficient authority for a Christian Scientist to use it, but as a matter of fact it really occurs from the beginning to the end of Science and Health. Mrs. Eddy used generic man to define generic man on a few occasions, but she could not be expected to drag in the word 'generic' every time she spoke of generic man any more than she could be expected to introduce the term supposititious every time she spoke of evil. She made it perfectly clear that evil was unreal, and then left it for the rest of the book to the reader, or else the writing of the book would have become impossible. It is like a man who wrote a life of the Duke of Wellington being expected to introduce the Duke of Wellington's full name whenever he mentioned him in the biography. It would be frankly impossible. In my opinion exactly the same statement is true of generic man, and nobody could possibly teach Christian Science scientifically for five minutes who did not teach what generic man is even if he never mentioned the fact of generic man. But to contend that because Mrs. Eddy only uses the word 'generic' four times in Science and Health, Christian Scientists must not use it, seems to me a contention weighted with tremendous danger to the movement. Something of this nature was said to me when I was talking to the directors myself, it being to the effect that Mrs. Eddy only once uses the term, 'man including the universe.' That once is warrant for any Christian Scientist using it, and as a matter of fact it conveys entirely the same intention as generic man. But the matter goes much further than this. If the Board of Directors were really to maintain this ground, they would be starting an index-expurgatorius of Mrs. Eddy's writings, a thing which Christian Scientists were requested to hold off from. Such a condition would split the movement from top to bottom, if it were possible to split it, which we all know is quite impossible.

"3. (a) I have used the word 'reflect' or 'reflection' in exact accordance with its use in all great English literature, and, what is far more important, in Science and Health. Objection has been taken to the statement on page 1 of the pamphlet, 'Generic man, in Christian Science, is the full image and likeness of God, divine Mind, and is reflected in an infinity of greater and lesser ideas and their identities.' Now if anyone will refer to page 305, line 13, of Science and Health, he will find this statement: 'The verity that God's image is not a creator, though he reflects the creation of Mind, God, constitutes the underlying reality of reflection.' And on page 507, line 15, Mrs. Eddy writes: 'The universe of Spirit reflects the creative power of the divine Principle, or Life, which reproduces the multitudinous forms of Mind and governs the multiplication of the compound idea man.' On page 281, line 14, 'The one Ego, the one Mind or Spirit called God, is infinite individuality, which supplies all form and comeliness and which reflects reality and divinity in individual spiritual man and things.' On page 266, line 27, 'Man is the idea of Spirit; he reflects the beatific presence, illumining the universe with light.' All those statements are on all fours with the statement in the pamphlet. The fact, as I understand it, is that in reading any statement about reflection, you have to remember that the word reflect has a multitude of implications, and to be quite sure that you are not narrowing the word down to some specific implication in your own mind.

"3. (b) 'Subdivisions' On page 20 of the pamphlet there appears the statement, 'The reality not merely of those greater ideas, the sons and daughters of God, but of those lesser ideas or subdivisions of greater ideas and their identities, such as money, mountains, or mammals.' Now on page 511, line 2, of Science and Health, the word 'subdivides' is used exactly in this sense. 'This Mind forms ideas, its own images, subdivides and radiates their borrowed light, intelligence, and so explains the Scripture phrase, "whose seed is in itself."'

"Now the danger of words is simply this. That Mrs. Eddy herself, in literally a thousand passages, uses words in seemingly contradictory senses, but these, when examined, are found not to be contradictory. It is almost impossible to use human language which is material in illustration of spiritual things, and not be guilty of apparent discrepancies. As far as I know there is probably not a single pamphlet which has been published which could not be criticized from this point of view, if it were subjected to a minute criticism, such as has been devoted to 'Purification.'

"4. I am not quite sure what is meant by the word restatement or interpretation. So much depends upon the definition of the words that it is a little difficult to meet the objection. As I understand the matter, however, every lecturer who gives a lecture, interprets Science and Health, every person who writes an article, interprets Science and Health. In the sense that the lecturers interpret Science and Health and in the sense that writers interpret Science and Health, and in the sense that teachers interpret Science and Health the pamphlet 'Purification' does, but in no other sense that I can imagine. It is dealing with Mrs. Eddy's statements and is carefully, most carefully, using them for both premises and conclusions.

"The same difficulty faces anybody over the word restatement. Every person who obeys Mrs. Eddy's instructions not to quote her, but to write their own articles in their own way restates Science and Health, and if this is restatement, it is a restatement under her own instructions. If by the word restatement it is intended to imply that the pamphlet introduces one single iota of teaching which is not contained through and through Science and Health, or if the word interpretation is intended to imply this, then I am bound utterly to repudiate them. Indeed I would go far further than this. I would request the Board if it really thinks this, to give me chapter and verse, in the pamphlet, for the statement, because I am perfectly certain it is impossible to do so. In the old days people used to try to write articles crammed with quotations from Science and Health. These became parrot-like, and Mrs. Eddy, for reasons best known to herself, intervened, and gave an order that it was not to be done. After the order had been in existence for some time Farlow wrote to me stating that he thought I sometimes was too generous in my quotations. But, he wound up, Mrs. Eddy is content to give you a special dispensation, because it is never abused, and therefore, of course, I have nothing whatever to say. The fact is that every Christian Scientist is sensitive on the subject of adding to or taking from the teachings of Christian Science, and if criticisms of such a nature are made, they should be made, especially on the Board, with chapter and verse.

"The Board will understand that this is not a criticism in any way, but a reply to criticism, and a defense of the position which has been criticized. I think they will understand that a person so busy as I am does not break right into his day's work, to write a letter as long as this, unless the terrific seriousness of the situation is apparent to him. The devil is active to try to break up the Christian Science movement by setting individual against individual. Personally I know the Board recognizes that I have done every single thing in my power not to make trouble for it. It had the articles in question before they were printed, after they were printed, and finally, it was in possession of the fact that the articles were to be issued in a pamphlet, and yet it never spoke.

It waited until it was almost impossible to do anything without causing trouble to the individuals concerned, not intentionally, I know, but still in effect, and then it made certain criticisms to the Board of Trustees, to pass on to the editor of The Monitor, which it is quite impossible for him to pass over without replying to.

"Yours ever sincerely,
(Signed) "FREDERICK DIXON."

Mr. Whipple—That would be Exhibit 572; strike off "for identification."

[The letter from Mr. Dixon to Mr. Dickey, dated Sept. 8, 1918, previously marked Exhibit 572 for identification, is now marked Exhibit 572.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, the letter having been read in evidence, we move to strike it out for the reason that it consists of three varieties of statements. The first, the opinion of Mr. Dixon as to who is the authority for sending out the literature of the Publishing House, that being a question to be decided by this Court and not upon the opinion of Mr. Dixon. Second, because it is a statement of facts said to be true, which can only be proved by the testimony of witnesses orally in court. Third, because the rest of the letter is an argument to prove that the pamphlet as written by Mr. Dixon correctly states Christian Science. That is not an issue in this case, and the letter has no bearing upon that issue. We ask that the letter be stricken out and that it be not printed in the record.

The Master—It seems to me on hearing the letter that there may be some things in it significant for the purposes of the case in connection with the evidence which you have been putting in. I am not prepared at present, of course, to separate those or identify them. Need this be printed in the record?

Mr. Whipple—We should like it. We see no reason to discriminate against it, and I am frank to say that many, many Christian Scientists throughout this country and throughout the world are watching the reports, reading the report with meticulous care, of what is said and done at this hearing; and no reason has occurred to us why they should be deprived of this statement of what we may say perhaps is one of the most eminent Christian Scientists in the world.

The Master—The trouble is that a good deal of what he says does not seem to me to be important for any purpose in the case, and I am admitting the letter only because of the possibility that there may be some things in it which you will have a right to use in the case.

Mr. Whipple—If this controversy with regard to "Purification" is important at all—a controversy which is introduced entirely by these defendants, and to which we did not refer in any way—why, it is important that the letter which was written by Mr. Dixon to the board, after their frequent interviews with him with regard to it, should go in—just as important as those interviews are. I understand the defendant made some reply to it, or attempted some reply. Those may be put in. I further understand, although it has been criticized, that the directors themselves were convinced that they were wrong in their position and receded from it; but you say you are going to offer evidence on that. We will await the evidence.

The Master—It appears that the letter was presented at the meeting—

Mr. Krauthoff—Of The Christian Science Board of Directors.

The Master—And action taken in regard to it?

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter was read.
The Master—The letter was read.
Mr. Whipple—Didn't you answer it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not now advised as to that.

Mr. Whipple—I understood that Governor Bates took copies of the answers off before he handed the original to us.

Mr. Bates—You didn't understand anything of the kind.

Mr. Whipple—Didn't I?

Mr. Bates—No, sir.

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps you are a mind reader.

The Master—We have not yet completed all the evidence which you intend to put in about the incident in which this pamphlet is concerned, have we?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, we have not.

The Master—I think I will at least wait until we get all that in before I rule on your motion.

Mr. Bates—Your Honor will save us an exception if that is going in at present.

The Master—Oh, yes; yes, indeed—an exception on anything on which I rule against you I hope will certainly be saved. It won't be lost by any consent of mine.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, in connection with the meeting of Sept. 11, about which there has been so much controversy, I understand and am informed that there is a quasi-record—perhaps a record—that Mr. Dittmore kept with regard to this meeting, stating somewhat more fully what happened. I infer that from what has been said and what has been written, and I judge it from the replies to questions which I have put to counsel. I should like to call for the production of that record. That would be material, I take it, at all events, in the controversy between the trustees and Mr. Dittmore. Mr. Dittmore has made a separate answer. It may contain matters that are material, if they should be verified by testimony. That would be very material in the other suit.

The Master—I do not think at present I shall insist on Mr. Krauthoff putting in anything he does not offer with regard to the records of that meeting. I want him to complete first, at any rate, everything he wants to put in.

Mr. Whipple—I was not asking for the production of it from Mr. Krauthoff; I was asking for its production by counsel for Mr. Dittmore. I think probably Your Honor may be right, that I ought not to interrupt Mr. Krauthoff's examination at this moment, unless Your Honor thinks that all the versions of this meeting of Sept. 11 ought to go in together as nearly as possible. It is only a matter of expediency and procedure, which I think rests entirely in Your Honor's discretion, and if you think that the call would be an unfair interruption of Mr. Krauthoff I shall not press it.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

The Master—I think that you should proceed, Mr. Krauthoff, to put in what you wish to offer, and you understand that the other side has called for a certain document purporting to be a record. If you do not put that in, we will see what follows then.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, in that connection I wanted to remind Mr. Whipple that the document to which he refers has already been put in evidence as Exhibit 246, and that before the noon adjournment I was identifying it by Mr. Dickey and explaining a typographical error at the top of it.

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, Mr. Krauthoff, you are mistaken in that. That is not what I was calling for. I was calling for what I have been hinting at as a private diary or stenographic report, or something of that sort, that Mr. Dittmore kept of the meeting itself.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have no control over Mr. Dittmore's diary.

Mr. Whipple—Yes. I said I was not asking it from you, I was demanding it from counsel for the other defendant. Perhaps you will join with me in asking for it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, Exhibit 245 is the minutes of Sept. 11, 1918, in the form in which they were proposed on the morning of Sept. 12, 1918.

Exhibit 246 is the memorandum of additions to complete minutes of the meeting of Sept. 11, 1918, as proposed by Mr. Dittmore on Sept. 16, 1918.

Before we proceed further, if Your Honor please, I was asked at the noon recess by some one present to ask if we were to be in session tomorrow, and I told him that it was definitely agreed that we would not be.

Mr. Bates—That was the understanding that was arrived at.

Mr. Whipple—I so understood.

Mr. Streeter—We so understood.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was just now stating it publicly so that those who asked me about it might know.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, referring to Exhibit 245, I will call your attention to the last sheet of paper attached thereto, written in pen and ink with lead pencil interlineations. Is that the form in which Judge Smith made a report to the board in connection with the resolution of Oct. 1, 1918? A. It is.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will read from the record of The Christian Science Board of Directors:

"Monday, Oct. 7, 1918. At a regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors held at 10 a. m. on the above date in the Directors' Room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Neal, Merritt, and Rathvon.

"The minutes of the regular meetings of Sept. 11 and Oct. 3 were read and approved."

[That portion of record of meeting of the Board of Directors, Oct. 7, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 575.]

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, there are quite a number of entries along there that bear upon the developments of this case. As you are putting in the records for this period, do you see any objection to reading in one bunch such references from those records as are applicable to this case between the first day of October and the first day of January—those three months?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, in response to the request of General Streeter, I desire, first, to answer that request; and, second, to pray Your Honor's direction. I have so far in the evidence that I have introduced proceeded upon the theory that I would present consecutively and chronologically everything that pertained to the controversy between the trustees and the directors with respect to the acts of the trustees and the directors. Now, intermingled with those transactions are incidents arising between Mr. Dittmore upon the one hand and the four other directors upon the other hand, and which incidents resulted, as the four directors claim, in Mr. Dittmore's removal from the board. I would very much prefer, with Your Honor's consent, to continue that line of proof, and prove the case as between the trustees and the directors—

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me, Your Honor. Please do not take another second of time, Mr. Krauthoff. I withdraw my request. Go ahead and put in what you want yourself; we will take care of ourselves.

Mr. Krauthoff—Is that agreeable to Your Honor?

Mr. Streeter—I withdraw it. There is nothing for you to do but go ahead.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, I will recur to the minutes of Sept. 11, 1918.

The Master—You have put in the record of a meeting at which they were finally approved, haven't you?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have put in the meeting at which they were finally approved.

The Master—Oct. 7, wasn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—On Oct. 7. And they were approved in the form in which I first read them.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, referring back to this meeting of Sept. 11, 1918, and the memorandum of additions to the complete minutes of that meeting, as proposed by Mr. Dittmore on Sept. 11, 1918, I call your attention to the statements of Mr. Dittmore in this memorandum as a basis for what did happen between the trustees and the directors at that meeting. What did any of the trustees at the meeting of Sept. 11, 1918, say, and which trustee said it, with respect to the supervision, if any, by the directors over the trustees, or the right, if any, on the part of the Board of Directors to declare vacancies in the trusteeship, and the reasons that might be assigned for the declaration of such vacancies? A. Your first question was with regard to the supervision of the literature?

Q. The supervision of the trustees, is the language of the memorandum. A. Why we explained to the trustees—

Q. Pardon me, Mr. Dickey. Will you please state who spoke and what he said? Not "We explained" at all. A. Well, I, having been the chairman, was expected to be the spokesman for the board, and did nearly all the talking—most of it.

Q. Certainly. Now, what did you say and to whom did you say it? A. I said there could be no question as to what Mrs. Eddy's intention was regarding the literature of the Christian Science Church, that she had definitely, positively placed that regulation in the hands of her Board of Directors, and that through their supervision of the trustees in various ways it was to be expected that they would pass upon the literature that was published.

Q. Who passed upon it? A. The directors. I mentioned that the mere fact that she had placed the election of the editors in the hands of the directors was evidence that she expected the directors to regulate what the editors wrote. I also cited the fact that the building belonged to The Mother Church, that the—

Q. You mean, the publishing house building? A. The publishing house building—that the directors were required to elect the business manager of the Publishing Society; that the directors were given power to dismiss a trustee for any reason that to them might seem expedient was another evidence; that the directors had power to request the dismissal of any person employed by the Publishing Society who was not suitable to the directors was another evidence of that fact. The question of this pamphlet was discussed and I made the statement that we did have the right to question the pamphlet itself and to ask them not to publish it. That was not denied by any of the trustees at that meeting. They did, however—

Q. Excuse me. You said that was not denied. Do you mean any of the statements which you recited, or which one of the statements was not denied? A. The statement that we had control of the literature.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Dickey is talking about Sept. 11, isn't he?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. You are talking about the meeting of Sept. 11? A. Sept. 11. Mr. Eustace replied to the statement made with regard to the pamphlet "Purification," that it had been a long time since this pamphlet was printed and set up, and that a number of the employees had found out that there was some reason why the directors had requested it to be held up and that was being talked and noised about amongst the employees of the publishing house, and he hoped that we would allow the pamphlet to go out so as not to create any criticism of Mr. Dixon's work amongst the employees.

Q. What, if anything, was said by any of the trustees or by any of the directors on that occasion in the presence of the trustees, stating who said it, as to the right, if any, of the directors to declare vacancies in the trusteeship only upon the grounds of dishonesty or immorality? A. Mr. Dittmore brought that point up and discussed it quite freely.

Q. What did Mr. Dittmore say about that in the presence of the trustees? A. Mr. Dittmore said that there could be no question in regard to Mrs. Eddy's intention when she made a by-law authorizing the directors to dismiss a trustee whenever it might seem to them expedient. Mr. Eustace replied that there might be a difference of opinion in regard to the meaning of the word "expedient."

Q. Did he read anything from the Bible on that occasion? A. I do not recall that he did.

Q. Did you have a dictionary— A. I left the table and consulted a dictionary at the side of the room, looked up the meaning of the word "expedient," and read the definition as given therein, and I said, "There can't be any possible room for a misapplication of that definition." Mr. Eustace said that that was not his interpretation of it.

Mr. Streeter—Won't you repeat that? I didn't get that last—what Mr. Eustace said.

The Witness—That was not his interpretation of the meaning of the word "expedient." And I said, "Well, Mr. Eustace, of course if you are allowed to interpret the Manual and also allowed to interpret the dictionary, you can make it mean anything you please." Mr. Dittmore maintained that there could be no question about the meaning of Mrs. Eddy's expression in the Manual, and also maintained that the Deed of Trust itself gave that right to the directors, because the First Members were no longer in existence, and naturally that right fell to the succeeding body, which was the directors; and also he referred to the Manual stating that the business of The Mother Church should be conducted by its Board of Directors.

Q. Have you stated all that was said on that occasion upon the question of the removal being limited to dishonesty or immorality? A. I have not. It would be impossible for me to state it all. There was a great deal of conversation on the subject.

Q. Was there any claim made by any of the trustees on that occasion that in no event did the Board of Directors have any power at all to declare a vacancy in the trusteeship? A. No, they did not claim that. Mr. Eustace made the claim that the word "expedient" there could only be properly interpreted, and legally interpreted, as meaning for insanity or dishonesty or immorality.

Q. Were any statements made at that meeting by any of the trustees, or any of the directors in the trustees' presence, with respect to the question whether the directors of The Mother Church had succeeded to any of the rights or responsibilities stated in The Mother Church By-Laws as formerly belonging to Mrs. Eddy in relation to the Publishing Society and the Board of Trustees? A. That subject was introduced by Mr. Dittmore.

Q. And what was said by anyone, stating the name of the person who stated it? A. Well, Mr. Dittmore did not claim that the directors succeeded to the rights of Mrs. Eddy, yet he said that our legal advice had been, after Mrs. Eddy's passing on, that the directors could not be expected nor required to perform impossibilities, and since it was now impossible to obtain Mrs. Eddy's consent to such of their actions as the Manual requires that they would not be expected to obtain such consent and could act legally without that consent.

Q. On that occasion was there any mention made of the several things in the Manual, which, according to the language in the Manual, was to be done subject to Mrs. Eddy's approval or with her consent expressed in writing? A. I mentioned some of them myself. One I remember: I said that we could not elect a reader to The Mother Church if we were not allowed to act without Mrs. Eddy's consent. I also stated that there were numerous requirements of the Board of Directors that they could not fulfill unless they should act without Mrs. Eddy's consent.

Q. Was anything said as to what the effect of such a contention would be upon the life of The Mother Church if upheld? A. Yes. I made the statement—I believe Mr. Dittmore also made the statement—that it would have the effect of annihilating the organization and destroying The Mother Church as a whole if we were prohibited from carrying out the requirements of the By-Laws without obtaining Mrs. Eddy's consent.

Q. What, if any, answer was made by the trustees in response to any of those statements that you have just related? A. That I am not clear on, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. Was anything said at that conference by any of the trustees or any of the directors in the presence of the trustees, and if so by whom, as to the trustees being required to employ the people whom the directors elected as editors and business manager? A. I am not certain that anything was said at that meeting, but on former occasions—

Q. Was anything said on a former occasion? A. Yes. I know that on one former occasion Mr. Eustace made the remark, "Well, even if you did elect them we would not have to employ them"; and when we brought the question up of dismissing one of the trustees, he said, "Well, suppose you did dismiss one of the trustees; we could reappoint him to that position."

Q. Was anything said on Sept. 11, 1918, by any of the trustees, or any of the directors in the presence of the trustees, and if so state who said it, with respect to the question who must thereafter be supreme in the publishing house? A. I do not recall that at that time that question was specifically brought out, or that any definite action was taken by any of the trustees. Their general attitude was such—

The Master—He is getting away from the question, I think.

The Witness—I beg your pardon.

Q. Was anything said at that meeting by the trustees, or any of the directors in the presence of any of the trustees, and if so, by whom, giving the name, as to whether or not the trustees were absolute in formulating rules for the recognition of practitioners' cards and church cards in The Christian Science Journal? A. That question did come up, and I made this statement: That I thought the reference made in the Deed of Trust—or, in the Manual, rather, not the Deed of Trust—in the Manual, that cards of practitioners and churches may be advertised in the Journal upon compliance with the rules made by the Publishing Society. I stated that my thought on that was that the Publishing Society had the right to make certain rules with regard to the price paid for the advertisement, to the size of the advertisement, the number of lines, the number of words in a line, and the location and arrangement of the advertising; but that it had no right to determine when a person was qualified to practice Christian Science and either keep his card out or admit it on those grounds.

Q. What was said as to the recognition of a branch church or society? A. Well, it was always understood between us—

The Master—One moment.

The Witness—Nothing definitely that I can recall at that meeting. That was a thing we all knew.

Q. This morning I handed you this dummy proof of "Purification," which you stated was interlined in your handwriting in pencil? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will now ask that that be identified as an exhibit.

Mr. Whipple—What is that?

Mr. Krauthoff—These are his interlineations.

Mr. Whipple—I do not think his interlineations make it admissible. He said that he held it in his hand, but that he did not show it to anybody.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am now asking him to identify it, if Your Honor please and I am showing it—

Mr. Whipple—if you want to have the passage marked for identification I have no objection.

[The passage in the book referred to is marked Exhibit 576 for identification, R. H. J.]

Q. Referring to Exhibit 576 for identification, R. H. J., did you have that with you at this interview about the pamphlet "Purification"? A. Yes.

Q. On Sept. 4, 1918? A. Yes.

Q. Were all of the interlineations in at that time, or did you have— A. They were; they were all there.

Q. Did you point out all of them to the trustees on that occasion? A. I did not. I read from this pamphlet and explained several of the corrections I had made.

Q. You didn't explain all of them? A. I did not. I explained more to Mr. Dixon, perhaps, than to the trustees.

Q. The pamphlet being released before you had the final interview, you did not read all of them? A. I didn't go through them all because they said they would defer it—

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—On what?

Mr. Whipple—I think that the witness was stating what is not admissible in evidence. He is giving his reasons for something.

The Master—Confine yourself to the question as nearly as you can, Mr. Dickey.

The Witness—I did not read all of the corrections, because the trustees said that they would consider it again, and give us an opportunity to talk the matter over with them again before they took any final action.

Mr. Whipple—I move that that part of the answer which Your Honor directed should not be given, but which was nevertheless given, be stricken out.

The Master—The answer to the question is "I did not," I think. You do not want any of the rest of it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Beginning with the word "because," it may be stricken out.

Q. Did you have an interview with Mr. Dixon at or about that time with respect to this letter that was read in evidence, written by him on Sept. 9, 1918? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that in the board meeting, or was that a personal interview? A. That was in a board meeting.

Q. And at that time were there any of the trustees present? A. None.

Q. Were the details of this pamphlet discussed with Mr. Dixon? A. I can tell you just what was discussed if I may have the pamphlet.

The Master—Now, give him the pamphlet.

[The pamphlet, which has been marked Exhibit 567, for identification, R. H. J., is passed to the witness.]

Do you really want to go into just what was discussed at length?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not going to ask about that, if Your Honor please.

The Master—While he is looking at it, the stenographer asks my instructions as to whether Exhibit 572 is now to be printed in the record. That is the Dixon letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, and I am not asking that.

The Master—The stenographer writes me a memorandum that he does not quite understand how that letter is left, so far as the record is concerned. Can we postpone the printing until we have got through with all this evidence about the pamphlet, according to my suggestion? Does it make any difference to you whether it is printed now or a little later, if it is printed at all?

Mr. Whipple—We should prefer that it should go in this afternoon.

Mr. Krauthoff—Our motion to strike out being pending, it would seem not proper to print it until that motion is determined.

The Master—In that case, I think that it will have to stand for the present omitted from the printing.

Mr. Whipple—That is, Your Honor does not desire to hear the argument now? Oh, you want to hear more evidence about it?

The Master—I thought that I would wait until I got all the evidence about this "Purification" controversy.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

Q. Be careful for the present, Mr. Dickey, not to say anything about the conversation with Mr. Dixon, because the court has not yet determined whether the letter is in evidence. But you did have a conference with Mr. Dixon? Yes or No. A. Yes.

Q. Did you have a conference with Mr. Eustace, as distinguished from the other trustees? A. No. On that date I held the pamphlet in my hand and talked to all the trustees.

Q. Have you any recollection of any conversation with Mr. Watts, stating that you had concluded to release this pamphlet? A. I don't remember it.

Q. Did you have the further conferences that were mentioned as about to take place on the pamphlet? A. I recall that after talking this over with the other members of the board we all reached a conclusion—is it right to say that?

Q. You have a right to say what you said.

Mr. Whipple—Said to whom?

The Witness—To each other.

Mr. Krauthoff—You haven't a right to say that if Mr. Whipple objects.

Mr. Whipple—Said to whom?

Mr. Thompson—Said to each other.

Mr. Krauthoff—The witness stated that they said it to each other.

Q. Have you related all of the incidents of the pamphlet "Purification," in so far as they relate to any questions which arose at that time between the trustees and the directors as to the publication of the pamphlet? A. As nearly as I can recall.

Q. I don't mean as to the correctness of what was in the pamphlet. A. No. Except this, that all our talks were based on the supposition that none of these pamphlets had been printed.

Q. Well, what was said by anybody in the conferences as to whether or not they had been printed? A. Nothing was said by them. Mr. Watts told me that they had not been printed.

Q. You did get some letters stating that they had some printed? A. Nothing was said by them. Mr. Watts told me that they had not been printed.

Q. You did get some letters stating that they had some printed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But I mean prior to the letters you had no statement— A. No.

Mr. Krauthoff—This incident of Sept. 11, 1918, was followed—we read from the record—by the meeting of Sept. 18, 1918:

"The board had an interview with Trustees David B. Ogden and Herbert W. Eustace of The Christian Science Publishing Society. They requested that the conference be postponed until the return of Trustee Rowlands, who is now absent from Boston."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Sept. 18, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 577, R. H. J.]

Oct. 1, 1918, the full board present:

"A letter was read from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Oct. 1, and inclosed letter dated Sept. 30, expressing the trustees' present concept of the relationship between The Christian Science Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[The record of the meeting of the board of directors of Oct. 1, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 578. R. H. J.]

That is the document that has been offered in evidence as Exhibit 4 and Exhibit 4a. I understand that as I read from these records of the directors the stenographer marks them as exhibits.

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Krauthoff, have you now finished all the evidence you intend to offer with regard to this pamphlet "Purification"?

Mr. Krauthoff—All of which I am at present advised.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, it appears that this pamphlet was read to the trustees and approved by them and then sent to the Board of Directors and received by them, read, copies of it distributed, and discussed by them with Mr. Dixon at a board meeting later. It has not appeared whether they replied to it. It takes on the nature of, and is in effect, a communication from the trustees to the Board of Directors on this very subject, and it is, as we think, one of the most important communications made to the directors on the subject. Mr. Dixon wrote it because of his participation in the matter, as indicated in the letter itself, but it went forward with the approval of the Board of Trustees as their own approved expression in a communication to the directors. It so states in the letter. It is so stated in the record of the Board of Trustees which has already been put in evidence. It was asserted a few minutes ago by Mr. Krauthoff as one of the objections to its admission that it had been read and approved by the Board of Trustees. We put its admission very largely on that ground, that it came in as a part of the correspondence and a part of the interview between the Board of Trustees and the Board of Directors. It was adopted by the Board of Trustees as a communication, their communication, a communication of Mr. Dixon stating the facts going before them for their approval.

Mr. Krauthoff—And we say that that does not make it evidence in their favor.

The Master—It is evidence, is it not, of a feature essential to the understanding of what was done at these meetings?

Mr. Krauthoff—We had not so regarded it.

The Master—Is there anything further on that subject?

Mr. Krauthoff—Nothing further.

The Master—I think that I shall have to adhere to my admission of the document, and in that case it may, I suppose, be printed, if you cannot agree to omit any of it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, of course, we take an exception to its admission in evidence, and it will be agreeable to us to have no part of it printed.

Mr. Whipple—You say it is agreeable to you?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, to have no part of it printed.

Mr. Whipple—And I suppose that, conversely, it is very disagreeable to you to have any of it printed?

The Master—I think that so far we have omitted to print an exhibit that had been admitted in the case only when it was so agreed by all the counsel.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was speaking only for myself, if Your Honor please.

The Master—We will follow that course. It may be printed.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, the letter having been admitted in evidence, it is not here at present, I believe?—

The Master—I do not know whether it is or not. Oh, yes; here it is (passing to Mr. Krauthoff Exhibit 572).

Mr. Krauthoff—The subject treated by this letter, if Your Honor please, is so comprehensive, and of so technical a nature, that I would not undertake at this moment to examine Mr. Dickey in respect to the contents of it, and I will ask the courtesy of the court to do that Monday morning, subject, of course, to any objection that may be made.

The Master—There is a good part of the contents of it that I do not think you will need to examine him about at all.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I want to examine it more closely.

Mr. Bates—I understand that Your Honor has admitted it all?

The Master—I have done the best I could to keep it out, I think counsel will agree.

Mr. Bates—Your Honor has now admitted it all, I understand?

The Master—I have admitted it, but I have also stated that a very large part of it does not seem to me to be of any significance at all for the purposes of this case.

[The letter, Exhibit 572, being now admitted in evidence, it is printed at the point where it was first read by Mr. Whipple.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday, Oct. 7, 1918: "The Directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, who submitted a proposed letter from the directors to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, relative to the functions and relationship of the two boards. To be laid over for further consideration."

[The record of the meeting of the board of directors of Oct. 7, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 579. R. H. J.]

Q. As I understand it, Mr. Dickey, you received this letter of Sept. 30, 1918, which has been introduced in evidence as Exhibit 4 and Exhibit 4a—
A. Yes, sir.

Q. —on Oct. 1, 1918? A. That is right.

Q. Did the Board of Directors then consider the question of taking counsel with respect to the relationship of the two boards? A. We did.

Q. Up to that time had there been any thought of taking counsel or advice?

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment on that question.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple has proved as to—

Mr. Whipple—Well, but he cannot what the thoughts were. The question is not a good one, on the face of it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, the objection is to the word "thought"?

Q. Had any steps been taken up to that time in relation to it? A. No steps until that time.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oct. 8, 1918: "The proposed letter prepared by Judge Clifford P. Smith from The Christian Science Board of Directors to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, relative to the functions of the respective boards was read, edited, and upon motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Dittmore, it was voted to send the letter as amended."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Oct. 8, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 580. R. H. J.]

On that day the full board was present, and that is the letter which has been introduced in evidence and marked Exhibit 5.

Mr. Whipple—What is the date of it? Mr. Krauthoff—The date of it is Oct. 8, 1918.

Mr. Whipple—Thank you.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oct. 10, 1918:

"Letters were read from the following: . . .

"Editor William P. McKenzie, dated Sept. 17, proposing to change the heading 'From the Press' to another heading, 'Signs of the Times.' To be laid over until the board hears further from the trustees of the Publishing Society."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Oct. 10, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 581. R. H. J.]

Q. Mr. Dickey, this title "From the Press," is that the title of a column in the Sentinel? A. It is.

[An extract from the directors' records, Oct. 14, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 582, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Oct. 14, 1918.

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to ask The Christian Science Publishing Society for a financial statement for the six months ending Sept. 30, 1918."

[An extract from the directors' records, Oct. 15, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 583, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The board spent some time in considering the names of members of The Mother Church heretofore disapproved as contributors to the Christian Science periodicals."

Mr. Thompson—I observe that Mr. Krauthoff frequently reads a number of entries on different dates without asking any questions about them at all. I have abstained from interrupting because I understood as long as he was examining the witness he was not to be interfered with; but such marked omissions from the transactions of the board, having a bearing on Eustace v. Dickey, appear to occur from the notes that I have here that I really think that if he intends merely to read without examining the witness at all I have the right to suggest to Your Honor that he ought to read the whole record. In many instances—I can point out three or four instances—for instance, the Sept. 11 entry. I take occasion now to say that if Mr. Whipple or anybody else wants to see the notes taken at the time by Mr. Dittmore of the statements of the trustees, taken down verbatim, I shall not hesitate to produce them. On many of these other meetings here, for instance, Judge Smith, on Oct. 7, that one he just read, made another report on the method of keeping the records; he made another one, and they overruled him on Oct. 8. I do not object as long as he is inquiring of the witness, but if he is simply reading the records in without any purpose except to get them on our record, I would like to have it done more completely.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, the plan I am pursuing is this. I am reading the records which I wish to offer in evidence, chronologically, and examining the witness as I come to the things about which I desire to ask him.

The Master—Well, is it not the fact, as Mr. Thompson claims, that you have read a good many records there without asking the witness anything at all?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is true, because the question was raised, when I was asking the witness about them, that unless there was some special testimony about it the reading of the record was sufficient. I have thought it would aid the Court to have these records offered chronologically rather than at one time read those of which I inquired and then at some other time read those of which I did not inquire.

The Master—Have you not offered a good many of them chronologically when you had the secretary on the stand?

Mr. Krauthoff—Not bearing on this controversy.

Mr. Thompson—On what controversy did they bear, then, I should like to know?

Mr. Krauthoff—My recollection is that the evidence of the secretary—I mean the controversy, I mean the difference of opinion between the trustees and the directors—the evidence of the secretary, as I understood it, was on the adoption of the Manuals and changes in By-Laws and election of officers, and not the things to which I am now referring.

Mr. Thompson—Very well. Then if your purpose is merely to inform the Court, not through the mouth of Mr. Dickey but through your own mouth, reading these records of certain facts, why don't you, if you read the record of any particular day, read all the evidence on that day on the same subject, or on any subject relevant to the issues in Eustace v. Dickey? For instance, on Oct. 7 is there not an entry to this effect: That Judge Smith reported the way you do now the board never reads its final record, and he pointed out that you should change the plan as at present it was unsatisfactory and dangerous, and Mr. Dickey agreed to it? Then on Oct. 8 the board voted to overrule Mr. Smith's recommendation.

Mr. Bates—May I submit, Your Honor, that Your Honor has already passed on this matter several times? Your Honor has requested counsel not to make these interruptions. Mr. Thompson has seen fit to read in things from Mr. Dittmore's private memoranda, things which he thinks are in the record, but Your Honor has stated to him several times that he will have the opportunity to put in what he wishes to put in when his chance comes. He was offered the right to go ahead and put in his defense first if he wished to.

Mr. Thompson—Oh, this has got nothing to do with it.

Mr. Bates—He absolutely declined to do so, and I submit he ought not to keep interrupting Mr. Krauthoff, and Mr. Krauthoff ought to be allowed to go ahead and put in those things which he deems material. It may well be that he and Mr. Thompson would differ as to what is material, but Mr. Thompson is to have his opportunity. It is simply wasting time for him to keep making these interruptions.

Mr. Thompson—It is a singular thing that Governor Bates should talk about wasting time. I really think that any candid observer here would say that perhaps Mr. Krauthoff came as near to wasting time as anybody—perhaps more so than some would. All I am saying is that if you are going to put in the records relating to the issues in Eustace v. Dickey, without asking the witness any questions about it, you ought to put in all of them on those subjects, that is all; and that does not call for any such speech as has just been made by Governor Bates, either.

The Master—I cannot help thinking that that would be the best way. If you simply read, without asking Mr. Dickey anything about it, something from your record of a given date relating to a given subject, as material in Eustace v. Dickey, is it the best way to read only a part of it?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, that question does not arise, because what Mr. Thompson read a moment ago does not appear on the face of the record from which I am reading.

The Master—If it does not appear there I do not see how you can be expected to read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—And, in addition to that, it does not relate to the controversy between Eustace and Dickey at all, but it is a controversy by Mr. Dittmore as to whether the board kept its records in proper form.

Mr. Thompson—Do you think that has no bearing on the case of Eustace v. Dickey?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, not on everything. Mr. Dickey has asked that Mr. Dittmore be removed.

The Master—I understand now, at any rate, from you, that when you read an entry about a given subject you read all that there is in the record before you on that subject. Am I right?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am so endeavoring, if Your Honor please, but I do not wish to make that as a definite statement, because in the mass of it I may have omitted something.

The Master—Generally speaking.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, generally speaking.

The Master—Now, you may go on without taking any more time about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Mr. Thompson will follow his copy of the record as written by him, and call my attention to anything more—

Mr. Thompson—I have no copy of the record as written by me; I have a copy of notes taken carefully at the time of what actually occurred.

The Master—But those I think you cannot expect Mr. Krauthoff to do anything more about than he is now doing.

Mr. Thompson—I am not asking him to, except as they remind me to speak to him, to see how much of these facts get into the record.

[An extract from the directors' records, Oct. 17, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 584, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The directors had an interview with Editor William P. McKenzie of the Christian Science periodicals."

[An extract from the directors' records, Oct. 22, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 585, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, it was voted to request the editor of the Christian Science periodicals to submit the names of contributors selected for each issue as soon as the articles for that issue are decided upon."

[An extract from the directors' records, Oct. 29, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 586, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to ask the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society for a payment on account of the earnings for the past six months, due Oct. 1."

Mr. Thompson—Would it be convenient if I should ask you if your record does not show that Mr. Dixon came in that day and talked with the board?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; you are right about that.

[Mr. Krauthoff reads a further extract from the records of Oct. 29, 1918.]

"The directors had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor."

The Master—Showing he came, but not showing what he talked about?

Mr. Thompson—Doesn't it show what he talked about?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have read the record as it is written and subsequently approved by a vote of the board.

[An extract from the directors' records, Oct. 31, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 587, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Letters were read from the following:

"The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, Oct. 31, advising the remittance to the treasurer of The Mother Church of a check for $100,000 on account of net profits of the business of the Publishing Society for the six months previous to Oct. 1, 1918."

Mr. Krauthoff—I am passing the record of Nov. 5, 1918, in which there was an interview with Mr. Dixon, because it does not state the circumstances of the subject discussed.

Mr. Thompson—Would you be willing to turn to the record of Nov. 4 and take the report on the number of Monitors that are being given away to soldiers in England, France, and Canada, and the cost per day of such distribution?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not think, if Your Honor please, that that has any bearing on Eustace v. Dickey.

Mr. Thompson—Doesn't it seem to you to have a bearing whether or not gross extravagance was being practiced in giving $450,000 a year or $1500 a day of these things away?

The Master—Mr. Thompson, I shall have to ask you to keep that for the present. I will give you an opportunity.

Mr. Thompson—I thought Your Honor agreed I might suggest to him when he passed over a record.

The Master—Well, he has said he didn't care to read it. You called his attention to it, but he declines to read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I have no objection to reading it. I much prefer to read it than have any difference of opinion arise. The record is as follows:

[An extract from the directors' records, Nov. 4, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 588, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff as follows:]

"A letter was read from the Christian Science War Relief and Camp Welfare Committee, dated Boston, Nov. 4, reporting on the number of Christian Science Monitors being distributed through the agency of the above committee. The corresponding secretary was instructed to get the figures on the distribution of Monitors in England, now being taken over by the War Relief and Camp Welfare Committee for Great Britain and Ireland."

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, as at present advised, I do not know of anything in that which bears on the question of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Mr. Thompson—You don't care to give the figures?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will endeavor to locate the letter, and then offer the letter.

[An extract from the directors' records, Nov. 13, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 589, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"A letter from the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Nov. 11, was read, in which they adhere to their concept of the relationship between the two boards as set forth in their letter of Sept. 30, 1918."

Mr. Krauthoff—That letter, if Your Honor please, has been introduced as Exhibit 7.

[Mr. Krauthoff continued reading from the records of Nov. 13, 1918.]

"After considering further the letter from the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society above referred to, it was upon motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Merritt, voted that the board engage the services of ex-Governor John L. Bates, collaborating with Mr. Leon M. Abbott, of the law firm of Bates, Nay, Abbott & Dane, of Boston, Mr. Edwin A. Krauthoff of Washington, D. C., and Judge Clifford P. Smith of Boston, to give each a separate opinion on the Deed of Trust and Manual evidence in the relation between this board and the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and the rights of this board to exercise authority under Article XXV, Section 3, of the By-Laws of The Mother Church.

"The editors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith in connection with the above contemplated action."

Q. Now, prior to Nov. 13, 1918, except as the board may have conferred with Judge Clifford P. Smith, had the board taken any steps to employ counsel with respect to the issue tendered by the letter of Sept. 30? A. It had not.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. How is that material? Has the board anything to apologize for in what it did before that, on the ground that it did not have counsel? What difference does it make whether they had counsel or not?

The Master—It seems to me that the date of the first step taken toward the engagement of counsel may have some possible significance.

Mr. Whipple—Well, they had already engaged counsel before this; these were the additional ones.

The Master—Go on, Mr. Krauthoff. [An extract from the directors' records, Nov. 14, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 590, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to ask the Publishing Society for a copy of the auditor's report on their business as of Sept. 30, 1918."

[An extract from the directors' records, Nov. 18, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 591, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The directors had an interview with Attorneys John L. Bates and Leon M. Abbott, who were requested to prepare and submit a joint opinion as to the relationship between the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"The directors had an interview with Attorney Edwin A. Krauthoff of Washington, D. C., for the same purpose."

Q. With respect to these two interviews had on that date, one with Governor Bates and Mr. Abbott, and one with Mr. Krauthoff, were they held separately? A. They were.

Q. And what instructions were given to these counsel, I mean to Governor Bates and Mr. Abbott at one interview, and Mr. Krauthoff at the other?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I must object to that, I think.

The Master—Do you expect to bring out something different from what appears by the record?

Mr. Krauthoff—No. The record shows them consecutively and I want to show that they were separate.

A. Shall I answer?

Q. I beg pardon? A. Shall I answer?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if objection is made by Mr. Whipple, not for the present.

[An extract from the directors' records, Nov. 19, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 591, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Nov. 19, 1918.

"The directors had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor."

Mr. Krauthoff—Nov. 21—that relates to the opinion of counsel, which is passed for the present.

The Witness—I would like to state something in that connection.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is not now open, Mr. Dickey, for the present.

[An extract from the directors' records, Nov. 26, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 592, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Nov. 26, 1918.

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, it was voted to change the teaching year so that commencing Jan. 1, 1919, and thereafter, it will conform to the calendar year, instead of beginning Aug. 1, as heretofore. The corresponding secretary was instructed to prepare and submit the proposed announcement of the change to be sent at once to all authorized teachers of Christian Science, and to notify the Publishing Society to change the notice in the Journal accordingly."

Q. What is meant by the term "teaching year," Mr. Dickey? A. Each teacher is allowed to teach one class annually, and the teaching year has reference to the date from which the year begins.

Q. You say they are allowed to teach one class annually. That is under a provision of the Church Manual? A. The Church Manual, yes.

The Master—Is there any controversy about all that?

The Witness—Yes, there is.

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, if Your Honor please, as I understand the situation, we requested the trustees to put that notice in the Journal.

The Master—You have got that in.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; and the trustees declined to do it, and we are now proving—

The Master—I mean about what it related to in the beginning of the year, and all that. You have had it all before and I do not understand it is disputed.

Mr. Krauthoff—I didn't remember that I had asked Mr. Eustace about that.

The Master—And, in any case, there is the Manual that you have put in.

Mr. Whipple—There is no dispute about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon. The Manual, if Your Honor please, provides that each teacher shall teach one class annually; the Manual does not say when the teaching year shall begin.

The Master—I think we have had it already.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well, if Your Honor please; if it has been proved I have no desire to spend time doing it over again.

Mr. Whipple—May I suggest that it is not quite true that the trustees declined to do it. They wrote a letter asking the reason for it and pointing out that Mrs. Eddy had established it.

The Master—You will; no doubt, get the true history as you go on.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, in accordance with the vote I have just read, if Your Honor please, a letter was sent from the directors to the trustees, which has been offered in evidence as Exhibit 8, and there was an answer from the trustees to the directors read in evidence as Exhibit 9.

December 2:

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to draft and submit to the board a proposed cablegram to Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor, now in London, England, requesting him to use his efforts to have enacted at the forthcoming Peace Conference a measure providing for the religious freedom of all nations."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 2, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 593.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 3, 1918:

"The corresponding secretary submitted and the board approved a proposed cablegram to Editor Frederick Dixon, as authorized by the directors on Dec. 2."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 3, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 594.]

Q. Referring to that subject, Mr. Dickey, "a measure providing for the religious freedom of all nations," is that one of the subjects which you classified as affecting the cause of Christian Science as a whole? A. It is.

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 5, 1918:

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to request of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society details of the item sub-headed 'Charges,' totaling $48,032.19, under Schedule 4 of the report of Harvey S. Chase & Co., upon a balance sheet audit of the Publishing Society for the year ended March 31, 1918; also details of the item sub-headed 'Charges,' totaling $17,959.73, under Schedule 3 of said report; also to request the trustees to furnish the directors with a detailed analytical comparative statement of their business for five years preceding March 31, 1918."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 5, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 595.]

Mr. Krauthoff—I will check that up, if Your Honor please, and on Monday show where that letter was sent and what answer was made to it.

Dec. 11, 1918:

"The directors had an interview with assistant to the editor, Oscar L. Stevens, of The Christian Science Monitor."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 11, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 596.]

Q. During the absence of Mr. Dixon in England, did Mr. Stevens act in Boston as the editor of The Monitor? A. He did.

Q. And the board had interviews with Mr. Stevens as to the editorial work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In December, 1918? A. Yes.

Mr. Thompson—Do I understand, Your Honor, that what he reads becomes a part of the exhibits in the case, when he reads a passage?

Mr. Krauthoff—That was our understanding.

Mr. Thompson—Then a lot of things are going in without our having a chance to look them over and see if there is any objection to them. We don't know whether they are all read or not. I don't want to be captious about it, but it does seem a little unfair that the records should go in without our seeing them at all or seeing the context.

The Master—Unless you show them to Mr. Thompson you will have to give him a chance to look them over later.

Mr. Whipple—I think, Your Honor, that these were supposed to affect the trustees, and I suggested to Mr. Krauthoff that they might go in subject to correction, so perhaps that is the reason why he is putting them in. If we should discover that they were inaccurate later we will correct them, but it seemed not worth while to read them here first.

Mr. Thompson—Then may we understand that none of them are to be offered in evidence in Mr. Dittimore's case so far?

Mr. Bates—Certainly not.

Mr. Thompson—Then I move to strike them out. I don't know whether he has read all the context or what Your Honor would say was a fair representation. This is not an examination of the witness, apparently; it is mixed in.

The Master—You are going to be allowed an opportunity to look them over, and they are all going to be subject to your objection if you find anything in them incorrect.

Mr. Thompson—That is true, except it is a good deal of a job to go over and read these all at some future time. I could do it a good deal better if he would follow the usual rule and let me see them as he puts them in.

The Master—I think we will have to allow him to go on at least through today as he has begun, and then perhaps if a different method needs to be adopted we can adopt it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I may state in that connection, if Your Honor please, that it is my habit to give the book to the stenographers, so that the stenographers may copy exactly from the record that which I read, and that upon any subject—

The Master—I am not sure that that quite satisfies Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am very glad to show it to him each time (showing book to Mr. Thompson).

Mr. Thompson (after examining record)—Now, here is a meeting, if Your Honor please, where there are half a dozen different things in it that he doesn't intend to read—two of them referring to Mr. Dittimore by name, and I think they connect with the issues in Eustace v. Dickey. And here is something referring to Mr. Krauthoff that seems to be material, and he does not intend to read it. I think he better read that whole record in. I will submit it to Mr. Whipple.

The Master—Mr. Whipple is satisfied with the protection afforded by an opportunity to look them over hereafter.

Mr. Whipple—I do not care to stop and look at them now.

Mr. Thompson—I would suggest to Mr. Krauthoff that he read every entry there relating to Mr. Dittimore and the one relating to himself. If he does not want to, perhaps we can put it in later.

Mr. Bates—I submit, Your Honor, it ought to be left to our discretion to put in what we think is material. We cannot tell what is running in Mr. Thompson's mind; certainly we cannot be supposed to put in records which we do not deem material simply because he suggests them.

The Master—I think we will have to follow that course for the present, anyway. Go on, Mr. Krauthoff. Go on.

Mr. Krauthoff—What is the direction of the Court?

The Master—Proceed as you have been proceeding. I understand that you propose to afford Mr. Thompson and Mr. Whipple an opportunity to look over all those afterwards if they want to.

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, certainly, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Very good. Now, on that understanding, proceed and read what you select. If they have the opportunity I refer to, then they will hereafter have an opportunity to put in what they think ought to go in.

Mr. Thompson—I think the books ought to be left where we can readily get at them; we should not be obliged to go to defendant's office. They should not be left at counsel's office; they should be left in court.

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 17, 1918:

"In response to verbal inquiry from Assistant to the Editor Stevens of The Christian Science Monitor and the attitude to be taken by The Monitor toward the present Red Cross drive the board instructed the corresponding secretary to say to Mr. Stevens that the board felt it would be best not to take any definite position one way or the other; to keep out any reference therefrom from the editorial columns, and to treat the subject purely as news."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 17, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 596.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 18, 1918:

"A letter was dictated to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society inviting them to meet with the board, Thursday morning, Dec. 19, at 10:00 a. m."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 18, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 597.]

Mr. Krauthoff—That letter was offered in evidence as Exhibit 10, and the answer to it is marked Exhibit 11.

Q. With respect to that answer, Mr. Dickey—

The Master—Meaning Exhibit 11?

Mr. Krauthoff—Exhibit 11.

Q. In that reference is made to this fact:

"If the directors desire to ask the trustees concerning the Publishing Society, the trustees will be very glad to set a time for the conference in board room of the trustees, and that if on the other hand the trustees desire to ask the directors some question, they would ask for an appointment to meet with the directors in their board room."

Up to that time, in your experience as a member of the Board of Directors, had there been any refusal on the part of the trustees to meet the Board of Directors in the room of the Board of Directors at any time that the Board of Directors requested? A. No; that was the first time they had ever refused.

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 19, 1918:

"Letters were read from the following:

"Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, Dec. 18, requesting in writing further data and information in connection with the board's instruction to the Publishing Society dated Dec. 13, to change the date of the beginning of the teaching year from Aug. 1 to Jan. 1, in the notice in The Christian Science Journal."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 19, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 598.]

Q. You received a letter from the trustees under date of Dec. 18, 1918, which has been offered in evidence as Exhibit 9, in which the trustees asked the board for the data and your reasons for making this recommendation. Prior to December, 1918, in your experience as a member of the Board of Directors, had any of the trustees of the Publishing Society at any time asked for any reason or for any data with respect to any announcement that the directors had asked to appear in the official periodicals of the Christian Science movement, or any change in any official announcement that related to the affairs of the Church itself? A. Such a thing was unheard of until that time.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. It does not appear that the question had ever arisen. Why don't you ask him that? That is the real significance,—whether they had asked any changes in any dates which had been fixed by Mrs. Eddy.

The Master—Unless something to the contrary appears I should suppose the question had never arisen.

Mr. Whipple—With that assumption we are satisfied, but I thought it my duty to call attention to the futility of such a question.

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 19, 1918:

"Proposed letters prepared jointly by Judge Clifford P. Smith and Attorney Edwin A. Krauthoff, addressed to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society,—the first in reply to the trustees' letter of Dec. 18, and the second embodying seven points for the consideration of the trustees, were read, edited and final approval reserved until Dec. 20."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 19, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 599.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Friday, Dec. 20, 1918:

"At a special meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors, held at 9 o'clock a. m. on above date in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Dittemore, Dickey, Neal, Merritt and Rathvon.

"Judge Clifford P. Smith, and Attorney Edwin A. Krauthoff of Washington, D. C., were present.

"After carefully considering, editing and finally approving the letters prepared by Judge Smith and Mr. Krauthoff, (1st) in reply to a letter from the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Dec. 18, declining to meet with the directors; (2d) setting forth the board's position on seven definite points—it was on motion of Mr. Dittemore, seconded by Mr. Merritt, unanimously voted that the board maintain its rights in the premises, and to that end that the letters numbers 1 and 2, prepared by our attorneys, be sent to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society as quickly as possible.

"Upon the recommendation of Mr. Krauthoff, and after further considering the proposed letter number 3, in reply to the letter from the Board of Trustees, dated Dec. 18, 1918, wherein they virtually decline to change the notice in The Christian Science Journal relative to changing the date of the beginning of the teaching year, without further information and data from the directors, it was decided to postpone disposition of this question until a later date."

[That portion of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 20, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 600.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Those letters have been introduced in evidence as Exhibit No. 12 and Exhibit No. 13.

EIGHTEENTH DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room,
Boston, Massachusetts, July 21, 1919.

Adam H. Dickey, Resumed

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, at the time that Mr. Whipple referred to Exhibit 572, being the letter from Mr. Dixon to Mr. Dickey with respect to the pamphlet "Purification," read in evidence on last Friday, reference was made to the answer of the Board of Directors to that letter, and I will offer the answer in evidence in order that the record in that respect may be complete. This is the answer, if Your Honor please, that was attached to the original, and which we removed at the time that we gave the original to Mr. Whipple, and is the document that Mr. Whipple referred to as having been removed therefrom.

Mr. Whipple—Isn't that the one with reference to which counsel said that it was no such thing, that I didn't know that it had been removed?

Mr. Krauthoff—I don't remember what counsel then said; I am now stating what is the fact.

Mr. Thompson—Yes; that is what he said.

[Letter, Board of Directors to Mr. Dixon, Sept. 17, 1918, is offered in evidence and marked Exhibit 601, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

[Exhibit 601]

"Sept. 17, 1918.

"Mr. Frederick Dixon,

"The Christian Science Monitor,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Mr. Dixon:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to thank you for your letter of Sept. 8 relative to the pamphlet 'Purification,' which letter has received the consideration of the board.

"With kindest regards,

"Sincerely yours,

"L. C. WARREN,

"Corresponding Secretary pro tem for
The Christian Science Board of Directors."

"LCW

"L-F"

Mr. Whipple—Will you remind me of the date of it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Sept. 17, 1918. In connection with the letter from Mr. Dixon which Mr. Whipple has introduced in evidence, I offer the following letters which were exchanged between The Christian Science Board of Directors and Mr. Dixon in June, 1914.

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment. It seems to me a far cry from—

The Master—You now jump back to 1914. Why should we do that?

[Mr. Krauthoff offers the correspondence to Mr. Whipple.]

Mr. Whipple—I do not care to see them.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, on Friday Mr. Whipple introduced in evidence a letter from Mr. Dixon in which certain statements were made with respect to the powers of the trustees with the respect to the issuance of literature.

The Master—What date is that?

Mr. Krauthoff—1918.

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am now offering the letters which passed at the time that Mr. Dixon was appointed the editor of The Christian Science Monitor and his recording of the situation at the time he was so appointed.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I did not offer the letter of September, 1918, strictly speaking. It was a letter which was made admissible by the proceedings which were being conducted by Mr. Krauthoff in direct examination. He had made it admissible as a part of the correspondence at this particular time. But, even if it were, that does not make letters four years before of any consequence or admissible in the case.

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter is also admissible for another reason, if Your Honor please. It is the correspondence between the Board of Directors and Mr. Dixon, who was named as editor by the Board of Directors. It evidences the understanding under which

Mr. Dixon took the position which he is now filling.

The Master—Can that be important in this case? I do not see the purpose for which it can be important.

Mr. Krauthoff—It shows the practice and the understanding of the parties, if Your Honor please, and I understood that that was what we were now proving—the course of conduct under which this business was established and operated.

The Master—It seems to me I shall have to exclude that. We have got to draw the line somewhere upon this correspondence. It does not seem to me sufficiently relevant.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have it marked for identification and note our exception?

The Master—Yes.

[Correspondence exchanged between The Christian Science Board of Directors and Mr. Dixon, in June, 1914, marked Exhibit 602, for identification.]

Mr. Krauthoff—In connection with that correspondence I desire to remind the Court that the record of the Board of Directors shows the appointment of Mr. Dixon, or the election of Mr. Dixon, as editor of The Christian Science Monitor, on June 8, 1914; and, in connection with that date, I desire to offer the record of the Board of Trustees bearing upon the election of Mr. Dixon as editor.

Mr. Whipple—You have the original records?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have the original records.

Mr. Whipple—Of the trustees?

Mr. Krauthoff—Of the trustees.

Mr. Whipple—Are you sure you have not put them in?

The Master—You ought to have put them in a good while ago if you were going to put them in.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have not put this item in, because at that time the importance of it was not recognized as it is now.

Mr. Whipple—Is it with regard to Mr. Dixon's so-called election?

Mr. Krauthoff—It refers to the election of Mr. Dixon as editor.

Mr. Whipple—Well, it refers to it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I mean, it bears on that; it does not mention him as being elected.

Mr. Whipple—Then I think I will object to it. You have already put in the fact and the record of his election, and what more is of consequence?

Mr. Krauthoff—We now offer the action of the trustees with respect to the action of the directors in electing Mr. Dixon.

Mr. Whipple—Well, you have put in their action—that they employed him.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon; we have not put in the record of the trustees with respect to Mr. Dixon, and we have not put in that they employed him.

The Master—The directors' record having gone in on that subject, I do not see my way to exclude the trustees' record.

Mr. Whipple—If that is what the record really is I have no objection to it; I thought it had been put in. (Examining record.) All right. That is not any action on the part of the Board of Trustees with regard to his employment.

The Master—If it relates to his employment, go ahead and read it, Mr. Krauthoff.

[An extract from the trustees' records, June 8, 1914, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 603, and read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Regular meeting of the trustees convened at 4:20 p. m., after attending the annual meeting in The Mother Church.

"Conference held with Mr. Dixon. A meeting of the editorial staff and the heads of departments of The Monitor was called and met at 8 p. m. in the publishing house, and Mr. Dixon, the new editor, was formally introduced. Interesting talks were made regarding the work of The Monitor. Meeting closed at 9:15 p. m."

Q. Mr. Dickey, heretofore you have been asked about a conference with the trustees on Sept. 11, 1918. In your previous testimony no question was asked of you about any statement that you made to Mr. Ogden. Did you, on Sept. 11, 1918, make a statement to Mr. Ogden in the presence of Mr. Rowlands and Mr. Eustace with respect to the relation of the trustees to the directors, and, if so, please state what you said to Mr. Ogden and what he said to you? A. I did say something to Mr. Ogden. I said, "Mr. Ogden, you have been here a good many years in the capacity of manager, and you know what the rule and the custom has been with regard to the editorial policy; and now things have taken an entirely different turn and you know better than to make the claims you are making now." Mr. Ogden said, "No, I do not." That was all he replied.

Q. In the record read in evidence on Friday, of the directors, of Dec. 20, 1918, it appears that on that date you postponed the disposition of the question of the teaching year until a later date. A. That is correct.

Q. That was done for the purpose of assuring yourselves that your position was quite correct? A. It was.

Q. And then at a later date it was disposed of by another order, that has been read in evidence, and the trustees thereafter complied with that in the announcement in the Journal? A. That is correct.

Q. Coming back to the two letters that were authorized by the Board of Directors, on Dec. 20, 1918, the first letter appears in evidence as Exhibit No. 12. Your attention has been called since last Friday to that letter, as being a general statement of the relations of the directors and the trustees as you understood it at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then the other letter of Dec. 20,

1918, covers seven points. I will call your attention to the first one, which has to deal with the responsibility for the final decisions in regard to recognizing new branches of The Mother Church and societies. You have examined again the Church Manual to see to what extent branch churches are provided for in the Church Manual. A. I have.

Q. Referring to this list of churches and societies which appears monthly in The Christian Science Journal, to what extent is that list accepted as the official list of Christian Science churches and societies, that is, authorized churches and societies of The Mother Church? A. That is the authorized list, and it is accepted everywhere by Christian Scientists as such.

Q. It is so accepted by the board in the transaction of its business? A. It is.

Q. Do you recognize as authentic any church or society whose card is not in here, or who has not an application pending for a card?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment.

The Master—I think you have gone as far as you can go on that line.

Q. The question of a church or society having its card in this Journal—did that come before the board at any time on questions—I mean, did it prior to Feb. 1, 1919—did that question ever arise as to the rights of churches and societies to have their cards in this list? A. Well, at one time the Board of Directors had entire charge of that.

Mr. Whipple—That I would like to have stricken out, if Your Honor please, as not responsive.

The Master—It is not responsive.

Mr. Whipple—And if there are any actions of the board upon that question, the proper way to produce them would be to show the records.

The Master—You can make much better progress if the witness will answer the question and stop.

The Witness—Perhaps I did not understand the question, Your Honor.

Q. In individual instances as distinguished from the general practice has the board been called upon to determine the rights of churches and societies to have a card put in the Journal? A. We had not.

Q. That has been done by the trustees? A. Done by the trustees.

Q. Prior to the 1st of February, 1919? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And since that time? A. Since that time it has been done by the directors.

Q. Prior to the 1st of February, 1919, had any question arisen—I mean, with the present trustees and the board, about this question of churches and societies having their cards in the Journal? A. That question had been up for discussion many times.

Q. And the trustees were making some claims with respect to their rights as to that? A. They were.

Q. You are familiar, of course, with the provision in the Manual that every church—

The Master—Well, we have got the Manual in, haven't we?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—Can't we assume that he is familiar with it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I was going to ask him that as a basis for a question, but I shall not press it further.

Q. The second point in this letter relates to the eligibility of persons who might apply for recognition as practitioners or nurses. Did the board have before it at that time instances of people who were claiming the right to have a card in the Journal and were claiming that the trustees had not given them the right they claimed? A. The board were—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. We have gone all into this, if Your Honor please, we have had the fullest statement of the record to it, and the procedure.

The Master—And everything that happened, haven't we, and all the communications?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, if Your Honor please, as I understood the theory of the Bill in Equity in this case, it was that this Board of Directors had been arbitrary and capricious in making these requests and these directions. I have no desire to overload the case, and I was simply pointing out the situation as it was on Dec. 20, 1918, as bearing upon the reasonableness and propriety of this request.

The Master—Anything they did or did not do you may show.

Mr. Thompson—What is the date of that letter?

Q. The question I was asking was, whether prior to Dec. 20, 1918, the Board of Directors did not have instances of where people claiming the right to have their card in the Journal as a practitioner, were claiming that the trustees had excluded them from the Journal, and whether that had not been the subject of these conferences prior to that time? A. We did have—

The Master—Pause a moment. If there are conferences on that subject I suppose they are in evidence now, aren't they? You have gone over this chronologically.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if Your Honor please, I shall not press that further.

Q. The next question related to the general welfare of the Christian Science movement as a whole, which was later remodeled, I believe—the fourth point in the letter. A. It was.

Mr. Thompson—This letter of Dec. 20, you are talking about?

Mr. Krauthoff—Dec. 20, 1918.

Q. The fifth point referred to the editorial policy of the Christian Science publications? A. Yes.

Q. And you have stated the importance of that, and on what you base your right to that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or your duty? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—Then came the question of salaries of the editors and the business manager elected by the directors, and the question of the Manual and the nature of the work done by the Committee on Bible Lessons.

The record recites, Mr. Dickey, that on Sunday, Dec. 22, 1918:—

"The board met in executive session and listened to a report from Mr. Adam H. Dickey, who stated that he had individually and unofficially talked informally with Mr. Herbert W. Eustace with regard to the situation that has arisen between the trustees of the Publishing Society and The Christian Science Board of Directors. After brief discussion of the situation Judge Clifford P. Smith and Attorney Edwin A. Krauthoff were called into conference. It was decided to transmit to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society the opinions obtained by the directors from Judge Clifford P. Smith, Mr. Edwin A. Krauthoff, and the joint opinion of John L. Bates and Leon M. Abbott, with the information that these opinions were obtained by the board in their desire to fulfill their duties to the fullest degree possible."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Dec. 22, 1918, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 604.]

The Master—One moment. Has that been gone into before?

Mr. Krauthoff—It has not, as I recall.

Mr. Whipple—Well, counsel has put a question, and we haven't the slightest idea what he has read from. I supposed he was reading from the record of the case. He began by saying something about the record.

Mr. Krauthoff—The record of The Christian Science Board of Directors. I am sorry, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—Is it something new you wanted to put in?

Mr. Krauthoff—Something I had not heretofore read. There it is (showing volume to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—Well, you have read it now.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have read it through.

Mr. Whipple—And you want to base a question on it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I want to base a question on it.

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps I will listen to the question. I didn't know what you were reading from.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am sorry. Do you want to see it, Mr. Thompson?

Mr. Thompson—I don't like this habit, if Your Honor please, of his reading a part or the whole, generally a part, of the record, and then sometimes basing a question on it and sometimes not. It seems to me the proper way would be to let the witness look it over and refresh his mind if he needs to, and then put the question.

The Master—Haven't we already discussed that point considerably?

Mr. Thompson—I think we have, sir.

The Master—Shall we save time by reading it again and talking about it some more now?

Mr. Thompson—It seems to me I should like to object to the question just to raise the point whether there is any propriety in a man standing there and reading a record to a witness. I do not understand it.

Q. Mr. Dickey, did you have a conference with Mr. Eustace prior to Dec. 22, 1918—immediately prior to it? A. I did.

Q. Where? A. At his apartment in the Braemore Hotel.

Q. When did that conference take place? A. Friday morning preceding the 22d.

Q. Friday morning, Dec. 20, 1918? A. The 20th, yes.

Q. What did you say to Mr. Eustace and what did he say to you in that conference, stating it fully, in substance, and being careful to always state what he said and what you said. A. I said, "Mr. Eustace, I have come to see you because I think more of the Christian Science movement than I do of anything else in the world, and my high regard for you as a man is such that I cannot let this whole affair run along without coming and talking this question over with you personally. You and I have had certain advantages in instruction in Christian Science, and I am sure that we cannot take a different—cannot take different views on this question that is up now between the directors and trustees." I said, "It looks to me as though there was difficulty ahead, and the Christian Science movement was threatened with a split, and it ought not to be; I have heard some talk about the possibility of a lawsuit being entered into, and that is one of the things I want to talk with you about." He said, "Why, Mr. Dickey, I can assure you that there will be no lawsuit; do not let that disturb your harmony for a minute; we are all Christian Scientists and there never will be a lawsuit in this movement if I can prevent it." "Well," I said, "why then can you not adjust your actions with the requirements of the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust you are acting under?" I said, "There never has been any difficulty in former years with men who occupied your position, they have always worked in perfect harmony with the directors, everybody understood what the conditions were." Just prior to that, what brought that forth from me, was a statement by Mr. Eustace that he felt he was obligated to obey the law of the land. Then I made the remark to him about what his predecessors had done. I said, "They did not break the law of the land, they did not disobey any rule of the Manual; the whole question was adjusted amicably between the trustees and directors, and we have always had perfect harmony." He said, "We can have now; there is no reason why we should not have; there is no discrepancy between the Church Manual and the trustees."

"Then," I said, "why can't we get together and act on that, and why can't you live up to your obligation under the Deed of Trust and to your obligation as a Christian Scientist under the Manual just as well as the men did who filled this office before you?" He said, "We can, and we certainly shall." He said, "I am very glad you came, because it gives me an opportunity to tell you just where I stand, and I stand on the Church Manual absolutely and on the Deed of Trust, and there is not any reason why they both can't be carried out." "Well," I said, "it must be done that way; there can be no other solution of it." He said, "You are quite right." "Now," I said, "I was contemplating going away for the Christmas vacation, and I did not want to leave town without coming to you and talking this over." And he said, "I am very glad you came, and you may go away with perfect assurance that there will be no trouble and no lawsuit." On the following Sunday I reported at this meeting that was held by the directors, Dec. 22, that I had had this conversation with Mr. Eustace.

Mr. Krauthoff—Is that objected to, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—I beg your pardon.

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Dickey, and tell what you said on Sunday to your fellow directors. A. I told my fellow directors—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment.

The Master—Something which is not in the record?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is an oral conversation between Mr. Dickey and his associate directors on Sunday, which I suppose is not competent if objected to.

Q. Did you report on Sunday the fact that you had seen Mr. Eustace? A. I did. Shall I tell you—

Q. You told them you had seen him? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Dickey, it is desired to get all the conversation on a particular day in the record at one time if possible. Have you stated fully all that happened at this interview with Mr. Eustace on Friday, Dec. 20, 1918, or is there something more you wish to add? A. There was a great deal more, Mr. Krauthoff, because I think we must have talked for a half or three-quarters of an hour—all of the latter, I should think—and we talked generally on Christian Science and what was required of us and our obligations to the movement under the Manual, the expectations of Mrs. Eddy that her wishes would be carried out in the conduct of this movement, and her care in putting men only in office whom she could trust absolutely to carry out the requirements as she was led to put them in the Church Manual. I told him—I said, "You know that she depended entirely upon this Manual being carried out for the safety of the Christian Science movement." He said, "Yes, I know that; we agree perfectly, Mr. Dickey; there is no difference between us." He said, "You are quite right in your statements, and I know that you understand me." I said, "Well, I believe I do, but I have had apprehension and fear to a great extent that you were undertaking to do something that would, in effect, separate the Christian Science movement—or attempt to separate it into two divisions." He said, "No, I know that the Christian Science movement is one and the unity of it must be maintained, so you can rest perfectly assured that there will be nothing of the kind done on the part of the trustees." The meeting was a very friendly one and I left him in that condition of mind.

Q. You left him with this statement on his part? A. Yes.

Q. You then went to Savannah, Georgia, and other places? A. I left Boston for a vacation, which I had not had for a long time.

Mr. Streeter—Is that Dec. 20?

Mr. Krauthoff—Sunday.

The Witness—I left the 22d.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Dickey left on Dec. 22, but the interview of which he speaks was on Friday, Dec. 20.

Q. The date on which you returned to Boston was what, Mr. Dickey? A. Jan. 21.

The Master—1919?

Mr. Krauthoff—1919. There has been introduced in evidence a letter from the Christian Science Board of Directors to the trustees under date of Jan. 22, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit No. 20, and another letter of Jan. 22, 1919, as Exhibit No. 21; and those letters, if Your Honor please, were authorized by The Christian Science Board of Directors at their meeting on Jan. 22, 1919. I desire to offer in evidence the record showing the authorization but not again repeating the document, because it is already in evidence.

Mr. Whipple—We admit they were authorized, if Your Honor please, and put them in on that assumption. They could not have gone in unless it had been assumed they were. Why do we need anything more?

Mr. Krauthoff—That being admitted, that becomes immaterial.

Q. Recurring for a moment to your visit to the south. Mr. Dickey, there has been offered in evidence Exhibit No. 106, a letter from Mr. Adam H. Dickey to the Board of Directors in Boston, in which you speak of not asking for the resignation of all three of the trustees. At that time had that subject been discussed between you and your fellow members? A. I had received—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment—when? Since the very friendly interview of Dec. 22, with the memory of which he went away to the south—do you mean since that time?

The Master—What was the date of the exhibit to which you referred?

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter was written on the 11th of January.

Mr. Whipple—Now you have asked something about whether this had been the subject matter of an interview. You have just introduced evidence that the last time he was in Boston he had a very friendly interview and a full understanding with Mr. Eustace.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am asking him as to the facts of the case, Mr. Whipple.

The Master—The question comes to this, doesn't it: Had there been any discussion about the subject referred to with your fellow directors prior to Jan. 11, 1919?

Mr. Whipple—At any time.

The Master—That is what it amounts to, isn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—At any time, certainly.

The Witness—I was informed by letter—

Mr. Whipple—No, pardon me a moment. The question is whether there had been any discussion with you?

The Master—Get the discussion first if there was any.

The Witness—No verbal discussion with me.

Q. Then this letter of Jan. 11, 1919, was based on a letter which you received? A. It was.

Q. After you left Boston? A. Yes.

Q. On Dec. 23? A. I left on Dec. 22.

Q. You left on Sunday, Dec. 22, 1918? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Another letter was written from Savannah, Georgia, on Jan. 14, 1919, which has been introduced in evidence as Exhibit No. 247, and I call your attention to this sentence in that letter:

"Perhaps if the directors were to order one or more of their cards removed from the Journal they would refuse to consent and dispute the authority of the board, thereby furnishing an additional cause for their removal."

As bearing on that, Mr. Rowlands and Mr. Eustace and Mr. Ogden all have cards in the Journal as Christian Science practitioners? A. They do.

Q. And under the Church Manual the board has the right to order the cards removed for cause? A. That is a duty imposed on the board.

Q. What did you mean by that statement, Mr. Dickey, or what explanation have you to make in respect to—

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment. Isn't that as plain and explicit as human language can make it? How can an explanation add to it or detract from it?

Mr. Krauthoff—The difference, if Your Honor please, between Mr. Whipple and myself in that respect is this: Mr. Whipple claims that no cause existed for the removal of the cards of his clients from the Journal, and that the defendants were using this as a threat and a menace to the plaintiffs. I desire to show by this witness what he intended by that and on what that statement was based.

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, we have not claimed at all that this was a threat or a menace, because it was not called to our attention until it was put in evidence here.

The Master—How could it be if they didn't know about it?

Mr. Whipple—We brought it out first showing the machinations that were going on of which we had no knowledge—justifying certain statements in our bill in equity.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, and we offer to show that this was not a machination.

Mr. Whipple—It was not a machination?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—I find it very difficult to see how what is said there can need explanation. The meaning seems to be entirely clear and plain.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, the question that I desire to put to Mr. Dickey is this: was that statement based upon the belief of Mr. Dickey that grounds existed, independent of any question arising under the Deed of Trust—that grounds existed for the removal of the cards of these plaintiffs from the Journal. Whether he was doing that in the discharge of his duty as a director, in good faith, because their cards should have been removed, or whether he was doing it as a threat and a menace or machination, as Mr. Whipple calls it. As I understand it, if Your Honor please—

The Master—I do not quite understand how you can put in Mr. Dickey's evidence to his own belief.

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, as I understand, where a man's good faith is attacked he has the right to show what he said and what he thought, and why he did a certain thing. Not as being conclusive upon the subject, but as being illuminating on the subject. And where a man makes a statement that is capable of two constructions, one reflecting upon his good faith and one not reflecting upon his good faith, he has the right to show that he did make it in good faith and the purpose for which he did make it.

The Master—I do not see where the two constructions are possible in regard to that thing. It is too plain to admit of more than one construction, is it not?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I don't think so, if Your Honor please. Mr. Whipple claims that it is open to the construction that Mr. Dickey was saying to the plaintiff in this case, "If you fail to do what we demand of you, whether we demand it rightly or wrongly, we will take your cards and take them out of the Journal." And the explanation—

The Master—Nothing of that kind has yet appeared. This is a mere communication, as I understand it, from Mr. Dickey to his fellow directors.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Not communicated at the time to the trustees.

Mr. Krauthoff—But I understand the claim of Mr. Whipple, running all through his bill, is that, notwithstanding that these plaintiffs had taken legal advice as to their duties as trustees, notwithstanding that they were seeking to discharge their duties under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the defendants, by virtue of their great authority and power as the directors, in withholding licenses and making appointments, to use the language of the bill, were in some way trying to terrorize the plaintiffs into submission to the will of the directors and—

The Master—I think that we will wait until we get some reason to believe that that was communicated to the trustees.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

The Master—In some form or shape.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer in evidence the record of the directors of Thursday, Jan. 23, 1919.

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Krauthoff, you mentioned a moment ago a letter from the directors to Mr. Dickey, on which he bases the change of attitude displayed in these two letters as compared with the love feast which he said had taken place just before his departure. Was it your plan to produce that letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall locate it and—

Mr. Whipple—I did not know but you had examined the files and found out what did justify that change.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have not seen that letter, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—You have not seen it?

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

Mr. Whipple—I did not know but you had overlooked it, and if you had overlooked it I wanted it to go in now.

The Master—Would it not be better to go on?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor. I did not know but what he had it now.

The Master—Mr. Krauthoff says that he has not got it now.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will not at this time, if Your Honor please, read the intervening record of the directors in Mr. Dickey's absence from the city, reserving that for a later date, unless the master believes that chronologically I should now read it, in which case I should be very glad to read it now, and present it chronologically.

The Master—What are we now on? Are we still on the practice, the course of conduct, and acquiescence?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, the course of conduct and the engendering of the controversy.

The Master—I think that we can hardly consider the transactions after the controversy had become acute as showing a course of conduct or acquiescence.

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

The Master—The records of those transactions are important, if at all, as showing what the history of the controversy was.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. We have now come to the point where we are not so—

The Master—What is the preference of counsel about having those records go in now, or letting Mr. Krauthoff reserve them for the present?

Mr. Streeter—I have, Your Honor, a very clear idea on that point. I may be wrong. We are putting in records that we think bear on the case, and there will be hundreds of pages of testimony, and if Mr. Krauthoff does not put in all the records of the directors from Jan. 1 to March 17, when this gentleman and his associates relieved Mr. Dittmore and expelled him—if Mr. Krauthoff does not read them now, they will have to be read again; if he reads part of them now, then we shall have to pick out the part that he has not read; and it will be better for Your Honor, I think, and better for everybody, if Mr. Krauthoff will begin Jan. 1, and read into this record all the records of the directors that bear upon this controversy.

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be very glad to do that.

Mr. Streeter—That is the way it seems to me. I do not know how—

Mr. Whipple—So far as I am concerned, if Your Honor please, if we can have the parts of the record which Mr. Krauthoff wants to put in put in now, and not have them all repeated again when he gets another witness on the stand—

Mr. Streeter—That is right.

Mr. Whipple—I quite agree that it would be better to have them go in now. But if it merely means that when he gets another witness on the stand he is going to ask him the same questions and review those meetings again, it will be better to wait until that director comes. What do you say, Mr. Krauthoff—do you want—

Mr. Bates—I submit, Your Honor, that inasmuch as this is our first witness, the remarks of Mr. Whipple are entirely out of place.

The Master—It will be necessary, will it not, for us to look ahead a little and see if we cannot reduce this record to the smallest compass?

Mr. Bates—I do not object to that, Your Honor, but the intimation or insinuation that Mr. Krauthoff is going over this several times with different directors, when this is the first director that we have put in the stand—

Mr. Whipple—This is your first director that you have had on the stand, but you have had the secretary and assistant secretary, and you put in quite a mass of records through them.

The Master—My suggestion would be that counsel should go over the records and see if there is not a part of them at least which all would agree to omit, and that then everything should be read, beginning with Jan. 1, if that is the date which either counsel desires.

Mr. Whipple—I am perfectly willing that Mr. Krauthoff should read, if we thus got the records in from Jan. 1, all that he thinks are material to the controversy; and that is what General Streeter suggested; but any records that relate to outside matters—

Mr. Streeter—All that anybody thinks is material is what I suggested.

Mr. Whipple—I know; but Mr. Krauthoff is no mind reader, and he does not know what others think is material; so let him read first what he thinks is material, and then if there is something more that others think is material, let us have that read.

The Master—Read all that Mr. Whipple or General Streeter or Mr. Thompson desires.

Mr. Streeter—We have such notes that we can tell when he reads whether he is reading all that we think is material.

The Master—Will there be any objection, then, to this course, that Mr. Krauthoff may proceed and read the records during that period, with the understanding that he is reading them all, and then if counsel can agree to omit any of them, have them then omitted? Will that do?

Mr. Bates—Does Your Honor mean to read the entire records, or only such portions of them as are material and have any bearing on the case? I think, according to my recollection, that there is a world of entries there that have nothing whatever to do with the case in any way.

Mr. Streeter—We do not want those read. All that we want read are those which bear upon some branch of the case.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think that I can do that, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Now, that comes down pretty nearly to my suggestion, at least as I intended it, that counsel should go over the records and agree what parts are not material, and the rest should be read.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think that I can pick them out, if Your Honor please, without any trouble. I will begin with Dec. 26, 1918—

The Master—Pause a moment. Let us clearly understand that we are adopting that course with the consent of everybody. Is that satisfactory?

Mr. Whipple—Perfectly satisfactory to us.

Mr. Thompson—Does Your Honor mean that we should outside of these hearings go over these records and pick out the ones that we think are material, or that we should do it now during the progress of the hearing?

The Master—My suggestion was that you should do it outside; but Mr. Krauthoff thinks that he can do it now.

Mr. Thompson—I thought that Your Honor meant to do it outside.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think that I can pick them out now.

Mr. Thompson—What is it that you are going to do now?

Mr. Krauthoff—Read what happened between Dec. 26 and Jan. 21.

The Master—I thought that your first suggestion was to begin reading the record of Jan. 1.

Mr. Krauthoff—The reason I said Dec. 26 was that I had stopped with Mr. Dickey on Dec. 23, and here is an incident on Dec. 26. I think I can do it very quickly if I may just go ahead.

The Master—In order to be sure that we shall not get into further confusion about this matter, I want a distinct understanding now what it is that you are going to do, and that it is with the consent of counsel.

Mr. Krauthoff—I propose, if Your Honor please, with the consent of counsel, and subject to Your Honor's direction, to read the records of the directors from Dec. 23, 1918, to Jan. 21, 1919, being the period of Mr. Dickey's absence from Boston, on the incidents that bear on the controversy between the trustees and the directors.

The Master—Now, if you do that, you will not read the whole record just as it stands: you will read certain parts of it, exercising your judgment.

Mr. Krauthoff—If on any day I omit anything that—

The Master—Pause one moment, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg Your Honor's pardon.

The Master—Now, it is suggested by General Streeter and Mr. Thompson that you may omit something that they will want.

Mr. Streeter—May what?

The Master—That he will omit something which you will want read.

Mr. Streeter—We will call his attention to it right at the moment.

The Master—Very good. Now, it is understood that if that should prove to be the case, General Streeter, and Mr. Thompson will call your attention to it at the moment—is that right, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—And that you will then read what they want, if you have omitted it—is that right?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—And Mr. Whipple has no objection to that course?

Mr. Whipple—No, sir.

The Master—Now, perhaps we have got a working agreement under which we can get these records in with the least possible loss of time. Let us try.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

Mr. Bates—Let me make this one suggestion, so as to make sure that the agreement is complete. I think that General Streeter and Mr. Thompson wish those parts of the record read which pertain also to the Dittemore case.

Mr. Streeter—Surely.

The Master—Oh, yes.

Mr. Bates—Well, I think that Mr. Krauthoff did not understand it that way. I want him to read those also.

Mr. Krauthoff—Do you mean at this time?

Mr. Bates—Yes, at this time.

The Master—What more do you want?

Mr. Bates—Mr. Krauthoff made a remark that led me to think that he did not understand it that way.

The Master—Oh, of course that is desirable. It is difficult to get an understanding of this kind complete. Is your understanding now clear, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, I understand it. I am reminded that on Dec. 22, 1918, I omitted one paragraph.

The Master—Do not get back too far.

Mr. Krauthoff—It was also decided to call in for a friendly conference, Editor William P. McKenzie and Business Manager John R. Watts, and at that time to hand each of them a letter to be prepared by Judge Clifford P. Smith, indicating the board's desire that any important or unusual action should be taken by either of them in the course of their official work, only after they have made sure that it has this board's approval.

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Dec. 22, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read is Exhibit 605. R. H. J.]

Mr. Streeter—Now, Mr. Krauthoff, in the record of that same meeting there was a vote with reference to sending to the trustees the legal opinions.

Mr. Krauthoff—I read that.

Mr. Streeter—Then you do not need to read it again.

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday, Dec. 23, 1918.

"Judge Smith submitted and the board edited and approved a proposed letter to Editor William P. McKenzie of The Christian Science Publishing Society, with respect to any unusual or important actions in the course of his work as editor. . . .

"The directors had an interview with Editor William P. McKenzie, editor of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and handed him the letter referred to above."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Dec. 23, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 606. R. H. J.]

Tuesday, Dec. 24, 1918:

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to refer to Editor William P. McKenzie for editing and publishing in the Christian Science Sentinel, the letter from — regarding the work of —, a Christian Science chaplain in the American Army. . . .

"Mr. Rathvon was requested to prepare and submit, for publication in the Sentinel, a notice from the directors regarding the various funds of The Mother Church. . . .

"Letters were read from the following: . . .

"The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, Dec. 17, requesting the correspondence in the — case before replying to his inquiry regarding the reinsertion of his card as practitioner and teacher in The Christian Science Journal. Reply indicated. . . .

"The Christian Science Publishing

Society, dated Boston, Dec. 17, requesting correspondence between — in connection with her request for the reinsertion of her card in the Journal. . . .

"The directors had an interview with Attorney Edwin A. Krauthoff, with further reference to the relationship between The Mother Church and the Publishing Society."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors, dated Dec. 24, 1918, from which the foregoing is read, is Exhibit 607. R. H. J.]

Dec. 26, 1918:

"A letter was read from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Dec. 24, in reply to the directors' two letters of Dec. 20, and reiterating and reaffirming their position as stated in the trustees' letter to the board of Sept. 30 and subsequent letters."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Dec. 26, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 608. R. H. J.]

That letter has heretofore been read in evidence.

The Master—What exhibit?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not know.

Mr. Streeter—Why don't you go right along with your records, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Whipple—The Judge asked a question.

Mr. Streeter—I beg Your Honor's pardon.

Mr. Krauthoff—On the same date (Dec. 26, 1918):

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, in connection with the situation between the directors and the trustees. Judge Smith was requested to prepare and submit proposed letter to the trustees, offering to exchange or to submit opinions of counsel."

Dec. 30, 1918:

"Judge Clifford P. Smith, manager of committees on publication, dated Boston, Dec. 23, submitted proposed letters to all teachers of Christian Science and to The Christian Science Publishing Society, about the change in date of beginning the teaching year."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Dec. 30, 1918, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 609. R. H. J.]

Mr. Krauthoff—"Jan. 2"—

Mr. Streeter—Wait a moment. There is another record there with reference to the letter from Hon. Mrs. Frances Porter.

[Mr. Krauthoff reads from the directors' records, Dec. 30, 1918, an extract which is offered in evidence as Exhibit 610.]

"Letters were read from the following:

"Hon. Mrs. Frances Porter, dated Dublin, Ireland, Dec. 7, informing the board that she is about to teach her class and proposes to bring out her views on the subject of the one Mind, which are at variance with her understanding of the subject as presented by Judge Smith to the college class. Letter to be referred to Judge Smith for reply."

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 2, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 611, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The directors had an interview with Business Manager John R. Watts of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

Mr. Streeter—No, no; you must have a record there about a motion of Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, the Comforts Forwarding Committee?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right.

[Mr. Krauthoff reads an extract from the directors' records, Jan. 2, 1919, which is offered in evidence as Exhibit 612.]

"On motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted that the Comforts Forwarding Committee at once have the clothing contributed for refugee relief abroad all turned over to such of the established relief organizations as are prepared to give it prompt transportation and distribution to those in need."

[An extract from directors' records, Jan. 3, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 613, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The chairman announced that the meeting was called to consider the proposed letter prepared by Judge Clifford P. Smith in reply to a communication from a Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Dec. 31.

"After a brief discussion Judge Smith was called in for consultation and after he retired from the meeting, and after further careful consideration of the situation, the corresponding secretary was instructed to send the letter as drafted with changes indicated."

Mr. Krauthoff—That letter has been introduced in evidence as Exhibit 18. I have also located the letter of the trustees of Dec. 31, 1918, and that has been introduced in evidence as Exhibit 17.

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 7, 1918, is introduced in evidence as Exhibit 614, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith with reference to the situation existing between the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and The Christian Science Board of Directors."

Mr. Streeter—Is that all?

Mr. Krauthoff—No; there is a reference in the record to an attorney who is not now in the case.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, I want you to read the record without making any discussion about it, please.

Mr. Thompson—We don't want comments on it; go ahead and read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Is that the one you want, General? (Showing records to Mr. Streeter.)

Mr. Streeter—Yes, "Mr. Neal reported," etc.

[Mr. Krauthoff also reads the following extract from the record of Jan. 7, 1919, Exhibit 614.]

"Mr. Neal reported that he had received a telephone inquiry from Attorney Charles F. Choate, Jr., saying that the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society had asked him for an opinion on their Trust Deed, and after consulting with Messrs. Dittmore, Merritt, and Rathvon, who were all agreeable to the proposition, Mr. Neal, in the presence of the other directors told Mr. Choate over the telephone to go ahead. Mr. Neal reported also a second telephone communication from Mr. Choate, advising that the trustees had asked him if he would be in a position to act as their attorney in court in the event of the case going to trial. Under the circumstances the directors deemed it advisable not to release Mr. Choate's services and Judge Clifford P. Smith was authorized to prepare a letter to Mr. Choate which would serve as a retainer, requesting him to act as counsel together with Attorneys John L. Bates and Leon M. Abbott.

"Judge Smith was requested to confer with Attorneys Choate, Bates, and Abbott, and to arrange for an interview with the directors on Wednesday, Jan. 8."

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 8, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 614-A, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The corresponding secretary submitted and the board approved proposed letters as follows:

"To Mr. Herbert W. Eustace, in reply to his letter taking exception to the action of the directors in changing the date of beginning the teaching year."

Mr. Krauthoff—"January 9—"

Mr. Streeter—Isn't there another record there, of an interview with Messrs. Smith, Choate and Bates?

[Mr. Krauthoff reads the following additional extract from the record of Jan. 8, 1919, Exhibit 614-A:]

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, and later Attorneys Charles F. Choate, Jr., John L. Bates and Leon M. Abbott entered the conference and full discussion ensued regarding the situation now existing between The Christian Science Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 9, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 615, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Mr. Dittmore filed in writing his views relative to the proposed conference by Attorneys Charles F. Choate, Jr., with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

Mr. Krauthoff—Do you desire at this time to put those views in as a part of the record?

Mr. Streeter—No. It seems to me, if Your Honor please, that it would be better to go right on through, keep these records together, and then go back and put in what he desires to refer to. I don't care, but it looks as though it would be better to put those in in a block, but if it is desired to break in by putting in the references to letters referred to, I don't care.

Mr. Krauthoff—I prefer to put them in at one time; I was merely asking your preference.

Mr. Streeter—Well, what does Your Honor think about it?

The Master—What course have we followed so far in regard to that?

Mr. Krauthoff—We have not followed any definite course; we have introduced the letters as we came to them sometimes, and sometimes when—

The Master—And sometimes not?

Mr. Krauthoff—Sometimes not.

Mr. Streeter—Well, it is suggested that if those letters were put in that are referred to in the January 9th record, it would take the whole story together—keep the story together—and on reflection and suggestion I do not object to those letters being put in now, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right.

Mr. Streeter—Right in connection with this record.

Mr. Krauthoff—This is the memorandum of Mr. Dittmore of Jan. 9, 1919.

[A memorandum prepared by Mr. Dittmore, dated Boston, Massachusetts, Jan. 9, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 616, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Boston, Massachusetts,
January 9, 1919.

"It is to be assumed that Mr. Choate, under his present employment, will confer with the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society as the representative of the directors, and that his effort will be to negotiate a compromise as the method of preventing mortal mind's threat of 'a big lawsuit,' unless Principle appears to come under the rod wielded by arrogance and worldly policy. The accomplishment of such an end would in no way be a solution of the problem. To patch up, smooth over, and make things look all right on the top, is not Principle. The most distinguished lawyer on earth has no power undervived from Principle. Nothing is 'big' but God.

"J. V. DITTMORE."

Q. In connection, Mr. Dickey, with this memorandum of Mr. Dittmore, just read in evidence, did you give any instructions of any kind to Mr. Choate with respect to a compromise of the relations between the trustees and the directors? A. None whatever.

Mr. Streeter—Aren't you going to read in the other one?

Mr. Krauthoff—They were duplicates of each other, weren't they?

Mr. Bates—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—They were duplicates.

Mr. Bates—It sounds good, but I don't think we ought to hear it twice.

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 11, 1919—

Mr. Streeter—Jan. 10.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, yes, Jan. 10, 1919.

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 10, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 617, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Upon the recommendation of Mr. Harsch, and on motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, it was voted to send Assistant Manager Wallace to France as quickly as he can obtain transportation with instructions to define to Mr. Norledge and others, the board's position relative to the war relief work, to send home such of the workers who want to return to America, and to do whatever else is necessary to be done after consultation by cable with this board."

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 11, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 618, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Judge Clifford P. Smith, at whose instance the meeting was called, was present and communicated to the board certain information which had just reached him relative to the situation between the trustees of the Publishing Society and the Board of Directors.

"A letter was read from Attorney Leon M. Abbott, dated Boston, Jan. 10."

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 13, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 619, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"A letter was read from Director Adam H. Dickey, dated Savannah, Georgia, Jan. 11, recommending that we proceed slowly in the situation now existing between the directors and trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and recommending that one trustee be dismissed rather than ask for the resignation of all of the trustees."

Mr. Streeter—Anything more?

[Mr. Krauthoff also reads the following extract from the records of Jan. 13, 1919, Exhibit 619:]

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, who reported an extended interview with Attorneys Bates and Abbott, relative to the situation existing between the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and The Christian Science Board of Directors."

Mr. Krauthoff—That is all I know of, General.

Mr. Streeter—It is what you omitted.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon. That is the second instance in the record that I haven't got to it.

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 14, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 620, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Letters were read from the following:

"Director Adam H. Dickey, dated Savannah, Georgia, Jan. 10, recommending that the new clothing collected by the Comforts Forwarding Committee be sent to France as originally planned."

Mr. Krauthoff—Is there anything about the clubhouse in Pasadena, California, that is important?

Mr. Streeter—No.

[Mr. Krauthoff continues reading from the records of Jan. 14, 1919:]

"Letters were read from the following:

"Judge Clifford P. Smith, manager of Committee on Publication, dated Boston, Dec. 21, in further reference to the recent custom of publishing Monitor editorials as paid advertisements in circular newspapers.

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith and Attorney Edwin A. Krauthoff of Washington, District of Columbia, with reference to developments in the situation between the directors and the Board of Trustees."

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 16, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 622, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Letters were read from the following:

"Director Adam H. Dickey, two letters dated Savannah, Georgia, Jan. 14, with reference to the situation between the trustees of the Publishing Society and the Board of Directors.

"The corresponding secretary submitted the names of contributors to the Christian Science periodicals heretofore disapproved and was instructed to ask the editorial department, that upon receipt of an acceptable article from any person whose name has heretofore been disapproved, to resubmit the name of the contributor to the directors."

Mr. Streeter—Are you going to put in those letters of Dickey's?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I will as soon as I locate them; I haven't them in my hands at present.

Mr. Thompson—It would be a good thing to put them in, as you call it, chronologically.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, it would if I had them. I will when I have them at hand. I am now being called upon to read records that I have not checked up, if Your Honor please, for I haven't everything immediately at hand.

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 17, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 623, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff as follows:]

"The Chair announced the purpose of the meeting to be for receiving and considering recommendations from counsel in connection with the situation now existing between the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"Attorneys Clifford P. Smith and Edwin A. Krauthoff appeared before the board and, after discussing the situation, on motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, and by unanimous vote of the members present, The Christian Science Board of Directors instructed the corresponding secretary for this board to request the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society to collect and furnish to this Board of Directors as soon as possible the papers and information described as follows:

"1. Copies of all blanks and forms used by The Christian Science Publishing Society at any time since the 1st of January, 1918, in its correspondence with persons or organizations applying, or signifying an intention or desire to apply, for cards or advertisements in The Christian Science Journal, the official organ of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. This request covers blanks and forms, including forms used for composing letters, pertaining to correspondence with persons or organizations applying, or signifying an intention or desire to apply, for any kind of a card or advertisement in said periodical.

"2. A complete list of the persons who applied in the year 1918 to The Christian Science Publishing Society for practitioners' cards in The Christian Science Journal, or signified in said year their intention or desire to make such an application, and whose applications The Christian Science Publishing Society did not accept, together with the reasons in each instance for not accepting the same.

"3. A complete list of the organizations or groups of Christian Scientists which applied to The Christian Science Publishing Society in the year 1918 for advertisements in The Christian Science Journal as branch churches or societies, or signified in that year their intention or desire to make such an application, and whose applications The Christian Science Publishing Society did not accept, together with the reasons in each instance for not accepting the same."

"Letters were read from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Jan. 14, 1908, and in reply to the directors' letter of Jan. 18, 1908, also dated April 25, 1905, and letters from the directors to the trustees dated Jan. 18, Jan. 19 and Jan. 25, 1908."

Mr. Krauthoff—I will look those letters up at the intermission, if Your Honor please.

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 20, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 624, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Letters were read from the following:

"Mr. William P. McKenzie, editor, dated Boston, Jan. 20, relative to his editorial, 'Things Not Expedient,' in the Sentinel for Jan. 25, and its application to the situation now existing between the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and the directors of The Mother Church.

"Miss Etta V. Friend, dated New York City, Jan. 2, and Myron Fabricant, dated New York City, Jan. 3, inquiring as to which periodicals are the organs of The Mother Church. Queries and proposed reply to be submitted to Judge Smith."

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 21, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 625, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Letters were read from the following:

"Mr. William P. McKenzie, editor, The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Jan. 20, with reference to his editorial, 'Things Not Expedient,' in the Christian Science Sentinel for Jan. 25."

Mr. Whipple—May I suggest that you do not put that in twice? That was read, and then Mr. Krauthoff went back and reread it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, I beg your pardon; it was read on two different dates.

Mr. Whipple—No; Jan. 21; and then you went back and read something about Jan. 20.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon. The record shows that it was read on Jan. 20 and read also on Jan. 21. I am quite willing that one of the meetings shall be omitted. I was trying to keep my promise, that was all. Now I have got up to Jan. 22, 1919.

Mr. Streeter—Not quite.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon.

Mr. Streeter—You have a record under date of Jan. 21 of a letter from Mr. Norwood, haven't you?

Mr. Krauthoff—Of the Finance Committee?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 21, 1919:

"Letters were read from the following:

"Attorney C. Augustus Norwood, dated Boston, Jan. 20, advising that a member of the Committee on Finance had raised the question of the advisability of having that committee approve contracts. Reply indicated."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Jan. 21, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 626.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 23, 1919—

Mr. Streeter—Anything about the twenty-second?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I had read that, I thought.

Mr. Streeter—I don't know of anything that you read on Jan. 22.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, I beg your pardon, General, I called attention to the fact that on Jan. 22, 1919, there was adopted by the board the motions which have heretofore been introduced in evidence by Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Streeter—Suppose you find something else in the record which you think bears on this.

The Master—Can you identify that now by the exhibit number? It might be convenient.

Mr. Krauthoff—I did at the time.

The Master—You did at the time? Very good.

Mr. Thompson—It is a very small part of it. Why not start in and read Jan. 22 about Mr. Strickler and Mr. Young?

Mr. Krauthoff—Wednesday, Jan. 22, 1919:

"Three of the members of the board reported conversations with Mr. Virgil O. Strickler in which he stated that he had a long interview with Mr. Bicknell Young in the course of which Mr. Strickler alleged that Mr. Young made some unusual statements criticizing the government of The Mother Church, and it was decided to have an interview with Mr. Young immediately. A letter was read from Mr. Bicknell Young, First Reader of The Mother Church, dated Boston, Jan. 21, 1919, offering his services in arranging a meeting between the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"The directors had an interview with Mr. Bicknell Young, First Reader of The Mother Church.

"The directors had an interview with attorneys, Clifford P. Smith, Edwin A. Krauthoff, ex-Governor John L. Bates and Mr. Leon M. Abbott, with respect to the situation existing between the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and The Christian Science Board of Directors."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Jan. 22, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 627.]

Mr. Krauthoff—And then follow resolutions which have heretofore been offered in evidence.

Mr. Thompson—Both Mr. Neal's and Mr. Dittmore's? Both of them?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, they were offered in evidence by the plaintiffs.

"The directors had an interview with Manager Paul A. Harsch, Assistant Manager Arthur J. Wallace of the Christian Science War Relief Committee, and Judge Clifford P. Smith, with regard to the Camp Welfare Work being done by our workers in France.

"The proposed letter to the Board of Trustees of the Seventh Church of Christ, Scientist, of New York City, with respect to a circular published by them, entitled 'The Church By-Laws,' read, edited and approved.

"A letter was read from Mr. Josiah E. Fernald, dated Concord, New Hampshire, Jan. 16, with reference to the sale of Pleasant View. Reply indicated."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated Jan. 22,

1919, as just read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as a part of Exhibit 627.]

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, in justice to Mr. Bicknell Young, at this time we want the record to show that at the proper time Mr. Young will be offered as a witness.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, well, don't try to argue it now; go ahead and put in the records.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not making any argument, if Your Honor please; I am making a statement, which, when completed, General Streeter can move to strike out if he wants to. And that is that at the proper time Mr. Bicknell Young will be offered as a witness to state his version of what occurred with respect to these matters of which Mr. Strickler spoke.

Mr. Thompson—That ought to be struck out, and any similar comments, which break up the continuity of the record.

Mr. Krauthoff—I make that statement, if Your Honor please, because this testimony is read daily by hundreds of thousands of people who accept everything as fully proved by a statement read from the Board of Directors' records.

Mr. Streeter — Well, that may not always be so, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 23, 1919:

"A reply was indicated to Mr. Bicknell Young's letter of Jan. 21, offering to arrange a meeting between the directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society.

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, who submitted for consideration and adoption a resolution with respect to certain bequests to be made of the trustees of the Publishing Society for information regarding applications of certain individuals for practitioners' cards in the Journal, Der Herold, and Le Hérait.

"On motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Merritt, The Christian Science Board of Directors by unanimous vote adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society be and hereby is requested to send a copy of the correspondence between The Christian Science Publishing Society and Mrs. Louise M. Norledge of Paris, France, and William H. Norledge of Paris, France, concerning their applications for cards as Christian Science practitioners in Le Hérait de Christian Science, and a copy of correspondence between The Christian Science Publishing Society and Albert F. Gilmore and Robert S. Ross of New York City, and Mrs. Emily Householder of Kansas City or Boston, concerning their applications for cards as Christian Science practitioners in The Christian Science Journal, with a statement of the reasons in each case why these persons have not been allowed to have such advertisements in said periodical.

"Resolved further That the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society be and hereby is requested to send to The Christian Science Board of Directors a list of the names and addresses of persons who applied during 1918 for cards as Christian Science practitioners in Der Herold der Christian Science, or signified to The Christian Science Publishing Society during 1918 a desire or intention to make such applications, whose applications for such advertisement have not been accepted, with a statement of the reasons in each case why said persons have not been allowed such advertisement in said periodical.

"Resolved further That the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society be and hereby is requested to send to The Christian Science Board of Directors a list of the names and addresses of persons who applied at any time before the first of January, 1919, for cards as Christian Science practitioners in Le Hérait de Christian Science or signified to The Christian Science Publishing Society at any time before the first of January, 1919, a desire or intention to make such applications, whose applications for such advertisement have not been accepted."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Jan. 23, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 628.]

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, with respect to this resolution referring to the case of Mr. and Mrs. Norledge of Paris, France, what was the situation at that time?

The Master—You may wait one minute, Mr. Dickey. I understand now you have covered the ground up to Jan. 21, 1919, being the time during which Mr. Dickey was absent.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Now, are we to assume that he was present at the meeting of Jan. 22? I do not think you read anything to show that he was.

Mr. Streeter—Let me ask, if it would not be—I beg your pardon.

The Master—One moment.

Mr. Krauthoff—The record recites the presence of Mr. Dickey on Jan. 22, 1919.

The Master—I suppose it would be better to have it in the record, wouldn't it, that he was present, inasmuch as we have been dealing for a little time with a period when he was absent?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, that is right, if Your Honor please. Mr. Dickey attended the meeting of the Board of Directors on Dec. 22, 1918, and was continuously absent, including Jan. 21, 1919, and present on Jan. 22, 1919.

The Master—Thank you; that answers my question. Now we will see what General Streeter has to say.

Mr. Streeter—I was going to suggest that it would be much more convenient for everybody reading this record—for the counsel, it seems to me, and for everybody else—if Mr. Krauthoff would now continue to put in these records en bloc up to March 17, so far as they relate to these matters, and if he does not put them in, we shall have to put them in later. Isn't that agreeable, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is now half-past eleven, if Your Honor please.

The Master—I see that, but before we take the recess let us see what is to be said on General Streeter's proposition.

Mr. Krauthoff—I would like to take the advice of counsel on that.

Mr. Streeter—Well, it does not really matter, except for convenience. If you do not put in those records from Jan. 21 to March 17, we shall have to, and they will be in in another place. It is only a question of the place in the record.

The Master—After Mr. Krauthoff has had his conference perhaps they will agree with you.

Mr. Streeter—I think they will. If you talk with Governor Bates—he is a very agreeable gentleman, and he will do things about right.

The Master—Let me now say that as we are now covering a period during which the records disclose rather the history of the present controversy when it became acute than show any course of conduct or acquiescence, such as I thought they might be capable of showing prior to that time, it seems to me that it would be convenient to follow the course suggested by General Streeter. Whether it would be desirable to follow it against anybody's objection would be another question, of course. We will wait until Mr. Krauthoff has had the opportunity for his conference and will stop a few minutes for that purpose.

[Recess.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, with respect to the request of General Streeter, or rather the suggestion of General Streeter, that from this time on I read both that which occurred with respect to the controversy between the trustees and the directors and the controversy that was then pending between Mr. Dittmore and the directors, I find myself in this situation: In preparing my material, I prepared it in logical order with respect to the incidents between the trustees and the directors. To read this record without at the same time examining Mr. Dickey with respect to it would mean that I would have to go back to it and recall the record to him. To read it and attempt to examine him at this time would ever and anon take us on an excursion of such length that I fear that before we returned to the port of our departure we would have forgotten where it was that we started from. And so I would prefer to continue now to examine Mr. Dickey with respect to what happened between the trustees and the directors up to and including March 17, 1919, and then we will take up the Dittmore incidents in the order.

Mr. Streeter—Now, if Your Honor please, there is not anything in this record with reference to Dittmore incidents that is not related to the trustees' incidents. Here is a record from Jan. 21 to March 17, a little less than two months, and these directors have put upon their records a story about what they were doing. Some of them—most of them—relate to the whole controversy between the trustees and the directors and Dittmore's attitude. Now, those records have got to be read—I say that they have got to be read—they have got to be read by somebody; we cannot compel Mr. Krauthoff to read them. But if he reads a portion of those records in this place, then we have got at a later time and in another place to read the balance of them. If he would go right through them without stopping to talk and explain about them, and get them into the record in a block, I am sure that it will save a lot of time and be mighty convenient to everybody, and I will help him in this respect:— You go on and read the records that you have got your mind on, Mr. Krauthoff, and if you omit anything I will call your attention to it so that you can read anything else right in.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, thank you, General, for the intimation that I am expected to read only that which bears on the controversy between the directors and the trustees. I now come to a record about a sale of some yarn, which I understand does not relate to the trustees and the directors.

Mr. Streeter—What is the date of that?

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 23, 1919. And I will—

Mr. Streeter—I have not asked you to say anything about that.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I gathered from your request the other day—

Mr. Streeter—If you will read from your record of Jan. 23 what you want, I will call attention in a word to anything else that I want.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have read the resolution of the directors with respect to certain information requested by the directors of the trustees.

Mr. Streeter—I know it. Have you read all from the record of the meeting of Jan. 23 that you want?

Mr. Krauthoff—And upon that I desire to examine Mr. Dickey, and then I will state whether there is anything more there that I—

Mr. Streeter—To that I object.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon?

Mr. Streeter—I object to your reading a piece of that record and then stopping to make an examination. I suggest that this record here be put in in a block, and then you can go back and ask Mr. Dickey anything that you want to.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right. We will try to work it out that way.

Now, on Jan. 23, 1919, General, is there anything?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, there is a record there about Judge Smith presenting letters from Mr. Bicknell Young.

Mr. Krauthoff—Judge Smith presented the following letters which were read to the board:

"From Mr. Bicknell Young to Mr. Virgil O. Strickler, dated Boston, Jan. 18.

"From Mr. Virgil O. Strickler to Mr. Bicknell Young, dated New York City, Jan. 22.

"From Mr. Virgil O. Strickler to Judge Clifford P. Smith, dated New York City, Jan. 22."

Mr. Streeter—That is all we want. Mr. Krauthoff—

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to have copies made of the three above-described letters.

"At this point Mr. Dittmore left the meeting."

[The foregoing extracts from the record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 23, 1919, are Exhibit 629. R. H. J.]

Jan. 24, 1919:

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, who stated that Attorney Sherman L. Whipple, as one of counsel for the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society had called on Mr. John L. Bates yesterday afternoon to propose a conference between counsel for the two boards this afternoon.

"On motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Merritt—"

I understand, if Your Honor please, that I may recur to these records in the examination of the witness.

Mr. Streeter—I assumed that. I assumed that everybody, Your Honor, would refer to these records. The purpose of this is to get them in here in a block, where we can all refer to them.

The Master—Very well.

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 24, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 630. R. H. J.]

Mr. Krauthoff—This is from the meeting of Jan. 24, 1919:

"On motion of Mr. Neal, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted that the board call for interviews, either singly or in groups, Messrs. John R. Watts, William P. McKenzie, W. D. McCrackan, and Oscar L. Stevens, and that they shall be interviewed this noon, or as soon as possible thereafter."

Mr. Streeter—Mr. McKenzie requested the release of the article.

Mr. Krauthoff—Do you wish that read at this time?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"Mr. McKenzie requested release of the article from The Independent Statesman of Dec. 26, 1918, describing the Pyramid memorial erected by Mr. James F. Lord, marking the alleged birthplace of Mary Baker Eddy on the Mark Baker homestead, said article having been set up for republication in the Sentinel for Feb. 8, and proofs sent to the directors on Jan. 27. Mr. Merritt moved and Mr. Dickey seconded the motion that the article be not run. A roll call resulted in the following vote:

Mr. Dittmore, No
Mr. Dickey, Aye
Mr. Merritt, Aye
Mr. Neal, Not voting
Mr. Rathvon, Not voting

Mr. Rathvon gave as his reason for not voting that this is a matter which antedated his admission to the board and about which he did not feel well enough posted to vote intelligently. Mr. Merritt then moved and Mr. Dickey seconded a motion to lay the question on the table for some future reference. A roll call resulted in the following vote:

Mr. Dittmore, No
Mr. Merritt, Yes
Mr. Neal, Not voting
Mr. Rathvon, Not voting
Mr. Dickey, Yes

The chair announced that the motion was carried and instructed the corresponding secretary to notify Mr. McKenzie that consideration of publication of the article had been postponed."

Mr. Streeter—Now there is a record about a letter of Mr. Dittmore of Jan. 24, re method of discipline.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"A letter was read from Mr. Dittmore, dated Jan. 24, 1919, expressing his views with regard to the charges against —, to be considered at this time."

Mr. Streeter—Now, have you that letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will undertake to have it here at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Streeter—Haven't you got it right there, so that you can put it in in connection with this record?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, if Your Honor please, I do not think that it is quite fair to me to ask me to produce a letter and read it in evidence that I have never had an opportunity up to this time of reading myself.

The Master—I think that you are entitled to a reasonable time to get the letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith regarding a conference in session today between himself and Attorneys Krauthoff, Bates, and Abbott, with reference to the pending conference between counsel for both boards tomorrow.

"While Judge Smith was with the directors, Mr. John R. Watts, business manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, also came before the board, and a general discussion ensued.

"Mr. Watts read a letter from the New York representative of The Christian Science Monitor, dated Jan. 24, 1919, to Mr. Watts about certain statements alleged to have been made by one of the directors in New York City about the circulation and management of The Monitor. Copies to be made for the directors. . . .

"A letter was read from Editor William P. McKenzie, dated Boston, Jan. 23, in formal acknowledgment of the board's letter to him of Dec. 23, 1918, which had previously been acknowledged verbally.

"The directors had an interview with Editor William P. McKenzie with regard to his work and also respecting the situation now existing between the trustees and the directors."

Mr. Streeter—Anything about the directors' considering Judge Smith's letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—

"A letter was read from Judge Clifford P. Smith, dated Boston, Jan. 24, proposing two substitutions to his proposed letter to the Hon. Mrs. Porter of Dublin, Ireland, of Jan. 6, in reply to her letter to him of Dec. 6, 1918. Judge Smith's letter was approved and the corresponding secretary was instructed to acknowledge receipt of Mrs. Porter's letter to the board of Dec. 7 and advise her that Judge Smith's reply had the sanction and approval of the board."

Jan. 25, 1919. I assume that this, having been called up once, has become important. Jan. 25, 1919:

"The directors held a joint conference with the following named gentlemen who arrived a few moments apart and in the following order—Mr. Virgil O. Strickler of the Board of Lectureship, Mr. William P. McKenzie, editor of the Christian Science periodicals, and Mr. Bicknell Young, First Reader of The Mother Church."

Mr. Streeter—That is all that we call for. You may put in anything that you want to.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to ask the editor of The Christian Science Monitor to give some publicity to the forthcoming Boston Y. M. C. A. drive for funds."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 25, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 631. R. H. J.]

Monday, Jan. 27, 1919:

"The directors had an interview with Attorneys Clifford P. Smith and Edwin A. Krauthoff, who reported on the conference held Saturday, Jan. 25, between Attorneys John L. Bates, Leon M. Abbott, Clifford P. Smith and Edwin A. Krauthoff representing The Christian Science Board of Directors, and Sherman L. Whipple, Esq., representing the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society. While Judge Smith and Mr. Krauthoff were present, the following letters were read to the board and counsel—From Editor William P. McKenzie to Mr. Herbert W. Eustace, dated Jan. 23, 1919, and Mr. Eustace's reply to Mr. McKenzie, dated Jan. 24, 1919. Also a letter from Mr. William P. McKenzie to The Christian Science

Board of Directors, dated Boston, Jan. 27, stating his position with regard to the situation now existing between this board and the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

"After counsel retired Mr. Dittmore presented the following letters, which were read to the board.

"Dated Boston, Jan. 27, to Mr. Paul Harvey, in reply to his letter to Mr. Watts, which was read to the directors on Jan. 24.

"Dated Boston, Jan. 24, to The Christian Science Board of Directors about the pro-English attitude of The Christian Science Monitor and the need for a conference with the acting editor and his assistants to inaugurate a change of policy.

"Dated Boston, Jan. 27, with regard to the attitude of Mr. Bicknell Young, First Reader of The Mother Church in the present situation confronting the directors."

Now, this is the discipline case that Mr. Dittmore filed his views about a few minutes ago:

"On motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, it was voted to dispose of the charges against _____ as follows: that no formal discipline shall ensue but that Mr. _____ have his case reviewed and that he be told in a letter that his course of action during the next year will determine whether or not the case will be reopened. . . .

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to write a letter to The Christian Science Publishing Society asking what is the present day circulation of each of the Christian Science publications and in the case of The Christian Science Monitor, please divide the figures, so that individual paid subscriptions and free distribution copies and any other special classes be separate.

"Letters were read from Mr. William P. McKenzie dated Boston, Jan. 27, indicating a slight change in his earlier letter of even date, also a copy of his letter of today to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society transmitting to them a copy of his letter to the directors referred to above."

Mr. Streeter—Have you a record of interviews there?

Mr. Krauthoff—The record of Jan. 27, 1919, continues:

"The directors had an interview with Mr. Bicknell Young, First Reader of The Mother Church.

"The directors had an interview with Mr. John R. Watts, business manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 27, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 632. R. H. J.]

Jan. 28, 1919:

"The directors had an interview with Editor William P. McKenzie. . . .

"The directors had an interview with Associate Editor William D. McCrackan. . . .

"The directors had an interview with Mr. Oscar L. Stevens, assistant to the editor of The Christian Science Monitor."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Jan. 28, 1919, from which the foregoing extracts are read, is Exhibit 633. R. H. J.]

These interviews were all with the directors.

Mr. Streeter—Anything about a letter from Mr. Watts?

Mr. Krauthoff—I thought I had read that.

Mr. Streeter—No.

Mr. Strawn—Isn't there a memorandum in that dated Jan. 26 indicating the receipt of a letter from Mr. Watts stating his position in the premises?

Mr. Streeter—That is the 28th.

Mr. Krauthoff—I haven't come to Jan. 28.

Mr. Streeter—I meant the 27th. No—you are reading Jan. 28.

Mr. Krauthoff—I had not begun Jan. 28; I have been asked a lot of questions.

Mr. Streeter—What you have read about the interviews with various people was on the 28th.

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me; but three different people were asking me questions at the same time. On Jan. 28, 1919, I have read three interviews by the directors, with Editor William P. McKenzie, Editor William D. McCrackan, and Oscar L. Stevens, editor of The Christian Science Monitor.

[Mr. Krauthoff continues reading from the records of Jan. 28, 1919:]

"A letter was read from Mr. John R. Watts, business manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, Jan. 28, stating his position in the present situation between the directors and the trustees.

"The directors had an interview with Mr. John J. Flynn, assistant to the editor of The Christian Science Monitor.

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to address a personal letter to Mr. Charles D. Warner, of Washington, D. C., and say that the directors would like to see him in Boston for a little conference."

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 29, 1919. Here is a record I want to submit to Mr. Whipple before I read it—the third paragraph of that. (Handing record to counsel.)

Mr. Streeter—Of course you will read it.

Mr. Whipple—It seems to be perfectly perfunctory. What is the idea?

Mr. Streeter—Well, of course you read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, it has been asked for by General Streeter and so I will offer it.

[An extract from directors' records, Jan. 29, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 634, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The corresponding secretary reported word from Mr. Elisha B. Seeley, assistant to the editor of The Christian Science Publishing Society, that the forms for the March, 1919, Journal had been released this morning without the changes requested by the directors.

"Proposed letters were submitted to and approved by the directors as follows:

"To Myron Fabricant and Mrs. Etta V. Friend of New York City respectively in reply to their inquiries as to which periodicals are the organs of our movement.

"The directors had interviews in the following order with Forrest Price, assistant to the editor of The Christian Science Monitor, and Mr. Paul S. Deland, city editor of The Christian Science Monitor."

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 30, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 635, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"A letter was read from Mr. W. D. McCrackan, dated Jan. 30, acknowledging The Christian Science Board of Directors as the directing power of the Christian Science organization. After reading a letter dated Jan. 27, 1919, from Attorneys Charles E. Hughes, Silas H. Strawn and Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, addressed to John L. Bates, et al., counsel for the Board of Directors, copies of which had been furnished to the respective directors a conference was held with Attorneys Clifford P. Smith and Edwin A. Krauthoff in connection with the immediate establishment of a department of The Mother Church to care for the detail of applications for Journal cards of branch organizations, practitioners and nurses, which heretofore have been accepted or rejected by the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

Mr. Krauthoff—What is the next one of that date that you want?

Mr. Streeter—A letter from Mr. McCrackan.

[Mr. Krauthoff continues reading from the records of Jan. 30, 1919, as follows:]

"Mr. W. D. McCrackan, dated Dec. 28, about writing a history of Mary Baker Eddy and from Mr. Adam H. Dickey, dated Savannah, Georgia, Jan. 8, about Mr. McCrackan's request. Reply to Mr. McCrackan's letter was indicated—that the directors after due consideration had taken the position that they cannot consistently authorize nor prohibit the writing of the history

Mr. Streeter—The letter from Mrs. Longyear.

[Mr. Krauthoff continues reading from the records of Jan. 30, 1919, as follows:]

"Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear, dated Pasadena, California, Jan. 8, offering to present to The Mother Church two lots near The Mother Church under certain restrictions. Reply indicated."

Mr. Krauthoff—Is there anything else on that date?

Mr. Streeter—No, sir.

[An extract from the directors' records, Jan. 31, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 636, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The directors had a conference with Mr. Charles D. Warner of Washington, District of Columbia, who came to Boston at the directors' request.

"The directors had an interview with Mr. Elisha B. Seeley, assistant to the editor of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

[An extract from the directors' records, Feb. 1, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 637, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The corresponding secretary submitted and the board approved proposed letters as follows:

"To Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear in reply to her tender of a gift of two lots near The Mother Church.

"To Mr. William D. McCrackan in reply to his inquiry about writing a history of Mrs. Eddy."

"To Attorney C. Augustus Norwood about advising the Publishing Society concerning members of The Mother Church against whom charges have been made.

"The corresponding secretary read a memorandum concerning the need of procuring from the Publishing Society the dates of the various editions of the Manual.

"Letters were read from the following:

"Attorney C. Augustus Norwood, dated Boston, Jan. 15, about the personal property of The Christian Science Publishing Society being exempt from taxation.

"Judge Clifford P. Smith, dated Boston, Jan. 21, inclosing copies of correspondence between him and former publisher of Mrs. Eddy's works, Allison V. Stewart, concerning a supplementary deed of trust to the trustees of the Publishing Society.

"Judge Smith met with the directors to report the progress of a joint conference between counsel representing The Christian Science Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society. After a thorough discussion of the situation, Mr. Dittmore prepared a written statement expressing his views, which was read to the board. The following motion was offered by Mr. Dickey, seconded by Mr. Neal, and carried, viz.: In ratification of the agreement proposed by counsel, I move that we accept the concession made by the trustees and that we await further developments. Mr. Dittmore did not vote, stating that his reasons for not doing so were set forth in the above-mentioned communication."

Mr. Streeter—Have you got the communication right there? It ought to go in right here, at this point.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

[Memorandum prepared by Mr. Dittmore, Feb. 1, 1919, "The Only Position," is offered in evidence as Exhibit

638, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

[Exhibit 638].

"The Only Position

"Feb. 1, 1919,
"3 p. m.

"A complete and unequivocal recognition of the unity of The Church of Christ, Scientist, and its government by The Mother Church By-Laws as established by Mrs. Eddy, interpreted according to their letter and spirit.

"A complete abandonment by the trustees of their contentions in regard to the Publishing Society being independent in any way of the general direction of the established Christian Science Church government as set forth in the correspondence of the trustees and the statement of their counsel.

"J. V. DITTEMORE."

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, that statement, if Your Honor please, that I have referred to in this record, is the agreement that the board ratified on this date, Feb. 1, 1919; it is the one that is set out in the letter of John L. Bates and others to Mr. Strawn, which has been marked Exhibit 23, being the result of the conference of counsel on Feb. 1, 1919.

[An extract from the directors' records, Feb. 3, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 639, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"At a regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors, held at 9:30 a. m. on above date, in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon.

"The minutes of the regular meetings of Jan. 28 and 30 and of the special meetings of Jan. 29 and Feb. 1, were read and approved, with changes indicated.

"Two letters were read from Mr. Dittmore, both dated Feb. 3, 1919, one with reference to the failure of Mr. Bicknell Young, First Reader of The Mother Church, to send the board a letter 'confirming his verbal assertions of loyalty to the Church By-Laws and the constituted government of The Mother Church,' also his failure to do his duty as First Reader of The Mother Church as demanded by Mr. Dittmore in his letter to the board of Jan. 27, the other letter setting forth his reasons why he could not participate in the conference between the Board of Directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society, as arranged by counsel for the respective boards, to be held at 11 o'clock today."

Mr. Streeter—Now will you put that letter in? That letter should come right there.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think these are the ones. (Showing letters to counsel.) The first letter is the letter of Mr. Dittmore of Jan. 27, 1919.

The Master—Do I understand, General Streeter, that you want them all?

Mr. Streeter—What?

The Master—Do I understand that you want all these letters? Can't we get along with less than all of them?

Mr. Thompson—There are only two, Your Honor.

Mr. Streeter—There are only two of them. What I particularly called for was in connection with this record, that Mr. Dittmore gave his reasons why he could not participate at a joint meeting at 11 o'clock that day, and, those reasons being referred to right in this place, they properly come here.

The Master—That would seem to call for only one of the letters.

Mr. Streeter—Then the other was regarding the failure of Bicknell Young, which is a part of the record, Your Honor.

The Master—Do you want that, too?

Mr. Streeter—Yes—those two.

The Master—You have got to have that in full also?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

[A letter from Mr. Dittmore to the Board of Directors, Feb. 3, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 640, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

[Exhibit 640]

“February 3, 1919.

“The Christian Science Board of Directors,

“105 Falmouth Street,

“Boston, Massachusetts.

“Dear Friends:

“On Jan. 9, Mr. Jarvis read to the board a memorandum filed by me on the subject of attempting to negotiate a compromise through lawyers, with the present efforts of disloyalty and disruption in connection with The Christian Science Publishing Society.

“What has now occurred is what seemed then in prospect, judging from the course which was decided upon and which has been pursued. Nothing has ever happened in the history of the cause of Christian Science which to my thought is farther removed from the demand of Principle and the spirit of our Church By-Laws, especially Article I, Section 9, which I now again call to the attention of the board, than the result and recommendation of the conference of the lawyers representing the trustees and the directors, for a compromise and for the directors to proceed even for a moment on the present intolerable basis. The course in prospect will in no way whatever solve the problem.

“Mrs. Eddy's words on page 41 of ‘The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany,’ seem to have been written for this occasion:

“‘Christian Science makes no compromise with evil, sin, wrong, or imperfection, but maintains the perfect standard of truth and righteousness and joy.’

“After the most earnest and prayerful thought, I have reached the conviction that I dare not and will not enter into personal negotiations with the Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society on the present existing basis. I shall therefore ask the other three directors to excuse me from their conference with the trustees which the lawyers have arranged for 11 o'clock today.

“Very sincerely,

“JOHN V. DITTEMORE.”

Mr. Streeter—Now, Your Honor, with reference to the other letter, about Bicknell Young, we do not care whether it is in or not; it may be read or it may not be read.

Mr. Krauthoff—At this time, then, we shall not read it, until the incidents in that respect are brought together.

Mr. Whipple—May we take it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, Mr. Whipple is asking for it; it is not a letter that refers to the trustees at all.

The Master—I didn't hear Mr. Whipple's request, it was not made directly to me.

Mr. Krauthoff—I said, Mr. Whipple said, may he take it. We are not offering it.

Mr. Streeter—In view of the fact, Mr. Krauthoff, that it is a part of the record here, I will withdraw my statement and ask you to read it in connection with this.

The Master—Might it not be that if you let him see it we could contrive some way of omitting it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will be very glad to submit it to Mr. Whipple if it is proper to do so. I had not felt, on the spur of the moment, that all of our correspondence was open to everybody.

Mr. Streeter—Well, this is a sunlight investigation, and there isn't anything that I know of in connection with this matter that is not open.

The Master—I am not at the present moment quite able to see why we should have all the evidence relating to the incident.

Mr. Whipple—By the way, as you have a moment, have you found those letters that Mr. Dickey said were sent to him which produced that apparent change of attitude? I merely don't want to overlook them. I am afraid you may if I do not remind you.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not at present advised of those letters, Mr. Whipple. I shall have to ask Mr. Dickey to which letters he referred, and I will have them here at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Whipple—You mean you are not advised that there are any?

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not say that. I said I am not advised as to the particular letters to which Mr. Dickey referred and I will have them at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Bates—This is a letter of Mr. Dittmore's. I don't see any reason why it should not go in if General Streeter wants it.

The Master—Unless counsel can get together some way in which that may be admitted, I suppose it will have to be read.

Mr. Streeter—As a matter of fact, I do not care whether it goes in or not, but if anybody wants to put it in we are perfectly willing.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have no desire to read it at this time, and the only hesitancy I had in showing it to Mr. Whipple is that it is a letter from Mr. Dittmore to the board, and General Streeter can show it to Mr. Whipple if he wishes to.

Mr. Streeter—I have no particular desire to show it to Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, Mr. Dittmore may hand it over.

Mr. Streeter—Or he either.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, he certainly wouldn't do it without their consent, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Streeter—Well, if you want to see it, Mr. Whipple, you can have it.

Mr. Whipple—Thank you.

Mr. Streeter—And anybody else can see it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday, Feb. 3, 1919. Taking up the record where it read. At 11 a. m. Mr. Dittmore left the meeting.

“The directors had a conference with Messrs. Herbert W. Eustace, David B. Ogden, and Lamont Rowlands, the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society. Mr. Rathvon read a letter addressed jointly to the directors and to the trustees, expressing his sentiments, and after touching briefly on some of the points involved in the recent situation, it was agreed that hereafter the trustees would meet with the directors weekly at 12 o'clock, noon, on Mondays in the board room of The Mother Church.

“After the trustees had retired, and at 12:30 p. m., Mr. Dittmore returned to the meeting.

“A letter was read from Col. F. A. Bangs of Chicago, dated Jan. 27, together with copy of a letter addressed by him to Herbert W. Eustace, Lamont Rowlands, and David B. Ogden as trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society.”

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 3, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 641.]

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, I think I would like to have this letter of Feb. 3, from Mr. Dittmore to the Board of Directors read as an exhibit in the case, because we think that it sustains our position that if anyone sympathized at all with the Board of Trustees they were subjected to or threatened with a discipline which made it impossible, as a practical matter, for anyone to stand by the trustees, even if they sympathized with their position. What will be the number of that exhibit?

Mr. Krauthoff—Just one moment.

Mr. Whipple—We would like it in the trustees' case.

Mr. Krauthoff—This letter of Mr. Rathvon, if Your Honor please, of Feb. 3, 1919, referred to in the minutes of Feb. 3, 1919, has heretofore been offered in evidence as Exhibit No. 24.

This letter of Feb. 3, 1919, that I am now coming to about Mr. Bicknell Young—

The Master—It is the other of Mr. Dittmore's letters? You offered two. Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, the other. Mr. Whipple has stated the reasons why he wants it read in evidence. It was sufficient to state he wanted it. The letter, Your Honor will remember, is a letter from Mr. Dittmore complaining to the board that they were not doing certain things.

Mr. Streeter—Why not read the letter and let that state what it is instead of trying to tell yourself?

The Master—Well, how can I forbid Mr. Krauthoff making a brief statement about that letter, I having listened to Mr. Whipple's statement about it?

Mr. Streeter—Oh, he ought to have a chance to reply to Mr. Whipple, of course. I beg Your Honor's pardon. I do not want to interfere with their quarrels.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was only going to say that at this time it is not entirely clear whether Mr. Whipple complains that we did not discipline Mr. Bicknell Young or whether he complains that we did discipline him.

Mr. Whipple—Do you want me to make that clear?

The Master—Isn't that enough about that; can't we read the letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—I think so.

[Copy of Exhibit 642.]

"John V. Dittmore, C. S. B., 236 Huntington Avenue, Boston, U. S. A.

"Feb. 3, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors, 105 Falmouth Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"A full week has passed since our last interview with Mr. Bicknell Young. The letter which he was to write this board at once confirming his verbal assertions of loyalty to the Church By-Laws and the constituted government of The Mother Church, has not been received. Neither has there been any evidence of his having fulfilled his duty as First Reader as that duty was set forth in my letter to the board of Jan. 27, and as presented to Mr. Young in person by the chairman of the board.

"This board cannot permit this instance of flagrant disloyalty to go unheeded. The By-Laws of the Mother Church will not permit it, to say nothing of doing justice to Mr. Strickler and others for their loyal stand for The Mother Church, and for what this board should exemplify in connection with the matter.

"There were enough facts admitted by Mr. Young to require further action to be taken, entirely aside from the points in dispute or the demeanor of Mr. Young in connection with the whole matter. Among these facts are the following:

"1. That the First Reader of The Mother Church invited a lecturer to his home after a lecture in The Mother Church—the home which Mrs. Eddy's loving generosity had provided—and that in a bedroom apart from the household and guests, for an hour and a half, he unfolded to this lecturer the position of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society in their rebellion against Mrs. Eddy's church government, predicated on the statement that 'This is a time when we are getting a new and different view of things.' It was definitely stated by both men that Mr. Young presented the trustees' claims and that no other subject was discussed.

"2. That Mr. Strickler branded the trustees' attack as a repetition of the New York case of 10 years ago, only in a somewhat different and more dangerous form, and that he combated Mr. Young's statements point by point up to the time when the conversation became so loud and heated that Mrs. Strickler came and called her husband to go home. That to the end Mr. Young defended the trustees in the face of Mr. Strickler's declaration that the whole effort was not only the betrayal of a sacred trust, but was moral idiocy.

"3. That every member of this board has expressed the conviction that Mr. Young has been guilty of gross disloyalty and has been an active agent of this propaganda to destroy Mrs. Eddy's government of The Mother Church.

"It is long past time for Mr. Young to be required to give unquestionable evidence of his alleged change of heart and for him to do his duty as First Reader of The Mother Church under the Manual he is charged with enforcing. I hereby call to the attention of the board, Mrs. Eddy's requirement in our church By-Laws covering a case of this kind.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

[Letter, Mr. Dittmore to Board of Directors, Feb. 3, 1919, is marked Exhibit 642.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 4, 1919:

"A letter was read from the Comforts Forwarding Committee, dated Boston, Feb. 3, asking three questions of minor importance, to which replies were indicated.

"Proposed reply to Col. F. A. Bangs' letter to the directors of Jan. 27, was read, edited, and approved."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 4, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 642.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 5, 1919: In connection with this record of Feb. 5, 1919, the record shows that Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon were present.

"On motion of Mr. Merritt, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, it was voted to designate the new department to be established by The Mother Church for consideration of applications for recognition as branch churches or societies, practitioners and nurses, who desire to have cards published in The Christian Science Journal, as The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Department of Branches and Practitioners, and the corresponding secretary was instructed to order appropriate stationery accordingly."

Mr. Streeter—Is there anything on page 264 about a letter from Judge Clifford P. Smith?

Mr. Krauthoff (continuing reading)—

"Letters were read from the following: Judge Clifford P. Smith, dated Boston, Feb. 5, presenting certain facts disclosed by the letters from the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and their legal counsel, regarding which the directors may wish the trustees to definitely declare themselves."

That is the letter which has been offered in evidence by the plaintiffs as Exhibit 25.

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, dated Feb. 5, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 644.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Was there anything else on that date, General?

Mr. Streeter—No.

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 6, 1919:

"On motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Dittmore, it was voted that we ask the opinion of counsel as to the legality of the trustees paying attorneys' fees to counsel in the present situation from the funds they have in their hands.

"Letters were read from the following: Mr. John J. Flynn, an editorial writer of the staff of The Christian Science Monitor, dated Boston, Feb. 5, giving his reasons for declining to write editorial notes reflecting upon newspapers which publish items from The Christian Science Monitor without properly accrediting them.

"Mr. Charles D. Warner, in charge of the Washington, D. C., news bureau of The Christian Science Monitor, relating to his work. Disposition indicated."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 6, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 645.]

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please. Mr. Krauthoff omitted in the record of Feb. 5 a reference to himself, which we regard as significant only as indicating that the directors at that time had themselves supposed that a settlement had been reached that did not require the services longer of litigating counsel.

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be very glad to read that, if Your Honor please, with the understanding that I may ask one question with it. This is Feb. 5, 1919:

"The directors had an interview with Attorney Edwin A. Krauthoff, which resulted in the termination of his services as associate counsel for the directors in the situation between the directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 5, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as a part of Exhibit 644.]

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, as written, that record carries the idea that something happened in that interview which resulted in Mr. Krauthoff's services being terminated. What is the exact fact with respect to that? A. There was nothing in the interview which led to a termination of Mr. Krauthoff's services, but we had—shall I say it?

Q. Yes. A. We had supposed that our difficulties were in a fair way of solution, or had been entirely solved, on the promise of the trustees that they would go ahead and absolutely obey the Christian Science Manual in connection with the Deed of Trust, and that they would uphold and support and sustain Mrs. Eddy's form of church government as set forth in the Manual.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, I desire that part of the answer which is a speech, which the witness takes occasion to attach to a response to a question, be stricken out.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if Mr. Whipple will indicate when the speech began, so that—

Mr. Whipple—Well, it is a little difficult. It is an ingenious attachment of a speech to the field in answer to a question, and it is not always easy to know just where it begins, but you always know when it is there.

The Master—Well, can it amount to anything more than this, that they supposed they had got to a compromise? Isn't that the whole thing? What else can there be in it?

Mr. Whipple—That I understood to be a reply, and the witness might well have stopped the answer there. That is what I understood as I rose to my feet. I stated that we asked to have it put in merely because we believed it indicated that the directors themselves supposed that the matters had been adjusted.

Mr. Krauthoff—And that may be accepted as true.

Mr. Whipple—Well, then, may the answer be stricken from the record?

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

Mr. Bates—No, no.

Mr. Whipple—I desire to have it.

Mr. Krauthoff—There is a part of the answer in which I have a personal interest, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—That part of it which says that the termination of the services of Mr. Krauthoff as litigating counsel was not on account of anything said in the interview should properly stand, in justice to Mr. Krauthoff. Apparently the counsel who had been secured as litigating counsel, for litigating purposes, was not longer thought necessary.

The Master—I think that, strictly speaking, a part of the answer may be regarded as improper. But is it worth while to stop to distinguish in a case like that, where it is not an unnatural statement for the witness to make under the circumstances?

Mr. Whipple—In view of Your Honor's intimation as to the character of the answer, I am willing that nothing more should be done about it. Except that I notice that there is sort of a tendency to do it, and I think if the answer were stricken out that we would prevent the tendency, and therefore prevent the achievement, and therefore we should have less of it and less reason for interruption.

Mr. Krauthoff—With respect to that, if Your Honor please—

The Master—Can't we let the matter stand now where it is?

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well.

Mr. Streeter—I want to make a suggestion. Mr. Krauthoff, representing as he says, the Board of Directors, admits and says that they understood on Feb. 3 that there had been a compromise.

Mr. Krauthoff—I didn't say that.

Mr. Streeter—Well, that is the substance of your admission.

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I didn't say that.

Mr. Streeter—And I want to say for Mr. Dittmore that he did not understand that there had been any compromise, or could be any compromise.

The Master—Does it seem to you possible that anybody could suppose anything different from that with regard to Mr. Dittmore?

Mr. Streeter—Well, I hope not. I am trying to have that appear very plainly.

Mr. Krauthoff—We believe in justice, not compromise.

Mr. Whipple—May I suggest further, in regard to that answer, because it troubles my associate—it is a complete contradiction of what the papers established was the fact—namely, that neither side yielded their claims in any way, but attempted to get along on a Christian Science basis. The documents show that, but still this witness, without anybody asking him, attempts to import the suggestion that the trustees had in some way yielded their views. With that statement on the record I am willing anything you want should stand.

The Master—Well, let it stand subject to your objection, and I hope that not only this witness but the other witnesses will do the best they can to answer the questions and then stop.

Mr. Streeter—Well, will Your Honor indulge me a single further suggestion? It may be that I made my statement in a way that would be misunderstood. Mr. Dittmore supposed from what they said, and from their sending out to the field, that they had made a compromise, and that is what he was most vigorously opposed to.

Mr. Krauthoff—In order that the record may be kept straight as we go along, if Your Honor please, Mr. Dittmore was not present at the conference of the directors and the trustees on Feb. 3, 1919.

The Master—I so understood it.

Mr. Thompson—It is all the more reason why there should be a record of what he thought about it.

Mr. Streeter—But, Your Honor, they dictated a letter to Bangs in which they stated that everything had been fixed up and that it was all sweet and serene and nice as could be.

The Master—We all understand, do we not, that that was a majority action?

Mr. Streeter—Well, I understand it.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is our understanding of it.

Feb. 7, 1919:

"The directors had an interview at his request with Mr. Frank H. Leonard of Chicago, at which he expressed his views, relative to the situation between the directors and the trustees."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 7, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 646.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday, Feb. 10, 1919:

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, with reference to the letters written by him to certain committees on publication about the situation existing between the trustees and the directors.

"On motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted that the memorandum of this day containing two points prepared and recommended by our counsel, be signed by all of the members of the board jointly with the trustees, as follows:"

Now, that memorandum has been offered in evidence as Exhibit 26a.

"A roll call on the motion resulting in the following vote:

Mr. Dittmore, not voting.

Mr. Dickey, Aye.

Mr. Merritt, Aye.

Mr. Rathvon, Aye.

"Mr. Dittmore explained that he had not voted for the motion 'because I decline to tie myself in advance on the matter because I hope that "In that hour it shall be given me what I shall say."'

"Judge Smith stated, 'I wish to offer two items of advice, each with equal strength if possible. One is that you get the written acceptance of these two points. The other is that you make no additional agreement which amount to a concession or compromise on this board's part.'

"Two letters were read from Mr. Dittmore, both dated Feb. 10, 1919—the first filing in writing his views as to the proper course for the Board of Directors to pursue in notifying the trustees and business manager of the Publishing Society that the Board of Directors will hold them strictly accountable for any misuse of the trust funds in their possession; the second letter expressing his views on the failure of any of the Christian Science periodicals to announce the completion of the pyramid memorial to Mary Baker Eddy, selected by Mr. James F. Lord at Bow, N. H.

"The directors had an interview with the three trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society lasting two hours."

[Those portions of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 10, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 647.]

Mr. Streeter—Now, right in that connection, those two letters of Mr. Dittimore's should go in.

Mr. Krauthoff—Both of these are very elaborate communications.

Mr. Streeter—Well, it was a very elaborate situation.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"Feb. 10, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"In accordance with my stated intention, I hereby file in writing the substance of the important question of a duty of the directors which I presented at the last board meeting.

"A responsible and able attorney who is a member of The Mother Church, Col. Frederick A. Bangs of Chicago, has rendered an opinion that payment by the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society of fees from the trust funds in their possession to three of the most eminent and expensive attorneys for services to assist these trustees in their efforts to circumvent the provisions of Mrs. Eddy's Deed of Trust and the Church By-Laws, constitutes a misappropriation of funds. This opinion is also strongly held by others.

"In view of the facts and in accordance with the requirements of the Church By-Laws, it would seem clearly to be the duty of The Christian Science Board of Directors to at once notify the three men who hold the offices of trustees of the Publishing Society, and also the business manager of the Publishing Society who disburses its funds, that this board will hold them strictly accountable for any misuse of the trust funds in their possession.

"Very sincerely,

"J. V. DITTEMORE."

[The letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 648. R. H. J.]

The second is in respect to the pyramid.

The Master—With respect to what?

Mr. Krauthoff—The pyramid that was built in New Hampshire.

"Feb. 10, 1919—"

The Master—Do counsel see any possibility of avoiding the putting in of a letter about that pyramid in extenso?

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be very glad to omit it. General Streeter asked for it.

Mr. Streeter—It was with reference to a memorial to Mrs. Eddy up in the home place where she was born, in Bow, near Concord. We do not care whether it is read or not. We shall be glad to have it read, because this was one of the differences of opinion between—pardon me, Your Honor—

The Master—Oh, certainly.

Mr. Streeter——between Mr. Dickey and Mr. Dittimore and others—that a memorial should be placed there. Now, this is one of those—

The Master—We know that there were a number of differences of opinion.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, Your Honor, yes.

The Master—When we know that fact, do we not have all that is necessary for the purposes of the case?

Mr. Streeter—Well, hardly. Perhaps that goes too far. When we get round to March 17, and Your Honor begins to inquire judicially, to put your judicial mind into operation as to whether Mr. Dittimore's opinions furnished a sufficient warrant in law for expelling him from the household, and, I may say, then appropriating his clothes, the question of these differences of opinion, and whether they are sound or not, will be a thing to be really considered by you. But, so far as this is concerned, we are not insistent upon it.

Mr. Bates—I think that Your Honor will get a better view of the situation if the letter goes in.

Mr. Krauthoff—We feel that it should be read in evidence.

Mr. Streeter—Well, then, go ahead.

Mr. Krauthoff—It was an unfolding to us—

The Master—As long as there is room for a fair difference of opinion, I do not see how the Court can be called on for any purpose in this case to say which had the best of it.

Mr. Streeter—I understand that to be so, Your Honor; but the question for Your Honor to determine, I suppose, when you get round to March 17, is whether this man could have an honest difference of opinion with my distinguished friend in the witness box without being subjected to being kicked out of the tabernacle.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

The Master—Now, that must depend entirely, must it not, upon the powers of his fellow directors with regard to dismissal?

Mr. Streeter—Partly. Pardon me.

The Master—Perhaps they had an absolute power, outright, of dismissal, without being obliged to give any reasons at all. That is a possibility.

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, that is precisely what they claim.

The Master—So I understand.

Mr. Streeter—That they had that power. We claim—

The Master—Now, the only question for us—

Mr. Streeter—We claim that, while they had the power, it was a power which could not be exercised capriciously, arbitrarily, or without sound reason and a sufficient reason in law. That is a statement in a general way of our contention.

The Master—I so understood it, and so supposed. I still do not see how the Court is going to be required to determine which had the best of the dispute.

Mr. Streeter—No; but Your Honor would determine whether the reasons given, after a scrutiny of the whole situation, were sufficient in law to warrant the dismissal.

The Master—If there was a serious difference of opinion, it may be that the power of Mr. Dittimore's co-directors was such that they had a right to act on that and nothing more, may it not?

Mr. Streeter—Well, that is the question. That is a question of law. As Judge Holmes says, it is a judicial question, not a question to be determined on the co-directors' temper or state of mind, but it is a judicial question, as stated by Judge Holmes. And as Mr. Thompson suggests, our claim is that an honest difference of opinion upon a debatable ground can never be a sufficient warrant for kicking a man off the board. But Your Honor does not want us to argue it now, I suppose.

The Master—I am glad to have that indication of the position you take in the matter, and I can be considering it. You may go on.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"Feb. 10, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:—

"On Jan. 24, 1919, Mr. McKenzie requested release of the article from 'The Independent Statesman' of Dec. 26, 1918, describing the memorial erected by Mr. James F. Lord marking the childhood home at Bow, New Hampshire, of Mrs. Eddy, this article having been set up for re-publication in the Sentinel for Feb. 8th and proofs sent to the directors on Jan. 23d. Mr. Merritt moved and Mr. Dickey seconded the motion, that the article be not run. A roll call resulted in the following vote:

"Mr. Dittimore, no.

"Mr. Dickey, aye.

"Mr. Merritt, aye.

"Mr. Neal, not voting.

"Mr. Rathvon, not voting.

Mr. Rathvon gave as his reason for not voting that this is a matter which antedated his admission to the board and about which he did not feel well enough posted to vote intelligently. Mr. Merritt then moved and Mr. Dickey seconded a motion to lay the question on the table for some future reference. A roll call resulted in the following vote:

- "Mr. Dittmore, no.
- "Mr. Merritt, yes.
- "Mr. Neal, not voting.
- "Mr. Rathvon, not voting.
- "Mr. Dickey, yes.

The Chair announced that the motion had carried and instructed the Corresponding Secretary to notify Mr. McKenzie that consideration of publication of the article had been postponed.

"This action was simply the plan adopted by Mr. Dickey and Mr. Merritt to prevent any account of this memorial from being published in the Christian Science periodicals and thereby given to the Christian Science field. I am firmly convinced that it has been under the constraint of divine Principle that within the last forty-eight hours the great avenues for news dissemination have been opened and have carried a complete story of the memorial at Bow throughout this country and probably to foreign lands, in spite of the fact that the Christian Science publications have ignored it.

"In order to gain a more comprehensive knowledge of the situation, it is necessary to refer back to a certain resolution prepared and presented by Mr. Dickey and seconded by Mr. Merritt, which was adopted by the board on Aug. 1, 1918 (I alone voting against it). This resolution was as follows:

"Whereas, this board has learned that Mr. James F. Lord has purchased the farm at Bow, New Hampshire, on which it is alleged Mrs. Eddy was born, and that he is planning to erect a monument on said farm to mark it as her childhood home;

"And whereas, the propriety of such an undertaking should be determined in accordance with what our Leader desired for herself and understood to be advantageous for the Cause of Christian Science;

"And whereas, this board has reason to believe and does believe that Mrs. Eddy would be opposed to the monument in question, and this board regards it as of no value to the Cause of Christian Science, but detrimental thereto;

"Therefore be it resolved, That this board's view of the proposed monument at Bow, as the same is stated in this resolution, be made known to Mr. Lord, and that he be requested to refrain from doing more than Mrs. Eddy has done to draw attention to the particular spot on the earth where she was humanly born."

"I filed with the board the following explanation of my vote against this resolution:

"In explanation of my vote against the adoption by this board of Mr. Dickey's motion in opposition to Mr. James F. Lord's plan to place a monument on the farm at Bow, New Hampshire, where Mrs. Eddy was born and where she spent her childhood, which farm is now owned by Mr. Lord, I wish to place the following statement on record:

"I voted against this resolution for reasons which include the following:

"1. I am convinced that Mr. Lord's plan is not detrimental to the cause of Christian Science, but of value to it.

"2. I have heard no reason which has seemed valid to me in confirming the contentions that Mrs. Eddy would be opposed to such a monument, but I am convinced that there is an abundance of evidence to indicate that she would not be opposed to it.

"3. I am unequivocally opposed to all efforts to control the actions of this board on any questions through personal opinions enforced by the claim that such opinions represent the views that Mrs. Eddy would take on such questions if she were personally with us—instead of ourselves going to Principle for our answers and our guidance, as her teachings in Science demand. A continuation of this constantly growing tendency will result in the government of the movement by tradition and dogmatic opinion instead of by demonstration, and it will ultimate in unadulterated ecclesiasticism.

"4. The action of the board constitutes a violation of the personal rights of an individual member of The Mother Church.

"5. Mrs. Eddy herself expected that the human affection of hundreds of thousands of her followers in future years would cause them to seek a knowledge of the place and conditions under which their wayshower spent her childhood as well as the remainder of her human life—an expectation which I am convinced she did not disapprove.

"6. There are certain other reasons more essential to the well-being of the cause of Christian Science than those above stated and which I shall present to the board in detail at a later date, as supplementary hereto, if circumstances make it appear necessary to do so."

"I also read to the directors at this time several statements by Mrs. Eddy, including her written approval of the sale of a picture of this place of her birth and her childhood home, and her prophecy that the time would come when hundreds of thousands would be interested in seeing it.

"This effort to prevent or discredit the erection of a memorial at Bow is in my opinion a part of the same claim which has manifested itself in so many ways during the past year and a half, including Mr. Merritt's resolution of June 26, 1918, adopted by the directors (I only voting against it), which undertook among other things to prevent the further collection of the rapidly disappearing personal testimony regarding the 'fadeless human footsteps' of the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science. This resolution also stated that it withdrew the privilege from Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear of gathering historical data regarding Mrs. Eddy 'in the name of Christian Science,' which it must be admitted constituted in the Christian Science Church quite an unprecedented assumption of ecclesiastical authority over individual freedom of action. Especially unfortunate does this seem when Mrs. Longyear has proven herself one of the most valuable of our members and one who has been the channel more than once for making possible important projects of The Mother Church. In The Christian Science Journal, Vol. XXIV, page 312, Mrs. Eddy's views of Mrs. Longyear's benefactions and usefulness are more clearly set forth than I could express them.

"In fact, the results of the adoption of this resolution constituted even a more far-reaching attempt than in trying to block Mr. Lord's expression of loving gratitude to the 'human herald' of this age by a worthy and appropriate memorial or in preventing Mrs. Longyear from erecting and presenting to The Mother Church a building to cost over half a million dollars for historical and other appropriate purposes.

"These things and many others, such as stopping Mr. Beauchamp's work of gathering historical data regarding Christian Science and personal reminiscences of Mrs. Eddy, the tendency to prevent the giving to the field of the great quantity of wonderful unpublished writings by Mrs. Eddy, etc., are all part of the same argument of mortal mind, the 'god of this world.' This argument in its many ramifications, has for its purpose the creation of a condition between humanity and its wayshower in this age which will be a repetition of the history of nineteen hundred years ago. Only as the world today can understand the human footsteps of Mrs. Eddy the woman, and comprehend her 'daily walk and conversation among the people' will it be possible to prevent a 'great gulf' from being formed as the years pass by, between the wayshower and the sick and suffering world which only the understanding and demonstration of her discovery will redeem. Unless this is accomplished, the world will witness darker ages than ever before, and 'churchianity' with personal deification of Mrs. Eddy and professional 'mediators' as of old will be the penalty for the blindness of today. Already the signs give warning to those who are willing to see and hear.

"These latter paragraphs may seem to be somewhat detached from the subject of the Bow Memorial, but they are intimately related to it, for it is all a part of the one paramount effort of evil, consciously or unconsciously, to fulfill the law that history must and shall repeat itself in this age in the Church of Christ, Scientist, as it did eighteen hundred years ago.

"It was not my intention to write this letter, but after two or three re-mindings by the chairman, for some reason which I do not quite understand, I am glad to reduce to writing for the directors this brief presentation of an almost inexhaustible subject.

"In view of the strenuous experience on the board during the past few days, it may not be amiss for me to add some reflections which I have had since our last meeting. Perhaps I have fallen into a too strenuous advocacy of the positions I have taken in regard to the vital matters which are now confronting this board, The Mother Church, and therefore the world. My zeal to prevent what I believe to be almost fatal decisions as to procedure has sometimes caused me to see too dimly that 'the battle is the Lord's' and that without human striving He will Himself 'overturn, overturn . . . until he come whose right it is' to reign. The best Christian Scientists on earth today can truly claim to have but a few qualities of thought, perhaps only one, which Principle can use in spite of their undesirable personal qualities. Mortal mind cannot be painted any blacker than it is. I see more clearly that I have no other responsibility than to stand fast in the abiding consciousness of that Truth which brings all things into the orbit of right action in Principle, and that I be always ready to go through any door which Mind opens toward the ultimate solution. I also see more clearly that I must be willing to 'let' the irresistible force of Principle annihilate all that would impose its will to obstruct or retard the bringing into view of the infinite, divine purpose which Mrs. Eddy discovered in Principle and sought to bring to earth under the type and symbol of the complete Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Very sincerely,

"JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

[The letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 649. R. H. J.]

May we take a recess at this time?
The Master—Until 2 o'clock.

[Recess until 2 o'clock p. m.]

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mr. Krauthoff—Before proceeding with the records, if Your Honor please, I have made a statement to Mr. Whipple about producing at this time the letter that Mr. Dickey received in Savannah, Georgia, in the early part of January, 1919, before he wrote the letters in which he referred to the resignation of the trustees.

Q. Mr. Dickey, did you get any letter in Savannah, Georgia, or on your southern trip, prior to Jan. 10, 1919, advising you of the action of the Board of Directors on Jan. 3, 1919—
A. I did.

Mr. Streeter—One moment. What was the question?

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not quite get through. I will re-state it.

Q. Did you get any letter while on your trip in the south, in the early part of January, 1919, and prior to Jan. 10, referring to the action of the Board of Directors in asking the resignation of the trustees on Jan. 3, 1919?

A. I did.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment; if you are putting in what is in the letter why not produce it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am going to explain that in just a moment.

Q. Just answer that yes or no.
A. Yes.

Q. Have you that letter, Mr. Dickey? A. No.

Q. Have you looked for it? A. Yes.

Q. And have not been able to find it? A. No.

Mr. Streeter—Haven't you your copy, Mr. Krauthoff, from your files?

Q. What kind of a letter was it, Mr. Dickey? A. I now believe it must have been a personal letter from some of the directors or from Mr. Jarvis, but I am not able to find it.

Mr. Krauthoff—We cannot find any copy of it in our file.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I should think you might hunt around among the directors, and Mr. Jarvis, and see if they remember of sending one; perhaps they have got a copy of it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am only telling you what Mr. Dickey knows.

Mr. Whipple—I see; you haven't got as far as that in your investigation yet about finding that letter.

The Master—The letter is not here and the witness cannot find it.

Mr. Whipple—I was indicating the possibility of further search, if Your Honor please, if the letter was important.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am obliged for Mr. Whipple's suggestion and I will follow the line of direction.

Mr. Whipple—That is right—always cordially given.

Mr. Krauthoff—"Monday, Feb. 17"—

Mr. Streeter—By the way, Mr. Krauthoff, under the record of Jan. 24, the record referred to a letter from Mr. Dittmore re method of discipline, and you were to have that here this afternoon and to put it in—to read it. I think you must have overlooked that.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will look and see if we have it.

Mr. Streeter—Here is a carbon copy of it you can use. I do not ask you to read the name of the party, of course.

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter of Mr. Dittmore to which Mr. Streeter has called my attention is as follows:

[Letter, Mr. Dittmore to the Board of Directors, Jan. 24, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 650, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff as follows:]

[Copy of Exhibit 650.]

"Jan. 24, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"Re discipline of (Blank) of (Blank).

"Mr. (Blank) appears to have been tried by this board on March 5, 1917, on nineteen different charges, including immorality, dishonesty, and various lesser offenses. It further appears that at the end of the hearing, the case was disposed of by the board taking Mr. (Blank's) card out of the Journal, telling him to 'go and sin no more,' and to reestablish himself in the confidence of the Christian Scientists of his community. We are now in the midst of considering Mr. (Blank's) case on evidence principally furnished by Mr. (Blank) of (Blank).

"My position is that no one under such circumstances should be tried a second time on the same or practically the same charges as those upon which he had once been tried and the case adjudicated, unless the alleged offenses were committed subsequent to the date of the first trial. In the present case I feel that the board should conduct the hearing on the evidence of misconduct presented in the usual form for such cases and shown to have been committed subsequent to the former trial on March 5, 1917.

"I stated the above view repeatedly to the board yesterday, and finally after over one hour of confused discussion and what appeared to be a determination to confuse the issue, I described the course of the chair in what seemed to me the most accurate and appropriate term, viz.: 'cuttle-fishing the issue.'

"I was not present at Mr. Blank's trial on March 5, 1917, and I have never met him. He may be shown to be deserving now of very strict and serious discipline, and if so, I am entirely in favor of rendering a decision in favor of such a disposition of the case. I am not in favor, however, of being swayed from a course of strict order and justice in this case because of impressions or because of the lengthy interview with the principal complaining witness before the person complained of has been seen by the board.

"I feel that my experience of yesterday requires me, as a matter of protection, to file this statement of what is and has been my position in regard to the just and proper method of handling this case and also to meet Mr. Dickey's expressed desire that there be a record made of my remark to him in regard to his method of handling the matter.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "J. V. DITTEMORE."

Mr. Krauthoff—In connection with that letter the record further recites:

[Exhibit 651.]

"At the request of Mr. Dickey, Mr. Neal took the chair and Mr. (the respondent) came before the board and was questioned at length as to certain of the charges recently presented through or by Mr. (the complaining witness). Mr. (the respondent) retired from the room and Mr. (the complaining witness) came before the directors to answer further questions as the result of the conference with Mr. (the respondent). Mr. (the respondent) was then called in and Mr. (the complaining witness) repeated some of the allegations made to the board against Mr. (the respondent's) character. Mr. (the respondent) answered these and after further questioning of them by the board members, both gentlemen left the room and were told they might return to (their homes). Further consideration of the case was then postponed."

Mr. Krauthoff—Can you tell, General, the date on which that case was disposed of?

Mr. Streeter—No, I cannot give it.

Mr. Thompson—What is the date of that letter, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—Jan. 24. I am not advised at present, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Streeter—There is a record on Jan. 27 about it. You read that, on Jan. 27: "Upon motion of Mr. Dittmore, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, voted, to dispose of the charges," etc.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right. Just so it is understood that that record of Jan. 27, 1919, referring to Mr. Blank is the same Mr. Blank in this other record.

Mr. Streeter—Well, it was.

[An extract from the directors' record, Feb. 17, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 651-A, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff as follows:]

"A letter was read from Mr. J. V. Dittmore, dated Boston, Feb. 17, reiterating his position in the situation now existing between the directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society."

Mr. Streeter—Shouldn't that go in here?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if we may see the letter.

The Master—If it is only reiteration, why do you want it in?

Mr. Streeter—I don't know—I don't know what it is.

Mr. Thompson—It is said not to be reiteration.

Mr. Streeter—No, it is not reiteration, I am very certain. I am told that it is not.

Mr. Thompson—That is a very important letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—We are desirous of reading it, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—I take it, if Your Honor please, that this intercommunication between the directors in no way affects the plaintiffs in the Eustace case, and of course if that be so, I can neither object nor withdraw anything.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, you will recall that counsel had had a conference on the first of February, and the trustees and the directors met on the 3d of February and the 10th of February. For some reason they did not meet on the 17th of February.

[Mr. Krauthoff proceeds to read the letter of Feb. 17, 1919, from Mr. Dittmore to the Board of Directors.]

The Master—Your remark was that they did not meet on the 17th?

Mr. Krauthoff—They did not meet for some reason on the 17th of February. They again met after that.

The Master—I thought you were just reading the record of the 17th.

Mr. Krauthoff—I did, but it does not recite any meeting between the directors and the trustees.

Mr. Thompson—The directors had a meeting on the 17th.

Mr. Krauthoff—The directors met on the 17th.

The Master—Oh, you mean no conference?

Mr. Krauthoff—No conference between the directors and trustees on that Monday.

[A letter from Mr. Dittmore to the Board of Directors, dated Feb. 17, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 652, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

[Copy of Exhibit 652]

"Feb. 17, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"Since it is still the purpose of the majority of the directors to pursue the course declared to the three trustees of the Publishing Society after their last outrageous exhibition of disloyalty to the Cause one week ago today, viz.: that 'we will work together and have our meetings and we won't be separated,' as Mr. Dickey stated it, or as the same sentiment was expressed by Mr. Rathvon when he said: 'We are going to have our weekly meetings, if I have anything to do with it, whether we are flying at each others' throats or not'—I must again protest against this calamitous course of action with all the earnestness of which I am capable.

"Although we bear the title which Mrs. Eddy gave to the offices we hold—The Christian Science Board of Directors—we are nevertheless in the eyes of the law and according to both the spirit and the letter of the Church By-Laws, trustees. We are not only trustees of very large property interests, but of far more importance is our trusteeship in the direction of a great 'public and religious charitable trust,' the Christian Science movement through the world.

"It was over five months ago, on Sept. 11, 1918, that the trustees of the Publishing Society, in conference with the directors, arrogantly declared the most outrageous doctrine of disloyalty and rebellion against the constituted authority of The Mother Church as established by Mrs. Eddy that has probably ever been declared in its history.

"In spite of the specific provisions of our Church Manual relating to the duties of the directors (especially Article I, Section 9); in spite of the continuous propaganda of the trustees meaning disintegration to the Christian Science movement; in spite of the deplorable conditions in the publishing house due to mismanagement; in spite of the lamentable conditions connected with The Monitor; in spite of the urgency of securing the immediate cancellation of the contract giving the control of the publication of Mrs. Eddy's works to these trustees for 27 years; in spite of the most earnest warnings from well-known and trustworthy members of The Mother Church as to what the weak and procrastinating course of the directors will result in—nevertheless we are still found, after all these months, temporizing and condoning this most flagrant attack of lawlessness and disruption.

"Ultimately the Christian Science field will force this board to do its duty and fulfill the requirements of the By-Laws. Even now among many who know something of the conditions, the confidence of the field in the directors has been shaken by their failure after many months to fulfill the obligations of their offices. With each passing day the poisonous propaganda is being injected more and more into the thought of those not mentally alert to its purpose and the sedition is hourly intrenching itself more firmly.

"I feel that the situation has now reached a place where I can no longer assume even an outward semblance of acquiescence in the course which the majority of the directors has adopted, and I therefore feel duty bound to so declare myself.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "J. V. DITTEMORE."

Mr. Krauthoff—Is there anything else on that day, General, Feb. 17?

Mr. Streeter—Is there something about Dickey's modification of Judge Smith's letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, yes.

[Mr. Krauthoff continues reading from the record of Feb. 17, 1919, Exhibit 651-A, as follows:]

"Mr. Dickey's modification of Judge Smith's proposed letter to the trustees of Feb. 13, 1919, was read.

"After discussing the situation existing between the Board of Directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society,

"4:15 p. m. the meeting adjourned."

Mr. Streeter—That is all.

[An extract from the directors' records, Feb. 18, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 653, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Mr. Dickey reported to the board that he had had a very interesting conversation—"

Mr. Streeter—Hadn't you better read the names of those present or whether they were all present or not?

"Tuesday, Feb. 18, 1919.

"At the regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors held at 9:30 a. m. on above date in the directors' room of The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon.

"The minutes of the regular meeting of Feb. 17 were read and approved; the minutes of Feb. 10 were approved; and the informal memorandum of details of the conference between the directors and trustees on Feb. 10 as prepared by Directors Merritt and Dittmore were read and ordered filed.

"Mr. Dickey reported to the board that he had had a very interesting conversation with Trustees Eustace and Ogden of the Publishing Society regarding their attitude, and recommended to the other board members that they see said trustees and discuss with them the questions under consideration.

"A letter was read from Mr. William R. Rathvon, dated Boston, Feb. 18, relative to the situation existing between the directors and the trustees."

Mr. Streeter—The letter of Rathvon is already in.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will take up all those when I get through with the record.

Mr. Streeter—All right.

"On motion of Mr. Dickey, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted to telegraph Mr. Strickler, cautioning him against promiscuous discussion in the field of the situation between the directors and the trustees.

"Roll-call on the vote resulted as follows:

Mr. Dickey ..... Aye.
Mr. Merritt ..... Aye.
Mr. Rathvon ..... Aye.

Mr. Dittmore not voting, and stating he would explain his reasons in a letter at the next meeting.

"Mr. Dickey offered the proposition that the board ask the trustees of the Publishing Society to put in writing in a letter to the board, their understanding of the present situation. Copies of Mr. Dickey's proposition were given to the board members present, and the subject laid over for consideration at the next meeting of the directors."

Mr. Streeter—The Rathvon letter is in, I know, I can't give you the number of the exhibit.

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 20, 1919:

"Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon. Two letters were read from Mr. Dittmore, one dated Feb. 20, setting forth his views in connection with the refusal of the majority of the directors to permit the use of The Mother Church for the address of Woodrow Wilson to be delivered in Boston on his return from the Peace Conference; the second letter, dated Feb. 19, giving his reasons for voting against sending a telegram to Mr. Virgil O. Strickler as authorized by the board on Feb. 18."

Mr. Streeter—Shouldn't that be put in now?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. While those two letters are being located:

"The following resolution was introduced by Mr. Dickey, seconded by Mr. Rathvon, and adopted, Mr. Dittmore not voting, to wit:

"Resolved, That hereafter no copies of letters, articles or documents of any nature, written, dictated or prepared by Mrs. Eddy, be made, or given to any person without the majority vote of the full board. This action rescinds all former decisions of the board relating to this subject.

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to prepare and submit to the board a letter to Mr. Strickler cautioning him about repeating certain statements which he is alleged to have made in lectures on Christian Science.

"The chairman and corresponding secretary were authorized to proceed to put the department of branches and practitioners into immediate operation."

The record continues:

"Letters were read from the following:

"Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor, dated Boston, Feb. 20, requesting an interview with the board, which was granted for 11 a. m., Friday, Feb. 21."

[Those portions of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 20, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 654.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, those two letters, if Your Honor please, of Feb. 20, from Mr. Dittmore—that is, they were read on Feb. 20, 1919:

[Copy of Exhibit 655.]

"John V. Dittmore, C.S.B.

"236 Huntington Ave.,

"Boston, U.S.A.

"Feb. 20, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

105 Falmouth Street
Boston, Massachusetts

"Dear Friends:

"Since the majority of the directors made their decision yesterday against allowing The Mother Church to be used by President Wilson to make his first American address upon his return from the Peace Conference, I have been unable to get the subject out of my thought. There are none of the points raised against it which are insurmountable or which would not justify the action by precedents already established.

"When Mrs. Eddy so strongly rebuked the directors for their failure to join the other Boston churches in ringing the chimes out of respect for the memory of Pope Leo, she also said:

"These lost opportunities never return with their full power to do good; and m. a. m. always induces a stupor as to this fact. . . . Please remember this as my answer on all such occasions."

"I feel that we have cast aside an opportunity which God has given us and one which we will never cease to regret. It is not that it is Woodrow Wilson, not a matter of political partisanship. It is the President of the United States returning home first to the New England out of which was given to the world the discovery of Christian Science. It is the return of the incumbent of the greatest office of human authority in the world, after accomplishing the mighty task of insuring to the peoples of the whole world that freedom and high idealism for which the United States stands.

"I can think of nothing more appropriate or far-reaching for good than to have had the President deliver from the platform of The Mother Church his first message to the American people on the modern, universal Magna Charta which he has evolved guaranteeing the freedom of the nations and practically the abolition of war—all in fulfillment of the prophecies of Mary Baker Eddy.

"Very sincerely,

"John V. Dittmore, C. S. B.,
"236 Huntington Ave.,
"Boston, U. S. A.

"Feb. 19, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I did not vote in favor of sending the telegram to Mr. Virgil O. Strickler yesterday for reasons which include the following:

"1. After dictating the telegram, the chairman said, 'What we really want to do is to stop him (Mr. Strickler) from giving his views to the field.' It is such loyal and courageous views as this board knows Mr. Strickler will express, if he expresses any, which will save us from the disloyal 'views' being so industriously circulated.

"2. Because this telegram would tend to confirm what I feel has been a lack of appreciation, at least so far as any evidence has been given, of the very conspicuous service rendered the Cause by Mr. Strickler in having the moral courage to uncover and condemn flagrant disloyalty in 'high places' in The Mother Church.

"3. For the principal reason that in my opinion this board should not undertake to curb the free speech of Christian Scientists under any circumstances, and the telegram in question was in effect an effort to prevent a church member from talking about a subject which is nearest to the heart of every loyal Christian Scientist.

"Make no mistake in regard to the propaganda of disruption sent out by the Publishing Society and gaining ground each day, while we week after week repeat the history of Nero and 'fiddle' while the 'hidden hand' uses its channel to prepare for the threatened conflagration.

"Very sincerely,

(Signed) "J. V. DITTEMORE."

[Letter, Mr. Dittmore to Board of Directors, Feb. 19, 1919, is marked Exhibit 656.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Friday, Feb. 21, 1919:

"Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon.

"Mr. Dittmore read extracts from Trustees'—"

I think this has been offered in evidence, hasn't it?

"Mr. Dittmore read extracts from 'Trustees' Handbook' by Loring, and from Perry on 'The Law of Trusts and Trustees,' bearing on the situation between the trustees of the Publishing Society and the Board of Directors."

Mr. Streeter—"Bearing on the present situation," isn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—No; "bearing on the situation."

"The corresponding secretary was instructed to procure copies of the books for use of the directors."

What is the next in that meeting that is called for?

Mr. Streeter—The last of it. In reference to the cable from Margaret Whyte.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think you have read that in evidence:

"A cablegram was read from Margaret Whyte, secretary of the War Relief Committee for Great Britain and Ireland, advising resignation of Dr. Allen W. Heber Percy from that committee."

As I understand, General, heretofore when that issue was raised you desired that the name of the gentleman be read into the record.

Mr. Streeter—Yes. Well, go ahead and read the rest of it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have read all there is of it.

Mr. Thompson—Oh, no, no.

Mr. Krauthoff (continuing reading)—

"The directors had an interview with Editor Frederick Dixon of The Christian Science Monitor about the Labor situation, which he wishes to handle in The Monitor."

Mr. Streeter—Haven't you got in there something about an interview with Mr. Dixon about selecting a successor?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

"About selecting the successor to Dr. Allen W. Heber Percy on the War Relief Committee for Great Britain and Ireland, and about his article in the Sentinel entitled 'Mortal Mind and Human Mind.'"

"Proposed resolution prepared by Judge Clifford P. Smith with regard to compositions published on the back covers of our weekly and monthly periodicals was read and copies sent to the respective directors for further consideration.

"Proposed letter to Mr. Virgil O. Strickler about statements made by him in recent lectures, was read, edited and referred back to the Corresponding Secretary for further revision.

"At 1 P. M. the meeting adjourned."

[Those portions of record of minutes of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 21, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 657.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Monday, Feb. 24, 1919:

"Present, Messrs. Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon. Letters were read from the following:

"Mr. Virgil O. Strickler, dated Globe, Arizona, Feb. 18, about the knowledge in the field concerning the situation between the directors and the trustees.

"The directors had an interview with the trustees, Eustace, Ogden, and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society, in the course of which a letter from the directors to the trustees of even date was read and a copy thereof was later delivered to the trustees' secretary."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 24, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 658.]

Mr. Krauthoff—That letter has been offered in evidence under Exhibit No. 26.

Mr. Streeter—I think it is in.

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 25, 1919:

"Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon.

"The minutes of the regular meeting of February 24 were read and approved. Informal memoranda of details of the conference between the directors and trustees on Monday, Feb. 24, as noted by Directors Merritt and Rathvon, were read and ordered filed.

"Letters were read from the following:

"From Editor William P. McKenzie, dated Boston, Feb. 21, about Mr. McCrackan's proposed editorial 'Miracles' for the Sentinel for March 8, which contains a reference to the pyramid memorial recently erected at Bow, New Hampshire, to mark Mrs. Eddy's birthplace. Reply indicated.

"Mr. Dittmore, dated Boston, Feb. 24, calling attention to his efforts to secure action in the situation between the directors and the trustees.

"Mr. Dittmore, dated Boston, Feb. 25, offering the following resolution:

"Whereas, The By-Laws of The Mother Church (Article XXV, Section 3) provide that "The Christian Science Board of Directors shall have the power to declare vacancies in said trusteeship (of The Christian Science Publishing Society), for such reasons as to the board may seem expedient," and

"Whereas, The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society have for many months followed a course of action exceedingly detrimental to the cause of Christian Science;

"Now therefore be it Resolved: That the directors shall and do hereby declare vacant the trusteeships held by Herbert W. Eustace, Lamont Rowlands, and David B. Ogden, and that this course be followed by such legal steps as we are advised are necessary to confirm the proper appointment of those persons who are named as successors to these offices.'

"Mr. Rathvon seconded Mr. Dittmore's motion and after discussion a roll-call resulted in the following vote:

"Mr. Dittmore, aye; Mr. Merritt, no; Mr. Rathvon, no; Mr. Dickey, no.

"Mr. Rathvon stated that his purpose in seconding the motion was to secure discussion. Mr. Dickey explained his negative vote by saying that if the action proposed in Mr. Dittmore's resolution was followed, it would necessitate our making an appeal to the courts to sustain our action and appoint new trustees, and that he felt this was not a wise thing to do at this time.

"The directors had an interview with Mr. Charles C. Root of New York City—"

Is that desired?

Mr. Streeter—We don't care anything about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right:

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith with regard to the situation between the trustees and the Board of Directors, particularly with reference to the removal of one or all of the trustees.

"A letter was read from Judge Clifford P. Smith, dated Boston, Feb. 21, submitting, at request of the directors, the following resolution, which was upon motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Merritt, unanimously adopted, to wit:

"Whereas, The compositions which in recent months have been published on the inside of the back covers of our weekly and monthly periodicals have become more than ordinary advertisements; they have become unsigned editorials or unsigned pronouncements upon Christian Science and related subjects; and

"Whereas, The same reasons why other articles and editorials in said periodicals should be written or edited by editors elected under the provisions of our Church Manual apply fully to the compositions in question; and

"Whereas, It is necessary to scrupulously observe the several provisions of our Church Manual which provide safeguards for the contents of the periodicals which are the organs of this Church; it is therefore

"Resolved, by The Christian Science Board of Directors, That all compositions intended for the inside of the back covers of our weekly and monthly periodicals shall be examined before publication by the editors thereof, and that nothing in the nature of an article, editorial, or pronouncement on Christian Science, its practice or teaching, shall be published in the weekly or monthly periodicals which are the organs of this Church, after the issues thereof which are now ready to be issued, until the same has been examined and approved either by the editors of said periodicals or by this board.

"Resolved, further, That the substance of this resolution shall be communicated to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society and to the editors of said periodicals for their direction, and that the corresponding secretary be instructed to prepare and submit to the board a courteous letter to the trustees of the Publishing Society, also to the editors of the Christian Science periodicals, embodying the substance of the above resolution."

[Those portions of record of meeting of Board of Directors, Feb. 25, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, are offered in evidence as Exhibit 659.]

Mr. Streeter—Do you find your letter of Feb. 24?

Mr. Thompson—We have a copy of it here.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Dittmore's letter of Feb. 24, 1919:

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"The purpose of this letter is to reply specifically to the statements made by Mr. Dickey and Mr. Rathvon in what must have been an unguarded moment, in the board meeting of Feb. 20, in connection with their defense of the policy of the directors in the Publishing Society error, to the effect that my course of action in that matter has not been constructive and that I have presented no definite plan for a solution of the problem. If the course of the board during the past five months in the handling of this problem had left in me any capacity for surprise, I am sure I should have again experienced that sensation at hearing such a statement from these two gentlemen.

"Since the trustees' intentions were fully uncovered on the eleventh day of last September, I have continually urged prompt action for their removal under the specific provisions of Mrs. Eddy's By-Laws, and a complete cleansing of the rank conditions in the publishing house. In fact, a reference to the files of the board will show that on Sept. 10, 1918 (the day before the complete uncovering), I presented in writing a review of the situation and its enormous dangers, called attention to the by-laws governing the directors, and urged that our duty be recognized and fulfilled. On Dec. 18 I offered a resolution for action under the by-law providing for declaring vacancies in the trusteeship, but no director seconded it. Again, on Jan. 3, I offered a similar motion, but the chairman would not even ask for a second, and the motion failed. There has never been a meeting when this matter was under discussion since Sept. 11 that I have not urged obedience to our Leader's By-Laws, which, of course, include following the course of action which she has set forth for the protection of the cause.

"I have also repeatedly urged the board to consider the evidence showing that Mr. Watts is totally unfitted for the position of manager of the Publishing Society and that his methods and practices have done almost irreparable damage to that institution.

"For over five months this board has drifted about in their attempted handling of this matter like a ship without compass or rudder. Almost every expedient that gave promise of success in human law or policy has been considered or tried. The directors of The Mother Church have one final responsibility—to sustain in its complete integrity the law and government of The Mother Church as Mrs. Eddy established them and recorded them in plain terms in the Manual of The Mother Church. I have always stood on the ground that every definite by-law or rule of procedure provided by Mrs. Eddy in the Manual is possible of demonstration, otherwise she would not have left them for our guidance. I have never had but one course of action in thought, and that has been the course which the Manual provides. If the steps had been taken promptly and with that faith and assurance which the protection of God's cause demands, the 'sea' would have long since parted and every effort of disloyalty and treachery would have been taken care of as it had been reached and as Mrs. Eddy never failed to prove for this Church, that 'No weapon formed against' it could 'prosper.'

"Probably the most aggressive 'mental offensive' ever launched has involved this board in the mazes of legal lore, doubt, and fear. The hope to save 'persons' from the effects of their evil course, until the desired conclusion that 'nothing can be done' or needs to be done, has produced almost complete paralysis. In the meantime deceit and trickery strive to allay the awakening thought of the field by sending out the suggestion that 'everything is settled' and that the two boards have never been on such a good basis. At home the treachery aims to gain its ends by letting it be seen that all is well because directors and trustees fraternize together and are once more in 'loving cooperation.'

"Of one thing I am sure, and that is that The Mother Church cannot go on to the fulfillment of its destiny under the policy of direction which has prevailed for the past 18 months.

"Very sincerely,
JVD-L "JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

[The letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 660. R. H. J.]

In connection with the resolution of Feb. 25, 1919, regarding the advertisements on the inside covers of the periodicals, we offer the letter from the directors to the trustees of Feb. 26, 1919:

"Board of Trustees,
"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to write you with reference to the advertisements published on the inside of the back covers of our weekly and monthly periodicals. In recent months these announcements have become more than ordinary advertisements; they have really become unsigned editorials or unsigned pronouncements on Christian Science and subjects related thereto. The directors feel that the same reasons why other articles and editorials in our periodicals should be written or edited by editors elected under the provisions of our Church Manual, should also apply fully to the compositions in question.

"Inasmuch as it is necessary for the directors to scrupulously observe the several provisions of our Church Manual, which provide safeguards for the contents of the periodicals, which are the organs of this Church, I am instructed by the board to ask that hereafter all compositions intended for the inside back covers of our weekly and monthly periodicals be examined before publication by the editors thereof and that nothing in the nature of an article, editorial or pronouncement on Christian Science, its practice, or teaching, shall be published in the weekly or monthly periodicals, which are the organs of this Church, after the issues thereof which are now ready to be issued, until the same has been examined and approved either by the editors or by this board, after copies have been sent to the respective directors as is the present custom with other editorials.

"Thanking you in anticipation of your compliance with the foregoing and awaiting your acknowledgment of this letter,

"Sincerely yours,

"CHARLES E. JARVIS,

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors."

"CEJ-L"

[The copy of letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 661. R. H. J.]

The answer to that letter, if Your Honor please, is found in a letter of March 6, 1919. There are two paragraphs, of which the second reads as follows. The first is not—

Mr. Whipple—Why not read it all?

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"Thank you for your letter of March 5 calling our attention to the mistake of using the word 'borrowed' as applicable to all of the reading rooms of Christian Science churches. We feel that to omit this word and let the notice read 'may be read or purchased' will correct this.

"Referring to your letter of Feb. 26 in reference to the feature advertisements that we have been running in the Sentinel and in our monthly periodicals, for some time past we have been considering the question whether it would not be better to discontinue this form of advertisement entirely. It has not been discontinued, and for the present letters of appreciation of The Monitor will take its place. With you we consider it the duty of the editorial department to pass on these features before they are published.

"With best wishes,

"Yours sincerely,

"BOARD OF TRUSTEES,

"Herbert W. Eustace,

"Secretary."

[The letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 662. R. H. J.]

Records of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 26, 1919. Present, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon:

"On motion of Mr. Rathvon, seconded by Mr. Merritt, it was voted that each member of the board, in compliance with the suggestion of our counsel, prepare reasons why one of the trustees should be removed. These reasons to be submitted to our counsel tomorrow that they may advise the board how to proceed legally to remove one of the trustees at once."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of which the foregoing is an extract is Exhibit 663. R. H. J.]

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Krauthoff, inquiry, I think, was made, when that was read before, about submission of reasons by the different members of the board. Have you found them?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is a detail which has not yet had attention. We shall give it attention later.

Mr. Whipple—Do you call that a detail, a formal statement by each one of the Board of Directors as to the grounds on which they thought they could put the removal of a trustee?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I call it a detail in the sense that I would call—

Mr. Whipple—I was wondering what you thought was a really important thing.

The Master—Now supposing we let Mr. Krauthoff say what he proposes to do about that.

Mr. Whipple—Did I interrupt him in that? I asked him so long ago I was afraid he did not propose to do anything about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple asked me if I considered this a detail. I spoke of it as a detail as I should speak of myself or Mr. Whipple as a detail in the case. As to whether we shall be able to get it, I will say that I may be able to get it here tomorrow morning.

Mr. Whipple—Do you think, after having two or three weeks, that you will be able to get it here by tomorrow morning?

Mr. Krauthoff—I hope to, Mr. Whipple, if they are in existence in writing.

Mr. Whipple—Well, if you call them details, just as you call yourself a detail, you are more in evidence than those papers, because I asked for them long ago and they do not come, but you are in evidence all the time.

Mr. Bates—Not all the time. Except when you are!

[Laughter.]

Mr. Streeter—Oh, oh, Governor, don't do it. They are getting on fine!

Mr. Whipple—The Governor is re-galvanized!

Mr. Krauthoff—You understand, of course, Your Honor, that I am not advised as to whether this was put in writing or not. I will find out and let you know tomorrow morning.

The Master—You will find out and let us know tomorrow.

Mr. Whipple—I want Mr. Krauthoff to find out, if he can, which one of them produced the grounds on which they finally thought they would proceed.

Mr. Bates—There are lots of things you want.

Mr. Thompson—Page 233, letters of Strickler.

Mr. Krauthoff—

"Letters were read from the following:

"Mr. Virgil O. Strickler, dated Los Angeles, California, Feb. 20, requesting the return to him of all copies of his confidential letter to the President of the United States."

Mr. Streeter—We have nothing more.

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 27, 1919:

"Proposed letter to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society requesting detailed itemized statements of monthly outlay and expenses was approved."

Mr. Thompson—Who were present?

Mr. Krauthoff—Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon.

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of Feb. 27, 1919, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 664. R. H. J.]

Then follows the reference to the conference, and the minutes of that have already been read in evidence.

Monday, March 3, 1919—

Mr. Streeter—Let us see a minute. Where is that reference to the conference with the directors and Judge Smith and Mr. Bates?

Mr. Krauthoff—That has been read in evidence.

Mr. Streeter—On page 237. Is that in?

Mr. Thompson—I think only in part.

Mr. Streeter—Has it been read in full or in part?

Mr. Thompson—I can't remember all of its being read.

Mr. Streeter—Well, at any rate, it is brief, only three or four lines. I suggest that you read it in this connection.

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, if Your Honor please, it is about 15 or 16 lines of typewriting, which have already been read in evidence.

Mr. Streeter—I do not think so.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am sure that it has.

Mr. Thompson—I do not feel sure that it has all been read in evidence. I think it would be very good to get it in chronologically, as you say.

Mr. Krauthoff—I see no occasion for repeating matters that are already in evidence, if Your Honor please.

The Master—I see none.

Mr. Whipple—I am not sure that you have got that in evidence.

Mr. Thompson—I do not think so. It was paraphrased when it went in.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple read it in evidence, and I am quite sure that he does not paraphrase anything.

Mr. Thompson—He probably did not paraphrase the material part, but there might be some material that he did not speak of.

Mr. Krauthoff—This is the letter from the Board of Directors to the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, under date of Feb. 27, 1919:

"February 27, 1919.

"Board of Trustees,

"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to say that it is the desire of this board, as the governing board of The Mother Church, which is a beneficiary of the trust established by Mrs. Eddy, and of which you are in charge, to familiarize themselves with the outlay and expenses of The Christian Science Publishing Society. In order that the board may be able to do this, will you be kind enough to send to them the itemized, detailed statements of your monthly outlay and expenses of each month from the close of the six months period ending September 30, 1918, up to and including January 31, 1919, and hereafter as soon as possible after the close of each month's business.

"The directors would also thank you to include with the above reports detailed statements of your daily expenses for cabled news from England for the months of December, 1918, and January and February, 1919.

"Kindly advise on receipt of this letter when the directors may expect these reports.

"Sincerely yours,
"CHARLES E. JARVIS,

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors."

"CEJ-L"

[The copy of the letter of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 665. R. H. J.]

March 3, 1919—

Mr. Whipple—Aren't you going to read that record of the conference?

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon. It has been put in evidence, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Thompson—It would not have taken half so long to put it in as to discuss whether it is in whole or in part.

Mr. Streeter—If you say it has been put in, what is the number of the exhibit?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will find it for you tomorrow morning.

Mr. Streeter—Well, not much!

Mr. Thompson—We want it now.

Mr. Streeter—If it has been put in, it is an exhibit, and we would like to know its number. It is only brief, and I suggest that you either show us the exhibit or read it.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I do not think that I should now stop this reading in order to find whether it is an exhibit in a case that has been on trial as long as this case has been.

Mr. Thompson—Why don't you find out whether it is in or not in order to prevent discussion. You say it is in, and we say it is not.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I would like to proceed with the trial of this case.

Mr. Whipple—You might omit something of a good deal of value. Your hesitancy makes me think that it is of value.

The Master—If counsel cannot prove by reference to the records whether a thing has been read before or whether it has not, I suppose the only thing to do is to read it.

Mr. Thompson—It has been referred to several times before. I have a doubt whether it has actually been read in verbatim.

Mr. Streeter—It is only a few lines. Why not read it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will try to find it, and I think I can find it in a few minutes.

Mr. Thompson—Apparently there is some reason why it is not read.

Mr. Streeter—Why spend so much time about it? Even if it has been read, it has never been appreciated, as one of my associates suggests.

Mr. Bates—May it please the Court, there is every reason why it should not be read merely because these gentlemen want it read again. If they find that it has not been read, then it can be read. Your Honor intimated that we should go ahead, and I object to these interruptions in this way as entirely improper and out of order.

Mr. Streeter—Now, Governor—

Mr. Bates—Oh, I raise objection to your interruptions in this matter.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, don't. Now, Governor—

The Master—I think that we will go on for the present. If it appears that the extract referred to has not been read, we can easily put it in later.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. Krauthoff—March 3, 1919:

"Present Messrs. Dittimore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon. . . .

"The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, who read to the board two letters from himself to the board, both dated March 1, one recommending that the Board of Trustees of the Publishing Society be composed of three editors."

[The record of the meeting of the Board of Directors of March 3, 1919, from which the foregoing extract is read, is Exhibit 666, R. H. J.]

This has also been read in evidence. I will continue it.

Mr. Thompson—I am not sure that it has.

Mr. Whipple—Everything of real importance has been read?

Mr. Krauthoff—I think so.

Mr. Whipple—If you want to omit things that have been read you might as well omit the rest.

Mr. Krauthoff—From Mr. Whipple's point of view his statement is correct.

[An extract from the directors' records, March 4, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 667, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Tuesday, March 4, 1919.

"Present, Messrs. Dittimore, Merritt, and Rathvon.

"The minutes of the regular meetings of March 3 were read and approved, and an informal detailed memorandum of the conference between the directors and the trustees of the Publishing Society on March 3, prepared by Mr. Merritt, was read and ordered filed.

"The attention of the directors was called to an announcement published in the Sentinel to the effect that the Bible, Mrs. Eddy's writings, and all other authorized Christian Science literature may be borrowed at all Christian Science reading rooms, and the corresponding secretary was instructed to request the trustees to change the notice and submit the change to the board."

Mr. Krauthoff—You said there was a motion by Mr. Dittimore?

Mr. Streeter—No; I do not care about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right.

[An extract from the directors' records, March 5, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 668, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"The minutes of the regular meeting of March 4th were read and approved, and Mr. Rathvon read an informal memorandum prepared by him of the conference with the trustees on March 3, 1918.

"The letter from Mr. Paul Harvey to Mr. John R. Watts, business manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Jan. 24, 1919, was again read to the board by Mr. Rathvon. Mr. Dittimore's letter to the board, dated April 25, 1918, with reference to conditions facing the board and the Christian Science movement, was read."

Mr. Streeter—Were read, or again read?

Mr. Krauthoff—Were read.

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, that is printed as Exhibit 220, on pages 294 and 295 of the printed record.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, you will recall a moment ago a discussion about a part of the record of Feb. 27, 1919. I am advised that that was read in evidence as Exhibit No. 217. It is on the same page of the record that Mr. Streeter has just referred to. This letter that I was referring to just now, Wednesday, March 5, 1919—the record recites that the letter was read on March 5, 1919. Self-evidently, that is not the first time it was read; at least, we assume it was not, and I find that that entry had been introduced in evidence as Exhibit 219.

The Master—It would be convenient, would it not, to have the stenographer put those exhibit numbers in?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; certainly.

The Master—At the proper place.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is the reason I am giving them to the stenographer now. The second entry of March 3, 1919, which I did not read a moment ago, is in evidence as Exhibit 218. In justice to General Streeter, I want to say that both of those were read by General Streeter. I said that Mr. Whipple had offered one or two of them. I find that I gave the credit to the wrong gentleman, or, rather, I gave the credit wrongly—not to the wrong gentleman.

Mr. Thompson—You have compared them to see that they were read correctly, have you?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have assumed that you read them correctly. In connection with the letter of the directors to the trustees of Feb. 27, 1919, I read the further letter of March 13, 1919.

[A letter from the directors to the trustees, March 13, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 669, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

[Copy of Exhibit 669]

"March 13, 1919.

"Board of Trustees,
"The Christian Science Publishing Society,
"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,
"Boston, Massachusetts.
"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to say that they have had no reply to their requests contained in their letter of Feb.

27, for the monthly outlay and expenses of each month from Sept. 30, 1918 to Jan. 31, 1919, both inclusive, etc., and in their letter of March 3, for information as to attorneys' fees, both important matters connected with the Publishing Society.

"The directors' letter of Feb. 27 requested acknowledgment which has not yet come to hand. If the information requested has not been furnished the board because of the time necessary to complete it, the directors would like to have you send them at once such information as you already have compiled.

"Acknowledgment of this letter will be very much appreciated.

"Sincerely yours,

"CHARLES E. JARVIS,

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors."

Mr. Krauthoff—To which the following answer was made on March 14, 1919.

[A letter from John R. Watts, business manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, to the Board of Directors, dated March 14, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 670, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

[Copy of Exhibit 670]

"March 14, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"In response to your letter of March 3 to the Board of Trustees, and to your further request of yesterday, the trustees have asked us to tell you that they will bring with them to the next meeting with your board, which we understand will be next Monday, March 17, the information and figures about which you are inquiring.

"With best wishes,

"Yours sincerely,

"THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY,

"by (Signed) John R. Watts,

"Business Manager."

Mr. Krauthoff—March 6, 1919, there were present Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon. That has already been read in evidence.

The Master—Have you got the exhibit number? Put it in if you can.

Mr. Krauthoff—The first entry from the minutes of March 6, 1919, has been read in evidence as Exhibit 221. The letter of Mr. Dittmore of April 25, 1918, which was referred to a moment ago, has been read in evidence as Exhibit 220.

Mr. Streeter—What do you say this March 6 first paragraph is—Exhibit 221?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is Exhibit 221. That includes two entries from the record of March 6, 1919—the one about giving out copies of resolutions or minutes, the other about copies of the informal notes by Mr. Merritt and Mr. Rathvon.

Mr. Streeter—Now, the next one, a letter from Mrs. Longyear.

[Mr. Krauthoff reads the further paragraph from the records of March 6, 1919, Exhibit 221:]

"Letters were read from the following:

"Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear, dated Pasadena, California, Feb. 7, with further reference to her proffered gift of two lots in the vicinity of The Mother Church whereon she wishes an historical building to be erected. Reply indicated."

Mr. Streeter—Now, have you a copy of the reply? Won't it go right here? I believe Mrs. Longyear's letter has been put in, hasn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—It has been furnished, but I don't understand you have read it in evidence. It has not been read in evidence that I remember.

Mr. Streeter—Then shouldn't both of those letters be read in this connection?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will be very glad to. Have you them at hand?

Mr. Streeter—I haven't them, no.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will get them as soon as I can. Is there anything else on March 6, General?

Mr. Streeter—No; just that correspondence with Mrs. Longyear.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, we are locating it.

Mr. Streeter—I think the young lady has it now, hasn't she?

Mr. Krauthoff—We will take up those Longyear letters in a few moments, if Your Honor please, when we have gone over them and gotten them in order.

[Mr. Krauthoff reads a further extract from the records of March 6, 1919, Exhibit 221:]

"After Mr. Harsch left the meeting the corresponding secretary submitted and the board approved a proposed reply to Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear's letter of Feb. 7 above referred to."

Mr. Krauthoff—March 7, 1919—

Mr. Streeter—Why can't we have those now in this connection?

Mr. Thompson—No reason why we shouldn't have them; you have got them right there.

Mr. Whipple—I think both of them have been put in.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, one of them has; I think the other one has not.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I can only say what I said a few moments ago. It is scarcely to be expected that on the spur of the moment I will pick up a bunch of correspondence and just read it in without knowing what relation it has to the case or what relevancy it may have.

Mr. Thompson—You are asked to pick up one letter. What are you referring to a bunch of correspondence for?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was in a bunch of correspondence that was handed me.

The Master—I think Mr. Krauthoff should have a fair opportunity to get the letters together.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Thompson is very kind in his advice and directions but I am not at present in his employ. Friday, March 7, 1919. I find nothing in that that I wish to read unless the General will point out something.

Mr. Streeter—No.

[An extract from the directors' records, March 10, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 671, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"Present, Messrs. Dickey, Merritt, Rathvon and Mr. Dittmore from 11:10 a. m. till 12 o'clock noon. At 12 o'clock Mr. Dittmore left the meeting.

"The directors had an interview with Trustees Eustace, Ogden and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

"At 1:10 p. m. the meeting adjourned."

Mr. Streeter—Do you claim that the other two entries in that record with reference to Dittmore's demand for copies and their refusal have already been put in?

Mr. Krauthoff—No; they were not in the meeting of March 10.

Mr. Streeter—I mean March 11.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not at present advised about that.

(Examining record.) General Streeter read from March 11, 1919, under Exhibit 224.

[An extract from the directors' records, March 11, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 672, and is read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"At a regular meeting of The Christian Science Board of Directors held at 9:30 a. m. at above date in the directors' room in The Mother Church, there were present Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon.

"At 12 o'clock Mr. Dittmore left the meeting.

"The remaining directors had an interview with Trustees Eustace, Ogden and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

"At 1:15 p. m. the meeting adjourned."

[An extract from the directors' records of March 13, 1919, already offered in evidence as Exhibit 225, is read by Mr. Krauthoff. Mr. Krauthoff also reads the following extract from the records of March 13, 1919:]

"Letters were read from the following:

"Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, dated Boston, March 12, in answer to the board's letter of March 10, recommending the publication of some vest pocket pamphlets in German."

Mr. Krauthoff—Is there anything else in that meeting?

Mr. Streeter—I think, Mr. Krauthoff, that from here on to March 17 I read everything into the record—from there I read everything.

[A letter from the Board of Directors to the Board of Trustees, dated

March 10, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 673. The reply, Board of Trustees to Board of Directors, March 12, 1919, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 674. These letters are read by Mr. Krauthoff, as follows:]

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to say with reference to the letter from Miss Anna Six of Berlin, Germany, a copy of which was sent to this board by Mr. Theodore Stanger, that at a meeting of the board held this day it was voted that the board request the Publishing Society to issue some German literature for immediate shipment to Berlin, preferably a number of the vest-pocket pamphlets.

"Dear Friends:

"Thank you for your letter of March 10.

"Mr. Stanger had sent the trustees the letter from Miss Six of Berlin, Germany, and the question of translating some of the vest-pocket pamphlets into German is already under way.

"Thanking you,

"Very sincerely yours,

"BOARD OF TRUSTEES,

"HERBERT W. EUSTACE,

"Secretary."

Mr. Krauthoff—I think that is all I have to read at present from the records. A letter from Mrs. Longyear is called for and we will be able to comply with that request presently.

What was the date of that letter from Mrs. Longyear you called for? There are several.

Mr. Streeter—Feb. 7—I think that one has been put in. I am not sure, but it was the one of March 6, on which date you sent a reply. That is the one I want to secure.

Mr. Krauthoff—According to the record it was dated Feb. 7.

Mr. Streeter—Well, that is Mrs. Longyear's letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—I want the copy which you sent in reply. You say, "under date of March 6 the board sent a letter to Mrs. Longyear in reply to hers of Feb. 7."

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"Dear Mrs. Longyear:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to say in further reply to your favor of Feb. 7, 1919, that your proffered gift of land to The Mother Church for the purpose of erecting an historical building thereon was given further consideration by the directors at their meeting today.

"It would not appear at present that there are enough members of the board favorable to accepting your gift for the specific purpose of an historical building, therefore the board believes it would be better for them to wait until Mr. Neal's return to Boston, so that whatever action is then taken may be an expression of the entire Board of Directors.

"The board again assures you of its deep appreciation of your generosity in this matter and hopes within the next 30 days to make a definite reply to your proposal.

"With renewed assurances of the directors' high esteem, and with kindest regards to you and to Mr. Longyear,

"Sincerely yours,

"CHARLES E. JARVIS,

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors."

[Letter from Board of Directors to Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear, March 6, 1919, is marked Exhibit 675.]

Mr. Streeter—Now, Mr. Krauthoff, you stopped reading the records just before you got finished, I think. See if under date of March 18 you have not an entry, "Board read Dittmore's letter against Rowlands' dismissal."

Mr. Krauthoff—"March 18, 1919:

"A letter was read from Mr. John V. Dittmore, dated Boston, March 18, giving his reasons for not voting on the motion offered March 17, declaring vacant the office of trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society held by Mr. Lamont Rowlands."

[That portion of record of meeting of Board of Directors, March 18, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 676.]

Mr. Streeter—Now, in connection with that letter you should read the letter of Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not clear about that. This is a letter which Mr. Dittmore wrote the day after he was removed. I cannot—

Mr. Streeter—It does not matter. I submit that, Your Honor, in the Dittmore case, on that question. Mr. Dittmore voted against the dismissal of Mr. Rowlands, and he told them at the time that he would state his reasons in writing. They did not wait for that, but in about five minutes thereafter undertook to expel him from the board. He filed that letter, and we think it bears on the issues of the case.

Mr. Bates—You did not mean to say that Mr. Dittmore voted, did you?

Mr. Streeter—No; he did not vote.

Mr. Bates—You stated that he did vote.

Mr. Streeter—I beg your pardon. I want to be accurate. Why not read the letter?

The Master—I think if it is insisted upon you will have to read it, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"March 18, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Gentlemen:

"I did not vote on the motion yesterday declaring vacant the office of trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society held by Mr. Lamont Rowlands because such discipline of Mr. Rowlands in no way touches the root of the present deplorable situation and because such action operates to again prevent a real cleansing of the condition and the elimination of the qualities of thought which are slowly, but surely crushing out the vitality of the Christian Science movement.

"Very truly yours,

(Signed) "J. V. DITTMORE."

[Letter, Mr. Dittmore to Board of Directors, March 18, 1919, is marked Exhibit 677.]

Q. Mr. Dickey, may I inquire of you—because you have kept track of it and I have not—just how far we had progressed in point of time when I began to read these records? What was the last question I asked you about it? A. I think I had returned to Boston on Jan. 21.

Q. You had returned to Boston on Jan. 21 and participated in the meeting of the board of Jan. 22? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Dickey, I called your attention before I began reading the records a moment ago, to the resolution of the Board of Directors of Jan. 23, 1919, with respect to the cards of Mr. and Mrs. Norledge of Paris, France, in The Christian Science Journal and in the French periodical Le Héraut de Christian Science. A. Yes.

Q. What was the situation in respect to their cards at the time that resolution was adopted?

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment. How is that important?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, it is only important, if Your Honor please, as bearing upon the question of our good faith. The bill charges that upon one excuse or another we made requests and that we did various things arbitrarily and capriciously. We are now taking the steps that we did and endeavoring by our testimony to show their good faith, and that they were entered into with at least a reasonable ground for doing so. If that is held by the Court to be immaterial at this time I shall not complain.

The Master—Is there any dispute between the boards on this subject which he now proposes to investigate?

Mr. Whipple—My impression is not, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I shall not press the matter further at this time unless it becomes an issue.

Q. Did you have an interview with Mr. Watts on the evening of Thursday, January 23, 1919, with respect to the situation as then in issue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? A. At my home.

Q. Did he come there at your request? A. He did.

Q. I believe you stated previously that you are an accredited teacher of Christian Science? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is Mr. Watts a student of yours, as that term is used in Christian Science? A. Yes, he is my student.

Q. Explain briefly the relation of a teacher in Christian Science to his student.

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please. I am going to try to prevent these things being gone over repeatedly and the hopeless confusion of the record which must ensue.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have no thought of going over anything. I am now trying to explain the circumstances of this interview.

Mr. Whipple—Well, of what consequence are the circumstances?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, very well. Go ahead and say what was told at that interview, Mr. Dickey.

Mr. Whipple—Now, that I object to on the ground that it is not material.

Mr. Krauthoff—We have heretofore considered that question, if Your Honor please, as to what was said to Mr. Watts and what was said by Mr. Watts, and I have pointed out that Mr. Watts is either our appointee, subject to our direction, and we have the right to state in evidence what we told him and what happened to what we told him; or if he is to be treated as the employee of the plaintiffs, we have the right to state what we told the plaintiffs' employee, charged with the management of their business.

The Master—You are now going into a private interview, not an official interview, between this witness and Mr. Watts?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not regard it as a private interview, if Your Honor please. It happened to be at Mr. Dickey's house, but that made it none the less a part of it, and as I recall it the trustees' record undertakes to recite that interview, and Mr. Watts testified to it.

The Master—Do you expect to contradict Mr. Watts in regard to it?

Mr. Krauthoff—We expect to, yes.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, we never asked Mr. Watts a question about it, and if they have inquired of Mr. Watts about an immaterial matter they cannot contradict

it. Furthermore, if Your Honor please, this comes within the rule Your Honor indicated this morning, and that is that this course of conduct and acquiescence no longer applies after the controversy had become acute. I am really going to make an earnest endeavor to prevent this issue being befogged and this record being made any more complex by this going through part way and then going back a bit, and then starting in again and taking the record in different aspects and from different angles.

The Master—I do not think I can generally forbid Mr. Krauthoff to examine the witness on the stand in regard to any matter occurring within the period covered by the records which he has consecutively read. There may be material matters with regard to which he has the right to examine the witness, occurring during that period. I think we can guard against undue confusion while he does that, but of course the matters about which he examines the witness must be material.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, the records are now already in. He is asking about something which is not a matter of record at all; it is a private interview.

The Master—There is something in the records, I think, about this interview with Mr. Watts.

Mr. Whipple—I think not.

The Master—And I was trying to recall to my mind what it was. Am I right?

Mr. Krauthoff—The trustees' records disclosed—

The Master—Oh, the trustees' records, not in the records which you have read?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, not in the records that I have read.

Mr. Whipple—But the trustees' records were not put in by us.

The Master—True.

Mr. Whipple—This is a process that counsel has adopted of putting in everything they can, material and immaterial, and then going over it again for the purpose of contradicting what they themselves put in.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, there is one other phase of this situation which should be called to Your Honor's attention. The plaintiffs in this case—

The Master—Suppose before we go into a phase of the situation that we go into the materiality of this particular matter.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if Your Honor please; and what I was about to say bears upon that. And that is this: that the plaintiffs in this case have charged the defendants with acting arbitrarily, capriciously, without reason, arrogantly, to establish an oligarchy and a few other adjectives which the dictionary supplies, and we have the right to show the efforts we made and the statements that we made to them and to their agent, as they claim he is, or to our agent as we claim him to be, in an effort to prevent what has happened, from the position that we took and the position they took, all as bearing upon the allegation that we acted in bad faith in removing Mr. Rowlands in office.

Mr. Whipple—As Your Honor has repeatedly pointed out, we have indicated the respects in which they acted capriciously, and so far as we have made allegations of bad faith, those are in the bill. They may have had the best of good faith in other respects—that is entirely immaterial. The trouble is that they utterly fail to meet the bill and its allegations. They say, "We have been good in all other respects," but they shun that issue. They do not come down to grips on the issue that is tendered.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is rather interesting, if Your Honor please, to be told by counsel that is objecting to evidence that I am trying to introduce, that I am trying to shun an issue.

Mr. Whipple—That is it—you are trying to put in a lot of befogging evidence, that is why you shun the issue.

The Master—Have I now heard all that counsel desires to say on this point? If so, I am not satisfied that this interview between Mr. Watts and Mr. Dickey is a matter which you are entitled to go into at present, and I will exclude it.

Q. Mr. Dickey, referring to Friday, Jan. 24, 1919, do you recall the incident of Mr. Watts appearing before the Board of Directors and reading the letter written by Mr. Paul Harvey of New York City? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you please state the circumstances as they then occurred in respect to that letter, showing what you said or what any other director said to Mr. Watts, being careful always to indicate who said it?

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, that Harvey letter, if I remember correctly, was gone into by General Streeter, and does not affect our case. I can't see that it has any materiality. The circumstances under which it was read are of no consequence. The letter speaks for itself and we have all the correspondence.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Mr. Whipple states that the incident of the Harvey letter has nothing to do with the trustees' case I shall defer this question for the present. I understood that was one of the complaints that the trustees made against the directors, and that was that some member of the Board of Directors had made certain statements in New York City of which the trustees had a right to complain. But inasmuch as Mr. Whipple absolves us from any complaint with respect to that, I will not press it further at this time.

Mr. Whipple—You will have to take what I said as the indication of what our utterance is, and not your improvisation of it.

Mr. Krauthoff—If there is any misunderstanding about that, it either has something to do with the case or it has not. Now, I offer it to show what occurred on that occasion with respect to the Harvey letter in the presence of Mr. Watts, who brought it over to the directors.

The Master—And of the Board of Directors?

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon?

The Master—In the presence of Mr. Watts and the Board of Directors?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. At a meeting of the board.

Mr. Whipple—At which the trustees were not present.

The Master—At which, of course, the trustees do not appear to have been present. It was not a conference.

Mr. Krauthoff—They were not present in their physical person.

The Master—Don't your records show what took place?

Mr. Krauthoff—The record recites that Mr. Watts read the letter, but the record is not written with the precision and fullness of a Congressional Record, and does not record all the conversation.

The Master—That would mean, then, an interview between the full Board of Directors and Mr. Watts?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, who brought the letter over, the letter that had been written to the Board of Trustees, containing the statement of fact of which the trustees then complained to the board, through Mr. Watts, and of which we were advised—we were advised until a few moments ago by Mr. Whipple that they still complain—

The Master—I think that I shall allow you to state what was said. I do not understand what you intend to bring out by your question about the circumstances quite.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I meant by that what was said, if Your Honor please; but I will adopt Your Honor's suggestion.

Q. State what was said on that occasion when Mr. Watts brought this letter over. A. Mr. Watts called me by telephone and asked if he might see the board—

The Master—Oh, no; you are beginning too far back. Come to the meeting.

Q. Take the meeting and tell us what happened there. A. He read the letter at the meeting, and then said, "Now, we would like to know what the directors intend to do about this." "Well," I said, "Mr. Watts, that is not a letter from the directors to anybody; it is a private communication and not addressed to the directors; really it hasn't anything to do with the meeting of this board."

Q. What, if anything, did Mr. Dittmore say in Mr. Watts' presence? A. Mr. Dittmore said, "Well, it just may be that that letter refers to me, because I think I was in New York about that time, but, if it were not for that fact, I don't think I should recognize the letter as applying to me; but I was there, and I did have luncheon with some gentlemen there."

Q. Did you go to New York and make any statements of any kind such as are described in that letter, to anybody? A. No, nothing of the kind.

Q. At any time? A. At any time.

Q. Was anything else said at that meeting of Jan. 24, 1919, between Mr. Watts on the one hand and the several directors on the other, with respect to the affairs of the Publishing Society? I mean the relation of the Publishing Society to the Church? A. I believe there was quite a good deal said on that occasion, and if that is the day on which Mr. Watts read from the Bible, there was quite a good deal; but I am not clear that that was the day.

Q. You don't think that that is the day? A. And I don't recall any of the rest of the conversation that took place at that time.

Q. On Saturday, Jan. 25, 1919, you were advised of the conference between your counsel on the one hand and Mr. Whipple on the other? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On that occasion, according to the letter of Judge Hughes that has been read in evidence, Judge Smith spoke of four different subjects. Were those the only things that were at that time open between the trustees and the directors, or were they typical or representative?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to.

The Master—I am trying to recollect what you refer to by the letters of Judge Hughes.

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter of Judge Hughes, if Your Honor please, is the opinion of the counsel, a portion of which is printed in evidence in this case—I mean a portion of which is printed in the bill in this case.

The Master—Of Jan. 27, 1919?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, and all of which—

The Master—Then should you not say Judge Hughes and two others—Mr. Strawn and Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, I should.

Q. You are—

The Master—What do you wish to ask him about that?

Q. You are familiar with the letter of Jan. 27, 1919, written by Messrs. Charles E. Hughes, Silas H. Strawn, and Sherman L. Whipple to the Board of Directors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That has been heretofore introduced in evidence as Exhibit 22. And you remember that in that letter, Mr. Dickey, reference is made to four questions that Judge Smith took up with Mr. Whipple at the conference of Jan. 25, 1919? A. I believe so.

Q. That is, the four questions were, first, that the directors claimed the sole right to determine the acceptance of branch churches, and that the trustees should not assume the responsibility; second, with respect to the questionnaire sent out by the trustees to practitioners as a step precedent to the insertion of cards in the Journal; third, the so-called anti-Roman Catholic editorial policy of The Monitor; and, fourth, the editorial entitled "A Mad World." Were those the only questions that were open at that time between the trustees and the directors? A. No, sir.

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please. In order to tell what was open, and what controversies had been or were then existing, we have got to have some other statement than that. We have to introduce evidence as to what had been said, and I do really think that we have got about all the writings and about all the interviews that there were between the parties so as to state pretty well what the controversy was, what the issues were. We want the issues stated as they then were, not as the witness now thinks they were.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, this letter shows that on Jan. 25, 1919, there was a conference between counsel, at which Judge Smith spoke of four matters. We are now proving generally by this witness that those were not the only four matters that were open at that time. Now, as to what other matters were open at that time, the Court, of course, will determine that upon the whole evidence in the case. We are merely asking now, as preliminary to a further question, whether those were the only things that were open. Now, as to whether—

The Master—Why can't the Court equally well determine that question upon the record in the case?

Mr. Krauthoff—I assume that it can, if Your Honor please. I was about to ask the witness about the details of these four questions, but I am constrained now to leave that until some further contention is made with regard to it. I will not take up the time of the Court now in particular unless the—

The Master—I think that that might be just as well, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. Now, with respect to this letter of counsel for the trustees of Jan. 27, 1919, offered in evidence as Exhibit 22, copies of that reached the directors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you studied them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And considered them?

The Master—I suppose that you mean that a copy reached each director—is that it?

The Witness—Yes, sir.

The Master—If a letter was read at the directors' meeting, that shows that the letter reached the directors, does it not?

Q. Each of the directors received a copy of it? A. They did.

Q. That is, the clerk of the Church made copies and gave one to each of the directors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, as you were advised, a further conference was held on Saturday, Feb. 1, 1919, at which Messrs. Hughes and Strawn and Whipple were present for the trustees, and Messrs.

Bates and Abbott and Smith and Krauthoff for the directors? A. Yes.

Q. And you were advised on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 1, 1919, by letter, of the result of that conference? A. We were.

Q. On Feb. 3, 1919, did you meet with the trustees? A. We did.

Q. At what time, and where? A. We met in the board room of The Mother Church, I believe, at noon.

Q. I asked you, Mr. Dickey, if you had been advised of that conference by a letter. I am reminded that you were first advised orally of it? A. Yes.

Q. That is, your counsel came to the church? A. Counsel came to our meeting there, and told us what had transpired at the meeting of counsel.

Q. And, whatever letter you received, you received afterward? A. Subsequently to that interview.

Q. On Feb. 3, 1919, did the trustees meet with some members of the Board of Directors? A. They did.

Q. Who were present at that meeting? A. Messrs. Merritt, Rathvon, and Dickey.

Q. Where was Mr. Neal at that time? A. Mr. Neal was in Florida.

Q. Do you know how long he was in Florida in the early part of 1919? A. Perhaps over a month.

Q. And did Mr. Dittmore remain for the meeting between the— A. He did not.

Q. Now, state what was said on Feb. 3, 1919, by any of the directors to any of the trustees at that meeting, in the presence of all the directors and the trustees then present—all of the three trustees and the three directors—being careful to say what individual said it, and restricting yourself to what was said by anybody. A. Of course, I cannot repeat the conversation verbally, but, in substance, after the usual greetings, the secretary of the trustees produced certain correspondence that they had been having with practitioners and churches in the field relative to the printing of their cards in the Journal, and they said that it was understood that they were to turn this business now over to the directors, and we accepted that as a part of the compliance with the agreement that counsel had had on the Saturday previous.

Q. What else was said and done at that meeting? A. Then a general conversation ensued. After we had disposed of the question of cards, Mr. Rowlands, I believe, said, "Well, what reason is there now why we can't adjust all our differences and go right along and conduct the business in perfect harmony, as it has always been done before this difficulty arose?" I said, "I hope that we can do that. That is the object of our visit," or "of your visit," rather, "to us." And one of the trustees said, "Well, as far as we are concerned, we will be very glad to call everything off and end our disagreements right here."

The Master—Would it be better if he tried to state who said it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Quite right.

Q. Will you state who said it? A. I believe it was Mr. Rowlands, because he was acting as spokesman at the time, but the others concurred in whatever he said.

Q. I beg your pardon. What did they say, Mr. Dickey? It is not proper to state generally that they concurred. You must state what they said, if anything. If they remained silent— A. Well, they said that they hoped that that arrangement could be made; that that was perfectly satisfactory to them.

Q. Did each of them say so? A. Well, they each said it in those words, or something akin to it. They all gave their approval.

Q. What was said, if anything, about the Church Manual on that occasion? A. Well, we went on to talk about the whole situation, and how we could work this question out; and I said, "Of course, gentlemen, it is understood that anything that we agree to here is based upon the compliance of the trustees with all the requirements of the Manual, as well as the trust deed under which they hold office." Mr. Rowlands said, "Why, certainly. We couldn't think of attempting to do anything without obeying the Manual." Mr. Eustace and Mr. Ogden also agreed to that. Then I said, "We must also understand that whatever we do from this time henceforth must be done with the understanding that Mrs. Eddy's demonstration of Church government is to be upheld, that is to say, that the form of Church government which she has established, and for which the Christian—the Church Manual has been written must be upheld by the trustees." They were quite agreeable to that, and it was agreed then by all of them, and by all of us, that whatever should be done hereafter, it should be done under exact obedience to the Manual of The Mother Church as well as the Deed of Trust.

Q. You say—

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, that statement of the agreement I will ask to have stricken out.

Q. Will you please state what—

Mr. Whipple—Just one moment. Let us have that passed upon. The witness undertook to state an agreement. I am not objecting to the conversation; but of course we get in a statement of that sort nothing reflected except the idea of the man himself, and it is not a statement of testimony.

Q. Will you please—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment.

Mr. Krauthoff—That motion may be sustained, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—All right, if that is stricken out.

Q. Now, will you please state what was said, Mr. Dickey, by any one of the trustees or by any one of the directors in their presence, on that subject? A. Mr. Ogden said, "Well, now, we have had some letters of inquiry from the field regarding the situation between the two boards. What shall we say in reply to them?" I said, "Why, you can tell them just what has happened here—that the two boards have met, and their differences have been adjusted on the basis of compliance with the Church Manual, and whatever a Christian Scientist understands to be the right thing to do under such circumstances."

Q. Mr. Dickey, I want to remind you that a moment ago you stated what you all agreed to, and, on the motion of Mr. Whipple, that was stricken out, on the ground that it was not proper for you to state what people agreed to do— A. Yes, sir.

Q. Going back to that statement, what did anybody say on that subject of what the relation of the trustees and the directors to the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust should be on and after Feb. 3, 1919? A. Mr. Eustace spoke at length on that subject, and said that they had never intended to violate the Church Manual, and that they never would do so; that, as Christian Scientists, they felt that that could be worked out in conjunction with the Deed of Trust without a single discord.

Q. Did you state fully the substance of all that Mr. Eustace said? A. I think that that is the substance. And also to comply and conform to the form of Church government established by Mrs. Eddy. Those two points were made very specific.

Q. Now, how is the form of Church—

Mr. Whipple—That, if Your Honor please, I would like to have stricken out. That is not part of the conversation.

The Master—I took it to mean that they were made specific, by Mr. Eustace in what he said. If that is wrong, I suppose that it should be stricken out.

Q. What did any of the trustees say about the form of Church government as established by Mrs. Eddy? A. Mr. Ogden agreed—

Q. Don't say he "agreed." A. I beg your pardon, sir. Mr. Ogden stated that that was his understanding of our arrangement, and that he would be glad to comply with that. Mr. Rowlands also made the same statement.

Q. What I am trying to get at is this, Mr. Dickey: Did anybody on that occasion and in that conversation use the phrase "the plan of Church government as established by Mrs. Eddy"? A. Why, yes, that phrase, and they said that they accepted it.

Q. Wait a minute. What did you say to that, that is, the plan of Church government as established by Mrs. Eddy? Please state what you said, Mr. Dickey? A. I said that it must be understood that the trustees not only agreed to carry out the specific terms of the Church Manual, but that they also shall uphold and sustain Mrs.

Eddy's form of Church government as set forth in the Manual.

Q. Now, in response to that, what did any trustee say? Please state in substance what was said. A. Mr. Rowlands stated that they never intended to do anything short of that, that that would be agreeable to him. Mr. Eustace said that that would be satisfactory to him, and that he would comply with it. Mr. Ogden also made the same statement.

Q. Now, was anything else said on that occasion which you desire to add to your testimony? A. Well, we talked—yes, Mr. —

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me, if Your Honor please, but—

The Master—I had hoped that we might be able to complete the account of this conversation before the adjournment.

Mr. Krauthoff—All right. Go ahead, Mr. Dickey.

The Witness—Mr. Rowlands said, "Now, that everything is adjusted, why can't you gentlemen come over and take luncheon with us?"—No; I beg your pardon; that was at the end, after we had gone away. I think that I have told all that occurred, in substance. Of course the conversation lasted perhaps for an hour—

The Master—Then I think you may leave out the invitation to luncheon, that, it is said, did not take place at the conference.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I would not feel that it would be just to Mr. Rowlands in view of what he did on that occasion if I acceded to the suggestion. I would like to have that statement stand.

The Master—It might be proper to let it stand, except that the witness now recalls his statement, and says that that was something that followed the conversation that he testified to.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, that followed. That is all on that, then.

The Master—Shall we stop here until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock?

Mr. Krauthoff—That will be agreeable to us.

[Adjourned to 10 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, July 22, 1919.]

July 22, 1919

NINETEENTH DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room
Boston, Massachusetts, July 22, 1919.

Mr. Withington—Mr. Whipple is delayed in the single justice session, but he asked that we not wait for him.

The Master—Mr. Krauthoff, Mr. Whipple says not to wait for him. He is in a session of the Supreme Court here. You may proceed. He requests us not to wait for him.

Adam H. Dickey, Resumed

Q. (By Mr. Krauthoff.) Mr. Dickey, your attention has been called to the testimony of Mr. Watts with respect to his visit on Jan. 27, 1919, to the Board of Directors at which Mr. Watts read from the Bible, and in which the expression was used with respect to the publishing house becoming "an empty shell." A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you anything to add to the testimony of Mr. Watts on that subject, or anything in conflict with it?

The Master—You do not quite mean that, do you—"add to Mr. Watts' testimony"? How could he do that?

Q. I mean, what was the conversation on that occasion, Mr. Dickey, between Mr. Watts and the trustees? A. When Mr. Watts came at our request to that meeting one of the members said to him, "Now, Mr. Watts, we would like to know from you as our appointee just what your position is in regard to this controversy between the trustees and the directors." And as nearly as I can recall, Mr. Watts said, "Why, I can't take any sides on that question; my purpose and object is to be the manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and as such I feel that I must be governed by my sense of Principle and right." One of the directors said, "Well, Mr. Watts, what would you do in case the board should dismiss a trustee?"

Mr. Streeter—Which director was that, please, Mr. Krauthoff?

The Witness—That might have been Mr. Merritt.

Q. Not what it might have been, but what is your best recollection of who it was? A. I can't definitely say. I know that the statement was made to Mr. Watts. I don't remember exactly who made the statement. But it was made by one of the directors.

Q. May I remind you that the full board was present on that occasion? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And are you able with that information to state which one it was? A. I cannot, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. Go ahead.

The Master—Now, has he finished what he has to say about that conversation?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, he has not. Mr. Streeter—

The Master—Let him complete it.

Mr. Krauthoff—General Streeter asked a question.

Q. Will you go ahead, Mr. Dickey? A. Mr. Watts was asked what he would do, what action he would take if one of the trustees were dismissed, and he said, "Well, I just cannot tell; I would have to know what the conditions were and for what reason he would be dismissed." And I think—yes, it was Mr. Dittmore that said to him, "Mr. Watts, do you mean to say you would not uphold the action of this board in carrying out a requirement of the Church Manual?" And Mr. Watts said, "I could only reiterate that I would have to be governed by Principle." He asked him what right he would have as an appointee of the board to do anything else than accept the view of the board as given in the Church Manual and in the Deed of Trust. Mr. Watts replied that as a thinking man he would have to take that under consideration for himself. Mr. Dittmore then proceeded to talk to Mr. Watts along this line—

The Master—No, no; what he said.

The Witness—He said, "Mr. Watts, I suppose you know what would happen if the trustees should make any definite attempt to separate themselves from the Church; do you suppose for one moment that the field in Christian Science would tolerate anything of that kind from the trustees?" And Mr. Watts said, "I do not think they would." Mr. Dittmore said, "Can't you see the inevitable consequences of such an action; if this Church is to publish the literature of this movement and the Publishing Society undertakes to take away and usurp the right of the directors to publish the literature of the Church, that the business would fall off and that the field would cease to support literature that did not emanate from The Mother Church; can't you see that the inevitable result of that would be that the publishing house would be left an empty shell?"

Q. Is that all, Mr. Dickey? A. There was more said, of course, Mr. Krauthoff, but I just can't recall everything that was said.

Q. Was Mr. Watts asked on that occasion— A. I asked Mr. Watts—I said, "Mr. Watts, are you representing the Publishing Society in a legal way?" He said, "No, sir, I am not." I said, "I have heard that you were so doing." He said, "I am not representing them in a legal way at all."

Q. And then Mr. Watts read from the Bible, as he testified? A. Yes, he did.

Q. Was any question then asked with respect to the Bible reading? A. Mr. Rathvon asked him something about what he had read, but I don't recall just what his question was.

Q. Then the next incident was the afternoon of Feb. 1, 1919, at which the board was advised orally of the conference between counsel? A. Yes, sir.

[At this point Mr. Whipple arrived.]

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, now that Mr. Whipple has arrived, on yesterday some request was made for some reasons which the directors are thought to have put in writing with respect to the dismissal of these trustees. My research of that is not entirely complete and I will be able to report further at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Whipple—You remember, also, Mr. Krauthoff, that I asked for the production of certain letters, or a letter which was testified to by the witness as having been sent to him in Savannah, which it alleged to have been the cause of a very marked change of attitude between the time when he left, according to his testimony, and his suggestions that the trustees be dismissed one by one, or subjected to Church discipline as soon as he got down there.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, sir.

Mr. Whipple—May I ask if you have found any of those letters?

Q. What was your statement, Mr. Dickey, about the letter which you received in the south advising you that the board had asked for the resignation of the trustees? A. I looked through my files, and I also asked Mr. Jarvis to look through his. I found nothing, and I understood that he had found nothing. So I stated yesterday that I thought it must have been a personal letter to me from one of the trustees which I have not retained.

Q. One of the trustees? A. I beg your pardon; one of the directors.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, I remember he made that statement, but I suggested then, and you thanked me for the suggestion as a helpful one, that he make inquiry among his fellow directors and see if he could not find, perchance, that some of them remembered about it and had a copy of it. Apparently that suggestion has been neglected.

Mr. Krauthoff—We have not interviewed the other directors, because we have been pretty busy interviewing ourselves.

Mr. Whipple—They seem to be pretty near to you, and perhaps since they are within the sound of our voices they may have looked it up to see whether they did find any such letter, or a copy of a letter, or remember about it. Perhaps they have been too busy to look it up.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will look into that, too, Mr. Whipple. Thank you.

Mr. Whipple—And perhaps without further prompting from you they will do it.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I inquire of Mr. Whipple as to which of the counsel for the plaintiffs added the pencil memoranda on the documents that I now show him (handing papers to Mr. Whipple).

Mr. Whipple—The instrument which you have handed me consists of two sheets. The words on each sheet, or the letters, O. K., C. E. H., S. L. W., S. H. S., on both sheets, the initials were written by Judge Hughes, by Mr. Strawn, and by myself. The legend "O. K.," I think, is in my own handwriting. At the bottom of each page is a penciling in the handwriting of Mr. Strawn.

On the first page of the memorandum there is an insertion after the words "By the Trustees" and before the words "as conclusive" of these words, "for the purpose of publication." Those penciled words are in the handwriting of Mr. Strawn.

At the bottom of the first page are these words, in parentheses: "(This work has heretofore been done by the trustees at the request of the Board of Directors and by their authority, and not by the trustees under the Deed of Trust)."

On the second page there are the words inserted between the words "nurses" and "to be recognized," as follows: "who are members of The Mother Church." Those are inserted in Mr. Strawn's handwriting. And then at the bottom of this page is written in parentheses, "(This work has heretofore been done by the trustees at the request of the Board of Directors and by their authority, and not by the trustees under the Deed of Trust)."

With your permission, I will hand that to His Honor so that he can see what has been done.

Mr. Krauthoff—For the information of the Court I may state that these two sheets of paper are the memoranda of the conference held between the counsel on Feb. 1, 1919, at which Messrs. Hughes, Whipple, and Strawn represented the trustees, and Messrs. Bates, Abbott, Smith, and Krauthoff represented the directors. The memoranda is set out in full in Exhibit No. 23, being the letter from John L. Bates and others to the counsel for the trustees, under date of Feb. 6, 1919.

We desire at this time to have the documents marked for identification.

Mr. Whipple—These are not memoranda of the conference; they are memoranda which were drawn up as the result of the conference.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, memoranda as the result of the conference.

The Master—Whose memoranda? Who made them?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, the counsel. They are made by the counsel.

The Master—Counsel for which side?

Mr. Krauthoff—Both sides.

The Master—Oh, they are agreed memoranda by counsel?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. The way it was done was that we, the counsel for the directors, initialed one set and gave them to the counsel for the trustees, and the counsel for the trustees initialed the other set and gave them to us. These are the set which the counsel for the trustees initialed and gave to the counsel for the directors.

The Master—Thank you.

Mr. Whipple—I think possibly it would be a little clearer reply to Your Honor's question to say that after having oral discussion in which certain points of agreement were reached, counsel for the directors retired and attempted to draft, and the typewritten part of these two sheets is the work which was brought back to counsel for the trustees as the handiwork of counsel for the directors. The amendments were written in by Mr. Strawn after the rough sheets were brought back, and the papers were then O. K.'d by the initials of the respective counsel, after having been read.

Mr. Streeter—Now, Mr. Krauthoff, you say this memorandum has been printed. What exhibit is it?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is set out in full in Exhibit 24 on page 30. They have not been printed as separate and distinct memoranda. They are set out in full in the letter of John L. Bates and others of Feb. 6, 1919.

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, these memoranda are important, and they stand by themselves, and I would prefer to have them printed in connection with this Feb. 3 record.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is agreeable to us. We now offer both of them in evidence.

The Master—What is the object of printing them over again if they have been printed once?

Mr. Streeter—Well, simply for convenience of reference.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is thought, if Your Honor please, that, in view of the statement by Mr. Whipple as to what part of it has been placed therein in lead pencil, and by whom, it would be more convenient if the statement of Mr. Whipple and the document be placed in juxtaposition rather than requiring us to go back to an earlier stage in the record for comparison.

The Master—If that is the desire of all counsel, I have no objection, but I do not see the necessity myself.

Mr. Krauthoff—They are not very long.

The Master—You are going to have them marked, at any rate, for identification.

Mr. Krauthoff—I offer them in evidence, if Your Honor please, as exhibits.

The Master—Can you print them with all these lead pencil memoranda? The typewritten contents, you have had printed once already.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—The important thing added by the testimony this morning is the memoranda in pencil upon them and the source of those memoranda.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Are you going to reproduce those in print?

Mr. Bates—Your Honor, the additions in pencil there are also a part of what is in print already; in other words, it is in print exactly as it is there, with the exception of the minutes which indicate the O. K.'ing by counsel through their initials. The reason it is offered now is to call Your Honor's attention to the fact that those additions were made by counsel, those additions in regard to this work having been done previously at the request of counsel.

The Master—It seems to me that what you want to do, whether you print it or do not print it, is to have them identified.

Mr. Krauthoff—As an exhibit, both of them.

The Master—They are really one document.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple spoke of the first paper and the second paper.

Mr. Whipple—The first sheet and the second sheet, I think I said.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, all right. They can be made one document, then; and

I was going to suggest with regard to the printing, if it is agreeable to all concerned, that the lead pencil interlineations be printed entirely in capital letters, and that will show what is interlined in pencil.

Mr. Whipple—I see no reason for that.

Mr. Bates—There is no reason for that. Mr. Whipple's statement explains what the interlineations are.

The Master—You had better attach them in some way and mark the two together as exhibits, for identification.

[The first page of the memoranda referred to is marked Exhibit 678. R. H. J.]

On the top of the page, written in ink, is, "(ORIGINAL)."

Stamped at the top of the page, near the middle, in red ink, are the words, "COPIES SENT TO DIRECTORS FEB. 3, 1919," followed by the words written in ink, "& to Judge Smith and Atty. Krauthoff," and then the stamped word and figures "FEB. 4, 1919."

In the upper right-hand corner is a stamp in red ink "THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE BOARD OF DIRECTORS, FEB. 3, 1919," with a hand on a dial apparently pointing to 6:45.

On the upper left-hand corner, written in pencil, is the following: "O. K. C. E. H. S. L. W. S. H. S."

The typewritten portion of the paper is as follows:

"It is understood by The Christian Science Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, and the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society as follows:

"(1) The responsibility for all decisions in regard to recognizing branches and societies of The Mother Church rests with The Christian Science Board of Directors. To this end, all preliminary correspondence on the subject named shall be conducted by the directors and not by the trustees. When a branch church or society of The Mother Church has been recognized as such by the directors, upon proper application made in accordance with the rules of The Christian Science Publishing Society, the services of such a church or society may be advertised in The Christian Science Journal. The recognition by the directors of the church or society as a branch of The Mother Church shall be accepted by the trustees" (this is followed by a caret in pencil, and written above it in pencil are the words "for the purposes of publication") "as conclusive evidence of the fact that such branch church or society has been properly organized as a branch church or society. The card of a church or society not so recognized by the directors shall not be inserted in the Journal. As a condition precedent to recognition or its continuance, churches or societies shall be required to insert and have continued a card in the Journal."

The following is written in pencil at the foot of the page:

"(This work has heretofore been done by the trustees at the request of the Board of Directors and by their authority and not by the trustees under the Deed of Trust)."

The second page is stamped in the upper righthand corner, "The Christian Science Board of Directors, Feb. 3, 1919," with a hand on a dial apparently pointing to 6:24.

On the upper lefthand corner, written in pencil, is the following: "O. K. C. E. H. S. L. W. S. H. S."

The typewritten portion of the paper is as follows:

"(2) The responsibility for the determination of the eligibility of practitioners and nurses" (this is followed by a caret in pencil, and written above it in pencil are the words, "who are members of The Mother Church") "to be recognized as such rests with The Christian Science Board of Directors. To this end, all preliminary correspondence on the subject named shall be conducted by the directors and not by the trustees. When the directors have determined that a practitioner or nurse be recognized as such, upon proper application made in accordance with the rules of The Christian Science Publishing Society, such a practitioner or nurse may have a card inserted in the Journal. The determination by the directors of such recognition shall be accepted by the trustees as conclusive evidence of the eligibility of such practitioner or nurse to be advertised as such. The card of a practitioner or nurse not so recognized by the directors shall not be inserted in the Journal."

The following is written in pencil at the foot of the page:

"(This work has heretofore been done by the trustees at the request of the Board of Directors and by their authority and not by the trustees under the Deed of Trust)."

Q. Coming down to Feb. 5, 1919, two days after this first conference with the trustees, do you recall the circumstance of the letter of Judge Smith of Feb. 5, 1919, which has been read in evidence as Exhibit No. 25? A. I do.

Q. Being read to the Board of Directors? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Whipple—What page is that?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is on printed page 34 of the record, page 34 of the printed record.

Mr. Whipple—Thank you.

Q. Did you see Mr. Eustace after you received that letter? A. Yes, sir. I asked Mr. Eustace to come to my house about two or three days after that meeting with the directors where that letter of Judge Smith was read and copies given to the directors.

Q. Mr. Dickey, let me call your attention to this: The trustees' record shows that Mr. Eustace reported on the 7th of February, two days after the 5th. Are you able to fix the day any more closely than that? A. I think perhaps the 6th would be the right date.

Q. Did Mr. Eustace come to your house? A. He did.

Q. About what time of day? A. About 5 o'clock in the evening.

Q. At that time you were living in Brookline? A. At 1101 Beacon Street.

Q. Now, just state what the conversation was on that occasion between you and Mr. Eustace.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. That I object to. I see no ground on which it is admissible. It is quite true that heretofore I have not pressed the objection with reference to these private conversations. They are not official in any way, not official communications. Here is an attempt to put in evidence with regard to a private conversation between two individuals. If it is for the purpose of contradicting Mr. Eustace in any way, it might be admissible, provided the contradiction was of a material point. But I understand that it apparently is offered for another purpose, and we object to it.

Mr. Krauthoff — If Your Honor please, this is a conversation to which Mr. Eustace has testified, and is the basis of the claim which Mr. Whipple has made on several occasions, that within 48 hours after the adjustment of Feb. 3, 1919, the directors broke it, and Mr. Eustace characterized the incident of this letter being handed him as the most dishonorable thing that has ever happened in the history of the world; and we offer to prove the circumstances under which Mr. Dickey handed this letter, which the plaintiffs have introduced in evidence, to Mr. Eustace.

The Master — Mr. Krauthoff says that this conversation has been testified to by Mr. Eustace.

Mr. Whipple—That is, it is in contradiction of that testimony, is that why you offer it?

Mr. Krauthoff—We are going to contradict Mr. Eustace's statement, and we offer the circumstances in connection with it.

Mr. Whipple—Is this evidence offered for the purpose of contradiction?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—That is, to contradict Mr. Eustace in regard to this?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

Q. State what happened on the occasion that you gave Mr. Eustace that letter, and how you happened to give it to him? A. I said to Mr. Eustace. "We are"—"we" meaning the Board of Directors—"are receiving a great many letters from Christian Scientists in the field who are making demands on us to know why we have not carried out the terms of the Manual and dismissed the trustees of the Publishing Society." I said, "This seems to be something that we have no control over, and inasmuch as we can only report to them that we have had a verbal agreement with you, and that we are proceeding along the lines of your agreement to carry out the terms of the Deed of Trust and the Manual of The Mother Church in perfect harmony, it seems necessary that we should have something definite that we can show or refer to as a signed agreement. Now," I said, "we had a talk with our counsel, Judge Smith, the other day, and he submitted to us a letter which I would like to read to you." And Mr. Eustace said, "Now, Mr. Dickey, there is one thing I want to say about your counsel. If you would drop Judge Smith and just keep him out of this question altogether, we would get along a whole lot better." "Well," I said, "we can't very well do that. Judge Smith has been very valuable to us on a great many occasions, and we consider his advice in regard to Church matters as particularly valuable to us. But I would like to read this letter to you," which I did. Then he asked me if he might take it. I said, "Yes, I would be glad to let you have it." So I gave it to him. That was the letter that Mr. Eustace referred to in his testimony as wondering if it were confidential; and there was nothing in my thought about its being confidential.

Q. That is, the giving of it to Mr. Eustace was not regarded as confidential? A. Yes. I asked Mr. Eustace—I said, "Now, won't you men take this under consideration and do something to settle this question and get it in a more definite shape?" "Well," he said, "we will think about it."

Q. Was there anything said on that occasion by Mr. Eustace with respect to its being a dishonorable act on your part in giving this letter to him, or having this letter? A. Nothing whatever; nothing at all.

Q. Was there any incident of an unpleasant nature in that conference at all? A. No unpleasantness of any kind at all.

Q. Was that letter given with any statement on your part, or any intention on your part, of breaking any arrangement or any agreement that had theretofore been made with the trustees? A. No, sir.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. If it were a breach of the agreement the intention is of no consequence, and it is perfectly plain on the record whether it was a breach of agreement or not.

The Master—Shall we not have to judge of that from the conversation as testified to?

Mr. Krauthoff—I guess that that is right, if Your Honor please, except that I understood generally that whenever anybody was charged with having done a particular thing, he had a right to give his own intention, and then the Court would determine what it was; but he has a right to state whether he intended to break any agreement, whether he did it for that purpose, or whether he did it merely to evidence an agreement already made.

Mr. Whipple — The memorandum that you put in this morning shows conclusively what the agreement was, and as to the matter agreed in there, so that we have their contention, and it so states.

Mr. Krauthoff—But the incident of Feb. 1, 1919, to which Mr. Whipple has just referred, was followed by the conference of the parties themselves on Feb. 3, 1919, at which, as we understand it, they came to a complete understanding, and there was nothing left open.

Mr. Whipple—You have a very strange understanding.

Mr. Krauthoff—And now we are charged, after having come to a complete understanding on Feb. 3, 1919, with having done a dishonorable thing in giving Mr. Eustace this letter of Feb. 6, 1919, and we are desirous of proving the intention of Mr. Dickey in doing so, whether he had any thought of breaking any agreement or doing anything dishonorable. Of course, it not being conclusive, the Court has to determine it ultimately, but where a person's actions are colored by adjectives, he has a right to show the nature and intention of his act, submitting, of course, to the judgment of the Court whether his statement is true or not.

The Master—Is your objection insisted upon?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—I think I shall let you ask him, subject to objection. On the whole, that will be the better course, rather than to exclude it peremptorily.

Q. Was there any intention on your part, in submitting this letter to Mr. Eustace of date Feb. 5, 1919, of breaking any agreement that you had theretofore made as directors with the trustees, or doing anything that you regarded as dishonorable? A. None whatever.

Q. And what was the purpose of showing the letter to Mr. Eustace?

The Master—That is going—

A. My purpose was to induce him—

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Witness—I beg your pardon.

The Master—I think that that is going a little further, is it not?

The Witness—I would like to add this, that occurred in the conversation. I said, "Well, Mr. Eustace, I have known you a long time, and I can't believe that it is your intention or your purpose, to do anything that would affect our Church." And he said, "Why, Mr. Dickey, I wouldn't do a thing in the world to affect our Church, and you may rest assured of this, that there will be no separation between the Publishing Society and the Church, and nothing done on our part that would tend to such a consummation." "Well," I said, "thank God for that; I am glad to know it."

Q. The next incident to which I desire to call your attention, Mr. Dickey, is the conference of Feb. 10, 1919, at which, according to the records of the board, Messrs. Dittmore, Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon met with the trustees, and at which was presented this short memorandum which is set out in the record of the board, of Feb. 10, 1919, and which has heretofore been read in evidence. Now, I haven't yesterday's record before me. It is in the record of Feb. 10. Do you recall that meeting, Mr. Dickey? A. Yes, I do. That was a meeting at which Mr. Dittmore was present.

Q. Was that memorandum presented to the trustees for their signature on that occasion? A. It was.

Q. And with what result? A. They declined to—

Q. I beg your pardon. What did they say? It is my fault. A. Mr. Rowlands said, "We will not sign anything. If we can't agree to go along and work this thing out through demonstration on the lines already declared, we will sign nothing."

Q. Do you recall on that occasion Mr. Rathvon reading the letter that has been introduced in evidence? A. I do.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I inquire at this time whether Mr. Rathvon's memorandum of Feb. 10, 1919, was introduced in evidence? (Consulting with Mr. Bates.) That has been referred to, but not yet introduced.

Q. What else occurred on that occasion in that conversation? A. Well, the interview lasted, perhaps, for an hour and a number of questions were put to the trustees and they made a number of replies. I cannot at this time state specifically just what occurred, but if I may be allowed to state the substance of the whole interview—

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Dickey, and state it. A. I would like to. It was to the effect—

Q. No, you will have to state the substance of what anybody said, not the substance of the interview. A. Well, I don't recall just what each individual stated, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. Was anything said on that occasion with respect to there being one head to the Christian Science Church? A. Yes. I made the statement that "You surely would not accuse Mrs. Eddy of starting a movement with two heads," and Mr. Eustace said, "No, nothing of the kind, but she did start a movement with two bodies of trustees, one of which she intended to balance the other."

Q. What did you then say with respect to that? A. Why, I said that such a thing would be an impossibility, as to have a church with two organizations with equal power; and Mr. Eustace's contention was that the trustees were endowed with equal power to the directors.

Mr. Whipple—That I move be stricken out, if Your Honor please—treated as a contention by the witness.

Q. What did Mr. Eustace say, in words? A. His statement was what I have said.

Q. What, if anything, did Mr. Eustace say as to the head of the Church being Mrs. Eddy's writings? A. Mr. Eustace said that he would have to put his interpretation on the Manual for himself; that he could not allow the directors to interpret it. "But," I said, "Mr. Eustace, any document must have some person or somebody to interpret or enforce it." I said, "The Trust Deed that you are operating under cannot operate as a written instrument of itself without somebody to act as trustees and enforce the agreement or the articles contained therein." And I said, "In the same way there has to be a responsible head to the Christian Science Church, and Mrs. Eddy has made that responsible head the Board of Directors. Now," I said, "we don't like to claim power and we are not seeking power, but it just so happens that that is her form of church government, and our sole duty is to accept that responsibility and carry it out as long as we are directors."

Q. Did you on that occasion refer to any conversation that you had with Mrs. Eddy personally on that subject? A. Well, I don't know whether it was on that occasion, but I did, in talks I had with the trustees, tell them that Mrs. Eddy had stated to me that—

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Krauthoff—I cannot see the point of the objection to what Mrs. Eddy has said to Mr. Dickey and which he repeated to the trustees.

Mr. Whipple—I understood him to say that he could not say certainly that he did repeat it to the trustees.

The Witness—I did repeat it, but I wasn't sure it was at that meeting, Mr. Whipple. We had a number of meetings following each other very closely, and I had several interviews, three of them myself, with the trustees in their own office, and at all of these times I was trying to show them what the—

Q. One minute. A. Beg pardon.

Q. Not what you were trying to show them. A. All right.

Q. What you said will have to speak for itself. A. Well, I told them that Mrs. Eddy had told me that every organization of any kind, a government or an army or a commercial enterprise or a church, must have one responsible head; and she said that in the case of her Church she had put and was continually putting the responsibility of church government on the directors. I told them that that was her custom; that when anything came up for her decision from the field or in connection with her Church, she would usually refer it to the directors to see how they would handle it.

Q. And these statements of Mrs. Eddy that you have testified you made to the trustees—were they made to you by Mrs. Eddy?

A. They were.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. That I object to.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

The Master. You would not claim, would you, that statements made by Mrs. Eddy to this witness alone, not going any further, could be material in this case?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, we think so. They were made to him at a time when he was her secretary, with respect to the discharge of his duties as such, with respect to the administration of the Church of which she was the Leader, of the religion of which she was the Discoverer and the Founder, and they stand as evidences of what Mrs. Eddy thought was for the good of the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, there are perhaps two aspects of the question: the legal aspect, and under that it seems to me there can be no question that this is entirely hearsay and cannot be reproduced. In the second place, looking at it from the Church's point of view, as I understand what is proposed, it is a flagrant violation of what Mrs. Eddy herself has said with regard to quoting her; because she provided in the Manual, in Section 8 of Article XXII, "A strictly private communication from the Pastor Emeritus to a member of her Church shall not be made public without her written consent." And throughout, in order that just this thing should not be done, she insisted that she should not be quoted except in things that she put out over her own signature. That is beside the mark as far as this case is concerned, perhaps, but I would like to call it to the attention of some of these gentlemen who are speaking so zealously in behalf of abiding by Mrs. Eddy's words and directions.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, with respect to that, if Your Honor please, here is not a private communication as that word is used in the Manual. In addition, the bill tenders the issue that these directors relied upon certain alleged expressions of Mrs. Eddy in their conversation with the trustees, and we have the right—

Mr. Whipple—Written, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, I beg pardon.

Mr. Whipple—Written.

Mr. Krauthoff—The bill does not say written expressions; it says certain alleged expressions by Mrs. Eddy, and we have a right to show that we did make these statements to these trustees, and that Mrs. Eddy did make them to Mr. Dickey. They also, if Your Honor please, plead her general intent to create a movement which would be divided in two parts, and which would have a Publishing Society separate and distinct from The Mother Church. And over and above all that, if Your Honor please, is the still greater question that we are dealing with a great historical religious character, Mary Baker Eddy, who founded this trust for the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science, not for the purpose of running a printing shop. And every loyal follower of Mary Baker Eddy, every one who is obedient to her teachings, takes her statements with respect to the conduct of that Publishing Society as being a statement of what she conceived to be for the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science, which is the dominant purpose of this trust. For people who come into court saying that they are loyal to everything that Mrs. Eddy said and did, and then object to Mr. Dickey, her secretary, testifying to her statements to him upon an official matter, at a time when he was in her service and acting as her secretary, is not to my mind a very high evidence of loyalty.

The Master—I am unable to see my way to admit as evidence in the case statements made in private by Mrs. Eddy to her secretary, and never officially communicated to anyone else.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, we offer them as evidence of her intention and her concept of the plan for the promotion and extension of Christian Science, as evidence of what is for the good of the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science. We offer them not as private conversations; we offer them as statements—

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, Mr. Krauthoff, it is not the habit in our courts, without permission of the Court, after an opinion has been given or decision rendered to argue the case—to argue the point.

The Master—Well, I am very desirous not to cut Mr. Krauthoff off from an opportunity to say all he wants to say. I thought I had heard all he had to say but I may have been in error.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am sorry, if Your Honor please, that I may be trespassing upon Mr. Whipple's thought of propriety, but this to me is of such vital import that I will ask the privilege of the Court to read a statement from the bill, the eighth paragraph:

"During the month of October last past, the defendants, Dickey, Neal, Merritt, Rathvon, and Dittmore made formal demand upon the trustees that thereafter the trustees should in general no longer conduct the business of The Christian Science Publishing Society as they had theretofore conducted said business and performed their duties as declared and defined by the provisions of the trust instrument; but that they, the trustees, thereafter should act in all matters concerning the administration of the trust in conformity with the directions of said Board of Directors in accordance with the interpretation by said Board of Directors of certain alleged wishes of Mrs. Eddy, the Donor, alleged by said directors to have been expressed both in the Manual of The Mother Church and otherwise, on occasions long after the date of the Deed of Trust, although these alleged expressions and statements are admittedly inconsistent with the terms of the Deed of Trust and in derogation of the powers and duties of the trustees as therein declared and defined."

It also pleads, in other parts of the bill, that after Mrs. Eddy's death, these directors took up certain things and did certain things which they never did in her lifetime, all in pursuance of a conspiracy on their part to extend their power into the jurisdiction from which Mrs. Eddy had excluded them. And in contradiction of that allegation of the bill we offer to prove by this witness that he never made any statements to these trustees about any wish of Mrs. Eddy that was not communicated by Mrs. Eddy in her lifetime, or which is not found in her printed works.

The Master—Having heard Mr. Krauthoff, after my ruling, I ought to give you (addressing Mr. Whipple) an opportunity to reply to him, I suppose, if you desire.

Mr. Whipple—It does not seem to me that Mr. Krauthoff has called to Your Honor's attention anything that is new. What he has read refers to what the witness has just been testifying about; that he set himself up, with his associates, as an ecclesiastical tribunal, whose interpretation of the Manual shall be final, and that no one hereafter is to be permitted to interpret the Manual; and he has asserted that this morning, and that his interpretation of the Manual shall override the provisions of the Trust Deed.

The Master—I am afraid I shall have to adhere to my ruling.

Mr. Krauthoff—And to which we reserve an exception.

Q. Was any question asked of Mr. Eustace on that occasion as to any conflict that might arise between the Manual and the Deed of Trust, and what Mr. Eustace would do in the event that such a conflict arose that you now remember? A. I pressed that question with Mr. Eustace, and asked him what he would do in the event that such a thing should arise as a conflict between the Manual and the Deed of Trust; and he said such a thing as a conflict between the Manual and the Deed of Trust could not occur, but "We would have to reserve the right to interpret the Manual according to our own conception of the Manual." "Well," I said, "there is only one way to interpret the Manual. It is written in very plain English, and Mrs. Eddy's words are not obscure at all. It is an easy thing for anybody to interpret the Manual according to the way in which it is written." Mr. Eustace said that he considered it his right to put his own interpretation, which was a metaphysical one, on the Church Manual.

Q. Was anything said on that occasion about the Deed of Trust having been published? A. Yes, there was. What meeting is this, again—what date?

Q. This is the 10th of February, the meeting at which Mr. Dittmore was present. A. No, I think it was a later meeting, when I asked Mr. Eustace some questions about publishing the Deed of Trust.

Q. Was anything said about your disappointment?

Mr. Whipple—About what? I am sorry I cannot—

A. I do not recall anything at this time. I remember at a subsequent meeting I expressed my disappointment, in reply to a question from the trustees.

Q. Now, during the week of Feb. 10, 1919, was your attention called to a letter that Judge Smith prepared, about the 13th of February, that was to go over to the trustees, and which was thereafter revised and sent over? A. Yes.

Q. On Feb. 17, 1919, that being the next Monday, there does not seem to have been a conference between the directors and the trustees. I am not asking you now as to what prevented it, but, as we are passing, that was not the fault of the trustees, I believe? A. No, it was not. Their understanding was that they were to have a conference with us every Monday.

Mr. Krauthoff—We have a letter of Mr. Ogden of Feb. 15, 1919, which we desire to introduce at this time on account of the chronology of the case. I do not care to read the whole letter, most of it is personal.

Mr. Whipple—How is it material?

Mr. Krauthoff—But I will hand Mr. Whipple the letter with an indication of how much of it I desire to offer.

Mr. Whipple—How is it material?

Mr. Krauthoff—If you will read it—

Mr. Whipple—The course of conduct, is it?

Mr. Krauthoff—No. If you will read it you will see the materiality of it. (Handing letter to Mr. Whipple.) It is a statement by one of the plaintiffs on February 15, 1919, as to the then existing state of things.

The Master—Mr. Ogden, I understand?

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Ogden, one of the plaintiffs.

Mr. Whipple—I cannot see that it is material, even after having had your direction to a particular point.

Mr. Thompson—We have not any view one way or the other on that.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer the extract from the letter of Mr. Ogden of date February— I beg your pardon; does Your Honor wish to see it?

The Master—It is objected to, I understand.

Mr. Whipple—It does not seem to me it is admissible at all.

The Master—If my recollection is correct, Mr. Whipple when closing his case said that he did not propose to call the other trustees whom he did not then call as a witness, Mr. Ogden being the person to whom he then referred, but that the counsel for the directors were at liberty to cross-examine Mr. Ogden, who was then present, if they desired.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Now, if you wanted to put in anything from Mr. Ogden then would have been the strictly proper place, wouldn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I understood a statement of a party to a case was admissible in evidence without asking the party whether he made it.

The Master—I do not know but that may be true.

Mr. Whipple—It does not seem that the thing is material at all. It is Mr. Ogden's statement to an outsider as to how they were getting along in this acute crisis. I must confess that it does not amount to much one way or the other. And if you will submit it to His Honor and he thinks it should go into the record, I shall make no objection about it. (Paper handed to master.)

The Master—The paragraph you have marked in red pencil?

Mr. Krauthoff—Red ink, I think it is.

The Master—I think I shall admit it subject to objection.

Mr. Whipple—I shall take no exception. I waive the objection.

Mr. Krauthoff—This is on the letter-head of David B. Ogden, C. S. B., under date of Feb. 15, 1919, to Capt. William K. Riddle of the United States Navy:

"You will be glad to know that, so far as any situation is concerned which affects The Mother Church and the publishing house, all is working together harmoniously for the good of our well loved Christian Science movement. A question of viewpoint has been under consideration by the Board of Directors and Board of Trustees for some little time past, and while these views have been quite decided, there is, as I have said, now a harmonious working out of all questions, and I know you will be glad to have this information."

[That portion of letter from David B. Ogden to Capt. William K. Riddle, Feb. 15, 1919, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is marked Exhibit 679.]

Q. Referring to Monday, Feb. 17, 1919, at which as you have stated the trustees, through no fault of theirs, were not present—did you visit the trustees that afternoon? A. I did.

Q. Which one of them did you see, Mr. Dickey—

The Master—We are now on February—

Mr. Krauthoff—17, 1919.

A. (Continued.) I found Mr. Eustace and Mr. Ogden there. Mr. Rowlands was not in the city.

Q. Now, state what you said to Mr. Eustace and Mr. Ogden on that occasion. This was in the publishing house.

Mr. Whipple—Does Your Honor think this is admissible?

A. This was in their office—in the trustees' office in the publishing house.

Mr. Whipple—I am trying purely for the sake of abbreviating this record, if possible, to refrain from going into all these conversations, because it has seemed to me that the issues were sufficiently defined. It may involve a good deal of examination on the other side, and all for no good purpose. And therefore I object to it. It was not an official communication at all; it is talk between these parties about this subject matter, but not in contradiction of anything that has been said by either Mr. Eustace or Mr. Ogden, as I understand it.

The Master—Without knowing what statements were made in the conversation I do not see how I can rule that none of them would by any chance be material. Mr. Eustace has been a witness. It is possible that statements made by Mr. Eustace might have some bearing.

Mr. Whipple—Well, as I have said, I make the objection purely in the interest of saving time and publishing space.

The Master—You may go on.

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Dickey, and state what you said and what was said by Mr. Ogden or Mr. Eustace, always saying who said it. A. Well, I said, "I am here again to see if I can't prevail upon you men to do something to end this controversy; we are getting continual reports about things that it is alleged the trustees are saying in the way of trying to establish the fact that Mrs. Eddy had created two boards, one of which should balance the other." And Mr. Eustace said, "That is exactly what she did." "Well," I said, "I was not aware that you had ever made that claim, but I cannot see how you can reconcile that with everything in her writings about the Christian Science Church being one organization and the Church Manual being a sacred document for the observance of every Christian Scientist." "Well," he said, "it is quite plain to see why she did it; she never intended the Board of Directors to set up a religious hierarchy, and for that reason she created the Board of Trustees and gave them power to prevent the directors from assuming a superiority in control of this movement, and she also gave the directors power to prevent the trustees of the Publishing Society from disobeying her requests with regard to their duties."

Q. Was the phrase "double check" or "balance" used? A. Yes.

Q. In what connection? A. I said, "This sounds like something I have heard about checks and balances with regard to the United States Government." And Mr. Ogden said, "Well, she did make one board a check on the other." I do not think, though, that he used the word "balance," but he did use the word "check." "Well," I said, "I do not think anybody could accuse Mrs. Eddy of creating a double-headed movement." And Mr. Eustace made the remark that she did not create a double-headed movement, there was just one movement but two separate boards each having equal power.

The Master—Was that all?

Q. Was that all, Mr. Dickey? A. Well, I am not telling all that transpired, but that is all I can recall at this moment.

The Master—There is nothing further you desire to ask him about that?

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

The Master—Now, I will ask you, Mr. Krauthoff, if you think that anything has been really added by those statements? Were not the respective claims of the two parties already fully brought out?

Mr. Krauthoff—In one aspect of the case, yes. But we are charged here, if Your Honor please, by the plaintiffs with a lack of good faith. We are charged with demanding things that we had no right to demand. We are now endeavoring to prove everything we said to them on every occasion, with a view of showing exactly what it was we did and what it was we claimed of them, and what it was they said and did, all as leading up to their removal.

The Master—Unless something different from what has already appeared was said, to go over it again would be merely cumulative. It seems to me.

Mr. Krauthoff—And I do not recall in any previous testimony of Mr. Dickey's that this question of the double-headed movement was as fully and accurately spoken of as it was at this conference on Feb. 17, 1919. I am simply trying, if Your Honor please—

The Master—Is it anything more than the same thing in different words?

Mr. Krauthoff—Perhaps so. Being on trial as we are with respect to our good faith and our official conduct, we are endeavoring, if Your Honor please, to tell everything we said and did to these people, and having done that, of course, we have discharged our duty. If the Court feels that we are covering too much ground in that particular, of course—

The Master—Well, I submit it to you whether we have not got the respective claims of the two parties already fully stated?

Mr. Krauthoff—In the work I have done on it it simply unfolds itself from day to day, and the only way I have been able to work it out was by taking up the statements as they were made from day to day, and letting them speak for themselves.

The Master—Now, I suppose the same statements, in substance, were made over again on the next day, and on the next, and on the next. Do you add anything by having it all recited and repeated again and again?

Mr. Krauthoff—I think not, Your Honor, and I shall content myself hereafter by asking the general question if there was anything said on that occasion which had not been mentioned before.

The Master—I do not mean to direct you with any strictness about it; I only submit it to you whether anything is really added.

Mr. Krauthoff—Your Honor has been very desirous of getting out all the facts.

Q. Then, Mr. Dickey, after the meeting of Feb. 17, 1919, of which you have just spoken, did you tell the other directors of the visit? A. Yes, I did. The following day at a directors' meeting, I told them I had—

Mr. Krauthoff—I suppose what he told his directors is objected to, Mr. Whipple? I will be very glad—

Mr. Whipple—Well, it would be another repetition if he told it just as he has already told it, wouldn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is not the way he told it.

Mr. Whipple—I beg your pardon?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is not the way he told it.

The Master—Well, you know what it is going to be, Mr. Krauthoff, and if you really think it adds anything, put it in.

Q. What did you tell your fellow directors as the result—not the details of your conference.

Mr. Whipple—That I object to—as to the result.

Mr. Krauthoff—I did not mean to say—

The Master—I do not think Mr. Krauthoff quite meant that. It is the substance of what passed, isn't it?

Q. What did you say to your fellow directors on the 18th of February as to the nature of your conference and as to the propriety of their going over to see the trustees? A. Well, I said—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I can't quite see. If he told truthfully what had been said, we already have it in the record; if he did not tell it accurately at all, why do we need that? You do not want to stultify him.

Q. Did you relate everything that was said, or did you simply tell the general— A. I did not relate what was said, but I told them I had a very interesting interview with Mr. Ogden and Mr. Eustace, and I would advise the other members of the board to go and see the trustees personally as well as to see them in our conferences. I said, "I do not believe that you men are doing everything you can do unless you go and present the case to them personally."

Q. And you are advised Mr. Merritt went over? A. I so understand.

Q. We have now come to Feb. 24, 1919, at which Messrs. Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon, on behalf of the Board of Directors, met with Messrs. Eustace, Ogden and Rowlands. Your attention, Mr. Dickey, has been called to the letter of the directors to the trustees of date Feb. 24, 1919, which has been offered in evidence and is Exhibit No. 26, and is found on pages 35 and 36 of the printed record. That is the letter which Judge Smith had been working on before that time and with respect to which you had made some revision, as shown by the record? A. Yes, sir, that is the one.

Q. Was that letter read to the trustees on that occasion? A. It was.

Q. With the memoranda attached which have been introduced in evidence as Exhibit 26a, on page 37—the memoranda in one paragraph? A. Yes, sir, it was attached.

Q. What, if anything, did the trustees say on that occasion about signing that? A. They all declined to sign it and put themselves on record in any such way.

Q. On that occasion did you have before you the opinion of counsel for the trustees? A. I had some extracts from it. There were four of the points contained in the letter from counsel of trustees to counsel for directors which I read at the meeting, and asked them what their intention was with respect to those four points.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, that is the letter of Messrs. Hughes, Strawn and Whipple to the counsel for the directors, which has been heretofore offered in evidence as Exhibit No. 22, and is found on pages 26 and following of the printed record.

Q. I call your attention, Mr. Dickey, to that letter, and the fact that in it there are five paragraphs or statements of legal doctrine. A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will call your attention to the first statement, "First, the deed created a valid, express trust." Was there any difference of opinion between the directors and the trustees on this conference of Feb. 24, 1919, with respect to that?

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment. This was a matter which the counsel started in upon yesterday, and it was, as we thought, very properly excluded. This meticulous scrutiny of every point in every letter, and whether there was a contention about it or not, is filling up a record, all to no good purpose.

Mr. Krauthoff — If Your Honor please, the bill charges the directors with having requested the trustees to repudiate the opinion of their counsel.

Mr. Whipple—That is in writing, and no examination of your witness or any other can blot it out.

Mr. Krauthoff—And we are now stating what orally occurred at the meeting in which the trustees and the directors discussed the opinion of counsel.

The Master—I do not exactly remember what happened about it yesterday.

Mr. Whipple—Well, he brought up these four points yesterday—

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, I beg your pardon.

Mr. Whipple—Didn't you? It certainly was not the "14 points."

The Master—It is all out of my recollection if there was anything about it yesterday.

Mr. Whipple—My learned brother starts in in so many different places, and he approaches them from so many different angles, that you can't always tell just which way he is progressing, or on what points; but as I remember it, Your Honor said in that connection that after the controversy had been well developed that the addition of these statements with regard to it would serve no useful purpose.

The Master—I still do not remember exactly in what connection the points came up yesterday.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I think I can clear that up if I am permitted.

The Master—But I am naturally anxious to be as consistent as possible in my rulings.

Mr. Krauthoff—If I may be permitted I think I can clear that situation. In the opinion of Messrs. Hughes, Strawn, and Whipple, to which I referred, Exhibit No. 22, at the opening part of the opinion there are five paragraphs numbered in Arabic numerals, which state five legal propositions. In the remaining portion of the letter there is this statement:

"At the interview on the 25th, Judge Smith stated the criticism by the directors of the trustees in four particulars."

Now, on yesterday we approached those four particulars, and in doing so I said in passing, without going into them at all, either meticulously or in any other way, that we would assume that those four criticisms were made in good faith until the contrary was shown. The subjects to which I am now addressing myself are not the four particulars which I passed sub silentio on yesterday, but the five legal points which the counsel for the plaintiffs said in their letter of Jan. 27, 1919, and with respect to which the plaintiffs in their bill claim that we called upon them to repudiate these five points of legal opinion, thereby committing a very serious offense. And that being true, we are to now show just what we did with respect to those five points.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, what is the number of the exhibit to which you are referring, and on which page of the printed record is it?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is on page 26 of the printed record, Exhibit 22. It is the document which, according to Mr. Whipple, becomes the law and the gospel of the case, and in respect to which we are being charged of a great offense—of having asked the plaintiffs not to adhere to it.

Mr. Whipple—Mr. Krauthoff, your sarcasm is not as becoming as your good nature.

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, I regret exceedingly if anything that I said could be thus interpreted. If what I said can be properly characterized as sarcasm, I ask leave to withdraw the remark from the record. I had no thought of such a thing.

The Master—Do you now propose to have the witness tell everything that was said at the meeting of Feb.

24, when they had, as he tells us, extracts from the trustees' counsel's opinion—about those extracts?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if Your Honor please, about those five legal points as to what the directors stated about them and what the trustees stated about them.

The Master—I suppose that we have already had the evidence from the trustees of what took place at that meeting.

Mr. Krauthoff — Very generally. They said that the directors asked them to repudiate the opinion of their counsel.

The Master—Under those circumstances, I think that you may show what took place at the meeting about that opinion, or those extracts from it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Your Honor did not pass on my request to withdraw certain remarks from the record.

The Master—No; I regarded that as entirely within your power. If you desire to withdraw anything that you said, I think that you have the right to withdraw it, unless it is objected to, at any rate.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, with respect to the first paragraph, "The deed created a valid, express trust." No difference of opinion, I understand, arose with respect to that? A. None at all.

Q. So that when you speak about four points at that meeting, you mean the other four? A. The remaining four, yes, sir.

Q. The second point begins, "The Deed of Trust is complete in itself and irrevocable." Now, what was said by any of the directors to any of the trustees, or by any of the trustees to any of the directors, about that? A. Well, I preceded the reading of this by saying that I had gone over their lawyers' advice to them quite carefully, and there were some points as to which the directors were anxious to know just how the trustees looked upon them. I said, "With your permission, I will read the ones I refer to." And then I read that first one.

Q. And what did you say to Mr. Eustace with respect to this first point? A. I asked him what his thought was concerning that.

The Master—I thought that you had got so far as to have it appear that there was no dispute as to that first point.

Q. By the first one you mean the second one? A. Yes, I mean the second one in their letter, but the first one that I read.

The Master—Then why not correct your question, and ask what was said about the second point?

Q. What was said about the second point, that "The Deed of Trust is complete in itself and irrevocable"? Now, answer as to that. A. My recollection is that Mr. Eustace said that that was right, that that was a legal document, and was irrevocable, and that they stood on that.

Q. What was said, if anything, about its being "complete in itself"?

A. Well, I made some reference to the Church Manual, and also to a clause in the deed, where Mrs. Eddy says, referring to the trustees, that they shall conduct the business on their own responsibility, except as she may elect to advise them; and I raised the point, or made the statement, that her Church Manual, which included a paragraph, or a chapter, rather, on the Publishing Society, was her advice and direction to the trustees, and to every member of The Mother Church subsequent to the Deed of Trust. Mr. Eustace said, "Well, that all depends on how you interpret it." He would say nothing further on that point.

Q. Was anything said on that occasion with respect to this second paragraph? A. I read the second paragraph then.

Q. I mean, was the word "repudiate" used? A. Yes; I asked them if they intended to repudiate their counsel's advice; and he said, "What do you mean by that?" "Well," I said, "we would like to know what you are going to do about it. We want to know if you are going to use your counsel's advice as a license to break the Church Manual."

Q. And what did Mr. Eustace say to that? A. Mr. Eustace said that he reserved the right to interpret the Church Manual to himself.

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me, Mr. Krauthoff: am I right in thinking that this was in the conference in the afternoon of Feb. 17?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, no; this was the board meeting on Feb. 24, 1919.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, Feb. 24.

Q. With respect to the third paragraph in the opinion, "The power under the Deed of Trust to declare vacancies having been vested jointly in the Board of Directors and the First Members, the Board of Directors alone cannot exercise the power," being the second paragraph that you discussed, what was said about that? A. I asked Mr. Eustace what he had to say about that; and the trustees all laughed quite audibly; and I said, "I don't see any occasion for merriment in connection with that; it is a pretty serious thing; and we would like to know how you look upon it." Mr. Eustace said that the trustees would interpret the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust up to their highest responsibility, and follow the leadings of Principle; and they objected to being questioned as to what their intentions were, or what they would do under certain circumstances.

Q. Then the fourth point in the letter, "The source of the powers and duties of the trustees is the Deed of Trust," being your third point: was that discussed? A. Yes, it was.

Q. Was any reference made on that occasion to the letter of Sept. 30, 1918? A. Yes; Mr. Eustace said that they stood on that letter of Sept. 30. That was their answer to all of these questions.

Q. The fifth paragraph, "If there be any conflict between the terms of the deed and the language of the Church Manual," and so on, being the fourth point that you discussed: was that mentioned? A. It was.

Q. Was anything said in that connection about the laws of the land? A. I asked Mr. Eustace what they intended to do about that last clause. "Well," he said, "you can't expect us to disobey the laws of the land, can you?" "Why," I said, "no; but the Deed of Trust as written is not the law of the land; it is supported and upheld by the law of the land; but that is a part of one harmonious whole, and it is just as adaptable to the Deed of Trust as two different statements of the same Principle would be." He said, "You remember that Mrs. Eddy was solicitous about all Christian Scientists obeying the law of the land." I said, "Yes, she was; but I don't understand that that meant that you had to obey a deed of trust, and at the same time use that as an excuse for disobeying the Manual."

Q. You spoke about the Deed of Trust being adaptable. What did you mean to say about the Manual in that connection? A. Why, I meant that they were both a part of one harmonious whole, and should be and could be considered together perfectly; and that there was no conflict between the two instruments. Mr. Eustace admitted that there was no conflict between the two instruments.

Q. Was any statement made on your part that, as you understood it, it could be done under the law of the land? A. Yes, I did say so. I—I am thinking of another conversation now. I withdraw that.

Q. Was anything said on that occasion—well, I have asked you about the one responsible head. It is now, if Your Honor please, 11:30, and I shall not be able to finish this immediately.

The Master—We will suspend, then, for a few minutes.

[Recess of ten minutes]

Q. At this interview of Feb. 24, 1919, to which you have been testifying—or, rather, this conference—was anything said by any of the directors or any of the trustees with respect to the necessity of the trustees being members of The Mother Church? A. There was. We had quite a lengthy conversation, in the course of which I said to Mr. Ogden, "Mr. Ogden, I understand that you have made the statement to one of our western practitioners that it was not necessary for a trustee of the Publishing Society to be a member of The Mother Church." I said, "Is that correct?" And he said, "Why, I did say something of that kind." "Well," I said, "do you think that is acting in conformity with Mrs. Eddy's wishes?" Well, he said that in time of course the whole world would become Christian Scientists and it would be quite possible for a member of the Board of Trustees not to belong to The Mother Church in Boston.

Q. Was anything said about what would happen to The Mother Church in the course of time? A. I did say to him that if all Christian Scientists felt like that we would soon have no Mother Church, and with no Mother Church we would have no organization.

Q. What did Mr. Ogden say to that? A. I don't think Mr. Ogden made any reply to that.

Q. What, if anything, was said at that time as to the trustees believing all that their lawyers had said to them? A. Well, that was about the close of the meeting. I made this statement. I said, "Well, it looks like this to me: That in spite of the protestations that have been made by you gentlemen, I think you do accept and you do believe and you are relying on the advice of your lawyers, which furnishes you an excuse to break the By-Laws of The Mother Church."

Q. Was any answer made to that? A. I don't recall that there was.

Q. Was anything said on that occasion about the three trustees retiring and three other persons being installed in their places? A. Mr. Rathvon, I believe, asked them something about resigning in case they could find three other men, or in case we could find three other men, that would fill their places and keep the By-Laws of The Mother Church, as well as fulfill their obligations under the Trust Deed. They said they would not resign.

Q. Then the next incident to which I desire to call your attention is the conference of March 3, 1919, at which the records show that Messrs. Dickey, Merritt, and Rathvon had an interview with Messrs. Eustace, Rowlands, and Ogden. With respect to these interviews, when did Mr. Neal leave Boston—did you ascertain this morning? A. In the early part of February, I believe he left.

Q. He was not present at these conferences in February and March? A. No, not subsequent to Feb. 3, he was not.

Q. On the morning of March 3, 1919, was anything said about letters having been received from the field? A. Yes, there was, Mr. Krauthoff, but I do not recall the details of that just now.

Q. Was the question of the word suitable in the By-Laws discussed? A. Yes, it was. I referred the trustees to that by-law where Mrs. Eddy says that no one who is not suitable to the directors shall be employed in the Publishing Society or in connection with the publishing of her works. Mr. Whipple—Suitable to the directors?

Q. You mean accepted as suitable by the directors? A. Accepted as suitable.

Q. By the directors and the Pastor Emeritus, I believe is the language.

A. I read from the by-law, which is my custom when I am quoting by-laws. I don't like to quote them from memory.

Mr. Whipple—It would be more accurate.

Q. We are enjoined to read from the Manual itself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you identify it from the section, Mr. Dickey, without reading it in there?

The Master—I think I have it before me, Section 5 of Article XXV.

Q. What, if anything, was said about that by-law on that occasion?

A. I haven't found the by-law. "Why," Mr. Eustace said, "that all depends on what you mean by suitable."

Q. Was anything else said? A. Yes. That didn't end the conversation but I don't remember just what followed that, but I do remember that he made that expression.

Q. Mr. Dickey, that by-law is on page 81 of the Church Manual, and you spoke of it as not suitable to the Board of Directors. The exact language is: "A person who is not accepted by the Pastor Emeritus and The Christian Science Board of Directors as suitable." A. Yes, sir.

Q. Since the passing of Mrs. Eddy the Board of Directors has been acting on all the matters in the Manual which in her lifetime could only have been done with her consent? A. They have.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not offering this as proof of any legal fact; I am only using it in proof of how he came to use the expression "the directors."

Mr. Whipple—The difficulty is that what he says is not so. They may have tried to do it but in this very instance they did not do it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was only offering it as an explanation of how he came to use the words "suitable to the directors."

Mr. Whipple—Well, let the answer be stricken out, then.

The Master—I think we will strike that out. That is rather too important, if it is important at all, to be put in by way of a leading question, isn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—It will come up in another connection so it may be stricken out.

The Master—We have got to have the exact facts if that is of any consequence.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, I appreciate that.

Q. Did Mr. Eustace on that occasion read from Miscellany on the question of obedience, referring to the things that are Cæsar's? A. I don't recall that, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. Was anything said on that occasion about propaganda on either side? A. Not that I can repeat.

Q. Now, referring to this conference of the trustees on March 3, 1919, did you then go and see the trustees with respect to the thought of Love and demonstration as applied to this situation? A. Well, that was—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. May I have that read?

The Master—I didn't get that.

[The question is read by the stenographer.]

Mr. Krauthoff—I am merely doing that to identify the conference.

Mr. Whipple—Well, you have identified the conference as March 3, haven't you? Are you referring to another one now?

Mr. Krauthoff—We are now referring to a visit that Mr. Dickey made, after March 3, 1919.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, you mean after this conference at some time?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Well, wouldn't it be better to reframe that question?

Q. Did you call on the trustees after this conference of March 3, 1919? A. I did.

Q. Whom did you see? A. I saw Mr. Eustace and Mr. Ogden and Mr. Rowlands, in their office in the publishing house. I had quite a lengthy conversation with them on that occasion, looking towards an adjustment—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment.

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me.

The Witness—All right.

Mr. Whipple—When?

Q. What was said?

Mr. Whipple—When is this?

A. That was on the afternoon of March 5, I believe, about 3 o'clock. I made an engagement to go over and see them at that time. Do you want me to continue?

Q. Yes, if you will continue, please. A. I said, "Well now, gentlemen, the whole trouble seems to me that you have not got the right point of view with respect to the directors." Mr. Eustace said, "Well, we think we have, and the fact is that you men are acting in a shameful and disgraceful manner toward this Board of Trustees; you are simply acting as a religious hierarchy and issuing orders to us and expecting us to obey them implicitly. Now, we have certain rights in this connection and we do not think you ought to come at us in that fashion." "Well," I said, "Mr. Eustace, I must admit that perhaps there have been times when we have not always written courteous letters to you, that is, not as courteous as they might be; perhaps sometimes they have been a little brusque; but you must remember that we have a lot of work on our hands and we are not always able to stop and frame our letters in the very nicest way, although our thought is that we want to cooperate with and show all the love and respect and consideration to you gentlemen that we possibly can. But," I said, "the fact is quite apparent to me that you have not the right thought yourselves toward the directors." I said, "Indeed, you are expressing thoughts of hate and resentment toward them. Now, if we are ever going to work this problem out and make it a demonstration, as you want to do, the basis for a demonstration is not hatred, and you have got to get to the point where you are going to love these men, every one of them, before you can do anything." Mr. Eustace said, "Why don't you clean out your own board? Look at what you have got there. All our trouble, nearly all our troubles and difficulties, have arisen from that hidden hand that you have over there." And I said, "Well, now, Mr. Eustace, if you are talking about some member of our board, just forget it, because that does not interest you, and it cannot. God does not hold you responsible for what some member of our board does, but He does hold you responsible for what you do. Now, if you want to be a Christian Scientist you know that you have got to entertain love in your heart, not only for all mankind but for the men on the Board of Directors; and I am not speaking selfishly, because if I were not there you would have to do this just the same." And I said, "If by handing my resignation today in to this Church I could help this situation one bit, I would be very glad to do it. Now," I said, "Love does not operate from without, it operates from within; and if you do not get the right concept of Love you cannot make a demonstration." I said, "You know how our Leader has toiled for years to bring this movement up to the point where it is now."

Q. Did you on that occasion read anything to the trustees from any of the— A. I did.

Q. Have you now the references which you then read? A. I think they are in this satchel. Here it is. I have got it in my hand. I turned to page 229 in Miscellany, and I read this:

"Will those beloved students, whose growth is taking in the Ten Commandments and scaling the steep ascent of Christ's Sermon on the Mount, accept profound thanks for their swift messages of rejoicing over the twentieth century Church Manual? Heaps upon heaps of praise confront me, and for what? That which I said in my heart would never be needed,—namely, laws of limitation for a Christian Scientist."

And then I turned over to the other page and finished:

"Notwithstanding the sacrilegious moth of time, eternity awaits our Church Manual, which will maintain its rank as in the past, amid ministries aggressive and active, and will stand when those have passed to rest."

I also read from page 251 of the same book:

"Adhere to the teachings of the Bible, Science and Health, and our Manual, and you will obey the law and gospel."

I read that in reply to a statement from Mr. Eustace referring to the law of the land. I talked there for over two hours, and when I left they expressed a great deal of gratification at what had been said, and I think at that time they entertained a different point of view than they had had before—

Mr. Whipple—Just one moment.

A. —with regard to the directors.

Mr. Whipple—I ask to have that stricken out.

The Master—You don't wish that, I take it, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Whipple—His thoughts with regard to other people's thoughts are not material.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple asks that that be stricken out. It may be stricken out, beginning with the words "I think."

Q. Have you stated now fully, in substance, the general nature of that conversation? A. Yes; I have stated now all I can recall.

Q. Now, after that conversation did you come back the next day? A. I did.

Q. And did you bring with you the document that we have identified as the Dittmore memorandum? A. I called by an appointment I made with them the next day, and I spoke at length along the same line that I talked the day previously.

Mr. Thompson—He hasn't answered your question. Did he have the Dittmore memorandum with him?

The Witness—I then said—oh, pardon me. After I had talked for perhaps an hour and listened to them talk I got up and said, "Well, I am sorry that my efforts have accomplished nothing; it looks as though you were of the same opinion as you have been all along, and now I guess I will go." They all said, "Don't hurry, there is lots of time; we would like to talk with you some more." And Mr. Ogden said, "Now, we have heard your side of this proposition, won't you listen to ours?" I said, "I will listen to anything that has for its object an adjustment of this difficulty." So we talked again for a few moments and then I said, "Won't you let me read you something?" And they said, "Why, certainly." And I drew from my pocket an agreement—

Q. I beg pardon for interrupting you. You drew from your pocket a paper? A. A paper that—

Q. Go ahead, Mr. Dickey. A. —that had been presented in 1916 to the Board of Directors, that has been referred to here as the Dittmore memorandum.

Q. Have you that paper with you? A. I have. That is it. (Handing paper to Mr. Krauthoff.)

Q. This was cut, Mr. Dickey, as I understand it, from the memorandum of the meeting of Feb. 24, 1916, which has already been introduced in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that the last words, the last 10 lines, which is stricken out in lead pencil, "The understanding between the directors and the trustees," etc., is not important? A. It was not considered at that meeting.

The Master—What is the exhibit number?

Mr. Krauthoff—This is a new document, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Oh, a new document? Very good.

Mr. Streeter—What is the document, Mr. Krauthoff? Let me see it.

[Document handed to Mr. Streeter; conference of counsel.]

Mr. Thompson—That is all right (returning document to Mr. Krauthoff).

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, the document which you hold in your hand,—may I ask you what it is that you are inquiring about of the witness?

Q. Will you please answer the question of General Streeter, Mr. Dickey? A. That is what has been introduced in evidence as the Dittmore memorandum which was presented to the Board of Trustees for their signature in 1916.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I was not conscious of that. That appears to be a garbled rewrite of the Dittmore memorandum of Feb. 24, 1916, the original memorandum being in print on page 80 of Dittmore's answer, and this appears to be a garbled version of that original Dittmore document.

The Witness—Would you like me to explain to you—

Mr. Streeter—If you are using it as the original Dittmore memorandum, I would like to have it appear to the Court that it is not the original but apparently a rewrite of it.

Mr. Bates—If you will just wait a minute, General, you will get the whole explanation.

Q. Mr. Dickey, will you please state with respect to the document I have exhibited to you what the typewritten part of it is, without regard to any pencil interlineations and deletions? A. It is, as I have stated, a copy of the memorandum which the directors asked the trustees to sign in 1916.

The Master—Will you remind me whether we have had the original?

Mr. Thompson—Yes, sir. There was a good deal of talk about it; finally it was agreed that the original was the one printed on page 80 of the answer of Mr. Dittmore, the one General Streeter has just referred to. That has been agreed to as being authentic.

The Master—Now, what, according to the evidence, became of the original document itself?

Mr. Thompson—I do not know what has become of the original document. I do not remember ever seeing the original paper here. I do not know what has become of it.

Mr. Streeter—Let me ask further, for my own information on that, and that of the Court, what this is now? You say the typewritten part of it is a copy of the original Dittmore memorandum which was printed on page 80 of Dittmore's answer. But what is this document?

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if you will permit the witness to go ahead, General, he will tell you all about it.

Mr. Streeter—I will be very glad to be informed.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Your Honor asked what had become of the original? The evidence is that it was torn up.

The Master—Oh, yes.

Mr. Whipple—Some of the evidence is that it was torn up in token of the abandonment of the enterprise that was then on foot.

The Master—I remember.

Mr. Thompson—I suppose there might be other copies of it in existence as of that date, but there have not any of them been introduced except this one.

The Witness—Shall I proceed?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Witness—I asked them if they would allow me to read something to them, and they said, yes.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I think the question was to identify this memorandum. I would like to present this for consideration, if Your Honor please: Here was an effort on the part of these gentlemen to compromise such of their difficulties as were capable of—

The Master—Before I hear you on that, Mr. Whipple, I think I would like to have Mr. Krauthoff complete the explanation referred to by Governor Bates as to what that particular paper was.

Mr. Whipple—I will be very glad if that can be done.

The Master—I do not think we got through on that. I think it would be better to have it all together.

Mr. Krauthoff—Just a minute.

The Master—The witness, I think, is taking not quite that course, but Mr. Krauthoff will perhaps recall him to what he wants him to do.

Mr. Krauthoff—It seems to me, if Your Honor please, that on Feb. 24, 1916, there was a conference between the trustees and the directors.

The Master—Well, I have got as far as this: He says that the typewritten part there is a copy of something presented in 1916?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Court—Then you were going to ask something about the penciling, and he did not get as far as that because he went on to something else. Isn't that true?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, will you please state what the pencil interlineations and deletions are, and how you arrived at them? State fully now all the circumstances. A. Well, to tell all the conversation I will have to go through just what I did.

The Master—Oh, no; we do not want the conversation. Just what that paper is. Not at present, but there will be a later opportunity on that.

Mr. Krauthoff—At this conference on March 6, 1919, Mr. Dickey took over the paper in the typewritten form.

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—Then at this conference he made certain interlineations and deletions in pencil.

The Master—They were made on March 6th?

Mr. Krauthoff—1919, in the presence of the plaintiffs.

The Master—All right. Now I get an idea of it.

Mr. Streeter—Now, if Your Honor please—

The Master—Does that answer your inquiry?

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff answered it. But I would like to have the witness answer it, and see whether that is actually correct, whether he took over the original Dittmore document and then these pencil interlineations and deletions were made by him or by somebody else at that conference of March 6. He can tell better than my friend Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was answering it briefly because the Court was asking about it.

Mr. Streeter—Why can't you let the witness tell us about it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will.

The Master—The witness seems to want to tell all the conversation before he answers the question. I was hoping you would induce him to say what the paper consists of before you went into that part of the examination.

The Witness—The paper consists of a copy of the original memorandum which was presented by the directors to the trustees in 1916. At that time, in addition to the original document, each director was handed a copy. I took this copy and put it in my files, and it remained there until I took it out about a week prior to the time I carried it to the Board of Trustees.

Q. That is, the typewritten part?

A. The typewritten part. Now, the pencil interlineations and additions and deletions are those which we agreed to—that is, the three trustees and myself. On this particular day as I read these paragraphs over they assented to certain—

Mr. Krauthoff—One moment, Mr. Dickey. It is not proper to say they agreed or assented.

The Master—Pause there just a moment. Does that answer your question?

Mr. Streeter—I think so. He has not got done yet, but I think so.

The Master—Very well. Now, Mr. Krauthoff, you may go on. Oh, one moment; I forgot. I interrupted Mr. Whipple, and I suppose I ought first to hear what he has to say.

Mr. Whipple—I wish to offer the suggestion that this was an effort on the part of these gentlemen to reconcile their personal differences, to bring about a compromise indicating a way in which they could get along together. Such things are not admissible in evidence, generally speaking—attempts to compromise their differences. But beyond that, of course, anything that they said or could say could not in the slightest degree derogate from the powers or the duties of the trustees under their trust deed. They could not agree that the trust deed should be different from what it was, or should impose different duties or different responsibilities or give different rights. They were for the time being trustees merely, and nothing that they could say or could do could be construed as an estoppel affecting the trust itself. Therefore, it seemed that we ought to interpose the objection that this interview should not be gone into.

The Master—The difficulty with that is, I think, there has been some testimony about it already.

Mr. Whipple—I had thought not. They have put in the evidence of the directors' meetings, but I think there has been no evidence with regard to this interview. I think not with regard to the interview with the trustees, Your Honor. I am reminded that there was probably some cross-examination with regard to it, but of course we could not prevent cross-examination on it. But we put in nothing with regard to it at all and made no inquiries in any way in respect to it.

Mr. Krauthoff—As to the state of the evidence, if Your Honor please, this is the occasion that Mr. Dittmore's counsel has referred to as the time when four copies were made and sent to Mr. Dickey's house. That has been introduced in evidence by Mr. Dittmore's counsel. As to the document itself, we think it is admissible in evidence against the plaintiffs as a statement of the claim that they were then making as to what they were claiming as trustees in opposition to the Church Manual, and as some of the steps in the line of incidents which led up to their removal.

Mr. Whipple—That illustrates just exactly the basis on which we ask for its exclusion. It was not an interview in which claims were stated, and it was not for that purpose. Their claims had been stated and repeated. It was an attempt at compromise, and it is perfectly evident that if the evidence is admitted and—

The Master—Pardon me. Do you think that I can say at this stage that what took place at that interview was only an attempt at compromise?

Mr. Whipple—Well, I thought so, Your Honor—

The Master—I do not know yet what it was.

Mr. Whipple—Upon the evidence. It is possible that you will have to take the evidence and then rule upon it. I think that it is quite likely that there will be some difficulty in ruling upon the statements of counsel merely, but I had rather supposed that Mr. Krauthoff would agree with me, and that Your Honor would infer from what the witness has already stated that that was the object of it, that they took this paper, or they had it there, and they went over the various items to see what by way of compromise they could fix upon as a modus vivendi. Of course it will be said that they had done it repeatedly, and evidence as to that has gone in, but if it had not gone in I think we should have saved a great many days of what I think will turn out to be a rather futile inquiry.

Mr. Krauthoff—We do not, if Your Honor please—

The Master—As the matter stands at present, I am afraid that there is no way but to go on and take the evidence subject to objection. I am afraid that if I exclude it there will be somebody who will think that he has not had his rights fully preserved in regard to the evidence here.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, Your Honor, but this, from our point of view, is an important document.

The Master—Well, now, let us get it in, and then we will see about its importance.

Mr. Streeter—Well, can't we have it marked for identification?

The Master—Oh, I dare say you can, when the time comes, but has that time quite come?

Mr. Streeter—Well, if Your Honor has that in mind, all I want to be sure is that that document—

The Master—Does not get away?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, with its interlineations—that it does not get away.

The Master—Have you any objection to marking it for identification?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, no, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Let it be marked, then.

[The document referred to is marked Exhibit 680 for identification. R. H. J.]

Now, possibly, Mr. Krauthoff, there will be some brief way of getting out what happened about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—I hope to be able to do that, if Your Honor please (passing to the witness the document referred to).

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, state what was said at that conference by you to any of the trustees, or by any of the trustees to you, about that document, being careful to state who said it, and what they said. A. Yes, sir. I read the first paragraph as follows: "The relations, duties"—

The Master—Now—

Mr. Krauthoff—It is not necessary to read that paragraph.

The Witness—I can't tell the conversation, Mr. Krauthoff, unless I do, because it was interrupted at different places, and interlineations made, and discussions had all through as the pamphlet was read—as the article was read, and it is so interwoven with the conversation that I couldn't detach the two.

Q. Very well. Go ahead.

The Master—Let me see about that. We have all got the memorandum, or at least the substance of it, barring these changes and interlineations, right before us in print. Now, can it be possible that we have got to have that all gone over again in the record? Isn't there any way of avoiding that?

Mr. Krauthoff—I very much fear, if Your Honor please, with all due respect to our desire to shorten the record, that the proper thing to do now is to put this document into the record in this original and in its altered form, in order that, having them side by side in the record, they may be compared.

Mr. Thompson—We shall have to do it in the Dittemore case, anyway, sir. It is a direct substantive issue in the Dittemore case, as to what took place at this interview. It was introduced by me on cross-examination for that purpose but it has never been introduced in the Eustace case at all. It was limited strictly to the Dittemore and Dickey case. Mr. Whipple was quite right in suggesting that he never put it in. It was understood, we put it in, that it bore on the Dittemore case alone.

The Master—Can't you assist us in some way to keep the record within reasonable bounds?

Mr. Thompson—It is very important that we should know everything that was said about this document.

Mr. Krauthoff—May the witness proceed?

The Master—I suppose he will have to.

Mr. Krauthoff—Go ahead, Mr. Dickey, in the way you started.

The Witness—The first paragraph is:

"1. The relations, duties, and responsibilities of The Christian Science Board of Directors and of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society must necessarily be based not upon single detached sections or sentences of our Church By-Laws or of the Deed of Trust constituting the trusteeship, but upon the intent and purpose of all of the Church By-Laws relating to these boards and of the entire text of the Deed of Trust."

The Master—So far it seems to correspond exactly.

The Witness—I said, "Now, is there anything wrong with that paragraph? Is there anything there that you gentlemen cannot subscribe to?" And Mr. Eustace addressed Mr. Rowlands and said, "I don't see anything wrong about that." And Mr. Rowlands said, "I don't." Mr. Ogden said, "It looks all right to me." "Well," I said, "very well. We have gone so far. Now I will put a bracket around that, and mark 'Yes' opposite indicating that we are agreed on that paragraph." They said, "That's all right. Go ahead."

Q. Did you do that at the time? A. I did that at the time, yes, sir, and in their presence.

Paragraph 2:

"The government of The Mother Church is set forth in the 35 articles of our Church By-Laws as contained in the Church Manual. One of these articles (Article XXV) records the situation under which The Christian Science Publishing Society exists and fulfills its proper functions. The Manual reveals clearly that this society is not a separate organization independent of The Mother Church, but is an interdependent department"—

Mr. Eustace interrupted me at that point, and said, "Now, wait just a minute. The Publishing Society is not a department of The Mother Church." "Well," I said, "what is it?" "Well," he said, "it is not a department." "Well," I said, "could you call it anything else?" He said, "Yes, we might call it something else." I said, "How about using the word 'function'?" He said, "That's all right." And the others agreed to use the word "function," and I deleted the word "department" and wrote the word "function" in lead pencil in the margin; and I then proceeded, "an interdependent function—and a very important one—in the denomination activity of the Christian Science movement."

And then I called attention to the fact that that word "denomination" should be "denominational," and they agreed to that; and then I wrote the word "Yes" opposite it in lead pencil.

"3. Mrs. Eddy has provided that 'The business of The Mother Church shall be transacted by its Christian Science Board of Directors.' The By-Laws as a whole clearly indicate that to this Board of Directors is intrusted, as its name indicates, the general direction and supervision of the Christian Science movement in all of its departments."

I said, "Is there anything wrong with that paragraph?" There was a pause for a while, and a little consultation, and finally the trustees all said, "That paragraph is all right; we will all agree to that." I said, "Very well; I will mark that 'Yes,'" which I did.

"4. 'The Church By-Laws and the Trust Deed gives evidence that this trusteeship was created and exists for two general purposes—First, "For the promotion of the interests of Christian Science" through the publication of the current literature of Christian Science; and second, for financial benefit to The Mother Church for the general use of all departments of The Mother Church for which funds can be expended according to the provisions of the By-Laws. Our Church By-Laws dealing with this question confirm the fact that The Christian Science Publishing Society is under the general direction of The Christian Science Board of Directors.'"

Mr. Eustace said, "Now, hold on a minute. That is not right." I said, "What is not right?" He said, "That last sentence you have read." "Why," I said, "what is the trouble about that?" "Well," he said, "we don't agree that The Christian Science Publishing Society is under the general direction of The Christian Science Board of Directors." "Well," I said, "we will not stop to argue that point. If I delete that, will that be satisfactory?" And he said, "Yes"; and the others gave their assent, and I deleted that sentence down as far as "The Christian Science Board of Directors."

Mr. Streeter—Where did you begin to delete?

The Witness—I deleted "Our Church By-Laws dealing with this question" down to "The Christian Science Board of Directors," five lines. I then went on and read:

"This Board of Trustees necessarily differs organically from other departments of our Church."

I was interrupted there by Mr. Eustace, who said, "That won't do. This is not a department of The Mother Church." "Well," I said, "all right. To get somewhere, I will just scratch that word, 'departments,' out; and what shall I put in?" We discussed that for a moment, and finally I suggested the words "departmental activities." That was agreeable to Mr. Eustace. So then I read this:

"This Board of Trustees necessarily differs organically from other departmental activities of our Church in that its responsibilities in the holding and management of valuable property require that it be constituted and perpetuated in accordance with the established legal usage necessary to safeguard and properly manage public trusts. We are agreed that Mrs. Eddy's use of words is wonderfully exact. Webster defines 'Trustees' as 'Persons to whom property is legally committed in trust.' Trusteeships always have to do with the holding and management of property."

There was an objection made to that paragraph, or to that statement, "Trusteeships always have to do with the holding and management of property," and I deleted it, but these words follow in lead pencil the "management of property," "the conducting of business and the promotion of the object of the trust." We talked over that, and Mr. Eustace finally said, "I don't like that last statement"; and I said, "Very well; I will erase it all." So I deleted everything from "Trusteeships always have to do" down to "the object of the trust." Then I marked "Yes" in the margin, and said, "Now, are we agreed to that? Is that satisfactory?" They all said, "Yes."

"5. 'The Christian Science Board of Directors control the disposition of all funds accruing from the profits of the publications managed by the Board of Trustees."

And there was something said then about putting in "according to the terms of the trust." I said, "Very well; I will put that in." So I added that phrase, "according to the terms of the trust," after the words "Board of Trustees."

"They elect to office the business manager of the Publishing Society and the editors of all the periodicals. They own and furnish the building in which the Publishing Society conducts its business. They are required to determine the salaries of the trustees and have had placed upon them the additional responsibility named in Article XXV, Section 3, of the Mother Church By-Laws."

That paragraph was agreed to as amended and I marked "Yes" in the column, and asked them if that was all satisfactory, and they all said "Yes."

"6. 'It is not our purpose either to magnify the responsibilities of The Christian Science Board of Directors or to minimize the duties and responsibilities of the Board of Trustees. This trusteeship is the most important and far-reaching trust in the world, and its financial resources are destined to become practically unlimited and to require in its management the highest degree of ability and intelligence that can be demonstrated.'"

That last sentence was objected to, and after some discussion we agreed—I proposed to strike out the sentence which I shall read, following this statement, and the trustees, each of them, agreed to it, and therefore, in compliance with that, I erased everything from "This trusteeship is the most important" down to the words "that can be demonstrated." Then I finished the reading of the paragraph as follows:

"It is our purpose, however, to define what we consider to be the correct and only consistent relationship of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society to The Mother Church and The Christian Science Board of Directors to the end that all concerned may accept in theory such correct interpretation and demonstrate in practice, through a right sense of cooperation, the degree of efficiency in every detail connected with the publishing work which the Christian Science movement demands."

That was satisfactory to Mr. Eustace, according to his statement. Mr. Ogden and Mr. Rowlands both expressed agreement with it; and I said, "Very well; I will mark that 'Yes,'" which I did.

"7. 'In order that the directors of The Mother Church shall not be made responsible for policies and rules adopted and for actions taken by the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society without the approval of The Christian Science Board of Directors, it shall be agreed as follows.'"

Mr. Eustace then objected to the word "shall." He said "I don't like it; it is too mandatory." I said, "Very well; I will scratch it out"; which I did.

"A. 'The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society shall order no special or unusual action to be taken affecting the field without the written approval of the directors.'"

The trustees all spoke up and said, "Hold on; that will not do; that is asking too much, to have us give our written approval before—" —I will take that back—"to receive the written approval of the directors before we take any special action."

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me, Mr. Dickey. Which one of the trustees said that?

The Witness—Mr. Eustace and Mr. Ogden and Mr. Rowlands. They all said that. So I said, "Well, what would you like to have me put in there instead of 'the written approval'?" Mr. Eustace suggested the word "concurrence," making it read, "without the concurrence of the directors." I said, "Very well; that suits me all right; I will go on."

"B. 'The responsibility for the editorial and news policies of the Christian Science publications shall rest with The Christian Science Board of Directors according to the provisions of Article VIII, Section 14, of the Church By-Laws.'"

Mr. Eustace objected to that, and said, "We don't agree that the responsibility for the editorial policies rests entirely with the Board of Directors. We believe that that belongs also in part to the trustees." Then I said, "What would you have me say there to make it satisfactory to you?" "If you added after 'Board of Directors' and the trustees of The Publishing Society acting concurrently," it would be satisfactory to me." I said, "Well, I will put that in." The others then gave their consent. Then I suggested—

Mr. Streeter—Just a minute. What was it that you inserted there?

The Witness—I added after—

Mr. Streeter—After the word "Directors?"

The Witness—After the words "policies of the Christian Science publications shall rest with The Christian Science Board of Directors," I added "and the trustees of the Publishing Society acting concurrently." You understand this is not my agreement; it is theirs.

Mr. Whipple—I move that that be stricken out.

Mr. Thompson—I move that that be stricken out, too, if Your Honor please.

The Master—I think that you will have to confine yourself to stating what was said and done.

The Witness—I beg Your Honor's pardon. I was just answering Mr. Streeter. After the words "Section 14," I placed a caret and wrote in pencil the words "and Article XXV, Section 8," to which Mr. Eustace agreed, as did the other trustees.

Then I went to the next one:

"C. 'All rules governing the acceptance or rejection of applications for cards in The Christian Science Journal shall be subject to the written approval of the directors.'"

Mr. Eustace agreed to that, also Mr. Ogden and Mr. Rowlands agreed.

Then I went on:

"D.—"

Mr. Streeter—Did you mark that "Yes"?

The Witness—These are all in one paragraph, subdivisions of No. 7. When I got through I marked the whole paragraph "Yes."

"D. 'All circular or form letters in regard to circulation or advertising shall be approved in writing by the directors before being sent.'"

Mr. Eustace said, "Well, now, I do object to that." "Well," I said, "I will scratch that out," and so I did.

Then I read:

"E. 'The salaries of all persons who are elected by the directors and employed by the trustees shall be fixed by mutual agreement.'"

Mr. Eustace said, "That's all right." Mr. Ogden and Mr. Rowlands both assented, and I went on:

"F. Any unusual expenditures by the trustees which affect the income of The Mother Church shall be subject to the written approval of the directors."

Mr. Eustace objected to that, and said, "I don't like the words 'written approval.'" Then I said, "What would you like in there?" He said, "You might put the word 'concurrent' there." I said, "All right." So I deleted "written approval," and put the word "concurrent" in the place of it.

I also wrote the words "will seemingly" in pencil after "which," making it read, "Any unusual expenditures by the trustees which will seemingly affect," etc. Afterward we all assented to delete the words "will seemingly," and the paragraph was finished without that in it.

"G. We believe that appointments to the Bible Lesson Committee should be made by the trustees after consultation with the Board of Directors."

Mr. Eustace objected to that, and after some conversation we deleted the words "We believe that," being the first three words in that paragraph. Mr. Eustace then said that paragraph was satisfactory to him, Mr. Ogden and Mr. Rowlands also concurred, and I marked it "Yes." I marked then the whole paragraph "Yes."

"H. The duties and responsibilities of the trustees as set forth in the Manual of The Mother Church and the Deed of Trust creating the trusteeship are the holding and management of the property of the trust and the conduct of the business of The Christian Science Publishing Society subject to the general supervision of the directors."

Mr. Eustace objected to that and had me read it again, which I did. Then he said, "Now, right here, 'creating the trusteeship are holding and management of the property of the trust,' I would like you to insert the words 'according to the terms of the trust.'" I said, "Very well." So I did so.

Mr. Streeter—Where did you insert that?

The Witness—Afterward that was deleted, so that it appears here to have been written in once and then erased. At the close of the paragraph reading, "the general supervision of the directors," Mr. Eustace asked to have the words "according to the terms of the Deed of Trust" added thereto, and I suggested that we also add to that, "and the provisions of The Mother Church Manual." Mr. Eustace agreed to that. So did Mr. Ogden, so did Mr. Rowlands. I don't know why I did not mark that "Yes," but my recollection of it is that I was so near the end of the paragraph, and the hour was so late, that I went right on without putting the word "Yes." The next paragraph, or the next sentence of paragraph 3, reads:

"It shall be accepted in theory and demonstrated in practice that The Mother Church is one institution, and that the responsible authority for its direction in all of its departments is not divided, but has been definitely established in The Christian Science Board of Directors."

That closed the reading of the paragraph. Mr. Eustace agreed to that, Mr. Ogden and Mr. Rowlands also agreed, and I said, "Well, that finishes this agreement. Now," I said—

Mr. Streeter—There was no change in that last paragraph, as I understand you?

The Witness—"It shall be accepted"—from that on—

Mr. Streeter—No; I don't ask you to read it, I ask if there was any change.

The Witness—In the second sentence of the last paragraph there is no change; the only change in that paragraph is in the first sentence. I said, "Well, now I will take this over to my office in the morning and have some copies made, and I will send you some;" and Mr. Rowlands said, "Why, Mr. Dickey, we can copy that right here, let us have that and we will make some copies right away." I said, "Why, you can't, it is nearly six o'clock." And he said, "Oh, yes, we can, Miss Farr is right here." And somebody touched the button and Miss Farr appeared, and I handed the document to Mr. Rowlands, and he passed it over to Miss Farr, and said, "Miss Farr, can you make copies of this tonight?" She said, "Yes." Mr. Rowlands said, "Now, Mr. Dickey, we will make these tonight and send them to your house, if you would like." I said, "Very well, that will suit me." He said, "How many copies do you want?"

I said, "I want one for each of the directors; four copies, if you please." So he said, "All right." And he sent four copies out to my house that night about nine o'clock by messenger.

Previous to that, previous to nine o'clock, while I was absent from home, a telephone call came from a gentleman who said he was very anxious to see me but did not leave his number. Mr. Rowlands told me subsequently that it was he who had called up. The reason he called was that in going over the agreement or the memorandum after I left there they found something else that they objected to, and before changing it he wanted to ask my permission. Not being there, he said they went ahead and changed it, so that the memorandum as finally sent to me did not embody the exact language in which I had left it with them. That ends that day, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, Your Honor having heard the evidence, and it plainly being with regard to a compromise, I move that so far as the record is concerned in the Eustace case it be stricken out.

The Witness—I would like to add something else, if I may.

Mr. Krauthoff—The witness is not entirely through, if Your Honor please.

The Witness—No.

Mr. Krauthoff—I would like to ask this question—

The Master—Let the witness finish first.

The Witness—I got up then to leave the room, and Mr. Rowlands said, "Mr. Dickey, our limousine is at the door; wouldn't you like me to send you home in it?" And we all laughed at the proposition. I said, "No, thank you, I will take a street car." So as I left the room he followed me out into the hall, and, putting his hand on my shoulder, he said, "Well, now, don't you think we have accomplished something?" I said, "Well, Mr. Rowlands, I hope so, but it all depends on how my fellow board members look at this agreement when they see it. I cannot make any promise as to just what may be done."

Q. Before you took up this document of which you have spoken, what did you say to the trustees with respect to what you would do with the document after they had worked out the terms of it? A. I said I would submit it to the directors for their consideration.

Q. Did you undertake on that occasion to agree to any of them on behalf of the directors? A. No, I did not.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment; I object to that.

The Witness—I told Mr. Rowlands, as I was leaving, that I didn't know what the result would be, that I couldn't agree to anything until it had been presented to the directors.

Q. Now, is there anything more that you wanted to state about the document itself? A. The next day I presented—

Q. No, no. I mean now upon that occasion. A. I think that is all.

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple had a motion, I believe.

The Master—Yes; Mr. Whipple asked that this may be stricken out as immaterial in Eustace v. Dickey, and I take it that General Streeter and Mr. Thompson desire it to stay in in the other case.

Mr. Streeter—We certainly do.

Mr. Whipple—But not in the Eustace and Dickey case.

Mr. Streeter—No; we do not care about that; we want it in the Dittmore case.

Mr. Krauthoff—We think it is competent in the Eustace case as a statement of the claim that the plaintiffs were then making as to their rights and privileges under the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust, taken separately or together, as to the concurrent control by the trustees and the directors of certain activities which we claim are activities of The Mother Church.

Mr. Whipple—It is perfectly plain, on the contrary, if Your Honor please, that it was not such a thing. It represented, taking the statement at par, the full limit of the concessions which, for the sake of compromise, the trustees were willing to make provided the directors were willing to make certain concessions from their position. In that connection you will remember quite a significant entry in the directors' records, which has not been commented upon, in which one of the directors, Mr. Rathvon, stated, with regard to what we had supposed was an agreement which would be binding upon gentlemen when it was presented—he stated, "Accept their concessions, and then see what we will do." Here is another instance where they were trying to get from the trustees certain concessions with regard to their position, which they would then deal with as they saw fit, without making any concessions themselves. It is a futile attempt to compromise, and we think it has no place in the Eustace and Dickey case. The fact that for the sake of peace and compromise the trustees were willing to go to these limits, although our memory does not accord with just what the testimony is, the fact that they were willing to go so far as they will testify they were willing to go is creditable to themselves, but you see it is asked for on the basis of being a statement of their position. That is what Mr. Krauthoff keeps repeating, and it was not. He wants to get it into the case for an improper purpose—not as a compromise, but as a statement, an authoritative statement, by the trustees of their position, when the case bristles with evidence that it was not any such thing. It was an attempt to make extreme concessions in order to prevent the catastrophe and calamity that came.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please—

The Master—I am not clear that the document and the testimony regarding it just given by the witness cannot be material for any purpose in Eustace and Dickey, therefore I think I shall have to decline to strike it out, and it stands subject to the objections just stated by Mr. Whipple.

Q. It has been stated, Mr. Dickey, that you were given four copies of this memorandum by the trustees after it was transcribed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was Mr. Neal at that time? A. Mr. Neal was away in the south.

Mr. Thompson—One moment, Mr. Krauthoff. I take this occasion to call Your Honor's attention to the fact that the only purpose of this question can be to introduce evidence in contradiction of Mr. Dittmore's case. I do not say that this is not the proper time, I do not say that it is not proper to anticipate a case not in at all and deny it before it is proved. But, if it is done I merely want to be at liberty to raise the point later, after Mr. Dittmore has testified, that it won't then be possible to put on witnesses to contradict him over again. If they are going to contradict him now on any part of his case, let them do so; but if they propose to try the case as is common, that is, to wait until Mr. Dittmore has put in his case before meeting it, then they ought to be confined to that, but not do both. This can only be material as contradicting a good deal of the testimony under the agreement on the part of Mr. Dittmore.

The Master—I think that having begun with this we will get the whole history of it, and I cannot rule now in advance as to what we will do hereafter. We will have to see about that when it comes up.

Mr. Thompson—Well, I am sorry, but we shall have to preserve whatever rights, if any, we may have, on that ruling, because I think it is an important question of practice.

Q. Where was Mr. Neal at that time? A. Mr. Neal was absent from Boston on a vacation.

Q. I call your attention to a special—

The Master—Now, let us see. What has he said—that the four copies were all sent out to his house?

Mr. Krauthoff—And that Mr. Neal at that time was absent.

The Master—Mr. Neal was absent on a vacation.

Mr. Krauthoff—Leaving four copies, one copy for each of the directors who were then in the city.

The Master—In his house?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Witness—No, not in my house.

Q. Where? A. They were not in my house—the directors.

Q. No, I mean the copies. A. They brought the copies to me that night at my house, and I handed them to the directors at the meeting next day.

Mr. Thompson—You mean you handed one to Mr. Dittmore?

The Witness—I handed one to every director present.

Mr. Thompson—Mr. Dittmore included?

The Witness—Mr. Dittmore was not at the meeting and I couldn't give him a copy.

Q. You mean you didn't give him a copy? A. I did not.

The Master—I merely suggested that, as far as the evidence has gone, the four copies were left at the witness' house.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is correct.

The Master—Now, you add to that, or he has added to that since, that he brought them all to the meeting next day.

Mr. Krauthoff—That was too extensive on his part, and that statement for the present may be—

The Master—He gave one of them to each director then present, Mr. Dittmore not being one because he was not there.

Mr. Krauthoff—He was not there.

The Master—Am I right?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is right.

The Master—Go on.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, at the meeting then—

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, and Your Honor, have you any objection to turning to the records and seeing what the records say about Mr. Dittmore being present at the next meeting?

The Master—Well, that can be done, I think, during the intermission. We are nearing 1 o'clock now. Have you any questions with which you can use up the two or three remaining minutes?

Mr. Streeter—It is a very simple thing; he has the records right in his hand.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will do it, if Your Honor please.

Q. May I ask one question, Mr. Dickey? In returning these four copies to your house, did the original also come back with it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the one you have in your hand? A. That is the one I have in my hand now.

Q. May I have that document a moment, please? A. Yes. (Handing document to counsel.)

Mr. Streeter—Let me see your record, please, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. Now, the document from which you have read your testimony just preceding this question is the one that has been marked Exhibit 680, for identification? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, with respect to this document we make the suggestion that it be photographed and copies of the photograph given to counsel for their use and to the Court, because I think in that form it is more intelligible than in any other form, and that it not now be offered in evidence as an exhibit.

Mr. Streeter—We assent to that, but we want it in evidence.

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, certainly.

Mr. Streeter—We assent to the photograph.

Mr. Thompson—We want it put in now.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is offered in evidence, but I do not think it necessary to again transcribe it, either in its original or in its altered form.

The Master—No. I suppose you all agree to that, don't you?

Mr. Streeter—What?

The Master—You do not want it transcribed all over again now?

Mr. Streeter—Oh, no, but we want photographic copies of it.

Mr. Thompson—Has it got an exhibit mark on it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, 680.

The Master—Very well, the document is in. Now, you do not require any order from me about photographing it?

Mr. Krauthoff—No; I was just saying that by way of explanation. It is in, and is not to be further transcribed.

The Master—Yes, all right—either in its original or its altered form.

Mr. Thompson—But it is to be available for the inspection of all counsel at any time.

The Master—Of course, like any other exhibit.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon, I didn't catch what Your Honor just said.

The Master—Mr. Thompson suggested that it should be open to inspection by all counsel at any time, and I said, "Yes, just like any other exhibit."

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

[The memorandum previously marked Exhibit 680, for identification, is now marked in evidence as Exhibit 680.]

Q. Now, when the meeting was had next day, on March 7, 1919, at which Mr. Rathvon and Mr. Merritt and you were present, did your associates agree to this memorandum as it was worked out? Just say yes or no. A. No.

Q. And so nothing further came of that? Did you tell the trustees afterward? A. Yes.

Q. When? A. At their next meeting with us.

Q. On the following Monday? A. Yes.

Q. General Streeter wishes to know which of the three agreed to it, if any—either Mr. Rathvon, Mr. Merritt or yourself? A. None of us agreed to it.

Mr. Streeter—What is the answer?

The Witness—None of us agreed to it.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is now 1 o'clock, if Your Honor please.

The Master—We will stop here until 2 o'clock.

[Recess to 2 p. m.]

AFTERNOON SESSION

Q. (Mr. Krauthoff.) Mr. Dickey, with respect to this interview with the trustees on March 6, 1919, where the Dittmore memorandum was gone over in detail and the four copies and the original sent out to your house, you spoke of a telephone conversation which Mr. Rowlands thereafter stated came from him. Did that refer to a change in that memorandum? A. It did.

Q. What change did that telephone conversation refer to, if you know?

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please—

The Witness—I did not get the conversation, so that I do not know.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. If there was any conversation on the subject it should be given.

The Master—Now, just state what the conversation was over the telephone about that.

Q. You were not at home when the telephone came? A. I was not. I did not get the conversation relating to the change so that I could not repeat it.

Q. Do you know what change was made in the document after you left the trustees and before it came to you? A. There was one very decided change made, which I took note of.

Q. Where is the document now? Have you it, Mr. Dickey? A. No, I have not.

Mr. Streeter—Hasn't he one of the four copies which was sent over? He can point out from that the change which was made after he left.

The Master—All that about the telephone conversation might as well disappear from the record, so far as I can see.

Mr. Krauthoff—Certainly, Your Honor, that is right.

The Master—It has no bearing.

Mr. Krauthoff—My recollection is that it was given to the stenographers.

The Master—The last I saw of it it was in the hands of the stenographers.

Q. Have you the copy which came to you—one of the four copies? A. I have.

Q. Are you able from that to state what the change was? A. I could not give it exactly, but there was a change in the last paragraph.

Mr. Krauthoff—We will wait until the document comes in and then I will recur to that.

Q. It was not entirely clear to me, Mr. Dickey. Did you on this occasion, March 6, 1919, in this interview with these trustees, agree to these modifications of this Dittmore agreement? You used the phrase that you agreed to this and that you agreed to that.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I pray Your Honor's judgment. If there was any conversation on the subject—I understand there was—it may be given, so far as it has not been given, but there is no use repeating it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Certainly.

The Witness—I agreed that—

Mr. Krauthoff—One moment; don't say what you agreed.

Q. What did you say? A. I said I would present these to my fellow directors and put the question up to them of the acceptance of the terms of the memorandum.

Q. Did you say that they were acceptable to you?

Mr. Thompson—Pardon me, just a moment.

A. Not I—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I pray Your Honor's judgment. Why not ask him what he said on the subject?

The Master—This, I take it, is the conversation of March 6.

Mr. Krauthoff—With the trustees.

Q. What did you say?

The Master—Just a moment.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon.

The Master—To bring in something additional which you think he has not brought out yet?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if Your Honor please.

The Master—All right. Of course if there is anything he omitted, you can bring it out now.

Mr. Krauthoff—Just one question, if Your Honor please.

The Witness—I—

Mr. Krauthoff—One moment.

Q. What, if anything, did you say as to whether or not you agreed to these—

Mr. Thompson—Just a moment. Can I be heard a moment on that? This gentleman has repeatedly testified that he went through line by line, changes were suggested, conclusions reached, he was asked if it was satisfactory to him, and he said it was; the other three said it was to them, and he marked it, "Yes." Now, can there be any legitimate reason for changing or altering that testimony? That answers the present question.

The Master—Unless something else was said at the conversation, in which case I think they have the right to say what else was said.

The Witness—I did not say that I would agree to any of those paragraphs in the memorandum; I said it would be acceptable to me to present to the directors for their consideration. I made no agreements of any kind.

Mr. Thompson—Now, I ask that that last be stricken out, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Krauthoff—The statement, "I made no agreements of any kind" should be stricken out.

Mr. Streeter—It is agreed that that should go out, Mr. Krauthoff?

The Witness—I did not commit myself in any way.

Mr. Thompson—One moment. I ask that be struck out.

The Master—One moment. You will get along better if you will testify only in answer to the questions.

Mr. Thompson—That may all go out, I understand, may it?

The Master—I understood Mr. Krauthoff to say that might go out.

Mr. Krauthoff—I submit to Your Honor's judgment on that. It is a negative statement as to what he did not say.

The Master—I so interpreted it.

Mr. Bates—I think it ought to stay in, Your Honor.

The Master—I take it as a denial by him that he ever said he agreed.

The Witness—Exactly.

The Master—For any other purpose I should not receive it.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I proceed?

The Master—Yes.

Q. What was the particular difficulty that the directors had on March 7, 1919, when you conferred with them in respect to this document?

Mr. Whipple—That I object to.

The Master—There, again, Mr. Krauthoff—this is ground where they evidently want you to follow strictly the regular course.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well. Thank you. If that is objected to of course it is not admissible against the trustees.

Q. The next incident, Mr. Dickey, is the meeting of the Board of Directors on the next Monday, March 10, 1919, at which, according to the record, Messrs. Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon were present all during the meeting, and Mr. Dittmore from 11:10 to 12 o'clock noon—the record further recites that Mr. Dittmore left the meeting at 12 o'clock noon. At that meeting did you present a memorandum to the trustees prepared by Judge Smith? A. I did.

Q. Have you that document here? A. I have.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I see it, please? [Paper handed to Mr. Krauthoff, who hands it to counsel.]

Mr. Whipple—I understand that this paper which you have handed me is something that had been prepared by Judge Smith as another attempt similar to the last. Am I right?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was another attempt on March 10, 1919, of the parties to come to an understanding as to their mutual relations, and is offered for the same purpose as the last document—that is, as showing the position that was taken by the trustees and the position that was taken by the directors, and the points of difference.

Mr. Whipple—That is, having apparently in good faith had an interview with these trustees, asking them to make certain concessions, to which very clearly by implication he agreed, and undertaking to present it to the trustees, apparently still acting in good faith, with a view to a settlement of this controversy—now, without the slightest evidence that this man ever voted for it among the directors, or even submitted it to them with any recommendation, you now offer another attempt by drawing up some other paper to lead the trustees further on. Isn't that practically what you are doing?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

Mr. Whipple—Now, pardon me—unless you want to answer my question.

Mr. Krauthoff—If I was asked a question I thought it was proper to direct my answer to the Court.

Mr. Whipple—Certainly.

The Master—It does not strike me that this discussion could be particularly useful at this time.

Mr. Whipple—Well, does Your Honor think that this further memorandum, after what you have observed with regard to the last one, would be helpful? If so, I will submit it without any argument.

The Master—I can't tell whether it is or not until I hear what the evidence about it is going to be.

Mr. Whipple—Very well. Let us take the evidence.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, in passing—

The Master—Now, Mr. Krauthoff, wouldn't it be better to go on with the examination about this?

Mr. Streeter—We have no objection to it.

The Master—I am sorry to restrict these little arguments by the way, but it is obviously of great importance to make as great progress as possible.

Mr. Krauthoff—We are very glad to be restricted when the necessity is not apparent.

Q. Mr. Dickey, at this meeting on March 10, 1919, did you say anything to the trustees about this memorandum that you had taken up with them the previous week, on March 6, 1919? A. Yes.

Q. What did you say to the trustees? A. I told them that it had not been received by the board and the board would not accept it.

Q. Did you state to them the reasons why the board would not accept it? A. I did. I told them that the change in the memorandum which they had made after they consulted with me, and those which I put in with their consent—or, rather, which they put in with my consent, namely, the word "concurrently," that that was not acceptable either to our counsel or to the directors.

Q. When you used the phrase a moment ago, or the word, "received," you actually delivered the paper to the directors? A. Which paper are you referring to, Mr. Krauthoff?

Q. The revised Dittmore memorandum in the form in which you and the trustees had worked it out. A. They kept their own copies.

Q. I understand. But you said it had not been received by the board. A. I meant, they did not accept the terms of it. I did not mean, receive the paper; they did receive the paper.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, this document—

Mr. Streeter—I beg pardon, Your Honor, and yours, Mr. Krauthoff. But what I am interested to know, is, what change came from the trustees in that memorandum?

The Master—We are going to get that, I understand, as soon as we get the paper back. Am I right?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; that is my understanding of the situation.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, I beg your pardon.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, this document, if Your Honor please, known as the Judge Smith memorandum, was presented on March 10, 1919. We desire to have it marked as an exhibit for identification at this time.

The Master—Identify it now and then go on with the evidence about it, please.

[Document known as "The Judge Smith Memorandum," is marked 681 for identification.]

Q. In the form in which that was presented to the trustees by the directors on March 10, 1919, was it in typewriting? A. Yes.

Q. Now, will you point out the changes that were made in pencil—it will not be necessary to read it in full—and at whose instance those changes were made?

Mr. Streeter—Well, if Your Honor will pardon me, it will be necessary to read that in full, or it will be necessary to have it printed in full and the changes pointed out in such a way that they can be identified by the master as well as by counsel.

Mr. Krauthoff—At the proper time, if Your Honor please, we shall ask that that be offered in evidence as an exhibit and be transcribed twice, once in its original typewritten form and once in the form of the lead pencil additions, or by some suitable means—I suppose it can be done by under-scoring.

Q. Will you please explain the lead pencil additions, Mr. Dickey? A. In paragraph 2, in the last line, four words are deleted, as follows, "that Mrs. Eddy did"; and the addition was made to read as follows, "of Mrs. Eddy's published writings and her avowed acts as Discoverer"—those were added to the paragraph in pencil.

Q. Who asked that that— A. Pardon me just a moment. After that, a part of these lead pencil words were deleted, as follows, "and her avowed acts as"—those were deleted.

Q. At whose instance were those changes made? A. Mr. Eustace, the other members of the board concurring.

Q. What did they say? A. Well, they said—

Q. Who said it? A. Mr. Eustace said this paragraph 2 was not satisfactory in the condition in which we presented it to them; he would not consent—

Q. What did he say? Is that what he said? A. He said he would not sign it in its present shape.

Q. And who wrote in the pencil words? A. I did, at his dictation.

Q. And then after that some of them were taken out? A. Yes.

Q. What was the next pencil change there? A. In paragraph 3, in the last line, the word "in" is deleted where it occurs in this sentence, "In perfect accord with the By-Laws in the eighty-ninth edition of our Church Manual." The word "in" was changed to read "of."

Q. And the next lead pencil change?

A. In paragraph 4, the last line, the words occur as follows, "is to be sought and found in a simple and reasonable manner." "Simple and" was deleted. And at the last of the sentence was added, "and in accordance with the law of the land." That was done at Mr. Eustace's request, and I agreed to that and wrote it in, making that paragraph read that, "Mrs. Eddy used words both carefully and exactly, hence her intention as expressed in our Church By-Laws and in the Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898, is to be sought and found in a simple and reasonable manner." "Simple and" was deleted, and it was made to read, "sought and found in a reasonable manner in accordance with the law of the land."

In paragraph 5, the last two lines are deleted, which read as follows, "Among other powers this board now has those which formerly were conferred on the First Members of The Mother Church."

In the fourth paragraph, the change was made at Mr. Eustace's request. He stated that he would not agree to it in its present form.

In paragraph 5, the words, "Among other powers this Board now has those which formerly were conferred on the First Members of The Mother Church" were deleted at Mr. Eustace's request.

Paragraph 6, the last two lines were deleted at Mr. Eustace's request, "and they are subject to the general supervision of the Board of Directors in accordance with the provisions of the By-Laws and Trust Deed."

In Paragraph 7, one word was changed in the last line, which reads, "shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Directors." The word "approval" was changed to "concurrence," making it read, "shall be subject to the concurrence of the Board of Directors."

Those changes were all made in my handwriting and agreed to by Mr. Eustace, but not by the directors.

Mr. Thompson—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, this witness has said more than once as he went through, "Mr. Eustace suggested it and I agreed to it." Now, does he reverse himself on that?

Q. Mr. Dickey, in using the words "agreed"— A. I meant, I agreed to write it in this instrument as it appears.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, I see. You just agreed to write it in?

The Witness—That is all, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—I had supposed you did write it in and did not agree to it. The Witness—We did.

Mr. Whipple—You actually wrote it?

Mr. Thompson—I think we would like that out. I do not follow this at all, sir. I think the witness should be required to be very explicit here. He and his associates are apparently striving to reach some sort of agreement with the trustees which involves the surrender by them of what has theretofore been insisted on. Now, either he was acting in good faith and leading them to believe that if they would agree he would, or else he was not. Now, I don't think he ought to be allowed to characterize his conduct after he has participated in this conference, and say, "I agreed to nothing except to write in these changes."

The Master—That is his testimony as he means to give it.

Q. Mr. Dickey, will you please state that over again and leave out the word "agreed," what you agreed or what they agreed, or what somebody suggested, and just state what was said and what was done.

Mr. Whipple—You mean reviewing this whole paper again?

The Master—I hardly think we can do that, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well. I was trying to accede to the criticisms of counsel.

Mr. Thompson—The easiest way would be to strike out the word "agreed."

Mr. Krauthoff—Then his testimony would be meaningless.

Mr. Thompson—I don't think so.

Q. Mr. Dickey, this paper was taken up, and the trustees suggested certain words, as I understand it. The lead pencil delineations were suggested by the trustees? A. They were.

Q. And were written in by you? A. Yes.

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me, Mr. Krauthoff. Probably it is because I did not hear, but I want to know whether this was taken up at a joint meeting of the boards or by him alone with the trustees?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was taken up at a joint meeting of the two boards on March 10, 1919.

Mr. Streeter—That is what I supposed.

Q. And you wrote it in? A. I did.

Q. Then I notice, Mr. Dickey, on the second page, there is one clause with a parenthesis all around it, and the letter "d" on either side. A. Well, that "d" is a delete mark, which means that that phrase is to be deleted. That is not a letter "d."

Q. Now, who asked that that be put in parenthesis, with the delete mark on it? A. Well, it was in there in full as I wrote it at the request of Mr. Eustace. Afterwards he requested that part of it deleted, and I drew a circle around it and put the delete mark in the margin.

Q. After that what was done with this paper, Exhibit 681? Did the trustees take it away with them? A. I think not. I think that they had their own, and made their own marks on their own paper.

Q. Oh, it was written in duplicate before you took it up? A. Yes.

Q. On that occasion neither the directors nor the trustees came to an agreement with respect to it?

Mr. Thompson—I pray Your Honor's judgment. I do not think that that is proper, considering the issues in this case.

Q. You have stated what happened about this paper, then, have you, Mr. Dickey? A. Yes.

Q. Have you stated all the conversation that took place about the paper? A. No; there was quite a little conversation that I do not recall sufficiently well to repeat.

Q. What did the trustees say when they took the paper away with them, and which trustee said it? A. Mr. Eustace said that he—that they would take it away and give it their consideration.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, ask him what the directors said about it.

Q. And what did you or any of the directors say to the trustees about this paper? A. Nothing. We had nothing to say with regard to their taking away that paper and returning another one.

Q. I mean with regard to these lead pencil interlineations, what did any of the directors say? A. I don't recall that anything was said in particular—

Mr. Thompson—That has already been gone over once.

The Witness—Beyond the fact that they were inserted there.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am sorry, Mr. Thompson, but General Streeter asked me to ask—

Mr. Streeter—Yes, I did.

Mr. Thompson—No; you asked him to ask when they took it away.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, we offer this Exhibit 681 for identification in evidence as an exhibit, and I presume, if Your Honor please, that it will be proper to have it transcribed once as it is in the original typewriting, and again as it is with the deletions and interlineations. Will that be agreeable to Your Honor?

The Master—If there is no way of escaping it.

[The document previously marked "681 for identification. R. M. K.," is now admitted in evidence as "Exhibit 681. R. M. K.," and it is as follows:

Written at the top of the first page, in lead pencil, are the words "Read and discussed at meeting with trustees March 10, 1919, furnished by counsel." Underneath the words "discussed at meeting with trustees March" is a pencil line. Then, in typewriting, is the following:

"It is mutually understood and agreed by and between the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, and the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, as follows:

"1. That The Christian Science Publishing Society is not separate from or independent of The Mother Church. The Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898, was and is accurately described by our Leader's words, 'A Gift to The Mother Church and A Grant of Trusteeship.'

"2. That the relations of the above named boards and their respective duties and responsibilities are shown by our Church By-Laws and the above mentioned Deed of Trust. These By-Laws and this trust deed must be, respectively, considered as a whole; each must be construed in connection with the other; and both must be construed in the light of all that Mrs. Eddy did (pencil lines are drawn through the words, 'that Mrs. Eddy did,' and written above in lead pencil are the words, 'of Mrs. Eddy's published writings') as the (followed by a caret in pencil, and the words in pencil, written underneath, 'discoverer &,' and written above the caret in pencil the words, 'and her avowed acts as,' which last words are inclosed with a pencil line and carried by a line to the right-hand margin, after which is the printer's symbol for delete) Founder of Christian Science.

"3. That the trusteeship created by the Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898, was and is a legal trust. It is also a trust that can be and is to be executed in perfect accord with the By-Laws in (the word 'in' is incircled by a pencil line, and from this pencil line is drawn a line to the right-hand margin, after which is the word 'of') the 89th edition of our Church Manual.

"4. That Mrs. Eddy used words both carefully and exactly; hence her intention, as expressed in our Church By-Laws and in the Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898, is to be sought and found in a simple and (a pencil line is drawn around the words 'simple and') reasonable (a pencil line is drawn under the letters 'ason' in the word 'reasonable,' and in the right-hand margin, in pencil, is an interrogation mark) manner. (At this point, written in pencil, are the words '& in accordance with the law of the land.')

"5. That the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, which our Leader designated as the 'Christian Science Board of Directors,' is intrusted with the general direction and supervision of the Christian Science movement in all of its departments. Among other powers, this board now has those which formerly were conferred on the First Members of The Mother Church. (The words beginning with 'Among other powers' and ending with 'First Members of The Mother Church' are inclosed by pencil lines, and opposite them, in the right-hand margin, is the printer's symbol for delete.)

"6. That the duties and responsibilities of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society are not those of mere clerks, nor are they merely formal or unimportant. On the contrary, the duties and responsibilities of this board are exceedingly important. Nevertheless they consist only of what is expressly conferred on this board by our Church By-Laws and the Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898; and they are subject to the general supervision of the Board of Directors in accordance with the provisions of the By-Laws and Trust Decd. (The words beginning 'and they are subject' and ending with the words 'provisions of the By-Laws and Trust Deed' are inclosed with a pencil line; a pencil line is drawn down the right-hand margin of the paper beginning on the second line of '6' and ending with the words 'provisions of the By-Laws and Trust Deed,' and on the right-hand margin, opposite the words 'expressly conferred on this Board by our' is, in pencil, the printer's symbol for delete, and also on the left-hand side between the last and the next to the last lines.)

"7. That all new or unusual acts contemplated by the Board of Trustees, which would or might, to an important extent, affect the interests of Christian Science or the income of The Mother Church, shall be subject to the approval of the Board of Directors. (Under the word 'approval' is a pencil line, and written in the right-hand margin, opposite, in pencil, is the word 'concurrence.')

"For the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

Q. Did the trustees come back on March 11, 1919? A. They did.

Q. And did they bring with them a document? A. They did.

Q. Have you that document? A. I have.

Q. Was Mr. Dittmore present at the time that the document that you have just referred to was considered by the board? A. He was not.

The Master—Meaning exhibit what?

Mr. Krauthoff—Exhibit 682.

The Master—You do not refer to the Judge Smith—

Mr. Krauthoff—No; I am now referring to the one that the trustees—

The Master—I was not quite clear about that, whether you were going back a little, or whether you referred to the document that you just handed counsel.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am referring to the document which I just handed counsel, which has not been introduced in evidence, being the document that the trustees prepared and brought back with them.

The Master—Very good.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Krauthoff, so far as Mr. Dittmore is concerned, we do not object, and, not only that, but we approve.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have this marked? We offer it in evidence as an exhibit.

Mr. Streeter—Does it appear from the record that this document was brought back on March 11, 1919, as a proposal of the trustees?

Mr. Krauthoff—The record of the directors shows that at 12 o'clock Mr. Dittmore left the meeting, and the remaining directors had an interview with Trustees Eustace, Ogden and Rowlands, of The Christian Science Publishing Society. At 1.15 p. m. the meeting adjourned.

Mr. Streeter—That does not show it. You offer a document here, and I understand you to say that this was a paper which the trustees brought back at that meeting as their proposal of an adjustment.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, that is it.

Mr. Streeter—Is that correct?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is correct.

Mr. Whipple—We have no other objection to it, if Your Honor please, than that which we have already recited.

The Master—The same objection on Mr. Whipple's part, and the same ruling.

[The typewritten document last described is marked Exhibit 682. R. H. J.]

Q. This is Exhibit 682, Mr. Dickey, which you handed me a moment ago. Did the trustees bring that with them to the meeting of March 11, 1919? A. They did.

Q. And what did the trustees say, any of them, with respect to this 682?

A. I can't tell whether it was Mr. Eustace or Mr. Rowlands that handed in that document and said that that represented their ideas of what this agreement should contain, it was a modification of the one that they carried away the day before.

Q. Did he say it was a modification? A. No. He said they had made some changes in it, but this contained their present ideas.

Mr. Krauthoff—That document is offered in evidence as Exhibit 682, and it is as follows:

"It is mutually understood and agreed by and between the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, and the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, as follows:

"1. That The Christian Science Publishing Society is not separate from or independent of The Mother Church, but is an interdependent activity of the Christian Science movement, and that the gift of the 'net profits' from the conduct of the business of The Christian Science Publishing Society under the Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898, was and is accurately described by our Leader's words, 'A Gift to The Mother Church, and a Grant of Trusteeship.'

"2. That the relations of the above named boards and their respective duties and responsibilities are shown by our Church By-Laws and the above mentioned Deed of Trust. These By-Laws and this Trust Deed must be respectively considered as a whole. Each must be construed in connection with the other, and both must be construed in the light of all of Mrs. Eddy's published writings as the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science.

"3. That the trusteeship created by the Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898, was and is a legal trust. It is also a trust that can be and is to be executed in perfect accord with the By-Laws of the eighty-ninth edition of the Church Manual and in accordance with the law of the land.

"4. That Mrs. Eddy used words both carefully and exactly. Hence her intention as expressed in our Church By-Laws and in the Deed of Trust dated Jan. 25, 1898, is to be sought and found in a reasonable manner and in accordance with the law of the land.

"5. That the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, which our Leader designated as the 'Christian Science Board of Directors,' is intrusted with the general direction and supervision of the Christian Science movement in all its departments; but it is understood that The Christian Science Publishing Society is not such a department, being a function of the Christian Science movement. Therefore the Board of Trustees necessarily differs organically from departmental activities of The Mother Church, in that its responsibilities in the holding and management of valuable property require that it be constituted and perpetuated in accordance with the established legal usage necessary to safeguard and properly manage the trust and confidence given by Mrs. Eddy in the Deed of Trust.

"6. That the duties and responsibilities of the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society are not merely formal or unimportant, but are clearly and definitely defined under the Church Manual and the Deed of Trust.

"7. That all unusual acts contemplated by the Board of Trustees which would or might to an important extent affect the interests of the Christian Science movement or the income of The Mother Church shall be taken with the concurrence of both boards.

"8. Both boards recognize that under Section 3 of Article XXXV no new tenet or by-law can be adopted, nor any tenet or by-law amended or annulled, and both boards fully recognize the duty of each to the other in complying with the laws of the land, but because of the rapidly increasing business and the ever increasing influence of Christian Science throughout the world, it has now become necessary for both boards to unite upon some working agreement to be in accord with the Manual of The Mother Church and the Deed of Trust constituting The Christian Science Publishing Society, which it is agreed shall not be construed as a new by-law or as an amendment to the By-Laws of the Church Manual, and which shall not be construed as affecting in any wise the rights, duties, or responsibilities of either board under the Manual of The Mother Church and the Deed of Trust.

"Signed March , 1919.

"For The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"For the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society."

Q. On March 11, 1919, when this Exhibit 682 was presented by the trustees, was anything said by any of the trustees or any of the directors with respect to that agreement? A. Yes, there was; but before I state that I would like to make a possible correction in my testimony. I stated that I made these alterations in lead pencil on March 10, and I am not now certain that I did that on the 10th, nor am I real certain that I did it on the 11th, but I am inclined to believe that it was on the 11th, the day that the agreement was brought in from them, that I made these interlineations on the paper that I had before me. Now, that will change my testimony to a considerable extent.

Q. You are not able now to state when you— A. I am not able. I have been trying to think the matter over, and I am more inclined to believe that I did it on the 11th than that I did it on the 10th.

Q. Let me see. On the 11th the trustees brought the document that they had prepared? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you then, Mr. Dickey, on March 11, before taking up their document, go back to your own document and try to work that out? A. No. If it was done on the 11th, I did it as they read their document, and I made the corrections on the paper that I had before me; but I am not able to state; and if it is not desired to leave the matter that way, I would rather that the whole question would be stricken out than to claim what perhaps I cannot substantiate.

Q. I will ask you later to compare the two documents and state whether they were both presented on the same day or not? A. I don't know that I could state that. I would not know that.

Mr. Thompson — Before we reach that, the two papers you speak of are Judge Smith's memorandum and the paper brought by the trustees on March 11. Is that right?

Mr. Krauthoff—They are Exhibits 681 and 682.

Mr. Thompson—He cannot tell whether he made the pencil marks on Judge Smith's memorandum on March 10 or 11?

The Witness—That is right.

Mr. Krauthoff—So he now states.

The Witness—Quite right. You asked me if there was any discussion.

Mr. Whipple—I understand, if Your Honor please, that as a result of the witness' correction, while it is not very clear, as to all this circumstantial narrative of his with regard to going through Judge Smith's memorandum paragraph by paragraph and deleting or adding thereto in accordance with the suggestion of Mr. Eustace, he now thinks that it did not happen at all.

The Witness—No, sir, that is not what I said.

Mr. Whipple—That is what you did testify to.

The Witness—I mean it happened on the 10th or on the 11th.

Mr. Whipple—Well—

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I am quite sure that when the witness thinks of it further he will get straight on that. He has just for the moment—

Mr. Whipple—He must know more about it than you do. Where is he going to get it? Are you going to straighten him out on it? Where is he going to get his inspiration?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, the circumstances clearly indicate that it was done on the 10th, because the two documents are not so similar that you can make the one fit the other by interlineation.

The Master—Can it be a matter of very great importance whether it was done on the 10th or on the 11th?

Mr. Whipple—Well, we regard it as of importance, of course, as affecting the memory of the witness. He gives us a circumstantial narrative with photographic accuracy as to what happened with regard to a paper, and then he finds there isn't a bit of basis for it—I mean as to the accuracy of the witness' memory—

Mr. Bates—He has said it took place either on the 10th or the 11th.

Mr. Thompson—Well, pardon me, excuse me.

Mr. Whipple—It couldn't have been on the 11th.

Mr. Bates—That is his statement.

Mr. Whipple—What he said is that if it happened on the 11th he did it by comparing the two papers and not reading to Mr. Eustace all the things he wanted inserted, because Mr. Eustace has prepared an entire paper, and it was not an amending of one by the other. One was writing differences between the two papers, as he now puts it, while the other was listening to and acting as scribe in making interlineations and additions to only one paper. I should think even you, Governor, ought to see the difference between those two statements.

Mr. Bates—I am stating what the witness said and you are simply giving your own theory.

Mr. Whipple—I am stating what the witness says and you have evidently not been listening to it—

Mr. Bates—I have to listen to you all the time.

Mr. Whipple— otherwise, you would have known something about it.

Mr. Bates—I have to listen to the witness once in a while.

Mr. Whipple—It is because you have not listened to the witness that now you misquote.

Mr. Krauthoff—The net result is, after all, if Your Honor please, that the directors proposed one memorandum and the trustees proposed the other, and they did not come to an accord.

Mr. Thompson—We do not concede that that is a fair statement.

Mr. Whipple—We do not agree to that at all; that is an easy way out.

The Master—I think the only way would be to get what the witness means to say and leave it there; then you can argue it afterwards.

Mr. Streeter—If I may be allowed to state it, the net result is that, on a most important document, this witness cannot tell whether it was done on the 10th or 11th, cannot tell whether it was done at a joint meeting or the next day, with Mr. Eustace, before meeting, when another document was presented. That is the net result of it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me, General. I should have stated that on March 11, 1919, the record shows another interview between the directors and the trustees, at which the document which the trustees—

Mr. Streeter—I won't try to have the last word with you. We will argue that when we come to the point later, as to what the net result of this is.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not talking about the net result.

Mr. Streeter—That is what I am talking about.

Q. May I call your attention to this, Mr. Dickey. The directors' records show that on March 11, 1919, at 12 o'clock Mr. Dittmore left the meeting, and the remaining directors had an interview with Trustees Eustace, Ogden, and Rowlands of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and at 1:15 p.m. the meeting adjourned. This memorandum which the trustees had prepared, Exhibit 681—was that presented the next day at the trustees' meeting with the directors? A. It was.

The Master—One moment.

Mr. Whipple—The next day after that.

Mr. Krauthoff—I mean March 11, 1919.

The Master—One moment. Was that presented on March 11?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. That was presented March 11.

The Witness—Yes.

The Master—Unless you put it in that way I am afraid you will get into confusion again.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you very much.

The Witness—It was.

Q. What was said by the trustees or by any of the directors on March 11, 1919, with respect to the memorandum 681 which the trustees brought over? A. I said, "Well, there are quite a few differences"—

Q. I beg pardon; that is Exhibit 682. Go ahead, Mr. Dickey. A. I said, "There are quite a few differences between this proposal and the one we gave to you yesterday," and Mr. Eustace said, "Yes, there are." I pointed out, by comparison, what some of them were, and asked him why they made that. He said that was their point of view, and that was the only agreement they would sign. After having pointed several of these out, I said, "Well, now, Mr. Eustace, it is very evident from what you say today that you have changed entirely from your attitude of yesterday." He said, "We have nothing of the kind." I said, "I beg your pardon; you are now making statements verbally to me which you have never made to me before, namely, that you believe that the Board of Directors has nothing whatever to do with anything that goes on in the publishing house." He said, "That is exactly what I say and exactly what I mean." "Then," I said, "You have never stated that to me before in any conversation we have ever had, and I am very much disappointed at the result of this interview." The other directors expressed themselves—I cannot tell the name of the individual and what he said—but just before they left Mr. Rowlands asked, "Well, Mr. Dickey, has anything been accomplished today?" I said, "Yes, a great deal; we have found out now just where the trustees stand and what they are trying to do, and I think our interviews are at an end."

Q. Was there any conversation in which the word "mask" was used? A. Yes. I said, "You have dropped the mask that you have been wearing all this time, and I now see clearly just what you have meant and what you mean now."

Q. While these interviews were going on, Mr. Dickey, I call your attention to the record of Feb. 26, 1919, in which each member of the board was requested to prepare reasons why one of the trustees should be removed. Did you prepare such reasons? A. I did.

Q. In writing? A. Yes.

Q. What did you do with the reasons? A. I gave them to Judge Smith.

Q. When did you prepare them? A. I prepared them after Judge Smith made the request; I gave my reasons to him.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, did Judge

Smith give those reasons back to you?

A. He did.

Q. And have you them now? A. I have not.

Q. What did you do with them? A. I destroyed them at once after receiving them.

Q. This question of why one of the trustees should be removed—state the circumstances with respect to that.

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Are we now going back to Feb. 26?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, if Your Honor please. I am still about these reasons. I will leave out the question of Feb. 26.

Q. Did the question then arise, Mr. Dickey, and what was said about it, about removing one trustee or removing three trustees?

Mr. Whipple—I object, if Your Honor please.

The Master—"Then." What do you mean by "then"?

Mr. Krauthoff—After March 11, 1919.

The Witness—Yes, the records will show what we did.

Q. Well, the records show that you removed one? A. Yes. That was discussed with the directors, if that is what you mean.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, that was discussed with the directors. If Your Honor please—one moment, Mr. Dickey—this question of removing one of the three trustees presents itself in this case in a double aspect. The claim of Mr. Dittmore is that all three—

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment. Why is Mr. Krauthoff addressing the Court? There is no question that has not been answered. I do not understand the purpose of this address or how it fits in.

The Master—Why is it necessary to make any statement about it? Why can't you go on with your examination of the witness?

Mr. Krauthoff—I suppose, if Your Honor please, the only explanation I can make is that, being a counsel from abroad, I have fallen into Mr. Whipple's habits in the courts of Massachusetts, in making statements frequently and often.

Mr. Whipple—You ought not to discredit me by saying that you are imitating me.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, did you have any conversation thereafter with your fellow members of the Board of Directors with respect to removing one trustee in contradistinction to removing all three? A. We did.

Q. Please state what was said in those conversations?

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now may I make the statement?

The Master—Why should we have all the discussion in the Board of Directors on that subject brought out at length?

Mr. Krauthoff—The question, as I was about to say a moment ago, arises in this case in a double aspect. Mr. Whipple is complaining of the failure of the Board of Directors in not removing all three of the trustees, on the ground that if any one of the trustees should have been removed all three should have been removed, and our failure to remove all three is evidence of the fact that in truth no ground existed to remove one. That is the contention of Mr. Whipple. On the other hand, Mr. Dittmore is contending that our failure to remove all three of the trustees shows a lack on our part, of the directors of The Mother Church, in the discharge of their duties, and has a bearing on their action in removing him from office.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, let me say that the contention attributed to me by the learned counsel has never been made, and in my wildest flights of imagination I have never thought of complaining because all three trustees were not removed rather than one—never. Our complaint is that you attempted to remove one—a palpably futile, baseless proceeding. That is our complaint.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, then, I will not press that inquiry at this time.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I would not.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will take it up when I come to another phase of the case.

Q. Mr. Dickey, coming back to Exhibit 680, are you now able to state what changes were made in that document after you left the trustees?

The Master—Pardon me, I think now, General Streeter, this is the information that you were in search of a while ago.

Mr. Streeter—I thank Your Honor.

A. I couldn't without comparing it with the document which they returned to me that night. That differed somewhat from this one.

Q. Have you that document? A. I have not. It is here in evidence.

Mr. Streeter—No, it is not in evidence.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon, Mr. Dickey; I haven't asked you for it.

The Witness—Perhaps I have it.

Mr. Streeter—We never have seen it.

The Witness—I will show it to you.

Mr. Streeter—I mean the copies that they sent over to him that night, which he says were changed.

The Witness—I have it here, General.

Mr. Streeter—Now, if you can tell the difference we don't want to have this all printed in again.

The Witness—The only way I could tell the difference would be to read it over with somebody. I will go over and do it with you, General, if you like.

Mr. Whipple—It had occurred to us that if that difference was so important as to make it rejected—as to be the basis of rejection—it might have remained in your mind what the difference was.

Mr. Bates—No one has said it was the basis for rejection except Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—Except that the witness has testified under oath. He said that, and other things.

Mr. Bates—Why did you leave out the other things?

Mr. Whipple—Because I don't need to state them all.

Mr. Bates—You need to tell the whole truth once in a while.

Mr. Whipple—I do nothing else.

The Master—Now, what course shall we take to get this evidence in in the shortest possible form?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is now 3 o'clock. It has not been our practice to take an intermission in the afternoon. I can defer it until tomorrow morning.

The Master—How long would it take you to look it over?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not know.

Mr. Streeter—It will be satisfactory to us if he will furnish an authenticated copy of what the trustees sent over. We will make our own comparison.

The Master—Can you do that?

Q. Have you there a copy of that which the trustees sent to your house? A. I have.

Q. Have you one or two of them?

Mr. Streeter—Let it be marked for identification so we will know what we are about.

The Witness—Here is the original.

The Master—Is that the document that he produced?

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer it for identification as Exhibit 683.

The Master—I understand that is what the trustees sent to him, up to his house. Is that right?

Q. That is what the trustees sent to your house on March 6, 1919? A. It is.

Mr. Streeter—Let the stenographer put right on there what it is, please.

The Master—What he will put on will be "Exhibit 683," I think.

Mr. Streeter—Well, all right.

[The stenographer inquired if the document is to be marked as an exhibit or for identification merely.]

The Master—No; you may mark it for an exhibit.

[The memorandum above referred to, relative to the relations between the directors and the trustees, is marked Exhibit 683.]

The Master—Now, can't you turn both documents over to General Streeter and let him find out what the difference is?

Mr. Streeter (taking Exhibit 683)—We will look it over.

Q. Following the meeting of March 11, 1919, did Mr. Neal return to Boston? A. We telegraphed for Mr. Neal to come home.

The Master—Well, did he return? That is the question.

The Witness—We did, and he came home.

Q. And did you and Mr. Merritt and Mr. Rathvon discuss with Mr. Neal the situation with respect to the trusteeship? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On March 17, 1919, the record of the Board of Directors shows that Messrs. Dittamore, Dickey, Merritt and Rathvon were present, and then the resolution was offered which has heretofore been read in evidence, purporting to remove Mr. Rowlands from office. Had the subject matter of that been taken up with Mr. Neal by yourself and Mr. Rathvon and Mr. Merritt? A. It had.

Q. And what had Mr. Neal said about it? A. Mr. Neal said that action was—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I cannot see how these private conferences between the directors in preparing for the proceedings that they were about to enter upon can be of importance, unless they are brought out in cross-examination.

The Master—Why should we go into that now?

Mr. Krauthoff—My only purpose is this, if Your Honor please. Mr. Neal was not present when the resolution of March 17, 1919, was adopted, and our purpose was to prove that the subject matter of that resolution had been taken up with him and had met with his approval.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I want to object.

The Master—Don't the records of the meeting say something about that?

Mr. Streeter—I assume—I saw Mr. Neal here the other day—he is in good health now, isn't he, and here?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, he is in Boston.

Mr. Streeter—And you expect to have him as a witness, do you not?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is our present intention.

Mr. Streeter—Yes, sir. Well, it is our desire that you shall have him, and we prefer to ask Mr. Neal the questions in regard to this matter rather than to have Mr. Dickey testify about it. His reasons for not being present at the dismissal of Rowlands, and the expression of his fellow-directors on March 17, would very much better be stated by him, and as he is to be a witness I suggest that this witness be excused from testifying for Mr. Neal.

Q. Recurring to the resolution of March 17, 1919, relating to Mr. Rowlands as a trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society, there is one paragraph which reads as follows:

"Whereas Mr. Rowlands evidently has other interests which prevent him from giving sufficient time and attention to the business of The Christian Science Publishing Society." Had you at that time had your attention directed in any way to Mr. Rowlands' absence from Boston? A. Yes. It was quite evident to us that—

Q. I beg your pardon. In what manner did this come to you, Mr. Dickey? A. Well, it came in different ways. Sometimes through the trustees in telling us that Mr. Rowlands was not in Boston. We learned it through information being handed from one to another that Mr. Rowlands was out of the city.

Q. At the time that Mr. Rowlands became a trustee in 1917, was there any discussion then as to the time that he would be absent from Boston in taking up his personal affairs with the Board of Directors? A. Not with me personally.

Q. Or with the Board of Directors, so far as you know? A. I don't know as he had any conversation in that particular with the Board of Directors. We learned that from the trustees.

Q. In your conversations with the trustees from time to time, Mr. Rowlands in particular, was the question of his absences from Boston noted in any way? Was anything said about those? A. Yes, we spoke about them.

Q. And what, if anything, did Mr. Rowlands say about his absences from Boston? A. We did not ask him to explain to us why he was away, but when he returned and we saw him he said he was away on business.

Q. I mean, Mr. Dickey, in these various conferences where the points of difference were brought out, and you were making your contentions back and forth about the Deed of Trust and the Manual—in those conferences was anything said about Mr. Rowlands' absences from Boston? A. Not that I recall, except the time I visited Mr. Eustace and Mr. Ogden.

Q. That was in Mr. Rowlands'— A. Then they said that Mr. Rowlands was away.

Mr. Krauthoff—That as to Mr. Rowlands may be stricken out, if Your Honor please.

Q. That was in Mr. Rowlands' absence? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Dickey, with respect to your relations with Mrs. Eddy, did you become one of the trustees of her property under an instrument of trust that she had executed in her lifetime? A. I did.

Q. Did you serve as treasurer of The Mother Church; and if so, for what length of time? A. I did.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, this looks like beginning right at the beginning. All these questions were put, or similar ones, when we started. You really are not going to begin again?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, if Your Honor please, I am going to take up Mr. Whipple's bill in equity and ask some questions—

Mr. Whipple—I thought you had asked something in relation to that before, inasmuch as that started the controversy. I thought you had been guiding all your questions with respect to it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Not entirely, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—You seem to have just discovered it.

The Master—Well, come along with the question and we will see what we will do with it.

The Witness—I was treasurer for about five years of The Mother Church.

Q. This document which has been filed by the plaintiffs in this case, the Bill in Equity, has been the subject of a very careful study on your part? A. I have read it through a number of times.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, if you will take the printed document of the answer of the defendants, and the Bill in Equity of the plaintiffs printed on opposite pages, on page 15.

Q. Calling your attention to the allegation in the fourth paragraph of the bill with respect to "The conception and plan of Mrs. Eddy for the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science," it being alleged in the bill that, as taught by her, it involved two general branches of activity. Will you please state from your understanding of Christian Science, and from your experience as a member of the Board of Directors, and your experience in the service of Mrs. Eddy, what was the conception and plan of Mrs. Eddy for the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science as taught by her?

Mr. Whipple—We object to that, if Your Honor please. The averments in the bill refer to the indisputable facts which were set forth by Mrs. Eddy in the Deed of Trust which she executed after due consideration. All other averments are founded, not upon interpretation or hearsay evidence from Mrs. Eddy, but upon papers which she herself had prepared and she herself signed. And the two deeds, the Manual and the other instruments that are in the case that were inspired by Mrs. Eddy, are the basis and the entire basis of those averments. In effect counsel asks this gentleman to construe the writings of Mrs. Eddy.

Mr. Krauthoff—Our thought about that, if Your Honor please, is this: here is the general allegation in the bill, which is not limited by the bill to any particular thing, but is pleaded in generalities. Now, we were expecting to ask of this witness and to have his answer based upon Mrs. Eddy's writings, upon what Mrs. Eddy did, as the statement of one familiar with the whole literature upon a subject which in its nature is too extensive to be brought before the Court in its entirety.

The Master—Those allegations, I think, are to be judged by the Manual and the Deed of Trust.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, in that event, of course the evidence of the witness would not be important.

The Master—Including, of course, the evidence relating to those two documents.

Q. On page 23 of the bill, Mr. Dickey, the allegation is that as the results of the administration of the trust by the present trustees the affairs of The Publishing Society have been highly prosperous and successful. To what extent have other incidents contributed to the success of the Publishing Society than the administration of the trust by the trustees? A. The active—

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—One minute. (Referring to pleadings.) Go on.

Mr. Whipple—We object, if Your Honor please, to that question which asks for the opinion of this witness as to what has caused the success of the administration of the trust. And apparently admitting its success, as the witness impliedly does, what difference does it make what the causes are to which it is due, so long as the trustees have done nothing to prevent its being successful?

The Master—Just what is the issue there?

Mr. Krauthoff—As I understand it—

The Master—You deny, apparently, that as a result of the administration of the trust by the trustees the affairs of the Publishing Society have been highly prosperous and successful. You do not deny that they have been prosperous and successful to some extent, do you?

Mr. Krauthoff—No. We say that they have been highly prosperous and successful, but we aver—

The Master—I am reading from the middle of page 24—"Defendants deny that the affairs have been highly prosperous and successful." Now, is that a mere question about "highly"?

Mr. Krauthoff—No. The point is this, if Your Honor please: as we read the bill the success and prosperity of the Publishing Society was claimed to be due to the results of the administration of the trust by the plaintiffs, and on the theory that the expression of one is the exclusion of the other, it has been supposed that the prosperity and success were entirely due to the administration of the trust by the trustees, and that no other incidents contributed to it. It becomes important in this case, if Your Honor please, as bearing upon the theory expressed by Mr. Watts that, notwithstanding the fact that the Publishing Society would lose all of its present subscribers, that the Publishing Society could still continue in business and get a new lot of subscribers to take their places. The point we desired to bring out—

The Master—I can't think that it depends on that. The issue here is as to what has produced the prosperous and successful result of the affairs of the Publishing Society during the period in question. You say, not solely the administration by the trustees, there were other causes. That is what I make out of the bill and answer.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Does anybody deny there were other causes?

Mr. Whipple—Oh, not at all, Your Honor.

The Master—Is it a question for evidence there? Is there any real dispute on the fact?

Mr. Whipple—We make no allegation excluding other causes. All we desired to allege was that we had administered properly the trust that was in our hands, and that we had done everything we could to work harmoniously with the directors; that we conceded or acceded to everything they asked in regard to any practical thing; but when they asked us to sign these papers we would not do it. That is all that the averments amount to in substance.

Mr. Krauthoff—The point, if Your Honor please, at some point in the case, is that the prosperity of this Publishing Society is due to the fact that it is a part of the comprehensive scheme for the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science as represented by the government of The Mother Church, and that its success and prosperity is due entirely to that fact, and that separated from that connection its success and prosperity would be nil.

Mr. Whipple—We have never claimed otherwise. We have always asserted that the prosperity was due to the inspiration of Mrs. Eddy, or attributable to her, and worked out through the instrumentality of these trustees, who had wise business judgment.

The Master—I do not see any controversy of fact there that needs to have the evidence brought on the one side and the other.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, on page 25 of the printed—

The Master—I still understand that you deny that the affairs of the Publishing Society, as administered by the trustees, have been highly prosperous and successful.

Mr. Krauthoff—We first, if Your Honor please, took the language of the bill and denied that they had been highly—

The Master—Well, I understand now you do not deny they have been prosperous and successful.

Mr. Krauthoff—The theory of the pleadings on this, if Your Honor please—

The Master—Do you insist on the denial that they have been highly prosperous and successful?

Mr. Krauthoff—I was first directing my attention to the meaning of the word "affairs." We consider the word "affairs" to be a word including its spiritual and financial prosperity and activity. We thereupon denied the exact language of the bill:

"Said defendants deny that the affairs of the Publishing Society have been highly prosperous and successful" on the theory that we had to be specific and admit or deny the bill as pleaded; and then said,

"But they aver that the financial affairs of said society have as a whole been successful, but deny that such success is the result of the administration of said trust by said present trustees."

The Master—Now, it being admitted that the administration of the present trustees is not the whole explanation of the success, is there really anything there to dispute about it?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, not in the face of that admission. I was proceeding to another point, if Your Honor please. And I wanted to make a correction in a statement that we have in our answer on page 26. On page 25, at the bottom of the printed matter, is an allegation in the bill as to $450,000, or a sum in excess thereof, having been paid over to the directors for the period of six months ending Oct. 1, 1918; and in our answer on page 26, we separate that into two amounts. And I understand now there is no controversy between us as to the fact that the sum of $287,103.11 was paid to the treasurer of The Mother Church as earnings and profits of the business for the period of six months ending Oct. 1, 1918; and that $175,199.45 was paid to the six Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy, of whom the then directors constituted five. The correction I desired to make was this, if Your Honor please: we said that the money paid over to the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy represented royalties, and upon a further examination of that contract between the Trustees of the Will and the Publishing Society we find that that is the profits of the sale of Mrs. Eddy's works.

The Master—Do you want to amend?

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, we are interested in that matter—

Mr. Whipple—His Honor asked if you wanted to amend.

Mr. Krauthoff—I do not think the matter is of sufficient importance to warrant the making of an amendment, but we answered it because it was pleaded in the bill. Neither the amount nor the details of that are vital or controlling one way or the other.

Mr. Streeter—Well, Mr. Krauthoff, that depends upon the contract of October, 1917, which was made with the New Hampshire Trust, doesn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—I understand that to be so.

Q. Mr. Dickey, with respect to the payment of this sum of money that has been referred to here—$287,103.11 plus $175,199.45—to what extent is the ability of the Publishing Society to produce profits at that rate due to the fact that it is the recognized and established Publishing Society of The Mother Church?

Mr. Whipple—We object to that, if Your Honor please.

The Master—I do not see how—

Mr. Whipple—I do not care to argue it. We thought it was quite clear that it would not be admitted.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, we offer that upon the theory that the duty of the plaintiffs under that Deed of Trust is to promote and extend the religion of Christian Science, and that that is done most effectively by there being the established Publishing Society of The Mother Church, and that any step on their part which would lead to a cessation of that relationship would result in disaster to the trust that they are administering.

Mr. Whipple—Why, if Your Honor please, there is no possible way in which there can be a cessation of that relationship. Mrs. Eddy, in her wisdom, so left this whole matter that there cannot be any such separation, strive as these directors may. They cannot prevent it. She made it the organ of the Church and these people cannot unmake it. She provided in this trust for the extension of the doctrines of Christian Science and how it should be done, and appointed trustees to do it, and these gentlemen, if they want to, cannot prevent it. They did not make this trust, or the Publishing Society or the publications the organ of the Church. She made them and they cannot unmake them.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I make one statement in connection with what Mr. Whipple has said? It is quite true that the directors cannot separate the Publishing Society from The Mother Church, and neither can the trustees. We are now anticipating a situation where the Court is called upon to render such a decree, and we are desirous now of pointing out what the result of such a decree would be.

Mr. Whipple—Such a decree as what?

Mr. Krauthoff—Separating the Publishing Society—

Mr. Whipple—Pardon me. We ask for no such decree. We ask merely for a decree that prevents this trust from being destroyed by these directors, Mrs. Eddy's trust, the trust that she wanted followed. That is the temporary injunction, an injunction to prevent these directors from exercising their authority to injure this trust and these publications. It is an injunction to prevent the destruction by these directors of a sacred trust created by Mrs. Eddy. That is the decree that we ask for against the directors, and we say you can't do it, and the Court will protect this Publishing Society and this trust of Mrs. Eddy's against their attack.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, the Court will protect the trust established by Mrs. Eddy from attack of error of every sort, no matter whence or where it comes. The point we desire to make is this, in passing: At the proper time in the argument of this case it will be pointed out to Your Honor that Mrs. Eddy's work in establishing this trust was part of the comprehensive scheme for the promotion and extension of the religion of Christian Science, and is to be viewed as a whole and cannot be segregated into fragments. At that time it will also be pointed out that they who take the sword will perish by the sword, and they who contend for the segregation of fragments must take the responsibility and the logic of that result of being segregated into a fragment, which is extinction. At this time we desire to show by this witness that the present prosperity of the Publishing Society is due to the fact that it is the established Publishing Society of The Mother Church, and that the prosperity of the whole is dependent upon the healing power of Truth and Love as reflected in the writings of Mary Baker Eddy.

The Master—I do not understand that anybody denies that?

Mr. Whipple—Not at all; not at all. We have repeatedly said, in substance, that the prosperity of these publications was due to Mrs. Eddy and Mrs. Eddy's inspiration, and that we are defending, these trustees are defending them, defending their trust and invoking the aid of the Court to do it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Of course, if Your Honor please, the statement that I made was with respect to Mrs. Eddy's plan as a comprehensive whole. The plaintiffs in this case have tendered the issue that that whole plan cannot be carried out; that this Manual is inoperative because, as they say, it is in violation of the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; and we are now directing our testimony to the state of affairs which the plaintiffs claim are the true state of affairs, namely, the extinction of Mrs. Eddy's Manual. We have the right to show what is the result to the trust of the logic of the contention that the Publishing Society is not subject to the control of The Mother Church.

The Master—I am unable to say that the opinion of this witness on the question you propose to him would be proper evidence in the case. I shall exclude it.

Mr. Krauthoff—The sixth paragraph of the Bill in Equity refers to The Christian Science Board of Directors—

The Master—I take it for granted that you reserve your rights under that ruling?

Mr. Krauthoff—Oh, certainly, if Your Honor please, and we will save an exception to it for that purpose, and it may come up again in the case in another form.

Q. The allegation in the sixth paragraph of the bill is that The Christian Science Board of Directors (page 27, if Your Honor please)—

The Master—I have it.

Q. —are directors of only one of these Christian Science churches, to wit, The Mother Church situated in Boston. Will you please state in a general way the nature and character of the activities of The Mother Church as they are worked out in practice?

Mr. Whipple—That, if Your Honor please, we objected to, and upon our objection it was excluded.

Mr. Krauthoff—The Court—

The Master—Well, he has now got in the way in which they are worked out in practice. He is now asking the witness' opinion merely.

Mr. Whipple—Very well. If the witness observes that question, we have no objection.

The Master—It seems to me that the issue made by paragraph six of the bill and the answer to that paragraph is a mere question of the construction of the Manual—

Mr. Krauthoff—We desire—I beg pardon.

The Master— —and that we have, having the Manual and its history now before us, all the material that is necessary for the determination of the issues there made. But if you think that this witness can add anything to what we have got already in regard to the practice, you may go on and ask him.

Q. First, I will call your attention to the disasters of a public nature, such as floods, or hurricanes, or earthquakes. What does The Mother Church do in such cases with respect to the cause of Christian Science as a whole? A. I recall the case of Dayton, Ohio, where they suffered from a severe flood. The Mother Church started a relief fund at once and through its organization in Dayton, The Mother Church furnished relief to sufferers there, to non-Christian Scientists as well as to Christian Scientists. It has also contributed in cases like the Salem fire, where they had a committee appointed by the directors of The Mother Church who worked there to furnish relief to the sufferers. They sent a committee on a special train from Boston to Halifax at the time of the disastrous explosion of TNT, I guess they call it, in Halifax Harbor. It was the only and first relief train that went through in 24 hours from Boston to Halifax, and they not only took Christian Scientist money and supplies, but they took nurses and doctors, Red Cross workers, from Boston to Halifax; they established a relief headquarters there and worked constantly, and even yet that fund has not been entirely disposed of. At the time of the earthquake in Italy—

The Master—Pause a moment there, Mr. Dickey, if you please. You have now got through with the Halifax incident. I would like to ask what light you think that incident, take it as a specimen, throws on the nature of the relations between The Mother Church and the other Christian Science churches other than The Mother Church?

Mr. Krauthoff—It throws this light, if Your Honor please, that in all of these things such as he has mentioned The Mother Church speaks for the Christian Science movement as a whole, including the branch churches, and the branch churches, instead of endeavoring to act separately with respect to each of these incidents, sent their contributions to The Mother Church, and it is all done through this organization, which we claim to be the central organization.

The Master—That is so obvious a matter of convenience that I am unable to see that it throws any real light on the dispute as to their precise relations indicated by those paragraphs of the bill and answer.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I will pass on, if Your Honor please, to other incidents that may bring that out in more relief.

Q. With respect to the matters of war relief and camp welfare activities in the recent war, or the present war (the treaty of peace not yet being signed), who acted for the Christian Science movement as a whole?

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please—

The Master—If anybody did.

Mr. Whipple—Isn't that the same thing?

The Master—Was there anything different done from what was done in the Halifax case, namely, that The Mother Church provided the money and got contributions from the branch churches?

Mr. Krauthoff—It was done upon a more extensive scale. That was the difference.

Mr. Whipple—I do not want to interpose for a moment to prevent this recital of the benefits and the benefactions of The Mother Church—

The Master—No; nobody does.

Mr. Whipple— —of this great denomination.

The Master—Nobody does. The question is, what is its precise bearing on the issues made by the bill?

Mr. Whipple—It seems to me that, as far as concerns the averments, which are purely with regard to matters of church government, it has nothing whatever to do with it. Here is what we allege, and we base the entire statement of paragraph 6 on certain articles in the Manual—

The Master—Printed right here?

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

"Local self-government. Section 1. The Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, shall assume no general official control of other churches, and it shall be controlled by none other.

"Each Church of Christ, Scientist, shall have its own form of government. No conference of churches shall be held, unless it be when our churches, located in the same State, convene to confer on a statute of said State, or to confer harmoniously on individual unity and action of the churches in said State.

"Sect. 10. In Christian Science each branch church shall be distinctly democratic in its government, and no individual and no other church shall interfere with its affairs."

Now, the averment that we make as to Mrs. Eddy's providing for democratic Church government instead of an ecclesiastical tribunal such as we are hearing about now, or a hierarchy, is all based upon Mrs. Eddy's own statements, together with one other, that

"Each church shall separately and independently discipline its own members—if this sad necessity occurs."

It provides that The Mother Church shall not do it, has no power whatever to do it. That is Mrs. Eddy's conception of her own words, and we have set forth exactly the foundation of the general claim that we have made in this Paragraph 6 with regard to the structure of the Church government and the relation of The Mother Church to the branches. Now, no matter how bountiful The Mother Church and the branch churches through The Mother Church may be in their benefactions in time of disaster—and it is a proud record—what does that have to do with the question of the extent to which The Mother Church can control branch churches, in view of Mrs. Eddy's own statement as to Church structure and government?

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, Mr. Whipple has several times in the last few days seized upon the words "ecclesiastical tribunal." One day he couples it with the doctrine of "Papal infallibility," and today he couples it with the word "hierarchy." Every church, no matter how plain or how simple it may be in its government, is, when it comes before a court of justice, treated under the terminology as an "ecclesiastical tribunal," whether it is 10 people getting together in a room and governing their own affairs, or whether it is the head of the Church of Rome. As to what this Manual means that Mr. Whipple has copied in the sixth paragraph of the bill, nobody can take the Manual and cut out of it a few sections like that and plead them as the truth about the Christian Science movement. To begin with, the words "local self-government" mean exactly what they are—local self-government; that is, self-government in the affairs of the branch church. We say that these benefactions, being exercised through The Mother Church with the consent and cooperation of the branch churches, are evidence of the general consensus of opinion in the Christian Science movement that in all things in which the Christian Science movement shall speak as a whole it is done through The Mother Church, and that one of the things in which it should be treated as a whole is in respect to the conduct of the affairs of the Publishing Society which publishes the literature sold in The Mother Church and in its branches. Nobody can understand this Manual by taking out some words of it and saying these words mean this, without some concept of the general scope and plan of The Mother Church, of its branches, and of the general scope and plan of the Christian Science movement, and without some knowledge of Mrs. Eddy's writings, any more than a forger could come to this country and tear out of the Constitution of the United States a clause with respect to interstate commerce and have any concept what it meant without reading the debates of the Constitutional Convention and the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Master—Of course, we have got to consider the whole Manual, no doubt about that, but I do not think this is the place to argue the whole question now. The benefactions, and the manner in which they have been administered you have shown. There is no dispute about it, as far as I can discover. Now, haven't you got enough about that?

Mr. Krauthoff—We have, if Your Honor please. I understood that Mr. Whipple had made some motion to strike out something, or made some objection.

Q. Mr. Dickey, with respect to legislation which may affect the cause of Christian Science as a whole, who acts for the Christian Science movement in that particular? A. On certain occasions—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment.

The Master—One moment.

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—I do not think that that is a question that he can answer generally; in fact, he did not try to, as I judge. He began, "On some occasions" this or that has been done.

Mr. Krauthoff—Is the objection that the question is too general, or that it is incompetent?

The Master—Can you indicate the nature of your objection, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—We think that it is entirely immaterial and beside any issue in this case. Who does that? The trustees do not claim the right to do it.

The Master—If there is a settled practice about it, I think he may show it.

Q. Will you continue, please?

The Master—But he can't show it by testifying what has been done on some occasion only.

Q. What is the general practice in the Christian Science movement with respect to matters of legislation? Who appears for Christian Science as a whole in such instances?

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, it does not seem to me that he has shown that he could testify with regard to that.

Mr. Krauthoff—He has been a director of The Mother Church.

Q. Are you familiar with the practice of The Mother Church with respect to protecting the cause of Christian Science when it becomes affected by pending legislation? A. I am.

Q. And what is the practice of The Mother Church in that particular? A. The practice is that when a Christian Scientist in any part of the country is arraigned before the court—

Q. No. I am referring to legislation. A. Legislation?

Q. Yes. A. I beg your pardon. I thought you said litigation.

Q. No. A. Whenever a bill is introduced in any of the state legislatures, that is inimical to Christian Science and the practice thereof, The Mother Church is represented there and they take all the steps that they legitimately can to prevent the passage of legislation that would destroy the practice of Christian Science.

Q. Or in any way affect the cause? A. Or in any way affect the cause of Christian Science.

Q. Does that also relate to questions affecting the public health? A. It does.

The Master—You mean legislative questions, I suppose?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. Does it become necessary at times to control the activities of Christian Scientists in that respect? Perhaps I do not make it clear. A. You do not. I don't know what you mean by that, Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. Well, I will not press that question at this time because I think we have fully covered it. With respect to litigation that may be pending in any of the courts of the world that may affect the cause of Christian Science as a whole, what is the practice of The Mother Church with respect to that? A. The Mother Church furnishes counsel and gives assistance to the defendant.

Mr. Whipple—Are these things done under any specific provision of the Manual, Mr. Krauthoff, do you understand?

Q. Under what provision in the Manual are these activities exercised, Mr. Dickey?

The Master—You mean now furnishing counsel to litigants?

Mr. Whipple—And the legislative activities.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Mr. Whipple asks me, I understand it is done under the provision—

Mr. Whipple—No, I did not. I thought I was prompting you to ask the witness.

The Master—I only want to know what you are talking about.

Q. Is that done under the provision of the Manual that The Christian Science Board of Directors shall transact the business of The Mother Church? A. That is one of them.

Mr. Whipple—And where is it stated in the Manual that this is the business of The Mother Church?

The Witness—It is the business of The Mother Church to look after its branches and the members of The Mother Church living in different parts of the world—to look after their welfare.

Mr. Whipple—That, if Your Honor please, I ask to have stricken out.

The Master—Yes; I think we will have to strike that out.

Mr. Whipple—That seems to be a dictum of the ecclesiastical tribunal, and not Mrs. Eddy's Manual.

The Master—That begs the question. Now there was a question asked about some specific provision of the Manual; I would like to get that.

Mr. Whipple—I was asking if there was any provision of the Manual under which the directors were acting, as described by the witness, either in their legislative activities or in their litigating activities. I asked Mr. Krauthoff if he would not request the witness to point out under what provision of the Manual that was.

The Master—Would it be convenient for you to do that?

Mr. Whipple—He suggested that it might be under the provision which provides for their attending to the business of The Mother Church, but that begs the question. What points out that that is the business of The Mother Church—what provision of the Manual?

The Master—Now, one moment. Can you refer me to the provisions of the Manual?

Mr. Krauthoff—I will do that presently. I find myself a little embarrassed in trying to argue in response to Mr. Whipple's argument, and examine the witness at the same time.

The Master—Take all the time you need; we don't want to hurry you.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you; I appreciate that.

Q. With respect to the activities of The Mother Church on these questions of legislation and litigation, your attention was called by counsel to the provision of the Manual, "The business of The Mother Church shall be transacted by its Christian Science Board of Directors," in Section 6 of Article—

The Master—What provision is that? I didn't get it.

Mr. Krauthoff—The top of page 27, Section 6.

Mr. Whipple—Of what?

Mr. Krauthoff—Of Article I of the Church Manual.

The Master—Page 27 of the eighty-ninth edition, at the top of the page.

Q. You stated that that was one of the provisions in the Manual. Have you any other provisions now in mind? A. The Committee on Publication collects and sends in to The Mother Church information in regard to questions of that character.

Mr. Whipple—Where is that provision?

The Witness—I don't know that there is any specific provision with regard to legislation that directly bears on that.

Mr. Whipple—Or on litigation?

The Witness—Yes.

The Master—Article XXXIII deals with the Committee on Publication. Is there anything in the sections of that article—

Mr. Whipple—Page 97, if Your Honor please?

The Master—Yes, page 97—which requires or which charges the Committee on Publication with the duty of keeping the directors informed with regard to litigation or legislation?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, in practice it is done, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—No. We were just asking about—

The Master—My inquiry was only whether there was any specific provision about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. Well, it says there—

Mr. Whipple—Practices may have grown up that were never warranted by anything Mrs. Eddy said.

Mr. Krauthoff—We will get to that in a moment.

Mr. Whipple—Why not get right to it?

Mr. Krauthoff (reading)—

"It shall be the duty of the Committee on Publication to correct in a Christian manner impositions on the public in regard to Christian Science, injustices done Mrs. Eddy or members of this Church by the daily press, by periodicals or circulated literature of any sort."

Mr. Whipple—That doesn't seem to refer to litigation or legislation.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, with respect to the duties of the Committee on Publication, I am reminded that in Section 6 of Article I of the Church Manual—Your Honor first asked me about a provision in Article XXXIII—I am advised that in Sect. 6 of Article I of the Church Manual, on page 27, it says:

"The manager of the general Committee on Publication in the United States shall order no special action to be taken by said Committee that is not named in the Manual of this Church without consulting with the full Board of Directors of The Mother Church and receiving the written consent of said board."

The Master—Well, that sends us to Article XXXIII to find out what the provisions are with regard to the Committee on Publication.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not now undertaking to construe Article XXXIII of the Manual; the provision there is found in Section 2 of Article XXXIII. What we are trying to prove by this witness is the practice of The Mother Church in speaking for the cause of Christian Science as a whole in all matters of litigation and legislation which affect the cause.

Mr. Whipple—But of course they would adopt no practices that were not provided for in the Manual lest they might be contrary to the wishes or inspiration of Mrs. Eddy. I thought perhaps having studied this for so many months as you said you had you could point out readily the thing that warranted such activities as you are describing. Perhaps it would help you some to look at page 78, Section 7, of Article XXIV, "Debt and Duty." That seems to throw some light on it; I am not quite sure whether it would help your theory or justify the practices.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, if I may continue. Is there any question pending that the Court has addressed to me that I have not answered?

The Master—No, I think you have fully answered all my questions.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, you have stated the activities of The Mother Church as a whole with respect to questions of legislation and litigation. Did The Mother Church as a whole take up the matter of the Benevolent Association, as it is called? A. It did.

Q. And that is being built under the auspices of The Mother Church? A. It is.

Q. With donations from branch churches and individual members? A. Yes.

Q. The permanent activities—

Mr. Thompson—Just a moment. Don't you want to bring out, Mr. Krauthoff, that that is a separate corporation?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not treating the Benevolent Association as a legal entity just now.

Mr. Thompson—Well, apparently not.

Q. The permanent activities of The Mother Church are set forth in the Manual? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Whipple—What? I didn't catch that.

Mr. Krauthoff—The permanent activities.

Mr. Whipple—Well, are these others ephemeral or temporary?

Mr. Krauthoff—No; they are intermittent, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—Intermittent! Well, if they are intermittent how do they show any system of regular procedure? His Honor accepted them on the ground of their being a practice, and I understand you are trying to justify them under the Manual, with what success appears on the record. Now you say they are only intermittent activities.

Mr. Krauthoff—I didn't say the activities were intermittent.

Mr. Whipple—Well, what did you say about intermittent?

Mr. Krauthoff—To be more precise, and comply with Mr. Whipple's notions of the use of language, the occasions which call for their exercise are intermittent in their nature. We do not have war every day, and we do not have earthquakes every day.

Mr. Whipple—Well, the poor you always have with you.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg pardon?

Mr. Bates—We always have war when Mr. Whipple is present.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, no, you do not.

Mr. Krauthoff—And we do not always have matters of legislation pending, and we hope some day to be out of the realm of litigation.

The Master—I do not find in the Manual anything about the Benevolent Association. Am I wrong in saying that there is nothing in the Manual about that?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is not mentioned specifically in the Church Manual.

The Master—Thank you.

Q. Now, the activities of a permanent nature, as I understand, include the Board of Lectureship and the Board of Education and the Reading Rooms and the Committee on Publication? A. They do. Shall I explain that?

Q. I beg pardon? A. Could I explain the working of the—

Mr. Whipple—If you will pardon me, aren't those provided for in the Manual?

Mr. Krauthoff—They are provided for in the Manual and I am not going into them in detail.

Mr. Whipple—Well, why do more than point out the Manual?

Mr. Krauthoff—I was not, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—Very good.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, in addition to the activities which you have mentioned, are there other activities of a general nature affecting the cause of Christian Science as a whole in which The Mother Church takes charge of the situation? A. There are.

Q. Don't mention them; that is enough for the present. A. All right.

The Master—If we are going to have that testimony we shall have to know what they are, sha'n't we?

The Witness—Why, certainly.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if Your Honor please, the nature and range of them is so great that—I shall be very glad to furnish them.

Q. Will you state further, Mr. Dickey, what the nature and range of them are? A. Why, there is a Board of Lectureship that is elected annually by the Board of Directors according to the requirements of the By-Laws.

The Master—We have got that. That isn't exactly what you asked him for, is it?

Q. Well, we will move on. A Board of Lectureship gives lectures around the world? A. They deliver lectures only to branch organizations of The Mother Church.

Q. But around the world? A. Around the world, yes.

The Master—That is all in the By-Laws—the Manual?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. Now, then, the reading rooms that I mentioned are mentioned in the Manual. I am not speaking of anything specifically mentioned in the Manual, but I am now talking about the general range of activities that come before you from day to day in which The Mother Church stands for the cause of Christian Science as a whole. A. There is the appointment of chaplains—

Mr. Whipple—I think that is too general. Ask him what they do, either in permanent activities or—

The Master—He had already stated that there were many such branches of activity, and Mr. Krauthoff apparently intended to leave him there. My suggestion was that if that was of any importance we should have to know what those branches of activity were.

Mr. Whipple—That I would be very glad to have but Mr. Krauthoff was putting another question, and not the one that Your Honor directed his attention to. If there are any other activities it seems to me quite right that he should state them.

Mr. Bates—I submit, Your Honor, that Mr. Whipple should present his objection, if he has one, and not tell Mr. Krauthoff how to put his questions instead of objecting to them.

Mr. Whipple—Why, you couldn't do that.

The Master—Perhaps the quickest way to do will be to let the witness complete his statement regarding those other branches of activity to which we have been referring.

The Witness—The Mother Church—

The Master—He should understand that he is not to mention anything that is specifically provided for in the Manual nor to mention anything he has been over already.

The Witness—The Mother Church took an active part in the late war by having chaplains appointed, both naval and military. They employed them and paid them an annual salary in addition to what they drew from the government. They established—

The Master—Well, that is a branch of activity, appointing chaplains for the troops in service in the field. Isn't that enough about that?

Mr. Krauthoff—I think so.

The Master—Now, another.

The Witness—They established war relief work in all the military camps and cantonments of the United States, furnished rest houses, reading rooms, and supply stations for the soldiers. They had a Comforts Forwarding Committee that was organized under the auspices of The Mother Church, had branches in all the large cities of the country and in many of the smaller places, where knitted goods were furnished and sent to distributing centers.

The Master—You needn't go into the particular description.

Q. Don't go into the particular description. A. Yes.

Q. What about the distribution of literature? A. There is a distribution of literature work done and a committee appointed by the directors of The Mother Church to look after that work.

The Master—Isn't that the Committee on Publication?

The Witness—No, sir.

Mr. Krauthoff—No, if Your Honor please; the Committee on Publication looks after articles in other papers.

The Master—Yes.

Q. What is done with respect to services in prisons which are not near a branch church? A. The Mother Church has appointed men to conduct services in the prisons, some of the prisons of the country.

Q. What other activities of The Mother Church come to you now, Mr. Dickey? Does the question of the relation of the Christian Science movement to other organizations, such as religious bodies or other institutions, come within your care, in practice? A. I didn't catch your question.

Q. Does the relation of the Christian Science Church as a whole to other religious bodies come within the practice of The Mother Church? I mean, through its Board of Directors. A. It does.

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment as to that. If there are things that are done in relation to other churches let the statement be made.

The Master—I think he is following out the line which I suggested. Go on.

The Witness—There are a great many By-Laws in the Manual—

The Master—Oh, no; leave that out for the present.

Q. The general question of the relation of the Christian Science movement as a whole to other organizations, such as religious bodies, fraternal organizations, labor organizations—does that come within the practice of the Board of Directors of The Mother Church? A. That includes business that would be done by the Board of Directors if the occasion required it.

Q. Has it been done? A. It has been.

Q. The Board of Directors is practically continually in session? A. Well, they are in session about four days in every week.

Q. All the year round? A. Yes, the year round.

Q. Something was said by Mr. Whipple about the activities of the Church with respect to legislation and litigation, as dependent upon that which Mrs. Eddy did or authorized in her lifetime. Are you familiar with the practice of The Mother Church with respect to litigation and legislation as affecting the cause of Christian Science as a whole in the lifetime of Mrs. Eddy? A. I am.

Q. What was the then practice? A. The Mother Church was interested whenever the cause as a whole was attacked.

Mr. Krauthoff—It is now 4 o'clock, if Your Honor please.

The Master—We will stop here.

Mr. Streeter—If Your Honor please, before we adjourn, if Mr. Krauthoff could tell us or give us some sort of a notion as to when he will be through with Mr. Dickey, so that we can know something about the time of cross-examination, it would be very convenient, if he can do it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I shall be able to state more definitely in the morning.

Mr. Streeter—Can't you tell us something about it tonight?

Mr. Bates—No one can forecast how much time you and Mr. Whipple will take up.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, for heaven's sake, lay that aside. Can't you give us some idea? Will you be through tomorrow morning, probably?

Mr. Krauthoff—I cannot tell just now, General.

Mr. Streeter—Are you sure to go on three or four days longer?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I don't know that, either.

Mr. Streeter—Well, God help us.

[Adjourned to 10 a. m., Wednesday, July 23, 1919.]

July 23, 1919

TWENTIETH DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room,
Boston, Massachusetts, July 23, 1919.

Adam H. Dickey, Resumed

Q. (By Mr. Krauthoff.) Mr. Dickey, with respect to the relationship of the branches of The Mother Church to The Mother Church, and the compliance by the branch churches with the requirements of the Manual of The Mother Church, has the Board of Directors exercised any powers under that? A. They have.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. I could not hear that question on account of the noise outside.

Mr. Krauthoff—Will you read it to me, please?

[The question is read.]

Mr. Whipple—Well, I want to object to that, unless we have pointed out what there is in the Manual giving any such authority, and the specific instances, if any.

The Master—This question appears to call for specific instances.

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, there is nothing in the Manual giving any such right or authority, if we read it intelligently. Article XXIII, Section 1, says:

"The Mother Church of Christ, Scientist, shall assume no general official control of other churches"

The Master—You read that yesterday. I think I shall let him answer, subject to your objection. What we are after now is to find out what course of practice has been followed, and to what extent, and by whom it has been acquiesced in.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—It is all taken subject to your objection.

Mr. Whipple—And Your Honor carries in mind also—

The Master—You stated the grounds of your objection, that it is contrary to the Manual for the directors to exercise any such supervisory authority as he refers to.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—Go on, Mr. Krauthoff. Get it in as brief a form as you can.

Q. Have instances arisen in which branch churches overlooked the requirement of the Manual with respect to holding one lecture annually?

A. There have.

The Master—Now you are following a little different line from that indicated by your question. Were you not going to have him state what the practice has been?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes; I was going to follow that now.

The Master—Going to follow it by leading questions before he has stated all that he can state without them?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I was calling his attention to a particular subject.

The Master—Has the time come for that?

Q. In what particulars has the board taken up the question of the relation of the branch churches to The Mother Church? A. Why, there are 55 or 60 by-laws in the Manual requiring—

The Master—Now, pause a minute. Strike that out. Confine your attention to the particular question, and answer that, and we shall get along very much faster, if you can do that.

The Witness—Yes, sir. Thank you.

The Master—I am aware that you will have difficulty in doing that, but try.

The Witness—May I hear that question again?

[The question is read to the witness as follows: "In what particulars has the board taken up the question of the relation of the branch churches to The Mother Church?"]

A. Whenever a branch church has disobeyed or broken a by-law of The Mother Church, the directors have taken the matter up, and either had a right adjustment made, or taken action in the way of discipline against the branch church.

Q. In what particular instance? State the kind of things that arose.
A. Well, in regard to fulfilling the requirement of the Manual in reference to lectures, holding lectures every year; also in regard to the recognition of other branch churches in the same city, and the requirement that they shall maintain Christian fellowship with each other.

Q. Are you able now to state the instances? Mr. Whipple intimated that we would be required to show the instances, but I think that that would extend the inquiry—

The Master—If he can state specific instances, that is what you have been trying to get him to do, is it?

Mr. Krauthoff—I was trying to do it generally. Mr. Whipple called for specific instances.

The Witness—There is one specific instance—

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, before the question there goes any further, may I call your attention and that of counsel to another provision of the Manual of which we have not before spoken? I do not assume that it will change Your Honor's ruling, but I think, in justice to our position—

The Master—You wish to state a further ground of objection to the inquiry?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—Refer to it as briefly as you can. We all have the Manual.

Mr. Whipple—Article XXXV of the Manual is as follows:

The Master—Is it necessary to read it?

Mr. Whipple—It is only a line and I think it is perfectly clear:

"For The Mother Church Only. Section 1. The Church Manual of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., written by Mary Baker Eddy and copyrighted; is adapted to The Mother Church only."

The Master—Now, you may continue.

The Witness—There have been other cases where Christian Science churches have had readers who were not members of The Mother Church, and the directors have taken that into consideration and required the Church to obey the by-law.

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer a letter from the directors to the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society of April 13, 1916. I have a letter press copy of it. The original, of course, is in the possession of the trustees.

The Master—Is this something referred to yesterday?

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

[The letter press copy referred to is passed by Mr. Krauthoff to Mr. Whipple.]

Mr. Whipple—What is this pertinent to?

Mr. Krauthoff—That, if Your Honor please, is offered to show an action by the directors with respect to the manner of printing Christian Science pamphlets in foreign languages.

The Master—It would properly have come in earlier in your examination, would it not?

Mr. Krauthoff—Chronologically, yes.

The Master—It is something you have discovered since, is it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Something which I have found in the course of my research, which I thought would be helpful, and which will only take a few minutes. I am not going to examine upon it.

Mr. Whipple—The communication does not seem to me to be of any importance one way or the other. I do not think it is material. If you will hand it to His Honor and His Honor rules it is, we will say nothing about it.

[The letter press copy referred to is passed to the master.]

The Master—It is a communication from the directors to the trustees. I think that you may put it in if you deem it of any consequence. I may say that I do not, at present, see that it is of any significance, but I should have to say the same thing about a good many other communications from the directors to the trustees that have been put in. If you think it is necessary to complete the history, you may put it in.

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you very much.

"April 13, 1916.

"Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"At a special meeting of this board held April 13 the following vote was passed.

"The secretary was instructed to notify the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society that in the publication of pamphlets and other Christian Science literature in foreign languages the term 'Christian Science' should be translated into the proper words of such foreign language, with the exception that the first occurrence of the term 'Christian Science' in the text of any translation shall be immediately followed by the words 'Christian Science' in English, printed in parentheses; this rule being based on the assumption that all such translations of pamphlets shall be printed with the original English and the translation on opposite pages.

"Very sincerely,

"CHRISTIAN SCIENCE BOARD OF DIRECTORS."

[The letter press copy of which the foregoing is a copy is marked Exhibit 684. R. H. J.]

The Master—If my recollection is correct, we have had something else on the same subject.

Mr. Krauthoff—I think it has been mentioned.

Q. Mr. Dickey, have you in your hands the Christian Science pamphlet printed alternately in English and Spanish? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And does the manner of the printing of that pamphlet correspond with this letter I have read? A. It does.

Mr. Whipple—May I ask, Mr. Krauthoff, what you think the significance of that evidence is?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, the significance of this evidence is that the directors directed the manner in which the words "Christian Science" should appear in these pamphlets in foreign languages, and the trustees obeyed the direction.

Mr. Whipple—Well, now, if Your Honor please, I will defy counsel to point out, in the whole history of the relations with these trustees since they have been in office, a single case where a reasonable suggestion, indeed, almost any sort of suggestion, that has been made by these directors the trustees have not complied with. They have regarded it as a matter of duty to do it, gladly do it, when the beneficiaries were making suggestions which were for mutual interest; and why should we cover this record with a lot of instances where they have done it?

The Master—I suggest, in view of that statement, that the record contain a memorandum to the effect that the suggestion made by the directors in the letter of April 13, just put in, was complied with by the trustees.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is satisfactory. I did not expect to put the whole pamphlet in evidence. I was simply going to have them marked for identification.

The Master—If that memorandum is put on the record, substantially in the form that I suggest, there will be no occasion for that, will there?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, that would be all right. Thank you.

The Witness—Mr. Krauthoff, may I speak to you, please?

The Master—Mr. Krauthoff, I think Mr. Dickey desires to say something to you.

The Witness—Could I speak to you just a minute?

[Mr. Krauthoff goes to the witness stand and confers with the witness.]

Mr. Krauthoff—I will hand Mr. Whipple a number of other pamphlets in foreign languages that I shall be glad to have him examine with a view to seeing to what extent the trustees continued to follow that suggestion.

Mr. Whipple—In view of the statement I have made, I do not care to look at them at all. I have asked you to point out a case where these trustees have not complied with any reasonable suggestion that the directors had made, and you cannot do it.

Q. I call your attention to a pamphlet on Christian Science translated into Dutch, containing a lecture by Mr. Chadwick. State whether the name "Christian Science" appears in the Dutch translation in the Dutch language or in the English language.

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—It seems to me, in view of the agreement that the directors' suggestion or requirement, by whatever name you may call them, were complied with, it is not necessary.

Mr. Krauthoff—That was true in the case of the Spanish translation. I am now offering, in the case of the Dutch translation, a pamphlet to show that they did not do it.

Mr. Whipple—Who did not do it?

Mr. Krauthoff—The trustees.

Mr. Whipple—What trustees?

Mr. Krauthoff—The trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Mr. Whipple—I am talking about these gentlemen.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, these gentlemen, the plaintiffs in this case, did not do it in the case of this Dutch pamphlet that I am now calling to the attention of the witness, which I offered to show to Mr. Whipple.

The Master—In how many instances do you claim that the letter, Exhibit 684, was not complied with?

Mr. Krauthoff—I have here some three or four pamphlets which I will state generally to the Court.

The Master—Do you mean that there are three or four instances that you expect to show in which the trustees did not comply?—

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, this letter—

The Master—With Exhibit 684, if that is the number?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—Then you had better put them in all at once, I think.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was going to do that.

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment, if Your Honor please. I do not think counsel can put them in until he shows that they were printed—were printed after the date of this letter which he has put in.

The Master—I am expecting that the date of the pamphlets will show that.

Mr. Whipple—Let us see if it does.

The Master—When you offered those pamphlets to Mr. Whipple before you did not tell him what you thought they showed. Now that you have told him let him look at the pamphlets, and show them all to him, so as to see if we cannot deal with them all at once.

[The pamphlets are handed to Mr. Whipple.]

Mr. Whipple—May I take that letter a moment, if you please?

The Master—Where is Exhibit 684? Until we get the terms of that letter I do not see how we could do anything with these. (The letter is produced.) We now have the original.

Mr. Krauthoff—I will leave with Mr. Whipple a Spanish pamphlet, which we claim is correct, to compare. (Handing pamphlet to Mr. Whipple.)

Mr. Whipple—You have handed me one in Dutch by Chadwick, have you, which you say does not comply?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Now, this letter says "that in the publication of pamphlets and other Christian Science literature in foreign languages the term 'Christian Science' should be translated into the proper words of such foreign language, with the exception that the first occurrence of the term 'Christian Science' in the text of any translation shall be immediately followed by the words 'Christian Science' in English."

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I prefer—

Mr. Whipple—Now, in this which has been handed to me—

The Master—One moment, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I prefer to state these pamphlets myself and not have Mr. Whipple state them. They are my evidence, I am offering them, and I have shown them to him as a matter of courtesy. I think I have the right to state what it shows.

The Master—Has he identified the pamphlets in any form? No, he has not. You have shown them to Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—I beg pardon—

Mr. Krauthoff—I have shown the pamphlets to Mr. Whipple.

The Master (to Mr. Whipple)—Have you completed your examination of the pamphlets?

Mr. Whipple—No. I want to speak of each one as I complete it.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, I insist that I have the right to state my evidence.

Mr. Whipple—The trouble is you don't state—

The Master—One moment, gentlemen.

Mr. Whipple—Your evidence right.

The Master—One moment, gentlemen. Mr. Krauthoff has followed a course suggested by me in the hope that we might be able to deal with these pamphlets all at once.

Mr. Whipple—Very well, Your Honor.

The Master—In an endeavor to save time.

Mr. Whipple—I have been handed seven pamphlets. The first—

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please—

The Master—Pause a moment. You have examined them all you desire for the present, have you?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—Will you hand them back, then, to Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Whipple—I would like to identify the ones I hand back.

Mr. Bates—We didn't identify them when we handed them to you.

The Master—Suppose you give them to Mr. Krauthoff first and see what he wants to do about them. We will see that the identification is properly taken care of.

Mr. Whipple—Well, then, would Your Honor let him identify them now. I want to have them identified because we do not want—

The Master—We will have them identified.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—You have seen them now and you know what they are.

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

The Master—Now, what course, Mr. Krauthoff, do you desire to take with them?

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall have them all marked for identification.

The Master—Well, first, I suppose, finding out what the witness has got to say about them, if anything. Perhaps he hasn't anything.

Mr. Krauthoff—The pamphlets speak for themselves, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Very good. You identify them, then, as speaking for themselves?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—In what manner will you identify them? Is there a date on them?

Mr. Krauthoff—The copyright date appears on the title page.

The Master—Very good. Now, what is the first one?

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Whipple asks that they all be marked for identification.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, no; I ask that each one be identified—be stated on the record what it is.

The Master—That is just what I am going to have done.

Mr. Whipple—That is what I want to have done.

The Master—Very good.

Mr. Krauthoff—The first one, if Your Honor please, is a pamphlet entitled, "Answers to Questions Concerning Christian Science," by Edward A. Kimball, C. S. D. The title page says, "Copyright, 1919, by The Christian Science Publishing Society."

The Master—I suppose that is a translation, isn't it?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is a translation into Spanish, with the English and the Spanish printed on opposite pages.

The Master—Spanish. And the date was what?

Mr. Krauthoff—1919.

The Master—Let that be identified.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, that is the pamphlet, if Your Honor please—

The Master—Before you state anything more about it let it be identified.

Mr. Krauthoff—Very well.

[A copy of the pamphlet entitled "Answers to Questions Concerning Christian Science," by Edward A. Kimball, C. S. D., is marked Exhibit 685, for identification.]

Mr. Krauthoff—Next, the pamphlet "Christian Science Healing vs. Mental Suggestion," by Frederick Dixon, copyright, 1916.

The Master—That first copyright I understand was 1919?

Mr. Krauthoff—1919.

The Master—What is the language there?

Mr. Krauthoff—French.

[A copy of the pamphlet entitled "Christian Science Healing vs. Mental Suggestion," by Frederick Dixon, is marked Exhibit 686, for identification.]

The Master—The next.

Mr. Krauthoff—The next is a pamphlet entitled "Confidence and Supply," copyright, 1918, by The Christian Science Publishing Society, containing several articles.

The Master—Language?

Mr. Krauthoff—French.

[A copy of the pamphlet entitled "Confidence and Supply," in French, is marked Exhibit 687, for identification.]

Mr. Krauthoff—The next is a pamphlet, "Christian Science, or Deliverance from Evil," a lecture delivered by William P. McKenzie, C. S. B., Copyright, 1919.

The Master—What is the language?

Mr. Krauthoff—Dutch.

[A copy of the lecture entitled "Christian Science, or Deliverance from Evil," in Dutch, is marked Exhibit 689, for identification.]

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have that one I handed over just now?

The Master—Mr. Krauthoff, I wish you would complete this before you raise any other issue.

Mr. Krauthoff—I just want to point out to Mr. Whipple, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Never mind that now. Let us get these in and identified first.

Mr. Krauthoff—"Christian Science, the Resurrection and the Life," a lecture delivered by Clarence W. Chadwick, C. S. B., copyright 1919, by The Christian Science Publishing Society.

The Master—What language?

Mr. Krauthoff—Dutch.

The Master—They are all translations, I understand?

Mr. Krauthoff—All translations.

[A copy of the pamphlet "Christian Science, the Resurrection and the Life," in Dutch, by Clarence W. Chadwick, is marked Exhibit 688, for identification.]

Mr. Krauthoff—"Christian Science, Its Results." A lecture delivered by William R. Rathvon, C. S. B., copyright 1918.

The Master—The language?

Mr. Krauthoff—Language, French.

[A copy of the pamphlet "Christian Science, Its Results," in French, is marked Exhibit 690, for identification.]

Mr. Krauthoff—I have marked for identification six; I find that one of them is a duplicate of one I have already identified—the one by Mr. McKenzie.

The Master—That you withdraw, then?

Mr. Krauthoff—I was going to show that to Mr. Whipple, so he might be convinced.

The Master—Why show it to him, if it is only a duplicate of what he has got already?

Mr. Krauthoff—That is the reason I do not offer the seven, I only offer the six.

The Master—You may now make your statement, Mr. Krauthoff, as to the purpose for which you offer them—to show what?

Mr. Krauthoff—Exhibit 685. On the left-hand side of page 2 appear the words "Christian Science" in the English language. On the right-hand side first appear the words "Christian Science" in the Spanish language, followed by the words "Christian Science" in the English language, in parentheses. On the same page, on the left-hand side, appear the words "Christian Scientists" in English. On the right-hand side appear the words "Christian Scientists" in the Spanish language, followed by the English words in parentheses.

Mr. Whipple—I shall ask Your Honor to compare them with the others later, so perhaps you will be good enough to look at it. (Handing pamphlet to the Master.)

Mr. Krauthoff—In Exhibit 686, on page 18, the words "Christian Science" appear, so far as my examination discloses, for the first time—on page 18, on the right-hand side, in the English language. They appear on the right-hand side in the French language without any English equivalent in parentheses following.

In pamphlet 687 the words "Christian Science" appear, so far as my examination discloses, for the first time, on page 11, in the English language; they appear on the opposite page 11 in the French language without any English equivalent in parentheses.

Mr. Whipple—May I call attention to the fact, please—

Mr. Krauthoff—There is something about that pamphlet Mr. Whipple has called my attention to which should also be stated.

Mr. Whipple—This pamphlet consists of several articles. In the first article—

The Master—Well, need you comment on anything more than what Mr. Krauthoff points out about it? He offers it to show what he points out.

Mr. Whipple—I thought Your Honor would like to notice all the facts about it—namely, that in the first article, for instance, the words "Christian Science" do not occur at all.

The Master—I do not think we need bother about that. I will take what Mr. Krauthoff points out for the present.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

Mr. Krauthoff—Exhibit 688, the words "Christian Science" appear in the second line of page 2 in the English; they also appear on the opposite page in the Dutch in this form: the words "Christian Science" are printed in the English language, followed by the Dutch signification in Dutch, and through the course of the pamphlet the words "Christian Science" are printed in the English language.

Mr. Whipple—Do you think that does not comply with the suggestion?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is the reverse of the suggestion.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, I see. That is, instead of putting the English words last, you put the English words in front instead of behind.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. And instead of having the words "Christian Science" in the pamphlet in the Dutch language, it is continued through the course of the pamphlet in the English language.

Exhibit 689, the words "Christian Science" appear in the English language at the bottom of page 2 of the English page; and they also appear on the Dutch page at the bottom of page 2 in the English language without any translation into Dutch at that point. On the next page, page 3, the words "Christian Science" appear again with the Dutch signification in parentheses, following the English words, and through the course of the pamphlet the words "Christian Science" appear in the English language.

In Exhibit 690 the words "Christian Science" appear on page 2 in the English language, and also on page 2 of the French translation in the French language without any English equivalent in parentheses or otherwise.

May I see those books again, if

Your Honor please? One of them was copyrighted in 1916, and I want to point that one out, because I have no knowledge of whether that was issued before or after the letter.

Mr. Whipple—May I call your attention to the fact that on the title page, where the terms first occur, that it is translated—the French, “La Science Chrétienne Les Résultats.”

Mr. Krauthoff—That is on the title page, but as we understand it, it was to be in the pamphlet itself.

Mr. Whipple—I see. That is, it first appears on the title page, and you claim that was not in the pamphlet. That is a serious violation of your suggestion.

Mr. Krauthoff—Exhibit 686, I wish to mention, has the mark on it “Copyrighted, 1916.” I am not able to state whether it was issued before or after the letter. If that is regarded as vital as applied to that pamphlet, why that pamphlet we withdraw.

The Master—Can you state as to the three of these exhibits copyrighted in 1919—whether they were issued before or after the beginning of this suit?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I cannot.

The Master—You offer them all as instances of non-compliance by the trustees with Exhibit 684, if I understand you?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, and as indicative of the confusion that arises when two separate departments are undertaking to handle the same subject matter, namely, the introduction of Christian Science into the foreign languages.

The Master—Were those instances of non-compliance the subject of any further communication between the directors and the trustees?

Mr. Krauthoff—So far as I am advised, not.

Mr. Whipple—Do you offer those papers?

Mr. Krauthoff—Those are offered in evidence, not as exhibits in full, but merely to the extent I have read from them.

Mr. Whipple—We object to them because they are too trivial.

The Master—Just a moment. Is what you are going to read something that has to do with this?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if Your Honor please. But I am through with offering them in evidence.

The Master—Well, it has nothing to do with your offer, then?

Mr. Krauthoff—No.

The Master—Now, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—I think that in every case there is a substantial compliance with the possible exception of one, which was apparently an inadvertence. I think they are too trivial to be dignified by being marked as exhibits.

The Master—I can't see that they are of any importance. But we will do this, I think, at present: mark them for identification—in fact, they have already been marked for identification. Is it admitted that the points in their contents to which Mr. Krauthoff has called attention do appear from the exhibits themselves? Is there any controversy there?

Mr. Whipple—I find it difficult to answer it because he has not pointed out in every instance the right place.

The Master—You were looking over his shoulder, and I did not—

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

The Master— I did not know but it was possible you might dispute some statement that he then made as to the contents.

Mr. Whipple—Well, for instance, he said that this occurred for the first time in the text. I don't know whether it did or not. Something that he read he said occurred for the first time in the text.

The Master—Well, that was not—

Mr. Whipple—When several pamphlets are put in together I don't know whether the rule applies or not. I tried to point out to Your Honor that if it was the printing of a particular pamphlet, that you could not apply the rule, because there were several articles, several pamphlets combined together. The term “Christian Science” does not appear in most of them, so that I could not admit that the rule is violated.

The Master—No, I should not expect you to admit that. I am only asking as to what he stated regarding the contents as they appear in the pamphlets themselves. Is there any dispute about that?

Mr. Whipple—That is all right. But this statement that the letters or words occurred for the first time in a particular place, I cannot accept, because I did not have a chance to look the text over.

The Master—Oh, I see what you mean; I did not understand that at first.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, if Your Honor please, suppose that Mr. Whipple examines further, and if he desires at any time to correct the statements I have made he has that privilege, of course, and we can move on to something else.

The Master—The pamphlets having been marked for identification, we will let that matter stand as it is for the present.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—Mr. Whipple can examine them further or not as he desires. If you offer them hereafter as exhibits in the case we will see what we will do.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. I have no intention of offering them further than I have, Your Honor. That is, I offered them for the purpose of showing the things which I read.

Q. Mr. Dickey, has the question arisen in the practice of The Christian Science Board of Directors with respect to the propriety of books being published written on Christian Science by others than Mary Baker Eddy? A. It has.

Q. And has the Board of Directors indicated a ruling on that? A. They have.

Q. In the case, among others, of the Kimball book? A. Yes.

Q. Do you regard the question as one of the questions affecting the cause of Christian Science as a whole? A. I do.

Q. Mr. Dickey, referring to Document 1443 on page 43 of Letters and Miscellany, Vol. 12—is that your signature to that letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that written by you at the direction of Mrs. Eddy? A. It was.

Mr. Whipple (after examination of letter)—Yes, we would be very glad to have this put in. We were intending to put it in ourselves; so that we are agreed on it.

Mr. Krauthoff—This is a letter which reads as follows:

[Copy of Exhibit 691]

“Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts, Aug. 9, 1908.

“Mr. William B. Johnson, Secretary, “Christian Science Board of Directors, “Boston, Massachusetts.

“Dear Brother Johnson:

“In reply to the letter from the Board of Directors to Mrs. Eddy, asking her to outline the scope of the proposed daily newspaper, she has nothing to add to her request. She wishes me to say, however, that in her letter of the 28th ult., speaking of six pages of letters being too many, she referred to The Monitor and not to the Sentinel. Kindly see that this is corrected.

“Our Leader has sent an official request to the Christian Science Board of Trustees to get the daily paper out without delay.

“Sincerely yours,

“ADAM H. DICKEY, Secretary.”

[Letter, Adam H. Dickey, secretary, to William B. Johnson, secretary Christian Science Board of Directors, Aug. 9, 1908, is marked Exhibit 691.]

Q. In Exhibit 691, Mr. Dickey, reference is made to a previous letter of the 28th ultimo? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which I believe has already been introduced in evidence? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am sorry I cannot give the exhibit number at this time.

Q. In that letter there was an error that was corrected by this as to the words “Monitor” and “Sentinel.” A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—I desire to read a statement from Mrs. Eddy in The Christian Science Journal for October, 1904:

“Take Notice.

“All inquiries, coming directly or indirectly from a member of The Mother Church, which relate in any manner to keeping or breaking one of its By-Laws, shall be addressed to The Christian Science Board of Directors, and not to the Pastor Emeritus.

“MARY BAKER EDDY.”

[Statement from Mrs. Eddy as appearing in The Christian Science Journal for October, 1904, page 448, as read by Mr. Krauthoff, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 692.]

Q. In your work as secretary, Mr. Dickey, did you have occasion to notice the extent to which Mrs. Eddy dealt with the Board of Directors of The Mother Church? A. I did.

Q. Please state generally the nature and extent of the manner in which she dealt with the directors.

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is offered, if Your Honor please, for the purpose of showing the practice of Mrs. Eddy, with a view of revealing her state of thought as to who was at the head of the Christian Science movement.

The Master—We know already that there were very frequent communications between Mrs. Eddy and the Board of Directors. We have had a good many of them read, haven't we?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Witness—Shall I answer the question?

The Master—One moment. What do you propose to add to that?

Mr. Krauthoff—Just the state of it in a general way, and not the particulars.

Mr. Whipple—I should think the particulars were a good deal more important than anything else. I should think that the particulars were the most important things, if any of it is important, as bearing upon the issue.

The Master—The question is the extent to which she dealt with the Board of Directors. I do not know that I quite understand what you mean by that.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, I mean, how frequently—

The Master—Oh, how frequently?

Mr. Krauthoff—And upon what range of subjects, to what extent she referred matters to the board, with a view of showing whether she regarded them—

The Master—One moment. How frequently and upon what subjects, the witness may answer.

A. It was her practice to refer everything in the nature of Church policy—

The Master—I was afraid we should get into some trouble of that kind. He is not answering the question. How frequently and what subjects?

Q. First, how frequently? A. Invariably when certain subjects were brought to her attention for decision, she would refer them to The Christian Science Board of Directors.

Q. I mean, did that happen every day, or how often? A. It happened, not every day; sometimes more than every day for a period, afterward, perhaps, not more than once in three or four days. It would vary. But when questions came from the Board of Directors to her—

Q. One moment, Mr. Dickey. We have asked you how frequently. Now, state the nature of the subjects which Mrs. Eddy referred to the Board of Directors, as briefly as you can. A. Questions with regard to class teaching, admissions to the college, practice and regulation of branch churches; but more particularly questions that were up before the Board of Directors that they had received from the field, that they hesitated to decide for themselves without referring them to her. When they did refer such questions to her it was her invariable custom to send them back and say, "I require that you act on this according to your best judgment." Then she has frequently said to me, "Let me know what they do with that."

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

Mr. Krauthoff—That part is not proper.

The Witness—I beg pardon.

Q. Did Mrs. Eddy refer questions relating to the literature of the Christian Science movement to the Board of Directors? A. . . .

Mr. Whipple—That I object to, if Your Honor please. If there are any references of that sort, he may put them in evidence and then we will know what they are, and under what circumstances; but to have one of the real issues of the case disposed of in that way—

The Master—I will exclude that question.

Mr. Whipple— —we must object.

The Master—You must come to specific instances, if you desire.

Q. In your experience in Mrs. Eddy's household, were the directors called to her house for conference? A. Some of them; very frequently.

Q. Do you recall that the trustees were at any time called? A. Not during my term of office as her secretary, with one exception. I believe Judge Smith was called there on one occasion. He was a trustee, I think, but he was not called on a question regarding business matters with relation to the Publishing Society.

Mr. Whipple—I would like to suggest, if Your Honor please, that the question which Your Honor excluded was answered; the witness had interjected his answer before we objected. I understand that answer will be stricken out as if it had not been given.

The Master—I think so.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was talking to Judge Bates. As I understand, that relates to the question and answer with respect to the communications about literature?

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

The Master—Read the answer as the witness gave it.

[The question, "Did Mrs. Eddy refer questions relating to the literature of the Christian Science movement to the Board of Directors?" and the answer thereto are read by the reporter.]

The Master—That, I think I struck out.

Mr. Krauthoff—The Court struck it out.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—And I told you that you might show the specific instances.

Mr. Whipple—The witness was very prompt with his answer.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—You dropped that subject and you asked him then, whether the directors were called to her house, and he said that they were, frequently, and that one of the trustees was called there only on one occasion. He described that occasion, and there is something in his answer there to which Mr. Whipple objected. What was that?

Mr. Whipple—No, Your Honor. I reverted to the former matter that you have dealt with, because the witness interjected his answer before you had ruled and I did not want it to appear in the record.

The Master—Very good.

Q. Did you wish to add something, Mr. Dickey, to your answer?

A. Yes, sir, if I may. Mr. McLellan, as the editor-in-chief of all the periodicals, was required weekly to come to Mrs. Eddy's home for a consultation with her regarding his work as editor; not only once a week, but many times during the week he was called on similar occasions; and, if I may be allowed to state it, the fact is that all of Mrs. Eddy's directions regarding the periodicals and what should be published went through the chairman of the Board of Directors, who was at that time also the editor-in-chief of the periodicals.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, to the extent that the directions from Mrs. Eddy on the literature may have been in writing other than as heretofore introduced, I have not those at hand now, and if I find any more that are desired to be introduced, we will bring them to the attention of the Court.

If Your Honor please, I have reached a point in Mr. Dickey's testimony where I am desirous of taking the direction of the Court. We have examined him, so far as it was possible, restricting it to the issues raised in the case of Eustace v. Dickey. I am not clear whether he is open to cross-examination at this time on the Dittemore case or not, or whether it is open to me to proceed now to take Mr. Dickey's testimony in the Dittemore case. It is agreeable to us to now take his testimony in the Dittemore case, and subject him to cross-examination on that issue, or it is agreeable to us not to take his testimony in the Dittemore case, with the understanding that at this time he is not open to cross-examination on the Dittemore case.

The Master—I should think that if you were to close his direct examination at this time, he would be open to cross-examination by Mr. Dittemore's counsel if they so desire on anything which he has stated which may be evidence in that case.

Mr. Krauthoff—On anything that he has stated, but would he be open to cross-examination generally as to the Dittmore case?

Mr. Streeter—I understand so, and I understand that that has been the agreement from the beginning.

Mr. Thompson—That was certainly the plain effect of the elaborate discussion on the first day of this hearing, confirmed later by a discussion in which Governor Bates participated, and in which the whole matter was thrashed out again. I do not see any reason for continually raising matters of this kind that have been agreed to and disposed of.

The Master—All right, now, Mr. Thompson. What about continuing the examination from this point with regard to the Dittmore case only?

Mr. Thompson—That would be to permit this gentleman to deny a case not already in. I do not believe Your Honor ever expected, certainly it never dawned on us, that any ruling was being made whereby, before Mr. Dittmore's case goes in, it should be contradicted. That certainly was not in the contemplation of anybody. This matter had to be arranged somehow, and it was arranged in this way; and it may be that counsel now wish they had not done it, but it has been done and it is too late to withdraw from it. It is a very convenient arrangement.

The Master—I do not think you are likely to suffer any real prejudice, whichever way it is done.

Mr. Krauthoff—We will proceed at this time to offer Mr. Dickey's testimony in the Dittmore case.

Mr. Streeter—We pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—To that the other counsel object, and I suppose we will have to follow the same course that was followed before. None of your other witnesses has yet been examined with sole reference to the Dittmore case.

Mr. Krauthoff—We have introduced no witness up to this date except witnesses testifying as to the records, and in the introduction of records they have been introduced indiscriminately without regard to the Dittmore case or the Eustace case. The point that we desire to make about it, if Your Honor please, is this, that the two cases are being tried together. That does not mean that every form of procedure is, for that reason, to be lost; and I do not know of any agreement that anybody made in this case that is a final and binding agreement about the extent to which these witnesses are open to cross-examination. Heretofore, when a question arose, Your Honor said that if it brought about any inconvenience you would then rule upon it. We are now asking the privilege of examining Mr.

Dickey as to the incidents of the Dittmore case.

Mr. Thompson—The agreement is right before me here. I do not know whether Your Honor has referred to it lately. On this last printed document, page 5, it was discussed. Perhaps I had better refer to it inasmuch as so much has been said about it:

"The Master— . . . The plaintiffs will then begin in that case (that is, the Eustace case) and put in their evidence, and then the defendants, first, those represented by Governor Bates and his associates, and then—"

The Master—One moment. I do not think that this needs to be taken down again by the stenographer in the record.

Mr. Thompson—I do not think it is necessary.

The Master—Give the reference to the page and let him take that down.

Mr. Thompson—It is on page 5 of the printed record. Then there was some more discussion about the examination of the witnesses and I said this:

"I don't think it makes much difference. . . . I could not hear him very well." Then I repeated it:

"I said it seemed to me we should be carrying out . . . limited to what is opened in direct." Then Mr. Whipple said something, and the matter is left right there.

Now, that was a plain understanding—

The Master—You have read it, I think that that will do.

Mr. Thompson—And I do not see any reason for opening it again.

The Master—Mr. Krauthoff, is there any special or particular reason why Mr. Dickey should be now examined in the other case?

Mr. Krauthoff—There is no special or particular reason why he should be examined or cross-examined. The point that—

The Master—If it appeared that you would be in danger of losing evidence unless it were taken at a given time, we might consider that. There not being any such situation suggested, I think I shall have to rule that—

Mr. Bates—Will Your Honor hear me just a moment on that matter? Mr. Thompson has read a portion of the statement, and he has read sufficient to show that it was understood that it was to be left optional, when a witness was on the stand, as to whether or not we would examine him on both cases. I think it would be eminently contrary to all rules and procedure and unfair to us, if we were not allowed to examine our own witnesses before they are cross-examined on this case. I am perfectly ready to do whichever way Your Honor suggests, but if Mr. Thompson and General Streeter are to be allowed to go into a general cross-examination of Mr. Dickey on matters to which he has not testified in the other case, then certainly, while he is on the stand, we should have the corresponding right and privilege to examine him in chief in regard to it, and we have never assented to anything to the contrary. It seems to me to be a first principle, if Mr. Dickey is to be examined on those questions, that we have the right to ask him first as our witness, while he is on the stand, or else they should be precluded in their cross-examination from examining him as to anything except that which we examined him on, and when their case is introduced—

Mr. Thompson—Your Honor, may I make two suggestions? One is that, in our state practice, to answer the idea that there is some inherent right on the part of counsel to put his own witness on first, it is the commonest thing in the world to call the adverse party or witness and examine him first. The second point that I would like to make is this, that I have been in three consolidated cases in the last 20 years, one of them of considerable importance, in which Mr. Whipple himself was interested, in the Subway explosion cases, some 15 years ago, when the exact arrangement made here was made there. Nobody thought it was doing any injustice. It was a matter of convenience and nobody suffered from it. The other would result in the situation that before we have offered any evidence in our case, it could be contradicted, and that certainly would be flying in the face of the first principles of judicial administration. I ask Your Honor to enforce the agreement, and enforce a convenient, practical, and customary rule of consolidating cases. That is all this is.

Mr. Bates—May I call Your Honor's attention to what would result from Mr. Thompson's rule.

First, he is asking for something that he is denying to us. That in itself is contrary to all equity. In the second place, if his method of procedure is followed, it will result in our being allowed then to examine Mr. Dickey, after he had completed his cross-examination, on these very matters which could be put in better by examining him now than without any previous cross-examination. In other words, he does not save any time. We will have to go into it after he has gone into it. He is simply asking to be allowed to reverse the natural order.

Mr. Thompson—I think that is a confusion of thought. I have nothing further to say.

The Master—I am unable to believe that you will suffer any prejudice if you follow the course suggested by Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Bates—I recognize that it is a matter entirely within Your Honor's discretion, but it seems to me to be absolutely contrary to all principles of equity, that we should not be allowed to examine Mr. Dickey on these matters, if Mr. Thompson is insisting that he is going to examine him on them. We certainly think that we should be allowed to do it now, if he is going to be allowed to follow it up, and there cannot be any saving in time. Mr. Thompson may have had some peculiar experiences, but I know of no such precedent.

Mr. Streeter—I suppose, Your Honor, that the same principle should be followed here that is followed in other jurisdictions, and that is, that when counsel make an arrangement at the beginning of a trial, it will be carried out.

Mr. Bates—And the arrangement as made at the beginning of the case was exactly as I have stated it.

Mr. Streeter—It was not.

Mr. Bates—It was to be left optional with us to examine a witness provided you did not intend to cross-examine him.

Mr. Streeter—It was not.

The Master—You did not, at the outset of the trial, deal with this specific point so as to present to my mind any final determination about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—There is nothing in the arrangement to which Mr. Thompson refers that bears in the least upon the direct examination of a witness. It says that any witness offered in the Eustace case may be cross-examined in the Dittmore case.

Mr. Thompson—I think that it will be well for you to read that document before you comment on it, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was taking Mr. Thompson's reading of it.

Mr. Thompson—I doubt if you can remember it long enough to quote it. I certainly had in mind the point, Your Honor, as mentioned by you, and brought it out twice with great elaboration. I had it firmly fixed in my mind, because I had been confronted with it in the three other cases, and I was only suggesting the arrangement which Judge Lilley made in one case and I do not remember the other two cases; but it is very commonly, as Your Honor is as well aware as I am, made in our courts. I think that Governor Bates is laboring under a confusion of mind about the subject. He has got something in his head that is not here. A consolidation means something, and it certainly does not mean that a man can disprove a case before anybody has testified in its favor. That would be an anomaly. As he says, he has a chance to examine his client on redirect; that is all he needs.

The Master—I am still unconvinced that the specific question you now raise was in the minds of all the counsel at the time when we had that agreement made.

Mr. Bates—May I read, Your Honor, something that Mr. Thompson did not read?

“Mr. Bates—I assume that in examining witnesses who are offered in one case that it will be proper at the time of their original examination to also examine them in regard to matters which they may know which may affect the second case.

“Mr. Whipple—We make no objection to that, although we are not concerned in the question.

“Mr. Thompson—I don't think it makes much difference. I should suppose all the benefits of consolidation would be secured if it were understood that in the cross-examination of witnesses in the case of Eustace v. Dickey matters could be gone into, if there are any, which are solely relevant in the case of Dittmore v. Dickey.”

Mr. Bates—Then the statement which Mr. Whipple read about my assuming from what was stated that it was left optional with the counsel is something which I have not been able to put my eye on, but which Mr. Thompson himself read.

Mr. Thompson—Carry that right out. We examine your client, and you examine on redirect. Carry that right out, that is the way it will work. Don't you see you get every benefit of it? Your difficulties are imaginary, they do not exist. That is what I meant. I did not mean you could put him on first to disprove our case, before we had offered any evidence in support of it.

The Master—Except so far as he has already introduced evidence tending to disprove your allegations.

Mr. Thompson—Certainly. That has been true in one or two instances, where we did not think it was worth while, it was so trivial.

Mr. Bates—I will also read Mr. Thompson's statement, or, rather, I will read mine first:

“Mr. Bates—My question pertained merely to the question as to whether or not it would be necessary to disprove of the witness when he first appears, and to get all the evidence out of him on both cases, or whether it would be optional to us at that time to examine him in the second case, or call him again later.

“Mr. Thompson—I don't think there is the slightest difference of opinion between Governor Bates and myself. It appears to me that we mean exactly the same thing. Beyond that, if he meant that while Mr. Whipple was trying his case he might introduce some witness himself having nothing to do with Mr. Whipple's case, and examine him in the Dittmore case, that I think would be a foolish performance. As I now understand it, I think there is no difference between us whatever.”

Mr. Thompson—Certainly. We cross-examine, then on redirect you take the matter up. That is as I understand it. Everybody would understand that from the reading of it. That is what we are urging now.

The Master (examining the record)—I think I shall rule that Mr. Thompson or General Streeter may cross-examine on any of the witness', Mr. Dickey's evidence, which is relevant in the Dittmore case. If he tries to extend the cross-examination beyond that point, if it should appear that any real injustice is going to be done by permitting him to do so, I will reserve the right to stop him at that point.

Mr. Thompson—And if we are so stopped I assume, if we regard it important, the time will come in the case when we can go ahead on the matter on which we were stopped.

The Master—I suppose we are here to listen to all the evidence which any party has a right to introduce, endeavoring, so far as we can, to prevent any disadvantage being suffered by any party with regard to the particular time at which it is introduced. I do not myself anticipate that there will be very much trouble when you get into it.

Mr. Thompson—I don't believe there will be the slightest trouble. I imagine that the cross-examination within the limits adjudged by Your Honor will probably be all we want, because the whole case has been opened, there is very little left that has not been discussed.

The Master—Well, all right.

Mr. Krauthoff—There are one or two incidents, if Your Honor please—

The Master—You are not through? All right.

Q. Mr. Dickey, recurring to the question of Mr. Rowlands' absence from Boston, in the work of the board and the trustees, how frequently did that come to your attention? A. I don't remember just how often, but on a number of occasions when—

The Master—He mentioned a number the other day, didn't he?

The Witness—When the trustees met with the—

Mr. Krauthoff—I don't recall that he did; he mentioned generally.

The Witness—With the directors, Mr. Rowlands was absent, and when we asked why on one occasion Mr. Ogden stated that he was away closing up his business; that the trustees had agreed with him when he came there that he might have until the first of the year in which to close out his affairs and finish some unfinished matters, and after that time he would come and reside permanently in Boston.

Q. The first of which year, Mr. Dickey? A. The year following his election.

Q. He was elected in— A. 1918, that would be—the first of 1918.

Q. Did you have instances where appointments were delayed because of Mr. Rowlands' absence? A. We did have several instances where we were to have conferences—

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. Now, if there were instances let us have them, then you can decide how trivial they were, or how important; but this wholesale statement taking the place of real evidence—

The Master—There were several instances when business was delayed; he may specify those instances if he can.

Mr. Whipple—Yes.

Q. Do you recall any of those instances other than those shown by the correspondence in the case? A. I do recall one instance where one meeting was delayed for a number of days because of Mr. Rowlands' absence. I think perhaps our records would show that. I don't think I can recall the date.

The Master—We have had the records, and you are asking him for something beyond the records, aren't you?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Q. I am asking you for something not shown by the correspondence or the records. A. I cannot state exactly what the conference was about nor the date of it, but I do remember that there were several of those instances.

Mr. Whipple—That, if Your Honor please, I ask to have stricken out.

The Master—Strike it out.

Q. Mr. Dickey, in the conversations with the trustees to which you have testified, growing out of this controversy, had you any desire to obtain anything for yourself individually or anything for the Board of Directors as individuals, or was your desire to maintain the Church Manual in its integrity as you understood it? Don't answer the question.

Mr. Whipple—I see no reason for this recitative on the part of counsel. That is not a question. That is reciting something counsel has in his mind and asking the witness to assent to it. Sometimes they are called leading questions. This seems to be a coercive sort of question. I object to it.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

The Master—I think, Mr. Krauthoff, I have, generally speaking, excluded questions directed to the witness' individual state of mind at the time of a given action.

Mr. Krauthoff—This is bearing upon his good faith, if Your Honor please; and you will recall that Mr. Whipple examined Mr. Eustace very generally upon how he conducted the affairs of his trusteeship, did he always act in the highest manner, and did he always do what he thought was right?

The Master—I certainly ought to allow you the same right which I have allowed Mr. Whipple. Now, let us see. What did he ask Mr. Eustace of that nature?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is now 11:30. We will find it during the intermission.

The Master—If you can show me any instance in which Mr. Whipple was allowed to put such a question I shall certainly feel myself bound to allow you the same privilege.

Mr. Thompson—We should interpose an objection also on other grounds, if Your Honor please. The question is so obviously inadmissible in Dittmore v. Dickey that we should have to object to it there. There is one part of it, the last part, that when we reassemble I would like to have read, and I think Your Honor will see that it is an objectionable question—one part is particularly objectionable.

The Master—I suppose we need not be quite so particular about leading questions in a hearing of this kind as we might have to be under other circumstances.

Mr. Thompson—It is leading, and I think objectionable for that purpose, but my objection was not based so much on its being leading as on its being a general attempt, a sweeping attempt, to give a man a good character at one fell swoop, and let it go at that. I don't think he ought to be allowed to testify whether he was trying to sacrifice himself or benefit himself or the directors, and all that sort of thing. It is to be inferred from what he said and what he did.

The Master—His testimony would certainly be entitled to very little weight, whatever it might be.

Mr. Whipple—Our objection was perhaps more—

The Master—The objection to leading questions is mainly that they raise objections and take up time.

Mr. Krauthoff—If objection is made to the form of the question I will recast it.

Mr. Whipple—I think you should have said that your question, instead of being a leading question, was a misleading question.

The Master—Now, suppose we take a recess and see if you cannot find some way in which you will ask a question that won't be objected to.

Mr. Thompson—If he wanted to put the single question, Does Mr. Dickey regard himself in every way as an admirable and good man, I should not object to it. That is what it amounts to.

Mr. Streeter—That is just what it amounts to, and we will admit that he would make that admission.

[Short recess.]

The Master—You may go on, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, on page 38 of the printed record, at the end of the first column on page 38—at that point in the record Mr. Whipple was examining Mr. Eustace with respect to the resolution dismissing Mr. Rowlands, and he asked this question:

"Now, did you notice in any respect whatever anything that Mr. Rowlands said or did in connection with the discharge of his duties as trustee, which indicated that he did not understand or recognize the importance and necessity of promoting the interests of Christian Science, or indicating that he was not following the directions given by Mrs. Eddy in the Church By-Laws?"

That was objected to as leading; and Mr. Eustace was permitted to say, "Not in one single instance."

Mr. Whipple—He said, "Never in the slightest," didn't he?

Mr. Krauthoff—That answer was, "Not in one single instance." Then he was asked—

The Master—One minute, please.

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon?

The Master—I do not find there that Mr. Whipple was inquiring of the witness regarding the witness' own state of mind. Do you?

Mr. Krauthoff—He was there asking generally as to the actions of Mr. Rowlands.

The Master—Now, should you come to some witness of whom you desire to inquire whether there was anything said or done by Mr. Dickey which indicated this or that, a different situation will be presented, and one which much more resembles the one that we have here, as I understand it.

Mr. Streeter—Now, Your Honor, can't we save time? Can't everybody save time by letting Mr. Dickey answer that question and say that he regards himself as a real good man, and then go on with something else?

The Master—Well, that is hardly a fair statement of the question, General Streeter.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is not what Mr. Dickey means to say, as I understand it.

The Master—Well, we will not dispute about that. So far as I am concerned, I should have no objection to your putting the question and getting an answer, but it is now presented to me whether I will admit it against objection, and I am bound, if I find it objectionable, not to admit it solely in my discretion.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I point out the statement by Mr. Whipple in the second column on page 38? Mr. Whipple asked Mr. Eustace:

"I will ask you whether you noticed anything in what he said or what he did, or in any action on his part indicating such a disposition?" being the disposition accredited to him by the resolution.

Mr. Krauthoff—We object to that question as leading in form.

Mr. Whipple—May I suggest, if Your Honor please, on the record that the question is not leading. It is a direct question. The only way to negative a proposition, as I understand it, is by putting a direct question, and the ancient custom of a circumlocutory or circumambulatory question that hides from everybody the thought that you have in putting the question has entirely disappeared, I had supposed, and that direct questions which were reasonable and to the point were always permitted.

Then I will not press it further at this time; I think those cover the situation. I will show what Mr. Whipple proved by Mr. Rowlands.

The Master—I will ask you, now you have examined further, isn't it now plain to you that that situation bears no resemblance to this?

Mr. Krauthoff—Since Your Honor has ruled.

The Master—No; I only ask if you do not agree with me now?

Mr. Krauthoff—I do after you have ruled. You recall the instance of the lawyer who said he had supposed it was the law until the Court decided otherwise and then he knew better.

Mr. Whipple—All that meant was that the lawyer was learning something every day.

Q. Mr. Dickey, what was the practice of Mrs. Eddy with respect to approving the proofs of articles to appear in the periodicals? A. Articles of importance or articles that made any reference to Mrs. Eddy herself or her actions, or articles written by her, were always submitted to her in proof, and after she had read the article, or made such corrections as she desired, she turned the paper over and wrote her name "Eddy" on the back of the proof.

Q. Is that her signature on the back of the document I am now handing you? A. It is.

Q. And the interlineations on the face of it in pencil—in whose handwriting are those? A. They are in my handwriting.

Q. Were those made at the time that you were her secretary? A. They were.

Q. At her direction? A. And at her request.

Q. Before her name was written on the back? A. Before.

[The paper in question is submitted to counsel.]

Mr. Krauthoff—We offer this in evidence.

The Master—We have had a great deal of the same kind of matter before, but this is something additional, I suppose?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, Your Honor (reading):

"Take Notice

"I approve the By-Laws of The Mother Church, and require the Christian Science Board of Directors to maintain them and sustain them. These directors do not act contrary to the rules of the Church Manual, neither do they trouble me with their difficulties with individuals in their own Church, or with the members of branch churches.

"My province as a Leader—as the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science—is not to interfere in cases of discipline, and I hereby publicly declare that I am not personally involved in the affairs of the church in any other way than through my written and published rules, all of which can be read by the individual who desires to inform himself of the facts.

"MARY BAKER EDDY.

"Oct. 12, 1909."

On the reverse, the word "Eddy," as the witness testified, in the handwriting of Mrs. Eddy, and published in The Christian Science Sentinel of Oct. 16, 1909.

Mr. Whipple—You have verified that, have you?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes. That is all for the present, Your Honor.

Cross-Examination

On Behalf of Defendant Dittmore

Q. (By Mr. Streeter.) Mr. Dickey, you were chairman of the Christian Science Board of Directors from June, 1918, to June, 1919? A. I was.

Q. As such chairman were you the visible, authorized and recognized head of the Christian Science Church and religion and movement throughout the world? A. No, sir.

Q. Who was? A. This Church has never had but one Leader, General, and that is Mrs. Eddy.

Q. I did not ask you that question; I asked you who was? A. Mrs. Eddy.

Q. Mrs. Eddy had passed through that change which the world calls death, and we here call passing on, some seven years before? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I ask you, who was the recognized head of the Christian Science religion throughout the world between June, 1918, and June, 1919, if it was not yourself as chairman of the Christian Science Board of Directors? A. It was not I.

Q. Who was it? A. The Board of Directors of The Mother Church.

Q. Of which you were a member? A. Yes.

Q. And you were the chairman of that board? A. I was.

Q. And had the powers that are ordinarily attributable to the office of chairman of such a body, did you not? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not? A. No. Would you like me to explain, General?

Q. No, I won't bother you to explain. You first knew Mrs. Eddy when, personally? A. 1907—no, 1897, I first saw her and heard her. I had no personal interview with her until Feb. 5, 1908.

Q. That was after she had removed from Pleasant View at Concord to Chestnut Hill? A. It was.

Q. Did you enter upon her service in February, 1908? A. Yes.

Q. And, as you say, you knew her intimately from that time until the time of her death or passing on? A. I did.

Q. Won't you state in a general way a brief description of Mrs. Eddy, not only physically, but her mental characteristics? A. It would be a difficult thing to describe Mrs. Eddy, but I shall endeavor to do so. She appeared to be a woman of medium height, quite elderly in appearance, not what you would call robust but rather of slight stature, she had a wonderfully intelligent face, was quick and active in her mental perception and recognition of what was going on about her; she had a wonderful capacity for reading character and understanding the thought of those with whom she came in contact; she was quick in reading an article to detect the gist of it, and the purport and trend of what the author was saying; in short, Mrs. Eddy was the most remarkable character I ever became acquainted with.

Q. Let me ask you: was she frail in body or had she the appearance of being very frail? A. She had the appearance of not being a robust woman.

Q. Was she of commanding personality? A. She was.

Q. Did she exact and command explicit obedience from all of her household? A. She did, together with the respect and love of them all.

Q. Had she a way of commanding with her eyes, telling you or Mrs. Sargent or the others what she wanted done? A. General, I do not think I can answer your question intelligently.

Q. Then don't try. Had she very piercing, intelligent, brilliant eyes? A. She had.

Q. Did she require the same obedience from all connected with her church—that is, all the officials connected with her church—that she did of those of her household? A. She did.

Q. The directors, at that time, in 1908, were Mr. McLellan, Mr.— No. In 1908 you may state who they were. Mr. McLellan was one of them, and Mr. Stewart. A. Mr. McLellan, Mr. Knapp, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Chase, and Mr. Johnson.

Q. And whether they and their successors— A. I didn't hear your question, General.

Q. And whether those directors and their successors, up to the time of her passing on, implicitly obeyed her slightest wish and complied with everything that she desired? A. They did in so far as they were able.

Q. And at the time of her decease the directors were Mr. McLellan, Mr. Dittmore, Mr. Neal, Mr. Stewart, and yourself, were they not? A. No, sir.

Q. What? A. No, sir.

Q. Who were they? Where have I stated that wrongly? A. Mr. Chase was a director. Mr. Neal was not.

Q. I see. Mr. Neal was elected in 1912? A. I believe so.

Q. You were the last one elected— The Master—Will you excuse me a minute? I would like to get the names of those directors.

Mr. Streeter—The directors at the time she died?

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—They were Mr. McLellan, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Dittmore, Mr. Dickey, and Mr. Chase.

The Master—Thank you.

Q. Mr. McLellan had been a director a long time, had he not? A. He had.

Q. Since 1903, perhaps? A. I don't know the date of his appointment.

Q. When was Mr. McLellan made chairman of the board? A. I don't know.

Q. It was before you became a director, was it? A. It was.

Q. And he was the editor-in-chief of all the periodicals? A. Yes.

Q. And Mrs. Eddy had the greatest and most implicit confidence in Mr.

McLellan, did she not, or appeared to have? A. She did not.

Q. Did she appear to have great and implicit confidence in Mr. Stewart? A. I never had an opportunity to see that expressed.

Q. Well, I will assume, Mr. Dickey, that she had great and implicit confidence in yourself as her director, and leave it there. You will admit that, I suppose? A. Thank you, sir.

Q. You will admit it, will you? A. I certainly would, and do.

Q. Now, at the time of her passing on she had one director to whom she gave implicit confidence and trust, and that was Adam H. Dickey.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, if that is a statement, we object to it as not borne out by the evidence.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, now, don't get fussy, and don't get worried. There is not anything going to get away from anybody before this judge.

The Witness—May I say a word to—
The Master—One moment.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

Mr. Streeter—What is the use of taking time—

The Master—Your statement can hardly be regarded as a summing up of what this witness has testified to.

Mr. Streeter—No; I do not claim that it is. Now, won't you please sit down, Brother Krauthoff? You will not get hurt, I assure you.

Mr. Krauthoff—I move that that statement made by General Streeter be stricken from the record.

The Master—His statement? You mean his question, do you not?

Mr. Krauthoff—He did not put it in the form of a question. He made the statement, and then proceeded to ask a question.

The Master—That is often the case on cross-examination.

Mr. Krauthoff—I move that the statement be stricken out as not borne out by anything that preceded it.

The Master—This being cross-examination, I do not think that I need to strike it out.

Mr. Streeter—Now, please sit down and don't bother me.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, you have spoken of the obedience and the affection of those around her for Mrs. Eddy, and I suppose that you had the same feeling of affection and sense of obedience to her wishes? A. I think I had more than was exhibited by some.

Q. Well, I am not seeking to have you fly-blow your contemporaries, but I can't help it if you do; but I am speaking about you, only about you. You had that sense of obedience and loyalty, didn't you? A. I did. I would be very glad, General, if you would confine your questions to me personally. I deprecate very much bringing in this question of what Mrs. Eddy thought of other people. I am sorry to have to answer that question.

Q. Well, of course you have got to answer truthfully? A. I have.

Q. Now, let us stick to that proposition. A. Certainly. That is the only reason why I answered it.

Q. Sure. Now, when you were appointed a director did you have a sense of obligation that, as a director, it was your duty to carry out Mrs. Eddy's wishes—A. It certainly was.

Q.—with reference to these matters? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you became a director, if any question arose calling for your decision or action, did the fact that you thought Mrs. Eddy would want you to do one way influence your action to do it that way? A. Not if it was not right, General.

Q. Do you mean to intimate that Mrs. Eddy would have wanted you to do what was not right? A. No, she would not.

Q. Then when you came to performing an act as director, if you had an opinion as to what Mrs. Eddy would have wanted you to do, did you have any sense of obligation that you should do it that way? A. I did.

Q. And was it your purpose from the time you were elected down to now to so act as a director as in your judgment would meet with her approbation if she could see you? A. It was, coupled with the fact that Mrs. Eddy asked her followers to follow her only as she followed Christ. That was her direct instruction.

Q. Then you would follow Christ the same as Mrs. Eddy, of course, in your action. Now, what did you understand were the powers of the Board of Directors to which you were elected in 1909? A. The powers given to them in the Manual of the Church.

Q. Won't you state your understanding of what the powers of that board were as established by Mrs. Eddy? A. In short, they were intrusted with the transaction of the business of The Mother Church.

Q. Anything else? A. And the enforcement of the By-Laws of The Mother Church.

Q. Mr. Dickey, did you not understand that she left this Board of Directors with the broadest powers of supervision over all the affairs of not only The Mother Church but of the Christian Science religion generally? A. Under the restrictions of the Manual, yes.

Q. Are there any restrictions in the Manual with reference to the breadth of the powers of the directors? A. I think so. The powers of the directors had to be exercised in an orderly and in a Christian manner.

Q. Did you understand that the board had general supervision and directory power over all the affairs of The Mother Church, not only spiritual but financial? A. Within certain limitations, yes. I don't think that that gave them absolute power to do anything and everything that they might have desired to do.

Q. Did you understand that this board were vested with final authority on all matters affecting the policy of the Church? A. In so far as it was required by—

Q. Please answer the question directly. A. Well, General, your word "all" is a wide word. I don't know that I would like to say that they were intrusted with everything.

Q. Is this statement made in your answer to the Eustace suit approved by you—A. Yes.

Q.—namely,
"that The Christian Science Board of Directors is intrusted with the general direction and supervision of the Christian Science movement in all of its departments; that The Christian Science Board of Directors has in relation to the trustees final authority in regard to the editorial policy of the official organs of The Mother Church and final authority in regard to all matters affecting the policy of The Mother Church or the cause of Christian Science?"
A. Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Perhaps General Streeter will allow me to interrupt?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—I do not understand that this cross-examination affects or is a part of the Eustace case.

Mr. Streeter—I want to say that, so far as these questions that I am putting are concerned, I am not thinking of the Eustace case, and I am asking Mr. Dickey only for his understanding, not what the actual power is, but what his understanding of the power is.

Mr. Whipple—I understood that this cross-examination affected the Dittmore case.

Mr. Bates—Well, may it please Your Honor, I think that we ought to have a definite understanding in regard to that. Mr. Dittmore is also a defendant in the Eustace case, and I assume that this cross-examination applies to both cases, and I suppose that, in so far as it is material, it is offered in both cases. Where it is not material, of course it will not be considered.

Mr. Streeter—That is quite true. Is there anything required of me? I say that that is quite true.

The Master—I see nothing for me to rule on at present.

Mr. Whipple—Well, except on the general question as to whether the cross-examination is a cross-examination in the Eustace case, or whether the evidence elicited by questions is to be considered merely in the Dittmore case.

The Master—I do not think that I need rule generally on that proposition. If any given piece of testimony brought out by cross-examination by counsel for Mr. Dittmore is distinctly objected to as evidence in the other case, I think that some special reason should be shown for not so regarding it.

Mr. Whipple—Very well.

Q. With reference to the powers and the status of the Board of Directors, I will ask you if, so far as Mrs. Eddy could have any successor, so far as there could be any successor to her, do the Board of Directors, as you understand it, represent that succession?

Mr. Whipple—Just a moment. A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Whipple—Before that question is answered, I should like to object to it as having any probative effect in the Eustace case, because we say that his opinion cannot have any effect in that case as establishing the fact.

The Master—That would be my view of the matter, but—

Mr. Whipple—That is—

Mr. Streeter—I am only—

The Master— —but this is cross-examination, and, to a certain extent, it is open to cross-examining counsel to get at the views of the witness on those points. If he states his views, it does not follow that his views are going to be accepted by the Court.

Mr. Streeter—I suppose that that is so. It is only getting at his understanding of it.

Mr. Whipple—I got on my feet simply because Your Honor indicated that perhaps I ought to direct attention to matters to which we objected. Now, we have not the slightest objection to there being taken in the Dittmore case the opinion of Mr. Dickey as to whether his board succeeded to Mrs. Eddy's powers at all; but all we desire to say is practically what Your Honor has said, that we do not think that that is conclusive, or of any probative effect, in our case. The mere fact that by accident it was brought out in cross-examination, as it could not have been brought out in the direct examination, does not increase, or, indeed, give to it any probative effect, and I understood that to be the substance of what Your Honor stated.

The Master—I think that that may be true.

Mr. Streeter—Will you read the question and answer? He answered it, I believe.

[The question and answer are read as follows:

Q. With reference to the powers and the status of the Board of Directors, I will ask you if, so far as Mrs. Eddy could have any successor, so far as there could be any succession to her, do the Board of Directors, as you understand it, represent that succession? A. Yes, sir.]

Q. Do you understand that the Board of Directors, or any member of that board, hold those powers for themselves personally, or in trust? A. Not for themselves, and only in trust.

Q. For whom do the Board of Directors hold and exercise those trust powers which you have described?

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, as to that question, that is a conclusion of law, and we object to it.

Mr. Streeter—Well, now—well, I beg your pardon—I can't stop you; I beg your pardon. I want to say this, Your Honor, that I am proposing to ask this gentleman various questions as to his understanding. What he may say will not be conclusive, or even, perhaps, operative on the mind of the Court, so far as any question of law is concerned. I am getting at his understanding so that we can judge of his actions as based on that understanding. I should think that that ought to help you out, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—As we understand the Dittmore case, if Your Honor please, one of the issues is whether the world at large—in other words, whether certain documents created a charity—

Mr. Streeter—I object to your undertaking to coach Mr. Dickey. He is a perfectly competent gentleman to answer questions and I do not see why you should interrupt the examination for the purpose of telling the witness—

The Master—I do not see how I can forbid Mr. Krauthoff to object to questions put, and state his reasons. You may conclude, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—One of the issues is as to the nature of the trust, and that is evidenced by written documents, as to which the evidence of this witness would not be controlling upon the Court in any way.

The Master—Well, you seem to agree, both of you, about that.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have no objection to having the witness state his own concept, with the understanding that it is not offered as evidence of the true state of the case.

The Master—I should not suppose it could be accepted in any other way.

Mr. Krauthoff—Just so it is understood, as we go along.

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Streeter—It was understood before you got up.

The Witness—My intention—

Mr. Streeter—Wait a minute. What is the question, if there is a question?

[The question is read by the stenographer: "For whom do the Board of Directors hold and exercise those trust powers which you have described?"]

Mr. Streeter—Yes, that is right.

A. For the whole world, for all mankind. That was my intention, to answer that way, before Mr. Krauthoff spoke.

Q. Are the members of The Mother Church the true beneficiaries under this trust? A. They are beneficiaries in common with every human being.

Q. In your conception, what interests have the members of The Mother Church as beneficiaries in this spiritual and financial trust of which you are the manager? A. If I may enter into a little explanation, General—

Q. No; I would like to have you answer the question directly. A. Will you repeat the question, please?

[The question is read by the stenographer.]

A. An interest that is common with everybody.

Q. Well, now, will you state specifically what beneficial interests the members of The Mother Church have in the millions of dollars' worth of property in your and your associates' hands.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, we object to that as calling for a conclusion of law.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, I wish you wouldn't do it. I am asking this gentleman's conception of it.

The Master—I thought we had been over that.

A. My conception of that is this: that there is no moneyed interest which may accrue to a member of The Mother Church. The interest of a Christian Scientist as a member of The Mother Church is that he has, through the wide channels offered by The Mother Church, an opportunity to do good. A man joins a Christian Science church, not to get a personal benefit himself, but it affords him a means to benefit the world.

Q. Now, I don't want an address from you on that. I asked you about the interests of the members of The Mother Church. A. You asked my conception of it, General.

Q. Sure.

The Master—I think you will have to allow him a certain latitude in answering such a question as that. You may complete your answer.

The Witness—I finished it, if the stenographer got it; I don't know.

Q. You were denying in your answer—

The Master—One minute. I think the witness wants to see whether his answer is correctly taken down.

[The answer is read by the stenographer.]

The Witness—That is right.

Q. In the Dittmore bill, page 3, paragraph 6, he charges that the duties imposed upon The Christian Science Board of Directors "were imposed upon them as directors of said Church for the benefit of its members, who became and are the sole beneficiaries of said trust, and, as such sole beneficiaries, were and are legally and equitably entitled to have such trust property administered for their benefit, and are also entitled to have the business of the trust known as The Christian Science Publishing Society, of which they are also the sole beneficiaries, properly administered for their benefit." Do you admit the truth of that allegation? A. No, sir.

Q. In what respect is it not true?

A. It is not true in the respect that the members of The Mother Church are the sole beneficiaries.

Q. In your judgment are the members of The Mother Church sufficiently beneficiaries of this money trust which you are administering— A. I couldn't agree to that; it is not a money trust.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, you and I know each other. A. Well, General, I thought I would save your time.

Q. And I suggest that you wait until I get through. A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Streeter—Strike that question out, please, Mr. Stenographer.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, are the members of The Mother Church interested, or do they have any special interest, in the administration of the financial affairs which were placed in your hands as trustee? A. They do.

Q. In your conception have the members of The Mother Church the right to full and accurate knowledge of your doings as a trustee? A. They have.

Q. How many members of The Mother Church are there? A. I do not know.

Q. Is that an accurate answer or what I am led to define as a metaphysical answer? A. That is the absolute truth, in its ordinary, everyday application.

Q. That is what I want to get. A. I don't know how many members The Mother Church has.

Q. About how many?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, we desire at this time to call the attention of the Court to the fact that the Church Manual, which is binding on Mr. Dittmore in every particular, forbids numbering the members of the Christian Science denomination; and Mr. Dittmore, appealing to the Church Manual for his right to sit on the Board of Directors, cannot, through his counsel, ask a question the answer to which violates the Church Manual.

Mr. Streeter—I will withdraw the question. I will assent to the secrecy with which you undertake to surround a portion of this case.

The Witness—General, it is not secrecy.

Mr. Krauthoff—We object to that statement of counsel. We are standing here upon the Church Manual, which binds Mr. Dittmore absolutely. It is not a question of secrecy; it is a question of following the Manual, which binds Mr. Dittmore.

Q. How many Christian Scientists are there in the world, as you believe?

Mr. Krauthoff—We object to that question as being the same one in another form, and in violation of the Church Manual.

The Master—I cannot exclude—

Mr. Streeter—I am advised to withdraw that question. I did not suppose that it was an improper question.

Q. Whether it is stated frequently that there are more than a million Christian Scientists in the world? I mean, stated generally. A. Oh, I think there are more.

Q. Many more? A. Many more, yes, and they are coming all the time.

Q. Do you as directors have control of two branches or functions: one the spiritual side of the Christian Science religion, and the other the management of the financial resources used in support of that spiritual side? A. We have the management of the spiritual and temporal affairs of The Mother Church.

Q. And you have the absolute management, have you not, of both? A. I believe so.

Q. Was Mrs. Eddy's fundamental purpose, as you understand it, to use all means to promote and extend the doctrines or religion of Christian Science as taught by her? A. All legitimate and righteous means—it was her purpose.

Q. And was that her fundamental purpose as distinguished from building up a financial power, on the financial side of it? A. That was. Her work was in the interest of humanity.

Q. Did she leave all her fortune, or the residuum of her fortune, for the promotion and extension of the doctrines of Christian Science as taught by her? A. She did.

Mr. Krauthoff—The exact word is "religion," I believe, is it not, General?

Mr. Streeter—Well, do you object to the word "religion"?

Mr. Krauthoff—No. I assume that in stating her will you would prefer to state it accurately.

Mr. Streeter—Well, if you will sit down I will undertake to put my examination in a way that I shall not meet with the disapprobation of the Court.

Mr. Krauthoff—Then, if Your Honor please, if it becomes an issue as to that, we make the point that the will of Mrs. Eddy is the best evidence of its contents. I was seeking to have the General state it accurately. If he prefers to disregard my assistance, we make the objection that the will is the best evidence of its contents.

Q. Mr. Dickey, do you understand that Mrs. Eddy left the great bulk of her property in her residuary estate for the purpose of promoting and extending the doctrines of Christian Science as taught by her?

Mr. Krauthoff—As to that, if Your Honor please, we make the same objection, that the will is the best evidence of its contents.

The Master—Very likely it is, but it is the witness' understanding of those contents which is being inquired about.

The Witness—I do.

Q. She left an estate where the residuum is nearly three millions of dollars for that purpose, did she not? A. It was estimated at that.

Q. Does it amount now, in the hands of the trustees, to more than two and one-half million dollars? A. Do you mean in tangible securities, General, or in copyrights?

Q. I mean in value. A. I think it does.

Q. That estate is in charge of the New Hampshire courts, is it not? A. The trustees were appointed by the New Hampshire courts.

Q. Will you answer the question? That estate is in charge— A. Well, General, I don't know just how much you mean by "in charge of." The trustees, as I understand, handle the estate, and they report to the court in New Hampshire.

Q. They were appointed by the court in New Hampshire, were they not? A. They were.

The Master—He said so.

Q. I want to get at some general fundamental questions at the outset. After Mrs. Eddy's passing on, in December, 1910, her will was probated in Merrimack County, New Hampshire, was it not? A. It was.

Q. And that court appointed a New Hampshire trustee and the five directors of The Mother Church as statutory trustees to manage that estate, did it not? A. They were not appointed as the directors; they were appointed as five individuals. I wanted very much to have them appointed as directors.

Q. Yes, I know that. So that since 1913, after the contest over her will had been settled, the trust has been managed by six trustees? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Appointed by the court? A. Yes.

Q. Of which Mr. Josiah E. Fernald, of Concord, is the New Hampshire representative? A. He is.

Q. And the five directors, as individuals, if you please, are the other trustees? A. Yes.

Q. With the order of the court that the corpus of that trust property shall not be removed from New Hampshire? Is that correct? A. I believe it is.

Q. In addition to this trust fund, which was left by Mrs. Eddy for the promotion and extension of her doctrines, what other properties had been accumulated by her and through her influence in The Mother Church, of which the directors took control? A. Real estate in Massachusetts, personal property in her home—

Q. Is that all? A. Real estate in New Hampshire; her home, Pleasant View, was left to the directors with the request that it be sold.

Q. What is the money value of the resources of The Mother Church which you and your four associates are handling as trustees? A. I do not know at this time, General; I would have to consult our books to find out.

Mr. Streeter—Governor Bates, would you be good enough to furnish us the audits of the Church fund and affairs for the last four or five years? I don't want all of them—if I could have one, say, for 1915.

[Mr. Streeter confers with counsel.]

Mr. Bates—The reason for my hesitation is my doubt as to whether or not any of what you ask for is material in this case. If it is we will try to have it here.

Mr. Streeter—I think it is.

Q. Which do you regard as your highest responsibility—personally regard as your highest responsibility—the carrying out of Mrs. Eddy's fundamental purpose of promoting and extending the doctrine of Christian Science as taught by her, or the building up of the financial side of the organization? A. My greatest responsibility is in upholding and supporting the church government which she has established and using every endeavor to promote and extend the religion of Christian Science as taught by Mrs. Eddy.

Q. Now, the financial management is only incidental to the main, fundamental purpose. Isn't that correct? A. That is all.

Q. That is all? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And all this money and accumulations of money, are in your hands solely for the purpose of promoting and extending her doctrine, are they not? A. As a means to carry that out—

Q. Will you just wait and answer my questions? A. Yes.

Q. All these moneys and these accumulations are in your hands in trust for the sole purpose of using them to promote and extend the doctrines of Christian Science? A. That is true.

Q. That is absolutely right, is it? A. Yes, sir. In my opinion.

Q. I want to ask a few more general questions. What are the fundamental principles of the religion of Christian Science apart from its healing? A. They are found in the church tenets.

Mr. Streeter—I want, if Your Honor please—they are brief—I have a strong desire to incorporate those tenets into the record.

The Master—They are in every edition of the Manual, are they?

Mr. Streeter—Yes.

The Master—We have numerous editions of the Manual in here.

Mr. Streeter—I know it, Your Honor, but there are good reasons why I would like to have those incorporated in the record.

The Master—If I am not mistaken they have already been read into the record.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, no, they have not, if Your Honor please. They are about the only thing that has not been.

The Master—Well, I am obliged to say that I see no occasion for it, but if no counsel objects I suppose they are to be put in.

Mr. Krauthoff—Which edition are you reading from, General?

Mr. Streeter—I am reading from the seventy-eighth edition. This is 1909. The tenets have not been changed, have they?

The Master—The seventy-third edition I think you better read from.

Mr. Streeter—The seventy-eighth was just the same:

“Tenets

“Of The Mother Church.

“The First Church of Christ, Scientist.

“1. As adherents of Truth,”—

The Master—Can't you let the stenographer copy it in?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, just as well.

The Master—You can ask any questions you desire about it on the assumption that you have read it, and that it has been copied in.

[The tenets of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, as appearing in the seventy-eighth edition, page 15, read as follows]:

“1. As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal Life.

“2. We acknowledge and adore one supreme and infinite God. We acknowledge His Son, one Christ; the Holy Ghost or divine Comforter; and man in God's image and likeness.

“3. We acknowledge God's forgiveness of sin in the destruction of sin and the spiritual understanding that casts out evil as unreal. But the belief in sin is punished so long as the belief lasts.

“4. We acknowledge Jesus' atonement as the evidence of divine, efficacious Love, unfolding man's unity with God through Christ Jesus the Way-shower; and we acknowledge that man is saved through Christ, through Truth, Life, and Love as demonstrated by the Galilean Prophet in healing the sick and overcoming sin and death.

“5. We acknowledge that the crucifixion of Jesus and his resurrection served to uplift faith to understand eternal Life, even the allness of Soul, Spirit, and the nothingness of matter.

“6. And we solemnly promise to watch, and pray for that Mind to be in us which was also in Christ Jesus; to do unto others as we would have them do unto us; and to be merciful, just, and pure.

“MARY BAKER EDDY.”

Mr. Streeter—We will hope to have the financial statements here this afternoon.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, there are two suits here, as you understand it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Both arising from separate actions taken by a majority of your Christian Science Board on March 17 last, are they not? A. Yes.

Q. What do you understand is the issue, the real issue, in the Eustace suit?

Mr. Krauthoff—Why, if Your Honor please, in the interest—

Mr. Streeter—You have taken several days, and I wish you would give me a little bit of a chance. I am only testing Mr. Dickey's understanding of the questions at issue. I do not expect that his answer will affect Your Honor's judgment, as to what the issues are. I should like to know that he understands what the issues are. A. I think the issues are as set forth in the bills of the plaintiffs.

Q. What are the two claims—the claims of the trustees on the one hand and of your board on the other, that are in controversy here?

Mr. Krauthoff—We object to that, if Your Honor please. The issues in the Eustace case are disclosed by the pleadings and not by the testimony of witnesses.

The Master—I am obliged to say that I cannot see why the witness should be asked as to his understanding as to the issues disclosed by the pleadings in the case.

Mr. Streeter—Well, if Your Honor please, I am content.

Q. What do you understand are the issues in the Dittmore case?

Mr. Krauthoff—We object to that.

The Master—Why is that any different?

Mr. Streeter—I thought I was right; perhaps I am not.

I will state to Your Honor what I understand the issues in the Dittmore case are, and that is, first, whether they had power to expel him—

Mr. Bates—I object to his making a statement at this time; he is examining the witness.

The Master—I do not think I would go into that now, General Streeter; it takes up time to no purpose.

Q. Well, did you think you had power to turn Mr. Dittmore out? A. I think we were empowered—

Q. Will you answer that yes or no? A. Well, I did not like your expression “turn him out.”

Q. Did you think you had power to expel him from the board? A. We did.

Q. On what was that power based, in your opinion? A. On the power given to the directors in the Manual of The Mother Church.

Q. Did you think that was an absolute power? A. I thought it was sufficient to do what we did.

Q. I pray you to answer the question. Did you think you had the absolute power to turn him out? A. Well, I would not use that word “absolute” in my statement, General.

Q. What word would you use? A. I would use, “power.” I would say we believed we did have the power. Now, whether that was absolute or not—

Q. Did you think that power was such that your action could not be reviewed by anybody? A. I had no thought about that, General.

Q. Well now, didn't you? A. I had no thought that it was exempt from review by anybody. I didn't know what action the—

Q. Were you advised by counsel that you had the power—that under the Manual you had the power to turn out Mr. Dittmore? A. The directors were advised that we did have that power; and you gave that advice to us at one time, General.

Q. Well, I agree, I agree; and if you had always followed my advice you never would have been here. A. Well, if we had followed your advice, then Mr. Dittmore would not have been here.

Q. Pardon me a minute. Did you understand that you could exercise that power irresponsibly and without review by the courts? A. I did not go into that, General, whether we could do it—

Q. Didn't you talk with Judge Smith about it? A. I did not talk about irresponsibility and absolute power.

Q. Oh, no. Didn't Judge Smith advise you that you could turn him out and there could not be any review of your action? A. His advice did not extend as far as you have indicated.

Q. When you turned Mr. Dittmore out, did you understand your action was final? A. We thought we had the right to do that.

Q. How old are you? A. Fifty-five, past.

Q. You are not conscious of any impairment of hearing? A. No, sir. Don't you hear me, General?

Q. Or any impairment in your mental faculties either, are you? A. They are fine, General—fine.

Q. Well, all right. If you are competent, will you please listen to that question and answer it? A. Yes.

Mr. Streeter—The stenographer will read it.

[The question is read by stenographer as follows: "When you turned Mr. Dittmore out, did you understand your action was final?"]

A. Yes, we thought it would be.

Q. Did you understand or believe that after you turned him out he had no remedy against any exercise of the power? A. I did not go that far in the deliberations or considerations of it, General, to make that decision. I did not know what power he might have. I was perfectly willing that he should exercise any power that might be accorded him.

Q. Well, you do not mean to say, Mr. Dickey, that you and the other two directors on the 17th of March—A. Other three, General.

Q. What? A. The other three.

Q.—the other two, sir, directors, on the 17th of March, exercised the power to expel your senior associate from that board without getting any advice from counsel as to what might happen in case you did? Did you mean to say that? A. Well, we knew that most anything might happen.

Q. Will you answer the question? Did you do that without getting advice of counsel as to what might happen if you did exercise that power? A. I do not recall, General, that we asked counsel just what might happen if we exercised that power. My—

Q. Now, let us not play around words. Did you confer with counsel? A. Yes.

Q. Before exercising the power to turn him out? A. Yes.

Q. With whom? A. With Judge Smith.

Q. With whom else? A. Yourself, General, is the only one that has ever been put up to, that I know.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, you know that that advice was given years ago—A. It was given—

Q.—as you know. A. Given concerning the same man and for the same reasons that are now—

Q. Pardon me a minute. You know that you never got any advice from me that you had the right to exercise that power without review and supervision as to the soundness of it? A. That was the way it was given to me—that all we had to do was to hold a meeting and put him out, and that was the end of it.

Mr. Streeter—Well, Your Honor, I do not quite know what to say. I do not want to enter into a controversy with the gentleman. I think I can take care of that statement a little later.

Q. Did you have that from me or from somebody else? A. No, sir, not from you; that was reported to the board.

Q. This is hearsay. Did you think you were responsible to anybody for your acts in turning him out? A. Our responsibility was—

Q. One moment. Did you think you were responsible to anybody—A. To any person, you mean?

Q. Yes. A. No, I think not, General.

Q. Well, that answers the question. Did you confer with any other lawyer in Boston except Judge Smith? A. I do not think we did; I don't remember doing so.

Q. Did any other lawyer in Boston except Judge Smith know what you intended to do? A. I do not know. I do not remember personally talking to anybody but Judge Smith.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, you undoubtedly have not forgotten if you took anybody's advice but Judge Smith's, and I ask you to state candidly, did you advise with anybody about turning Mr. Dittmore out excepting Judge Smith? A. My best belief, General, is that we did not.

Q. You did not? When did the idea first occur to you to turn him out? A. It was first presented to me shortly after I came on the board.

The Master—I will call your attention to the fact that it is now 1 o'clock.

Mr. Streeter—Well, that is all right. [Recess until 2 p. m.]

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mr. Streeter—Shall I proceed? The Master—You do not desire to wait for Mr. Whipple, do you?

Mr. Strawn—No.

Q. (By Mr. Streeter) Mr. Dickey, when did the controversy between the Christian Science board and the trustees first start? A. I didn't hear your question, General.

Q. When did the controversy between the Christian Science board and the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society begin? A. I think in 1916 it began to assume an aspect that looked serious.

Q. Had it not begun prior to that time in some respects? A. Well, there were mutterings.

Q. As early as 1914? A. I think earlier than that, General.

Q. Well, what were the first mutterings? A. The first intimation I had of any difference that might arise between the trustees and directors was presented to me in a conversation I had with Mr. Eustace in the Ericson Hotel, in the winter of 1912, I believe.

Q. Well, what differences of opinion were there expressed as to the relative relation of the two boards?

The Master—The Ericson Hotel is in what city?

The Witness—In Boston, on Commonwealth Avenue. I did not catch your question, General.

Q. What was said which led you to think that those were the first mutterings of discontent? A. Mr. Eustace asked me if I had ever seen the Deed of Trust that Mrs. Eddy had created, or had executed, creating the trust under which the Publishing Society operated. I said No, I had not seen it. "Well," he said, "you know it is a very wonderful instrument, really, something that you ought to see. I have a copy here, and if you would like I will give it to you." I said, "Yes, I would like to have one." And he went on at length and expatiated on what he considered to be Mrs. Eddy's wonderful wisdom and foresight in the terms of this Trust Deed. I took the deed away with me and read it. I saw him afterward on different occasions, and the subject was touched on very lightly. I told him I didn't agree with his interpretation of the Deed of Trust—

Q. Well, you have not stated that he made any interpretation. Did he make an interpretation at that time? A. Well, it was an intimation rather than an interpretation.

Q. An intimation of what? A. He intimated that Mrs. Eddy had given unusual—what I considered unusual powers to the trustees in the exercise and control of the publications and the literature of the Christian Science Church.

Q. He intimated, did he, that the powers of the directors over the periodicals were not so paramount as you had supposed? A. That was included in his suggestion, yes.

Q. Well, now, did any actual thing break out other than these mutterings which you have referred to? A. Not that I can recall, until about February, 1916.

Q. Well, somebody has intimated that there was something in 1914? A. Doubtless there was, General.

Q. Do you remember it? A. I do not remember the specific incident.

Q. Well, then, let us come to 1916. That was in February. Now, what was the first thing that you noticed with reference to any differences of view? A. Well, the points that were taken up by the directors in what—

Q. I wish you would state specifically. I am not asking you generally, but I am asking you specifically, what was the first point of difference that presented itself? A. If I might be allowed to take that memorandum in my hand that we had at that time it will assist me somewhat. I don't recall just specifically what the first instance was that our attention was called to.

Q. I have no objection. A. This was a growth, General. It didn't come upon us suddenly.

Q. I have no objection to your taking the memorandum. Of course you know I shall have the opportunity of seeing it if you take it. (A pamphlet is passed by Mr. Krauthoff to the witness.) Do you refer to the Dittimore memorandum? A. That is the one.

[Mr. Krauthoff passes another document to the witness.]

Q. Do you find it? A. Yes. General Streeter, there is nothing on here that refreshes my memory in regard to the first breach that there was between the Christian Science directors and the trustees.

Q. Well, Mr. Dickey, on the 15th day of February, 1916, Mr. McKenzie wrote a letter? A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. McKenzie then the chairman of the board? A. I think he was.

Q. What was the occasion of Mr. McKenzie's writing that letter? A. I cannot recall.

The Master—Have we had the letter in evidence?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—What is the number?

Mr. Streeter—It is Exhibit 324, and begins on page 318.

Q. Can you not remember what the occasion of writing that letter was? A. I don't remember it now, General, no.

Mr. Streeter—Well, then, Mr. Krauthoff, will you let me see the record of Feb. 15, or about that time, 1916?

[A book of directors' records is passed by Mr. Krauthoff to Mr. Streeter.]

Q. The record of Feb. 15, 1916, shows that a special meeting was held. There were present Messrs. Dittimore, Dickey and Neal. The board had a conference with the three trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society. The trustees left with the board a letter addressed to the directors, under date of Feb. 14. Do you think that is the one? A. I believe it was. That is Mr. McKenzie's letter.

Q. Now, have you no idea what caused the writing of that letter, Exhibit 324? A. I don't recall of any specific act.

Q. Well, do you remember what soon after that happened to arrest attention? A. I don't, General.

Q. Well, now, you had a meeting on Feb. 24, 1916? A. Yes, we did.

Q. And a very important meeting, too? A. Yes.

Q. Well, what was the occasion of that meeting? A. At that meeting that letter, or that memorandum, prepared by Mr. Dittimore, was gone over by the directors and approved by them as being a proper instrument to present to the trustees for their signatures, occasioned by the fact that there had been some differences expressed in various ways regarding the functions of the two boards—I mean by that the Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees.

Q. But you can't remember what they were? A. I don't remember just what it was.

Q. Now, when this Dittimore memorandum was presented to the meeting, the joint meeting, what happened? A. The memorandum was read to the trustees and discussed and approved by them, with the exception that they declared that they thought it was not wise to attach their signatures.

Q. Well, do you mean that Mr. Eustace and Mr.— A. McKenzie and Mr. Hatten.

Q. Mr. Eustace, and who were the other two? A. Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Hatten.

Q. Yes. Do you mean to say that they all approved the memorandum? A. They did.

Q. And in substance agreed to it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Without reservations? A. Except that they would not sign it.

Q. Yes. So far as the document itself was concerned, whether they agreed to it, all of them? A. They made no reservations then that I remember.

Q. Well, now, from this agreement did you and Mr. Dittimore and Mr. Neal understand that all differences had been settled?

Mr. Strawn—I object to their understanding, if the Court please.

Mr. Streeter—No; I ask about his personal understanding. It cannot affect the others. Your personal understanding, your personal state of mind.

A. My understanding was that from that time on what was stated in that agreement would be adhered to strictly by the trustees and by the directors, just the same as though they had attached their signatures thereto.

Q. And I think you expressed it that, so far as Mr. Eustace was concerned, he had made a gentleman's agreement with you?

A. He stated that he would have no objections to signing it were it not for the fact that it might be considered as creating a new by-law, and on those grounds he said he would prefer to withhold his signature; but he did agree to abide by the stipulations of the memorandum, and referred to it as a gentleman's agreement.

Q. When after that was the first question that was raised? A. I don't remember the date, General, and I don't remember the exact circumstance. I would have to—

Q. Now, as I understand you, Mr. Dittimore made this draft? A. Originally it was Mr. Dittimore's draft, as the clerk of the board—as secretary, rather, of the board.

Q. Yes, as secretary of the board he made this draft, and this is his draft, is it not? A. I think not. I think the directors went over it and made some suggestions and changes in it.

Q. But this is substantially Mr. Dittimore's draft? A. Yes, yes.

Q. And the nib of this document is perhaps in the last paragraph:

"It shall be accepted in theory and demonstrated in practice that The Mother Church is one institution, and that the responsible authority for its direction in all of its departments is not divided, but has been definitely established in The Christian Science Board of Directors."

You all agreed to that, didn't you? A. We did.

Q. And Mr. Dittimore phrased that, and have you at any time observed any departure by him from the principles of that draft? A. I have not.

Q. No, sir. From that date to this Mr. Dittimore has, notwithstanding any other difference—Mr. Dittimore has stood squarely on that draft, has he not? A. I have never known him to deviate from that.

Q. Not in the least? A. No, not in the least.

Q. Now, can't you remember when you got the first evidence that Mr. Eustace was breaking this gentlemen's agreement, as you say? A. I don't remember it, General. I kept no memorandum or diary of what transpired.

Q. How long should you say it was before there was any deviation from this solemn agreement on the part of these gentlemen? A. Well, it might have been a year or more.

Q. Well, what was the first thing that came up to call your attention to it? A. I could not tell now unless I had something to refer to to refresh my memory.

Q. Well, was it a year? A. It might have been a year or more.

Q. Well, was it as much as 18 months? A. General, I do not know. If I knew I would be glad to tell you.

Q. And you can't tell, either, what the first outbreak was? A. Not at this moment. Now, may I explain to you why I—

Q. No, no. I don't care for it. A. All right.

Q. Well, had anything come up showing a variation from this agreement before April or May of the following year, 1917? A. Well, that I don't remember. I am sorry, but if you will indicate what it is you are working up to, I will—

Q. Oh, I am asking you; I want to get at your best judgment about this. Can you remember that any outbreak occurred between Mr. Eustace and yourself, meaning the two boards, for two years up to 1918—the spring of 1918? A. I remember nothing in the nature of an outbreak, General.

Q. Anything that excited your suspicions that they were not acting entirely in accordance with the memoranda? A. I can't state, I am sorry to say.

Q. Now, have you and Mr. Dittmore been in entire accord during those two years? A. I think we had been on what might be called quite intimate terms.

Q. Had you been in entire agreement? A. No, not on everything.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, on April 25, 1918, Mr. Dittmore filed with the board a letter, under that date (which is Exhibit 220, Your Honor, on page 295), in which he opened up very many things that were going on wrongly inside of the board? Do you remember that? A. I don't remember. Mr. Dittmore—

Q. He begins that letter by saying: "After my remarks yesterday on the serious conditions which this board and the Christian Science movement are facing—" A. I remember that letter, General.

Q. "— one of the members said he would be glad to know what I believed the remedy to be." A. Yes.

Q. And did you take note of that letter? A. I did.

Q. Did you approve of it? A. I beg pardon?

Q. Did you approve of it? A. I think not.

Q. Were his suggestions sound or unsound? A. I thought they were very extreme, General.

Q. Very what? A. Extreme.

Q. In what respect? A. Well, I think they made charges that were exaggerated.

Q. What charges did he make that were exaggerated? A. If you will let me have the letter, General, I will be glad to review it and point them out.

The Master—It is a pretty long letter.

The Witness—Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff (handing letter to witness)—May I ask what is the pending question?

The Master—He is asked to point out in the letter, Exhibit 220, the charges to which he refers as being in his opinion extreme. Is that right?

Mr. Streeter—Yes; and unsound.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, at this time we desire to make an objection to that question as irrelevant and immaterial, because it presents a vital issue in the trial of this case. If we are to enter upon the unsoundness, the relative unsoundness or the extreme views that Mr. Dittmore took upon all of these subjects of controversy, quite a large number in extent, we would never get through trying this case within any reasonable bounds. Our theory of the case is that it is not a question whether Mr. Dittmore was intrinsically correct in what he said or did, but that the whole issue depends upon the manner in which he presented his controversies—the behavior, the treatment of his associates, the contentions that he made, and the manner in which he made them.

The Master—I certainly do not intend to have the question of the soundness or unsoundness of Mr. Dittmore's views as expressed in that letter gone into if I can help it. That is not what General Streeter asks.

Mr. Streeter—No, sir.

The Master—He wants to know what this witness criticizes as unsound.

Mr. Krauthoff—And that Your Honor holds is proper?

The Master—I see no reason why not, in cross-examination.

Mr. Krauthoff—Accurately speaking, this is their direct case, the direct examination of this witness in the Dittmore case.

The Master—If we regarded it as such it would be the direct examination of an adverse witness, would it not?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, if Your Honor please.

The Master—I think you may go on.

The Witness—Now may I ask the question?

The Master—I think you better first point out what General Streeter asks you to.

Mr. Streeter—Mr. Stenographer, he wants the question.

The Master—No; I thought you asked if you might ask a question.

The Witness—No. Pardon me, I want the question repeated.

The Master—Give him the question.

[The question is read by the stenographer: "What charges did he make that were exaggerated?"]

A. What charges did I make of exaggeration?

Q. What charges did Mr. Dittmore make that in your judgment were exaggerated or unsound?

The Master—In that letter.

Mr. Streeter—How?

The Master—In that letter.

Q. In that letter. A. Yes, sir. (Examining letter.) He says here:

"I have decided to briefly and hastily outline some of the needs and reforms which are essential as a beginning. The first is an unselfish love for the cause of Christian Science expressed in a willingness to subordinate every personal pleasure to the vital duties of the movement which the members of this board have been chosen to direct."

The Master—Now, will you excuse me a moment, Mr. Dickey?

The Witness—Yes, sir.

The Master—We seem likely to be getting the whole letter into the record over again.

Mr. Streeter—I do not want it; I want him to point out anything—

The Master—I will ask Mr. Dickey to recall that he is only asked to point out charges in the letter which he regards as unsound—charges. A. Well, the sentence I have just read contains the intimation that the members of the Board of Directors had not expressed a willingness to subordinate every personal pleasure to the vital issues of the movement.

The Master—Do you regard that as a charge, General Streeter?

Mr. Streeter—No. No, and nobody else would.

The Master—Do you think that what you are getting on this method of inquiry is going to justify the time spent on it?

Mr. Streeter—I am afraid not.

Q. If there is any charge in that letter against his co-directors, or anything in that letter that is not sound in your judgment, you just simply point it out in the briefest possible way. A. Yes.

Q. Where it may be. A. He says:

"Why should we expect that The Mother Church attendance, for instance, should come out of its years of stagnation and increase unless we produce the occasion for it?" I dispute the correctness of that statement. He says:

"Why should we expect the real estate fund of The Mother Church to grow and meet our needs when there is the opposite of love, compassion, and unity expressed on this board?" I consider that that is a charge against the other members of the board, charging them with expressing the opposite of love, compassion, and unity.

Q. Yes. A. I did not consider that Mr. Dittmore was justified.

Q. No. You have answered that. Now, is there any other charge there? A. Well, I will read on and see:

"We have been agreeing with animal magnetism to move when it is willing."

We had done nothing of the kind; that was another charge that was unfounded.

Q. Yes. A. (reading):

"The various forms of the hidden hand of telepathy playing upon the weaknesses of those who are not seeing the foe in ambush necessarily hide also the hand of God, which is always ready to save when consciousness is ready to accept the guidance of Principle."

I question Mr. Dittmore's correctness in attributing that form of weakness to the other members of the board.

Mr. Streeter—Your Honor, I find that Your Honor is right about it; I cannot get an answer to this question without having that letter read.

Mr. Bates—I submit, Your Honor, he is getting an answer to his question, exactly, and as concisely as it could be stated.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I am content if Your Honor is content. I should like to have him point out, as he is starting to, what there is in this letter that is not a sound statement on the part of Mr. Dittmore, or is an exaggerated charge, if we can do it without taking so much time on it.

A. (Continued.) Well, now, listen to this:

"Lovingly, but firmly, this board must sooner or later eliminate the belief that the Publishing Society is a separate institution. This board must also be able to judge righteous and impartial judgment on matters presented to it, regardless of the relationship to us of those essential to our inquiry. Arrogance, autocracy, Pharisaism, unmercifulness, and incompetence which cannot be healed must be ruled out, or those expressing these qualities must go."

Q. What's the trouble with that; isn't that sound? A. The trouble with that is that Mr. Dittmore had been, and was then and has since, been accusing his fellow board members of expressing the qualities just described in that paragraph.

Q. That is your objection to it, is it? A. That is one of them. There are other things in here that I do not object to, General.

Q. How is that? A. There are other things in here that I do not object to.

Q. As a result of this letter being laid before the board was it voted at that time that Mr. Dittmore be one of a committee to suggest remedies? A. Mr. Dittmore was appointed a committee by the board to inquire into the circulation of The Monitor. That is the first recollection I have of his being appointed a committee.

Q. Now, Mr. Dickey, was he appointed to make a report upon the general situation and his suggestions of what should be done to help out the Christian Science Board? A. Yes, he was. He was appointed at two different times, first to investigate—

Q. Well, I am talking about this time. A. Well, I think this time he and Mr. Neal were both appointed, but let me confirm that by the record, please.

Q. Well, we will agree to that. Did he make a report on May 23, 1918, which is printed, and is a copy of Exhibit 553? A. Well, I don't remember the number, but if I could see the report I could tell you.

Mr. Streeter—Well, your counsel will.

Mr. Krauthoff—What is the printed page?

Mr. Streeter—Printed page 400.

The Witness—It is not 400 in this book.

Mr. Streeter—The number of the exhibit is 553. (Document is handed to the witness.) The letter is May 23, 1918—or the report.

A. Now, in the first place, Mr. Dittmore was not appointed a committee on ways and means, he was asked to embody his ideas of how to correct the abuses which he claimed were in the publishing house into concrete form; asked if he would put his suggestions down.

Q. Yes. A. The members of the board had been listening for a long time to Mr. Dittmore's complaints, and I made that request myself, that Mr. Dittmore just put his—

Q. Now, did he make a report in this letter of May 23? A. He made this which he says is a report of a committee on ways and means. Now, he was not appointed a committee on ways and means; he was just asked to embody his views in a written statement.

Q. Well, Mr. Dickey, can you read? A. Yes.

Q. If you can you will note that this is not a report of a committee on ways and means but is a report on ways and means, which you say you had asked him to report on. You are mistaken. Now, I want to call your attention to that report. A. Yes, sir.

Q. The third paragraph from the last, on the right-hand column. A. Well, I have it in letter form here.

The Master—He hasn't got the printed report before him. What page?

Mr. Streeter—Page 400.

The Master—If you want to question him about the printed report give him a copy.

Mr. Streeter—I do. I haven't got another copy.

[Copy of the printed report is handed to the witness.]

Q. Now, on the right-hand column of page 400, the third paragraph from the bottom:

"As one of its duties the Sentinel should operate as a connecting link, etc. This should not be done by having the Sentinel less spiritual, but more broadly spiritual and more universal in its appeal and with a keener insight into the spiritual meaning of world affairs."

Have you any objection to that? A. None whatever.

Q. The next item:

"Men and women in every walk of human life need to have given them a hint of the spiritual side of their daily responsibilities."

Have you any objection to that? A. No.

Q. At the top of the next page, first paragraph:

"The directors and editors should be in such close touch with the movement and with world affairs that the first symptoms of any evil which could become far-reaching in its undesirable or dangerous results would be checked and nullified by quick work through the Sentinel."

Do you disapprove of that recommendation? A. Why, I should not approve of that, General.

Q. Do you disapprove of that recommendation? A. Why, I should not approve of that, General.

Q. Then I won't ask you any further. Take the next one:

"The editors should have a definite plan in the arrangement of their material."

Do you approve or disapprove of that? A. That would depend upon just what was meant there by "a definite plan."

Q. Well, do you approve of that as it is stated: "The editors should have a definite plan in the arrangement of their material"? A. I do not know what he means by that.

Q. Then you can't answer that question? A. Not until I get a little further light.

Q. Well, we will leave that question. You can't answer it. The next item:

"The testimonials are the personal experiences; the articles should not be."

Do you approve of that in this report? A. To a certain extent, yes. I think that is a good suggestion.

Q. The next item:

"The periodicals should show the world that Mrs. Eddy's revelation must grow and expand in human consciousness until it fills the whole earth."

Do you approve or disapprove of that? A. I think we ought to approach a subject like that cautiously, General.

Q. Do you approve or disapprove of that item in this report? A. Have I got to approve or disapprove?

Q. I ask you, yes. A. Well, yes and no, General.

Q. The next item:

"Christian Scientists need to know what Christian Science really is—its lineage and destiny—and the individual Scientist's responsibility."

Is that item of the report sound or not? A. I do not think that is sound for publication in our periodicals—a question of class teaching that belongs to the teachers in the field and not to the editors.

Q. Take the next one:

"The responsible heads of our periodicals should confer with, and develop the natural abilities of all writers of promise."

Do you approve or disapprove of that item? A. I submit that that is an impossibility.

Q. Well, take the next:

"New contributors should be found, especially among progressive students who are active and successful practitioners and teachers."

Do you approve or disapprove of that? A. If the right methods were employed I would approve of it.

Q. Do you approve of that item of the report? Is it sound or unsound? A. I could not state unless you allowed me to qualify it.

Q. No; if you can't state, of course I will pass it. The next item:

"The exchanges in the Sentinel are not always honest inasmuch as the article as a whole, if published, would usually contradict the sentiment of the detached sentence or paragraph quoted."

Is that sound or not? A. I could not agree with that, General.

Q. Well, take the next:

"There should be less cant and stereotyped formality in regard to Mrs. Eddy, and a deeper, wiser estimate of her life and work."

Do you approve or disapprove of that item of his report? A. That would depend upon who wanted to furnish the wisdom and the wiser estimate of her life and work.

Q. If that is the best answer you can make— A. Yes, it is, General, I think. And then I cannot agree that there is cant and stereotyped formality in our periodicals. I question that decidedly.

Q. Pardon me; I asked you whether you approved or disapproved of it. You say you can't answer? A. No, I didn't say I couldn't answer it.

The Master—I think the last part of his answer is quite responsive as quoting the part he said he did not agree with.

Mr. Streeter—Oh, yes. I did not get it.

Q. Now, the next item, the second item from there:

"Introductions to lectures"—

A. Why don't you read the next one, General?

Q. What? A. Read the next one.

Q. The second item:

"Introductions to lectures when given by Christian Scientists are not usually important." A. You have skipped one there, General.

Q. What? A. You have skipped one there.

Q. Will you answer my question? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, at the time I was engaged in reading records General Streeter pointed out the value of taking up—

Mr. Streeter—Pardon me a minute. I will take the time; His Honor doesn't want me to, but I will.

Q. This is the one I skipped, simply because it was a little long.

The Master—How much more of this is there?

Mr. Streeter—Why, there is a lot more, and I was trying to get—

The Master—I am obliged to say that I think you are wasting time.

Mr. Streeter—I think so. I entirely agree with Your Honor. That is quite true.

The Witness—I wish you would read the next one, General.

Mr. Streeter—I am going to pass it.

Q. We can sum it up, Mr. Dickey, by saying that Mr. Dittmore was asked to make a report and he did make the report, and what we have been reading from is the report. A. I think the record of our meeting there is the best evidence of what he was asked for.

Q. Well, have you any objection— A. And this we all considered as a presumption on Mr. Dittmore's part and an unwarranted criticism of the Board of Directors and the Publishing Society and all the editors and everything connected with the Publishing Society.

Q. Who do you mean by "we"? A. The Board of Directors, of which I am one.

Q. Who? Who on the board? A. I will change that and say, I.

Q. Who do you mean on the board? A. I.

Q. Who else? A. I will let them speak for themselves.

Q. Oh, no, you have undertaken to say here, "We all criticized it." Now, who? This is May, 1918. A. My understanding was that all of the members of the board present at that time expressed the sense that this was not—

Q. Who were they? A. They were Mr. Stewart—I don't know that Mr. Stewart was present at that time.

Q. What members of the board criticized Mr. Dittmore in his effort to report on needed reforms in the organization? A. I did, Mr. Neal did, Mr. Merritt did.

Q. Who else—Mr. Rathvon? A. I do not know. I do not believe Mr. Rathvon was there then. I do not think he was a member of the board. Mr. Stewart was, and I just don't recall whether Mr. Stewart expressed himself; but my belief is that he did, General. There is one paragraph I would like to read there, that you have left out, General.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I haven't any objection if the Court wants to let this witness—

The Master—I can see nothing more that all this amounts to than the fact stated by the witness that they did not agree with what Mr. Dittmore said in his report.

Mr. Streeter—That is all. That is all it does amount to, if Your Honor please.

The Master—I am unable to see at present why we should go through the letter and pick out just what they approved and just what they disapproved.

Mr. Streeter—No, that is right.

Q. Up to this time you say you had had no outbreak with the Board of Trustees, or no differences of opinion? A. No; I said we had our first one in February, 1916, and perhaps—

Q. No, no; I mean since February, 1916. A. I really do not know, General, without consulting our record. I can't carry all these things in my thought.

The Master—I think the witness made that pretty clear.

Q. Now, on Aug. 15, 1918, you had a meeting and there was a discussion there about the automobile? A. Yes.

Q. Was that the first time that there had been any discussion? A. Well, I think that was one of the first times, if not the first time, when we had any real unpleasantness.

Q. Then immediately after that there came a decided hostility between the two boards, did there not? A. Yes, I think that marked a period of considerable hostility.

Q. Now, at that time—Aug. 15—during this period was Mr. Dittmore very persistent in desiring the board to get information from the trustees with reference to the affairs of the Publishing Society? A. Yes, he was quite insistent.

Q. On Aug. 15 he offered a resolution calling for a large amount of information, 12 different questions—calling for the total operating expenses, average paid circulation, pay roll, and so on. Did you approve of that? A. Yes.

Q. Getting that information? A. Yes.

Q. Now, at that meeting of Aug. 15 you said in your testimony that there was a statement by the trustees about the rights they claimed under the Deed of Trust as distinguished from the Church Manual; you said there was a difference of opinion expressed as to whether the Trust Deed could be observed in conformity with the Manual, and you maintained that it could. Is that correct? A. You are not speaking quite loudly enough for me, General.

Q. Did you on Aug. 15 maintain that the provisions of the Trust Deed were not inconsistent with the provisions of the Manual? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you think that is so now, do you? A. I do.

Q. And did you think so Sept. 11? A. I did. You mean, what year?

Q. I mean, 1918. A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you agreed with the trustees on that point? A. Well, I did not do it because it agreed with the trustees; I did it—

Q. Oh, no. A. —because I felt it.

Q. Because you thought it was so? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, Mr. Eustace said that they were going to act in conformity with the Trust Deed and with the Manual? A. Yes.

Q. And you thought they could? A. Surely.

Q. And has that been your theory all along? A. Yes.

Q. And has Mr. Dittmore entertained exactly the contrary theory—that they could not operate the two under the Deed of Trust and the Manual without conflict and that the Manual was paramount? A. Well, I did not so understand Mr. Dittmore. I do not know what he may have thought about it.

Q. What is the controversy between you and the trustees today? A. Well, you asked me that question at the outset.

Q. I ask you now. I assumed, supposed, Your Honor, that he insisted on the paramountcy of the Manual, and that where the Manual conflicted with the Trust Deed that the Manual governed, and that Mr. Eustace contended that there was no conflict but that he had the right to interpret the Trust Deed and the Manual. Now, I want to know where the real difference is.

Mr. Krauthoff—We object to that for the reason that the difference is disclosed by the pleadings and the evidence as it will be developed.

The Master—I think you have asked him too broad a question when you ask him to state what is the issue between you and the trustees today. I shall have to exclude that.

Mr. Streeter—I did exclude that, I abandoned that.

Q. I ask you now, Mr. Dickey, if you claim that there is no conflict between the Manual and the Trust Deed?

A. They can be worked out in perfect harmony with each other. Yes, sir, that is my contention.

Q. And Mr. Eustace claims the same thing, does he?

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please—

Q. Does he? Has he to you?

The Witness—My counsel is objecting.

Mr. Krauthoff—As to what Mr. Eustace claims, that will have to be determined by the Court from the evidence.

The Master—The question is, Has Mr. Eustace so claimed to you, to the witness? A. Yes, that is, that they can be worked out in perfect harmony.

Q. Now, if you both agree on that proposition, where is your point of difference? A. Well, I think that Mr. Eustace has a very large mental reservation on that subject.

Q. In what respects? A. That he maintains that he has a right to put a metaphysical interpretation on the Manual that I don't put on it.

Q. Now, what is the difference between a metaphysical interpretation and an ordinary interpretation, such as ordinary men use? Won't you explain that? A. Well, his claim is that each man has a right to his own metaphysical interpretation. Now, I don't know what his would be.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

Mr. Streeter—What is it?

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, there is no question pending. Excuse me.

Q. Well, what do you understand by a metaphysical interpretation? A. I have never used that expression in connection with my views of the Manual.

Q. I didn't ask you that question. A. Well, General, if I may be allowed to go into this subject—I thought that that was barred—

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, we object to the question. The difference of opinion between the trustees and the directors, if any, is disclosed by these documents, in which they did not agree with each other; and for this witness now to undertake to tell what Mr. Eustace's position is in this case simply opens up the door to cross-examination on the part of Mr. Whipple, and that would lead nowhere.

Mr. Streeter—No; I am not asking that question; I am asking a general question—What does metaphysical interpretation mean?

The Master—I am unable to believe that that inquiry can lead to any profitable result for the purposes of this case.

Q. You are taking the Trust Deed and the Manual and looking at them in the ordinary sense, are you not?

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, we object to that question as calling for a conclusion.

The Master—Do you insist on the question, General Streeter?

Mr. Streeter—Yes, Your Honor.

Why, Your Honor, here is a situation where the trustees claim that under that Trust Deed they are absolutely independent, it is an independent concern, and they can go on without the supervision of the directors. Now, the By-Laws are to my ordinary interpretation entirely in conflict with that. But Mr. Dickey says that they are not in conflict, and Mr. Eustace has said that they are not in conflict, and, if they are not, I do not know what this trouble is about.

The Master—I do not understand that either party thinks that they are in conflict provided you give to the Trust Deed and to the By-Laws respectively the interpretation contended for—

Mr. Streeter—Their interpretation.

The Master—by either side. They differ in their construction of the Trust Deed and the By-Laws, but, accepting the construction of either of them as correct, that party does not say that they are in conflict.

Mr. Krauthoff—The point that I want to make, if Your Honor please, is merely in the interest of saving time. The General is calling on Mr. Dickey now for the operation of his consciousness, and asking him as to what his mental concept of this Deed of Trust—

The Master—He has not asked him any question about his mental concept yet. When he does, we will see.

Q. Well, do you think the board has, under Article XXV of the By-Laws, power to declare vacancies in the Board of Trustees? A. I do.

Q. Do you understand that Mr. Eustace thinks so? A. I don't know what he thinks.

Q. Well, does he claim that you haven't? Has he claimed to you that you haven't? A. No; he says we have if we have a reason that will be accepted by a court.

Q. Now, do you claim—

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please—

The Master—How can this be profitable? I think you are wasting time, General Streeter.

Mr. Streeter—Well, I don't know but I am. I want to—

The Master—You are asking him what Mr. Eustace said. Now, what Mr. Eustace' construction of this or that is, to my mind does not get us any further in the case. It is possible that you may be allowed to inquire of him as to his construction, and I do not see how you can go any further in getting Mr. Eustace' construction through him than by asking him what Mr. Eustace has said to him on the subject.

Mr. Streeter—That is all that I am after.

The Master—Make it clear, then.

Q. Just briefly, do you claim under Article XXV, Section 4, the right of the board to elect the editors and managers? A. I do.

Q. Has Mr. Eustace said to you that he admits that claim? A. He has made a statement at one time in accord with that, and at another time he has made the opposite statement.

Q. Do you claim that under Article XXV, Section 5, the Christian Science board have the right to decide whether every one connected with the Publishing Society is suitable? A. I believe that that By-Law is operative, and that the directors are empowered to take action on that By-Law.

Q. Does Mr. Eustace admit to you that your contention is right? A. No, he does not. He thinks that our contention is not right.

Q. Under Article VIII, Section 14, do you claim the right to see that the periodicals are ably edited? A. Yes, indeed, General; that is our—we are obligated to do that.

Q. Does Mr. Eustace admit to you that your claim is correct? A. He has admitted that to me, but he does not admit it today.

Q. Well, when you, on Sept. 11—by the way, before we come to that, let me see the record of July 30, 1913, please. (A volume of the directors' records is passed by Mr. Krauthoff to Mr. Streeter.) Mr. Dickey, on July 30, 1913, Mr. Dittmore moved,

“that hereafter no discipline of any kind, either the removal of cards from the Journal, the removal of Sunday school teachers or officers, or any other form of discipline, shall be taken without first giving the accused an adequate opportunity to be heard in their own behalf.”

I do not find that in the record. Why not? A. I believe that that was a motion that had no second, was it not, General?

Q. Yes, it was not seconded. A. Yes.

Q. Now, what is your practice over there with reference to your records if a member makes a motion on an important subject and it is not seconded? Is there any record made of the motion that is made? A. No.

Q. Why not? A. Our custom is not to do that.

Q. If— A. In other words, we do not record motions that are not seconded.

Q. Nor do you record any motion that is not acted upon, do you, on which action is not taken? A. Well, if it is seconded it is recorded.

Q. Now, haven't there been many actions taken that were afterward eliminated from the records by a majority vote of the board? A. Not many, General. There have been some.

Q. There have been several? A. There have been some, yes.

Q. How do you justify that? A. Well, we have at some times taken action and found after a further discussion that such an action was not the wisest measure to carry out, and by agreement with all the members of the board we have rescinded that action, and then, under motion and discussion, have eliminated it from the minutes so as not to cumber up our records with motions that were carried and afterward rescinded.

Q. So that your records do not and cannot reflect the exact condition of matters carried on in the board? A. Why, yes, I think they do reflect the exact condition, namely, if we have made a mistake—and we are not infallible—and have made a motion that we see is not wise to carry into effect, it may be that we will rescind it, and that the minutes will show that such action was rescinded, or it may be that it will be eliminated entirely from the minutes.

Q. The majority of the board determine about that, don't they? A. That is the unanimous action, generally. We never do anything in the elimination of records that is not unanimous; it is always agreed to by every member of the board.

Mr. Streeter—Your Honor, I am very sorry to trouble you, but I do not find myself in a physical condition where I feel like going on this afternoon. I am sorry to admit it.

The Master—I very much regret to hear that.

Mr. Streeter—I am sorry to admit it, but that is the fact, and I should like an adjournment to tomorrow morning, and if I am not in a situation then to proceed, we will arrange to go on otherwise.

Mr. Krauthoff—That is agreeable to us.

Mr. Streeter—How is that?

Mr. Krauthoff—I say that that is agreeable to us; and I am sorry to know that you feel that way.

The Master—Is it possible that we can get along to any extent in the case in your absence?

Mr. Streeter—Oh, yes, they could put on somebody else. Mr. Thompson will be here.

The Master—I was wondering if some way could be contrived whereby you could be relieved, as of course you ought to be, and the remaining part of the afternoon saved for some purpose.

Mr. Streeter—I shall be very glad if they can do that. I do not know what arrangement can be made.

Mr. Whipple—I am willing to cooperate in any way.

The Master—What do counsel say about that?

Mr. Bates—We have no objection if Mr. Whipple wants to proceed with his examination of Mr. Dickey, although we think it would tend to confusion. We had expected that Mr. Dickey's cross-examination would take the rest of the day, and we are not prepared to go on with any other witness at this time.

The Master—What do you say, Mr. Whipple?

Mr. Whipple—I did not catch the suggestion.

Mr. Bates—I said that we should not object to your going on, if you wish to, with the examination of Mr. Dickey, although I think it would tend to create confusion to do so before General Streeter gets through.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I had just as lief.

Mr. Bates—There are only 45 minutes remaining.

Mr. Whipple—I had just as lief go ahead; but in what Mr. Dickey has stated we do not find very much that we think concerns the vital issues of the case, and our cross-examination, in my judgment, will not take the rest of the afternoon. It would be very short. I had just as lief cross-examine him now as later.

The Master—This is an unexpected emergency. Of course, I should not require either party to go on if they regarded it to their disadvantage; but if any arrangement, now that we are all here, can be agreed on by which we can save time, we had better do it.

Mr. Whipple—I will take the direction of the Court. I had expected to put only such few questions as I had planned to direct to this witness after General Streeter had finished. I had just as lief do it in advance.

Mr. Bates—I assume, Your Honor, that General Streeter may bring out matters also from Mr. Dickey's examination which Mr. Whipple would like to ask about, and I think, on the whole, that we had better adjourn. It will be a matter only of 40 minutes.

The Master—Your preference would be to stop here?

Mr. Whipple—I am subject to Your Honor's direction. I had just as lief take up the cross-examination that we had planned. It will not be very long, but it will bring out a few points that we desire to elicit. We are not involved, of course, in this controversy with Mr. Dittemore, and the most that Mr. Dickey has testified to seems to concern that controversy rather than the narrower issue that is involved with the trustees.

The Master—Your preference still is to stop, Governor Bates?

Mr. Bates—I should prefer to, Your Honor.

The Master—Then, if that is your preference, I think that we ought to do so.

Mr. Whipple—I shall not press it. I will wait until the other cross-examination is finished. I understand that you cannot conveniently start with another witness, can you?

Mr. Bates—Not conveniently today.

Mr. Whipple—I understood you to say that you were not prepared with another witness.

The Master—I so understood it. And perhaps, now that counsel are all here, I may ask a question at this stage. A point was suggested yesterday as having been at some time or other more or less in controversy. It was this: Whether or not there is anything in the Manual requiring the trustees under the trust deed to be members of The Mother Church?

Mr. Bates—There is none.

Mr. Whipple—I understand that there is nothing. I understand that the requirements as to the trusteeship, or the character or characteristics of the trustees, are provided for in the deed itself.

The Master—I had been looking into that a little myself, and I wondered if there was any controversy about it.

Mr. Krauthoff—The Deed of Trust requires the trustees to be loyal and consistent believers and advocates in the principles of the religion of Christian Science as taught by Mary Baker Eddy.

The Master—Quite so. Does that imply that they must be members of The Mother Church?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is our contention that that contemplates—the whole situation in which the deed was executed contemplated that the trustees would be members of The Mother Church.

The Master—It rests upon the requirement which you have just referred me to, does it, your contention?

Mr. Krauthoff—So far as the Deed of Trust is concerned, yes.

Mr. Whipple—May I ask whether it is—

The Master—Will you give me that again, so that I can mark it?

Mr. Strawn—It is paragraph 9 of the Deed of Trust.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am speaking now of the Deed of Trust, if Your Honor please.

The Master—No, I am speaking of the Manual. You referred me, I think, to something in the Manual.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was speaking of the Deed of Trust.

The Master—I beg your pardon. Mr. Krauthoff—In the Manual, if Your Honor please, on page 65, Sec. 3 of Art. XXII reads as follows:

"It shall be the duty of the officers of this Church, of the editors of the Christian Science Journal, Sentinel and Der Herold, of the members of the Committees on Publication, of the Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and of the Board of Education promptly to comply with any written order, signed by Mary Baker Eddy, which applies to their official functions. Disobedience to this By-Law shall be sufficient cause for the removal of the offending member from office."

The Master—What is there in that that requires trustees to be members of The Mother Church?

Mr. Krauthoff—It is assumed in that that they are members. There isn't any specific provision in the Manual that any of the officers of the Church is required to be a member of the Church. We assume, in our presentation of it, that no one can be connected with a church as an officer of it who is not a member of it; that no one can be a loyal and consistent believer and advocate of the principles of Christian Science—that is under the Deed of Trust, again. But, under the Manual, we have assumed that anybody connected with the Church was to be a member of the Church. There is nothing in the Manual which requires the readers, or the President of the Church, or the clerk, or the treasurer, or any of the officers of the Church to be members of it.

The Master—Aren't you mistaken about the readers?

Mr. Krauthoff—I may be.

The Master—I thought there was an express provision requiring the readers—

Mr. Krauthoff—The readers of branch churches are required to be members of The Mother Church. I will see what the other is. Yes; they must be members of The Mother Church—the readers.

The Master—There is an express provision there, isn't there?

Mr. Krauthoff—As to readers; but as to the directors and the president and the clerk and treasurer, and some other officers who do not now come to mind, there is no express requirement that they shall be members of The Mother Church. It comes by construction rather than by specific provision.

The Master—Well, that is a point, then, on which you differ. It is agreed that there is no express provision. You differ on the construction of the Manual on that point.

Mr. Krauthoff—And of the circumstances. Now, there is another thing to which we desire to call attention.

Mr. Whipple—Before you leave that subject will you let me ask if you really mean to say that people cannot be loyal Christian Scientists who are not members of The Mother Church, that the members of the branch churches throughout the world are not loyal and conscientious Christian Scientists, or may not be?

Mr. Krauthoff—I made no such statement, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Whipple—Well, I would like to have that. Do you admit that they may be?

Mr. Krauthoff—I said within the meaning of this Deed of Trust.

Mr. Whipple—No; within the meaning of plain, common-sense English—loyal and consistent Christian Scientists.

Mr. Krauthoff—There are members of branch churches who are loyal and consistent believers and advocates of the principles of Christian Science as taught by Mary Baker Eddy who are not members of The Mother Church.

Mr. Whipple—Well, why don't you put it just exactly in those terms—loyal Christian Scientists?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am using the language of the Deed of Trust, if you please.

Mr. Whipple—All right. Then you admit they may be what is described in the Deed of Trust and still not be members of The Mother Church?

Mr. Krauthoff—I said they may come within the language of the Deed of Trust—

Mr. Whipple—Yes; that is right.

Mr. Krauthoff— —but as applied to the office of trustees under this deed, every trustee who has ever acted was a member of The Mother Church. The plaintiffs in this case are members of The Mother Church; they have not resigned as members of The Mother Church; and we say that, taking the circumstances of the Deed of Trust, and the Deed of Trust and the Manual in its entirety, that no one can be a trustee under that deed who is not a loyal member of The Mother Church.

Mr. Whipple—Well, of course we absolutely disagree with that so-called construction. I guess you are getting into the metaphysical interpretation there, because it is entirely beyond common sense—if that is what it means—the metaphysical.

The Master—Paragraph 9 of the Deed of Trust was what you referred me to, as I understand it?

Mr. Whipple—Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes, Your Honor.

The Master—"Loyal, faithful, and consistent believers and advocates."

Mr. Whipple—"And advocates."

The Master—Now, your contention is that, taking the circumstances of the Deed of Trust into account, that must be construed to mean that the trustees shall be members of The Mother Church?

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

The Master—That the other side deny.

Mr. Krauthoff—They deny.

Mr. Whipple—What we say is, and we offered evidence tending to show, that all of the trustees were members of The Mother Church, so as to put beyond cavil and controversy the fact that they were "loyal, faithful, and consistent believers and advocates," because that fixes the stamp upon them. But what we claim is that there are thousands and hundreds of thousands just as loyal, just as faithful, and just as consistent, who are not members of The Mother Church; and I should like, if the directors authorize a declaration to the contrary—I should like to have it done; the field would be interested to know it.

The Master—Well, I am much obliged to you gentlemen for stating to me your respective views regarding that matter, and shall we stop here until 10 o'clock tomorrow?

[Adjourned to 10 a. m., Thursday, July 24, 1919.]

July 24, 1919

TWENTY-FIRST DAY

Supreme Judicial Court Room,
Boston, Massachusetts, July 24, 1919

The Master—Shall we go on?

Mr. Bates—General Streeter was cross-examining yesterday.

Mr. Thompson—If Your Honor please, General Streeter, under the advice of a physician, feels that it would be wiser for him not to attend these hearings for the next few days at least. It is possible that he will desire to take a summer vacation before coming back. There is nothing serious the matter with him, I am happy to say.

The Master—We are all very glad to hear that fact, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—I knew Your Honor would be. But I think the long-continued hearing, together with the great heat, has been a rather severe strain for a man of his years, and I think, therefore, that he will not be able to return until after whatever adjournment we take. We feel further that it will be a great pity to delay the case, although we lament exceedingly the loss of power which we shall experience by not having General Streeter here; yet we think, for the interests of our own client as well as for the interests of everybody concerned, that it would be better to proceed, at least for a time, into next week, in the hope that we may accomplish something in the way of finishing at least the defense in Eustace v. Dickey, so far as the directors are concerned. In regard to finishing the cross-examination of Mr. Dickey and the cross-examination of further witnesses for the directors, it has occurred to us that we shall have the right, in any event, to summon them as hostile witnesses and cross-examine them if we see fit in our own case when putting in the case of Dittemore v. Dickey. At the present time, with Your Honor's permission, I will conclude the cross-examination of Mr. Dickey for the present, and very likely cross-examine any other witnesses who may be put on by the directors to such extent as may seem desirable now, with the understanding that that will not prevent General Streeter, when he returns, which I think will be in the autumn, from recalling them if he desires and cross-examining them further. I think that I am speaking of a matter of right which does not require any action of the Court, but I may be mistaken, and I therefore submit it to Your Honor as a plan which seems fair, and which, if it does require action on the part of Your Honor, I have no doubt Your Honor will assent to. I should be surprised if anybody, under the circumstances, would make any serious objection. We are very much disturbed by this unfortunate event that has happened, and this appears to be the best way out of it from the standpoint of all persons concerned, I think. I do not know what views Governor Bates will have on this. I have some intimation of what Mr. Whipple will think, but perhaps he will state it for himself.

Mr. Whipple—That arrangement is perfectly agreeable to us. We are exceedingly anxious, for reasons which are not personal to the trustees but which affect the orderly procedure in the case and affect the great Christian Science movement, to proceed to a finish with this case, the pendency of the issue of which leaves the relations of the trustees and directors in a very unfortunate condition. It is manifestly for the interests of all that the case should be finally disposed of as promptly as possible, and I think, therefore, that the suggestions which Mr. Thompson makes, which are perhaps in a measure resulting from an appreciation of things that I have just spoken of and the reasons which we have advanced to him for going on, might properly be followed.

Mr. Bates—I assume, Your Honor, that the suggestions that are made by Mr. Thompson do not affect the Eustace case as Mr. Whipple construes those suggestions.

Mr. Whipple—I beg your pardon?

Mr. Bates—I assume that Mr. Thompson's suggestions in regard to delay you construe as not affecting the Eustace case in any way.

Mr. Whipple—That is quite true, except so far as Mr. Thompson, in behalf of his client, has a right to cross-examine the witnesses in the Eustace case, and that he might, I suppose, insist that both cases be held up and suspended, and that is the theory on which I offered these suggestions as to the importance at least of finishing and getting a final decree as promptly as possible in the Eustace case.

Mr. Bates—Do I understand that you would assent to leaving the Eustace case open until autumn to determine whether or not at that time General Streeter desired to further cross-examine the witnesses in that case?

Mr. Whipple—I do not understand that that is the proposition.

Mr. Bates—I thought that you did not, and I assume, therefore, that you understand that the Eustace case is to be completed; and that being so, of course the suggestions do not affect you, because they do not delay the completion of the Eustace case.

Mr. Whipple—They affect me in this respect, that it enables me to finish the Eustace case which otherwise we might not be able to do.

Mr. Bates—Well, the suggestions for delay until autumn, and keeping the case open for cross-examination by General Streeter in the autumn, do not affect your case, as you understand. They affect the Dittmore case only.

Mr. Thompson—That is a mistake in one respect.

The Master—Is not the difficulty there that Mr. Dittmore is at least, in a sense, a party to the Eustace case?

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

Mr. Bates—I was pointing out the fact that, as I understand it, Mr. Whipple does not consider that his adoption of this suggestion in any way prevents the closing up of the Eustace case.

Mr. Thompson—You are mistaken in one respect, to which His Honor has called your attention. Mr. Dittmore is a defendant in the Eustace case. Now, I intended to say when I first spoke—it was an oversight that I did not say it, and I now do say it—that we should expect, if we agree to go ahead now, with the loss of General Streeter, which is a serious one for our case—we should expect that Mr. Whipple would agree that the Eustace case might be kept open to the extent that Mr. Dittmore's testimony in that case might be put in in the autumn and not now, if he desired to testify in the Eustace case as distinguished from his own case. In other words, that his testimony when given in his own case might be deemed to be, so far as applicable, and so far as he wishes to make it so, his testimony as a defendant in this case. Of course, the situation is very singular. He cannot be called upon to testify at all in the Eustace case unless there is some evidence that he is a director. He is sued only as a director. He contends that he is a director in the Dittmore case, and Mr. Whipple has not yet taken any position at all on that subject. Of course, it would be theoretically Mr. Whipple's function, if he desires to get a decree against Mr. Dittmore, to offer evidence that Mr. Dittmore is a director and has not been properly expelled. Mr. Whipple has not yet offered any such evidence; therefore, theoretically, Mr. Dittmore is not called upon to testify in Mr. Whipple's case. I think the best solution of that rather fanciful, although rather sound technical contention, is that Mr. Dittmore's testimony should be regarded as testimony in defense of the Eustace case as well as in his own case of Dittmore v. Dickey, and, in that sense, my proposition does affect very materially the closing of the case of Eustace v. Dickey.

Mr. Whipple—I understand that Mr. Thompson's suggestion is that after the defendant directors have introduced the rest of their case in defense, he may then desire to proceed with Mr. Dittmore's defense in that suit, in the trustees' suit. I understand, also, that he may not, and that he does not, wish to be called upon at this moment to decide that question.

Mr. Thompson—That is exactly it.

Mr. Whipple—I understood Mr. Thompson's position to be that as a result of my conference with him last evening, in which I urged strongly that he assist in facilitating the finishing of the trustees' case if possible, and that seemed to me to be entirely reasonable. I told him that I did not think that we needed to call upon him to decide now, with the other perplexing things that he has to decide, whether and to what extent he would want to offer evidence in defense of the trustees' suit. If he does, he ought to have that privilege, and ought to have it in a reasonably convenient way, and to any arrangement in that respect that Your Honor approves we should assent.

Mr. Bates—Your Honor, I regret exceedingly General Streeter's ill health, and I sympathize with him; but every one has been staying here through this heated term for weeks in order that these important questions might be decided. There are other counsel associated with General Streeter who are perfectly competent to go on and finish examination of the witnesses and the case. We would be glad to accede to any suggestion for a delay of a few days that might be to Your Honor's approval, in order to accommodate General Streeter and his associate counsel. I do not think, under the circumstances, in view of the complications that might result from these matters being in controversy, that we should be expected to agree to an indefinite postponement of the conclusion of their case. I think that we should have some definite intimation as to what is involved in this suggestion, and that we should, with such reasonable delay as Your Honor might think necessary in order to allow General Streeter to return—I do not understand that his condition is such as to be serious, according to his associate counsel—I think that we should go on for any reasonable time and complete both of these cases.

Mr. Thompson—Do I understand you to say that you think we should go right through the month of August?

The Master—I do not think that that would be at all necessary.

Mr. Bates—I think that the cases can be completed probably inside of a week or ten days.

Mr. Thompson—Why, I am very sorry—

The Master—Pardon me. Perhaps this will be a good time for me to make a suggestion. I would like to ask what would be the objection to going on, now that we are all here, to the point of completing the evidence, so far as you have any to offer, in Eustace v. Dickey, and at that time to see how matters then stand, and to consider then further the question of an adjournment or continuance of the hearing in the light of such information as we might then have?

Mr. Bates—That would be entirely satisfactory to us, Your Honor, if one single statement made by Mr. Thompson is cleared up. He suggested that he was going to cross-examine Mr. Dickey this morning in place of his associate, General Streeter, and at the same time that he wanted it left open so that General Streeter, when he comes back, could also give him a cross-examination. I assume that either one or the other should complete the cross-examination now.

Mr. Thompson—Oh, no.

Mr. Bates—That is what I understood you to say.

Mr. Thompson—You understood my statement with perfect correctness. I will come to that in a moment. I want to correct one mistake of yours. Mr. Whipple will confirm me, because he was present when the physician examined General Streeter. The doctor states that it would be entirely unwise for General Streeter to attempt to come back or sit in these hearings and take any active part without a long summer vacation; so that General Streeter's return until October to take any active part in this matter is entirely out of the question. In regard to this suggestion that you have made about double cross-examination, I call your attention to the fact that you put a witness on in the case of Eustace v. Dickey under an agreement made, discussed, modified, and established by His Honor. General Streeter was cross-examining that witness. I propose, with the consent of the Court—and I need to ask it only in one respect—to complete that cross-examination, the rule, of course, being that two counsel cannot cross-examine the same witness. That rule is subject to exception, I assume, when one is taken suddenly ill. That is the only favor I ask.

Mr. Bates—I do not object to your doing that.

Mr. Thompson—I have a perfect right next autumn when I open the case of Dittmore v. Dickey to summon all your clients, put them on the stand, and, under the statutes of Massachusetts, cross-examine every one of them as hostile witnesses. I ask no favors. That is all I meant by double cross-examination. The present cross-examination is the result of a settled agreement, ratified and ordered by the court, and on that I stand.

Mr. Bates—Of course, Your Honor, we do not agree to that.

The Master—Will it be necessary to have that matter decided now? Possibly the exigency may never arise.

Mr. Bates—There is no objection to Mr. Thompson's going on now in the cross-examination, but we certainly should raise objection if they put Mr. Dickey on in that case and attempted to cross-examine him on the same matters again.

Mr. Thompson—I do not think that it would be on the same matters.

Mr. Bates—If you are going to examine him now, you cannot examine him then.

The Master—I should not permit that.

Mr. Bates—That is what I supposed.

The Master—But as to their right to summon any witness presented now, asserted by Mr. Thompson, why can't we see about that when he undertakes to exercise that right?

Mr. Bates—I have not disputed that right. I have merely disputed the right to cross-examine the same man on the same matters twice.

Mr. Thompson—Whenever you find me so feeble-minded as to attempt to put the same questions again to the same witness, I think I shall yield to your suggestion. If you ever find me doing that, I invite you to call my attention to it. I wish to say one thing more. You are entirely in error as to finishing this case in a week. It will take at least three or four days in order to put in through Mr. Dittmore the mass of material which he has here.

The Master—The longer it is going to take, the greater the desirability of our proceeding now with as much expedition as we can. Therefore, I think that my suggestion is the one which we all ought to adopt.

Mr. Thompson—I do not understand Your Honor to have ruled upon the right asserted by me to summon Mr. Dickey later, or any director, in the case of Dittmore v. Dickey?

The Master—No, I distinctly said that I do not see the necessity of passing on that question now.

Mr. Bates—I understand Your Honor's suggestion is that we shall proceed and go as far as we can, and then it will be determined as to what other action will be taken, or what delays shall be had?

The Master—That is my position about it.

Mr. Bates—That is entirely agreeable to us.

The Master—Won't that be the best way?

Mr. Bates—I think so.

The Master—You have all now invested pretty heavily in time and money and print and paper not to go ahead with this case as quickly as we can, and we all ought to do all we can to see to it that that investment does not go for nothing.

Mr. Bates—That is entirely agreeable.

The Master—Shall we proceed?

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

Mr. Whipple—Before proceeding with the—

The Master—One moment. Mr. Krauthoff has something to say.

Mr. Krauthoff—Not on this subject.

Mr. Whipple—Before proceeding with the cross-examination may I advert to certain questions that Your Honor put to counsel last evening just before adjournment as to the necessity of the membership of the trustees?

The Master—I did not go any further, I think, yesterday afternoon than to ask counsel to state their respective views to me.

Mr. Whipple—I do not care to state any views further, but I would like to put on the record at this time references in the Manual which seem to me to be germane to this subject.

Mr. Bates—Doesn't Your Honor think that should be done in connection with Mr. Whipple's argument finally?

The Master—I think I should prefer that you would not do that at present if it is objected to.

Mr. Whipple—Well, very well. It seemed to me that they would come in better in the place where you put the inquiry.

The Master—No. I got a sufficient statement for my purposes at that time. Of course the matter will have to be taken up again in argument.

Mr. Whipple—I quite understand that.

The Master—There will be full opportunity. Nothing that I have said or inquired, or nothing that any counsel has said in reply to my inquiry, will make any difference when we get to the arguments.

Mr. Thompson—May I say a word, Your Honor? Mr. Demond feels, and I think perhaps with some justice, in the extreme solicitude for Mr. Streeter's views in this matter, that perhaps I have not even yet left the question of his right, if he desires to cross-examine this witness, as he would like to have it left. I would therefore like to say again that I would like to inquire whether any obstacle now occurs to Your Honor to prevent General Streeter in the autumn, if he desires, in the case of Dittmore and Dickey, from examining these directors, his opponents in the case, on matters not already gone over by him or by me here?

The Master—I do not see anything in that. I see no question raised by what you now say that is not covered by what I have already said. We will determine that question when we get to it.

Mr. Thompson—That is, we shall have to tell General Streeter that that question cannot be determined now. I would like very much—of course he is very anxious—to know what he will be permitted to do when he returns. I know it is a little irregular in advance of the actual arising of the situation to ask the Court to rule; but in view of all the circumstances it would greatly allay his apprehension if he could have some intimation—perhaps there would be no objection on the part of counsel to it—that I could carry to him the message, to that limited extent, that if he desires to cross-examine he would not be prevented. It would greatly relieve his mind, I think.

The Master—I have not foreclosed the question at all. I have merely left it open; and the determination of the question, as it appears to me, will so much depend upon the circumstances existing when the question arises in regular order that it cannot be satisfactorily determined now. It will depend a good deal on what you want to ask.

Mr. Thompson—I assume that.

The Master—And I have considerable hope that by the time we get to that point you will find that there isn't anything left that you want to ask. Now, we will hear what Mr. Krauthoff has to say.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, Mr. Thompson spoke of the directors as hostile witnesses. I assume that is an inadvertence; he means adverse witnesses. They are not necessarily hostile just because they are defendants in the case. Mr. Dickey feels that in one statement he made yesterday with respect to the memory of a gentleman not now living he was not entirely just to the situation, and he would like to correct that at the earliest opportunity, and if I may ask him now, if Mr. Thompson—

The Master—Is there any objection?

Mr. Thompson—Don't you think you had better wait until the re-direct examination? That would be the proper time to make such corrections.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, the nature of it is such that Mr. Dickey would like to do it right away, if Your Honor please.

Mr. Thompson—I do not see any occasion for interrupting the cross-examination.

The Master—It may shorten the cross-examination if you let him correct it now.

Mr. Thompson—I wasn't going to ask him anything about it at all myself. I suppose he means Mr. McLellan, doesn't he?

Mr. Krauthoff—He desires to correct a statement now he made about Mr. McLellan, and he desires to do it at the earliest possible opportunity.

Mr. Thompson—Well, it is irregular, but if Your Honor thinks it ought to be done I don't know that I shall press the objection.

Adam H. Dickey, Resumed

Q. (By Mr. Krauthoff.) Mr. Dickey, on yesterday you were asked a question with respect to Mr. McLellan. Do you desire to make some explanation as to that? A. I would like to.

Q. Just state it as briefly as possible. A. I thought Mr. Streeter asked me if Mrs. Eddy had absolute and implicit confidence in Mr. McLellan, and I said "No." I expected that there would be some further colloquy on that, but I lost sight of the question and went on. I would like to say that Mrs. Eddy did have a great deal of confidence in Mr. McLellan; that he was a counselor and adviser of hers, and she relied on him a great deal. She also relied on her publisher, Mr. Stewart—

Mr. Thompson—I don't think there is any occasion for that.

The Master—Now he is going beyond the correction of his statement.

Q. You are not asked as to Mr. Stewart. A. All right.

Mr. Bates—Yes, he was; he was asked as to Mr. Stewart.

The Witness—I thought—this is my own thought about it—I didn't confer with counsel until I came in here—

Mr. Thompson—We are not asking for that, sir. You will be kind enough to confine yourself to the question.

The Master—Strike that out. Finish his correction—confine him to corrections of his testimony.

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me, if Your Honor please. He was also asked about Mr. Stewart, who is not now living, yesterday.

Mr. Thompson—This can go in on re-direct; there is no occasion for interrupting the cross-examination.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have not asked him about Mr. Stewart; I will take the liberty of asking.

Q. Do you wish to make any correction with respect to Mr. Stewart?

Mr. Thompson—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

A. I would like to.

The Master—If it is in correction of his testimony.

Q. Any correction of your testimony of yesterday.

The Master—If he wants to say anything different now, if he now finds he was wrong in something he said yesterday, I will now give him an opportunity to correct it. He should not go beyond that.

Q. Following the direction of the Court, Mr. Dickey— A. I would like to say that Mrs. Eddy also had great confidence in Mr. Stewart.

Mr. Thompson—You said that yesterday. How is that a correction?

The Master—I do not remember the exact language used yesterday. Now, Mr. Thompson, you may proceed.

Cross-Examination
On Behalf of Defendant Dittmore

Q. (By Mr. Thompson.) You spoke about letters from Mr. Dittmore to which you objected. You have heard a number of letters read, haven't you, that Mr. Dittmore wrote? A. Yes.

Q. Letters read during the course of this hearing. Now, can you think of any other letter in particular—I am not asking you in general—to which you took objection of the kind you have described yesterday? If so, let us know what it was by date or other description, so that we can get it into the case. A. There is another letter that has not been introduced.

Q. Please identify it so that we can put it in. (The witness examines papers.) Have you got it? Have you got the letter with you? A. No, sir.

Q. Where is it? A. In the files of the clerk of the Church.

Mr. Thompson—Is anybody getting it out?

Mr. Krauthoff—What is the date or the subject?

The Witness—I am just looking that up. There is a letter, unless it is in—I am not certain about that—of April 24; another one of April 25.

Q. Well, I am asking you about letters not already introduced in evidence.

Mr. Krauthoff—Excuse me, Mr. Thompson. I have a collection of Mr. Dittmore's letters that I will, with your permission, give to Mr. Dickey.

Mr. Thompson—Go ahead and give them to him, only you ought to know whether these have been introduced or not. Perhaps I can tell when I see the copy. April 25 is in, if that is the one you refer to.

The Witness—There is also one of Aug. 21.

Mr. Thompson—Now, there is one of April 24. I think you are right, that is not in. I would like to have you produce that, will you, Mr. Krauthoff, or whoever has got control of these documents? Have you the letter of April 24?

Mr. Krauthoff—Is that a letter, Mr. Thompson, or a memorandum?

Mr. Thompson—A letter, not a memorandum. Follow this, will you, Mr. Dittmore—I will read this into the record. This is a copy of a memorandum presented and read at the meeting of the directors on April 24, 1918, by Mr. Dittmore.

[Memorandum prepared by Mr. Dittmore, read in Board of Directors April 24, 1918, offered in evidence as Exhibit 694, and read by Mr. Thompson as follows:]

[Exhibit 694.]

"The Christian Science Church is today facing the most vital hour in its history. Deprived of the wise and vigilant personal direction of its Founder and Leader, that body upon whose shoulders she has placed the responsibility for its direction, has not risen to the approximate demonstration of that standard of mankind (manhood?) which she said should be her successor (Miscy. p. 346).

"Mrs. Eddy has led the Christian Science movement through the wilderness under that divine inspiration which she was given 'upon the mount,' and today history is repeating itself. Israel is waiting to be led by an uplifted vision of the ever-present Christ, across the turbulent Jordan of a burning and blood-stained world into the promised land, even 'unto the great river'—'Divine Science.'

"Why is this board failing to meet its responsibilities? The answer to this question is both epitomized and analyzed by Mrs. Eddy in the 'Allegory' in 'Miscellaneous Writings.'

"Three roads lay open today before the Christian Science movement. The first—a continuation of the apathy, stupor, and inaction to its inevitable conclusion.

"The second—To become a great ecclesiastical hierarchy, rich, powerful politically, materially efficient, in fact the embodiment of organized material power. Hunting heretics, issuing dogmas and official interpretations, and with officialdom holding tight to its 'offices' until death do them part. At the present moment the Church is halting at the juncture of these two roads.

"The third way is the fulfillment of the hopes and prayers of the beloved Founder of this great Cause. It demands the raising of a new standard for the world. It includes the responsibility for this board to reverse itself and instead of falling asleep, to arise, awake. To root up the trees which Principle has not planted and to prevent their standard from being soiled by jealousy, pride, hatred, or worldly policy—to recognize and destroy the hidden hand of hypnotism which is paralyzing the efforts of individuals and nations as well as of this board.

To recognize that this board is the battleground for the mental conflict between impersonal good and impersonal evil, and to keep before us in letters of fire Mrs. Eddy's words: "The true Science—Divine Science—will be lost sight of again unless we arouse ourselves. This demonstrating to make matter build up is not Science."

"This constant examination of the details of our increasing limitations and regretting the necessities for our present curtailments constitute dabbling with effects instead of analyzing and remedying causes.

"The constant decrease in members admitted to The Mother Church since 1915, which has today reached a point where on April 20 we were 541 less than on last year's spring admission, alone surely must mean something.

"The constant deficit on The Monitor, amounting this year to almost $100,000 in addition to the more than a million lost to the Cause through The Monitor during the past few years, the necessity for cutting down so greatly our work for the army and navy through the trustees under Mrs. Eddy's will when we have before us the greatest opportunity ever presented.

"The abandonment of our administration building, the stopping of our efforts toward a new printing plant—

"Surely all of these things and many others indicate something which this board must recognize and sooner or later remedy—for the responsibility is primarily upon The Christian Science Board of Directors.

"J. V. D.

"April 24, 1918—E. M. L."

Mr. Thompson—Now you have got another one, you said, of Aug. 21?

Mr. Krauthoff—Do you wish to say something, Mr. Dickey?

The Witness—I think the word is "mankind," and not "manhood," as he read it in the original.

Mr. Thompson—Aug. 21. Have you got that letter?

Mr. Krauthoff—Mr. Thompson, in the document that came to us the word is "mankind."

Mr. Thompson—"Mankind," is it? Well, change it from "manhood" to "mankind," if you like it any better. It was intended to be "manhood."

Q. Now, have you got one of Aug. 21? While you are finding the letter of Aug. 21, I understand you also desire to have me put in another one, a short letter of April 25, do you? Is that right?

Mr. Krauthoff—Just as you wish.

Mr. Thompson—No, it isn't what I wish. I am asking your client to mention any particular letters that he regards as most objectionable, written by Mr. Dittmore. He has mentioned one, which I have read. He also mentioned another, of Aug. 21, which I have been calling for and have not yet got; and Mr. Abbott just said that he had in mind to mention another one, I think one of April 25, in addition to the letter of April 24 already in. Now,

I want them all—all that you regard as objectionable.

The Witness—April 25.

Mr. Thompson—Very well; I will read it, then. Just follow it, if you have the original, and see if it is correctly read.

[A letter, Mr. Dittmore to the directors, April 25, 1918, is offered in evidence as Exhibit 695, and is read by Mr. Thompson, as follows:]

[Exhibit 695.]

"April 25, 1918.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"After the board meeting yesterday I desired to confirm the statements I made in regard to the limited circulation of The Monitor in Boston and suburbs. I find that I was, in fact, somewhat over-optimistic. Our ten years' work for The Monitor has accomplished a net paid circulation to bona fide subscribers in Boston proper of 2276, and in Greater Boston an additional 875, and in the Greater Boston district and all of the suburbs, numbering about 25 municipalities, the grand total is 5797.

"Bona fide subscriptions in Greater Boston stand third of the great cities, Chicago being first, New York second, Boston third, with London very close to Boston. It would be unbelievable to the field that such a situation could exist.

"Very sincerely,

"J. V. DITTEMORE."

Mr. Thompson—Now, let us have the one of Aug. 21.

The Witness—May 27.

Mr. Thompson—I am speaking of letters not already in.

The Witness—I am not aware that this one is in—May 27.

Mr. Thompson—Here is the letter of May 27 which the witness speaks of as objectionable.

Mr. Whipple—May 27?

Mr. Thompson—May 27, 1918. "The Christian Science Board of Directors"—It is stamped, "Read May 28," and stamped, "Read June 20," stamped, "Read July 2," and it is stamped, "Received May 28." It was received May 28 and read three times on different occasions, apparently. (Reading:)

"Boston, U. S. A.

"May 27, 1918.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I wish to modify and supplement my report of May 23 by the following recommendations in accordance with the vote of The Christian Science Board of Directors on April 25, 1918, which was a request that I should

'formulate and present to this board a plan designed to carry out and put into operation the recommendations made in his (my) letter of April 25 with regard to the improvement of the Christian Science periodicals':

"1st. That William P. McKenzie be reelected editor of The Christian Science Journal, Christian Science Sentinel, Der Herold der Christian Science, and Le Héraut de Christian Science for the coming year.

"2d. That an editorial organization committee be appointed by The Christian Science Board of Directors with authority to put into effect such changes as will bring about the improvements outlined in the report of May 23.

"3d. That this committee be composed of one director, one of the trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and the editor, Mr. McKenzie.

"4th. That Mr. McCrackan and Mrs. Knott be reelected as associate editors for the coming year, but that they be given ample time for their work of teaching and practice, with a view to making their service that of contributing editors one year hence, if such seems for the best interests of all concerned at that time.

"5th. That Samuel Greenwood be made a contributing editor for the coming year, such employment to include the writing of editorials and such other service for the upbuilding of the periodicals as he can render. This plan would not contemplate Mr. Greenwood removing to Boston for residence, but would probably necessitate two or three trips to Boston during the year.

"6th. That the following named persons serve as editorial assistants in such capacity as their talents would seem to justify: Mr. Theodore Stanger, Mr. Elisha B. Seeley, Mr. Samuel F. Swantees, Mrs. Caroline Getty.

"Respectfully submitted,

"J. V. DITTEMORE."

"JVD-L"

[Letter as read by Mr. Thompson. Dittmore to Christian Science Board of Directors, May 27, 1918, marked Exhibit 696.]

Q. Now August 21, please. A. Before that there is August 15.

Q. All right, let us have the original. A. I would like to ask when you read that that you leave the names of the persons out.

Q. No matter about that, sir. I want the letter, the one I asked you for. I have asked you a question and you are answering it.

Mr. Krauthoff—August 15, 1918?

Mr. Bates—Does Your Honor not think that that is a proper request for the witness to make, at least for Your Honor's determination as to whether or not the names shall be read in an instrument?

Mr. Thompson — My impression is that before I consent to suppress testimony I will have to look at it.

Mr. Bates—My impression is, that you have no right to treat a witness in that way. He has a right to call to the attention of the Court that there are names of private parties in the document—

The Master—That would be in accordance with our practice so far in examination. Have you produced the letter?

Mr. Thompson—I haven't seen it, sir. When I have seen it I will be in a position to produce it.

The Master—You have asked for it.

Mr. Thompson—I have asked for it. He is talking about letters which he regarded as objectionable.

The Master—That is all.

Mr. Thompson—I asked him to produce them.

The Master—I understand.

Mr. Thompson—I do not feel kindly toward suppressing any part of letters which I am charged with having written and which are said to be objectionable.

The Master—No, but so far in reading these letters on numerous occasions names have been omitted by general consent.

Mr. Thompson—Very well, sir.

The Master—I cannot regard it as unreasonable for the witness to inquire whether that is to obtain on this occasion.

Mr. Thompson—Perhaps when I see the letter I shall be in a better position to answer the inquiry.

Mr. Abbott—Here is a copy. We haven't found the original yet.

The Master—It does not seem to me that you can call the omission of names under such circumstances "suppressing testimony."

Mr. Thompson—I cannot tell, sir, till I see it. He is accusing me of writing objectionable letters. Perhaps the very thing he objects to would turn out not to be objectionable if the names were disclosed. I cannot tell till I have seen it.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I submit a copy to Your Honor (handing letter to the Master)? Our request is that the names be not read in the court room, nor, of course, printed in the record.

Mr. Thompson—It is perfectly obvious that the name here should not be disclosed. I should not have disclosed it anyway without any request from the witness.

Mr. Abbott—Here is the original (handing paper to Mr. Thompson).

The Master—There is no occasion, then, for any controversy about it, I suppose.

Mr. Thompson—None whatever. This that they have handed me is apparently a pencil memorandum, afterwards typewritten by somebody. The pencil memorandum contains many erasures and I am trying to find out whether the typewritten copy is a copy as erased or not. Apparently it was not a letter in the real sense of the term at all.

Mr. Abbott—This seems to be all right.

Mr. Thompson—This is a document not addressed to anybody, marked "Copy," and Mr. Dittemore has the original in his pencil handwriting, dated Boston, Aug. 15, 1918, and the original stamped "Read Aug. 19, 1918," and "Received Aug. 19." (Reading)

[Copy of Exhibit 697]

"Boston, Aug. 15, 1918.

"In reply to the request of the chairman that I state my reasons for not voting in favor of sending to Mr. [blank] the further letter approved by the board and sent to him today, I will say that my reasons include the following:

"1. I do not believe that this matter has been or is being handled for the good of either the C. S. movement or of Mr. [blank].

"2. I have never heard of misconduct by Mr. [blank] except from members of this board or from those to whom members of this board have talked or been in communication with. Therefore I am not convinced that the course of the board in this matter is being forced by the demands of the field as is claimed.

"3. This board investigated the alleged slanderous charges of Mrs. [blank] against her husband a number of months ago and exonerated Mr. [blank]. So far as I have been made aware the charges which have been pursued against Mr. [blank] since the last annual meeting are substantially the same charges except the claim of unsatisfactory work in connection with his duties as an editor.

"4. I do not agree with the charge that Mr. [blank] work as an editor is unsatisfactory or inconsequential, on the contrary I am convinced that his services have been and are of a value to the cause of C. S. which cannot easily be overestimated.

"5. No member of The Mother Church values personal purity more than I and until the claim has been put into circulation in Boston within the past few weeks that I approve of free love and therefore 'support' Mr. [blank], neither Mrs. [blank], nor I have had such a claim to face in our entire previous experience as Christian Scientists.

"6. I consider the methods employed in this case by the board and by its 'investigating committee' to have been foreign to the just and compassionate teachings of C. S. I consider the many declarations and suggestions, by members of this board that Mr. [blank] is mentally unbalanced to have constituted mental malpractice.

"7. If no reasons based upon C. S. teachings had obtained, I would still have objected to the letters that have been sent to Mr. [blank] on the purely human ground that they are libelous and I know of no evidence sufficient to constitute a successful defense in an action for libel against the members of this board.

"JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

[The pencil memorandum in handwriting of Mr. Dittemore, dated Aug. 15, 1918, as read by Mr. Thompson, marked Exhibit 697; typewritten copy thereof marked Exhibit 697a.]

Q. Now, you have another one you thought was objectionable,—Aug. 21? A. There is another one, Mr. Thompson, dated Aug. 19, from Mr. Dittemore.

Q. All right. Let us have them all—all the objectionable communications in writing we want to have now. We want to know the worst.

Mr. Krauthoff—Aug. 19?

Mr. Thompson—If you will only let me have them quickly.

Mr. Krauthoff—We are finding them as rapidly as we can.

Mr. Thompson—I want to save time.

Mr. Krauthoff—Have you in mind the subject, Mr. Dickey, when you said Aug. 19?

The Witness—Yes, on the subject of the chairman authorizing Mr. Merritt to withdraw a memorandum after he had handed it to him.

Mr. Thompson—Who is testifying now? Are you asking questions?

Mr. Krauthoff—I was asking Mr. Dickey what the memorandum of Aug. 19, 1918, was.

Mr. Thompson—I am cross-examining the witness.

Mr. Krauthoff—I shall be very glad to take Your Honor's direction. I had not thought it was proper to speak to a witness privately while he was on the stand.

Mr. Thompson—It is not proper; the proper way would have been to talk to me and I would have taken the matter up with the witness. But as long as you want to talk to him, go ahead and do it.

[Paper handed by Mr. Krauthoff to Mr. Thompson.]

Mr. Thompson—Here is a document in the form of a pencil memorandum stamped "Received August 19, 1918," "Read August 20," and "Read August 19." It is not addressed to anybody. It is in Mr. Dittemore's handwriting. (Reading:)

"In response to the inquiry of the chairman as to whether there were any corrections or alterations to the minutes of the meeting of Aug. 13th, I respectfully state that the following addition is necessary before the minutes will correctly record the said meeting.

"Mr. Merritt presented to the board and read a draft of a letter which he proposed for the board to send to Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear in answer to her communication of July 20, 1918. This letter was filed with the secretary who was later instructed to include it with other items to be sent to Judge Smith for his information in connection with Mrs. Longyear's relations to the historical work of The Mother Church.

"Boston, Aug. 14, 1918.

"JOHN V. DITTEMORE."

Then comes the following:

"I wish to file a protest against the unprecedented irregular and illegal action of the chairman of this board in permitting an important document, a draft of a letter presented and read to the Board at its regular meeting of Aug. 13th by Mr. Merritt and filed with the secretary of the board, to be removed from the custody of the board without any copy of it being kept, thereby preventing a most important piece of evidence, on one of the most vital matters connected with the cause of Christian Science, and a matter which the board then had and now has under consideration, from being available in the consideration of the said matter.

"JOHN V. DITTEMORE.

"Boston, Aug. 14, 1918."

On the margin is written in blue pencil, in a handwriting which I understand to be that of Mr. Dickey and will suppose to be unless he corrects it, the following:

"The Chair rules that this be filed but not spread upon the minutes. Aug. 20, 1918."

Q. That is your handwriting, isn't it, on the margin? A. I haven't seen it, sir.

Q. All right. (Handing paper to witness.) I will show it to you. Will you kindly look at this writing in blue pencil on the margin and state whether it is yours or not? Yes or no. Will you look at it? Can't you read it? A. I think that is mine.

[Pencil memorandum in Mr. Dittimore's handwriting, dated August 14, 1918, as read by Mr. Thompson, marked Exhibit 698.]

Q. Now have you got any other letters? A. August 21 there is a memorandum.

Q. Well, let us have that. I have been calling for that letter, I think, now, about 20 minutes.

Mr. Krauthoff—Would Mr. Thompson be good enough to inquire of the witness as to the subject? It is more easily located in that way.

Q. Do you remember what the subject of the letter of August 21 was? Yes or no? Mr. Dickey? A. It was an objection—

Q. I haven't asked you what it was. Do you remember affirmatively as you sit there what it was? Yes or no. A. I do know what it was.

Q. What was the subject of it? A. An objection to the ruling of the Chair.

Mr. Thompson—Very well. (To Mr. Krauthoff.) Does that help you to get it?

The Witness—Dated Aug. 21.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I suggest to Mr. Thompson that he go on until we do find it? Miss Warren is looking for it.

Q. Do you think of any other letter—if so, what is the date of it—of an objectionable character from your standpoint, written by Mr. Dittimore to that board? Yes or no. A. At this point all of Mr. Dittimore's letters—

Mr. Thompson—One moment. I ask that that be struck out.

The Master—No. Any other single letter.

Q. If you will give strict attention to the question. A. I shall have to go through them, then, because we received a great number of letters.

Mr. Thompson—I ask that that be stricken out.

Q. I haven't asked you that, sir. If you can't answer the question, all you have to do is to state that. A. I can't answer that question, Mr. Thompson, in the way you put it.

Q. Can you now as you sit there from memory think of any other letter, either by subject or date or any other method of indication, which you regarded as particularly objectionable? Yes or no. A. I cannot at this moment recall—

Q. Very well. Now you have answered the question. The great subject of controversy between the directors and the trustees was whether or not, to put it in a word—will you give attention, please, to my question? A. I think there is a question still unanswered that you asked me.

Q. I don't think of any, sir. A. I remember—

Mr. Thompson—No matter. Go right ahead. I ask that the witness be checked.

The Witness—You asked me what I objected to in Mr. Dittimore's letters, and these letters were brought forth for the purpose—

Q. I haven't asked you that. That question is not before you at all. You have counsel here. Kindly maintain the position of witness and not of counsel. I will ask you to give attention to the question. The principal subject of controversy between these directors and these trustees was whether the directors had supervisory power over the general activities of the trustees, or not, was it not, sir? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from the beginning to the end you maintained that they had, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you regarded that contention as essential to the maintenance of the unity of this Church, did you not? A. Well, I didn't regard the contention as essential.

Q. The claim, the position, the proposition, or whatever you call it? A. I regarded the fact as essential.

Q. You regarded the maintenance of—we will call it that truth as essential. did you not; any attack on that you thought would be injurious, seriously, to the Christian Science Church? A. I thought it would be injurious seriously, yes.

Q. You have answered the question. And Mr. Dittimore thought so, too, didn't he? A. I believe that he did.

Q. Yes. Now from time to time you made many personal efforts to see if you could not be the means of reaching some solution of this controversy between the two bodies, did you not? A. I did.

Q. They included interviews with individual members of the trustees, did they not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also with the trustees as a whole? A. Yes.

Q. Among those interviews was an interview with Mr. Eustace and others concerning Mr. Dittimore's memorandum of February, 1916, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Which you have already described? A. Yes.

Mr. Thompson—Will you let me have that paper with Mr. Dittimore's marks on it, the Dittimore memorandum as marked up at that conference of the trustees?

[Exhibit 680 produced.]

Q. You remember this paper, Exhibit 680, don't you, that you have already testified about? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Marked with your handwriting on the margin. How long do you think, approximately, was the interview at which you discussed this paper with the trustees? I do not care for the exact time; was it 10 minutes or an hour and a half? A. Probably an hour and a half.

Q. That was time enough to go over every one of these propositions with very great care and attention, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And each one was gone over? A. It was.

Q. Both by you and by Mr. Eustace speaking for the trustees? A. We did it all together.

Q. You did it all together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Eustace do most of the talking on behalf of the trustees? A. He did.

Q. He made some suggestions for changes in phraseology, did he not? A. He did.

Q. You made some, too, didn't you? A. I did.

Q. He agreed to some of your changes, didn't he? A. He did.

Q. You agreed to some of his, didn't you? A. I did.

Q. And some of the statements in this memorandum were entirely eliminated, weren't they? A. Yes.

Q. Did he agree to that? A. He did.

Q. He agreed to it? A. Yes. Now, I would like to qualify that, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—I do not want any qualification; I ask you to keep to the question and answer.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

Mr. Thompson—One moment; he has not any right to qualify the answer whatever.

Mr. Krauthoff—We protest that the witness has the right to explain his answer after he said that he agreed. He has the right to do it now.

The Master—No, not necessarily at the moment. If it is objected to by Mr. Thompson I shall have to let Mr. Thompson continue.

Q. When you had this conference with these trustees you were of course acting in good faith, were you not?

A. Surely.

Q. You were not going there for the purpose of misleading these trustees, were you? A. Not by any means.

Q. You were going there in an honest, sincere attempt to see if by changes in phraseology, by eliminating matters which seemed to them peculiarly objectionable and to you not very important, you could not reach a document which you would be personally willing to recommend, were you not? A. No; that was not the case.

Q. Did you give these trustees to understand when you talked with them about changes, especially about changes that they suggested, that when you assented to a change in phraseology suggested by Mr. Eustace you would decline to recommend that to your directors? I want that answered categorically yes or no.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, we object to that question, because it assumes a state of facts, upon which the evidence is not in.

Mr. Thompson—I have assumed absolutely nothing, sir. And you have no right to interrupt my cross-examination of this witness and coach your witness.

Mr. Krauthoff—I am not coaching my witness; I object to that statement.

Mr. Thompson—You are interrupting the moment the shoe begins to pinch; you have done it repeatedly throughout this case, and I am not going to stand for it.

The Master—I think Mr. Thompson is entitled to have an answer to that question.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I suggest the point of my objection?

The Master—You have stated it already, I think.

Mr. Krauthoff—I have not. Mr. Thompson interrupted me before I was able to say anything. The question assumes that Mr. Dickey assented to these changes.

Mr. Thompson—Now, if Your Honor please, that is very unfair. I am trying to do my duty to my client, and I can't do it if every time I put a question that is embarrassing to the witness this gentleman steps in and tells the witness what to say.

Mr. Krauthoff—Upon that, Mr. Thompson asked a question which the witness had not fully answered, and until that question is fully answered it cannot be assumed that Mr. Dickey assented to anything.

Mr. Thompson—I have not asked him to assent to anything, sir, and if you had listened to the question you would have found it out. I believe he did know it too.

The Master—I think Mr. Thompson is entitled to have the question answered. Proceed.

Mr. Thompson—I ask leave to proceed without interruption.

The Master—May I have the question, please?

Q. When you were talking during that hour and a half, or two hours, with these trustees about changes of phraseology, discussing this document word by word, or sentence by sentence, weighing in your mind the significance of the alterations suggested by Mr. Eustace and finally, in some particular cases, assenting and writing the word "Yes" opposite the suggestion made by him, which suggestion you had written in your own handwriting, did you, when writing that word "Yes" and when writing in his suggestion, tell him directly or indirectly that by so doing you did not mean to commit yourself even to recommending that to your Board of Trustees? I want that answered Yes or No. A. Not each time.

Q. No, very well. Did you, Mr. Dickey, at any time—please note this question— A. Yes, sir.

Q.—during that interview tell Mr. Eustace, not that you, of course, could not agree and bind your board—I am not asking you that—did you give him to understand fairly so that he, as a reasonable man, could know what you meant, that not only could you not bind your board by any of these "Yeses" that you wrote on this paper, but that you yourself were not even prepared to recommend to your board to accept these suggestions? I want it answered. A. I gave him strictly to understand that I could not recommend—

Q. So that—

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

The Master—Let him finish his answer.

Mr. Thompson—He has finished. He has answered that he gave him strictly to understand it.

The Witness—Gave him strictly to understand that I could not recommend.

Mr. Thompson—I ask that his answer be stricken out as not responsive, sir. The question was perfectly clear and definite, and he is evading.

Mr. Krauthoff—We ask that the intimation of counsel that the witness is evading the question be stricken out.

Mr. Thompson—Can't you let the cross-examination alone?

The Master—I think you are interrupting too much with the cross-examination. The answer may stand.

Mr. Thompson—Very well, sir.

The Master—Mr. Thompson may repeat his question and I want the witness to answer it categorically, yes or no.

Mr. Krauthoff—Without interruption by Mr. Thompson.

The Master—Without interruption by either party.

Mr. Thompson—Or by you.

Q. Now, will you listen to this question: when you were there during that time, talking with these men, talking with Mr. Eustace, and an occasion arose where a change of phraseology was suggested by him, discussed, and finally written in by you and the word "Yes" written on the margin, did you at any time, with reference to such a change, suggest to Mr. Eustace in any form of words, not that you could not agree on behalf of your board—that is not what I am asking—but that you would not even recommend it to your board? Yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. So that you mean to advise His Honor here and the rest of us that you spent an hour and a half carefully discussing changes with a view to reaching a solution of the difficulty, as you say, and informed your opponent that you were not bound even personally to suggest or even help along one bit the adoption of the changes that you were making on that document? Is that what you mean? A. You go further than I went.

Q. I think not. We will try it again. It is of some consequence, and I want you to listen to these questions and consider them carefully. A. If you would shorten your questions a little, Mr. Thompson—

Mr. Thompson—Wait a minute.

The Master—Yes, your questions are rather too long.

Mr. Thompson—I will make them shorter, sir.

Q. You went there, as you have stated, for the purpose of doing what you could to bring about a solution of a controversy, did you not? A. I did, indeed.

Q. You did indeed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you thought that what you were doing was assisting to that end, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Take a certain particular case where Mr. Eustace suggested a change in phraseology. Just look at that paper and point out one such case (handing paper to witness). A. The word "concurrently" you will find the first time it is used.

Q. I want you to point it out right on that paper. A. There is the word, the word "department."

Q. I want you to find the word that he suggested to be written in and that is written there in your handwriting if you can find it. A. That is what you just asked me, was it not?

Q. Yes. A. That is what I am telling you. This word "department" was deleted at Mr. Eustace's request.

Q. Yes. A. The word "function" was put in the margin with his consent.

Q. Who suggested the word "function"? A. I did.

Q. Well, find a word that he suggested and that you wrote in. A. Yes, sir. Here is the word—the words "written approval" were scratched out and the word "concurrent" put in at Mr. Eustace's request.

Q. He suggested the word, did he? A. Yes.

Q. And that is your handwriting, is it? A. Yes.

Q. Is it your understanding that at the time you wrote that word in, in accordance with Mr. Eustace's suggestion, he knew that you were not prepared to recommend to the Board of Directors that they should assent to that change? Yes or no. A. You are asking my understanding?

Q. I want you— A. I could not understand what he was thinking.

The Master—No, he did not ask you for your understanding, as I got it.

Mr. Thompson—No, sir.

The Witness—I beg Your Honor's pardon. May the question be repeated?

Mr. Thompson—We will strike it out.

The Witness—But that is true. You did ask me for my understanding.

Mr. Thompson—I don't care whether it is true or not. We won't delay that way.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please—

The Master—The question is, Did he, Mr. Eustace, understand?

The Witness—Please repeat the question.

Mr. Thompson—No matter; we won't discuss it. That is what was intended. If it was not, we will repeat it.

Mr. Krauthoff — If Your Honor please, I move that the statement of Mr. Thompson that the witness wanted delay and that Mr. Thompson would not have it, be stricken from the record as an unwarranted assumption on his part.

The Master—I think we will let that statement disappear from the record. I do not think it is necessary.

Q. Will you listen to this question? Take this word "concurrent" which was written in at Mr. Eustace's suggestion by you. When you wrote that word in, did you think any progress had been made in the solution of this difficulty? Yes or No. A. Very little.

Q. Did you think any at all had? A. Yes, but very little.

Q. Very little. The progress did not consist in the fact that you personally assented to that word, did it? A. Not altogether.

Q. Did it at all? A. To a very slight extent.

Q. Did you, as a matter of fact, personally assent to that word? A. No.

Q. Did you believe that it would be a good change? A. No.

Q. Did you think it was a bad change? A. I did not think it was impossible.

Q. Did you think it was a desirable change to make? A. No.

Q. Did you think it helped on the cause of settlement at all? A. Somewhat.

Q. Somewhat. Did you think it would have helped on that cause of settlement if Mr. Eustace had known that you were not prepared even to recommend it, let alone vote for it before that Board of Directors? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know. Do you believe that Mr. Eustace did so understand with reference to all these changes, whether suggested by you or by him, as to which "Yes" was written down on the margin? Do you think he did understand not merely that you were not even binding your directors but that you were not even personally going to recommend it to them? A. I don't know what he understood.

Q. Did you think if he had understood that that he would have spent an hour and a half with you in this laborious consideration of this paper? A. I couldn't tell you that.

Q. You never saw any sign, did you, that Mr. Eustace, whatever else he might be, was a fool? A. No.

Q. Why did you write "Yes" opposite these changes that were made on this paper? A. Because I was willing to take that as a basis so that I might know exactly what Mr. Eustace and his associates had in their thought with respect to an agreement which we might arrive at and present it to my associates.

Q. Did you want to have him know what you had in your thought when you wrote "Yes" there? Yes or No. A. I told him a great deal what was in my thoughts.

Q. I don't want that. I want a categorical answer. Did you intend by writing the word "Yes" opposite any of these changes that Mr. Eustace or his associates should find out or know or have reason to know what was in your thought? A. I was perfectly willing that they should know what was in my mind.

Q. Was it in your thought that these were desirable changes after you had written "Yes" on the paper? A. It was desirable for the purposes for which I wanted it.

Q. Was that purpose for the purpose of recommending it to your directors to be put through as a compromise? A. The purpose was only presenting it to them, not for recommending.

Q. By "presenting" do you mean physically handing the paper to three or four men? A. Yes.

Q. And nothing more? A. That is all I did.

Q. Do you mean anything more than that? Do you mean anything more than physically handing the paper? A. Of course, I could not hand it physically without doing some thinking.

Q. Do you mean by "presenting," Mr. Dickey, that you would present it to your directors in good faith as a basis arrived upon by you and these trustees, which, in your judgment, ought to be, or it was desirable should be, accepted by the directors? A. You have spoiled the question by asking what my judgment was.

Q. Never mind my spoiling the question. A. There are two questions involved in that one statement.

Q. We will take it back if it puzzles your acute mind. A. It does not puzzle me; it is perfectly clear what you want me to do.

Q. Is it? A. Yes.

Q. We will try it again. A. Yes.

Q. When you presented that paper to your directors, did you recommend at all directly or indirectly, that they adopt the changes? Yes or No. A. No.

Q. Did you ever tell Mr. Eustace that you would recommend them? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you give him to understand that you would recommend it? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you think that it was an honorable thing for you to go and deal with these trustees on a basis of reaching a settlement when you had in your mind not to be bound even to the extent of recommending what you were writing "Yes" against? A. I do.

Q. I just want to find out your sense of honor. A. I thought it was perfectly honorable and necessary.

Q. You have answered the question, and have made the necessary disclosure. Now, take the other conferences that you had with the trustees in reference to documents and papers in your efforts to reach a compromise in this case. You had other conferences, too, with them, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. They came to see you subsequently with a paper which they presented? A. Yes.

Q. That paper was gone over too, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And marks were made on the margin of that, too, weren't there? A. I didn't make them.

Q. Somebody did, didn't they? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know. The clauses were talked over, weren't they? A. Yes.

Q. And some sort of what we might call an agreement or understanding or meeting of minds was reached tentatively in regard to some of those papers, wasn't it? A. No, sir.

Q. No. No further even approximations to an agreement were ever reached after that conference between you and the trustees; is that right? A. No.

Q. Did it ever occur to you that one reason why your negotiations never went any further was that the trustees might have felt slightly aggrieved, perhaps, that you having spent this time, ostensibly trying to reach an agreement, it turned out you had not meant to agree in any sense of the word at all? A. No.

Q. You don't think so. Now, let us have that paper once more. I did not mean to give it back to you quite so soon. (To Mr. Krauthoff.) You have another memorandum or agreement on which some changes were made, which I think is the one I want now. (To the witness.) Now, calling your attention to Exhibit 681, marked "Read and discussed at meeting with trustees, March 10, 1919"—

The Master—Pardon me. What is this? Is this the letter you have been hunting for?

Mr. Thompson—No, sir, it is another paper entirely; it is Exhibit 681.

Q. You identify that as having been marked and seen by you before, do you? That has been in the case, I think. A. Yes.

Q. You were questioned about this paper, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. Whose handwriting are these pencil interlineations in? A. That is mine.

Q. Yours? A. Yes.

Q. Who made that erasure indication there, circular mark on the first page? A. It is very faint. I have to look at it.

Q. Very well. Take a look at it. A. What was it you wanted?

Q. Who made that mark around the words? A. I did.

Q. And there are one or two other such marks. Here is another one on the second page, with a delete mark there. Who made that? A. I did.

Q. You did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Those marks were made in connection with some talk between you and the trustees in reference to a compromise, were they not? A. Those marks were made for my own information.

Q. Who was present when they were made? A. All of the trustees and two of the directors besides myself.

Q. Where was it? In the directors' room? A. In the directors' room of The Mother Church.

Q. Did the trustees see you make these marks? A. I think they saw me writing. I don't know what they—

Q. Did they have any copy of the paper? A. No.

Q. Who drew this paper? Is this Judge Smith's memorandum? A. I believe now that it is.

Q. You think that is Judge Smith's. In what connection did you strike out the words "Mrs. Eddy" and write in the words "of Mrs. Eddy's published writings," and so on? A. That was the result of a discussion between the members of the Board of Directors and the trustees.

Q. What do you mean by the result of a discussion? What do you mean by that? A. I mean I wrote that down after finding out what the trustees thought ought to go in there instead of what was there.

Q. You mean to tell us that you wrote down something that you thought would be satisfactory to the trustees? A. That is what I said.

Q. That is what you said? A. Yes; for my own information.

Q. For your own information? A. Just for my own guidance.

Q. I am not asking for whose information it was, but I am asking under what circumstances it was written. You have told me— A. I wrote it under circumstances that I wanted it for my own information.

Q. That may all be. You told me you wrote it because, after discussing it, you thought it was satisfactory to these men? A. No.

Q. You thought it was unsatisfactory, did you? A. No. I wrote it for my own information as being an expression from them which they suggested ought to go in there.

Q. Did you give— A. I don't know whether they would have accepted that or not.

Q. Did you give any indication when you wrote that in as to whether or not it would be satisfactory to you? A. No.

Q. Are you sure? A. Sure; very sure about that.

Q. You did not give any of these three men, or any other men, to understand, either directly or indirectly, after the talk which led to the writing in of those words and the striking out of the other words, that you in any way or in any sense assented to that change? A. I did not in any way or sense or intimation or information.

Q. And you are prepared to stand on that answer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You understand the nature of an oath, of course, don't you? A. Well, I hope I do.

Q. You hope so; I think you ought to. The same is true as to the striking out marks here? A. Yes.

Q. You made those as the result of talk and otherwise which would indicate to you what you thought these men would agree to? A. Yes.

Q. So when you struck out these words referring to the trustees, "and they are subject to the general supervision of the Board of Directors in accordance with the provisions of the By-Laws and Trust Deed," you didn't mean by that striking out to indicate that under any circumstances you would agree to that, did you? A. Not by any means.

Q. You struck it out so that you might learn and keep in your memory, and not forget, that that was what these men wanted? Is that it? A. At that time.

Q. At that time. You thought you might possibly forget it? A. No, I did not think that at all.

Q. If you did not make a note of it? A. I didn't think that I might possibly forget it.

Q. But still you were not sure enough that you would remember it so but what you wanted to make it clear to your own mind that that would have to be struck out or else you would never satisfy these men? A. That doesn't describe the situation at all.

Q. Now, the striking out of that sentence, which you have already stated to me in the earlier part of your examination was the very heart of the whole controversy—does the striking out of that— A. I will have to see that again if it is the heart.

Q. You may look at it a little later, Mr. Dickey.

Mr. Bates—Let him see it now, if it is the heart.

Q. Does the striking out—

Mr. Bates—Let him look at it if you are going to ask a question about it.

Mr. Thompson—No, he won't look at it now—not on your life, Governor. That is too easy. We have had enough of this interfering with the cross-examination, both by the counsel and client.

Q. The striking out of that sentence in these words, "and they are subject to the general supervision of the Board of Directors in accordance with the provisions of the By-Laws and Trust Deed," did not indicate in the remotest way that under any circumstances whatever you would be prepared to assent to it, did it? A. No; and it is not stricken out, either.

Q. It has got a line around it and the mark "d" on the margin, hasn't it? A. That is true.

Q. That is the sign to strike out, isn't it? A. That is the sign for "delete," yes, sir.

Q. Now, I want to talk about something else for a little while, Mr. Dickey. A. Yes, sir.

The Master—I suggest if that other letter has been found that it would be well to complete that.

Mr. Thompson—I agree with that heartily. I think it is important, and I have been after the letter.

Mr. Krauthoff—If I may ask the witness for the memorandum to which he referred when he called attention to it we might be able to locate it. We have not been able to locate it.

Mr. Thompson—Mr. Dickey located it when he said, in answer to my question, it was something objectionable in the letter of Aug. 21. I would like to see it very much and see how objectionable it was.

Mr. Krauthoff—He said, if Your Honor please, it was an objection by Mr. Dittmore to a ruling of the Chair, as I recall it.

Mr. Thompson—Don't you recall that I asked him to produce all these letters which he regarded as objectionable, and this was one of them.

The Master—Oh, well, Mr. Krauthoff suggests that the witness says it was an objection by Mr. Dittmore to a ruling of the Chair.

Mr. Thompson—Certainly; that is true.

The Master—Perhaps that will help him find it.

Mr. Krauthoff—Can you describe it more fully?

The Master—No, I think that is enough for a description.

The Witness—I can tell something that I think will throw light on it.

Mr. Thompson—Then do it at the intermission and do not interrupt my cross-examination; let it go.

Q. The By-Laws of this Church contain various provisions for disciplining members, don't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You can discipline a single member, a simple member, and you can discipline a reader, lecturer, or various other officers of the Church, can't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If they do things that are not right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the By-Laws—I won't take time to go over them in detail, although I have them here and can do it if your memory is not fresh on them—it has been the practice under those By-Laws if a man is accused of any offense which seems to make discipline necessary, to call that man in and hear what he has got to say about it, hasn't it? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please.

Mr. Thompson—Well, the witness has answered.

Q. And that practice has been pretty invariably followed, hasn't it, by your Board of Directors? A. Yes.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please—

Mr. Thompson—What is the matter with you?

Mr. Krauthoff—Nothing whatever. If the witness will give me an opportunity—

Mr. Thompson—You are not affected by hypnosis, are you?

Mr. Krauthoff—I submit that I am entitled to present my objections without these remarks by Mr. Thompson being inflicted upon me.

Mr. Thompson—I don't think they will hurt you.

The Master—I think it is desirable in the highest degree to avoid interrupting a cross-examination; it requires a very serious reason to justify that.

Mr. Krauthoff—And I can only justify my interruption by being permitted to state my reasons accurately, and when that opportunity arises I will do it.

The Master—Proceed, Mr. Thompson.

Q. Approximately—I am not asking for exact figures—approximately how many cases of discipline have come before your Board of Directors in the manner I have indicated during the last three or four years?

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please, we object to that question for this reason. The plaintiff in this case complains of his dismissal as a member—

Mr. Thompson—Now, just see this.

Mr. Krauthoff—As a member of the Board of Directors, without notice and without hearing, under a clause of the Manual which applies only to a director—

Mr. Thompson—Now, just think of that.

The Master—One moment.

Mr. Krauthoff—With respect to which—

The Master—Let him finish. Is that all?

Mr. Krauthoff—Only one director has been dismissed. The practice of the board with respect to instances arising under other sections of the By-Laws can throw no light upon the controversy and is wholly irrelevant.

Mr. Thompson—Now, let me say—

The Master—Pause a moment. You needn't say anything, Mr. Thompson. To my mind that constitutes no objection whatever to the propriety of this question in cross-examination. Mr. Thompson may continue.

Q. Now will you tell me about how many cases of discipline of the kind I have indicated to you have come before your board during the last three or four years? I don't want the exact number. What is it, one or two? A. I haven't the remotest idea.

Q. Was it half a dozen? A. More than that.

Q. Ten or 15, 20, roughly? One hundred? Put it somewhere. A. Oh, wait just a moment.

Q. I don't care for exactness. A. Over 15 or 20, I should say.

Q. That will do, that is all right; that is good enough. A. But perhaps that is a high number, it may not have been that many.

Q. Mr. Dittmore suggests it was nearly a hundred. Do you think that corresponds to your recollection? A. Well, I wouldn't think so, no.

Q. Well, along somewhere 15, 20, something like that, you think? It doesn't make much difference. More than one, anyway? A. In how long a time did you say?

Q. Three or four years. I am not trying for exactness now. A. I can only make a guess, Mr. Thompson, because I didn't do anything at all to keep track of those things. It may be between 20 or 30.

Q. That would be your best recollection at the present moment? A. I think that would be a fair estimate without any data.

Q. Very well. Now, among those cases of discipline were there any lecturers, that occur to you now? A. Yes.

Q. Were there any church readers? A. I don't remember any readers.

Q. Do you remember in all your experience as a director ever having occasion to discipline a church reader? I don't care who it was, I won't bother with that. A. Possibly the reader of a branch church, but not a reader of The Mother Church.

Q. A reader of some branch church? A. I say perhaps, because a man might have been brought in—

Q. No. All I want is just a definite answer, yes or no, to it. Do you remember ever having occasion before this to declare a vacancy on the Board of Trustees while you were on the Board of Directors? A. No, sir.

Q. While you were on the Board of Directors did you ever have occasion before to vote on a motion to dismiss a member of the board—yes or no—before March 17? A. Board of Directors?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. When you discipline a member of the Church for violation of the By-Laws, or discipline a reader or lecturer or whatever it may be, you do it frequently, don't you, on complaint made by somebody? A. Yes.

Q. And when a person makes a complaint you require him to state in substance, in intelligible form, what it is he is complaining of, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. Then you are not satisfied to discipline a man, eject a man from the Church, merely on the unsupported statement of somebody else, are you? You want to hear the man orally, don't you—the complainant? A. There have been cases where we have taken action without hearings from the man.

Q. But generally you expect that it is a fair thing and just thing, before you take such a serious step as to expel a person from the Church, to give that person a chance personally to come before you and explain away the charges made against him, whether true or false, don't you? A. Yes. I don't remember of ever having taken that action.

Q. But that would be consistent with your notion of fair dealing, wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And that would be so however humble the individual was who was before you for discipline, wouldn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Thompson—Now, with the intimation of Mr. Krauthoff I will suggest, if Your Honor please, that it is about time for the intermission, and perhaps I can get along better if we should take it now.

The Master—If that is agreeable to everybody we will pause here for a few minutes.

[Short Recess]

Mr. Thompson—I am handed a paper which is said to be the memorandum of Aug. 21; the memorandum that I have been calling for.

Q. It was the practice of your board to put a stamp on all letters or documents filed with your board, was it not, indicating that they had been filed? A. Yes.

Q. And if they were read it was the practice to put a stamp on indicating that they had been read, and the date thereof.

The Master—I think we have already had that.

Mr. Thompson—Yes.

The Witness—Of recent years that was true.

Q. Now this document handed to me of Aug. 21, 1918, I observe has no stamps of any kind upon it. Does that indicate anything as to whether it was or was not actually presented to the board? A. It was presented verbally to the board by Mr. Dittmore and afterward he gave it to me in writing in confirmation of what he stated verbally.

Q. Did it ever become part of the records of the board? A. No.

Mr. Thompson—I will read it just the same:

[Copy of Exhibit 699.]

Memorandum

"August 21, 1918.

"My objection to the ruling of the Chair, a copy of which was handed to me, is as follows:

"That, although the Chair might rule that my answers to its question requesting my reasons for not voting in favor of sending a certain letter to (Blank), it is not within the province of the Chair, under any rules of parliamentary procedure, with which I am familiar, for the Chair to pass judgment on the validity or propriety of my reply or to make his ruling the opportunity for presenting the personal opinions contained in the last sentence of his said ruling."

[Memorandum as read by Mr. Thompson, dated Aug. 21, 1918, marked Exhibit 699.]

The Witness—In looking for that I also found some others, Mr. Thompson.

Q. Let us have them, if you can produce them quickly. A. All the letters which Mr. Dittmore wrote to us were objectionable.

Mr. Thompson—You have said that three or four times.

The Witness—I would like to—

Mr. Thompson—I ask that it be stricken out, sir; it doesn't answer any question.

The Witness—You asked me what other letters I have found that were objectionable. I have found a great many.

Q. And you took that occasion to put in an answer which three times had been ruled out by the Court, and which you knew was improper, didn't you? A. I thought I had a right to give you all the letters that you called for.

Q. You knew that what I asked you for, with an emphasis that could not be misunderstood even by you, was for you to identify any letter now stuck out in your mind as particularly objectionable; you knew that perfectly well, didn't you? A. I—

Q. Yes or no, Mr. Dickey. Didn't you so understand my inquiry? A. I didn't understand that I had to do it on the spur of the moment.

Q. The spur of the moment doesn't include five or 10 minutes' intermission, does it? A. No, but I have them now.

Q. Didn't you understand that perfectly well? Let us have an understanding here now. Didn't you know as a matter of fact that what I was calling for was particular letters that you now remember to have been objectionable? Didn't you know that that was what I was calling for? A. That is true.

Q. Very well. Now stop right there; you have answered that question. Did you think after you had produced this letter of March 21 that it was proper for you to go on and say that all Mr. Dittmore's letters were objectionable? Did you think that was proper?

The Master—Do you mean March 21? Mr. Thompson—Aug. 21, I think it was.

The Master—You said March.

A. In answer to your previous question, yes.

Q. You thought it was proper? A. I did.

Q. Although you knew that no question had been put that called for that answer, and after it had been once or twice stricken out when you had volunteered it? A. I did not know it had been stricken out.

Q. Very well. A. Mr. Thompson, you haven't given me a chance.

The Master—I think you will have to pause there.

Mr. Thompson—Strike that out.

Q. Have you ever been on the witness stand before? A. I think once, a great many years ago.

Q. Have you ever heard that it was the duty of a witness to listen to a question before he answers it?

The Master—I do not think we had better go into that, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—Very well, sir.

The Witness—My common sense would tell me that.

The Master—Strike that out.

Q. Now take this document of Aug. 21. Do you remember this meeting of Aug. 21 at which this controversy arose? A. I do remember—

Q. You remember—very well, you have answered it. You remember Mr. Dittmore, in the course of the protest that he made against certain actions of yours as chairman, using the word "Prussian"? Yes or no. A. Oppression?

Q. No, Prussian, Prussian; German—Prussia. A. Prussian?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, yes, he used that many times.

Q. Very well; you remember it. That is all I am asking. A. Yes.

Q. And he used it with reference to certain action of yours as chairman which he regarded as improper, didn't he? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Dittmore protested against any other language of yours at that meeting, Mr. Dickey? A. No.

Q. Do you remember any joke that you made at that meeting at which he protested as being improper for any gentleman to make anywhere? Yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember that the joke you then made was a lewd and lascivious remark? A. No, sir.

Q. You remember that it was a joke no woman could hear and stand without a blush? Yes or no. A. No.

Q. You remember that Mr. Dittmore protested, not once but many times, against your habit of lewd and nasty conversation in these meetings? A. That is absolutely false and untrue.

Q. All you have to do is to say No. A. Well, I want to emphasize it.

Q. Your emphasis will be duly noted, sir. Just answer No. It is not the fact, is it, Mr. Dickey, that the real cause of this ousting of Mr. Dittmore had nothing to do with the controversy between the directors and trustees? That is not true, is it? A. That was one of the things, Mr. Thompson, in connection with the others.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Dickey, that Mr. Dittmore's attitude, the principles for which he stood in this controversy between these two boards, had nothing whatever to do with his dismissal from that board? Isn't that the honest truth, sir? A. I don't think Mr. Dittmore was standing for principle at all.

Q. Can't you answer that, sir? A. I can't. I would like to hear it again, if you please.

Q. All you have got to do is to say so if you can't answer it. A. Please restate the question. I will try to answer every question you put.

Q. All you have got to do is to say so. I will put it again and I don't want explanation, I want a categorical answer Yes or No. A. Yes, sir, I will give it to you.

Q. Isn't it the truth, sir, that the position that Mr. Dittmore took, the opinions he expressed as to what ought to be done in this controversy between these two boards, was not in any degree the cause that actuated his removal from that board? Yes or no. A. It was in some degree.

Q. Was it in any material degree, sir? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it a substantial reason for ejecting him from that board—the position that he took on that controversy? A. It was merely—

Q. You have answered it— A. (continued) —one of the many reasons.

Q. I don't want that, sir. I haven't asked one of the many reasons. I ask that that be struck out. It is important I get my answers straight. Isn't it—

Mr. Bates—I submit, may it please the Court—

The Master—That is equivalent to an answer, "It was," I think.

Mr. Bates—I want to submit, Your Honor—

The Master—I so take it—

Mr. Bates— —that Mr. Thompson is interrogating in regard to matters which we were not allowed to ask this witness in direct examination, notwithstanding my protest. Your Honor's ruling was that you would allow Mr. Thompson to proceed and see how far he ought to go. But Your Honor should have that in mind—

Mr. Thompson—There is no question before the Court now, Governor.

The Master—I don't know about that. If you are now cross-examining on something which I have forbidden the witness to be examined upon in direct, that is a matter to which counsel has a right to call my attention.

Mr. Thompson—I haven't put any question. He is arguing—

Mr. Bates—I am referring to all of these questions.

Mr. Thompson—They are all in. Your objection—

The Master—One moment. I want to get this straight.

Mr. Bates—I want to refer to it now in order that His Honor may recall the fact that he stated that no injustice would be done by this method of procedure. I stated that it was offering the opportunity to Mr. Thompson to cross-examine on matters which we had not been permitted to go into on direct.

The Master—What is it that you have not been permitted to go into?

Mr. Bates—Into any of these matters relating to the Dittimore case.

Mr. Thompson—Oh, they have all been gone into, Governor; you are mistaken.

Mr. Bates—All these subjects that you have brought up and these letters that you have put in today. I want to say, Your Honor, I will not object to its proceeding providing counsel conducts himself as counsel ought to. I have sat here and been outraged by his manner.

Mr. Thompson—You have!

Mr. Bates—He has not the manner of a counsel; he has not the manner except of a counsel in the police courts. There is no reason for treating a witness in the manner in which the counsel has done.

Mr. Thompson—That is right; that is good stuff, Governor.

Q. Now let us go back to this meeting of Aug. 21.

The Master—One moment. I do not quite see where you leave us. You tell me that I am permitting cross-examination on something that I restricted inquiry about on direct. I do not look at it in that way. I do not see that.

Mr. Bates—Your Honor would not allow us to take up the matter of the Dittimore case in the direct examination of this witness. Mr. Thompson is going into it in full.

The Master—The witness told the whole story, did he not?

Mr. Bates—Certainly not. There were many letters which we were going to put in that we were not allowed to put in.

The Master—I thought you went over the whole ground.

Mr. Thompson—He did, sir.

Mr. Bates—Only in regard to the Eustace case, Your Honor.

Mr. Thompson—Oh, that is not so.

Mr. Bates—Your Honor said that you thought we ought not to do that.

The Master—What they did in regard to Mr. Dittimore's dismissal was necessarily a part of the testimony in the Eustace case, was it not?

Mr. Bates—Certainly not. There were many things in the Dittimore case which showed the reasons that led up to Mr. Dittimore's dismissal which have not been put in evidence. It is drawn out particularly now by this statement.

The Master—Well, that may be true, but a great part of what is material in the Dittimore case has gone in, and properly gone in.

Mr. Bates—Some things have, but only so far as they were connected with the Eustace case. The matters which relate to Mr. Dittimore's dismissal, the various things which led up to it, have not been stated to Your Honor, and Mr. Dickey has not been inquired of regarding them.

The Master—Of course, counsel are only to cross-examine on what the witness has testified to.

Mr. Thompson—Why, if Your Honor please, I do not think Your Honor wants me to argue that. Governor Bates has seized this opportunity to revert to the original theoretical question that he has discussed five times already here, and each time it has been ruled against him. He has simply made this an occasion for reopening that question.

The Master—If it is nothing more than that I cannot forbid counsel to go on, Governor Bates.

Mr. Bates—Does Your Honor think that those personal questions which were asked Mr. Dickey a few moments ago had any relation to any matter concerning this case or anything that has gone in evidence.

Mr. Thompson—That was not the ruling, sir. Your Honor never ruled that I should be limited only to matters that had been gone into in the Eustace case, in the sense that they were matters that bore solely on the Eustace case. Your Honor said that you would put only one limitation on this cross-examination; if matters were brought up that had two characteristics—first, which bore only on the Dittimore case, and, secondly, which had not been in any way referred to in the previous examination—then you would consider whether you would exclude them. That is all you said, and I have lived right up to that ruling.

The Master—I think that must be so.

Mr. Bates—Your Honor's statement was:

"If he tries to extend the cross-examination beyond that point, if it should appear that any real injustice is going to be done by permitting him to do so, I will reserve the right to stop him at that point."

The Master—Yes.

Mr. Bates—I think that point, Your Honor, has been reached. He is attempting to confine this witness to his own interpretation of what actuated the witness. He assumes, for instance, in the last question, that the matter of Mr. Dittimore's dismissal was merely a matter concerning the dispute over the trustees. There were many disputes that we should have shown; we should have shown a constant hostile attitude on the part of—

Mr. Thompson—The Governor, I think, is forgetting that we are dealing here with a set of rules—rules of evidence, that there are traditional methods of putting questions, and it does not follow that the question ought to be objected to because you think the answer would not be favorable to your side.

Mr. Bates—I am perfectly satisfied with the answer.

The Master—I do not think that is a fair criticism of Governor Bates' objection. Your objection has not come until now, after most of what you object to has gone in.

Mr. Bates—No, Your Honor, I have stood it so long that I thought Your Honor would see where the injustice came about in allowing Mr. Thompson to cross-examine the witness on matters that we had not been allowed to examine him on in chief.

Mr. Thompson—That is your old point; you have raised it again and again.

Mr. Bates—Yes, and His Honor said if he saw an injustice was being done he would stop it.

Mr. Thompson—With great deference, Your Honor did not say that.

Mr. Bates—It is right here, and I have just read it from the record.

The Master—There is no doubt that I said what you read.

Mr. Thompson—Not in the sense that he puts it.

The Master—I am unable to see that any particular injustice is being done.

Mr. Bates—I cannot make it plainer, Your Honor, than that the injustice comes in allowing him to put words into the mouth of a witness in the form of a question, and then ask him yes or no, and various other ways, when the witness should be allowed first to have stated the situation as it is.

Mr. Thompson—I really do not think you appreciate the significance of cross-examination. It is customary, in my limited experience—some 30 years—in cross-examination to put a question in a leading form occasionally, and I never have heard it objected to on that ground.

Mr. Bates—If your cross-examination had been conducted in a dignified, calm manner, and had not exhibited so much nervousness and so much insistence that you should have an answer your own way, and to prevent the witness from making any explanation whatsoever, I would not have objected.

Mr. Thompson—Very well.

Mr. Bates—But when you are cross-examining a witness on matters which he has not been allowed to testify to first in chief, then it is proper that he should be given an opportunity to make the explanation as he goes along. If he is not, there is an injustice.

The Master—He will get a chance sooner or later to make any explanation that justice requires. You may be sure of that.

Mr. Thompson—It seems to me—

The Master—Pause one moment. You are aware, Governor Bates, no doubt, as we all are, of the practical impossibility of obliging, compelling, any counsel to change or modify his habitual manner of cross-examination—

Mr. Bates—That is one reason, Your Honor, why I thought it was better to have the examination in chief first.

The Master—And doing so results only in a waste of time, according to my experience. Of course that will all be duly weighed in considering the evidence, and in a hearing of this kind

I do not believe that any serious damage results to anybody. Now let Mr. Thompson go on and see if he is going to ask him anything that you object to.

Q. Mr. Dittmore at that meeting where you had the controversy and this memorandum was filed of Aug. 21, objected to certain jokes made by you and Mr. Merritt on the ground that they were vulgar, didn't he? Yes or No? A. He said—

The Master—Pause one moment. A. (Continued)—at that time—

The Master—Pause one moment before you answer. (To Mr. Bates.) Now take this—this is examination regarding what took place at a certain interview about which the witness has testified.

Mr. Bates—I do not object to that, Your Honor.

The Master—You do not object to it. Go on.

Q. I just want that answered yes or no—not whether it was true. A. He made an objection.

Q. On that ground? A. That is what he said.

Q. That is what he said. That is all I have asked you—not what the fact was, but what he said. A. I would like to tell you the joke if you would hear it.

Q. I doubt if you would care to tell the real joke; you would like to tell what you want us to believe was the joke.

The Master—As you are not asked to tell it, please remain silent about it until you are asked.

The Witness—Yes.

Q. Now coming back to these hearings. We were talking about discipline before the intermission. Do you remember? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you during the intermission talk with your counsel about the examination? A. Yes.

Q. Whom did you talk with? A. Mr. Krauthoff.

Q. Have you before going on the witness stand here gone over with your counsel the testimony you were going to give? A. I have gone over a great deal of it, yes.

The Master—Can't we assume that he has?

Mr. Thompson—Assume that he has.

Q. During the intermission you discussed with him the bearing of this question of discipline of directors and discipline of members, didn't you? A. No.

Q. Was anything said about a relation between disciplining and disciplining members? A. What he said to me—

Q. No, yes or no. A. No.

Q. That subject was not discussed between you and Mr. Krauthoff? A. Yes.

Q. It was? A. It was not.

Q. It was not. You have said that in disciplining ordinary members you gave them what we ordinarily call a hearing, usually, haven't you? A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever expelled a member of the Christian Science Church without giving him a hearing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many times, roughly—half a dozen? A. Three or four, perhaps.

Q. Three or four? Were those cases where the people asked for a hearing and you didn't give it to them? A. I think we have on some occasions.

Q. That is, there are cases where people— A. Yes; they are rare, however.

Q. There are rare occasions where people who were about to be expelled have asked you to give them a chance to be heard, and you have refused it? Is that so? A. No.

Q. That is, when they— A. Pardon me, let me explain. In one case a man was in the penitentiary, and we couldn't wait until he got out, so we couldn't give him a hearing.

Mr. Thompson—I ask that that be struck out.

The Master—Why isn't that a fair answer?

Mr. Thompson—I asked him whether there were any cases.

The Master—The answer, then, may stand; there was one case.

Mr. Thompson—There was one case.

Q. Was there ever any other case where a man wanted a hearing and you didn't give it to him? A. Not where he wanted a hearing and it was possible to give it to him, that we didn't give it to him.

Q. Was there ever any case where a man wanted a hearing and you expelled him without giving him a hearing? Yes or no. A. Not if it was possible at all to give it to him.

Q. I haven't asked that, sir. Whether it was possible or not, do you remember any case where your board has expelled a member of the Christian Science Church without in fact giving him a hearing where he wanted a hearing? Yes or no. No matter whether it was possible to give it or not. A. Yes, I think we did do that.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dittmore in any of these meetings in the period from February, 1916, down to March 17, 1919, ever raised in the board an objection to the practice of the board in reference to giving people hearings? Yes or no. A. That was not the practice.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Dittmore ever in the period from February, 1916, to March 17, 1919, raised in the board an objection to the methods of the board with respect to discipline? Yes or no. A. He wrote us a letter on that subject.

Q. Then you do remember such a case? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember more than one occasion when Mr. Dittmore, either orally or in writing, made such objections? A. I think he made two about the same time.

Q. Is that all you remember? A. He was on that particular line at that time. He made two.

Q. He made two? A. Yes.

Q. And the purport of those objections was that he thought the board was not trying the accused persons fairly, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And the reason he thought that they were not trying them fairly was that the board was not giving what he thought was a fair hearing to these people accused? Wasn't that it? A. I haven't the remotest idea what his reason was; I only know he did it.

Q. Then your answer is that you don't know what his reasons were? A. I do not know.

Q. What is your conception of a hearing in the sense of a fair hearing before you expel a person? What do you think that includes? What is a fair hearing in your estimation? A. I think that the accused should be given an opportunity to present his side of the case to those who are going to sit in judgment upon him, so that they may know all the facts when they are operating the discipline.

Q. It certainly, in your opinion, would not be characteristic of a fair hearing if the tribunal had made up its mind one way or the other before hearing a person, would it? A. No.

Q. An essential characteristic of a fair hearing, in your opinion, is that the tribunal should keep its mind open until it has heard the evidence? Isn't that so? A. Yes.

The Master—What do we gain by having the witness say all that? Do any of us disagree as to what is a fair hearing?

Mr. Thompson—Only on the question of good faith, if Your Honor please.

Q. How many days, roughly—I am not asking the exact number, but about how many days was it before March 17, in the year 1919, that you consulted Judge Smith in regard to the contemplated action of removing Mr. Dittmore?

Mr. Krauthoff—Now, if Your Honor please—

Mr. Thompson—That was gone into on direct, sir.

The Master—The witness certainly testified that Judge Smith was consulted.

Mr. Krauthoff—Not about removing Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Thompson—Yes, he did; he did.

Mr. Krauthoff—No. (After conference with associates.) I find I am in error about that.

The Witness—I think it must have been.

Mr. Krauthoff—It was on General Streeter's examination. He was asked about the removal of the trustees, but not the removal of Mr. Dittmore.

Mr. Thompson—The subject was gone into. I know that the matter was brought up sufficiently to justify this question about how many days.

Mr. Krauthoff—It has no relation whatever to the Eustace case.

Mr. Thompson—It has every relation to the Eustace case, because the same hearings were demanded by natural justice for Mr. Dittmore as were demanded by natural justice for Mr. Rowlands.

The Master—I am quite unable to see that. I think it has a fair relation to the Eustace case. He may fix the date if he can.

Mr. Thompson—I was not asking for the date, but approximately how many days before March 17, and during the year 1919, did you first consult Judge Smith in regard to the contemplated action of removing Mr. Dittmore?

The Witness—As nearly as I can estimate, about 730.

Q. I said, the year 1919—did you hear it? A. I don't know. I thought you asked me how many days prior to March 17, 1919.

Q. Wait a minute. Didn't you hear me say, how many days before March 17, and in the year 1919? I knew you wanted to do that, so that I put it "1919." Didn't you hear it? A. I don't know that I did just that way.

Q. Now, you hear it now, don't you? A. Yes, I do now.

Q. Now, answer it the way I put it. A. Well, that would include nearly all the days of 1919.

Q. That is what I want. That is, all the days, practically, of 1919, before March 17—I do not mean absolutely literally, but substantially all the days you were talking over with Judge Smith the possibility of ejecting Mr. Dittmore, were you? A. No, that was not your question as I understood it.

Q. Well, Mr. Dickey, will you kindly give attention to the language of my question and not to what you think you would like to answer? Now, please listen to the question. A. Yes, surely.

Q. Take the 1st of January, 1919. How long after that time was it, as nearly as you can remember that you first took up with Judge Smith, either orally or in writing, the question of the right of the Board of Directors to dismiss Mr. Dittmore? That is a plain question. A. Well, that was a question that we had decided long before that.

Q. I haven't asked you that, sir.

Mr. Thompson—I ask it be struck out.

The Master—Strike it out.

The Witness—Well—

Q. Can you answer it directly, or can't you? A. I will try to, yes.

Q. Don't try to put in something else, Mr. Dickey. A. No, I won't. I just want to give you an exact answer to your question.

Q. I don't want what you want to give me; I want a direct answer in reply to my question and nothing else. I will put the question again. Start with the date Jan. 1, 1919. A. Yes.

Q. How long after that date, or even on that day, was it that you began to talk, or did talk, whether you began or not, with Judge Smith about ejecting Mr. Dittmore? A. Probably 30.

Q. Thirty what? A. Days, after Jan. 1.

Q. That is, Feb. 1 you began to discuss that with Judge Smith, or that year? Is that it? A. We did not begin in that year. We discussed it in that year.

Q. Wait a minute; I didn't ask you that, sir. You know, don't you— A. No, I don't; I am trying to tell you just the exact truth.

Q. Are you? A. Yes, I surely am.

Q. Isn't what you are trying to tell me something that will help your case? A. Not by any means—

The Master—I think I would like to put in a question there, if I may.

Mr. Thompson—Very well, Your Honor.

The Master—When was your first talk with Judge Smith on that subject after Jan. 1, 1919?

The Witness—Probably 30 days after. I was away nearly all January and returned Jan. 21.

The Master—I did not want the last. You say probably about—

The Witness—Thirty days after Jan. 1.

Q. That will take it to about Feb. 1, won't it? A. Yes.

Q. And from that time on, until March 17, you were talking with him off and on about that subject, weren't you? A. To some extent, yes.

Q. And the same is true about the dismissal of Mr. Rowlands, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Did you during that time, from Feb. 1 up to March 17, tell Mr. Dittmore that you were talking over with Judge Smith the possibility of expelling him? A. No.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Rowlands during that time that you were talking over the possibility of expelling him? A. There was something said in one of our meetings—

Q. I didn't ask you that— A. —regarding the expelling of a member.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Rowlands—not some other member, but Mr. Rowlands, I mean—

The Master—If there was something said at a meeting where Mr. Rowlands was present, I suppose that is equivalent to telling him, isn't it?

Mr. Thompson—That is not what I am after.

Q. Did you ever bring it home to Mr. Rowlands personally, so that he would know? A. No.

Q. So that the fact is that you were holding the directors' meetings with Mr. Dittmore at least from Feb. 1, right along, and had in contemplation his dismissal from that board, and did not say a word to him about it? Is that so? A. I would not like to say "contemplation." We had it under consideration.

Q. Consideration? A. Yes.

Q. With that modification the answer would be "Yes," wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, there is one other subject I want to talk to you about a minute. Did you know that during that period from Feb. 1, 1919, up to March 17,

Judge Smith was constantly calling upon Mr. Dittmore personally and privately at his rooms and having friendly conversations with him? Did you know that? A. I knew that he had called some.

The Master—Did you know it or not?

Q. Did you know it or not? A. No, not constantly.

Q. Did you know that he was occasionally calling upon him and having these friendly conversations with him in his room? A. I knew he was calling on him; I didn't know whether the consultations were friendly or not.

Q. Did you ever get a report from Judge Smith of what was said at those private conversations in Mr. Dittmore's room? A. Yes.

Q. So that the real truth of the matter is, isn't it, Mr. Dickey, that you and some of your fellow directors—you, at least—had made up your minds along at least as early as Feb. 1 that it would be a good thing to get rid of Mr. Dittmore, and perhaps Mr. Rowlands also, that you were sending Judge Smith as an emissary, unknown to Mr. Dittmore, to pump him in his private room, that you were getting reports from Judge Smith about what Mr. Dittmore said, and that you were not telling Mr. Dittmore anything about it? That is a fact, isn't it?

The Master—One moment. I cannot permit that question, "to pump him in his private room." I don't think that is proper.

Mr. Thompson—I will take that out.

The Master—One moment. I think you will have to frame that question again.

Mr. Thompson—I will strike it out.

The Master—Try not to make it quite so long.

Q. You were sending Mr. Smith, or Judge Smith, as you call him, to Mr. Dittmore's room during the period Feb. 1 to March 17 to get information, weren't you? A. No, sir, not at all.

Q. You were receiving reports from Mr. Smith during the period Feb. 1 to March 17 about interviews that were taking place between him and Mr. Dittmore in Mr. Dittmore's private room, weren't you? A. No.

Q. Didn't you just say that Judge Smith was reporting to you conversations he had had— A. I said—

Q. Wait a minute—with Mr. Dittmore in his private room? A. I was not aware that I said so.

Q. If you did say that was it true? Was it true? A. Not in the way you are presenting it.

Q. Not in the way I mean it? A. No.

Q. In some other way? A. I would like to state what we did.

Q. You will have an ample opportunity to expatiate and expound to your heart's content a little later when your counsel gets hold of you. Did you know, during the period from February, 1916, down to March, 1917, there were various particular subjects under discussion between Mr. Dittmore and Mr. Eustace concerning possible improvements that might be made in the Publishing Society? I have not asked what they were. A. I think you said, 1917. Did you mean—

Q. 1916, down to 1919—down to March, 1919. A. Pardon me. I noticed that omission and I did not catch all of your question. Please repeat it.

Q. Now we have got it. A. Please repeat the question.

Q. Do you know that during the period from February, 1916, down to March, 1919, Mr. Dittmore was in conference from time to time with Mr. Eustace with reference to various possible improvements in the condition of the Publishing Society? I have not asked you what— A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't know it? Did you ever hear of any question raised between the two boards as to Mr. Eustace's correspondence with the field about Roman Catholics? A. Yes, in a certain connection.

Q. Did you know that Mr. Dittmore and Mr. Neal were appointed a committee to take that up with him? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever— A. Took—

Q. You have answered it. A. Not that particularly, Mr. Thompson; but to take everything up.

Q. To take everything up? A. Yes.

Q. To take all the matters that might come up between the boards up with Mr. Eustace? A. That is right.

Q. How long was Mr. Dittmore on that committee? A. A long time. I don't know exactly.

Q. When did he stop being on it? When you expelled him on March 17? A. No; I think he stopped quite a while before that.

Q. When was it? A. I don't know.

Q. Did he stop because he was forbidden by a vote of the board to do any more? A. No.

Q. Did he stop voluntarily, of his own accord? A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. You don't know how it happened? A. No; he never made a report.

Q. Very well, you have answered it. Did you know one of the subjects that was taken up between this committee and Mr. Eustace was the limitation of floor space for the sale of Mrs. Eddy's works? A. I don't know what he did, but I believe Mr. Dittmore made a statement of that kind to the—he made a complaint to the directors. I don't know what he did with Mr. Eustace.

Q. Did you know another subject that was taken up by that committee with Mr. Eustace was some conduct of Mr. Ogden's? A. I heard so.

Q. Did you know another question that was taken up between that committee and the trustees was the right of the directors to fix the limits of the salaries of the Publishing Society employees? A. We did not have a report from them, and I do not know what they took up.

Q. And did you know that another question—I say know—I mean, did you know either directly by letters or hearing— A. That was not reported on specifically.

Q. Wait a minute. I mean to include by "know" what was reported orally or what Mr. Dittmore may have told you. Now, with that in mind, answer the further question I will put: Did you know that committee took up with the trustees at some time during February the right of the directors to approve appointments to the Bible Lesson Committee? A. No, not specifically.

Q. Did you know that Mr. Dittmore from time to time was investigating Mr. Watts' treatment of the employees of the Publishing Society? A. I heard him say he was.

Q. Did you ever hear him present any letters to the directors that he had obtained from various gentlemen concerning that matter, or from women? A. Some of the ex-employees, you mean?

Q. Yes, and others. A. I think he did, but I don't know that the letter was presented to the board.

Q. I am not asking you that, Mr. Dickey. A. Am I asked if the letters were presented to the board?

Q. I did not ask who the letters were from.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please, he did ask him if he did not present letters from former employees complaining of Mr. Watts' treatment of them.

Mr. Thompson—I think I put in "ex-employees."

The Master—That would be my impression, but there are so many words and they come out so quickly in Mr. Thompson's questions that I can't be sure.

Mr. Thompson—I will make them slower.

The Master—It does not seem to me to be important enough to go back and read what was said.

Mr. Thompson—I do not think so. This is a matter we went over with Mr. Eustace—that is all.

Q. Did you know that another matter that was taken up from time to time was the matter of the Sentinel and the news articles in it—some objection had to them? A. I don't know that he took that up with the trustees.

Q. Did you know that he took up with them the question of The Monitor war relief fund? A. I do not recall that.

The Master—Why are these specific questions important in this connection?

Mr. Thompson—Only this, sir—

The Master—It has appeared that he knew a number of questions were taken up. Why isn't that as good as more?

Mr. Thompson—It might appear later if I should inquire of him if any difference of opinion developed between him and Mr. Dittmore upon any of these particular applications of the general theory of supremacy—we might get some light on what the real trouble was here. If Your Honor thinks, however, it is too much, I will stop it. I do not want to press it a single minute beyond what Your Honor thinks is proper or helpful. I had it in mind, however, and it seemed—

The Master—If you have any question where differences of opinion came up, can't you ask him directly about them without going through the whole list?

Mr. Thompson—Unless the question came up I don't know that there would be any difference of opinion.

Q. Did you know that there was at one time a question Mr. Dittmore was raising about the extravagance of the trustees? A. Yes, I think he mentioned that to the board.

Q. You have answered it. Did you find yourself differing with him in opinion on that subject? A. No.

Q. Do you remember a question that he raised about the trustees selling advertising space in The Monitor and not correctly representing the extent of the circulation? Do you remember that subject came up at one time? A. Yes, it did come up—I do not recall the circumstances.

Q. You have answered it. Did you find yourself differing in opinion with Mr. Dittmore on that subject? A. I did.

Q. You did? A. Yes.

Q. You thought they were not misrepresenting the circulation? A. I did not know whether they were or not, but I was not inclined to accept Mr. Dittmore's version of it.

Q. His figures? A. Yes.

Q. Did he show you any figures he had obtained? A. He read some figures.

Q. You thought they might not be accurate? A. I didn't know what they were.

Q. Of course Mr. Dittmore took a very decided position on the right of the directors to have the final say as to what went out as Christian Science literature, didn't he? A. Yes, he did.

Q. And you agreed with him on that, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. That was one of the fundamental issues, wasn't it? A. It was.

Q. And on this question of the power of the trustees to formulate rules for the recognition of practitioners' cards and church cards—you did not differ with him on that, did you? A. He did not differ with me, either.

Q. Well, that is right. And you did not differ with him, did you, on the point that if the trustees had prevailed on all these matters the unity of the Church would be greatly impaired? A. That was my opinion.

Q. And his too, wasn't it? A. I think it was.

Q. Now, did Mr. Dittmore ever raise in the directors' meetings the question of whether the affairs of the treasurer's office of this Church ought not to be investigated? Yes or no? I do not care what he said, did he raise that question? A. That was not just the way it came up. An investigation—

Q. Did he raise the question that there ought to be a better system of auditing and accounting in the treasurer's office? A. I think not, in just that way.

Mr. Krauthoff — If Your Honor please—

Q. Did he raise any question about the treasurer's office? A. Yes; he said something about it.

Mr. Thompson—That is all.

Cross-Examination on Behalf of the Trustees.

Q. (By Mr. Whipple.) Mr. Dickey, were you acquainted with Mr. Eustace before he became a member of the Board of Trustees? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long had you known him? A. Since—well, either 1900 or 1901.

Q. Where had you met him? A. I first met him in Boston.

Q. In 1900 or 1901? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How frequently did you see him after that until the date when he became a trustee? A. Not quite as often as once a year, but I saw him perhaps, in 10 years, six or eight times.

Q. The acquaintance was not enough so that you became what would be called friends, I take it? A. No, sir.

Q. But it was enough so that you had esteem and respect for him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he became a member of the Board of Trustees in 1912, which was a couple of years after you had gone onto the Board of Directors? A. Yes.

Q. When you heard of his election as a trustee you cordially approved it, did you not? A. I approved it.

Q. You felt a feeling of satisfaction that the appointment was a good one? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you had known Mr. Ogden before his appointment for a good many years? A. Before his appointment as what?

Q. As trustee. A. Yes. I knew him as the business manager of the publishing house.

Q. And in that capacity you had grown to have confidence in him and respect for him, had you not? A. I had.

Q. So that you felt a cordial approval when he was promoted and became a member of the Board of Trustees? A. I approved it.

Q. Did you have some mental reservation about it such as you indicated by your hesitation? A. No, I was just—I had no cause for making it quite so cordial as you have put it. It was an approval, however.

Q. Therefore there was what you might describe as possibly a slight mental reservation? A. His appointment was satisfactory to me.

Q. Had you known Mr. Rowlands before his appointment? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew something of his standing as a business man? A. Not personally, but I had heard something about his standing.

Q. Had you investigated? A. No, sir.

Q. Had you met him personally? A. Just very briefly.

Q. But you knew that he stood—or held a very high position in the business world? A. I didn't know anything about his position. I knew that he was in the lumber business and was looked upon as a successful man.

Q. As a successful business man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. One whom you thought would add strength to the board, as a business board? A. Yes, I thought that.

Q. Now, after the appointment of these gentlemen, say after the appointment of Mr. Eustace, the Board of Directors had offices which were not far from those of the Board of Trustees, did they not? A. No, that is not quite the case, Mr. Whipple.

Q. How far were they apart? A. Oh, 600 or 800 feet.

Q. Well, that isn't very far apart. A. Well, they are not in adjoining rooms or not in the same building. There are two streets and a park intervene between the offices.

Q. You are over on Huntington Avenue and the Christian Science publishing building is right adjoining the Mother Church? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. But of course after their appointment the Board of Trustees had a good deal of occasion to communicate with them as to matters having to do with the Publishing Society on a variety of matters? A. You mean communicate with the Board of Directors?

Q. With the Board of Trustees. A. I thought you said the Board of Trustees had occasion to communicate with them frequently, and I wanted to know if you meant the trustees communicated with the directors frequently.

Q. Well, I really meant the directors with the trustees. A. Yes.

Q. But I referred to intercommunication between the boards. A. Yes; there were frequent conferences.

Q. Now, you understood or claimed to be a member of the board representing the beneficiary of this trust of which Mr. Eustace and his associates were trustees, did you not? That is, The Mother Church was the beneficiary, and you as a member of the Board of Directors claimed to represent that beneficiary? A. Yes; but of course, The Mother Church was not the exclusive beneficiary.

Q. What other beneficiary was there of that trust, in your view? A. All Christian Scientists, people who might become interested in Christian Science, or readers of the publications of The Christian Science Publishing Society, became beneficiaries.

Q. So that in representing the Church you did not represent the sole beneficiary of that trust, as you viewed the matter? A. That is the way I looked upon it, yes, sir.

Q. But in a financial sense, that is, the sense of being a financial beneficiary, The Mother Church, or the treasurer of The Mother Church, was the beneficiary? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And of course as the Board of Directors of the Church, you felt a distinct interest in the success, in the financial success, of the administration of the trust? A. Well, our interest in the financial success was not as great as it was in the success of carrying out the purpose and object of the trust.

Q. You regarded that, namely, the work which they did in the spread of Christian Science, the spread of its doctrines, the more important part of the trust? A. That is true.

Q. And you were, as a board, more interested in that even than you were in the results of their financial administration? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But of course you were interested in that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, as to both matters, I suppose your interest was represented in inquiries that you made of the Board of Trustees? A. Yes, to some extent.

Q. Did you during the period from, say, 1912, when Mr. Eustace went on to the board, make inquiries of the Board of Trustees as to the administration of their trust in various matters and particulars? A. Well, it was not always directed as an inquiry, but as a matter of interest we did confer with them frequently and ask questions.

Q. I am now referring to the inquiries. While your communications did not consist entirely of inquiries, you did make inquiries? A. Yes, we did.

Q. And made them from time to time in order to ascertain what was being done in the administration of a trust in which you were so greatly interested? A. Yes.

Q. Now, was there ever an inquiry addressed to the board up to, say, the first of January, or up to the time of the discharge of Mr. Rowlands, or the attempted removal, that was not answered by the trustees fully and fairly? A. I think so, yes.

Q. I beg pardon? A. I think there was.

Q. When? When was it and what was it? A. With regard to the acceptance of the cards of Christian Science practitioners throughout the country.

Q. Was that in writing—this inquiry? A. No; I think that was mainly done in consultations and interviews with the trustees.

Q. I am talking about inquiries now. Who made the inquiry to which you refer, and of whom was the inquiry made? A. Well, by inquiry do you mean written inquiry, or verbal?

Q. No. You said there was no written inquiry that you made of the Board of Trustees that was not fully answered, as I understood you. That is so, is it? A. No, I didn't quite understand that, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, now, I will ask you. Was a written inquiry as to the administration of the trust addressed by the directors to the Board of Trustees, after 1912, and up to the time of this trouble—is there one that you carry in mind that was not satisfactorily answered? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Produce it, please, or a copy of it. A. Well, there is a resolution that we passed with regard to the salaries of the appointees—

Q. If you will pardon me, I am not asking about resolutions. I am asking about written inquiries addressed to the trustees. A. That was a written—

Q. Will you please produce, or identify so we can produce, any such written inquiry? A. I think our records will show that we made some inquiries.

Q. Well, pardon me, I am not concerned in what you think. I am concerned merely in your production of the paper which I have asked for. A. I will be glad to do that if I may consult our records.

Q. Certainly; you may ask any of the assistants that you have here to assist you in the production. Haven't you in mind the date of it? A. No, I have not.

Q. Can't you tell what year it was in? A. Yes, in 1919.

Q. What part of 1919? A. I think in February.

Q. In February? A. Yes. I believe that has been introduced in evidence, Mr. Whipple.

Q. That was after you had been advised by Governor Bates to make inquiries—make frequent inquiries? A. I think there were some before that, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, no; I am now talking about this particular one which you have identified as an inquiry about salaries. That was after Governor Bates instructed you or advised you that it would be, in substance, a good idea to ask a good many questions? A. Well, I am not quite clear as to that, whether it was after or before.

Q. Well, we have both of them recorded. I understand? A. Yes.

Q. Both your inquiries, a copy of which you are going to furnish us with, and we have recorded in your minutes when the Governor gave you this inquiry advice? A. Yes; I recall that.

Q. You recall that, do you? A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, are there any other written inquiries that you ever addressed to the Board of Trustees to which you did not receive an answer? A. I don't remember any now, unless they are in evidence in this case.

Q. You don't have in mind any? A. I don't recall any, no—no written inquiry.

Q. Have you requested anybody to make search for that paper which you have attempted to identify? A. No; I have not had an opportunity.

Mr. Whipple—I don't see any activity among your assistants or the attorneys in looking for it. Perhaps if you will stimulate them in some way we might get it.

Mr. Krauthoff—If Your Honor please with respect to that, the state of the records is such that we will make the examination at noon.

Mr. Whipple—Why not now? You seem to have several people there who might be looking for it. We don't like to postpone so many of these things and go back, if we can help it, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—I appreciate that.

Mr. Whipple—We like to have them in the record at the same time, and we like, to use a home phrase, to rake behind the cart as we go along.

Mr. Krauthoff—If we find any letter that we have addressed to the trustees that was not answered, between now and 2 o'clock, we will give it to you, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—Well, all right. Will you search for it in the meantime?

Mr. Krauthoff—Certainly.

Mr. Whipple—Why not go at it now, because I would like it before one, if I could?

Mr. Krauthoff—We will give it to you.

Mr. Whipple—I don't want to place too great a burden on you, Mr. Krauthoff, but with all your corps of assistants—

Mr. Krauthoff—Thank you.

Mr. Whipple—But if you could, without danger of sunstroke, or anything like that, I would be glad to have you.

Mr. Krauthoff—Your solicitude is appreciated.

Q. Now, I will ask you if any oral inquiries were addressed by you to any of the Board of Trustees during this period of time which were not answered? I mean, concerning the administration of that trust. A. I don't recall any, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Then, before we leave that subject, may we see if we are in a common understanding? From the time Mr. Eustace became a member of the board, up to the time of the attempted removal or proceeding for the removal of Mr. Rowlands, the board had never addressed any inquiry to the Board of Trustees with regard to the administration of their trust which was not replied to, except possibly a communication, which you have referred to, regarding salaries? A. I think there was quite a long communication or colloquy when we asked them what they paid their counsel. I don't recall that we got a reply to that.

Q. Yes, you did, if you will pardon me. A. Oh, well, then, I will accept that, but I didn't think it was satisfactory. There might have been a reply.

Q. They told you what they had paid their counsel, didn't they? A. My recollection is not that way, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—Well, now, I will ask you to produce that letter in which there was a reply from the trustees stating exactly what they had paid to their counsel. I trust that won't unduly burden you, Mr. Krauthoff—and get it before one, if you can.

Q. Well, now, this was contained in one letter, this question, or these two things, namely, the salaries of the Board of Trustees—oh, not the salaries of the trustees; the salaries of some of their employees. Was that what you inquired about? A. Yes.

Q. But aside from what is contained in that letter, it is true, is it not, that between the dates mentioned there was never an inquiry put by the directors or any of them to the trustees that was not answered? A. I don't recall any specific instance now, Mr. Whipple, that was not answered.

Q. And you can't remember whether that letter was answered in full or in part? A. I could not without consulting the records. The correspondence didn't pass through my hands, of course, you will understand.

Q. Well, I am asking you these questions hoping you will so verify the facts as to give us accurate statements? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you will endeavor to do so, will you not? A. Yes, indeed.

Q. Now, you put questions with regard to the financial administration of the trust, did you not? A. I think we did.

Q. And you received answers, did you not? A. I believe so.

Q. I am referring to the same period of time, and all my questions refer to that. A. Whatever the records show, Mr. Whipple, I will agree to.

Q. You naturally would. A. Yes.

Q. But I am now probing your memory. A. I see.

Q. And I want you to give us the benefit of your memory. Now, during this period of time—during the same period of time, the board made suggestions—the Board of Directors made suggestions to the trustees as to what they would like to have done, or what they would suggest being done from time to time, did they not? I mean, of practical administrative matters? A. Yes, they did.

Q. During this entire period? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, were those in writing? A. Some of them.

Q. Well, take first those in writing. Do you remember any such suggestions in writing as to the practical things to be done; actual things to be done that they did not comply with? A. I don't recall any now that they did not comply with.

Q. Exactly. Now, were there oral requests, or informal requests, or suggestions addressed to the trustees with regard to the administration of their trust during this period? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Several of them from time to time, were there not? A. Yes.

Q. Made in a spirit of friendly and harmonious cooperation? A. Yes.

Q. Were there any of those things, practical matters, actual matters, wherein or in respect to which these suggestions of the directors were not complied with? A. I think there were.

Q. Name one. A. The—

Q. Now, I want you first—I shall want you to tell who made the request; of whom the request was made, or to whom it was addressed, and the conversation about it. A. The trustees came to a meeting of the directors and asked them about a request that had come for changing the name of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Berlin, Germany. The German translation did not seem to be satisfactory to the Germans, and they wanted it changed. We recommended to the trustees that they make that change. I do not understand that they took our recommendation.

Q. Now, when was that? A. That might have been in 1917, or early in 1918, as nearly as I can place it.

Q. Of course it might have been most any time? A. No, it could not have been.

Q. But since you are testifying about it, I would like to have you identify it a little closer. Is there any record of it? A. I believe there is. There ought to be.

Q. Will you find out where in the record it is? Can you do it? A. I don't think I can. I am depending—

Q. Can you inspire or request any of your corps of assistants who are here to do it? A. That is one of the things they might look up, if they can find it. If they can't find it, I should take that as evidence that it was entirely an oral conversation that was not entered in the records.

Q. Of course you realize that that I didn't ask? A. No, that is true.

Q. The thing that I asked was whether it was not of such inconsequence, such an inconsequential matter, that it was not recorded? A. It must have been so considered then, Mr. Whipple, because it was not in the records.

Q. Yes, exactly. Now will you tell us another instance of that, an instance similar; an instance where a request was made to do a practical and real thing which was not complied with? A. I think that request that we had up at that time about putting the English words "Christian Science" and the translation in parentheses afterward, and thereafter in the pamphlet using the translated word. I think that was consequential.

Q. When did you discover that—these omissions, if there are any, to comply with the strict letter of that rule? When were you first advised of that? A. I think about 10 days or so, two weeks, possibly, ago.

Q. That is right. You had never heard of it before that? A. No.

Q. You had never heard of it until with the meticulous scrutiny— A. Well, pardon me; I had noticed it myself before that, Mr. Whipple, but made no complaint about it.

Q. I see. You made no complaint about it and had no real knowledge about it? A. Yes, sir; I had some knowledge about it.

Q. Did you know it had been done? A. I did, yes.

Q. But you made no complaint about it? A. No.

Q. But you approved of your counsel digging out that or investigating and bringing forward that matter as a real, purposeful refusal of the trustees to accept suggestions from the Board of Directors? A. No, I called attention of counsel—

Q. That is the only question: You did approve of your counsel doing it? A. Well, but I was going to tell you he didn't do it; but I did it.

Q. You are the one who was responsible? A. I am the man.

Q. Did you think it was pretty trivial? A. No, I didn't. I thought it was an indication of an unwillingness on the part of the trustees to carry out the request of the board; just an indifference.

Q. You made no complaint about it and didn't call it to their attention? A. No.

Q. But you thought while it was not of sufficient importance to call it to the attention of the trustees with a view to correcting it on the chance that it might be an inadvertence entirely—you thought it was of sufficient importance to call it to the attention of His Honor— A. I did.

Q. — in a solemn hearing? A. I did.

Q. And your counsel, if he did not approve, acquiesced in presenting those things which some might think were trivialities? A. I presume that is the fact.

Q. Yes. You couldn't say whether he approved or merely acquiesced. But to pursue the subject. Any other requests made by the Board of Directors of the trustees during this period, or suggestions made by the Board of Directors to the trustees during this period, or suggestions as to the administration of the trust, this great trust involving many millions of dollars, that they didn't comply with? A. Our committee—

Q. Oral ones; oral suggestions. A. A great many requests were made through the committee consisting of Mr. Dittmore and Mr. Neal.

Q. Well, are these things that you have any knowledge about? Because if you have not, we want to save something for Mr. Neal and Mr. Dittmore to testify. A. Yes.

Q. Have you personal knowledge of that? A. Not at this moment; I do not recall that.

Q. Have you any information about any of them? A. I believe I would be able to get the information before—

Q. They are so trivial in nature that, having the question put to you during the progress of this case and after you have prepared yourself for testimony, that you cannot remember one of them? That is so? A. I didn't prepare myself on that line, Mr. Whipple.

Q. That is, you didn't prepare yourself on the line of stating to the Court things that these trustees had done of which you did not approve—I mean actualities, real things, of the suggestions that you have made that they had not followed? You mean to say you did not prepare yourself on that? A. I did not individually prepare myself for that.

Q. And still there must have been a glimmering that some such thing as that was important if you brought out, what apparently everybody had forgotten, that in their foreign publications these gentlemen had violated or had not complied with your instruction, in that in one case at least they had put the English words before the German words or Dutch words rather than after? A. Left the foreign word out, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, in one case complained of by your client it was that they put the English word in front of the Dutch word when your instructions or suggestions were that it should have been behind it? A. I don't know what my client complained of.

Q. Well, he isn't your client— A. Well, you said—

Q. He passes as your attorney. Did I call him your client? A. Yes.

Q. I beg your pardon. I thought he was your attorney and it was my inadvertence. A. Yes, he is.

Q. Don't follow my inadvertences, Mr. Dickey. A. No, I shall not.

Q. That is right; I have no right to mislead you. I am trying to lead you in the right path. Now are there any other things of equal importance, requests that you can think of, oral requests that you made yourself or have any information about— A. Yes.

Q. —that you can name? A. Yes.

Q. You have evidently thought of something? A. In regard to the method of advertising practitioners and churches in The Christian Science Journal.

Q. When did you make that request? A. We made that a number of times, dating—

Q. When first? A. Dating back to perhaps 1914 or 1915.

Q. Any of them in writing? A. Not in writing.

Q. Did you ever make one of those requests personally? A. I did.

Q. To whom? A. To Mr. Eustace.

Q. When? A. I remember talking to Mr. Eustace in the lobby of the church.

Q. Oh; when you made the request or suggestion? A. When?

Q. Yes; not when you talked with him about it. A. Well, I had to talk to him to make it.

Q. That is right, but you might talk with him without making it. A. Yes.

Q. That is right. Now I want you to give us the talk when you made it. A. We are agreed on that, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, I was afraid we were not. A. Surely.

Q. To proceed. Please tell us the talk and the circumstances, because you see if we should not agree with you in memory we are entitled to know the time and place and what you claim was said. A. Well, it may be difficult for me to state the exact date. It was some time during 1917 or early in 1918, I think.

Q. Now won't you tell us what you said— A. Yes.

Q. —and who was present? A. He and I alone talked in the lobby of the church.

Q. Oh, it was an informal thing, then? A. Yes.

Q. You were not representing the board? A. Yes, I think that is what you asked me.

Q. You are quite right; I did ask you for it, but I was merely commenting on the fact that it turned out to have been informal. A. Yes.

Q. In the lobby of the church? A. Yes.

Q. Now, won't you tell us what you said to Mr. Eustace about that? A. Yes. I called his attention—

Q. Just tell us what you said.

The Master—Just say what you said.

A. I said, "Don't you think that you are carrying these inquiries to practitioners a little too far and making it difficult for them to get into the Journal?" Mr. Eustace said, "Why, no, I don't think we are." "Well," I said, "the directors are receiving letters from practitioners and people whose cards ought to be in the Journal, apparently, stating that they cannot get their cards admitted." I recall one instance, the organist of The Mother Church—

Q. To him? Is this what you said to Mr.— A. No, this I didn't say to him.

Q. Oh, I won't trouble you to tell anything except what you told Mr. Eustace. A. I did not refer to that one at that time to Mr. Eustace.

Q. Please finish the conversation which you say you had. A. Well, Mr. Eustace said he didn't think we were warranted in making that objection. "Well," I said, "you can think that over. I think it is quite a serious matter." I believe that was the substance of the conversation.

Q. That is all? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in point of fact, the matter of the cards, the inquiries made, the scrutiny into the character of the people applying—these questions were on blanks, were they not? A. Yes.

Q. Blanks that had been in use for a good many years had they not? A. No, that is not the case.

Q. Had they ever been approved by the Board of Directors? A. They had not.

Q. Are you quite sure of that? A. Yes, sir; that was one of the causes of our inquiry.

Q. But they had been in use for a good many years? A. No, they were comparatively new blanks that had been prepared.

Q. Well, now, when did you talk again with Mr. Eustace about that, or with any of the members of the Board of Trustees? A. That was at a meeting of the Board of Directors.

Q. Is it recorded? A. I am not sure that it is, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Not recorded? A. Probably not. We did not always record conversations.

Q. Evidently not. A. No.

Q. But one would think that complaints against the Board of Trustees of sufficient importance to be dignified in such a hearing as this might have found repose, or something else, in your records—found a place? A. Well, we did not advance these as complaints against them.

Q. Well, here is a suggestion. A. Yes.

Q. Who were present at the meeting of the Board of Directors at which this matter was again touched upon? A. The occasion—I don't know that I would say again, but the occasion that I am referring to was one on which Mr. Eustace and Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Hatten were present.

Q. I thought you said it was at a meeting of the Board of Directors? A. The Board of Directors, with the trustees present.

Q. Mr. Eustace, Mr. Hatten, and Mr. McKenzie— A. Yes, sir.

Q. —were then trustees? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That must have been before 1917? A. Yes, it was.

Q. Oh, you are working backward instead of forward? A. I am going back in this instance, yes, sir.

Q. Well, you see I asked you to give me the first time that you had ever spoken of it, and where it had been spoken of in a way that you had personal knowledge of, and you began with 1917. A. I gave you that individual instance at that time. There was another occasion.

Q. Yes; and now you are going back to a time prior to the time when Mr. Rowlands— A. Yes. Is that all right for me to go back?

Q. Yes, if you will only give us notice whether you are going back or forward, because we cannot always tell, you know, because you are so quick about it. A. You are not so slow, Mr. Whipple.

Q. No, I am trying to keep up with you, but you must give me fair notice, because I may be going ahead when you are going back. Now you have told us you were going back.

What is the date of it? A. I didn't tell you I was going back, but—

Q. Well, you indicated you were—I won't say crawl-fishing, but you were going back in point of date merely? A. That was an occasion—

Q. Tell us what the date was. A. That was perhaps early in 1917.

Q. Early? A. Yes.

Q. When Mr. Hatten and Mr. McKenzie were on the board? A. When they were on the board.

Q. On the board. Now who said something, and to whom did they address the remark? A. Mr. Stewart produced a letter from an acquaintance of his and read it, asked the trustees if they thought that their actions were justified in keeping this person out of the Journal, and at that time there was quite a lengthy discussion in which we all participated more or less. I know at that time that I made the statement that I thought the trustees were too drastic, and that they were merely keeping some people out of the Journal who should legitimately be there—

Q. Well, what did the spokesman of the trustees reply to that? A. Mr. Eustace defended the position of the trustees at that time.

Q. Well, perhaps so. Let us hear what he said, then we can tell. What did he say? A. I don't recall his words, Mr. Whipple; I don't think I can—

Q. Can you give us the substance of what he said? A. The substance of it was that their experience had made it necessary that these inquiries go into a great many details.

Q. Anything more than that? A. That is about along the line in which he talked.

Q. And in substance said he thought the trustees were performing their duty correctly, didn't he? A. Said they were doing what?

Q. He said he thought the trustees were performing their duties correctly, didn't he? A. Yes, he did.

Q. And Mr. Hatten and Mr. McKenzie, who were present—neither of them disagreed with him? A. I didn't hear them disagree.

Q. And you say that no change was made? A. I think that after several attempts on our part they did make a change.

Q. Oh, I see. I am asking you for instances where suggestions which you made were not complied with. A. Well, we made—

Q. And you are now giving it as an incident where your persuasive eloquence, or reasons, apparently resulted in your views being adopted? Am I right? Is that so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, then, you see you have answered with an entire misconception as to what my question was, because that is one of the instances where your suggestions were followed, isn't it? A. Yes, sir, eventually.

Q. Eventually, yes. Well, you see I was asking about changes where they were not. A. True enough.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Q. Were you so—I won't ask if you were hard pushed to it, but that was an inadvertence, wasn't it? How can you tell us any other suggestions the directors made during all this time that really were not complied with, that really were not approved and acted upon by people who were working to coordinate their activities in a friendly and kindly way with those of the directors? A. In the case of Mr. and Mrs. Norledge in Paris, France, the facts were that they had their cards in the Journal as practitioners, and—

Q. Now if you will pardon me, just state the request; just state the conversation. A. The request came that their cards should be placed in the French periodical corresponding to the Journal.

Q. Was this in writing, a request of the directors? A. I don't recall that it was, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, now, what is the date of it? A. That was a comparatively recent date. I am going forward now.

Q. Thank you for giving us notice. How recent? Since the suit started? A. No, before the suit.

Q. Well, when was it? A. Some time this year, in the early part of this year.

Q. Was it made a matter of record? A. That I do not recall. I think that is of record, Mr. Whipple.

Q. And in looking up these matters to testify as to things which the trustees had not done which the directors think they ought to have done, haven't you looked that up to see whether it was a matter of record or not? A. I left that to counsel, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Apparently you didn't leave this Dutch pamphlet to your counsel. A. I did. I handed it to him and left it with him.

Q. Oh, I thought you looked it up? A. Yes. I found it. I wasn't looking for it.

Q. Has counsel notified you that he has found any record of any such thing? A. No, not as yet.

Q. Not as yet. Now who made any request on the trustees, and to which one of the trustees was the request addressed? A. That I can't tell you without looking the record up.

Q. Well, you can't help us about that. Are you sure one was made? A. I am sure a request of some kind was made.

Q. But what it was, or who made it, or when, you cannot help us? A. No, not exactly.

Q. Then really you do not rest much of your case upon that, do you?—a thing to which you are so vague as that? A. I was not resting very much of the case on that.

Q. No, I should judge not, if you cannot tell us anything about it.

The Master—We will pause till 2 o'clock.

[Recess till 2 p. m.]

Mr. Whipple—If Your Honor please, a copy of a letter from the directors to the trustees, under date of March 3, 1919, and an original of a letter of Mr. Watts of March 21 to the directors, were handed to me just before we suspended for luncheon. This correspondence refers to two letters of the directors to the trustees, dated respectively Feb. 27 and March 13. In order, therefore, to make the full correspondence intelligible, I would like to get those two letters. Mr. Watts would naturally have the originals, but he has not come in yet. Have you copies, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—I beg your pardon?

Mr. Whipple—Have you the copies?

Mr. Krauthoff—I thought I gave you two letters—our letter and your answer.

Mr. Whipple—I thought perhaps you did not hear what I was stating.

Mr. Krauthoff—I was looking for something else.

Mr. Whipple—I am now calling for copies of letters from the directors to the trustees, dated respectively Feb. 27 and March 13.

Mr. Krauthoff—May I have them just a minute? (Papers handed to Mr. Krauthoff.) Our information is that they have been introduced in evidence. They are both asking for certain information of a financial nature. They have both been read in evidence.

Mr. Whipple—Can you tell me the numbers?

Mr. Krauthoff—No, I cannot.

Mr. Whipple—I will offer the letters, or copies which I asked for and which have been handed to me. The first is a copy of a letter, dated March 3, 1919, bearing the legend: "Read Mar 11 1919 The C. S. Board of Directors" and "Read Mar 17 1919 The C. S. Board of Directors"; and is as follows:

[Copy of Exhibit 700.]

"March 3, 1919.

"Board of Trustees,

"The Christian Science Publishing Society,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"I am instructed by The Christian Science Board of Directors to ask you to please let the board know the amounts that have been paid for attorneys' fees by the trustees of the Publishing Society during the past six months, including the names of such attorneys and the amounts paid to each.

"Also please advise if any legal services have been rendered to the trustees during this period which have not yet been paid for, and if so, the amount of such unpaid obligations.

"Sincerely yours,

"Corresponding Secretary for The Christian Science Board of Directors.
"CEJ"

The Master—That we have had in, haven't we?

Mr. Whipple—I should think so, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Well, if it is in it can be referred to by the exhibit number without recopying?

Mr. Whipple—No, it should not be recopied. This copy is stamped with the legend: "Read March 11, The Christian Science Board of Directors," and "Read March 17, 1919, The Christian Science Board of Directors." Can anyone tell me what the number of that is? (No response.) Mr. Withington thinks that the letter itself has not gone in. I think that the vote is what went in, if Your Honor please—or, at least, it has been suggested to me that that is a fact, and it sounds reasonable.

The reply is dated March 21, 1919, and it bears the legend, "Read March 22, 1919, The Christian Science Board of Directors." It is from the office of the business manager and is addressed to The Christian Science Board of Directors, and is as follows:

[Copy of Exhibit 701]

"The Christian Science Publishing Society, Boston, U. S. A.

"March 21, 1919.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"Falmouth and St. Paul Streets,

"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"The Board of Trustees has requested me to send you the inclosed figures requested in your letters to them of Feb. 27 and March 13. The trustees took them to the conference with your board on Monday last, as stated in my letter of March 14, but through press of other business did not leave them.

"The trustees have also requested me to advise you of the amounts which have been paid by the Publishing Society for attorneys' fees, but I have deferred giving this information inasmuch as no bill has been received from Messrs. Whipple, Sears and Ogden. The charges thus far paid are as follows:

"To Justice Charles E. Hughes of New York, $2750.00.

"To Winston, Strawn and Shaw of Chicago, $3500.00.

"With best wishes,

"Yours sincerely,

(Signed) "JOHN R. WATTS
"Business Manager."

"JRW-F7 incl."

Mr. Whipple—I think we had better have these marked.

[Letter, Board of Directors to Board of Trustees, March 3, 1919, is marked Exhibit 700.

Letter, John R. Watts, business manager, to Board of Directors, March 21, 1919, is marked Exhibit 701.]

Mr. Whipple—Now, if Your Honor please, the second letter refers to a letter of Feb. 27, 1919, in which the directors asked for certain information of the trustees. The letter has not been put in, as I am informed—the original has not because I hold it in my hand. I will read it.

[Mr. Whipple reads original letter, dated Feb. 27, 1919, a copy of which has heretofore been marked Exhibit 665.]

Mr. Whipple—Now, this legend appears at the bottom in penciling:

"3-3-19. Divd. report on cables and reported that other information would be forthcoming."

I think possibly this had better be marked with the number of the original exhibit and the letter "a," because of this memorandum at the bottom.

Mr. Thompson—That is Exhibit 665, appearing on page 448 of the printed record.

[Letter from C. E. Jarvis to Board of Trustees, Feb. 27, 1919, duplicate of which has been marked Exhibit 665, is marked Exhibit 665a.]

Mr. Whipple—The other letter, the one of March 13, 1919, is from Mr. Jarvis to the Board of Trustees (reading). Now, is that an exhibit?

Mr. Thompson—Yes, that is an exhibit. It is on pages 448 and 449 of the printed record and is marked Exhibit 669.

Q. Now, in this connection, Mr. Dickey, I want to call your attention to a memorandum in the directors' meeting of Feb. 27, the date of the first letter, Exhibit 665a, which I just referred to:

"The directors had a conference with Judge Clifford P. Smith and ex-Governor John L. Bates and Mr. Leon M. Abbott in connection with the next step to be taken by the directors toward the removal of one or all of the trustees of the Publishing Society."

You remember that occasion, don't you? A. I did not hear all of your conversation over there. I did not know it was intended for me.

Q. I thought I directed the question to you. A. No, sir, I heard your question now, but you referred there to something that you had just been discussing about letters. I did not hear that.

Q. No, I think not. A. What I did not understand was what you meant by "in this connection."

Q. Well, it is in connection with the two letters which I have just read. A. I did not hear you read those letters.

Q. I am sorry for I thought I read them quite distinctly. A. I did not think you were reading them for me, and I did not hear what you said.

Q. Well, I was not reading them for you, but I was reading them as exhibits in the case, but I hoped you would hear them.

[Question read by stenographer as follows:

"Now, in this connection, Mr. Dickey, I want to call your attention to a memorandum in the directors' meeting of February 27, the date of the first letter, Exhibit 665a, which I just referred to:

"The directors had a conference with Judge Clifford P. Smith and ex-Governor John L. Bates and Mr. Leon M. Abbott in connection with the next step to be taken by the directors toward the removal of one or all of the trustees of the Publishing Society."

"You remember that occasion, don't you?" A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then your memorandum says: "Governor Bates was of the opinion that the board ought not to do anything for the present in the way of dismissing the trustees lest this action might throw the directors into court unprepared." A. Yes.

Q. You remember that advice? A. Yes.

Q. Did he explain how the dismissal of one or all of the trustees would throw you into court unprepared?

Mr. Krauthoff—We object to that question, if Your Honor please.

The Master—Why is not counsel entitled to have the witness' memory examined about all of this?

Mr. Krauthoff—As to what his counsel told him?

The Master—I do not hear any objection that he is expected to violate any privilege.

Mr. Krauthoff—Well, we object to his telling what the counsel told him. His counsel's advice is not a subject of inquiry.

The Master—Are you going to insist in view of that objection?

Mr. Whipple—Oh, yes, if Your Honor please. It is put into the record, and, besides, Mr. Krauthoff may not be familiar with the rule in Massachusetts, laid down in 101 Mass., which states that when a person, a party to a suit, takes the witness stand, he waives his privilege and he may be inquired of just as fully with regard to conferences with his counsel as on any other subject. In some states they are not quite as enlightened as that and they still cling to the old doctrine that counsel may be the repository of any unwholesome secret that the client wants to put into his mind, and he has got to keep it.

Mr. Krauthoff—It having become a matter of Massachusetts law, if Your Honor please, I will yield to one of my associates on that.

Mr. Whipple—All right.

Mr. Bates—I do not understand the rule of law, Your Honor, to be as Mr. Whipple has stated it. Personally, however, I do not object to any conversation which I have had with the client being presented now in evidence.

Mr. Whipple—It would be a good idea for you to look it up, Governor, because I have found quite a number of lawyers that did not know it, and it is an important matter of procedure.

Mr. Bates—And I have also found that you are frequently incorrect in your statements.

Mr. Whipple—Well, you have never been able to point them out, and I have repeatedly pointed out your ignorance.

Mr. Bates—It is a hopeless task to point out all your inaccuracies.

Mr. Whipple—You ought to find one when I am finding so many to point out in regard to you.

The Master—While you gentlemen indulge in these remarks on one side and the other the progress of the case is certainly delayed.

Mr. Whipple—That is very true, but I should not do it except I am afraid if I did not do it the Governor would feel he was not being taken proper notice of.

The Master—My understanding agrees with Mr. Whipple's.

Mr. Bates—I have no objection, Your Honor.

The Master—If you have no objection I will permit the question.

Mr. Whipple (to the stenographer)—Perhaps you will be good enough to read the question. I am sorry to trouble you so many times, but it seems to be necessary.

[The question is read by the stenographer as follows: "Did he explain how the dismissal of one or all of the trustees would throw you into court unprepared?"]

A. He did not; he just made that statement in a general way.

Q. That the removal of one or all of the trustees might throw the directors into court? A. Yes, sir. We understood at that time that the trustees—

Q. Pardon me; that is what he said,—"might throw them into court, and throw them into court unprepared"? A. Yes. That is quite an explanation in itself, I should think.

Q. Well, I did not ask for an explanation; I was just looking at you, that is all, but if you were moved by the spirit to say something there is no harm done, I guess. A. No; I just love to have you look at me, Mr. Whipple.

Q. I suppose you think it is sort of a blessing? A. No; I like the faces you make.

Q. "He advised the board to prepare its case in such a way that if brought into court the board would be prepared to give its reasons for removing one or all of the trustees of the Publishing Society." You remember his advising that? A. Yes. I spoke about—

Q. That is, if you had not any case prepared, that you prepare one? A. No, no. Do you want me to answer that—

Q. No; I want you to answer the question. You have been instructed several times that that was a wise thing for a witness to do. A. Ask me about the first one.

Q. I will ask you one: Did he advise that you should prepare your case? A. Yes, in a general way.

Q. In a general way? A. He said we ought not to go into a thing of that kind unprepared in case there was any litigation.

Q. Yes. Then it says that counsel encouraged the directors to continue to make requests of the trustees for the proper fulfillment of their duties. You remember his doing that, don't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then that same day— A. What?

Q. Then that same day you wrote a letter to the trustees asking them to give you a statement of their monthly outlays and expenses of each month, for the six-month period ending Sept. 30, and then up to Jan. 31. A. Yes.

Q. That was in pursuance of the advice of the Governor that you prepare your case? A. His advice was that we keep right on.

Q. Well, pardon me— A. Yes. Q. —to prepare your case? A. Prepare your case—and I would like to add to that, he said keep right on doing just what you are, and ask—“You have a perfect right to ask questions and I would advise you to continue to do so.”

Q. To continue to ask questions? A. Yes.

Q. Well, what had the asking of questions to do with preparing your case, he finding you at that time unprepared? A. Well, I don't know; that is one of the legal mysteries that I have not gone into.

Q. That is one of the mysteries that the Governor propounded that you have not been able to solve? A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. Well, now, what had the asking of these questions about financial expenditures to do with preparing your case? A. I really don't know.

Q. Well, I see. I thought you spoke of that as one of the mysteries you had not solved? A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. You had never asked for any monthly statements of expenses and receipts from the trustees before that, had you? A. I think not, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, you know you hadn't, don't you? A. I don't remember that we did at all.

Q. That is as strongly as you can put it—you don't remember that you did? A. That is right.

Q. Don't you remember that you never had? A. Well, I wouldn't say that, because we might have done so.

Q. Yes, exactly. Then you moved a little later to ask how much the trustees had paid for legal expenses.

Mr. Whipple—That appears on March 3, if Your Honor please, if I may direct Your Honor's attention to it, and also that of the witness.

The Master—I remember it.

Q. Now, I will call your attention to this and see if it accords with your memory. In your minutes of March 3:

“The directors had an interview with Judge Clifford P. Smith, who read to the board two letters from himself to the board, both dated March 1, one recommending that the Board of Trustees of the Publishing Society be composed of three editors, and recommending that an early selection be made of a business manager for the Publishing Society, the other conveying an opinion expressed by former Governor Bates in a conversation with Judge Smith that the board make frequent demands on the trustees for information.”

Did Judge Smith say that you had not been making sufficiently frequent demands? A. No, I don't think he said that.

Q. Well, did he make any suggestion as to why you should again record in your minutes the making of frequent demands on the trustees, when you hadn't been making frequent ones before? A. Why we should record in our minutes? No, he made no suggestion of putting anything in our minutes.

Q. Well, did he state any reason why he reminded you of the Governor's advice that you make frequent demands? A. I don't believe he gave any other reason than just the statement in the letter, that I recall.

Q. I beg pardon. A. I do not recall that he gave any other reason beyond just the statement in the letter.

Q. Well, this is not a letter— The Master—A letter from Judge Smith.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, I think I am right. Now, let us see those letters, perhaps they will give the reason. Perhaps you hadn't been brisk and diligent enough in making demands, so you needed your activities stimulated. Have you the letter?

The Witness—Is that a question that you are asking me?

Mr. Whipple—I beg pardon?

The Witness—Is that a question you are asking me?

Mr. Whipple—Well, it was a hint so that you could answer it if you wanted to.

The Witness—No; I thought that we were getting along fairly well without any stimulation.

Q. Then this spur of your counsel—two of them, in two written letters—that you make frequent demands, you didn't think the board needed? A. Not as a spur.

Q. As a reminder? A. As an act of wisdom.

Q. As an act of wisdom? A. Yes.

Q. Even though they were doing it without? A. Perhaps he might have thought we were not making enough demands.

Q. That is just what I suggested. A. Yes.

Q. That evidently your counsel didn't think you were making enough demands, that is, you were not preparing your case fast enough, as you understood? A. Well, our preparing our case did not consist in making demands.

Q. Well, what was the object of making demands? A. So that we might have a good fair reason for dismissing one of the trustees in case they declined to comply with the reasonable demands that we made.

Q. I see; that was it. That is just it. That is, the demands were made with the hope that these trustees would refuse some reasonable demand? A. Not by any means—not by any means.

Q. With the expectation— A. There never was a moment when this case could not have been settled.

Q. Just a moment. With the expectation that they might refuse those demands, reasonable demands, and then they could be put out? A. No, sir.

Q. I thought that was what you said just a moment ago. A. With the expectation that if they did refuse those reasonable demands we would have their refusal on record.

Q. I see. And if they didn't, then the play, as far as that aspect of it was concerned, was up? A. Well, I don't know what you mean by the play. But we were seriously trying to avoid litigation, and contention of every kind and make a righteous adjustment of our differences.

Q. I see. And that is why you wrote letters to them frequently, making frequent demands, having in view that if they did not reply to them you would have an excuse to remove them? A. You notice we didn't do that.

Q. Pardon me. Isn't that so? A. We didn't do that, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Why, you made your demands? A. We didn't write frequently.

Q. Not frequently enough? A. No.

Mr. Whipple—Now, have you got those letters?

Mr. Krauthoff—They are letters from Judge Smith to the directors that you are asking for?

Mr. Whipple—I think so. I beg pardon. I thought there were two letters from Judge Smith. Oh, no, I do not care for those, I thought the Governor had written. I am sorry I troubled you. It was a quotation of a conversation from the Governor, I find from the record.

Q. Well, you made frequent demands in accordance with the Governor's suggestion made on the day when he found you were not prepared to go into court, or he thought you were not? A. Not as many as we did before.

Q. That is, after having made demands, then the Governor advised you to keep on making them, and then he advised you again to make frequent demands? A. The Governor?

Q. Yes; in conversation with Judge Smith. A. Aren't you a little mixed on that, Mr. Whipple?

Q. I guess not. Let me read and see:

“The other conveying an opinion expressed by ex-Governor Bates in a conversation with Judge Smith, that the board make frequent demands upon the trustees for information.”

Well, you are mixed up on it, aren't you? A. It is a conversation which Governor Bates had with Judge Smith.

Q. Yes, that is right—which Judge Smith reported to the board. You didn't think it affected the validity of the Governor's opinion that it came through Judge Smith, did you? A. I don't think it was impaired any by having it presented to us by Judge Smith.

Q. Not impaired the slightest, so you got it. Then after you had received this opinion that you should keep making demands, an opinion delivered the same day on which he told you you were not prepared to go into court, and then a few days later told you through Judge Smith to make frequent demands, you didn't make demands as frequently as you had before he advised you? A. No, we did not.

Q. You couldn't think of anything to demand, could you? A. Oh, there was a great deal we could have demanded.

Q. But you didn't follow your counsel's advice? A. We didn't make any more frequent demands after that than we did before.

Q. You said you made less frequent demands, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. What? A. Yes.

Q. Now, was Judge Smith helping to prepare the case? A. We were not preparing a case at that time.

Q. Well, the Governor said you ought to? A. We didn't prepare a case.

Q. The Governor said you ought to prepare so you wouldn't be called into court unprepared, didn't he? A. He said something that you could construe as that.

Q. Well, he said what appears, probably, in your record? A. Yes.

Q. Now you say you were not preparing your case. There is reference in the record to a letter from Judge Smith just before you went south. It was Dec. 19. Will you produce that, please—Dec. 19 of 1918?

Mr. Whipple—In the records of Dec. 19, 1918, page 205:

"Letters were read from the following:

"Judge Clifford P. Smith, dated Boston, Dec. 19, presenting further recommendations with reference to the conference between the Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees set for 10 o'clock this day."

Have you that, Mr. Krauthoff?

Mr. Krauthoff—I am handing to Mr. Whipple a letter dated Dec. 19, 1918, addressed to The Christian Science Board of Directors, signed Clifford P. Smith, manager of Committees on Publication.

Mr. Whipple—I offer this letter, if Your Honor please. It is on the heading, Committee on Publication, of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, 19th December, 1918. It bears the legend: "Read, Dec. 19, the C. S. Board of Directors." It also bears another one giving the hour of the day on which it was read.

The Witness—Received.

Q. Received? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Thank you. That doesn't say received, but that is what it means, is it? A. Yes.

[A letter from Judge Clifford P. Smith to the directors, dated Dec. 19, 1918, is offered in evidence and marked Exhibit 702, and is read by Mr. Whipple, as follows:]

[Exhibit 702.]

"Dec. 19, 1918.

"The Christian Science Board of Directors,

"105 Falmouth Street,
"Boston, Massachusetts.

"Dear Friends:

"After having drafted and further considered the memorandum of particular directions to be given by the directors to the trustees at their meeting today, I would recommend that such directions be mentioned early in today's meeting, and read to the trustees at some suitable time during the meeting. One reason for this recommendation is that the trustees may be uncertain as to just what the directors expect to require of them now, and reading these directions would tend to assure them that the directors do not contemplate anything arbitrary or unreasonable. Another reason is that the position of the directors would be strengthened, in the view of the field or a court of equity, by giving these or such particular directions at the same time when the directors insist on their basic position."

The Witness—Yes, sir. Don't you think that was a wise advice?

Mr. Whipple—Yes—the fine Machiavellian hand; but in connection with all this innocence about never expecting to be haled to court it looks like a roaring farce.

[Mr. Whipple concluded the reading of the letter:]

"For the latter reason, and for the further reason that all of the particular directions present a stronger case than any one of them, I feel quite sure that your directions to be mentioned at today's meeting should not be limited to a single one, but should include whatever you really consider needful at this time.

"Cordially and sincerely yours,

"CLIFFORD P. SMITH,

"Manager of Committee on Publication.
"CPS:HM"

Q. Now, do you think he was assisting in the preparation of your case with reference to "a court of equity"? A. He was assisting us, of course, but the trustees were the only ones who knew there was going to be a lawsuit. We didn't. We hoped all the time that there would not be.

Q. You hoped, but were getting ready? A. Yes.

Q. Yes, getting ready? A. Yes, sir. I submit that that also was a wise thing to do.

Mr. Bates—They hadn't engaged attorneys in Chicago and New York, though, at that time.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, no; they were engaging—no, not at that time—

Mr. Bates—They hadn't been preparing for months, in other words.

Mr. Whipple—They would have been better off if they had employed some competent counsel. Don't you think so, Governor Bates? They didn't come to you as soon as they should?

The Witness—We took members of The Mother Church, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—I see; that was what you did. Is the Governor—

The Master—I want to ask you gentlemen if it doesn't seem to you that all that is really important in all this could be put in in a very much briefer time?

Mr. Whipple—I will try to, if Your Honor please.

Q. May I call your attention to Section 8 of Article XXV of the By-Laws, about the middle of that provision? No, I will read the whole of it:

"Only the Publishing Society of The Mother Church selects, approves, and publishes the books and literature it sends forth. If Mary Baker Eddy disapproves of certain books or literature, the Society will not publish them. The Committees on Publication are in no manner connected with these functions."

The Witness—Pardon me, Mr. Whipple, you asked me a question a while ago that I have not completed.

Q. Well, suppose you answer this, because your mind might get off of this one. A. Then you will bring me back.

Q. Well, I will try to, but I cannot always control you.

The Master—Answer the present question and then we will see what remains.

Mr. Krauthoff—The present question consists of a quotation from the Manual which is in evidence.

The Master—Very well; if we haven't got it all let us have it now.

Mr. Whipple—I haven't finished it. The trouble is the witness referred me back and then you interrupted.

Mr. Krauthoff—Now that we are really coordinated—

The Master—Now complete your question, please, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Do you remember that provision of the Manual? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then in the letter that Judge Smith wrote, which I just read, and your conferences with him, it was not as the "Committee on Publication" but as counsel, I take it? A. We employ Judge Smith in a dual capacity.

Q. I see. A. He was the Committee on Publication of The Mother Church; and when we appointed him to that office we also arranged with him that he should give us such legal advice as we might need from time to time.

Q. And so this letter, although it was signed "Committee on Publication," was really your counsel? A. Yes, sir.

The Master—Now if the witness thinks that a question is pending which he has not answered, perhaps we had better fix that matter.

Mr. Whipple—Yes, sir.

The Witness—You asked me if I could recall instances of refusal on the part of the Publishing Society to comply with requests made by the directors.

Q. When did I ask you that? A. At the beginning of this subject that we are on now, before—

Q. Well, that was before noon? A. Yes, it was.

Q. This forenoon? A. Yes, but I had not finished at 1 o'clock.

Q. Apparently you had finished as far as you could remember? A. Yes.

Q. And knowing that the reservoir of your thoughts might be filled up in the meantime, I purposely started on another subject. A. Won't you now let me go back and answer your question?

Q. No, I guess I wouldn't. A. I would like to.

Q. Because we are spending a good deal of time; but you know the examination is not run wholly for letting you do as you like to; partly to extract information. A. Yes.

Q. I call your attention to Exhibit 23, a copy of a letter dated Feb. 6 from Governor Bates and his associates, addressed to Mr. Strawn. It is sent with the legend, "Seen Feb. 12, 1919, by the Board of Trustees." Can you tell when that letter was called to your attention? (Paper handed to witness.) Mr. Krauthoff will remind you when that was called to the attention of the board, and I will ask you if it was not on Feb. 6? A. I do not recall this letter, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, I will agree that Mr. Krauthoff may hand you a letter which was sent to you, which will perhaps refresh your recollection.

Mr. Krauthoff—Feb. 6, inclosing a copy.

Mr. Whipple—Let him keep the other, Mr. Krauthoff.

Mr. Krauthoff—Yes.

Mr. Whipple—Let him keep the real exhibit. (To witness) You may use that which Mr. Krauthoff handed you merely to refresh your recollection.

Mr. Krauthoff—The letter that was sent to the board, Mr. Whipple, the copy, was the one addressed to Judge Hughes. The one you are showing Mr. Dickey is the one addressed to Mr. Strawn, but I understand they are the same letters.

Mr. Whipple—So do I.

Q. Now, if I shall not interrupt your thought, may I call your attention to the report that Judge Smith made on the evening of Feb. 1, the day the agreement was reached? A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Reading)

"Judge Smith met with the directors to report the progress of the joint conference between counsel representing" (the respective parties). "After a thorough discussion of the situation, Mr. Dittmore prepared a written statement expressing his view, which was read to the board.

"The following motion was offered by Mr. Dickey, seconded by Mr. Neal, and carried:

"In ratification of the agreement proposed by counsel, I move that we accept the concession made by the trustees and that we await further developments."

You remember that vote? A. Yes.

Q. You framed it, did you not? A. I did.

Q. Did you understand that anything had been agreed upon by counsel who had labored for some time to compromise this situation? A. I did.

Q. Was a report made as to what had been agreed upon? A. Judge Smith brought us a verbal report.

Q. You didn't see any paper? A. Not on the occasion of his first visit.

Q. Now, without going into it, what did you understand the directors on their part agreed to do? A. The directors agreed to continue to meet with the trustees.

Q. Had they refused to meet before? A. No.

Q. Then it was not an agreement? A. And—I was not through, Mr. Whipple; I speak a little deliberately. They agreed to continue to meet with the trustees and see if those could not be worked out through demonstration—our differences.

Q. Well, the meetings were for the purpose of administration of the business of the boards, were they not? A. Which meetings?

Q. The meetings that the trustees and directors were to have? A. No, we did not administer the business of the board with the trustees.

Q. Oh, you understood that the meetings were merely for the purpose of discussing your controversies? A. Our meetings were for the purpose of endeavoring to come at a wholesome understanding and adjustment of our differences through conferences arranged by our counsel to take place each Monday.

Q. And then all that you understood the directors to agree to was to meet and have conferences? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And talk over the— A. The control of the practitioners' and churches' and nurses' cards for advertisement in the Journal.

Q. All of which had been done by the trustees at the request of the Board of Directors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Theretofore? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is all you understood— A. Many years before, yes.

Q. That is all you understood by the agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was any discussion held at the time as to what you meant—"We await further development"? "We accept the concession and we await further development"? Now was there a discussion as to what was meant after this agreement had been entered into in good faith by counsel and the parties, as to what you meant by awaiting further developments, accepting the concession? A. Why, as I understand, further developments were—

Q. Pardon me, you will notice I didn't ask you what you understood by further developments. Was there any discussion in the Board of Directors when you drafted that vote in that way and put it through as to what was meant by awaiting further developments after this settlement had been made by counsel? A. I don't remember that there was any discussion beyond the passing of the motion.

Q. Will you say that there was not? A. No, I wouldn't, because it is quite likely that we intended that motion to mean that we would—

Q. If you will pardon me, I didn't ask you your interpretation of it. A. All right.

Q. If you will observe my question—of course, if it meant mental relief to you to say something about it, I shouldn't object seriously. A. No, it doesn't relieve me mentally at all to talk.

Mr. Whipple—Well, that is it. Then there is not the slightest reason for saying anything beyond the answer to the question. Will you let me have that memorandum of March 6 that Mr. Thompson was using this morning, the one that Mr. Dickey used with the trustees? I mean the Dittmore memorandum. Exhibit 680 is what I want. (Paper produced.) (To the witness.) If you won't mind, we will look this over together.

The Witness—Come over, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—Thank you.

The Witness—I just love to get closer to you.

Q. Now I call your attention to Exhibit 680. You were questioned about it some this morning, you remember? A. Some questions, yes.

Q. Some questions, and questioned some. Now you went over to see the Board of Trustees on a purposeful errand? A. Yes.

Q. And that purpose was to see if you could not get some basis of compromising the controversy? A. I didn't expect to go there to compromise; I went there to see—

Q. Pardon me, pardon me. A. I thought you asked me what I went for.

Mr. Whipple—Oh, no. Won't you read, Mr. Stenographer, the question, and (to the witness) if you will focus your mentality on that you will see that I didn't ask you that. You see your mind jumps to conclusions.

The Witness—Mine is all ready at every conclusion.

[The stenographer read as follows:

"Q. Now you went over to see the Board of Trustees on a purposeful errand? A. Yes.

"Q. And that purpose was to see if you could not get some basis of compromising the controversy?"

The Witness—I did not go for a basis of compromise.

Q. I see; I had thought you did. I had thought you had testified that you went over to see if you could not discover some basis for compromise. If you have so testified you want to withdraw it? A. With regard to the word "compromise," as I understand the meaning of it, I was not there for the purpose of making a compromise.

Q. Well, were you there for the purpose of seeing whether you could get some basis for an agreement? A. Yes.

Q. But not an agreement of compromise? A. No.

Q. An agreement whereby you should have your way? Was that it, or whose way was it? A. We wanted God's way.

Q. No; pardon me; was it your way? A. No—

Q. Or God speaking through you and nobody else? A. It was God's plan and a righteous adjustment that I was trying to consummate.

Q. Isn't an adjustment a compromise? A. I wouldn't call it so.

Q. That is, you went without the slightest idea of compromising any of the claims of the directors? A. That is it, yes.

Q. Not the slightest. Then it must have been to persuade the trustees to accede to your claims? A. Largely so, yes, sir.

Q. Yes, that was it. Now, did you tell them when you came there that you came for the purpose of persuading them to accept the claims of the directors? A. Not in those words.

Q. Did you say anything about seeing if you could not settle the controversy? A. Yes.

Q. By fair compromise? A. No.

Q. Nothing of the sort? A. Not compromise.

Q. And it didn't enter your head that the directors should concede one jot or tittle of their claims when you went there, did it? A. That was not my intention.

Q. And you say that you went to that interview with the thought in your mind that you would not concede one jot or tittle of the directors' claim? Is that correct? A. Hardly, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, was there anything in the directors' claims that you were ready to concede when you went there? A. I do not recall that there was.

Q. Well, then— A. There may have been—

Q. Then so far as you remember, you went there with the purpose not to concede one thing with regard to the directors' claim? A. Not to concede anything that was right.

Q. I am not asking about—you confine the directors' claims with right, and although you may have the opinion they are right, it is not shared. Now, then, will you answer my question? You know what the directors' claims were, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, when you went to that interview did you go with the determination that you would not concede or that the directors would not concede anything from those claims?

A. The claims, as I said—

Q. No, pardon. A. Yes.

Q. That can be answered categorically, and if you want to answer it fairly I will ask you to do it. A. I went there with the idea that we would not concede—

Mr. Whipple—I pray Your Honor's judgment.

The Master—I think you ought to answer directly first and see then if any explanation is necessary.

A. I did not intend to concede any of the directors' claims based on the Manual.

Q. Or to negotiate with reference to any such concession? A. No.

Mr. Whipple—You have talked of something—I will ask, if Your Honor please, to have that question answered categorically which I put. His Honor so ruled.

The Witness—Yes, I will be glad to. What is the question, please?

Mr. Whipple—(To the stenographer.) Will you read that question again?

[Question read as follows: "Q. Well, now, when you went to that interview did you go with the determination that you would not concede or that the directors would not concede anything from those claims?"]

A. I did not.

Q. Did you go— A. Now the claims were not sufficiently well defined at that time so that they were definite and positive, except as we intended that those claims should rest on our duties as outlined in the Manual of The Mother Church.

Q. Have you any conception or clear conception or definition as to what those claims were? A. Yes.

Q. What were they? The claims you have just described as based on your conception of the Manual? A. They were that the directors should elect the editors of the Christian Science periodicals, that they should elect the business manager, that they alone should determine the policy of the Christian Science publications, that they should have the right to dismiss for any cause that to them might seem expedient—a member of the Board of Trustees, that they should have the right to ask for the dismissal of any person in the employ of The Christian Science Publishing Society or connected therewith who was not suitable.

Q. Anything else? A. Those are the main points, Mr. Whipple.

Q. Well, tell us those that were not main, because this is an important point which I want you to clear up, because I do not want you to think up something or think of something later after we have passed another milestone of the inquiry.

The Witness—What are the ones I have mentioned? May I have them repeated?

Mr. Whipple—Certainly. (To the stenographer.) Will you read them? [Answer read by the stenographer.]

A. And that under the by-law, that they should transact the business of The Mother Church. The directors were responsible for a general oversight of the publication of the periodicals of The Mother Church.

Q. Anything else? A. I think that is all I can recall just now. There may be something else; I do not know of it just now.

Q. You see what I would like to avoid if I can is having you come in tomorrow morning to try to answer this question I am now putting to you. I would rather get all your answer now. You wanted a little while ago to answer a question I put to you this forenoon, and that is not an orderly record, so I will give you— A. But I hadn't finished, Mr. Whipple; 1 o'clock came, and we suspended.

Q. I think the record will not confirm your view of it. I think we had exhausted your memory. However, apply your mind now, not to answering that question that you think you did not answer this forenoon, but the question I have now put to you: If you can think of any other claims, with reference to which you went to this meeting determined that you would not concede one jot or tittle. A. I do not think of anything else now, Mr. Whipple.

Q. All right. Now, will you tell us what the claims were that the directors had made, or had in mind, regarding which you were willing, when you went to that interview, to make concessions? A. I did not have anything in my mind that was contained in the memorandum I read to them that we were willing to concede.

Q. I am not talking about the memorandum. I am talking about that— A. That is all I had in mind.

Q. Now, then, I will ask you what the claims were that you had in your mind that you had any thought of conceding? A. I had none.

Q. Then we come back to where we were quite a while ago; that when you went there you had in mind the directors' claims, and you went with a purpose of not conceding one jot or tittle from those claims; that is correct, is it? A. Not the ones that were based on the Manual.

Q. Well, those were all you had in mind, weren't they? A. Yes.

Q. That is all. Why couldn't you answer the question frankly and say that you went there with certain claims in your mind with reference to which you had determined that you would not compromise or concede one jot or tittle. A. Yes.

Q. That is fair. It has taken quite a while to get that, but it is worth it now that we have it. You brought with you this paper which has been marked Exhibit 680, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And in the form in which it now is, except for the penciling; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, where do you find incorporated there the claims which you have stated that you had in mind that you did not propose to concede? Point them out. Do you want to have them read to you as you just gave them so that you can point out, as each one is read, the place and paragraph that covers that claim? A. Not just now.

Q. Have you those sufficiently clearly in mind so that you can repeat them and point out the paragraphs in this proposed agreement which covered them? I think there were six or seven of them, and I hope you will get the order as you had it before and give us the paragraph. State each claim and the paragraph. A. I think they are all embodied in this one paragraph.

Q. Well, read it. A. "It shall be accepted in theory and demonstrated in practice that The Mother Church is one institution and that the responsible authority for its direction in all of its departments is not divided but has been definitely established in The Christian Science Board of Directors."

Q. That is, all your demands and claims were incorporated there? A. I think that one clause includes everything.

Q. Why did you have all the rest of those things—three or four pages?

A. So that there might be no question in the future arising as to a disagreement of what this clause might mean.

Q. Did you explain that to the—

A. No.

Q. —trustees? A. No.

Q. That was not by any chance camouflaged—the rest of it, was it?

A. No, sir, no camouflage about my visit there at all.

Q. I wasn't talking about your visit. I was talking of your paper. A. The paper was with me on my visit.

Q. I supposed it was; you so testified. A. That was part of my visit.

Q. That would not prevent your papers being camouflaged, would it?

A. Yes.

Q. Except your rectitude of purpose, and that sort of thing? A. Thank you, Mr. Whipple. I am glad that you acknowledge that.

Q. Yes. Well, I am very glad to acknowledge it and I wish I saw more evidence of it. A. Well, you would if you knew me better.

Q. I am coming to know you pretty well, and what is more to the point, a lot of people are who never knew you before. A. That is true.

Q. That is it. Now, then, take the first: "The relations, duties, and responsibilities of The Christian Science Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees must necessarily be based not upon single detached sections and sentences," etc. You read that to the trustees, did you? A. Yes.

Q. You did not show this to them? A. I handed it over to them after we had discussed it.

Q. With these words "Yes" and "No" on it? A. Yes.

Q. And then you wrote "Yes"? A. After the trustees consented to accept the terms of that first paragraph I wrote "Yes."

Q. That is it. That is, you merely asked them if they would agree to that and they said "Yes"? A. They said "Yes."

Q. And you did not agree to it at all? A. I did not make any objection to it.

Q. Did you agree to it? A. Yes.

Q. Then you agreed to it? A. Yes.

Q. That is it. I thought you said this morning that you did not agree to anything? You told Mr. Thompson so? A. No, this is what I told Mr. Thompson—

Q. No, pardon me, I did not ask you that. I asked you, did you not tell him that when you wrote "Yes" it did not mean that you agreed to it? A. It did not mean—

Q. Pardon me, I am asking you what you said to Mr. Thompson. Didn't you tell him this morning that when you wrote that word "Yes" it did not mean that you agreed to the paragraph indicated? Didn't you say that? A. Not with reference to that particular one. I was talking about all of them, the whole—

Q. Oh, I see. A. Yes.

Q. That is, you thought he asked you about all the "Yeses"? Is that it? A. In a general way.

Q. Well, pardon me a moment. A. Yes.

Q. Did you think, when he put the question as to whether you by writing "Yes" assented to what was bracketed opposite it, that what he meant was the whole? A. He asked me—

Q. Pardon me; answer the question. A. No.

Q. Now, then, is it true that when you wrote that word "Yes" you wrote it as indicating the assent to that of the trustees and your own assent? A. That is true, that I agreed.

Q. Pardon me. Will you answer that question?

Mr. Bates—I think you should state which "Yes" you have reference to, Mr. Whipple.

Mr. Whipple—The one opposite Paragraph 1 is the one I am talking about.

Mr. Bates—Thank you for identifying it.

Mr. Whipple—I had already done it.

Mr. Bates—I did not so understand.

Q. Will you answer the question? A. I did agree—

Mr. Whipple—Pardon me, will you read the question?

[The question is read to the witness as follows: "Now, then, is it true that when you wrote that word 'yes' you wrote it as indicating the assent to that of the trustees and your own assent?"]

A. No, because you coupled my assent with theirs. I was assenting to a different proposition to what they were assenting to. They assented and gave their consent to that first paragraph. I assented to it as taking that over to the directors as a basis of agreement.

Q. I see. I thought you said that you did not go there for the purpose of getting a basis of agreement. A. I said a basis of compromise.

Q. Did you go there— A. I did not go there—

Q. —to get a basis of agreement? A. I did.

Q. An agreement in which you were to concede absolutely nothing? A. An agreement in which the trustees were to comply with the By-Laws of The Mother Church.

Q. Yes; and the directors to concede absolutely nothing? A. There was nothing for us to concede.

Q. Yes, that is it. A. I could not concede something that was against the fundamental, basic laws of The Mother Church.

Q. Then what you say is that your visit was not for the purpose of getting a basis of agreement, but to persuade the trustees to sign something which you wanted them to sign? A. That was the agreement; that was the basis of the agreement I went for.

Q. That is all you went for? A. All I went for—

Q. Not for the purpose of making a constructive agreement that would give due regard to their views and those of the directors as well? A. I could not do that for the directors—

Q. Pardon me a moment. But to impose the will of the directors upon that board. A. Now, don't go away; come back here.

Q. Wasn't that it, sir? A. I didn't think it was.

Q. You did not think it was. I will leave you to show if you can that it was not. A. Let me hear that question again?

Mr. Whipple—No, I think you have answered it. That is all.

The Witness—Can't I hear that again?

Mr. Whipple—I think I have been near you long enough.

Q. Now, at some time you had a talk with the trustees at which you quoted something about extravagance? A. Yes

Q. Can you quote that again? A. I will try.

Q. Thank you. A. I said that it had been brought to the attention of the directors that the trustees had purchased a limousine.

Q. Yes. A. For their use, and we—

Q. Pardon me. You remember the subject, but I want to get that quotation that you gave with regard to extravagance. That will make it shorter. A. What quotation are you referring to?

Q. Why, in your direct examination you said that you quoted to them something from Mrs. Eddy's writings about extravagance or the necessity of economy, etc. A. I did make reference to that in the course of that conversation.

Q. Yes. Well, now, will you quote it again for us? A. That is from the Manual and I would like to read it.

Q. Was it from the Manual or Mrs. Eddy's writings? A. Yes.

Q. Can't you quote it? A. I could, but I—

Q. Try it. A. I am required to read it from the book.

Q. The Manual requires it, does it? A. Our practice is to read those things. When we are quoting from Mrs. Eddy's writings, our practice is to read from the book.

Q. I think that is a very good thing for people with infirm memories. A. Yes, that is a good thing.

Q. If you can find it, let us hear you read it, and be sure it is the same thing you quoted in your direct examination, that is all. A. "God requires wisdom, economy, and brotherly love to characterize all the proceedings of the members of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist." I read that from the Manual of The Mother Church, written by Mrs. Eddy.

Q. Well, I think the other day you stopped at this point: "God requires wisdom, economy," and you did not add the "brotherly love"; but that is what you meant to quote, the whole thing? A. That is what I did quote originally.

Q. Now, that is required of all members of The Mother Church, is it not? Just look at it and see. A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the requirement? A. Yes.

Q. Including the officers of The Mother Church? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you felt that that enjoined a duty on all officials, in respect to the administration of their trust? A. Yes.
